CHAPTER III.

Lady Norah.

Norah thanked her and entered, and the woman followed her.

"I am your ladyship's servant," she explained, and she stood respectfully attentive.

Norah coloured slightly.

"You are my lady's maid?" she said; then she smiled. "I have never had one before, and scarcely know what you can do for me that I cannot do myself."

"Your ladyship will let me help you undress and brush your hair," she replied.

Norah shrugged her shoulders and smiled again.

"Thank you," she said. "It will seem strange at first."

"Yes, my lady," she assented, respectfully, as she removed Norah's dress and began to unfasten her hair.

Norah sat before the glass, lost in thought for a few minutes, then suddenly raising her eyes, she found her new maid's fixed upon her with strange intensity.

"Why do you look at me so intently?" she asked, in her frank way.

The maid colored.

"I beg your ladyship's pardon," she said, in a low voice. "I was thinking—but I may offend your ladyship."

"No," said Norah. "Please go on."

"I was thinking—" She stopped again. "I was thinking of the countess, your mother, Lady Norah."

"You—knew her?" said Norah, almost inaudibly.

"Yes, my lady. I was here in service when her ladyship was here, and sometimes I was her maid."

Norah sighed.

"And what were you thinking—that I reminded you of her?"

The woman looked confused.

"No, my lady," she said at last. "You are not like her ladyship in any way," and she glanced at the lovely face reflected in the mirror.

Norah sighed again.

"What is your name?" she asked.

"Harman, my lady."

Norah said no more, and Harman brushed the wealth of golden-brown hair in careful silence. Then she helped Norah into her dressing gown.

"I sleep in the next room but two to your suite, my lady," she said, "and this bell communicates with it."

Norah dismissed her and leaned back in the chair. Tired as she was—or perhaps because she was tired—she felt that she could not sleep, and she sat with half-closed eyes and recalled all the incidents of the evening. It all still seemed like a dream to her, and as if the vast house and all belonging to it would fade away and leave her in her own little room at Cliff Cottage.

Presently she got up and went round the room and into an adjoining one, which was furnished as a boudoir in pale blue satin with amber hangings. She had read of such rooms, but had never imagined that she should ever live in them, and for a time she was lost in a kind of wonder at the beauty and luxury of her surroundings. Then suddenly a sound broke the silence. It was the first timid "jug, jug" of a nightingale.

Norah stood and listened, and the note grew more confident and thrilling. It seemed to fill the whole air with delicious music. She went to the window and drew aside the curtains of Indian muslin, and instantly the light of a full moon flooded the room.

Norah looked out upon a view which would have stirred a painter to enthusiasm, and a long sigh of admiration and delight broke from her lips. Moved by an irresistible impulse, she unfastened the window. It was a French one extending to the ground, and she found that it opened on to a balcony, or terrace. Stepping out, she leaned over and looked down.

Immediately below her was the terrace which ran along the whole length of the front and one side of the house. The balcony, as she had thought it, was also a higher terrace, connected with the lower one by a flight of stone steps, so that she could have walked from the upper to the lower terrace. She did walk to the head of the steps and looked down. All was silent, and there were no lights in the windows; and, enraptured by the beauty of the scene, she stood lost in thought which is less than thought, looking before her absent, and listening to the nightingale.

Yes, it was surely all a dream, and this the most beautiful part was the beginning of the transformation scene and the awakening! Indeed, a transformation of a sort was beginning, for a bank of clouds which had been steadily moving up toward the moon, reached the edge of it and slowly veiled over and shrouded it.

Instantly, where light had reigned

Splendid for Bad Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis

An Inexpensive Home-Made Remedy—Gives Surest, Quickest Relief.

Anyone who tries this pleasant tasting, home-made cough syrup, will quickly understand why it is used in more homes in the United States and Canada than any other cough remedy. The way it takes hold of an obstinate cough, giving immediate relief, will make you regret that you never tried it before. It is a truly dependable cough remedy that should be kept handy in every home, to use at the first sign of a cough during the night or day time.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 10-cent bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 54 cents and you have 16 ounces of the most effective remedy you ever used.

The quick, lasting relief you get from this excellent cough syrup will really surprise you. It promptly heats the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, combined with gualtheria and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

triumphant a moment before, all was dark with a darkness made more intense by the preceding intense light.

Norah stood with her arms resting upon the stone balustrade, her eyes fixed upon the spot where the moon was hidden, and there floated across her mind Juliet's well-known lines.

All unconsciously she murmured then:

Oh, swear not by the moon, the inconstant, Oh, swear not by the moon, the inconstant, That monthly changes in her circled orb, Lest that thy love prove likewise variable.

Instantly there came back upon the night air Romeo's response, uttered in a grave and musical voice close beside her:

What shall I swear by?

For a moment Norah thought that it was a trick of memory and imagination, then with a start, she shrank back and stared in the darkness in the direction from which the voice had proceeded.

She could see, hear nothing, and yet she was sure now that she had heard the familiar line in response to hers, and that the person who had spoken it was close beside her.

Norah did not lack courage, and even in the first moment of surprise she was not alarmed. Who could it be that had taken up the verse? It was not the earl's voice, but a younger and more musical one. Could there be some one staying in the house whom she had not seen, some one who had been tempted out, as she had been, by the beauty of the night?

Her heart beat fast, and she was about to do the wisest thing she could under the circumstances—steal back to her room—when the voice spoke again.

"Are you going right through the play, Jack?" it said, in a tone of indolent amusement. "You imitate Juliet's voice very nicely; but don't talk too loudly, or we shall be overheard, and some faithful retainer of the noble house will discharge the too common revolver at us. Eh?" he seemed to wait for a response, then went on: "Yes, that's right, hold your tongue; it's the safest course if you can't refrain from spouting Shakespeare. What a lovely night!"

Then there was silence, as if the speaker were rapt in contemplation.

Norah, filled with wonder as to who the speaker and the man he thought he was addressing could be, moved on tiptoe toward the room, but she had not taken two steps when she heard something move at the head of the steps and within a few feet of her.

Conscious that however quietly she walked, the unknown must hear her and become aware of her presence, she stopped still and shrank back against the wall.

"Well, we'd better go, Jack, and wind up this 'mad escapade,' as you very rightly called it," said the same voice. "It was very good of you to humor my insane whim, and now I have seen the old place, we'll go. I wish," he sighed, "I wish I had seen her, though! For you were right, and it was on the chance of getting a glimpse of that perfect face that I ventured on this exploit. Come along. Where on earth are you?"

