THE Lady of the Night

OR

Amelia Makes a Success

CHAPTER VIII.

THE BLOW.

The spell was broken by the faint sound of wheels on the dusty road. Starting, she drew herself from his embrace, and looking at him and then around her, as if she had suddenly awakened from a dream, suddenly realized the import of what she had done, she went quickly to the gate saying, with a catch in her voice, as if she were breathless:

"I must go. Yes, yes, don't stop me. I want to go." She stretched out her hand as if to ward him off, and he stood, as deeply moved as she herself, and let her go.

Nora hurried home, walking fast as if to escape the thoughts, the sensations that flooded upon her. She tied up to her room and bathed her face; it seemed to be burning, especially the lips which his had touched. Presently there rose from the dining-room below the sound of Mrs. Ryall's voice. It was strident and hysterical with rage, and suddenly Nora heard her own name. She heard her father's voice raised in nervous excitement, calling to her from the hall. She paused a moment as if to get breath and possession of herself; then she went down.

Her father was pacing up and down the hall, his face flushed, his loose lips working.

"I want you, Nora!" he exclaimed. "I want to speak to you, Amelia says."

Nora followed him into the room. Mrs. Ryall was standing by the table; her face was crimson, through its rouge and powder, her eyes flashed with a kind of spiteful triumph. She was clutching the edge of the table as if she needed its support.

"Amelia says—," stammered Ryall angrily; "but I can't believe it. I mean, there must be some mistake, he faltered as Mrs. Ryall broke in with a wrathful ejaculation. "It must have been some one else—"

"Oh, no, it wasn't a mistake!" said Mrs. Ryall furiously. "I saw her with my own eyes. Pretty goings-on! And her, too, with her pride and dignity, treating her betters as if they were dirt—Oh, I have noticed the way you've treated me, Mrs. I ain't good enough for you!—You smug little hypocrite, pretending to be so straight and proper! And I find you in a man's arms, out in the wood there! Don't deny it—I saw you with my own eyes."

Mr. Ryall was pacing up and down, glancing from one to the other, in a condition of nervous excitement. Nora stood, pale, but strangely self-possessed, regarding the inflamed face of her step-mother, steadily, and meeting the accusation with silence.

"So you don't dare deny it?" said Mrs. Ryall, still furiously, but rather indistinctly. "You steal out of the house at night, Miss Prim, to meet your fancy man in secret. You who pretend to 'old your 'ead so 'igh, you who are so proud, that you won't make friends with people up at the Hall. No, for a very good reason; you've got one of their servants for a sweetheart, and, of course, you don't want them to know anything about it. You're a sly little hussy! And you're a little fool into the bargain! A servant!" She laughed shrilly. "Well, you ain't much better yourself, but I should have thought that you would have picked a little 'igher than a groom, a stableman!"

"You mean Eliot Graham?" he is not a groom," said Nora in a very low voice, but quite distinctly.

"You give me the lie!" shrieked Mrs. Ryall.

She sprang—lurched—forward, and slapped Nora across the face.

For a moment Nora was blind, as if a block of wood might have been unconsciously she glanced at her father, with the child's appeal for his parent's protection. But Mr. Ryall stood, white and shaking, and made no response.

Still half-blind, in a kind of stupor, Nora staggered out of the room into the passage. Martha was standing at the kitchen door, trembling and pale, her arms outstretched, a piteous cry on her lips.

"Miss Nora! Oh, Miss Nora! Oh, my dear, my dear—"

But Nora evaded her, and, trembling in every limb, and with her hand pressed against the wall as if for support, felt her way into the open air.

CHAPTER IX.

SIR JOSEPH MEETS WITH A CHECK

As Nora felt her way out of the house, the soft breeze blowing through the valley met her burning cheek and awakened her to a full comprehension of the indignity and outrage she had suffered. The woman had struck her savagely; but Nora was scarcely conscious of the physical pain; she was tingling, shuddering, with shame, her heart burning with a heroic resentment, a righteous indignation at the desecration of the blow.

