FIGURES DO LIE.
Prices are only Relative
REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.
They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build.
They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.
They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and
"Time is money."
If you shut your eyes to this real bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.
You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bills will be twice as large.
REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.
We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make them the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.
We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one.
REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.

The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XLV.

Ralph shrank back behind the curtain and waited, his breath coming in sharp gasps, his hand feeling for his revolver.

He heard Workley come panting up the steps and across the terrace; then the window was burst open and the man sprang into the room.

In a moment he had seen Ralph, and, with a hoarse cry, extended his arm as if denouncing him; but for a time no words would come, and the cry was faint and almost inaudible from the stress of his emotion.

"Scoundrel!" he gasped at last. "Murderer! It was you—you who killed her; and you shall hang for it! Put down that revolver! You're run to earth, you brute!—there are more in the front—the house is surrounded—there is no chance!"

Ralph lowered the revolver; he realized, even at that moment, that the sound of firing would bring the other pursuers upon him.

"Give me—give me a chance!" he gasped, the sweat running down his face, his bloodshot eyes distended. "I swear it—it was an accident! Give me a chance and I'll make it worth your while."

He snatched the notes from his pocket. "Take—take half of these—just to let me pass—to keep quiet for five—ten minutes! For God's sake, give me a chance. Don't hunt a fellow-creature to death!"

Workley's white face went purple. "Not if you offered me a million—not if my own life depended on it!" he cried, hoarsely; and, with a shout for help, he lunged himself on Ralph.

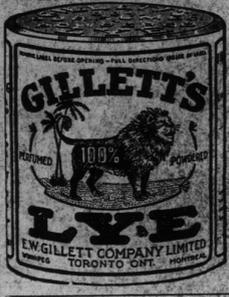

Ralph raised the revolver by the barrel and struck down at him with lightning rapidity. The blows fell like iron rain upon Workley's forehead, his grasp on Ralph relaxed, and he fell at his feet.

With savage fury Ralph kicked at the unconscious man as he sprang over him to the window. But there he stopped, for he could hear the sound of footsteps in the hall, and knew that his pursuers would see him flying across the lawn. He turned back and stood beside the door. For a moment he thought of locking it, but before he could do so, it was burst open and a detective sprang into the room. At sight of Workley lying on the floor he hesitated, and, blowing a whistle, went to him.

Ralph seized the chance offered by the man's momentary hesitation, and noiselessly stepping round the door, gained the hall. It was empty, though the butler and a footman were hurrying up, alarmed by the noise and the whistle, and Ralph sprang up the stairs. At the head of them he stopped. Parkins was in his room; there was no outlet there; he would be caught like a rat in a trap! With no definite plan, but impelled by despair, he ran down the corridor through a doorway at the end, and found himself in one of the passages which connected the old part of the ancient house with the more modern portion. He had never been there before, and he looked round him confusedly. As he did so, he caught sight of the detective running across the lawn, evidently under the impression that his prey had made his escape by the window.

Ralph hurried along the passage and reached a low door, which, on opening, he found communicated with a large lumber-room. The furniture was old and thick with dust, and from several trunks came the musty smell arising from long stored-away and neglected clothes; at the end of the room was another door, and opening it with some difficulty, he found that he was in a disused dressing-room. Dust and cobwebs were thick over everything, and, as he went about on tip-toe, with hurried—one might say purposeless—movements, the rats darted across the room and disappeared in the broken wainscot. Breathing hard, shaking in every limb, with the blood-stained revolver still grasped in his hands, he sank on to a box and waited, resolved that he would not be taken alive.

He did not know whether it was an hour or a minute before he heard footsteps coming along the passage and the voice of Green the detective.

Ralph sprang to his feet and waited, revolver raised; but, to his amazement, the footsteps and the voices passed, as if seemed to him, within a few feet of the left wall, and so closely that he heard Green say:

"Not here; try that door!"

A moment after a breathless voice said: "The horse has gone, Mr. Green! He's got away!"

And Ralph heard the men rapidly descending the stairs. He drew a long breath as he guessed what had happened. The horse has broken loose and led them on the wrong scent. Was there still a chance for him?

He flung himself down on the floor and fought against the sick tremor which possessed him; if he was to escape he would need all his cunning, all his presence of mind, and all the courage which he could wrest from despair.

He lay there, panting, in a cold sweat, for hours, afraid to move, almost afraid to breathe. The day waned, and the room grew dark with a darkness which was almost a relief to his racked nerves; for he could think now with something like acuteness.

He rose at last, and with cautious steps felt his way to the larger room, through the dirty windows of which the moon—the moon that had looked down upon the murdered woman's uplifted face—shone brightly. His eye fell upon one of the open trunks, and the sight of the clothes within it gave him an idea. From the dusty, moth-eaten heap he drew out a gown and a shawl and with feverish haste slipped them on. In a cracked mirror he arranged the shawl over his head, and with no more definite purpose than that of escaping from the house, slowly and cautiously opened the door and gained the passage.

In reply to a question in the House of Commons, Mr. Tennant, Under Secretary of War, said that Britain is now building a fleet of giant zeppelins which will carry crews of five men and five times as much explosive as an ordinary biplane.

A traveller arriving in Amsterdam from Ghent, Belgium, claims that a revolt took place on June 15th in the part of the inhabitants of Malines. German soldiers fired into the crowd and the traveller says seven hundred civilians were killed. Since this occurrence, according to the traveller, Malines have been isolated by means of electrically charged wire fences.

THE HEIR OF Lancewood

CHAPTER I.

"You must not look on the very darkest side, Miss Neslie," counselled the young secretary. "Sir Arthur says that Lady Neslie is young and beautiful."

She interrupted him with a gesture of supreme contempt. "One must be as weak as a man," she said, "to care much for youth and beauty."

"Pardon me," he continued, gently; "I was about to say that, being beautiful, she is almost sure to be kind of heart. Minds and faces are in harmony."

She interrupted him again. "How little you know of the matter, Mr. Dorman! As though beautiful women ever cared for anything except themselves!"

"Being young," he pursued, "she will be timid, and will not venture to take any leading part in the management of the household."

She laughed bitterly. "Did you ever see a timid French woman, Mr. Dorman? I never did. What can have possessed my father to marry—above all, to marry a French girl?"

"Perhaps," said the young secretary, with a meaning look that any one less proud would have understood, "Sir Arthur may have fallen in love, as others do."

"Love!" she repeated, scornfully. "Pray, pardon me, Mr. Dorman, but the notion of my own father's falling in love is too absurd."

There was an interval of uncomfortable silence; it was broken by the young secretary, who said: "I am sorry, Miss Neslie, to bring a disagreeable matter before you, but Sir Arthur says he wishes arches of evergreens erected in the drive. I am to consult you about them."

"You may spare me the insult, sir, if I erected an arch at all, it would be one of yew and cypress."

He bowed, being quite at a loss for words. "Sir Arthur has also directed that the pictures in the Blue Room shall be placed in the apartment in the western wing known as 'my lady's boudoir.'"

"That was my mother's room!" cried the girl, with flashing eyes. "It shall not be touched."