The silence that ensued upon his question seemed to puzzle him, for in a lower and more cautious voice he said: "Jack, don't be too reckless; we don't want to be caught prowling here. I saw a light in one of the windows just now. Come along."

He paused, standing quite close to Norah, so close that she could hear him breathing and hear the next words spoken in a fervent whisper.

"Good-night, angel with the golden hair, wherever you are and wherever you hide in this old house. Good-night."

Norah held her breath.

"Angel with the golden hair." Whom could he mean? Then the hot blood rushed to her face. Could he mean herself? Surely, surely not! And yet at the mere suspicion a strange thrill ran through her, and her breath came in tremulous little pants, filling her with terror lest he should hear her.

"Yes, good-night and good-by," he murmured. "We may never meet, beautiful unknown, and yet through all my life I shall remember your sweet face! Good-night!"

Then she heard his step moving away from her, another "Jack!" sounded softly on the midnight air, and then all was silent again.

She waited no longer, but, freeing herself from the spell that had fallen upon her, fled to her room and stood behind the window, panting and trembling, the musical voice ringing in her ears and drowning even that of the nightingale.

Your Boys and Girls.

A table for the baby just learning to walk will be found useful. Just as soon as a child finds its feet and legs will support it, those feet and legs are put to use constantly. There is nothing a baby loves more than to make the circumference of a table, supporting the wobbly little legs by the aid of its hands, provided the table is low enough.

Children are often backward in learning to walk through lack of confidence, though they will stand if you give them something to support themselves with, such as a chair. The low table will be found to be of great advantage, as it does not move so readily from under the child, and as the child does not have to stoop to reach it.

A toy placed on a table just the right height will so interest the child that it will unconsciously support itself and take the first steps, and it is better than a patented walking machine. Care should be used not to let the baby stand too long.

Hun War

By the M...

"Why doesn't Holland war on our side?"

I suppose I have been questioned by English friends. I have never answered the question since after a sojourn in Holland.

Holland has the best world for not "coming" not until events force reasons spring from the maxim that self-preservation is the first law of Nature—discussed the matter with military authorities in the helmin's kingdom.

Since words in talking by. I gathered that glad if someone like me might be able to put the trouble to secure it—had made them for the benefit of the I am going to try to article.

I have already explained overwhelming bulk of sentiment is anti-Germans. Dutch, say to themselves 'we did go in on the side' and could therefore march from Belgium on the side of the Allies would, of course our assistance.

How Long 000 troops. How long to place them on Dutch many transports would on emergency notice? submarines? And what the Dutch against the veteran in many, while waiting for across the North Sea? ## Hun Ways in Holland.

By the Man Who Dined With the Kaiser.

"Why doesn't Holland come into the war on our side?" I suppose I have been asked that question by English friends a hundred times. I have never been able to answer the question so fully as now, after a sojourn in Holland.

Holland has the best reasons in the world for not coming in, at least not until events force her "in." Her reasons spring from the well-known maxim that self-preservation is the first law of Nature—and of nations. I discussed the matter with the highest military authorities in Queen Wilhelmina's kingdom. They do not mince words in talking about it frankly. I gathered that they would be glad if someone like myself, who took the trouble to secure their views at first hand, made them perfectly plain for the benefit of the English public. I am going to try to do so in this article.

I have already explained that the overwhelming bulk of Dutch popular sentiment is anti-German. But the Dutch say to themselves: "Supposing we did go in on the Allies' side. We might be able to put 300,000, perhaps even 500,000, soldiers in the field. How long would it be before the Germans with an army or armies equally large—in all probability larger—than the whole Dutch army would be sweeping into our territory? Remember that they could march against Holland not only from the existing German frontier on the east, but that, being now in possession of Belgium, they completely surround our province of Limburg, and could therefore march into Holland from Belgium on the west and south. The Allies would, of course, come to our assistance.

How Long?

"But suppose England sent us 250,000 troops. How long would it take to place them on Dutch soil? How many transports would be available on emergency notice? What about submarines? And what about the plight of the Dutch Army, fighting against the veteran hordes of Germany, while waiting for a relief from across the North Sea? Look at the Germans' cannonball plunge through Belgium and Serbia, and even their recent invasion of Roumania—which was far readier for intervention than we are."

"This is not only the way the Dutchman in the street talks. Military men talk in the same strain. Both the civilian and the professional soldier in Holland have a wholesome respect for German military prowess as thus far revealed in the war. They have before them the object-lesson of their next-door neighbor, Belgium. They shudder, frankly, at what might happen to them. The Nemesis of German military invincibility in Holland is not what it was two years ago. But it is something which has still got to be reckoned with.

Recent articles from Switzerland and Spain have drawn attention to the colossal "propaganda" of the Germans in those neutral countries, and the comparative absence of any "propaganda" there on England's behalf. Precisely the same deplorable state of affairs would be found in the Netherlands. The Allies in general, and Britain in particular, have let the Kuhlmann Press Bureau have things all its own way with the Dutch.

Kuhlmann's Propaganda.

The Germans have established during the war two weekly periodicals. De Toekomst (The Future) and De Lente (The Spring). De Lente, which was illustrated, died a natural death a few months ago. De Toekomst still flourishes. These papers made their appearance in the Dutch language. In addition to them the country has been systematically flooded with German newspapers. The Dutch are the greatest linguists in the world. Nine out of every ten can read German. They, of course, read English and French too. Then there are the 70,000 or 80,000 Germans in Holland, every man, woman, and child of them either a propagandist or a spy, or both.

What has England done to meet the Kuhlmann propaganda? I make bold to say, practically nothing at all. She has just taken it for granted that the British cause would make its own way in Holland, unassisted. I am afraid it has not done so. Not one Dutchman in twenty has a glimmer of an idea of the real magnitude of Britain's effort in the war and its contribution towards its winning. There are Dutch correspondents in London who have from time to time sent reports of what the British Army and Navy have done, but the Dutchman in the street has a far more comprehensive and graphic notion of the military and naval might of Germany and of her achievements, real and imaginary. The Kuhlmann Press Bureau has seen to that.

