Good Bread

is the keystone to the structure of health. It means vigor, bone and muscle to your growing children. It means nutrition to the whole family. But you cannot make good bread out of indifferent flour, no matter how you treat it, no matter how proficient you may be in baking. In her desire to make a loaf that looks and tastes well, the housewife is tempted to use flour that is almost devoid of gluten—the rich, strengthening constituent of flour that makes bread the staff of life.

"Beaver" Flour

alone—of all the flours on the market—makes a loaf that is rich in nutrition, and at the same time is white, light, pleasing to the palate. The reason is simple. "BEAVER FLOUR" is milled in carefully balanced proportions from the Manitoba Spring wheat and the Ontario Fall wheat—one with its powerfully nourishing qualities, the other with those properties which make the bread attractive to the eye and taste.

"BEAVER FLOUR" makes equally successful biscuits, cakes and pastry. One flour accomplishes all the requirements of baking, saving trouble, expense and uncertainty as to results. Try it. You will quickly appreciate its superiority. All the best grocers keep it.

Which Was The Heir?

CHAPTER XL.
(Concluded.)

HE did not finish, for she knew how shocked Mrs. Seton would be if she told the good lady what she intended to do. Mrs. Seton ventured on another remonstrance or two, then gave way with a reluctance prompted as much by affection as by prudence; for Cottie had become very dear to her. Cottie's preparations were very simple. She went off with just a handbag, and Mrs. Seton drove her to the station, all the way imploring her not to do anything rash, to write to her every day, and telegraph to her if Cottie needed her.

Nerves at High Tension

Slight extra strain means collapse—Restoration obtained by using DR. A.W. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD. The successful men and women are often of the high-strung nervous type—keen and active—but with too little reserve force. A little extra worry and anxiety and snap goes the nervous system. Weeks and months are often required before energy and vigor are regained. Rest helps, so does fresh air and exercise, but the blood must also be made rich and red by use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. Mr. Wm. Branton, Victoria St., Stratford, Ont., writes:—My nervous system seemed all unstrung. I could not sleep, had no appetite, my digestion was poor and I had jerking of the limbs. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food helped me and I continued until I had taken twenty-four boxes. This treatment has made a radical change in my condition, building up the system and strengthening the nerves. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

It was a long and wearisome journey, for her heart was consumed by its aching; but she reached Starborough station at last, in the gloaming of the autumn afternoon. She waited until the other passengers had cleared off, though she was quite safe in her disguise—that is, in her proper girl's clothing—then she went through the woods towards Betty's cottage; but she could not go in, for she saw Betty moving about the garden.

After awhile the old woman went into the house and came out again with a small packet, and Cottie knew that she was going to carry some gloves into the town. When Betty had quite disappeared, Cottie ran into the woods, got the bundle containing her boy's suit, and ran back with it to the cottage and up to her old room.

The first thing she did was to examine the basket of clothes, and she saw with intense relief that they had not been touched. With feverish eagerness she exchanged her girl's dress for the serge suit; and she had worn it so long that, strangely enough, she felt at greater ease in it than she did in woman's attire.

But when she put it on she went to the glass and started with a sudden qualm, for her hair had grown and was much too long for a boy's.

She took up the scissors, hesitated, laid them down again, then, nerving herself, hurriedly cut off some of the long, silky hair—she could not bring herself to cut it quite short—and as it was she now regarded the new boyish head with a sigh of womanly regret.

'Never mind!' she murmured to herself. 'It is for Geoffrey's sake, and—and it will soon grow again.'

Then she went down-stairs, made up the fire, put the kettle on, and laid the supper as she had used to do; and she had scarcely completed her task when Betty returned.

She went round the table and put her arm round the old woman's neck; and, of course, Betty yielded, though not without doubts and misgivings.

'Is—is the gentleman who was staying at the Hall back again?' asked Cottie, when Betty had sufficiently recovered from her shock to permit her of going on with her supper.

Betty said 'Yes,' that he had come back two or three days ago, and was staying at the Hall. He had been making inquiries after Ronnie.

Ronnie learnt also that Mr. Sidney Bassington had been at the castle for some time.

'Though he spent most of his time at the Hall,' Betty added, grumblingly, 'and he followed Miss Eva about like her shadow. He went off just before the gentleman—Mr. Geoffrey Bell—came back. Now, he's a proper, nice gentleman; and if Miss Eva was to take a fancy to him—She nursed him through all his illness just like one of those hospital nurses.'

The colour stole away from Cottie's face for a moment, and she bit her lip; but she whispered to herself: 'No, no, it is me he loves; it is me, me, me!'

She was no longer jealous of Eva—for she guessed that the kiss which Geoffrey had pressed upon Eva's hand was a kiss of gratitude, not of love.

She slept that night in her old, tiny room, much better than she had slept since she had parted from Geoffrey—for was she not near him?

Geoffrey met with a heavy welcome on his return to the Hall; Sir Edward received him like a brother, and Eva—well, Eva said very little, and Geoffrey was too absorbed in his love and thought for Miss Constance Seton to understand the sudden blush and the downcast eyes which Eva met him with. He explained that he had come back in search of Ronnie, and was disappointed, though scarcely surprised, to hear that nothing had been heard of the lad since he—Geoffrey—had left. He spent two or three days hunting the neighborhood—for Sir Edward had an idea that the lad was hiding somewhere in the locality—and returned from his futile search on the night of Ronnie's return to Betty's. He came in just in time to dress for dinner; and the door being open, he walked into the Hall, where old Ripley met him.