"Dear Miss Neslie," pleaded the secretary, "do believe me; opposition is all in vain. Let me counsel you to comply with Sir Arthur's wishes."

"I do not need your counsel, Mr. Dorman; and please do not call me 'dear' Miss Neslie. I am not so desolate yet as to require that."

He drew back with such an expression of intense pain that her proud heart was touched.

"Forgive me," she said. "I need not speak so unkindly to you—you have not displeased me. But I am so hurt, so grieved, so wounded, I do not know what to say."

"If speaking harshly to me could lessen your pain, I would submit to it forever," he replied.

She did not seem to hear him—and he was quite accustomed to have the passionate utterances of his great love treated with silent indifference.

"Tell me, Mr. Dorman," she said, after a pause, "all that Sir Arthur requires to be done."

"Sir Arthur wishes to have triumphal arches erected all along the drive. They are to be surmounted by the word 'Welcome.' He wishes also that every servant belonging to the household should be in the great hall to bid Lady Neslie welcome home. He wishes the rooms in the western wing to be prepared, all the pictures of the Blue Room to be placed in the boudoir, dinner to be ready at eight instead of seven—he invites me to dine—and, lastly, I am to say to you that he hopes neither expense nor trouble will be spared in welcoming Lady Neslie home."

Lace gowns are worn to some extent. There is a fad for sports hats in color. Sleeveless bodices are still in favor.

NEVER AGAIN NEED YOU SLIP

F. V. CHESMAN, 178 Water Street, Telephone 495.

She turned her proud face to him. "Do you know, sir, that that is the very welcome my mother received when she came, a bride, to Lancewood Abbey twenty years ago?"

"I can imagine it," was the cautious reply.

"And do you think the same welcome given to her will be given to this French girl—this girl of nineteen? I tell you 'No!' I would rather cut off my hands than use even one finger in such sacrifice. Let those who will erect triumphal arches—I shall not!"

The young secretary looked terribly perplexed. "I can understand your feelings," he began.

She turned again with her queenly gesture of impatient scorn. "You understand nothing. Be silent; you must not presume to pity me. I repeat to you that I will not aid in the carrying out of these directions."

"Yet it must all be done, Miss Neslie; unless it is the blame will all fall upon innocent servants. You know Sir Arthur's quiet, cool way; he will ignore all idea of your having failed, and dismiss the whole household."

"Why do you say that?" she asked quickly.

"I know it, Miss Neslie, Sir Arthur is very good, but there is a will of iron under his gentle manner. For my own part, I would submit cheerfully to the dismissal, but I should like to remain that I might—"

He hesitated. "That you might take my part, you mean," she said, with a bitter laugh. "Well, I, who thought myself supreme one short hour since, may want a friend. My father would not dismiss you."

"I should like to be the first," he declared. He began to perceive that he might touch her through her generosity, influence her through her kindness of heart. "Pray do not consider me," he added; "I would sacrifice myself most cheerfully. But, Miss Neslie—do not be angry with me—is it of any use to begin a course of opposition that you cannot keep up? Sir Arthur is sole master; his will sole law. Is it of any use opposing it?"

He saw that she was listening with more attention. "It seems to me," he continued, "that the more dignified course would be to carry out Sir Arthur's directions. Then there is another thing to be considered. I am quite certain that Sir Arthur would dismiss the whole household for disobedience. The servants are, most of them, old family retainers; as such, they will naturally—no matter who comes—look upon you as their true mistress. A new set of domestics would just as naturally consider Lady Neslie first."

"That is true," she said, "but I cannot do it, Mr. Dorman. I will be passive. I will give no orders." (To be Continued.)

TRAINING THE KEYNOTE OF SUCCESS.

The amount of training depends largely upon oneself and the desire to receive it and to take advantage of every situation to gain a clearer insight into the business methods that will help. Specialization is a necessity to successful work.

The saleswoman may be so well trained in the selling of goods that her sales may amount to a high figure, but she may not have had training and experience in making change and would be a failure as a cashier; the stenographer may be able to take dictation and transcribe a letter without an error, but she might not be able to sell goods or keep a set of books for the lack of training.

Most of this training is received after one has become connected with a position, and most women find it better to begin on a low rung of the ladder so that the training may come gradually, than to fall by beginning too high. The so called big women, those of whom the business world is proud, are those who have once been the small ones, and who have gradually climbed, training themselves well for every step before them.

Training is so necessary, but with some so little understood, that some women with a small amount of money to invest have been led to put it into a business for which they have had no training, and the result has been failure. Whatever one goes into should be well investigated and if there is a good opening it is almost always possible to secure training some way in a similar line of work.

Newfoundland's Aeroplane.

The destruction of the German cruiser Königsberg, hidden in the jungle up the river Ruffi in German East Africa, is the latest example of the utility of the aeroplane. The Königsberg was the only German cruiser destroyed outside of the Baltic and the waters of the enemy. It was too far up the river to be smashed up by ordinary cruisers at the mouth of the river. Besides the great jungles of tropical Africa rendered it difficult to locate it sufficiently for effective shelling. To surmount these difficulties two of the three monitors which did so much effective work off the coast of Belgium in the fall, were sent to the Ruffi, and on account of their shallow draft they were enabled to ascend the river much further than an ordinary cruiser could. But there still remained the difficulty of locating the protected cruiser of the enemy and directing the fire of the attacking ships. This was overcome by the use of air-craft. Last week the attack began and the aeroplanes watched and spotted the shots. The finishing touches were given to her on Sunday last and the Admiralty now reports her a total wreck. It will be remembered that the Overseas Club has issued an appeal to the Dominions and Colonies to assist the authorities by the gift of aeroplanes. Hong Kong has collected funds for six aeroplanes. These appeals reached the Chairman of the St. John's Municipal Commission and the Premier of the Colony. It has been decided to take the matter up and pool the subscription and present the gift from the whole colony, working the matter through the Patriotic Association. The latter authorized His Excellency the Governor to name a committee for the purpose, and he in his capacity of Chairman of the Patriotic Association has invited the following gentlemen to meet him at 3 o'clock this afternoon to arrange preliminaries and to advise as to the proper completion of the membership of the committee:—
Mr. C. P. Ayre, Mr. H. Baird, Sir Edgar Bowring, Mr. John Browning, Mr. J. A. Clift, K.C., Mr. W. G. Gosling, Mr. W. B. Grieve, Hon. John Harris, Mr. J. C. Hepburn, Mr. A. E. Hickman, M.H.A., Mr. R. A GRAND PROGRAMME AT THE NICKEL.—The attendance at the Nickel Theatre yesterday was unusually large which was due to the excellent quality of the pictures and the fact that Forbes Law Duguid was singing the well known operatic success: "The Heart Bowed Down." The pictures were highly creditable. It is not an easy matter to say which was best as all were good. "Our Mutual Girl" was as popular as ever, perhaps more so. Everyone was delighted with it. The same may be said of the other subjects. The films were perfect and Duguid's rendition of "The Heart Bowed Down" was one of his greatest successes. All agreed that it was the best ever heard here. To-day the whole programme will be repeated. To-morrow "The Million Dollar Mystery" will be shown.