The pain was nothing; she had suffered a great deal more in falling from a tree or pitching off a horse; once she had lain unconscious for some time after a mishap of this kind; but she had the sense of having now suffered that which no tears could assuage and no memory wipe out. To a high-spirited boy, a blow means a great deal; but to a girl! In her tingling ears was the sound of a myriad voices laughing in derision and scorn of her.

humiliation. It was as if she had been trampled by the mud, her very face and form so obliterated that she could not recognize them. At that moment it was not the vulgar, vicious woman whom she loathed, but herself; the stain of the blow seemed to be creeping over her like some horrible fungus.

She looked back at the house and shuddered with repulsion; it had been the scene of her shame. She thought of her father with something of repulsion also; for he had been a witness of the indignity, and had neither protected nor avenged her—the father whom she had loved, whom she had protected, for whom she had toiled and slaved. To go back to the house was impossible; Nora was not the girl to creep to her room and sob herself into a consoling sleep, to come down the next morning with the mark of Mrs. Ryall's fingers across her cheek.

The Grange was her home no longer; Mrs. Ryall had driven her from it, and her father had stood by without a word of protest. Her one desire was to put as many miles between the old house and herself as possible. She tried to think, to form some plan; but plans are difficult to make when there are no bases to go upon, and Nora, starting out into the night with eyes that burnt almost as fiercely as her cheek, did not know what to do nor where to go.

Presently she heard her father's voice calling to her in a nervous, guarded tone. She shrank, as if from a second blow; her mental attitude towards him had changed; she would still have laid down her life for him, but she could not bear that his eyes should rest on the mark of the blow which he had permitted. She drew back into the shadows, and waited; Mrs. Ryall shrieked his name hysterically, and Nora heard him go back to the house. When his footsteps had died away she stole into the passage, took her old roll-case from its hook, drew it round her, drawing the hood over the scarlet stain on her cheek, and went rapidly across the meadows, avoiding the avenue and keeping amongst the trees, with the vague intention of reaching the high-road in such a way that she could not be seen or traced.

To do so she must cross the Ferrard grounds. She paused a moment, then went on; there was a small plantation of firs between the Hall grounds and the road, and she felt assured that she would not be seen. The night was warm, feverish in her veins, and she threw back the hood of the cape unconsciously; she heard a heavy footstep through the plantation, and reached the fence, which she could easily

Mr. Herbert Osborn Tells How Cuticura Healed His Wife

"My wife began to be troubled with itching and burning of the palms of her hands and the soles of her feet. Later the skin cracked and became swollen, making walking or even standing very painful and preventing sleep at night. I was at a loss to know what to do, and I was unable to bandage both hands and feet."

"She was treated but obtained no relief. She saw an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. She bought more and after using two boxes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Herbert Osborn, 135 Sherbourne Ave., Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 2, 1919.

Cuticura is ideal for every-day toilet uses. Soap to cleanse and purify, Ointment to soothe and heal.

Soap 25c, Ointment 25c and 50c. Sold throughout the Dominion. Canadian Agents: Lyman, Limited, St. Paul, Minn., U.S.A. Cuticura Soap is made without lye.

Instead of which, I come and tell you at once, because I am prepared to offer terms. Neither you nor I want the place to get into the open market; we do not want to bid against each other, and so set other people fretting. I am prepared to give you one-third of what I make out of the business, and, if I do not make any mistake, it is more than you'd get in any other way. For the thing wants capital, a big sum of money; and I've got it, and from what I hear—no offence—you haven't."

"That's so," said Mr. Trunton. "Your way is decidedly the best for both of us. We will draw up a little agreement, Sir Joseph."

"That's all right," said Sir Joseph, with unaffected indifference. "My word's always as good as my bond—sometimes better. But you shall put the thing in proper form."

"Have you a plan?" asked Mr. Trunton after a moment or two.

"Yes," said Sir Joseph. "A rough plan, but it's good enough. I brought it out here. I didn't want us to shut ourselves up in the study; and there's no other place in the house, for these blessed people are all over it like rabbits. Come under the trees."

They came almost within a few steps of Nora, and she steadied herself against a tree with one hand, and waited impatiently for them to go ahead. Sir Joseph took a piece of transfer paper from his pocket, lit a wax match, and held it so that Mr. Trunton could see the paper.

"There you are," he said. "It's only in the rough, but it shows the place plainly enough."

There was silence for a while. Then Trunton said gravely—

"Does it lie only in this spot?"

"Only there," replied Sir Joseph. "It isn't likely to be all over the place, and it isn't I have been all over the land, on the strictest of course, and there are no indications anywhere else. The stuff is there, and there only."