Only the other day I read in "Germany Day by Day" in the Daily Mail of the tremendous system organized by the German Legation at the Hague to frustrate the plans of the Netherlands Over-seas-Trust. I saw much of the activities of that German "Counter system." Its feelers are everywhere. "I wonder if Englishmen realize how systematically the Germans are already at work to monopolize the Dutch market for German goods after the war. And not alone after the war, but during the war. The other day I saw some extraordinary attractive brand-new taxicabs in Amsterdam! They had recently arrived from Germany! The owners told me it was the third delivery the German manufacturers had made during the past year! And they were delivered in Holland for about £80 less per vehicle than the pre-war price of English motor manufacturers. They came complete except for tyres.

Refreshment Raids.

It is amusing to watch the arrival of a trainload of Germans in Holland. First there is a descent on the nearest eating-place, usually the refreshment rooms of the station. I saw such a raid. Men, women, and children were in the attacking party. They made a clean sweep of everything in sight. They did not stop to ask the price. They put down their money and asked for no change until their teeth were well into their booty. Nobody minded the fact that the German mark was at a heavy discount. When they offered three marks (3s.) they found it had the purchasing power of only 2s.

I do not mean that this food raid indicates "starvation" in Germany. Everybody in Holland knows Germany is not "starving." These people, fresh from meatless and fatless days, bread rations, butter tickets, and milk cards, were face to face with an opportunity to eat practically as much as they had money to pay for. And they "went to it," as the Americans say.

In closing, I would like to say that Englishmen henceforth will have only themselves to blame if they fail to take the utmost advantage from the great volume of pro-Ally sympathy waiting to be exploited in the Allies' favour in Holland. But the laissez-faire system will not accomplish results. England must display her wares to the Dutch, must tell what she has done, is doing, and intends still to do. In Turkey, Bulgaria, and Greece—to mention only three countries—we have seen the effects of Germany's intensive propaganda methods. I hope history will not repeat itself in Holland.—Daily Mail.

Girls! Girls! Try It! Stop Dandruff and Beautify Your Hair

Hair stops falling out and gets thick, wavy, strong and beautiful.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This cleanses the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Will you kindly tell me the correct way to eat celery, potato chips, and beaten biscuit?" asked Mrs. Newlywed.

"All of these things are finger foods. The beaten biscuit, of course, is broken as needed in pieces the size of a mouthful, spread with butter and transferred to the mouth with the fingers," replied her kind neighbor.

During the day the volunteers were engaged at company drill and had rifle practice at night in the Highlanders' Armoury.

Citizen's Committee

Discuss Important Sections of New Municipal Bill.

Chairman Mr. A. Soper presided at last night's meeting of the Citizens' Committee, and besides the usual part a few of the formerly absent ones put in an appearance. The motion made by Mr. Mews at the last meeting for a reconsideration of the method of discussing the Charter was withdrawn.

Sections 185 to 193 were gone through and passed with several amendments. It was decided that as the Committee had only then discussed less than half of the Bill, two meetings be held each week, on Mondays and Thursdays.

Section 192 relative to slaughterhouses within the city limits was passed with the following addition:—"City to build and maintain an up-to-date abattoir, and to be empowered to make regulations relative to inspection of all fresh and other foods offered for sale within the said limits." Section 193 relative to medical examination of school children, was carried unanimously and the Committee by special resolution most heartily commended and endorsed this provision. The section in question is a most desirable one, and the wonder is that we never adopted it years ago.

Section 194, a most important section dealing with the lighting and supplying of electric power to the city, was considered and it was decided that the matter lie over till the next night of meeting, Thursday, Oct. 28th.

Rational Remarks.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Mr. Editor.—Would you allow me space in your valuable paper to say a few words concerning J. Anderson's letter of the 21st concerning the darkness. Well, he tells in his letter that he had experience of darkness while in England and Scotland, but in some places they had poles erected with lights placed on them. Well, I have read some letters written by Mr. J. Anderson while in the Old Country. One I remember reading was concerning the death of our boys where they got ham and eggs for breakfast. Since then I received a letter from my husband and he died having such a letter. In his letter that all he received was bread and tea, and if he got ham and eggs he should be deny it? So if Mr. Anderson will reply and tell which Company was it got ham and eggs for their breakfast I will be only too pleased to return the letter, but wasn't a Co. of the 3rd Battalion. So if one Company got it why not all be treated alike? Haven't they all to do the same work? I think they have, anyway we haven't heard so far of soldiers having to do different. Any way, let the rule that has just been enforced to get some law of their own enforced. So let Mr. Anderson pony up and tell which Company received ham and eggs and we will put more confidence in his letter concerning the green lights. So, Mr. Editor, I will close hoping I haven't taken too much space in your paper. Again, Mr. Editor, thanking you for publication.

The New Postmaster General.

Following the vacation of the important position of Postmaster General, occupied for so long by the late Hon. H. J. B. Woods, popular opinion has indicated his most likely and most suitable successor. We learn that the choice has fallen upon the Hon. J. A. Robinson, thus confirming that opinion and ensuring popular approval. We hasten to express our own, though our pleasure is tinged with regret that the ranks of journalism in this country have lost their most experienced and ablest leader. It is no exaggeration to say that the popularity and esteem enjoyed by our morning contemporary, its elevated and healthy tone and its high literary quality are due almost entirely to its editor, who now lays down his pen after wielding it for many years in a manner that has at once delighted and instructed his wide public. We do not depreciate him who takes it up in saying that general regret will be felt over a real loss, and something hard to replace will be missed from the columns of the 'Daily News'.

From informing public opinion, Mr. Robinson goes to a sphere of labour no less valuable to the public interest. Few departments are of greater importance than the Post Office and few, in our opinion, are in greater need of the abilities possessed by the new Postmaster General. There is much that is faulty in its system and its operation and much that is lacking, though much also that is admirable. We confidently look to see the faults remedied and the deficiencies supplied. We look to see the Post Office made more independent and more efficient branch of the public service, its activities increased and extended, its benefits enlarged and more sensibly felt. It is because we feel that these expectations will not be disappointed but surpassed that in offering our congratulations to Mr. Robinson we are able to extend them to the country as well.

HIGH COST OF PAPER.
A general meeting of the newspaper publishers of the Maritime Provinces will be held at Truro next Thursday, of which representatives from the Canadian Press Association will be present. Trade conditions have very seriously affected the publishing business during the past year and the indications are that so far as the price of paper is concerned the worst is yet to come unless a united protest be made against what well-informed men claim would be unjustifiable increases, now foreshadowed.