Sensational Arrest

Suspect Held on Burglary Charges.—Recently the house of Mrs. Violet M. James at Clarendville was burglarized and the sum of $110.00 disappeared. The matter was reported to the authorities and the detectives here were ordered to keep on the qui vive and watch the arrival of every train and coastal steamer. On Sunday last John Strong, a 20 year old laborer and on whom suspicion rested, boarded the east bound express train at Clarendville and came to St. John's, reaching here at 1 p.m. yesterday. His arrival was awaited by Detectives Byrne and Tobin, who after bidding a courteous welcome to Strong, escorted him down the street, all the while a friendly conversation going on. After getting a good distance down Water Street the outport man was questioned as to his whereabouts in the nights last week. Near the General Post Office he dropped a package containing some notes and a cheque. The escorts after picking up the parcel continued on to the Police Station with Strong. On being searched the suspect had considerable money of all kinds and denominations in his possession. This morning he was arraigned before the Magistrate, charged with breaking into and entering the house of Violet M. James and stealing therefrom $110.00; also charged with breaking into and robbing the Post Office at Clarendville twelve months ago. He was not asked to plead and was remanded for 8 days, pending an investigation by the authorities as the suspect is suspected of other burglaries and larcenies.

Mr. E. L. Oke, lately of the Bank of Nova Scotia here, intends going to Labrador by next Sagona for a few months' pleasure trip.

Mr. Norman Munn took a run over to St. John's on Saturday, returning by the night train.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Residents of Harvey Street complain of the annoyance caused by a horse whose owner put him out at night to feed along the road side. The animal is very fond of the grass growing in the different yards, and contrives in some way to open the gates and get in. They think the nuisance should be stopped somehow.

Mr. B. Kennedy, of the Government Telegraph staff, who had been relieving at Brigus Junction, and other places, returned home by Saturday night's train.

Mr. John Kitchin (mason) was seized with an attack of illness a few days ago, and is now very weak. Much anxiety is felt concerning him. Mr. Kitchin had just secured a summer's and fall's work, after a long period of lack of employment. We hope soon to have better news to report concerning this worthy citizen.

Dr. Rendell, of St. John's, had a very pleasant chat with a number of our citizens on consumption. The genial doctor takes the right method of impressing his desire for great care on his hearers. No doubt much good will be the outcome of the doctor's talk.

Miss Mollie McKay has accepted a position as assistant at the up-to-date grocery store of Mr. Joseph Ross.

Mr. Dugald Munn and his son Master Bert, left by this forenoon's train the former for St. John's, the latter for Bay Roberts.

Miss Muriel Nurse, of St. John's, arrived from that town by this afternoon's train on a visit to Mrs. and Miss Parsons, LeMarchant Street.

Fish has been scarce the past few days, but it is said that there is an improvement to-day.

Mr. Grace, July 12, 1915.

DUE FROM NORTH.—The S.S. Prospero left Trinity at 10.25 a.m. to-day, and is due to-night.

FLORIZEL LEAVING.—The Red Cross Liner Florizel leaves Halifax this afternoon for here, due Thursday. The ship will be filled with passengers, mostly round-trippers.

TEMPORARILY BURIED.—Undertaker A. Carnell returned to-day from Bell Island where he was hurriedly called on Sunday, owing to the death of Dr. Carnochan's two year old son. Mr. Carnell embalmed the corpse which was temporarily buried on the island. It will shortly be sent forward to Dr. Carnochan's birth place in Nova Scotia for interment.

(By Harold McGrath.)

Cloth 60c., if mailed, 2c. more.
At the foundation of the plot of this exciting mystery story, there is a secret organization in Russia. Then are given glimpses of country house society, the modern boarding-school, the fashionable restaurant, the enterprising twentieth century newspaper reporter, the romance and mystery that may be linked together by two halves of a bracelet, the love of a father for his daughter, the devotion of an old family servant, the intrigues of a band of thieves and blackmailers and plenty of the old love that is always new, not to mention the million dollars about which the whole thing revolves and which, in these times, has an especially pleasing ring. All these result in a story that keeps the reader with pulses tingling.

THE PRESIDENT IS FIRM.

CORNISH, N. H., To-day.
President Wilson to-day received from the State Department the official text of the latest German Note on submarine warfare and immediately began the consideration of his reply. He instructed Secretary Lansing to prepare a memorandum of the diplomatic problems involved and will not send a rejoinder until he has conferred with the Secretary of State. It became known after the President read the Note, he does not look upon the situation as critical, but at the same time he is not inclined to underestimate the possibilities of the problem presented to him. He is determined firmly to uphold the dignity of the States.

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day.
From what appeared to be a lull on the western front there sprung up suddenly some of the most severe fighting for months with Germans aggressors in Souchez Cemetery, seven miles North of Arras and hardly half that distance South West of Lens. It has been wrested from the French by hand to hand fighting with bomb and bayonet. The French admit this loss and are fighting to regain the ground, which they had won with such heavy cost. Slowly the French have been tightening their grip on the village Souchez until Germans aware that the capture of the entire position would be an important step of the French offensive towards Lens and Lille, launched a terrific counter-attack which left them master of a shattered burial ground with more than 150 prisoners in their hands. The fighting among houses which fringe the western edge of the town still rages. There also has been a renewal of activity in other areas in France and Belgium, but nothing comparable with the strategic importance of the Souchez retirement. The Germans lay claim to the destruction of a British position at Hill 60 near Ypres, but this finds no confirmation from either French or British sources. The situation in Poland and Galicia has reached a crisis, but the public is rather weary of following the complexities of the Russian retirement. So long as Warsaw appears to be in no immediate danger, it is turning to the West hazarding guesses as to whether British, French or Germans will be the first to take the general offensive. With the arrival of midsummer this is a big question, for it is felt one side or other must strike before long, otherwise another winter of tedious trench warfare is inevitable. The destruction of the German cruiser Konigsberg in the Jungle Line river in East Africa was learned with surprise. The fact she had taken refuge there being forgotten by the general public. The Italian attacks against Austria seem to be gaining in intensity, but the Vienna official statement admits no loss of ground.

QUARREL BETWEEN TURKISH AND GERMAN OFFICERS.

LONDON, To-day.
Despatches from Asia Minor, received by the Exchange Telegraph Company's Athens correspondent, states that all German officers with the Turkish army in Syria, have returned to Constantinople, because of dissensions among Turkish officers. Syrian railways are said to have suspended operations because of shortage of coal.

EX-MINISTER ARRESTED.

ROME, To-day.
A man named Pop, and three accomplices, have been condemned to death at Sofia, for complicity in an attempt to destroy the Municipal Casino at Sofia, according to a message received from Bucharest. M. Chendoff, former Bulgarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, says the despatch, has also been arrested and charged with being an accessory. The arrest of the former Minister which was made at the request of the Government, is said to have produced a profound impression at Sofia. Several persons were killed and ten wounded, including the daughter of General Fitchiff, the Bulgarian Minister of War, when the bombs were thrown on the Casino in Sofia on February 14th. It is probably for this crime that Pop and his accomplices were condemned and Chendoff arrested.

TO WARSAW.