'Master and mistress are in Sir Edward's den, sir,' he said. 'But will you please walk up to your room?'

It was not often that Edward asked Eva to come into his den, and she had followed him in half an hour before Geoffrey had entered the house, wondering what he wanted. The fact was, though he had promised Sidney Bassington that he would speak on his behalf to Eva, Sir Edward had put off the unwelcome task; but he had met Mr. Oldham that afternoon, and the lawyer had not only 'dunned him' for the outstanding interest, but he had spoken to him very seriously about the condition of the estate; and Sir Edward had come home very glum and moody, and almost convinced that it would be a good thing if Eva could accept Sidney Bassington.

'I want to speak to you, Eva,' he said. 'Don't look so frightened; it's not about money matters, and yet it is, confound it! We're in a devil of a hole. Oldham's been at me this afternoon, and I'm dunned in every direction. But I don't want to bother you about that. Look here: Sidney Bassington asked me to ask you—Dash it all! I don't know how to set to work about it. You know what a reckless beggar I am, Eva; what ducks and drakes I've made of the property—or wait there we're left; you know the position we're in!'

As he paced up and down, smoking furiously, he gave a disjointed account of the condition of affairs. It took some time, and indeed he lingered over it, reluctant to approach the main subject, but at last he said, abruptly: 'Well, that's how we stand; and now Sidney Bassington—you know he's the heir, he'll be the principal man in the place; he's what they call a good match—'

'But what has all this to do with us, Edward?' asked Eva, gently, full of sympathy for all his troubles, and not even thinking, much less speaking, a word of reproach.

'Well, he wants you to be his wife!'

It was at this moment that Geoffrey's step was heard in the hall. The crimson flooded Eva's face, then left it white to the lips.

'Edward!' was all she said almost inaudibly. 'But it was enough. He understood that startled expression, one almost of horror and fear; in her eyes. His own face crimsoned and he held up his hand.'

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

She was attracted magnificently—a wonderful soft silk thing in the latest shade and a hat with plumes atop the elaborately waved structure of her white hair. Her liveried footman held the door of the cleaning shop open for her, and her limousine waited without.

She rustled up to the counter near and laid a silk kimono upon it. "I want that cleansed and I want it done as soon as possible. How much will it be?"

The saleswoman examined it. "Three dollars, I think, madame. There is a good deal of lace upon it."

A frown contracted Madame's brow. "Oh, I really couldn't think of paying that," she said. "It will have to be done so soon again, you know. Make it two dollars and I will leave it."

"Very well, madame," said the saleswoman, and the soiled heap of silk and lace was duly tagged.

And why have I been telling you all this? What's the moral?

Simply this—how many women with one-tenth the money that woman had would have had the courage to stand out against an exorbitant price?

Only the rich can afford to be economical.

The poor must be needlessly extravagant to hide their poverty.

If the women of the middle classes would absolutely refuse to be cheated or overcharged, just as this rich woman did, we might not have quite so much to complain about the high cost of living.

Ruth Cameron

Much is written about being kind to shut-ins, going out of your way to bring cheer and interest into their pallid lives.

Too much cannot be said along that line. But there is another closely allied subject that I think is rather neglected. And that is the opportunity to help those who, while not shut-in by sickness, are almost as badly "cabineted, cribbed, confined" by the necessity of constant attendance on other people who are sick.

A woman wrote to me the other day to tell me of a case of this sort—no at all, be it understood, in a complaining way, only feeling it might be suggestive.

Her only daughter is ill of spinal trouble which makes constant attendance necessary, and she is the only attendant.

As a result she is absolutely chained to the girl's bedside. She doesn't rebel at that at all, being a true mother only she says, with deeper pathos than she realizes, "I would like to feel free to go to church sometimes or mission-ary meeting. We both belong to a large church and Sunday school, and yet no one has said they would be willing to come and stay and let me go to church."

If you belong to this woman's church or know her, as perhaps you do, I am sure you will give her the opportunity for the occasional bit of freedom she craves.

But if you don't know her, please don't think you are thereby absolved from giving some shut-in attendant a few moments or a few hours in the world without.

Tell over the heads of your acquaintance and friendship and I'm sure you won't fail to find the opportunity if you really want it.

Fortune Telling

Does not take into consideration the one essential to woman's happiness—womanly health.

The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health she loses its lustre and gold is but dross.

Womanly health when lost or impaired may generally be regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This Prescription has, for over 40 years, been curing delicate, weak, pain-wracked women, by the hundreds of thousands and this is the privacy of their homes without their having to submit to indecent questionings and offensively repugnant examinations.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence held as strictly confidential. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Great Family Doctor Book, The People's Common Sense Medical Advisor, newly revised up-to-date edition—1000 pages, answers in plain English hosts of delicate questions which every woman, single or married, ought to know about. Sent free, in plain wrapper to any address on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only, or in cloth binding for 50 stamps.

Fads and Fashions.

The lace dress, whether of Chantilly or other handrun laces, will undoubtedly be a feature of the coming season.

As a rule afternoon hats are large with wide rolling brims, forming a most lovely background for the face.

The thin muslin collar, appliqued or set with lace or embroidered motifs, is the latest comer in the round styles.

There are big wired bows of Chantilly, like graceful butterflies, which are being shown on many of the new millinery models.

