Catholic Encyclopedia Vol. VII.

Volume VII of the Catholic Encyclopedia, which has just issued from the press, marks the completion of the first half of the greatest literary undertaking that Catholics in the English-speaking world have ever known. In three years the work has grown from a single volume to a splendid array of imposing tomes, crowded with the world's best learning and giving promise of even better things when "finis" is written on the last of all. So steady and regular has been the progress of this Encyclopedia that the realization that it has reached the halfway mark comes almost as a surprise, but it is a surprise which brings with it an appreciation of the real value of this latest addition to the bibliography of the Catholic Church.

Nothing like it has ever before been attempted in the English language and nothing superior to it has appeared in any other. No longer is it necessary in searching for information on Catholic matters either to turn to the biased accounts of unfriendly works of reference or to search laboriously through various Catholic works until the particular thing wanted is ascertained. The time has at last arrived when the institution whose manifold interests and influences demanded encyclopedic treatment can point to a thorough, dignified and dispassionate medium through which its past and present may be made known to every inquirer with accuracy and despatch. Already scholars of all denominations are beginning to use and to quote from this Encyclopedia; the fairness and objectivity which characterize its treatment of its subjects has done much to promote a better feeling and understanding among students of all creeds and it is safe to say that the impetus which it has given to historical and literary research will go far to raise the standard of American scholarship. Truly, the Encyclopedia deserves well at all hands.

The present volume begins with an article on "Gregory XII," by Michael Ott, and concludes with "Infatigability," which important subject is ably treated by P. J. Toner. The alphabetical grouping has brought within the purview of this volume many subjects of particular importance. Biographically there are "Ignatius Loyola," by J. H. Pollen, "Henry VIII," by Herbert Thurston, "Hae," by J. Wilhelm, "Guisenberg," by Heinrich Wilhelm Wallas, and the various popes who bore the name of Gregory or Honorius.

The geographical contributions include "Hungary," by A. Alday, "Haiti," by George Reinhold, "Guatemala," by Jose M. Ramirez Colon, "India," by Ernest R. Hall, "Iceland" by P. Wittman, and "Indo-China," by Thomas Kennedy. Such articles as "House of Guise," by Georges Goyau, "Gunpowder Plot," by J. H. Pollen, "Guelphs and Ghibellines," by Edmund J. Gardner, "Huguenots," by Antoine Deger, prove that the historical subjects in the Encyclopedia are being treated in a manner in keeping with its high standards.

Philosophy is more than well represented in Volume VII, and the subjects under that head include "Habit," by C. A. Dubsy, "Hedonism" and "Indifferentism," by Jas. J. Fox, "Hegelianism," by William Fortescue, "Hylasism," by John M. Redon, "Ignorance," by J. F. Delany, "Immanence," by B. Thamy, "Ideation," by P. Colby, and "Idem" and "Immortality," by Michael Maher.

Principal among the theological articles are "Heaven," by Joseph Heinlein, "Hell," by the same author, "Hosi" (Liturgical), by A. J. Schulte, and "Hosi" (Archaeological), by H. Loelcher, "Immaculate Conception," by Frederick G. Holweck, and "Incarnation," by Walter Drum, while A. J. Mass is the author of two splendid articles on "Hermeneutics" and "Hermeneutics."

On the organization and internal workings of the Church itself, "Hierarchy," by Stanislaus Dunin Borkowski, "History, Ecclesiastical," by J. P. Kirsch, "Hierarchy, Sociological," by A. C. Fontana, "Heresy," by W. H. K. K. and "Infallibility," by P. J. Toner, are deserving of special mention. Among the confederations, religious and secular, are "Hermits of St. Augustine," or Augustinian Order, by Max Heimbocher, "Congregation of the Holy Cross," by Arthur Barry O'Neill, and "Knights of the Holy Sepulchre" and "Hospitaliers," by Charles Moeller. "Guilds" are taken care of by Edwin Burton, who lays particular stress on the English guilds, and Pierre Marique, who considers those which developed in France and Germany. Two articles which more than bear out the eulogistic comments made upon the masterly way in which Indian subjects have been previously treated in the Encyclopedia are "Huron Indians," by A. B. Jones, the Jesuit authority, and "American Indians," by James Mooney, United States Ethnologist. In this field, as in many others, the Catholic Encyclopedia stands alone among reference works and its contributions to the bibliography of the Red Man are of permanent value and usefulness.