LONDON, To-day.
A Petrograd despatch to the Times says: All rumors that General Von Boem Ermolli's army has relieved Von MacKensen, and that the latter

The Russian Government of Bessarabia borders Roumania on the East. Austria-Hungary is reported to have pledged Roumania to undertake the conquest of Bessarabia, and transfer it to the Balkan State in exchange for Roumania's active support in the war.

Calamity for Germany.

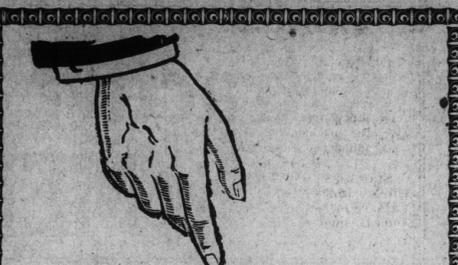

(Newcastle (Eng.) Chronicle.)
Heavily as the Allies have lost and will lose, their losses are nothing compared with those of Germany. The industrial system, built up with so much care and energy, has been sacrificed to the adventure decreed by the military. Commerce is at a standstill. German credit may be said to have reached zero, and the indiscriminate rushing into the firing line of all sorts and conditions of men has robbed the country of thousands of workers and organizers whose worth would have been immeasurable when Germany, outcast and friendless, is compelled to readjust her whole life to the new and tragic circumstances for which she herself is responsible. The war is a sheer calamity for all who are concerned in it, but no miracle imaginable can avert the exigencies of full and proper measure of retribution from the criminals who planned it, dreamed of it, and lived for it.

Anxious to Enlist.

Montreal, July 8.—Samuel Meakin, a native of England, and an electrical engineer, rode a bicycle all the way from New York to Montreal in order to enlist for the war. He arrived in this city at noon to-day, and said he had heard so much of the bravery of the Canadian soldiers that he simply had to join them.

Gen. Joffre is Confident of His Position.

The Commander of the Allied Forces Has Two Million or More Fully Equipped and in Fine Condition back of the Firing Line, which will Render Impossible any Breaking Through by Germans to Calais.

New York, July 9.—G. B. Post and Flagg, financiers, says:—"I heard last night from a source that is absolutely authentic and well informed in other words from a man who has been acting for this Government in an official capacity in France, and who has had an unusual chance to observe how things are going. He tells me that he has had two talks with General Joffre, and that the General is perfectly confident of his position. That he has two million men or more fully equipped and in fine condition back of the firing line, and is therefore in a position to render impossible any breaking through by the Germans, which is so much dreaded, and that he could start the great initiative now, if it were deemed wise, but he dreads the great loss of men, which this move would involve at present. "It is judged better to let the Germans wear themselves out for a while longer. He reports that the German artillery is showing marked inferiority to what it was three and six months ago and the same can be said of the infantry. I have heard from another source that I consider authentic, that half of the German shells do not explode as they should. They either go off prematurely or not at all, whereas when the war started they were almost miraculous in their precision."

Now in Serbia.

Rear-Admiral Troubridge, who was in command of the British Squadron in the Mediterranean at the outbreak of war, and who was relieved of office and summoned home for allowing the German cruisers Breslau and Goeben to reach Constantinople in safety, has been given a commission in Serbia. He is head of a group of some twenty British naval officers who are assisting the Serbian Government in organizing their river defenses and prosecuting a river warfare against the Austrians and Germans. Troubridge was acquitted by the court of inquiry, and he was able to show that he received most peremptory wireless orders in the secret code of the British Admiralty, telling him to let the two German cruisers out of the Bay of Messina without let or hindrance. When he discovered that the message was a German forgery, it was too late for him to catch the escaped boats. He comes of a fighting race, his great grandfather was a captain, sailing under Nelson, while his grandfather, father and a number of brothers were all prominent naval men.

FIVE PEOPLE DIED ON THE SICILIAN.

Quebec, July 8.—Two Allan transatlantic boats reached Quebec yesterday evening and both had interesting news. The Pretorian's captain denied the story published that his ship had been chased by a German submarine. The Sicilian's captain reported that, on his last trip out from Quebec to Liverpool, June 16th, five people on board died and were buried at sea. On her trip back to Quebec the Sicilian only had two cabin passengers and seven third class travellers. Some Canadian volunteers, a few of them found medically unfit for service, were returned on the Pretorian in charge of Captain Weld, a wounded officer, of the 8th Battalion, who is over on a short leave of absence.

AGE OF THE BRITISH MINISTERS

(From the Dundee Advertiser.)
The reconstruction of the Cabinet has restored to Mr. Churchill the distinction of being the youngest member, which he lost a few months ago when his predecessor in his new office, E. S. Montagu, was admitted to the Council. Sir John Simon is two years and Mr. Runciman four years his senior. These Ministers alone of the twenty-two have not yet reached their half century. The oldest members, both in point of age and as regards Ministerial experience, are Lord Lansdowne, now in his seventy-first year, and Mr. Balfour, who is not yet sixty-seven. Mr. Burrell is sixty-five, and Lord Kitchener will see that age next month; while the Prime Minister will complete his sixty-third year in September. Sir Edward Carson, Mr. Long and Mr. McKinnon Wood are all in the early sixties.

CASE POSTPONED.—The case of assault preferred against a street car conductor by the parents of two little girls, aged 6 and 7 years, respectively, was heard to-day in camera. At 1 p.m. the case was adjourned till to-morrow when the defence side of the case will be listened to.

France to Pay for Seized Cargoes.

Paris, July 8.—The French Senate to-day unanimously appropriated $600,000 to be used by the Minister of Marine in payment for cargoes of neutral vessels that have been seized, and especially of that of the American steamer Dacia.

The Dacia formerly belonged to the Hamburg-American line. After changing her registry she sailed from Galveston, Texas, with a cargo of cotton destined for Germany. On reaching European waters she was picked up by a French cruiser and taken into Brest. A French prize court, after hearing the case recommended that the French Government purchase the cargo.

Barking Dogs.

By RUTH CAMERON.

We were talking about a woman who is always saying s h a p, critical things. She had just given tongue to a needlessly frank criticism of a sensitive friend, and the latter was on the verge of tears. "Never mind," said the comforting one, "her bite. Why she'd be awfully good to you if you needed it."

"I know," quavered the tearful lady; "but it seems to me she's barking most of the time."

Do You Know Any Barking Dogs? Do you know anyone like that, reader friend?

Most of us do, for there are a great many people in the world whose bite is a negligible quantity compared to their bark, but who somehow seem to be barking most of the time.

I know a woman who is generous to a fault and always ready to serve and help her friends, but she insists on reserving to herself the right to continually criticize them and to say sharp little things about them. She doesn't mean half she says. It is just a habit she has gotten into, but I doubt if the happiness she gives by the service of her hands counterbalances the unhappiness she causes by the wounds of her tongue.

Yet if anyone should tell her that she would be greatly surprised. She thinks the fact that she is good at heart is the only thing that counts, and among her other criticisms she has many sharp words for the easy-going people who are pleasant spoken, but not so quick to help as she.

That Doesn't Make His Home Peaceful.