The first evening toilette worn in mourning is usually of chiffon over dull silk lit up with a touch of jet and hand embroidery.

The ribbon sachet flowers are used for all purposes, for muff, corset or garter garters, and for sachet, skirt and shoulder bows.

Perhaps the most conspicuous feature in the latest waists is the Chantilly lace for the main portion of the body and sleeves.

Among the hand-woven rugs are those made from strips of table oil-cloth. They are cool for summer and are in favor for verandas or porches.

Black-bordered handkerchiefs are worn with crepe or plain black; also any jewelry, silk watch guard, and white blouse for the neck and sleeves.

Short dressing jackets show ribbons at the throat, back, in front in long loops and ends at the waist line, which is usually rather short.

The summer hats are usually attractive in themselves, combining the Sad Fatality.

A sad cliff fatality has occurred near St. Dondas, a little seaside village a few miles from Cardiff. The body of a young man was found on the beach, and some distance away a young woman was lying terribly injured.

It is stated the couple went for a walk along a disused footpath, and in crossing a stile on the edge of the cliff the young man slipped and fell a distance of sixty feet. In his fright he grasped the girl and dragged her over with him. The young woman lay helpless on the beach all night, and had the terrible experience of hearing the groans of her companion until life left him.

Held the Police at Bay for Hours.

PETERBORO, Ont., May 22.—Jas. Gorman, who shot and killed his mother on Friday night while under the influence of liquor, and while in the act of being arrested by the local police, came up for a preliminary hearing on Saturday morning. The trial was adjourned until next Thursday at 10 a.m.

He held his place on the top of the C. E. R. bridge where he fled from the police after committing the shooting at seven o'clock until 1.30 on Saturday morning. Armed with a rifle and pistol, he promanated the top-most girder of the bridge, defying the police. He kept the immense crowd that gathered out of curiosity at a respectable distance, by firing an occasional warning shot, part of the time he was singing, and exchanging chat with the crowd.

Several times he scattered the crowd by giving them time while he counted ten to make themselves scarce, evidently enjoying the excited scuffle of the crowd, when he fired at random. Two priests were called and tried to induce him to come down, but he refused till half-past one, when he came down, gave himself up to the police and was driven to the Police Station.

Coroner Dr. Gray opened an inquest at eleven o'clock this morning to inquire into the death of the mother who died from the result of the son's shooting at St. Joseph's Hospital at 10.45 on Saturday night.

Gentlemen,—In January last, Francis Leclaire, one of the men employed by me, working in the lumber woods, had a tree fall on him, crushing him fearfully. He was, when found, placed on a sled and taken home, where grave fears were entertained for his recovery, his hips being badly bruised and his body turned black from his ribs to his feet. We used MINARD'S LINIMENT on him freely to deaden the pain and with the use of three bottles he was completely cured and able to return to his work.

Petrified Lord Will Now be Buried.

ASHEVILLE, N.C., May 20.—After staying unclaimed for 7 years in embalmed solitude, arrayed in full evening dress with silk hat and cane, the mummified body of Sydney Lascelles, alias "Lord Douglas," alias "Lord Beresford," alias "Charles J. Asquith" is on its way to Washington, D. C., consigned to Dr. McPherson Critchton, presumably to be buried in the crematory there. The body was claimed by a Mrs. J. T. Summerfield, of Passaic, N. J., who said that she was the sister-in-law of Lascelles' first wife, now living in Baltimore. She made affidavit to that effect and by her order the mummy was shipped to Washington.

The departure of the "Petrified Lord," whose body has twice been identified as that of Sidney Lascelles, noted forger, swindler and bigamist, writes fits to a tale of crime and deception in high life which opened in Australia, shifted to the ranks of nobility in England and closed in a cheap lodging house in this city.

He was lionized in London after securing an introduction to the American Ambassador under the name of Beresford, posing as a cadet of the powerful English house of that name.

In America the highest circles of society did homage to the bogus Lord. At Rome, Ga., Fitzgerald, Ga., Norfolk, Va., and other cities wherever he went, Lascelles formed matrimonial alliances with the daughters of the rich, only to leave them in the course of a week, poorer in purse, but richer in experience. He was convicted at Rome, Galveston, of promoting fraudulent schemes, and sentenced to 8 years hard labor. He served his term.

He came to Asheville from Norfolk, Va., eight years ago, suffering from tuberculosis, and died in 1903.

Crushed by Boat.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., May 22.—While launching a 20-ton power boat which he had been three years building, Jas. Savoia, 48 years of age was crushed to death and lamed out of nearly all semblance to humanity to-day, when the rope holding the boat on the ways broke and allowed the craft to go over him. Savoia, who had lived in Edge-wood for three years and was apparently controlling the rope from the bow of the boat. When it broke he fell beneath the craft, which entered the water over the body of its owner and builder.

COLLEGE CRICKET.—The first inter-collegiate cricket match will take place at St. George's Field to-morrow afternoon between the Felldians and Methodists.

In Death Grasp.

Lakeville, Mass., May 22.—Locked in the frenzied hold of John J. Gallagher, a Boston telegrapher, whom he had carried to the surface, Adam Bopp, a Middlesboro shoemaker, was drowned with Gallagher in his work of rescue to-day, when he was unable to free himself from the "Death grasp" of the man he tried to save. The double drowning occurred on Lake Assawampsett. Gallagher was seen about 200 yards from the shore in a row boat calling for help, and finally jumped overboard. Adam Bopp, 19 years, started for the scene in his boat. He dove and recovered Gallagher. Immediately he got fresh air, Gallagher revived and, in a frenzy, seized his rescuer by the throat. Bopp, his strength waning, was forced down with Gallagher. Meanwhile Emer Drew, in a power-boat, had grasped both men, only to lose them. Thereafter Bopp and Gallagher were seen no more until their bodies were recovered.