Among the topics of special interest in America are "Idaho," by John Howley, "Illinois," by Hugh O'Neill, "Indiana," by J. Walter Wiltschko, "Bishop Hughes," by P. J. Hayes, and the dioceses of "Hawaii," by T. F. Moehan, and "Hartford," by T. S. Dugan. Altogether Volume VII is a worthy continuation of a work, which is without any question the greatest addition to the learning of the world that this decade has seen.

About Aubrey de Vere.

Aubrey de Vere born, 1788—Sir Aubrey de Vere was born at Carragh Chase in Limerick, and received his education at Harrow. Among the great prose writers it would be difficult to find one who is at all times so choicer, careful and simple. There is an elegance combined with accuracy and clearness in his prose writings such as anyone acquainted with the man would naturally expect.

The list of his literary works is a long one. In the year 1842 he published "The Waldenses," "The Search After Prosperity" in 1843, "Poems, Miscellaneous and Sacred," in 1853, "May Carol" in 1857, "The Sisters" in 1861, "The Infant Bridal" in 1864, "Irish Odes" in 1869, "The Legends of St. Patrick" in 1873, "Alexander the Great" in 1874, "St. Thomas of Canterbury" in 1876, "Legends of the Saxon Saints" in 1879, "The Foray of Queen Meave" and "Other Legends of Ireland's Heroic Age" in 1883, "Legends and Records of the Church and the Empire" in 1887, "St. Peter's Chains" in 1888, "English Miracle and Irish Miracles" in 1848, "Picaraque Skoehoes of Greece and Turkey" in 1850, "Ireland's Ostrich Property and the Right Use of It" in 1867, two volumes of essays on literary and ethical subjects in 1890, "Religious Poems of the Nineteenth Century" in 1893, "Recollections," "Medieval Records and Sonnets" and other works at various times.

In his preface to "The Legends of St. Patrick" he writes: "A large tract of Irish history is dark, but the time of St. Patrick, and the three centuries which succeeded it were her time of joy. That chronicle is a song of gratitude and of hope, as befits the story of a nation's conversion to Christianity, and in it the bird and the brook blend their notes with those of angels and of men." Then he adds: "In the main the institutions and traditions of Ireland were favorable to Christianity. She had preserved in a large measure the patriarchal system of the East. Her clans were families and her chiefs were patri-archs who led their households to battle and seized or recovered the spoil. To such a people the Christian Church announces herself as a great family, the family of man. Her genealogy went up to the first parent, and her rule was parental rule. The kingdom of Christ was the household of Christ, and its children in all lands formed the tribes of a large Israel. Its laws were living traditions, and for traditions the Irish had ever retained the Eastern reverence."

Of St. Patrick he says: "Perhaps nothing human had so large an influence in the conversion of the Irish as the personal character of her Apostle. By nature, by grace, and by providential training, he had been specially fitted for his task. In him a great character had been built on the foundations of a devout childhood and of a youth unshaken by adversity."

One of the saint's earliest converts was Angus, Prince of Munster. In "The Legends of St. Patrick" the author justly names St. Patrick as the greatest man and the greatest benefactor that ever trod the soil of Ireland. Hence he figures lovingly on his history. Among the many minor benefactors and lesser lights that excite his admiration and inspire his pen Owen Roe O'Neill, the victor of Benbulbin, takes a prominent place. In 1851 de Vere became a Catholic. The famous German decision on the efficacy of Baptism had already sent Cardinal Manning and many of the Church of England clergy and lay into the Catholic fold. He was a constant and conscientious worker. He was also a great walker, and traversed on foot through the continent of Europe. His home was at Carragh Chase near Adare, in the County Limerick. In his "Recollections" he writes: "My earliest recollections are of our Irish home, Carragh Chase, and I always see it bathed as in summer sunshine. It was not once, however, as it is now. I can still see the deer park, and the deer bounding from brake to brake of low spreading oak and birch; the gathering of the poor on Sunday evenings at the gates of the long ash avenue for their rural dance; and the gay, though half-baneful, confidence with which some rosy farmer's girl would advance and drop a courtesy before one of our party or some visitor at the 'big house'—that courtesy being an invitation to dance."—N. Y. Freeman's Journal.

Miraculous Cures At Lourdes.

The Rev. Robert Hugh Benson, once an Anglican clergyman, and more or less prominent among Anglicans because of his being a son of the former Archbishop of Canterbury, lectured recently in Dublin on "Lourdes" and discussed the remarkable happenings which are continually taking place there.