Again I know a man who dearly loves all his family and yet he spends most of his waking time fussing and scolding about one thing or another. It is hardly a case of his bark being worse than his bite, for he really has no bite at all. He is all bark. Nevertheless that does not make the atmosphere of his home peaceful or livable.

Nobody wants a barking dog round all the time any more than a dog with a tendency to bite.

One may lacerate the flesh, but the other lacerates the nerves.

He means well,—he has a good heart,—his bark is worse than his bite,—these are all expressions that describe, but do not justify, the habit of self-indulgence in irritability.

We all know what place is paved with good intentions. I suspect if there is any such place except in our own hearts there will be a good many dogs whose bark is worse than their bite there.

Question—I am engaged to a young man of considerable means. I am a working girl and cannot afford an elaborate trousseau or a large wedding. He is an only son and his people are set on having a big wedding. He wants to give me the money for this and for my trousseau. Shall I accept it?—Engaged Girl.

Answer—A small wedding suitable to your means would be the ideal solution if it were not for his parents' feeling. But of course they should be considered. Why not accept the money for the wedding (by the way, I think it should come from his parents, since the expensive wedding is their wish), but keep the Murphy's Vow.

"I'll find that sniper and get my own back," vowed Private Murphy, of the South Stafford's, in broad Irish, after the sniper had wounded him in the arm. And it was that vow which led Murphy to perform a particularly gallant deed. With a number of his comrades he was on outpost duty, and they were being continually picked off by the sniper. Two nights after Murphy was missing from his post, but the sniping had stopped. Later on search being made for him, he was found lying at the foot of a big tree, close behind the body of the sniper, who was pinned to the ground with Murphy's bayonet. Murphy told the officer that, when he located "the blighter" he was high up in the tree, and getting underneath he threatened to shoot when the German dropped his rifle and scrambled down. "Then I gave him a good pasting with my fists, and finished off by pinning him down."

Many Americans in British Army.

The great number of Americans who have enlisted in the Canadian and British armies is aptly illustrated by the visit of one of the royal princesses of England to a hospital in France which was filled with Canadian wounded.

On her arrival at the hospital she spoke of the noble response of the colonial sons of the Empire to the call of the mother country and expressed a wish to personally talk with some of the wounded.

Seeing one young soldier swathed in bandages, she went to his bed. "Where were you born, my good man?" she asked.

"Newark, N.J.," was the unexpected answer.

She went to another wounded man's bedside and again asked the question. "Wheeling, W. Va., ma'am," answered the supposed Canadian.

Still in search of one of the colonial sons of the Empire, she went to still another wounded man.

"I know you were born in Canada," she said. "Tell me where?"

"I'm from St. Louis, Mo., mum," answered the man.

The percentage of Americans in the British army and especially among the Canadian troops is very high. One of the colonels of a Canadian regiment now at the front told the writer that many of the Canadian regiments were composed of from one-third to one-fourth Americans.

Generous Praise to the Canadians

British officers admit that had it not been for the superb fighting of the Canadian regiments the Germans would have been in Calais two months ago. The Canadian regiments have held the Germans in check at this most important section of the line, despite the most strenuous effort to break through.

An American correspondent was going through a Canadian hospital and was attracted by the conversation of a wounded man. The correspondent recognized his New York origin by his talk. He had lost both legs, but was cheerful—and vocally kicking.

"You're an American, are you not?" asked the correspondent.

"No, sir; I'm a British subject," answered the legless hero.

"You're no more a British subject than I am," the correspondent said to him. "I know you're from around New York."

"You've got me with the goods," the supposed British soldier answered. "I was born in Olive Street, New York. But don't squawk. I told them I was a British subject and if they find out I'm an American I may not get my pension, and I'll certainly need it when I get out of here."

Is There any Proof That Enemy is Making Shells Faster than the Allies?

By HILLAIRE BELLOC IN "LAND AND WATER."

Have we any proof that the enemy can produce shells, new linings, for guns as those linings get worn out, new big pieces, etc., can fill and fit the same at any greater rate than can the Western Allies? It is, to say the least of it, doubtful; and until one has had very good proof to the contrary one would—knowing the character of the various nations involved—doubt it. The enemy has made a mighty effort in Galicia. In spite of that effort he has not succeeded in breaking the Russian line, and therefore he has lost enormously in men—certainly not less than half a million—without so far having obtained anything like a decision, and he has expended in six weeks ammunition which it took him, perhaps, twenty weeks to produce. Italy alone has been for five months producing munitions with a clear comprehension of what this type of warfare has become and what is needed for it. The French people have devoted their whole energy to that end. Have we any proof that the enemy have done more? That they had an advantage over Russia in this matter, seeing that Russia can only with difficulty obtain supplies from abroad, that her industrialization is not that of the West, that her communications and the rolling stock upon her railways is not that of the West, we all know. But would the higher command in the West regard the enemy's supply and accumulation of shell superior to its own? I doubt it.

Next we must ask the question, can the production, such as it is, be increased in the West? Whether it can be increased in France or in Italy may be doubted. Those nations are conscript for war, and are prepared with their utmost energies. That it can be increased in this country is obvious, for this country is highly industrialized, and is making a great many things, apart from those needed for the war. The economic support which this country can give to the great alliance demands active production in every field. But there is obviously a margin for the increased production of shell. What that margin is only the authorities know.

Again, can the enemy obtain supplies from outside his own territory for the production of shell? If he can it is the fault of the blockade. That he has gotten cotten through for his propellant explosives we know. Why it has been allowed we do not know. But has he also got his material for shell? Italy has allowed nothing to go in since December, and if the enemy is getting for his production what he cannot find within his own boundaries, then it comes through the North Sea, and the answer to that question is therefore political. It will not be discussed here, because it is highly controversial, and depends upon elements in the international problem of which no layman has cognizance.

But the situation is quite clear. If the blockade is fully enforced the enemy cannot get supplies from outside his own territory, whereas the Western Allies can, and do.

But the production of shell does not only consist in the supply of shell cases, of copper bands, and fuses. It also consists in the high explosive for the bursting charge of a large shell.

Is there a shortage among the Western Allies in these high explosives? In order to answer that question it can only be suggested that one form of high explosive, and one alone, can show some shortage, and that is T.N.T. It is not the most violent, but it is the safest form. It is that mainly used in the British, German and Austrian services. Its basis is the destructive distillation of coal. In this country it has not paid manufacturers and coal owners in time of peace to produce the raw material for this explosive in sufficient quantities. That there is any shortage in other forms of high explosives is doubtful in the extreme, and no shadow of proof that there is any such shortage has appeared. Without some evidence, we do well to disbelieve.

I repeat that a belated newspaper panic or the commoner wind of political rhetoric may, or may not, be necessary here as a spur to the production of high explosive shell. One would have hoped not. They are not necessary elsewhere. If such means are necessary, by all means let them be employed for those upon whom they are useful effect. But let sober judgment recognize that while you cannot have too much of these munitions—always supposing that the guns and their repair keep pace with the possible rate of discharge—the probability is against the enemy's having in the West a superiority in munitions.