Kitchener's Future.

According to-day's cable message, the report is revived that Viscount Kitchener is to be appointed Viceroy of India. If that is so, it will disappoint many hopes.

If the state of India requires a Twentieth Century Cromwell to administer its affairs, then the appointment may be justified, but it will leave undone for England what Kitchener did in the reorganization of Army Service in Egypt, South Africa, and India. There is a general feeling that the Army at home needs a Hercules to clean out the accumulated debris of ages, and to make it an efficient engine of destruction.

The nation has confidence that Kitchener is fitted for the task, and that no other man is his peer for the work needed.

In a recent sketch of him we find the following remarks:—

No man has equal qualifications and experience for such a task. His power to combine and organise material into new and definite shape has been manifested in a thousand ways since he took charge of the Egyptian War Office and established his reputation as a great administrator ruthless in carrying out reforms and resolute to secure efficiency. This is his supreme faculty. He has others less rare, but not less useful. He is a hard and accurate thinker, always foreseeing and planning, as records in the War Office will reveal some day. His industry, patience, and perseverance are phenomenal, and earned for him on the banks of the Nile—as I often heard in the last Sudan campaign—the title of Master of the Fatigue Parties. Nothing escaped his sleepless eye—not even the ice-machine which the Guards tried to smuggle on the way to Omdurman. His impatience of red-tape and official reports was shown in Egyptian days by the fact that his office stationery consisted of a few telegraph forms which he carried in his helmet.

Not less characteristic is his dislike of "influence" in the selection of his officers. To every kind of enjoyery and social recommendation he presents an adamant front, and his success has been due in a great measure to his wise choice of instruments.

And what is to be the future task of Lord Kitchener? Is he to be marooned at Malta? Is he, as report whispers, to succeed Lord Minto as Viceroy in India, where the need for a mailed fist seems to become more urgent every day? Or is he to take charge of the War Office in Whitehall? There are admirers who wish that he could be in these three places at one and the same time. But what Lord Kitchener requires for the full and free exercise of his abilities is not place, but power. He can never be either a figurehead or the machine of a party. That Government or that Minister will deserve well of the country and will have the gratitude and admiration of posterity who, regardless of consequences, lays upon Lord Kitchener "the sole solitary, and exclusive duty of preparation for war." Whether that duty calls him to Malta or to London, and by whatever name it is called, afe to the conqueror of the Sudan matters of supreme indifference. Not place, but power, is what Lord Kitchener must have and what his countrymen demand for him."

Kitchener is now nearly 60 years old. He is in the prime of his power and experience. He cannot live for ever. It would be a pity for the nation to lose the work he alone can do.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

To-day in the police court 2 drunks were discharged and 2 disorderlies were each fined $2 or 7 days.

Those Fiddle, who was remanded a couple of days ago for stealing a cow hide, breaking into F. Wadden's store and stealing $1, and also stealing a number of oat bags from Arthur Parsons, was before court to-day. He was given one month for the first offence, 2 months for Wadden's affair and 3 months for the oat bags, or an aggregate of six months in the Penitentiary.

The lad Moore, who pleaded guilty to the stealing of a cow hide and some oat bags, was sentenced to $10 or 30 days for each offence, or a total of $20 or two months.

A large number of civil cases were heard in the Central District Court, 40 summonses having been issued the past few days.

A butcher summoned a man for $9 damages over a breach of contract in the selling of a calf to plaintiff. Plaintiff paid 50 cents earnest money on the animal, which the other was to deliver. When plaintiff came to get it the other said he had sold it in the meantime. Plaintiff had promised his customers the meat of the calf and suffered loss, he contended, when he could not make good his promise. The hearing of the case occupied most of the forenoon. Mr. Higgins for pif., Mr. Ayre for deft.

Women in Scrap.

This forenoon two female litigents who had a dispute to settle before Judge Knight went outside the court chamber and after using woman's best weapon for a while, they started in to pummel each other. The cries of the belligerents filled the court and when Sergt. Olyphant went out they were as busy as two chauticleers in a cockpit. Their bonnets and feathers festooned the place and each was fencing for a knock-out when the stalwart form of the sergeant interposed and the scrap was called off. The parties intend to settle matters to a finish later but may be cited to court as disorderly persons for to-day's work.

Personal Notes.

Miss A. Harley, who for several years had been in charge of Bradshaw's Hotel, Placentia, has resigned that position. Miss Harley was very popular with the guests who put up at this well-known hostelry. She is now staying at the Tremont Hotel here.

Mrs. Grimes, wife of the Superintendent of Police, who had been in the Hospital for some time, has left the institution completely recovered. She received every kindness and attention from Dr. Keegan and the nursing staff and expresses her gratitude to them.

WILL WRESTLE.—John Dunn, son of Supt. Dunn of the Fire Department and a member of the Oppelt Athletic Club, will wrestle Robt. Finch of the Green Sprig Club on June 5th, catch-as-catch-can at 2½ hours' limit. Both are good men and an interesting match is looked forward to.