A writer in the Dublin Leader tells us that Father Benson's lecture was a well-reasoned and well-delivered presentation of what the convert-priest saw with his own eyes in Lourdes. The journalist describes Father Benson's speech as "rapid and incisive, clear and cold, devoid of metaphor or imagery, but crisp and terse and convincing." It was in this last respect that what the priest had to say proved most interesting. He spoke of miracles, of supernatural manifestations, in the cool, level tones of a scientist; he treated of topics that might well have led him to the use of flowery phraseology in English almost journalistic. His manner and style were those of one addressing an audience hostile, or at least sceptical, an assembly filled with controversialists, and by reason of this fact he drove home with force the views he wished to put forward.

The Leader's writer continues: "Belief in the supernatural nature of the cures at Lourdes, is of course, not an article of faith. While no doubt can possibly exist as to the fact that cures are wrought there in a marvellous manner, much doubt does exist as to whether they are miraculous. Nor is this doubt confined to those outside the pale of the Church. Catholics, as well as Protestants or infidels, hesitate often to place evidence in the statements that supernatural agencies have manifested themselves. It is urged that they are instances of nerve disease cured by self-suggestion or intense excitement, or else that the cures are at best merely temporary, and not of a permanent character."

It was to these points that Father Benson specially addressed himself. He was not, he said, one who, by early training or education, was likely to be inclined to place undue faith in the efficacy of Lourdes water. On the contrary, the effect of his upbringing and environment was to make him sceptical in this matter. He went to Lourdes, he told us, in a spirit of inquiry, a doubting, though reverential Thomas in fact. He came away convinced—convinced that miracles had taken place; that he himself had seen five of these worked during his short stay, and that every effort was made on the part of the Catholic authorities to record none but absolutely authentic cases in their records of miraculous happenings in this wondrous place.

The Baron whose patients who claim to have been cured report themselves, he gave much detail of. It is an office presided over by a Catholic physician, whither come all who have bathed and become whole. Doctors of all religions and of no religion, who produce their credentials, are allowed access to the bureau, and are permitted and encouraged, to examine and question those who claim they have been cured. These latter are required to bring with them certificates stating the nature of the disease from which they suffered, and giving all necessary details as to duration of malady, hospitals attended, and so on. These cured are requested to return in a year's time if possible, to show whether the cure has been permanent, and records of all such cases are carefully kept.

Apart from the numerous cases of lame persons restored to the use of their limbs, and other similar cures,

Mr. J. C. Westberg, Swan River, Minn., writes: "I suffered for years, for years—more than twenty—of all the troubles that attend a disordered state of the stomach, liver and bowels. I tried several kinds of medicine, but could get no relief until I got Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I cannot praise them too highly for what they have done for me."

Father Benson mentioned some remarkable instances in which it would seem impossible that self-suggestion or excitement could have availed in any way to contribute to the marvellous recovery of the sufferers. Such were the cases of a girl who from birth could not use her hands until she bathed in Lourdes water, a woman suffering from an appalling form of skin disease in the face, of which she was relieved instantaneously, and a man whose leg, broken for eight years, became sound while attending at the shrine. In each of these cases careful inquiry into all the facts was made by the doctors, Christian and infidel, and of their accuracy the authorities have taken every measure to satisfy themselves.—N. Y. The pupil's face grew scarlet, but she did not stir.
"If you do not put that gum in the waste basket immediately I will send you out of the room," said the teacher gravely.
The girl walked reluctantly to the desk. "I can't, teacher," she confessed. "It's my gum, and she'll lick me if I go home without it."

Min. Fred. Bign, Kingston, Ont., writes:—"I was completely run down, my blood was out of order, and I used to get so weak I would be compelled to stay in bed for weeks at a time. I could not eat, was pale and thin; every one thought I was going into consumption. I tried everything and different doctors until a friend advised me to use Surdock Blood Bitters. I did not have one bottle used when my appetite began to improve. I used six bottles. I gained ten pounds in two weeks. When I began to take it I only weighed ninety-three pounds. It just seemed to pull me from the grave as I never expected to be strong again. I will tell every sufferer of your wonderful medicine."

The Late Session.

So much of our space was taken up during the recent session of the Legislature, with the reports of the proceedings from day to day, that we were precluded from making much editorial comment upon the measures submitted for consideration and from offering any lengthy criticism of the Government's attitude towards several of the public questions up for discussion. The session, which opened on the 15th of February, lasted only one week of two months duration. Thirty eight acts were passed; many of them of minor importance. Had the Government had their matter prepared; had they felt sure of their ground and had their followers in the House been enthusiastic, the work of the session could have been accomplished in half the time. But it would seem that the Government had to feel their way, and much time had to be spent in caucus where, no doubt, the Premier had to ply the party whip to bring the kickers into line.