It is probable—I have not the authority to say it is certain—that in this, as in every other matter, the more developed and the more active nations have the advantage over the enemy. Whether this judgment is

Smothering Of Asthma Stops Quick—Thousands Cured By "Catarrhozone"

Count Ten—Then Relief Comes From Chronic Asthma.

Nothing yet discovered can compare with Catarrhozone in bed, ugly cases of Asthma.

Catarrhozone is the one remedy that can be sent quickly and direct to all parts of the breathing apparatus. The effect from Catarrhozone is a quick one—you feel better in no time—keep up the good work, use Catarrhozone as directed and you get well.

If your case is curable, if anything on earth can rid you permanently of Asthma, it will be Catarrhozone. It contains that strangely soothing and powerful antiseptic found in the Blue Gum Tree of Australia, and this is fortified by the other germ-killing properties which, when so scientifically combined, makes Catarrhozone a veritable specific for Asthma, Catarrh and Bronchitis.

Even though many other remedies have failed—even though you are discouraged and blue—cheer up and try Catarrhozone to-day. What it repeatedly has done for others it will surely not fail to accomplish for you. Catarrhozone is not expensive. One dollar will buy a complete outfit from any Druggist. The money will be well spent because your immediate improvement in health will surpass your fondest expectations. Don't wait—to-day is the time to use Catarrhozone, a right or not only the development of the offensive in the West, when it takes place, can decide.

Meanwhile we may note that every very heavy and successful bombardment in the West, followed by an advance, has come from the Allies and has been against the enemy for weeks and months past, while the single example of a considerable enemy advance—that north of Ypres—has taken place, not through superiority of high explosive munitions but through the unexpected use of poisonous gases, which novel method is now comprehended and met.

St. Bon's and B. I. S. Play Fastest Game for the Season—Result: a Draw.

The Irish failed to score on a penalty kick in last evening's contest with the St. Bon's, thus depriving themselves of a point, the first one they lost for the season and probably the championship. The result at the close was one goal each. The game was easily the fastest and hardest fought that has been witnessed so far this season.

B. I. S.—Walsh, goal; Kavanagh, Thomas, backs; Jackman, Duggan, Kavanagh, halves; Simms, McGrath, Duffy, Jackman and Burke, forwards. St. Bon's.—Knight, goal; Power, Higgins, backs; Rawlins, McGrath, Fox, halves; Kelly, Furneaux, Smith, Callahan (2), forwards.

Play began with St. Bon's, who defended the eastern territory assuming the offensive. They made several dashes west but the B. I. S. back division made them retreat. The Irish forwards then controlled the ball and confined play in their opponents quarters. Burke controlled the ball and had a try for goal, and missed by a narrow margin. Resuming their rushes the B. I. S. succeeded in getting two corners, without result. The St. Bon's then took possession of the ball and displayed some excellent combination. Callahan of the right wing got away and sent ball to the mouth of the B. I. S. goal, Walsh captured it but in clearing gave the ball to Kelly who netted the first goal for St. Bon's. Play then became furious and the Irish were seen to better advantage in the hope of equalizing, but the half closed in favour of St. Bon's.

SECOND PERIOD.

The St. Bon's again started the aggressive and kept the Irish backs busy. A few of the players behaved contrary to the etiquette of the game and the referee had to call order and lecture those at fault. Continuing play the B. I. S. worked west. Burke and Duffy called on Knight to save which he did splendidly. Simms next shot and an opponent back stopped the ball with his hand. A penalty kick was awarded, but the ball was poorly placed, much to the delight of St. Bon's supporters. The Irish resumed their attacks. Burke broke away and passed to Jackman. The latter returned the ball to Burke who banged in the equalizing goal. The balance of the game was fast and about equally divided.

Mr. J. Condon acted as referee.

NOTES.

A fine game, though a little wild and rough at times.

All things considered the St. Bon's deserved to win, as they were the best balanced team.

The attendance was fairly good, in view of previous games, and the gate receipts amounted to $30.

Players of all teams complain about the wretched and dangerous condition of the field. The League should get busy.

The Collegians and Saints will play this evening, lining up thus:—

Collegians.—Goal, Wornell; backs, Heath, Pike; halves, Pike, Barnes, Pike; forwards, Ellis, Coultas, Kendrick, Searle, Gear.

Saints.—Goal, Ewing; backs, Spry, Foster; halves, Reid, Mann, Elton; forwards, Ferguson, Kerr, Bastow, Ewing, Smith.

If the Collegians win, they and the B. I. S. will be the closest runners up for championship.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Sometimes a girl of sixteen finds her dream embodied in a youth of her own circle. He is the untrained boy of whom the mother knows little or nothing. This time is often fraught with danger though neither boy or girl wish evil to the other. The boy to is only an inexperienced young creature, thirsting for life like herself. They often look forward to a life of love together, heedless of the fact that neither is fitted for life's responsibilities.

Sometimes when a mother discovers one of these youthful romances, her first sensation is that of anger. Yet if ever a girl needed gentleness and kindness and consideration, it is at this time. She should not be scolded like a naughty child taking forbidden fruit for the right treatment will make her a loyal friend of her mother at all times, turn her into the way which leads to good and noble womanhood, and save her from other and more serious mistakes. The wrong treatment may forever alienate her confidence and trust.

THE WIDOW'S SON.

So you're a stranger to the place,
And only came last night;
You should have come a week ago,
You would have seen a sight.
All the boys from round these parts
Marching off together,
For not a lad among them all
Is showing the white feather.

And my boy, he was with them, too,
For everyone to see;
He'd been a bit downcast before,
But that was all for me;
And now he held his head up high,
As high as anyone,
"God bless my lad," said I, "and God Bless every mother's son."

I felt it all above a bit,
This parting with my Jack,
But though it's losing half myself
I would not keep him back;
He'll do his share of fighting
With his schoolmates by his side,
Although he's all I have on earth
Since his poor father died.

Have you heard them say, miss,
How long the war will last?
You don't know how I count the days
Until this trouble's past;
But if my boy should not return,
And his short life be done,
Yet I'll thank God upon my knees
That I have borne a son.

Don't mind me, miss, you needn't go,
Nay, I'm not going to fret,
It's only when I think of things
Like this I get upset.
I hear they soon wear out their socks
Bless me, how time is flitting,
I've got Jack's heel to turn to-night,
Where have I put my knitting?

Mr. Weir Lectures at Grenfell Hall.