Supreme Court.

(In Chambers.)
Before Chief Justice.

In the matter of the petition of Philip Templeman praying that Daniel Jennings, of North River, be declared insolvent. Mr. C. E. Hunt for petitioner states that he had served wife of Daniel Jennings with a copy of the petition and order in these proceedings and with a notice that he would apply this morning to the Court to have the defendant declared insolvent. He moved that Daniel Jennings, planter, be declared insolvent and that costs of the proceedings be paid out of the estate. It is ordered accordingly.

In re Thomas White, deceased. Jane White vs. Nicholas White. This was an application on the part of the pif. for administration to the estate of the deceased with all necessary directions. Mr. Gibbs states that John Ryan, City Engineer, has divided the estate in a manner satisfactory to all parties and moves that deft. as administrator be directed to (1) convey to the pif. and her mother their share of the land according to such directions, and (2) to deposit the bank book and pay costs of proceedings. Greene, K.C., assented to convey her share of the land to pif. and her mother but objects to making the deposit of the bank book. He also assented to the claim of pif. as to the costs. It was ordered that the conveyance to pif. be made and the costs of the proceedings be paid out of the estate.

Residents Complain.

Residents in the neighborhood of Long Pond complain of an unsightly ice house there by the side of the pond. They say that it had no right to be kept there so long and should now be removed by the authorities. There is no roof on the building and it is a blot on the landscape. Long Pond is a favorite resort for citizens on holidays, and there are more reasons than are herein expressed why the building, which was in the first place put there on temporary permission, should be removed. It is on public ground.

Appreciation of Rev. G. W. Hewitt's Exception.

Editor Evening Telegram:
 Dear Mr. Editor.—Words fail to express my emotion when I read that article from the pen of the Rev. Mr. Hewitt. I feel convinced, from remarks I've heard passed, that I'm voicing the majority of the community here when I say that I highly appreciate his spirit in defending his and our Catholic and Apostolic Faith, a Faith which I, being a Catholic, claim as "the" Faith, pure and untarnished. As far as claim and proof go, why, we have them which, conscientiously cannot be contradicted; and how such a man as Archbishop Howley could, in the face of those proofs, make such a statement, is beyond my imagination.

If every Catholic, both Anglican and Roman, would read carefully a book entitled "Plain Reasons Against Joining the Church of Rome," by an English Religious controversialist, which has never been contradicted, he would have enough of the "so called" Catholic Faith, and would be convinced which is the "true" branch, whether it is the Anglican or the Roman.

Anglican Catholics! how can you sit silently under such an insult, an insult to your dead King, an insult to your Nation, and an insult to your Faith! Arise! take up your pen and let us know your thoughts! Behold, I say unto you if you hold your peace the stones will immediately cry out!

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space, I remain,
 H. DAWE,
 Anglican Teacher,
 Bonne Bay, May 21st.

INEXPENSIVE--EASILY LAID

Ruberoid roofing is inexpensive and costs little to lay. It is in the end the cheapest roofing known. The most satisfactory roofing, because it requires so very little attention.

You can lay a roof of Ruberoid yourself, or you can have it laid without employing skilled labor.

With each roll of Ruberoid comes Ruberine cement and fixtures with which the seams and edges are cemented together. So that a roof of Ruberoid is practically a one-piece roof. A roof of great flexibility, so as to stand expansion, contraction and twisting strains. A roof of light weight which is no burden to the structure.

USED THE WORLD OVER

Ruberoid roofing is in practical use everywhere. Its sale has extended beyond the limits of civilization.

It has been tested on buildings ranging from wood-sheds to mansions. It has been subjected to a thousand trying conditions—where other roofings have been tried and failed.

And the first Ruberoid roofs ever laid—more than seventeen years ago (in 1892) are still in good condition—still flexible—still waterproof.

 Messrs. The Standard Paint Co. of Canada, Ltd.,
 Montreal, P.Q.,

DEAR SIRS.—In connection with your inquiry we are glad of the opportunity to attest to the reliability of your Ruberoid roofing. We have used this material on our building for the past 15 years, and are in every way satisfied with the service which it has rendered.

Our plant is situated very close to the railroad, and we find that the roofing is not impaired by the burning cinders which frequently fall from the locomotives. Ruberoid certainly has demonstrated to our entire satisfaction all of your claims for it.

Yours very truly,

French Submarine Sunk Attempts to Reach Crew Fail.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, May 26. A telegram received at the Admiralty says that a French submarine was rammed and sunk in the English Channel today by a mail boat running between Calais and Dover. The name of the foundered submarine was Pluviose. The crew, numbering 23 men, were lost.

PARIS, May 26. A special to the Matin from Calais says that chains have been attached to the submerged Pluviose. A despatch to the Journal says that the torpedo boat destroyer has reported that a diver had reached the Pluviose at nightfall and heard rappings in the interior.