The West Front.
The summary of the three and a half months fighting on the Somme makes interesting reading. It deals most specifically with the work of the British troops. It is no small boast that they have not lost a single gun in all that time and the fact supplies some measure of their success. Perhaps the chief importance attaches to the estimate of the relative losses of both sides in men, and there is in this cause for the greatest satisfaction. ### Collect the Taxes.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Your correspondent "One who pays his taxes" in Saturday's issue of your paper, commenting on the articles of Mr. J. C. Morris on civic affairs, very forcibly points out the mistake made by that gentleman in advocating that the sum of $80,000 due the Council be wiped off the books because, as he contends, it is uncollectable. What proof, I would like to ask, has Councillor Morris that much of this large sum of money cannot be collected? Has there been a business like effort to collect it? If that amount was due Councillor Morris would he be as ready to suggest wiping it out? Is not the property owned by these individuals who owe the money liable to seizure if necessary in order that the taxes due the city be paid? I am surprised that a man like Councillor Morris in his official capacity as a Councillor should offer such a suggestion, for by doing so he offers an inducement to others to become backward in paying their taxes. He, in my opinion, has written without giving sufficient thought to the seriousness of his suggestion. Some people become popular by being easy when it costs them nothing, but the Kyle does not stand any length of time, and the man who acts fearlessly in public life commands the respect of honest people in the end. I am one who also pays his taxes and like many others find it a little hard to do so at times, but why should others go free and I pay? I have no hesitation in saying that a great deal of the larger sum of money owed the city can be collected, and would in time to Councillor Morris that the honest taxpayers expect him and the other gentlemen of the Council to get after the delinquents and make them pay up. Mr. Morris in a later article says we must have money if the city is to have the necessary improvements. Let me ask him, is it by wiping off debts we are going to raise the money or rather is it not by insisting on the payment of arrears? Mr. Morris must have been aware of the financial condition of the city funds when he offered himself for election; he must have known that difficulties had to be surmounted, and

Don't Neglect Your Cough.

A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? Just as the little insignificant acorn grows if let alone, the mighty giant oak, that cough if not stopped may grow to a very serious illness. When a Cough starts there's no telling where it will end. You know no doubt, of cases right among people you have known, where serious complications and fatal illness have had their start from a neglected cough or cold. "Don't neglect your cough." Stafford's Phorotone Cough and Cold Cure is what you should take. For sale at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, and Stafford's Pharmacy, Duckworth Street. Price 25c, postage 5c extra.
No trouble to take this cough remedy.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, To-day.
A bulletin issued last night by the war office reads: Isolated operations today enabled us to progress appreciably northeast of Morval. The prisoners captured yesterday north-east of Salley Salles were elderly. South of the Somme there were several duels, especially brisk in the region of Chaunes Wood. Everywhere else the day was quiet. Aviators of German aeroplanes dropped bombs this morning on Fency; there were casualties and only slight damage.

FURTHER BRITISH GAINS.

LONDON, Official, To-day.
In the course of operations by right wing of our front south of Ancre, we advanced our lines east of Grandcourt and Les Boeuils and captured over a thousand yards of our trenches. During the day the front in the neighborhood of Les Boeuils was heavily shelled. South of Grandcourt this afternoon the enemy prepared for attack, but was stopped by our artillery. Sixty-six further prisoners are reported in the recent fighting. Schwaben redoubt and Lesars in addition to the total given yesterday. Last night two German raids were attempted against our trenches at Grandcourt; one was stopped by our own artillery, and the other suffered heavy loss. The second penetrated our outlying lines but was promptly driven back by our counter-attack. Yesterday aeroplanes bombarded two rail stations behind the enemy's lines, killing a train in motion, and did damage to buildings and rolling stock. Seven enemy machines were brought down and many others were forced land in a damaged condition. Eight ours have not returned.

MORE NEUTRALIS SUNK.

LONDON, To-day.
The Greek steamer Aris and the Norwegian steamer Drasn, are sunk. Aris was 1,794 gross tons and Drasn 774 gross tons.

A DEPLOREABLE INCIDENT IN THE NORTH.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.
The Dutch newspapers are indignant over the report by the Holland that on Sunday a Zeppelin dropped a bomb near Goerum (Gochem) 22 miles southeast of Rotterdam. The New York Times says the German airship commanders do not display a supreme contempt of the protests of the Dutch Government. This deplored incident, which was by accident lacked serious results, would not have occurred.

TAKE A THOUSAND YARDS.

LONDON, To-day.
More than a thousand yards of our man trenches, in the region of Grandcourt and Les Boeuils were taken by the British north of the Somme. In France yesterday afternoon, according to an official issued last night, the region of Grandcourt and Les Boeuils stopped a German plane attack.

HOW MANY ARE LEFT?

GENEVA, To-day.
Prince Von Bielow, former German Imperial Chancellor, recently informed a neutral newspaper man that the beginning of the war. Germany had constructed 225 submarines, a despatch from Constantine. The naval authorities, the Prince is reported to have added, are paying more attention to submarines than to battleships. Austria-Hungary is doing the same.

STILL MORE PIRACY.

LONDON, To-day.
Lloyd's announces the Norwegian steamer Ut, 1,136 tons, and the British steamer Helga, 1,182 tons, sunk; the crew saved. The Norwegian steamer Rantzau, 689 tons, was sunk, says the Reuters. Kristiania correspondent; the crew saved.

TENTONS TAKE CONSTANTINOPLE.

PARIS, To-day.
The capture of Constantinople by the Teutonic Allies, although not expected, nevertheless puts a damp to the enthusiasm aroused by the progress of the Entente on the front in Picardy. The Entente commentators do not unduly exaggerate the importance of the achievement of Von Mackensen, whose action in the present time is considered so far as to hold it better, if it were men. They point out that the capture of Constantinople would be the contrary be lengthened in as he succeeded. The observation also that if he manages to tie the Russo-Romanian forces in Dobruja by holding a narrow front south of the railroad, he will be slow to employ his troops, which seemed to act in a direct relation.

THE STRIKE.