The Government measures eliciting the most discussion and most strenuously opposed by the Opposition, were the bill guaranteeing the bonds of the Gold Storage Company and the bill amending the taxing of our farm lands. As was pointed out, when the guarantee bill was up for discussion in the House, the Opposition were not against cold storage in itself; but they argued against and placed themselves on record against guaranteeing the bonds of a particular company, and thus enabling them to compete on more than equal terms with all other persons in the same line of business. The Government's guarantee, together with the bonus of the Dominion Government, enables this company to raise some $35,000 without a dollar of their own money invested. They are to establish their plant at Charlottetown, and to carry on their own business in the same building and to use for their own cold storage purposes as much space as they may think fit. The outlying sections of the Province, east and west, can scarcely benefit to any appreciable extent from these cold storage facilities. In view of these facts, briefly stated, the position of this company must appear very much in the light of a monopoly. The revenues of the Province; the taxes of the people should not be pledged to guarantee and foster a monopoly. For these and other reasons the members of the Opposition justly opposed this guarantee.

With the different features of the tax act we will deal in a separate article later; but for the present we will briefly discuss it. The principal departure in the new act from the present method of dealing with this taxation, is in the valuation of the land. Under the new act valuations are to be chosen by the Government to go round the country and place a value on the properties of all the farmers. These valuations will, of course, be friends of the Government or they cannot get the job. The people of this Province have some recollection, we feel sure, of emissaries employed in a similar capacity by the Davies Government, away back in 1877. Are these reminiscences of the most pleasing nature? Are the new itinerants likely to be any more popular? While the Government are thus making provision for wringing the last cent of taxation from the farmers, they have taken no new departure regarding the collecting of income tax. The wealthy men, with large investments, and incomes that enable them to wallow in luxury for the most part escape and pay little or no income tax. They are allowed to go free; but the poor farmer is followed to the last ditch. Do our people think this is a proper course to pursue? We shall return to these questions later.

The probing of the Opposition during the discussions on the various questions, unearthed more fully than ever before, how persistently the Government compel every department of the public service to do political duty at election times. It is well known, of course, that the Public Works Department has, for years been conducted principally for the manufacture or retention of Government votes. Other departments, too, have been used more or less with this end in view; but it remained for the Opposition's investigations of this session to expose to public notice the extraordinary lengths to which the Government prostituted the education department for like purposes. Teachers with third class licenses were given second class salaries; persons who had not qualified were allowed to teach and draw teacher's salaries from the public treasury, and so on. In return for these favors, those teachers or their fathers, their brothers, their uncles and their cousins were to assist the Government candidates by voting for them or not voting at all, as the case might be.

Throughout the session, the Government were on the defensive. Mr. Mathieson, Leader of the Opposition, and his followers presented a solid phalanx; they were always ready to attack the Government's weak points, and more than once drove their opponents to cover. In debating power the members of the Opposition far surpassed the Government supporters, and readily laid bare the shortcomings and inconsistencies advanced from the Administration benches. The Leader of the Opposition outclassed the Premier every particular. In his thorough grasp of public questions; his readiness in debate and his quickness in detecting a flaw, Mr. Mathieson is far more than a match for Mr. Hazard. The members of the Opposition are, with good reason, proud of their Leader.

Dominion Parliament.

The disposition on the part of the Government to look very carefully after the interests of everybody but the home consumer was adequately demonstrated last week in the discussion of the Meat and Canned Foods Act. This is one of those curious pieces of legislation brought into being by Hon. Sydney Fisher, who is the most prolific father of bills which always have to be amended, and the Opposition pressed home the point that while Mr. Fisher took every care of the foreign consumer he had not the slightest regard for the health and welfare of Canadians. This is the situation. Meats which are to be exported receive the most careful Government inspection in order that foreigners who eat thereof may get only the best. Meats intended for local use are not so inspected, and the Government obstinately refuses to do so. The lower class meats are thrust upon the Canadian buyer, and those overseas consumers get the best that is going. In this way does Mr. Fisher look after the interests of Canadians.

But Mr. Fisher is not by any means alone in this respect. There is Mr. Pugsley who has proved that he is quite willing to hand over a national heritage such as the navigation of the St. Lawrence river to a group of United States capitalists who desire to build a dam at the Long Sault Rapids for the development of power at that point chiefly for consumption across the border. Mr. Pugsley even sat up all night to force this bill through, but he met his match in the determined opposition thereto. So long as such ministers of the calibre of Mr. Pugsley have power to handle the natural resources of Canada, just so long will those resources be frittered away. The St. Lawrence Power Transmission bill is admittedly an adjunct of the greater scheme to dam the St. Lawrence, and yet Mr. Pugsley will endeavor to force it through willy-nilly. So brazen have the members of this administration become that they have long since lost all sense of responsibility for the interests of the Canadian people.