CALAIS, France, May 26. After fruitless efforts made to reach the 27 men entombed in the submarine Pluviose, which was sent to the bottom of the English Channel this afternoon by the Channel steamer Pas de Calais, hope has been entirely given up of bringing to the surface alive any of the crew. A powerful under current balked the divers in their attempt this evening to reach the submarine, and if the imprisoned men are not already dead, it is almost certain that the delay will prove fatal. The submarine lies in many fathoms of water and the divers were only able to descend a short distance. Powerful dredges and machinery will arrive from Cherbourg in the morning when all efforts will be attempted to reach the ill-fated craft and bring her to the surface. The general fear is entertained that the submarine received a vital blow from the paddle wheels of the Pas de Calais and that some of her plates were crushed. Even if the crew succeeded in closing the water tight compartments they will not be able to survive for any great length of time. Accounts differ as to the cause of the accident. Some are of the opinion that the submarine attempted to pass beneath the steamer, while others think that after a long dive she came up by chance directly under the paddle wheels. The shock of the contact brought the passengers to the steamer's rails and they saw almost instantly the hull of the submarine rolling about as though trying to right herself. A boat was hastily launched but the foundering craft, which seemed to be hard hit, turned partly over and disappeared.

Roman Catholic Church's Prayer For King George.

Toronto, Ont., May 21.—The following letter from Archbishop McEay, addressed to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, was read at the latter's request by Sir James Whitney at the open-air service in Queen's Park yesterday afternoon.

"Your kind invitation to the religious, civil and military celebration in memory of His Majesty the late King Edward VII. was received and duly appreciated.

"For the reasons previously mentioned to you, I find I cannot be present on Friday afternoon.

"As Catholic citizens of this prosperous country, we will always remember with gratitude and pleasure the peaceful reign of His Majesty Edward VII., who desired that his Catholic subjects should enjoy their full rights as free citizens in Canada.

"We expect the same treatment under His Royal Highness George Albert, henceforth George V., who some few years ago visited this country and made many warm friends among all classes of the people.

"The authority of a legitimate civil ruler comes from God, and hence the obligation of subjects to obey just laws, to respect public officers, and to uphold the power of those appointed to govern in their respective spheres of action. It is also our duty to pray, as St. Paul commanded Timothy, for kings and for all in high stations, that they may lead a quiet and peaceful life.

And as your Honor is the representative of the King in this province, we ask you to assure His Majesty King George V. that we wish him a long and peaceful reign, and our prayer for him will be that of the Catholic Church as follows:

"We beseech Thee, O Almighty God, that Thy servant, George V., our King, who through Thy mercy hath undertaken the government of these realms may also receive an increase of all virtues, wherewith being adorned he may avoid the enormity of sin, vanquish his enemies, and being rendered acceptable in Thy sight, may come at length to Thee, who art the Way, the Truth and the Life. Through Christ our Lord."

A Modern Alchemist.

Special to Evening Telegram. SCRANTON, Pa., May 26.

Dr. W. F. Lange, a reputable and wealthy surgeon of this city, to-day corroborated the opinion, he had fulfilled the chemist's dream for ages, that he had discovered a simple chemical process of transmuting the basest of metals into the finest silver and gold, consequently he anticipated a quick drop in the prices of those two standards of money. Fumes from Dr. Lange's transmuting furnace in his laboratory brought death to Chas. C. Dickinson, the New York banker, who had come here to witness the operation, and who, before he died, according to Dr. Lange, pledged all the financial aid necessary. "My discovery, which upsets all scientific theories," says Dr. Lange, in the statement made public to-day, "I have developed a process sought for ages which will revolutionize the world. In short, I have discovered a means of increasing an atom of silver by the introduction of base metals to one hundred times in size and weight, the result being still pure silver of equal if not greater finish. For four years I carried the secret. It was so great and wonderful I did not dare to believe it myself. Night and day for years I demonstrated over and over again in my laboratory. I spent thousands of dollars in equipment. I have taken base metals of four different kinds and successfully transmuted them into silver of the utmost purity, and the product passed successfully the sharpest scrutiny of the best assayers and analysts in the country. I even sent specimens of it to the U. S. mint and the report came back that the substance was pure silver."

The Torpy Matter.

WHAT WILL BE THE ISSUE?

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir.—The Council meet this evening, and I presume that the Torpy matter will come up for discussion, if not for final decision. A large section of the public will await the result of the Council's deliberation with grave interest. The matter involved is not so small a one as our civic rulers appear to think. There is more at stake than the widening of the road at River Head. The substantial question now to be decided is whether the Council in the future shall be governed by a general regard for the interests of the city, or by a particular regard for the interests of individuals. No one will be disposed to deny that up to the present the Council has shown a deeper concern for the interests of Mrs. Torpy than for those of the city. If a point had to be strained, and many points have been shown to have been strained, it was in Mrs. Torpy's, and not in the city's favor it was done. If a doubt of the Council's powers was entertained—and doubts have been expressed where none exist—the benefit of the doubt was given to Mrs. Torpy and not to the city. When the question resolved itself into one whether the Council should improve the Main Western thoroughfare of the town or enhance the value of Mrs. Torpy's public-house, our rulers made no difficulty in deciding in favor of the individual and against the city. It went out of its way to preserve an obstruction; it did more, it took pains to make the obstruction more of a nuisance and more of a danger than it formerly was. Still more than that, it exerted itself to make that obstruction permanent. And, to make matters worse, it does not show itself sensible of the reprobation it has earned. It has made no apology or excuse on its own behalf, but has been content to allow unauthorised persons to make disingenuous apologies for it. It will be seen to-night whether this Council has any regard at all for public sentiment. And there is even a larger question than this involved. It is this: Is the community of St. John's willing now and forever in the future to allow its temporary rulers to work their own sweet will, quite regardless of the sentiment of the public? Are the citizens always to be content to elect its rulers and then allow them to do as they please, without censure and without protest? Is the city always to be at the mercy of careless and indifferent Councillors? Are we to exert no control whatever over our representatives? That really is the question which faces us, and as an election is now imminent, it becomes us to give it full consideration.