A special meeting of the Union stokers is slated for tonight when all matters incidental to the strike will be brought up for discussion. It is anticipated that the blockade will be raised.
GRACIANA FROM LIVERPOOL.—The Furness Liner Graciana entered port this morning. The passage from Liverpool occupied eleven and a half days, progress being delayed by strong head westerly and northwesterly winds. The ship brought an unusually large mail and 700 tons of general cargo, principally dry goods for the autumn and winter seasons.

Says He Was Gassed Twice.

Much Sympathy Being Shown at Moncton for Capt. Merrill.
 Captain John E. Merrill, before being committed for trial at Moncton Wednesday for the murder of John F. Rogers, of the U. S. R. staff at Moncton, made the following statement: "Shortly after the beginning of the war I was sent across, and have been in the trenches up to three months ago. I was wounded three times and gassed twice. Since I was gassed I have had lapses of memory. I had one yesterday. I do not remember anything after I went into the dining car yesterday until the Chief had me downstairs last night. That is all I have to say."

Yesterday's Times says: There seems to be much sympathy for Capt. Merrill. During the last twenty-four hours a large number of citizens have offered the prisoner many little kindnesses, and have requested to be called upon if there is anything further which they can do to assist him in any way. Interest in this unfortunate young man seems to be especially strong among the ladies, and not only have many little comforts been sent in, but a number have called at the police station and talked with the prisoner for the regulation five minutes. All conversation takes place in the hearing of an attendant, who is present to prevent any attempt at escape, still the visits and the interest shown in his welfare seemed to please the officer and cheer him up. Only last evening he had as sympathetic callers two pretty young women belonging to eminently respectable families.

The tragedy referred to above was the shooting of John Rogers of the U. S. R. by Captain Merrill on Oct. 11th. The Captain appeared to be under the influence of liquor at the time, though it may transpire that he acted which was without any notice and of which he had no subsequent recollection, was due to one of the lapses of memory mentioned. The sad affair has caused much feeling in Moncton and there is much sympathy for the victim and the perpetrator alike.

In Milady's Boudoir.

FOR THE OCTOBER BRIDE.
 The excited little bride-to-be often presents the appearance of a tired and pale and irritable woman on the day of her wedding. It is a common occurrence for the bride to hurry about and work so hard before the great day, that she quite loses her freshness and youthfulness.

Shopping and calling engagements should be attended to several weeks before the day set for the wedding. More important than all of these is the rest which the bride must surely take if she would look her best on the happy day when she is to be joined to the man of her choice.

She may declare "I cannot sleep." Awake condition which almost precludes the possibility of a cosy nap. But at least she can shut herself away from busy talk and in her own room have the quiet and seclusion which will benefit her.

FAREWELL.
 O Mother with unbowed head,
 Hear them across the sea;
 The farewell of the dead—
 Greet them again with tender words and grave,
 For saying thee, themselves they could not save.

To keep the house unharmed;
 Their fathers' built so fair,
 Deeming endurance armed
 Better than brute despair,
 They found the secret of the world that seemed so hard to gain,
 "Service is sweet, for all true life is death."

So greet thou well thy dead,
 Across the homeless sea,
 And be thou comforted,
 Because they died for thee,
 Far off they served, but now their deed is done,
 For evermore their life and thine are one.

Happy Without Knowing It.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"The raps of happiness, like those of light, are colorless when unbroken." "Isn't it beautiful, like you?" "Can you be happy without knowing it?" asked the Newly-Man. "Didn't you ever know anyone who was happy and didn't know it until afterward?" The Newly-Wed-Lady thought a bit and decided she had. Have you ever known such people? I have, lots of them.

One Woman Who Doesn't Know How Happy She Is.

For instance, there is a neighbor of mine. She has a very good husband, four healthy, nice, children and a pleasant home. Both her father and mother are living (not with her, but near enough so that she can see them often). Her husband is in an excellent business which brings in an income comfortable enough so that she does not have to worry about money. She keeps two maids and has means enough for pretty, but not expensive clothes. They have a machine and can afford the theatre and occasional little spree of the sort or another. In the summer they go away to a beautiful summer place for three months.

Of Course She Has Some Troubles.

Of course she has some things to harass her—who on this terrestrial sphere has not? But in the main, her sky is cloudless. "She really is very happy."

Hun Batteries Shot to Bits.

A German on Our Fire—Vivid Narrative.
 (From Charles Tower.)

Amsterdam. The havoc wrought by English fire among the German batteries on the Somme is described in the special correspondent of the Koelnische Volkszeitung, Hermann Klatsch. He takes as an example the fate of the famous Silesian artillery in July and August, but it is evident that as he writes from headquarters he has been invited to make clear to Germans at home that the losses in material as well as in men have been colossal. He says:

"Shells strike the guns direct; all wooden parts are on fire; the hand ammunition burns also; an ammunition cart blows up and a small ammunition store as well. It is difficult to replace them because ammunition has to be carried by men who sink along routes themselves under heavy fire. Also the wounded have to be borne into safety and still there is nothing but shells, shells! Each ordinary shell is followed by a gas shell, and everybody wears a gas mask."

"At 9 a.m. an officer of the battery announces that the English attack has begun and that great masses of the enemy are storming forward over the completely wrecked infantry positions and are close to the battery. But the battery now consists of only one gun, for the rest are shot to pieces or completely useless. There are men enough to serve the gun, because while the guns were under the heaviest fire the men were under shelter. If the men had not taken shelter the guns, or rather the one gun, would have had to serve itself, for not a man would have been left alive."

British Advance.

"Forty or fifty English are visible at the end of the little copse of C. But the one gun that remains cannot in its present position be swung round far enough to bring the advancing English under fire. Meantime the crew of a neighbouring battery come in and report that all their guns are out of action and that they themselves are at the disposition of the officer commanding our battery. They are sent off at once to bring up ammunition or to replace men who have dropped."

"A lance-sergeant reports the enemy is advancing further and with caution. We will not let the gun fall into the enemy's hands without a struggle; so under heavy fire the men pull the gun out of its bed, set it up in the open, and commence a quick fire on the advancing enemy. But in the meantime the British have brought up two machine guns and are pouring a hail of bullets on the gun and the gun crew. The sergeant-major falls. "It is impossible to shell the advancing enemy any longer, for every bit of the ammunition carried with the gun is used up and there is nothing more to do except to make the gun useless for the enemy and save the men to fight another gun somewhere else. The lieutenant arms himself with hand-bombs ready to welcome the first of the enemy there-with, and gives with a heavy heart the order to put the gun out of use. But the men cannot withdraw the breech-bolt, which has become blazing hot, so they remove the safety-catch and all the range-finders.