An extraordinary spectacle was witnessed last week over the anti-racetrack gambling bill promoted by Mr. Miller. This measure was introduced as a public bill by the member for South Grey at the beginning of the session and was sent to a special committee of seven members for consideration. Weeks were consumed in hearing evidence, much of which had no more connection with the matter referred to the committee than the progress of Halley's comet. Mr. Miller himself was appointed chairman of the committee on his own bill, and frequently Mr. Monk and other members of the investigating body complained of the irrelevancy of the evidence brought in. Letters written by supporters of the bill were permitted to go on the record without the writer being called for cross examination purposes. Finally the committee reported in favor of the bill and it took its place away down on the list of public bills and orders which could not be called again this session except by consent of the Government. The Government, although disclaiming all responsibility for the bill permitted it to come up last week, and two days in this late stage of the session were devoted to threshing out the whole question of racetrack gambling before the bill was finally killed. The refusal of the Government to accept responsibility for the measure was made the subject of a scathing arraignment of Sir Wilfrid Laurier by Mr. R. L. Borden the Leader of the Opposition. Mr. Borden is the peer of any one in the House on questions of constitution and precedent, and his remarks on the subject are worth quoting. Mr. Borden said, in part: "I wish to call attention to the remarkable situation with which parliament is confronted. The Government of any country enjoying British institutions is supposed to deal with all legislation of an important character coming before parliament. The control of that legislation is with the Government and modern constitutional authorities, as well as those of no recent date, impose upon the Government the responsibility of dealing with matters of this character. I do not know of any subject in which a greater responsibility is imposed upon the Government of this or any other country, than in the control of criminal legislation. Surely if there is one subject more than another as to which a Government should be disposed to accept responsibility it is the framing, moulding and amendment of the criminal law. This bill is legislation which the Government of Canada considers of such great importance that it interrupts Government business for two days and calls upon parliament to deal with it. And we have the extraordinary spectacle of the Minister of Justice standing up in his place and saying that this bill, for which the regular business of the country has been delayed, is not only of an extraordinary but absolutely of an outrageous character. I do not think any parallel to this situation can be found in the history of parliamentary proceedings in recent years."

Although the bill was killed later for this session at all events, the government by refusing to accept responsibility for such an import measure there by abdication of its duties, placed itself in the position of any individual who runs away from the front of the battle. It is hardly necessary to point out that this habit of "running away" has been brought to a high pitch of perfection, and Mr. Miller's bill was sacrificed on the altar of Laurier opportunism. The House and the country has long since become accustomed to the white feather which is the crest of the aggregation of little men who try to fill the big cabinet shoes.

The curtain has run down on the Lumsden farce for a brief intermission, the reason being that the Liberal majority's counsel, Mr. F. H. Chrysler, an ardent Liberal himself, and a former aspirant for a seat in the House, has other legal engagements. The so-called investigation has been pottering on for some weeks and so far not one witness has been heard but Mr. Lumsden himself. The attempt on the part of the prominent Liberal counsel and the four Liberal members who constitute the whole committee to break down Mr. Lumsden's evidence and show that he was no more than a brainless fool, has so far been followed by the frank statements and general knowledge of the facts of the case of the former chief engineer of the National Transcontinental.

There can be no doubt that the present administration, ruled by an opportunist, and composed of a band of "little Canadians," is rapidly on the downward slope. The determined effort on the part of the inspired Liberal press to manufacture dimensions in the Opposition ranks in order that the disgraced state of the following which supports Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the House of Commons might be covered up will deceive no one. It is well known that governments as well as individuals begin to die as soon as they are born; but this extraordinary administration which plumes itself among other things on being directly responsible for the present prosperity of Canada, is showing signs of a positive decay extraordinary even when its advanced age is taken into consideration. And with age has crept in all the unwholesome attributes which will send the Laurier Government down into the history of Canada as the most corrupt and self-seeking. The pillage of natural resources which belong to the people, the fattening of political favorites with grazing leases, the turning of the blind eye to rampant dishonesty and graft in the public services. All these things brand the administration as being rotten to the core, with a cynical disregard of the real interests of the people. What is going on in Canada today under the regime of Laurierism, may well make thinking Canadians ponder over the desirability of a general house-cleaning here on parliament hill. Ministers of the Crown openly support a measure which has for its object the handing over of a great national asset such as the water power of the Long Sault Rapids to a little band of promoters across the border. The old plank of the Liberal platform of 1893, adopted by the reform party unanimously at the Ottawa convention, setting forth that the land should be for the settler and not the speculator has rotted away under the administration of the Interior Department by Messrs. Sifton and Oliver, and greedy graft is running rampant in the land with the hands of every Grit heeler in the public chest.