Before a large and representative gathering, Mr. John Weir, travelling secretary of the Halifax School for the Blind, lectured at the Grenfell Hall last night on "The Education of the Blind." Every available seat in the spacious auditorium was occupied, and amongst those present were His Excellency and Lady Davidson. His Excellency in opening the meeting expressed his sympathy for those who are deprived of sight, but while being sympathetic towards them he was convinced that God exacts labor from us all. From his association with the blind, he knew that though they were deprived of the great blessing of sight their other faculties were so developed that they were able to render to God the homage expected of them. His Excellency quoted incidents from his student career which proved that many who were afflicted with blindness were able to take their places in life beside their more fortunate brethren. He referred to the achievements of the great blind poet Milton, whose rooms he had had the honor of occupying while at Cambridge. His Excellency then introduced Mr. Weir, the speaker of the evening. Mr. Weir, in beautiful and eloquent language traced the work of the Halifax School for the Blind from its foundation by William Murdoch, who in 1867 bequeathed the sum of $20,000 for the care of those deprived of sight. A home was erected and opened a few years later. This home was primarily meant as a shelter for the blind, and it was not until the matter was taken in hand by Sir Charles Frederick Fraser that the institution became an educational one. Through his untiring efforts, legislation was enacted, so that the blind, irrespective of class, creed or color, could obtain an education that would enable them to take their place amongst their fellowmen. At the opening of the Halifax School for the Blind some forty-two years ago, there were 6 pupils, and to-day there are 140 and instead of one building five are required for the accommodation of the students of the institution. The school, said Mr. Weir, under Sir Chas. F. Fraser, has prospered, and the seed sown by him during his visit here some few years ago, has evidently borne fruit, a proof of which was the large gathering which he was privileged to address on the subject which has ever been most dear to the heart of his revered superintendent. Mr. Weir then went on to explain the curriculum of the school. The pupils are taught Braille reading and writing, elocution, grammar and geography, music and practically all the subjects that find a place in the modern college curriculum. He mentioned the fact that 80 graduates of the school are now occupying positions as church organists, and that many of them have several letters after their names. In the technical department a special feature was piano tuning, and incidentally Mr. Weir referred to one of their graduates from this department who is now working in the city, and for whom he solicited patronage. The graduates of the school, said Mr. Weir, do not seek pity, but at the same time they need your sympathy. If you employ them they will give returns for the money paid them.

A number of interesting slides were shown during the evening. These were illustrative of the methods employed in teaching the youthful blind their various occupations, which included mat weaving, curtain making, needlework of different kinds, cardboard box making, basket weaving, broom making and poultry raising. The lecturer described each slide as it was thrown on the screen, and the audience were much impressed by the marvellous results achieved from the systematic education of those deprived of the blessing of sight. After explaining fully the methods of teaching the youthful blind, of whom there are 16 from this colony at the Halifax School, he made an earnest plea on behalf of the adult blind of Newfoundland. In this country, said Mr. Weir, there are 140 blind persons between the ages of 21 and 45 years for whom something should be done. He then referred to the extension movement by which it was hoped would benefit the adult blind of the colony. He spoke of the sympathy offered by the ladies of the city, and the recent meeting held by them, at which they formed an auxiliary society for the Home Teaching of the Blind. This committee is affiliated with the Women's Patriotic Association, and on next week the ladies will make a house to house canvass of the city with the object of raising funds for the home teaching of the blind. A similar canvass will be made in the various outports and already circular letters have been sent out to this effect. A thank offering of the small sum of 20 cents will be asked of those who are enjoying the blessing of sight, and it is hoped that in this way a substantial sum will be realized. At the close of the address Sir W. H. Horwood moved a vote of thanks which was accorded the lecturer by acclamation. The Grenfell Association placed their hall at the disposal of the lecturer free of charge, for which Mr. Weir is very grateful, and desires on behalf of those whom he represents, to express deep appreciation of their kindness and sympathy.

THE EYEBROWS AND SPORT HATS

The eyebrows must have their share of attention in honor of the new summer coiffure and the severe style of millinery now worn. If the brows refuse to lie straight and smooth, no matter how carefully they have been brushed, just put the tiniest speck of muckage on any upstanding, rebellious hair, and you will have no more trouble.

To give dark eyebrows an attractive lustre, dip the fingers in red wine and apply, brushing afterwards with an eyebrow brush. You will find it convenient to keep a wee vial of red wine on your toilet table.

If, after your shampoo, your hair seems too dry, brush it, with a steady firm stroke, to bring out again a little of the oil. If this is not sufficient, rub a very tiny drop or two of olive oil into the scalp and brush the hair again.

Dress your hair in the most becoming way. Fashion decrees just now that it shall be worn close to the head, in many cases very severely, but in others, as a contrast to the severe headgear, it is permissible to temper the "sport" style with little ringlets and carelessly escaped locks which are softening and very bewitching.

While your hair is drying, you can use the time for careful attention to your nails. Now that summer is upon us the wearing of gloves is not always as necessary as it was in the cold days of the spring, so the nails must be kept particularly well at this time.

L.O.A. Celebration.

In accordance with their anniversary, the Orangemen of the city held a gathering in Victoria Hall last night. There was a large attendance, including brethren who are at present visiting the city. The chair was occupied by the W.M. of Royal Oak Lodge. The speakers were Rev. Henry Royle, Messrs. J. B. Giles, R. H. Richards, Carbonar, T. F. Butt, H. E. Jowan, the D.M. of Royal Oak Lodge, J. Penney, S. McBay. The addresses dealt with the war, education and prohibition and were both stirring and interesting. The gathering terminated with the rendition of the National Anthem.

Treacherous as a submarine is constipation

It strikes when and where you least expect it. In one person it brings on headache and nervous depression. In another chronic dyspepsia and indigestion. In another, blood disorders that show in pimples, boils and lowered vitality.

You simply cannot neglect constipation and escape some serious penalty in the form of ill-health. Stealthily—day by day, it gathers force to strike you in some vital function.

Don't neglect constipation—fortify yourself against all the disorders that follow in its wake by the daily use of

The Recent Exams.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Rev. L. Curtis sallies forth in yesterday's issue of your paper and shells his besiegers with a caustic comment. "Crass ignorance" and "unmitigated prejudice" of those innocents abroad is the learned doctor's appraisal of those who raise a protest against the C. H. E. and the vagaries of the Examiner. Though the Rev. Doctor gets waxy and uses the strong language quoted, still he admits as to the Primary case, all that the writers in the press are battling against. And what he admits to be true in the Primary case may be to a greater extent true in the other grades if he were to examine and pass upon them.

I will close my remarks with one or two further comments on the recent Exams. Of course, these are the opinions of a Candidate and may differ materially from those of learned doctors and the college professors. The intermediate school management would be admirably suited to a student of pedagogics or an Associate of the College of Preceptors, but bewildering and rattling to intermediates.

Questions requiring practical analytical, critical and descriptive skill are beyond the powers of the average intermediate candidate.

In Associate English the Examiners did not intend the candidates to get into mischief for lack of occupation. A good candidate who got flustered by the formidable amount of work presented to him and in which the classical literature unduly predominated to the usual syntax and synonym questions, would come out of the ordeal badly.

In 1914 Exam. there were 3205 candidates entered for the Exams. 2941 sat, (261 had successfully retreated before the battle begun.) Fourteen hundred and forty-nine, or 50 per cent. failed, or fell victims to the Examiners bullets. To a General in battle this result would be considered a Pyrrhic victory. I have knowledge of an Inspector visiting a school and examining a class in arithmetic, 50 per cent. were correct. His record in the log book: "50 per cent correct is not creditable nor to be expected in a school like this." If 50 per cent. is not a creditable showing, and it isn't according to the above educational authority, something must be wrong. Either the Exam is too high for the candidates or the candidates too low for the Exam. Hence it follows that the Examiners should modify their Exam papers to suit the average candidate so as to increase somewhat the Pass List.