Swoop of Airmen.

"The English have already reached the original battery position, but one more attempt is made to telephone to divisional headquarters. 'Majority men saved; guns destroyed; am retiring.' Then the telephone is taken along and everything that has to be left behind is destroyed. Only the battery commander remains behind with a few men, unable to abandon the last faint hope of seizing some favourable moment for retreating, what remains of the gun. For his guns are his very self, and his eye does not leave the shot-shattered plot of ground where he knows his battery lies."

"On their way to the rear the men are discovered by an enemy airman, who swoops down upon them and opens fire from a height of 300 ft. But the men hold for cover and get off with the men bolt for cover and get off with go forward again. 'Presently they are joined by the men of a Bavarian battery who have also had to leave their shattered guns because the enemy had worked forward right into the battery positions."

"Divisional headquarters tries to find out how many guns are destroyed and how many men have returned fit for duty. The second battery managed to recover two heavy and two light guns during the night. Of the sixth battery, which was in a little wood, every gun has been shattered by shell fire. The fourth and fifth, which alone still had our own infantry covering them ahead, held out for two days. But finally they too had to leave the field, as they were incessantly bombarded with gas-shells. But they brought their guns with them and were promptly sent into action at another point. The second, third, and sixth, which had suffered most, were given new guns and sent to the rear for re-formation. A week later they were in action again with their numbers made up to strength, fresh equipment, and so forth. Next time they had ten days of it!"

"At the end of the month the regiment was given a 'rest,' which consisted of spending every night in a different bivouac for four nights. An after the fourth they were sent into action again.

"Once more the enemy begins to score direct hits; eighty gas-shells a minute are poured into the battery position, and, in addition, ten batteries of enemy field-guns open upon our men. The gas-clouds grow ever denser; enemy airmen incessantly observe the battery and the effects of their own fire, and from eleven captive balloons the enemy have a full view into the position.

"Still the battery hold on, until at last there is not a gun left than can fire a shot!"

The young lawyer was consulting in the jail with his unfortunate client, charged with stealing a stove.

"No, no," he said, soothingly; "I know, of course, you didn't really steal the stove. If I thought for a minute that you were guilty I wouldn't defend you. The cynics may say what they like, but there are some conscientious men among us lawyers. Yes, of course, the real difficulty lies in proving that you didn't steal the stove, but I'll manage it now that you have assured me of your innocence. Leave it all to me, and don't say a word. You can hand over a guinea now, and pay the rest—"

"A guinea, boss?" repeated the accused man, in a hoarse voice. "Why don't yer make it ten thousand guineas? I could pay ye just ex easy. I ain't got no messey."

"No money?" The lawyer looked indignant.

"Naw—ner know where I kin git any, either."

The young lawyer seemed plunged in gloom. Suddenly he brightened.

"Well," he said, more cheerfully. "I'll tell you what to do. I'll get out of this scrape, and we'll call it square if you'll send the stove round to my office. I need one."—Tip-tilts.

LONDON, Oct. 23.
 During the night there was considerable enemy shelling against the British front between Le Sars and Queudecourt says an official announcement to-day. Our troops now occupy near Lipon the two mine craters formed by the enemy yesterday at the Bluff, south of Ypres, and are satisfactorily established in their positions.

THE BATTLE ON THE SOMME.

British Front in France, via London, Oct. 23.—More than three and one half months of battle on the Somme with the heaviest concentration of artillery, infantry and every type of war material and the most skillful and desperate fighting the world has ever known, has resulted in a marked development of British fighting efficiency, and of the means for reducing the losses of the attackers. In the way of concrete achievement, the British have taken 20,000 prisoners, or little less than 150 for each of the 21 villages captured, with an average population of about 300 souls. They have taken 125 guns, 100 trench mortars and trench guns, and 429 machine guns. They have not lost a gun. The attack of the British was made especially difficult by the fact that they were confronted at the outset with a most powerful line of trenches and fortifications; moreover every village was a fortress which had to be besieged and stormed. The British have driven back the Germans on a front of 11 miles to a depth of over 5 miles. When spring comes peasants will plow and seed the ground behind the lines which for two years had lain fallow under the storm of shells. In Frigecourt and Mametz villages, taken on July 1st, trees with their trunks torn and their foliage blasted by shells have bravely thrown out fresh shoots, while fresh crops of grass are hiding the shell craters in the neighboring fields, and are carpeting the seamed earth, trodden by the British in their early charges. Former citizens of the captured villages are requesting that they be allowed to return to them and build new homes on the ruins of the old ones. The offensive has consisted of intervals of preparation and siege work, after each big general attack. Through July, owing to the heavy cost of taking the first line of trenches, the British casualties were probably heavier than the Germans. Through Aug. when over a large part of the front the Germans were out of their second, as well as their first line system of defenses, and the battle became one of digging and fighting in the open for both sides the casualties were about even. As the British kept up the offensive their exposure necessarily was greater. Yet from all information, the correspondent can gain, both from British officers of all grades who have been in the fighting and from German prisoners, the German losses were not less than 25 and possibly 50 p.c. higher than the British during the month of September, when the British gained ground. This contradiction of a previously accepted idea of a higher ratio of casualties for the side on the offensive, which is usually considered as necessarily not less than two to one, is due according to the British officers, to the superior power of British shell fire, the numbers of British aeroplanes, increased skill of British soldiers, and the use of tanks. The British staff did not place much reliance on these new contrivances, which aroused such world-wide interest, but regarded them as an experience which might fail altogether. They are only one of the inventions aiding the offensive against modern fortifications which will be used next spring when the British are fully prepared. Calculations as to the value of tanks are hard to make, but taking the average opinion they are responsible for the loss of 20,000 men or more than a full division.

DISCUSSION ON PEACE.

LONDON, Oct. 23.
 Another important contribution to the discussion of peace was made by Viscount Grey, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, at a luncheon given to-day by the Foreign Press Association, at which diplomatic representatives of all the Allied countries were present. The Foreign Secretary made it plain that the Allies are not prepared to discuss peace terms. He gave no indication what their terms might be, but welcomed any efforts by neutral countries for a combination to prevent future wars.

PROJECTILES DROPPED BY THE FRENCH.