Some of the oldest and most prominent supporters of the government in parliament who have been consistently ignored by Sir Wilfrid Laurier when cabinet vacancies occurred, must have wondered why the choice of the Premier fell upon Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, when it was thought best to divorce the duties of Postmaster General and Minister of Labor with a brand new portfolio attached. This wonderment was by no means dissipated when the baby of the cabinet made his three and a half hours speech on the second reading of his anti-combines bill.

To listen to Mr. King one would think he was addressing a meeting of the Canadian Club. He wandered all over the large field of increased prices and the cost of living, and over the peaceful homes of Canada he saw the giant hand of the trust stretched out to throttle. Mr. King came into parliament fresh from the civil service. He had the reputation of being a dreamy faddist fond of the problems of political economy. He has yet to win his spurs, and all the three and a half hour speeches in the world won't help him to do this unless there is something behind him of a practical nature. This anti-combines bill is half baked legislation. It is quite undenied. The statute books are crowded with legislation which can never be enforced by reason of its character. To keep piling up these laws is not a very noble ambition. It is time Mr. King took off his coat and started to play the game in earnest. Up to the present time he has done absolutely nothing to justify his promotion over the heads of men grown old in the service of Laurierism. What he will do in the future remains to be seen, so far he is relegated to the "false alarm class" of would be statesmen.

A typical instance of Laurierism run wild is that of the surrender of the St. Peter's Indian reserve at Selkirk, Manitoba. It was shown in the House by Mr. George H. Bradbury, member for that constituency, that 21,000 acres were filched from the Indians, and this land was allowed to fall into the hands of a horde of speculators and camp following friends of the Government, who got it at an absurdly low figure, and resold it at prices ranging from 8 to 12 times as much as was paid. The chief and councillors were bribed with money and whiskey in order that the surrender might be brought about, and all this went under the nose of the Indian agent of this Government who was himself among the buyers of these lands. This is the sort of thing which is making the land shark and the camp follower fat. This is the kind of administration too which is helping along the downfall of the Government.

How such barefaced transactions as that outlined by Mr. Bradbury on his responsibility as a member of parliament can be permitted to go on, year in and year out, and no one punished, is one of the conundrums of Laurierism. And from the Atlantic to the Pacific the St. Peter's reserve scandal is being duplicated. It is only when the lid is partially lifted from a corner of the unwholesome mess that the general public gets a mere inkling of what is going on under the guise of honest government.

One has only to take the joke committee which is half heartedly investigating the charges made by Mr. Hugh D. Lumsden, the former chief engineer of the National Transcontinental, who resigned from that lucrative position rather than be a party to the gross frauds which were being committed upon the people, to become seized of the deep seated trickery with which the Government seeks to cover up its wrongdoing. Four Liberal members and three Liberal lawyers are solemnly investigating not the extravagant construction of the road, but differences of opinion between Mr. Lumsden and some subordinate engineers. There's a pretty picture for you. Instead of Sir Wilfrid Laurier coming out boldly and saying that he would permit a full and untrammelled investigation into the whole building of the road, he appointed a thoroughly partisan committee of his most faithful henchmen and told them to go right ahead and dab the whitewash all over the Transcontinental Commission. This is pure unadulterated Laurierism. This road which was to have cost a mere trifle of some $52,000,000, according to the statement of Mr. Fielding, based, as he solemnly declared, upon the estimates of competent engineers, has cost that much so far for the blasting of solid rock. When the final bill comes to be settled it will be found that the National Transcontinental has cost the people of Canada no less than $200,000,000. Where is the leak? It must be somewhere, and yet Sir Wilfrid Laurier, like the little Dutch boy, is standing with his finger in the hole in the dyke, trying to prevent the tide of truth from rushing in. These farcical investigations which commence with the cards stacked and the dice loaded, will never command public confidence, and the Government which so dreads the light of day on its transgressions is doomed.