Yours sincerely and thankfully, INTERESTED CANDIDATE.

Conception Bay, July 9th, 1915.

Painful Accident.

Mrs. Young, of Heart's Content, who was a passenger on last night's local train, had her hand badly crushed by the falling of one of the windows of the car, while the engine was shunting near Bay Roberts. Mrs. Young was sitting by the window which had been raised, owing to the excessive heat, with her right hand resting on the sill. The jerking of the train while shunting set the window loose, and it came down with full force crushing three of the lady's fingers. The injured hand was dressed by Dr. McDonald, of Brigus, but Mrs. Young suffered a great deal of pain all the way to town.

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.

FOR THE NURSERY.

"The bath ready for baby, when baby is ready for the bath" should be an adage of every housewife—who should also keep in mind that any trouble saved to the nurse makes for a well-ordered household. Gas Water-Heaters, whether of the instantaneous or Circular type, offer the convenience of available hot water "upstairs and downstairs, and in my lady's chamber"—without any labour at all—Independently of the state of the kitchen fire.

THE COST IS REASONABLE.

FOR THE BATHROOM.

An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance.

Hot water can only be secured, usually, by getting the cook to act as stoker, but at what a cost! Think of the coal that is wasted—the fatigue of coal carrying—the after labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather.

A Gas Water-Heater is economical, because it only heats the water actually required; and labour-saving, because there are no coals to carry, no dues to clean, no ashes or dirt to remove.

The master of the house has hot shaving water and a hot bath whenever he wishes without delay or trouble.

HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

When "spring cleaning days" engross the busy housewife then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force.

But at all times—apart from convenient gas water-heater makes an irresistible appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem.

Letter-day domestics are difficult to keep unless due consideration is shown by saving them unnecessary drudgery—and in the category of unnecessary drudgery may be included the toil of carrying hot water or coal upstairs, the cleaning of grates and the removal of dirt and ashes.

The gas water-heater renders such labour superfluous.—may12,tf

Death of Cpl. Hughes.

In a recent casualty list issued at Ottawa appears the following:—113th Battalion—previously reported wounded and missing, now died of wounds, April 24th, Armourer Corp. Thomas Hughes, Newfoundland. This patriotic Newfoundland who has given his life for his King and country was born at the Goulds, and is a son of Mr. Henry Hughes of Bell Island. He was a mechanical engineer, and a member of the Royal Highlanders before the war. When war broke out he enlisted with the First Contingent of the Canadian Expeditionary Force at Montreal, and was thus one of the first to leave Canada for Salisbury Plains. He has now been added to the Roll of Honor of Newfoundlanders who have died at the front, where many others will find a place before the German Military Menace, which threatens the liberties of manhood, is brought to nought.

Amusements.

CRESCENT PICTURE PALACE PROGRAMME.

The picture programme that the Crescent Picture Palace is showing to-day is a capital one and was thoroughly enjoyed by the Crescent patrons who saw it yesterday. The great Selig feature: "The Dream Girl" is a splendid sea picture, perfect photography and a very interesting story, the other pictures are of the same standard, as the Crescent only shows first class productions of first class picture play producers. If you did not see this show yesterday go to-day as this is the last chance to see the "Dream Girl."

BRITISH THEATRE.

The excellent entertainment given at the above Theatre yesterday equalled any of its predecessors. The two reel feature is most assuredly a work of the highest kind of art and it was needless to say much appreciated by patrons. Another innovation was the introduction of "effects" for the first time, these being in the capable hands of our young townsman, John Cronan. Miss Elsie Tapper at the piano and Arthur Priestman Cameron in a comedy song completed a splendid programme with the addition of three splendid photo-plays.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

There was a good attendance at each performance last night at the popular little theatre, and all were delighted with the fine programme. The pictures are all well chosen and interesting, and the two little singers looking most dainty in their quaint Irish costumes sang a delightful Irish song in good form, and were loudly applauded. Patrons are always sure of a good evening's entertainment at the cosy little house in the West End.

Portia Off.

The S.S. Portia sailed to-day for Western ports, taking a full freight and as passengers in saloon:—Messrs W. Churchill, B. Mercer, H. Luscombe, B. Monroe, J. Bowering, F. Fogarty, T. McCormack, H. Simson, Chief Justice Horwood; Mrs. Wiseman; Misses Power, Churchill, Hewett, Walsh, Savage, Cross, O'Rourke, Banfield, and 18 in steerage.

Reids' Boats.

The Argyle sailed from Placentia for the Westward at 2.30 a.m. to-day. The Clyde left Horwood at 2.45 p.m. yesterday, inward. The Dundee is due at Wesleyville to-day. The Ethie is due at Carbonar to-day. The Glencoe left Burgeo at 10.30 a.m. to-day, coming East. The Home left Fortune at 2.50 p.m. yesterday, going North. The Erik is north of Battle Harbor. The Kyle left Port aux Basques at 10.40 p.m. yesterday. The Meigle left Flower's Cove at 4.30 p.m. Sunday, going north. The Sagona is North of Battle Harbor.

Cape Report.

Special to Evening Telegram.

CAP ERAOE, To-Day. Wind West, fresh, dense fog preceded by rain storm last night; no ships heard passing to-day. Bar. 29.13; ther. 50.

Fads and Fashions

Some of the new buttons are pierced. Silk sweaters are striped or checked.

Tussor coats are soutache embroidered. Belts are tremendously decorative and effective.

Hoops are actually sold in the leading shops. Boots with white kid uppers are laced at the side.

The suit of striped flannel is seen, but it is occasional. Black-and-white parasols are decidedly fashionable.

Many dresses have broad insertions of simple net. Taffeta borders are charmingly used on embroidered batiste.

Fancy foulards are delightful for full-skirted afternoon frocks. The newest silk purse bags abroad have no tassel at the bottom.

A linen skirt worn with a jacket of blue serge, is in good style. Some bodices are finished at the bottom, with a series of little ruffles.

The thin summer suit with coat having belted effect, is in the lead. Striped voile makes a very satisfactory tub dress for morning wear.

Splashed organdie collar and cuffs make the plain bodice very becoming. Accordion pleating is used everywhere—not only in skirts but blouses.

Coats of silk or wool jersey and of cretonne are meeting with fair success. Ruffles on thin dresses are not only set on in scallops but have picot edges.

One still sees dresses with flounces wider at the top of the skirt than the bottom. It is said that a few Paris corset-makers have begun to make short curved corsets.

REACHED BARBADOS.—The barkentine Lake Simcoe has reached Barbados and is loading molasses there for this port.

Our Volunteers.

These young men enlisted yesterday as follows:

Paul Moore, Wesleyville. Obed French, Laurenceton, N.D.B. Jno. Oliphant, St. John's.

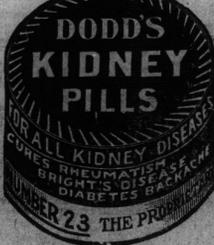

About a hundred men are now drilling, most of whom have their uniforms. Yesterday morning the volunteers were put through Swedish drill, bayonet exercise and manual exercise. No. 3 and 4 sections were at rapid fire practice at the South-side range.

Young Man,