"Then I'm afraid there will be more difficulty than you contemplated, Sir Joseph," said Mr. Trunton firmly.

"Eh, what?" snapped Sir Joseph thickly. "How's that?"

"This part of the land does not come into the mortgage," said Trunton.

"What the devil do you mean?" demanded Sir Joseph. "It's part of the estate."

"In a sense, yes," assented Trunton; "but our mortgage does not cover it."

"Here, no names!" interrupted Sir Joseph.

"Let us say the mortgagee, then. He has no control over this, has not even a life interest. Let me explain. This part of the land where you have made your find was, so to speak, unattached, and the mortgagee settled it on his wife and child. He cannot dispose of it."

Sir Joseph's thick lips twitched with impatience and annoyance.

"Then—we are done," he said, "unless—" climb, when she heard voices near her, and saw two men pacing slowly on the footpath beside the drive. One was Sir Joseph, the other was Mr. Trunton, the lawyer from Nelsworthy, with whom her father had sometimes done business.

Sir Joseph's hands were thrust deep in his pockets, his face like a mask. The other man paced beside him, his head lowered, his eyes glancing from side to side in a fashion which Nora had always disliked. As they approached the tree behind which she was standing, the lawyer stopped, and said cautiously, but not so low that Nora could not hear—

"I may take 15—Sir Joseph, that you are quite certain, quite assured, of the facts?"

"You may," said Sir Joseph. "Gilly and Roberts are most responsible people, people of the highest standing; I have never known them to make a mistake. The stuff is there all right, the thing is to get hold of it; and there ought not to be any difficulty about that. I know how the land lies; I know that you, or some silent of yours, it doesn't matter which, holds the mortgage. Now I want to take that mortgage over, and you can help me to do so, that's why I come to you. I always go to work in the most direct way; and, after all, there isn't anything underhand about the business. I'll be very straight with you, put my cards down on the table."

"Yes?" said Mr. Trunton, glancing at him. "I must say I am rather surprised, Sir Joseph, that you should do so."

"Ah, I daresay," assented Sir Joseph slowly. "But, you see, I know my world—and the men in it. See here, now! Suppose I had come to you and offered to take over the mortgage with some cock-and-bull story why I wanted it. You, as a business man, would know that I should not want the land in the ordinary way, that I must have something up my sleeves, and you'd grow suspicious, and fret about until you had hit upon the truth."

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freeseon" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Parental Solicitude.

To-day while digging in my yard I heard his most familiar cry. And that's a summons I regard instinctively. I turned to fly on eager wings to serve his need, and as I made my anxious start, to get to him at double-speed, I wondered what he badly hurt.

There is no fear akin to this. Though there are some can stand and wait To learn what all the trouble is, I rush at once to learn his fate. Though he would come to me, I know, When he has tumbled in the dirt, To him I am compelled to go. To learn if he is badly hurt.

I take him up and soothe his pain. And dry the eyes so filled with tears. Make straight his little waist again. And smile away a thousand fears; I look him over, head to toe. Not am I tempted to desert. The youngster's side until I know He isn't very badly hurt.

They laugh at me and say that I Make far too much of bump and fall. They bid me, when I hear him cry, To pay no heed to it at all. And yet until this flash of mine Lives cold and lifeless and inert, When of distress he makes a sign, I'll rush to learn if he is hurt.

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

An Unusual Suit.

To be threatened with a suit for libel is not a new experience for most newspapers. Neither is it unusual for them to find citizens complaining because their names were not put into print when and as they desired or their activities recorded in the precise terms they wished; many people would not think of saying how another private business should be conducted show so much hesitancy in the case of a newspaper business. But the action for damages which has been brought against the Quebec Telegraph by Mr. Armand Lavergne, K. C., because of the omission of his name from a report of court proceedings is out of the ordinary. Mr. Lavergne—a prominent figure, by the way, in Quebec politics a few years ago when he was one of Mr. Henri Bourassa's chief lieutenants when Sir Robert Borden and the Nationalist leader formed an alliance—appeared recently as the lawyer for a man charged with a serious crime. The case was hard fought and, on a conviction being entered, Mr. Lavergne in conducting the case for the accused was Mr. Albert Taschereau, K. C. In reporting the court proceedings the Telegraph mentioned Mr. Taschereau but made no mention whatever of "Mr. Lavergne. The latter gentleman now asks damages from the paper on the ground that the omission of his name was intentional and was done in continuation of a deliberate policy on the part of the paper of ignoring him. The case will be watched with a good deal of interest by newspaper workers and other people. To publish any statements designed or likely to injure any man professionally, is, of course, very serious business, and apt to prove costly for those who do it. But how far does the rule go the other way—what compulsion does a newspaper rest under to see that publicity is given to a professional man's connection with this case or that? It is an interesting question as a subject for argument; but, after all, it is not likely very often to be of much everyday importance, however it may be answered in the Lavergne-Telegraph case. Within certain broad limits newspaper business will continue to be conducted as newspaper owners please.—Sydney Record.