Bishop Cameron's Funeral

The funeral obsequies of the late Bishop Cameron of Antigonish, took place at 10 o'clock on Wednesday last. The body was removed to the Cathedral on Sunday, where it lay in state till the commencement of the funeral services on Wednesday. The Cathedral had been appropriately draped in the tappings of woe and the attendance was tremendously large. The solemn Requiem Mass of Requiem was celebrated by his Grace Archbishop McCarthy of Halifax, assisted by Very Rev. Dr. Thompson, as sub-priest; Rev. H. P. McPherson, Asson and Rev. C. F. McKinnon subdeacon. The funeral oration was preached by his Grace Archbishop Bruchet of Montreal. He took his text from the 35 verse of the X Chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews: "My Just Man Liveth by Faith." The discourse was a loving tribute to the illustrious dead from a brother prelate, who knew and loved him. The prelates and clergy present included, in addition to those named, the Archbishop of St. John's Nfld.; the Archbishop of Vancouver, the Archbishop of Kingston, Archbishop McDonald, Pictou; the Bishops of St. John, Chatham, Sherbrooke and Rimouski, besides about one hundred and fifty priests. The funeral cortege from the Cathedral to the cemetery was most imposing. The distance is about a mile. Our space does not permit our saying anything more at present. R. I. P.

hemisphere.

Dunkin, by a large majority.

quence of a landslide at Killbuck, on the sult of the premature explosion and landslide which buried twenty who were sleeping in a construction camp, near Bagotville, Quebec.

drowned before his father's eyes at Halifax on Sunday, while the latter was busy to the rescue. The young man was dorying near the shore, and he went down as they were hastening with another boat in response to the boy's frenzied cries.

Halley's comet was seen for the first time Thursday morning last by the Dominion Observatory Astronomers at Ottawa who had been watching for it for two weeks. It is not visible to the naked eye, and will not be within range of vision by general public for some time.

maining seven received serious injuries.

Six men were burned to death in a fire on the 19th which destroyed the workshop of the County Jail at New Haven, Conn. Three convicts were saved through the heroism of other firemen outside. The bodies of the six men were found after the debris cooled.
Many other firemen were fearfully burned, but remained at their work.

tive earthquake shocks. The earthquakes greatly alarmed the people. All the country are estimated at over $1,- 000,000. No loss of life has been reported.

After several hours steady rain, it turned to sleet and snow, and almost the whole of Western Canada was covered with a white mantle the 19th with 10 or 12 degrees of freezing. The reports indicate that wheat at several points is two to four inches above
the ground, and will suffer if the cold continues. This was the news from Winnipeg on the 19th.

Customs office were abandoned. Two British gunboats are burning to the ground. The properties destroyed are the buildings of the Wesleyan China mission of the Methodist Church, the Jesuit mission, and that of the Norwegian mission. This was the news from Shanghai on the 19th.

Conservative Convention Postponed.

In Ottawa on the 12th, inst.,
much was done by the Conservatives in council to clear up the political situation. In the morning an important and generally attended caucus of the Conservative members was held and in the afternoon there was a meeting of the committee of preliminary arrangements for the Conservative convention. At this, it was resolved to postpone the national convention, which probably will take place next year. The caucus had a direct bearing upon the widely circulated reports that there are dissensions within the Conservative party and in particular upon the allegations that there is disloyalty to Mr. R. L.
Borden. Under the circumstances, Mr. Borden after meeting the members, repaired to the House, where an important bill was being moved by the Government,
thus permitting the most unrestrained expression of opinion.
The caucus broke up amid hearty cheering, and the chairman, Mr.
G. H. Perley, issued the following official statement: "At a Conservative caucus this morning, a discussion took place regarding the extraordinary reports that have lately appeared in the newspapers concerning dissensions in the Conservative party and alleged criticism of the leadership of Mr. R. L. Borden. "There seems to have been no real foundation for any such reports and the caucus unanimously passed a resolution expressing its explicit confidence in Mr. Borden as the leader of the Liberal Conservative party and its unanimous desire that he should continue to hold that position and pledged to him its allegiance and loyalty."

A fire causing serious damage occurred on the premises of Mr. John Sinnott, St. Peter's Harbor on Thursday night last. Between 9 and 9 o'clock, Mr. Sinnott accompanied by his grandson, a lad of six years went out to the barn to feed the stock. The little fellow accidentally overturned the lantern,
and the flame caught in the straw.
In a short time the building was on fire.
The neighbors quickly gathered and assisted in saving almost all the machinery, all the horses, and four of the cattle. Seven cows, fourteen sheep,
a large quantity of fodder, grain, hay, straw etc. were destroyed. The granary and warehouse being close to the barn could not be saved and the dwelling house was only saved with considerable difficulty. These buildings burned, were large and well equipped. The stock destroyed were valuable animals and the loss will be very heavy. Mr.
Sinnott himself was severely, but not seriously, burned in attempting to extinguish the flames. His son Rev. Dr.
Sinnott, on a brief visit from Ottawa, and his son in law, Mr. McDonald, were in Charlottetown at the time, in attendance on Mrs. McDonald, who is ill at the hospital. The Sinnott House is a favorite summer resort, and is frequented by many visitors from the United States in the hot season. We deeply sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. Sinnott in their loss.