"What Fools These Mortals Be!"

REFORM.
Recently I read in the papers that the medical men have found out the correct weight of the soul is an ounce. I laughed in my sleeve. "What fools these mortals be, and how they can be fooled." The human being when alive, moves, walks and works. What makes these motions? Nobody knows, and they will never know. But, everybody knows that B. Song Service.

At Cochrane Street Church on Sunday evening the service will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. Fred R. Matthews, who will take as the subject of his sermon, "Christ the glory of our Faith." At the close of the regular service there will be held a song service, similar to those held in the above church for some years past, and which have been so much enjoyed by the congregation. The hymns will be specially printed for the occasion. The ushers will be glad to welcome any visiting friends, and special accommodation will be provided for such.

Splendid Saloon.

Mr. Joseph Courtenay, Barber, has recently embellished his tonsorial parlors in Adrain building and they now rank among the best of their kind in the city. The place has been handsomely painted and decorated, and has been fitted with new lights and several luxurious chairs were imported by him from New York. Mr. Courtenay is an enterprising young man and deserves success.

Ejected From Meadow. Governor at Grand Falls.

Yesterday a number of boys were kicking football at Buckmaster's meadow. The place is private property, is fenced off and Const. Stamp went up there and turned the boys off the ground. There are now very few places near the town for boys to play in and something should be done to afford them a proper place for recreation. It is certainly a hardship on young lads to be turned out of almost every field in which they go to enjoy innocent and healthy sports.

His Excellency the Governor and suite were at Grand Falls last Tuesday. They visited and inspected the paper mills and the rest of the works there, in all of which the visitors were deeply interested. His Excellency and suite left on Wednesday to go salmon fishing on the West Coast.

W. R. Hearst's Description of the Funeral.

Myriads Upon Myriads of People Greatest Spectacle of All.

New York, May 21.—Mr. W. R. Hearst, who is now in London, describes King Edward's funeral in this morning's "American." He says in part:—Imagine one of the most delightful sunny days that England has ever seen. Imagine a long broad avenue confined by the tall trees of Hyde Park in the vivid green of their spring foliage. Imagine this avenue turning in the far distance and losing itself beyond the spreading branches of great oaks and elms.

Imagine the avenue lined on either side as far as you can see with solid black masses of humanity, hundreds of feet in depth. Imagine these long lines of black clad humanity framed with a deep border of scarlet and gold soldiers, six and eight ranks deep. Imagine the flaming of color and the gleaming of steel in the sun, as if this human tapestry were woven with gold, set with precious stones.

Imagine the blots of gold and color, like tassels here and there along the fringe, where officers were collected in groups before the men or flags in mourning were spread upon the ground. Imagine the marble arch square, in the immediate foreground of this picture, with the marble gates itself to the left and the great gates of the park directly in front of you.

Imagine this square so densely packed with seething humanity that you could not drop a pebble from any point above and have it reach the street at any place beneath except along the line which the soldiers and police were forever struggling with, the people to keep clear.

Imagine all this and you have the stage setting upon which one of the most spectacular and dramatic pageants of modern times is soon to appear. Far down the streets leading to Marble Arch square and striving to get within seeing, or at least hearing distance of the square, are people. In various windows and upon housetops surrounding this square, wherever any glimpse of the pageant can possibly be far more of a military pageant than either Queen Victoria's Jubilee or even the Coronation procession. At St. George's Chapel, Windsor, some attempt was made to gather together representatives of the intellect of the nation. But in the progress through London the monarchs and military held sway.

Appeal to Military Instincts.

The appeal made by the pageant was to the military instincts of the people, rather than to those pacific tendencies which were cultivated by King Edward with such world-wide renown. Throughout, the procession was managed with consummate skill. From beginning to end it went without a hitch. Throughout the whole route, occupied by millions of people there occurred not a single disagreeable incident.

Nothing was more striking than the self-imposed and self-conducted discipline in the mighty crowd of all classes and the admirable method and temper of the police and the people co-operated.

"I have done my duty," said King Edward, dying. He did his duty as he thought, and worked consistently and conscientiously for the advancement and betterment of all these millions—not otherwise.

Tribute to New King.

Speaking of King George, M. Hearst says:—"Judging by his features, his expression, his carriage and his general appearance George V. has more force and ability than Americans have supposed; more than the English people themselves have believed. My knowledge of kings is limited, but my knowledge of men is constantly of the increase and I venture the opinion that George V. of England is considerably more of a man and will prove to be considerably more of a King than any one imagines."

A Triumphant Progress.

A special cable to the World from its London correspondent says:—"With all the pomp and majesty of Empire surrounded by the sorrowing rulers of the world under the eyes of mourning multitudes of his people, and followed by all whom he had loved, even his favourite horse and his pet terrier, King Edward VII. made his last triumphal progress through his capital.

"Thousands of eyes were wet with tears in this last sad journey through the streets, so they stood until the funeral carriage had passed along out of sight.

"The King's funeral procession was Boy Badly Injured.

A boy at Grand Falls fell over an embankment, a distance of fifteen feet, last Monday and had his skull fractured so that he is now in a serious condition. He was being wheeled in a barrow over a skids by a companion when the wheel turned and he fell out. He was unconscious when picked up. He is now being attended by a doctor.