PARIS, Oct. 23.
 Four tons of projectiles have been dropped by a French air squadron of 24 machines on blast furnaces north of Metz and on the Metz and Thionville stations, the war office announced to-day. Hits were secured on all objectives. It is declared. Another French flotilla bombarded factories at Rombach.

DISSATISFIED AUSTRIANS.

LONDON, Oct. 23.
 The morning papers print long editorials on the assassination of Premier Stuergh. The general opinion expressed is that the removal of Stuergh is the work of men who wish to free the Austrian Government from a clique of politicians who are largely controlled by the Hungarian Premier Tisza, in the interests of the Magyars and Germany. On this theory the assassination is held to represent an Austrian movement to escape from the domination of Berlin.

DESPERATE FIGHTING.

PARIS, Oct. 23.
 Desperate fighting in the bend of the Cerna on the Macedonian front has resulted favorably to the Entente forces, according to to-day's war office announcement. The Bulgarian counter attack in strong force but were defeated by the Serbians who inflicted heavy losses on the attacking troops.

AUSTRO-GERMAN OFFENSIVE APPARENTLY BROKEN DOWN.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 23.
 The powerful Austro-German offensive launched a week ago in the region south of Torna Watra with the intention of driving a wedge between the Russian and Roumanian forces, preventing further Russian assistance to her new Ally, and regaining Bukovina, has apparently broken down before the counter manoeuvres of the Russian. The Russian command, anticipating the German move, threw a large body of troops to this portion of the front causing, according to official accounts, the Austrians to fall back to their original positions.

BERLIN SAYS 'VICTORY.'

BERLIN, Oct. 23.
 The total repulse of the Russian force from the western bank of the River Narayurk in Galicia, has been completed, says an official issued from German army headquarters to-day. At Prudent Pass on the Transylvania front, the statement adds, 500 Roumanians were captured. The Serbian advance on the Cerna River sector on the western end of the Macedonian front has been halted, the War Office announced to-day.

DEMAND CENSORSHIP OF GREEK PRESS.

ATHENS, Oct. 23.
 The Allied Powers demand the censorship of the Greek Press. This has brought new complications as all press censorship in Greece is unconstitutional. After a cabinet meeting, which lasted all day the Greek government decided to issue a stern warning to anti-Venzelozist newspapers, that any further irritation of the Entente may lead to drastic measures by the Allies, despite constitutional freedom of the press.

NEUTRALS SUNK.

LONDON, Oct. 23.
 Lloyds announce that the Norwegian steamer Rabb, 878 tons gross and Risoy, 1,129 tons gross, are sunk. Sinking of the Danish schooner, and the Swedish barque Lenka is announced by the Shipping Agency. Another announcement by Lloyds records the sinking of the steamer George Embriicos, a Greek vessel of 3,636 tons gross. Twelve of the crew are reported missing. The Hague-Dutch West Indian Line's Nickerie, homeward bound was taken into Zebrugge yesterday by German torpedo boats. The Germans took off the chief cook, an Italian military age, who signed on at New York. The Nickerie was then allowed to proceed.

SUNK BY HURRICANE.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 23.
 Sixteen members of the crew of the steamer L. Edward Hines, including Capt. McKelge, of New York, were drowned when the steamer sunk in the Caribbean Sea, 45 miles east of Belize, British Honduras, in a tropical hurricane on Oct. 15.

I bought an ax of Ezra Wax, who said to me: "Now, sonny, if it's no good at chopping wood, come back and get your money. If I sell junk that turns out punk, the buyer is no loser; I'll make it good, as dealers should."—I'm that sort of a snooter." With that new ax I took some whacks at divers kinds of lumber; the edge was spoiled, and I was rolled, and said things without number. I took the ax to Ezra Wax, and showed him it was pewter, and for an hour, with wrathful power, I roared like baseball rooster. My spiel he heard; without a word, he handed me a new one; an ax so neat, so bright, so sweet, a keen one and a true one! Said Ezra Wax, "You bet your yaks, warthogs and dromedaries, that I make good, as dealers should—my system never varies!" I buy my tacks of Ezra Wax, my wringers and my whistles, my hoes and rakes and oil meal cakes, my seed of grass and thistles. He would not break the pledge he'd make, or tramp a promise under, so I make tracks to Ezra Wax for every kind of plunder.

The tired man's Comforter

MAYO'S

That's just what a pipe of Mayo's is, from the touch of the match to the last lingering draw.

Mayo's is a cool, fine flavored tobacco that has stood the test of many years, and is known to-day as an old favorite all over the Colony.

Imperial Tobacco Co. (Newfoundland) Ltd.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, Oct. 2nd, 1916.

PRINCE NO LONGER SHY.

Those who have been privileged to observe him in France assure me that the Prince of Wales has lost that shy manner which was such a charming characteristic of his boyhood and youth. Now, in vigorous young manhood, he is a different person. Modest of deportment he certainly still is, but that which nowadays first impresses those with whom he comes in contact is his amazing frankness, together with a simple, unaffected manliness that stamps him at once for a young English gentleman. The Prince is keenly observant, and that he will largely benefit from his present experiences no one doubts.

AN HISTORIC EARLDOM.

The Earl of Essex, who died very suddenly on September 26th at Lord Derby's Newmarket house, was not one of the richest of peers, nor prominent in public affairs, but he was very popular in his own circle, a great sportsman and a leading man in Hertfordshire. The earlier annals of the Capell family are full of incident. The founder of the family's fortunes, a great merchant prince in London, too rich for his own safety, was heavily fined on various pretences and at last thrown into the Tower. The first Baron Capell, a devoted adherent of Charles I., was beheaded by the Puritans in Old Palace Yard, Westminster. His son, the first Earl, was for a time high in favor with Charles II., but became implicated in the plots of the period, and perished by his own hand in the Tower, in Cassiobury Park, Watford, the Earls of Essex have one of the most beautiful places near London, and the late Earl spent much of his time there.

THE RICHEST OFFICER IN THE ARMY.

Lord Bute, who, in his thirty-fifth year, is now gazetted a Second Lieutenant, is probably the richest officer in the British Army. None of his tastes is for active exercise. Before the war he occasionally shot, sometimes cut down a tree, and was fond of dancing reels after dinner. Directly he enlisted as a private he caught a serious attack of measles. His younger brother, Lord Ninian Grichton Stuart, was killed in the war. Lord Bute is a devout Roman Catholic, a fanatical enthusiast for everything Scottish, derives vast wealth from Cardiff, rarely goes into society, is domesticated, devoted to his wife and children, and has a diffident manner.