Fred Cameron of Amherst N. B. won Marathon race of 25 miles at Ron-ton yesterday. His time was 2 hours 28 minutes. His nearest competitor was 4 minutes behind.

At the Convent of St. Joseph in Penikese there was conversation. Old Marie, the milkwoman, standing under the deep porch, while her faithful dog snatched a brief rest from pushing the milk cart, heard all about it from Sister Seraphine.

Itching Skin

Disease by day and night—That's the complaint of those who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with Itching or Salt Rheum—and outward applications do not cure.

"I was taken with an itching on my arms which proved very distressing. I concluded it was salt rheum and bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. In two days after I began taking it I felt better and in a week had my skin disease cured." Mrs. L. E. Wain, Cove Point, Md.

Troubled With Backache For Years.

Now Completely Cured By The Use Of DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mr. W. C. Deary, 12 Brighton St., London, Ont., writes: "It is with pleasure that I thank you for the good your Doan's Kidney Pills have done me. Have been troubled with backache for years. Nothing helped me until a friend brought me a box of your Kidney Pills. I began to take them and took four boxes, and am glad to say that I am cured entirely and can do all my own work and feel as good as I used to before taking them. I am positive Doan's Kidney Pills are all you state them to be, and I advise all kidney sufferers to give them a fair trial."

Caught Cold By Working In Water.

A Distressing, Tickling Sensation In The Throat.

Mr. Albert MacPhee, Chicago, Minn., N.B., writes: "In Oct., 1908, I caught cold by working in water, and had a very bad cough and that distressing tickling sensation in my throat as if I could not sleep at night, and my lungs were so very sore I had to give up work. Our doctor gave me medicine but it did me no good. I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and by the time I had used two bottles I was entirely cured. I am always recommending it to my friends."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup combats the potent healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines of recognized worth, and is absolutely harmless, prompt and safe for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Sore Throat, Pain or Tightness in the Chest, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

Beware Of Worms. Don't let worms gnaw at the vital organs of your children. Give them Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup and they'll soon be rid of these parasites. Price 50c.

Sprained Arm.

Mary Orington, Jasper, Ont., writes:—"My mother had a badly sprained arm. Nothing we used did her any good. Then father got Hagyard's Yellow Oil and it cured mother's arm in a few days." Price 25c.

When a man argues with a woman he doesn't. Neither does she.

Minard's Liniment cures Dandruff.

Being obedient is almost a lost art, fashioned practiced only by some old-fashioned children and a few modern husbands.

Muscular Rheumatism.

Mr. H. Wilkinson, Stratford, Ont., says:—"It affords me much pleasure to say that I experienced great relief from Muscular Rheumatism by using two boxes of Millburn's Rheumatic Pills. Price a box 50c."

The government and the banks will not realize how strong the public feeling is in regard to useless money, until we have a gold coinage of our own. Many people are only deterred from using gold instead of bills of the large denominations by the fact that, as a rule, the only gold coinage available at our banks is the English sovereign which is so difficult to change into Canadian money because of its awkward standard of valuation, namely, $4.86. But when there is available a Canadian five dollar gold piece with a standard valuation of five hundred cents, the banks will find that the general public will prefer it to the paper money at present in issue, until such time as thrifty boards of directors awaken to the fact that the public objects to the system of having to risk coinage from ancient bills, in order that the banks may have a few hundred dollars a year on their printing accounts. The prospects are good that before the Canadian five dollar gold piece has been long in circulation, their competition will put unclean money out of the market.—Ottawa Citizen.

Our store has gained a reputation for reliable Groceries. Our trade during 1909 has been very satisfactory. We shall put forth every effort during the present year to give our customers the best possible service.—R. F. Madigan.

Specialties in Grain.

Imported Seed Oats

A Change of Seed Grain Always Pays

WE have had grown for us in Ontario some of the leading Newcast and most productive Varieties of SEED OATS. Every farmer should sow at least an acre or two of these new varieties to use for seed the following year. The increased cost of the Seed will be returned many times over in the increased yield and improved quality. Our prices are placed much lower than foreign seedmen charge for same varieties, when freight is considered.

Our Seed Oats is all imported. We do not handle a bushel of Island grown Oats, our object being to get the Seed Stock entirely changed.

We are the pioneers in the importation of Seed Oats into this Province. The 102,000 bushels exported to the West two years ago were the product of our own importations for many years. By careful selection of the best varieties, and only the best in quality, we believe we are doing a good work in the interests of the farmers of this Province.