BANKER WITH 600 QTLS.—The banker Yukon, Capt. Martin, with 600 qtls. fish, taken at Quero Bank, arrived here yesterday. The vessel has done well and sails for Perlican today to discharge her catch, after which she will sail and bait and again go to the Banks.

OBITUARY.

The death occurred yesterday morning at his residence, Hamilton Street of Mr. Samuel Angel, a well known and respected young man. The deceased for several years was connected with the Evening Herald newspaper and until recently was an apprentice in that office. He was an athlete of no mean ability and was a prominent member of the Catholic Cadet Corps. He had been in falling health for some time past and his death was not unexpected. His funeral takes place Sunday afternoon and military honors will be accorded him by the Corps, of which he was a member.

5,000 Tons Paper.

The Donaldson liner Castellan, to which the Telegram recently referred, will finish loading paper and pulp at Botwood to-morrow and will sail with 5,000 tons for London. Steamers will ply regularly between that port and London with pulp and paper, and later in the season several English tourists with Lord Northcliffe will come out from London to visit Grand Falls. Rev. Mr. Whittle, the Anglican clergyman at Grand Falls, leaves for England by the ship on a vacation.

Backache Suffering

A wonderful medicine is this man's description of DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS. Mr. Fred. Gummer, Lillies, Ont. writes:—"I can honestly say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a wonderful medicine. For six weeks last fall I could scarcely walk around for pains in the back and legs, and was almost completely unfit for work. Though I tried several medicines I got no better. I saw Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills advertised and bought five boxes. After I had used three boxes, I was greatly improved and by the time I had them all taken felt as well as I ever did. I would advise anyone suffering from kidney disease to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. "We have also used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for bad colds and sore throat and would not be without these medicines for anything."

FOUR ARRESTED.—The police took four prisoners to the lockup last evening—two drunks and two disorderlies.

New Houses Building.

The houses which the Telegram recently reported as being projected for Grand Falls are now being built by a staff of carpenters employed by the contractors—the Horwood Lumber Co. These buildings, of which over 30 will be erected, will be good strong structures and comfortable. They will replace the shacks which the workmen have been using, and they will be finished by the fall.

Dangerous Proceeding

A poor man named Richard Pitman, when passing the streets is often tormented by men and boys who call him names, with the result that he hurls stones and other missiles at them. There was an instance of this yesterday at the foot of Beck's Cove when several stones thrown by the man at those who offended him narrowly escaped hitting inoffensive citizens. He was arrested, but those who thus arouse him should also be punished, as the man is inoffensive if left alone.

Was Locked In.

At 6.30 p.m. Wednesday a young man was passing up Water Street he heard a tapping on the inside of a door leading to an office on the second floor of a building, and investigating found that a young lady had been accidentally locked in by employees in leaving. The young man informed the police, who spent over an hour in looking up the owner of the place who liberated the alarmed female.

Registering Motors.

Recently there were placed in the different stations a list of the motor cars in the city with the names of the owners and numbers of each car. A similar list was given with reference to motor cycles. The lists are placed in the stations for the information of the police. There are 27 motor cars registered and 17 cycles.

Botwood Notes.

Nathaniel Pike, Inspector of Customs, and Dr. Bullard came from Grand Falls on the A. N. D. Co. railway and were very pleased with their visit.

The s.s. Kastalia finished discharging coal and is now loading pulp paper for England.

Boys Found on Road

Dying and Injured, Having Been Struck by Touring Auto.

Cambridge, Mass., May 20.—Bleeding from a gash in the head, 12 year old Herbert Kline stumbled along Charles River road late to-day until he met patrolman Thomas Burke, to whom he pointed out the prostrate form of his playmate, Samuel McDermott, thirteen years old, in the roadway a short distance away. The lads had been struck from behind by a large touring car. Both were hurried to the Cambridge Relief Hospital, where it was found that the McDermott lad's skull was fractured and he had other injuries, which were almost sure to prove fatal. Young Kline was seriously wounded, but probably not fatally. The police at once began an investigation.

Crowds See Death Leap

San Francisco, May 20.—In view of thousands of persons to-day Nicholas Lichankis leaped 300 feet to his death from the 15th floor of the Claus Spreckles building at 3rd and Market Streets.

His body was crushed into a shapeless mass on the pavement. On his person was found an undertaker's receipt for $75 in payment of his funeral expenses.

Died in Fireman's Arms

Sensational Rescue at Tenement Blaze New York, May 23.—Sensational rescues by firemen prevented more than one death by fire in a blazing tenement on East 70th street to-day. As it was Mrs. Mary Miller died in a fireman's arms from the effects of smoke inhalation after she had been dragged to the roof, while her husband, William Miller, clutched the seven months old son of the couple, unconscious and suffering from burns, was rescued just in time by another fireman.

Meanwhile numbers of other tenants were being carried down ladders and dropped into life nets. Fully forty persons were taken in this way from the burning structure, where members of sixteen families had been trapped.

ARTIFICIAL HUMAN EYES.
Never since the arrival of the illustrious John Cabot has anybody in Newfoundland attempted to cater to the needs of those who have been unfortunate enough to lose an eye.
WHY,
Does it mean anything?
RATHER.
It means that hundreds must be kept on hand in order to match all the different sizes, shapes and colors within the range.
I have just received my first shipment of 300
In Greys, Blues and Browns, from these, no doubt, many can be matched. Come along or send and see what we can do for you.