CHIEF INSPECTOR WARD.

Alfred Ward, the chief of the Criminal Investigation Department at Scotland Yard, who died on September 25th, was a detective of a highly modern type. His uniform, so to speak, was the carefully calculated appearance of being anything in the world but a detective. He looked, indeed, like a comfortable banker or stockbroker—a man too much at ease in life to trouble with the investigation of anything. This bluff exterior was the mask for a keen brain sharpened by a lifetime of study of the workings of the criminal intelligence. On the side of the lawbreaker there was even an affectionate admiration for "Alf Ward," as he was known to everyone. He was gentlemanly and sure in his methods, patient on the trail, and eminently discreet. The reporters rarely benefited from his confidences. His armour against them was an impeccable politeness. There has been no big criminal case in the last five or six years without Mr. Ward at the back of the court, usually with a little brown bag full of priceless testimony. He rarely appeared in the box or made himself prominent in any way, but the success of the prosecution depended almost entirely upon his preparatory work. The best example of his cleverness was the Hatton Garden pearl necklace trial, in which, by subtle ways, he brought to justice a highly skilled gang of thieves—a triumph that would have been impossible without the most intimate knowledge of the habits of jewel robbers. One remembers, too, his suave personality moving in the background of that singularly disquieting mystery the proceedings that followed the death of the rich young bachelor Mr. Trevanion in the flat at Hove. Altogether Sherlock Holmes would have had need of all his wits to carry off an easy exposure of

THE NEW INDUSTRIALISM.

Excellent headway has been made during the past few months by the British Manufacturers' Association, whose aims are to secure the appointment of a Minister of Commerce and other reforms making for increased efficiency of production, now recognized to be the true foundation of industrial prosperity. Many of the manufacturers still cherish fears that dumping by Germany after the war may not prove so illusory as some people think. Information was placed before me which suggests that Germany has found means to maintain considerable supplies of raw material. Conversation with some of the leading manufacturers indicates that the problems of reconstruction and after will be approached in a new spirit and a new temper, which is the best augury for a smooth transition to peace. With the exception of a few who are content with filling in the form of membership, and sending a cheque instead of calling attention to the faults in their respective trades, the majority of manufacturers appear fully alive to the fact that they must actively assist in improving organization, in scrapping the old-fashioned methods, and in eliminating all waste and friction. These reforms can only be accomplished by a concordat between capital and labor in place of the latent antagonism which was all too prevalent in our social life before the war. Among the agenda items suggested for the first meeting of the council of the British Manufacturers' Association, to be held here on October 25, is the adoption of a minimum wage or profit sharing in every trade.

YOU CAN'T

cure skin troubles by applying ointment to the surface skin. You must reach the underlying tissues where the disease has its roots. Ordinary ointments cannot do this, and that is why the relief they give is only temporary. Zam-Buk, on the contrary, has such power of penetration, combined with unusual germ-destroying properties, that it reaches and destroys all germs in the underlying tissues. Then the healing essences promote the growth of new flesh, which gradually develops until the diseased patch is entirely replaced by new, healthy tissue, and a complete and permanent cure is effected. Zam-Buk is best for eczema, and all skin troubles, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, salt rheum, chronic sores, blood-poisoning, boils, piles, cuts, burns, scalds and all skin injuries. All druggists, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

ZAM-BUK

ing as it will be authoritative, for Sir Arthur has had access to all sorts of information. "It will be my privilege," he says, "to tell for the first time the story of these great deeds with exact reference to the regiments concerned." The accounts of the various actions are based upon very numerous documents, and have in the more important instances been submitted to and endorsed by some of those who took a prominent part in them.

THE SPORTS SUIT.

The sports suit is the latest form of smart wear-work attire, both coat and skirt being carried out in knitted fabric, stockinette, or artificial silk. This novelty is presumably introduced because the smaller range of colours and materials now carried by the shops makes it difficult to match in frieze or homespun a sports coat bought in the knitted goods department. The coat, which is quite long, and girdled with a sash at the waist, is trimmed with fur, which should match the colour of the suit. White stockinette suits, for instance, are trimmed with white rabbit skin, that women, in a new-found enthusiasm are using to the exclusion of ermine. Mole colour is trimmed with mole skin, nigger brown with skunk, grey with squirrel.

THE HUNS "UNDERGROUND."

Men home from the front have wonderful tales to tell of the elaborate trench works constructed by the Germans, and now in our possession. The enemy had made up his mind evidently that he was to remain where he was until peace came, and had gone about the business of underground palace and fort making with characteristic thoroughness. One work discovered by our men was a long subway, wide enough to permit two motor lorries to travel abreast, lighted by electricity, and fitted with electric fans and with an apparatus for driving fresh air through it. The service lorries, it would appear, came down the slope from the surface level, and discharged their loads into recesses on each side of the subway. When the shells or other stores, including food and drink, of which at this particular spot there was abundance, were required for the trenches above, it was carried up in lifts electrically worked. It is not known how many of these subways there are. This one, in the opinion of our men, was perhaps a special safeguard at a particularly important point of the German line, but the evidence of extensive preparations for a prolonged residence by the Germans all along that part of their front which they have now had to surrender was very striking. Their "impenetrable trench fortresses" have been captured, and their subterranean palaces, upon which they lavished so much ingenuity in construction and expense in equipment, will afford welcome shelter to our soldiers.

LORD HARTINGTON FOR CANADA.

I understand that Lord Hartington will accompany the Duke and Duchess to Canada, and, as he is now in the ranks of eligibles, there are already speculations over there on the possibility of a Canadian Marchioness of Hartington and future Duchess. The second son, Lord Charles Cavendish, will probably remain at Eton, though Canada is not too far off for long vacations.

The Men of London.

At the outset of the war the doctrine spread abroad that men who went from London streets to the front were pasty-faced, anaemic specimens, unfitted by long confinement at desks in offices to meet the burly, beefy foemen. It is not chauvinism and it is not a thronical vaunt that inspires the testimony of Sir Douglas Haig, of the Bishop of London, or of the correspondent Philip Gibbs and others as to the superior performance of the metropolitan recruits. "These young