Baby Ben — the Westclox midget

BABY Ben is just waist-high Balongside Big Ben. He tucks into places where Big Ben would feel crowded. He's at home in your traveling bag and right there in case the train porter or the hotel clerk forgets. He cozies into a corner on your dresser and never gets in the way on your desk downtown. He has all the punctual habits of Big Ben and that same knack of passing those habits along to you.

Baby Ben has friends everywhere. Not merely because he's Big Ben's little brother: the real reason is his Westclox construction. That's why you like him! The wheels turn on needle-fine pivots of polished steel. Friction is thereby reduced to the minimum and the clock keeps better time and lasts longer. Westclox on the dial and tag means this construction inside the case. It is your assurance of quality.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

THEORETICAL GOVERNMENT. DUBLIN, May 21. At a session of Dail Eireann, held at the second week in May, says an official report issued by that body last night, it was decided on the President's motion that the then parliamentary elections should be regarded as elections to Dail Eireann, and that present "Republican" Parliament will automatically dissolve as soon as the new body is duly summoned.

CAIRENS RIOT.

CAIRO, May 21. Rioting more severe than that which took place Thursday, broke out yesterday. Police fought the mob for three hours and, unable to disperse it, called for the help of cavalry forces. There were numerous casualties.

FRANCE GIVES ORDERS.

BERLIN, May 21. It was announced that the foreign Minister yesterday had drawn up without reservation, the Government's declaration on the disarmament of Germany, as demanded under terms of the recent ultimatum of the Allies. The Ministry of France, on May 13, issued orders for the surrender of guns and other weapons, and war materials at unauthorized fortresses, and yesterday gave other orders regarding disarmament as demanded by the Allies.

DEADLY POLITICS.

ROME, May 21. Three persons are dead, two are dying and many are suffering from wounds, as the result of a pitched battle between communists and extremists at Chiusi, Tuscany, where post election disputes continue.

MARKING TIME.

LONDON, May 21. Mr. Lloyd George has gone to Hythe, near Dover, where he will spend the week-end with Sir Philip Sassoon. Advice received from Silesia would appear to indicate that neither Poles nor Germans are taking the offensive. Pending a meeting of the French and British Premiers, the proposed meeting of the Supreme Allied Council for the purpose of discussing Silesia, appeared today to have been pushed indefinitely into the future.

Supreme Court.

Alfred B. Morine vs. St. John's Daily Star and H. M. Mossell.—This is a continuation of the application heard on May 14.

Morine, K.C., is heard in person. Gibbs, K.C., for defendant, is heard. —C.A.V.

A summons in the same matter, an application of the defendants that the judgment in default herein be set aside, and leave to file a defence was also before the Lordships. Gibbs, K.C., for defendant, was heard in support of the application. Morine, K.C., was heard and stated that he does not oppose the application, but asked that if the judgment be set aside that the defendants be ordered to file their defence within two days, and with costs of the application. It is ordered that the judgment be set aside, and that defendants file their defence within two days and to pay cost of application.

Post Mortem Held.

ON BODY FOUND IN CELLAR.
The post mortem on the body of the child found last night at 8.30 o'clock in a cellar, as reported in another column, was conducted by Dr. Tait shortly after the corpse had been taken to the morgue. The body was in so decomposed a state that it was impossible to discover its age, sex or the cause of death. It was, however, a fully developed child. According to the doctor's report the body must have been lying in the cellar since last fall as it had been placed there in the winter, it would have been frozen. The police are not prepared to say just yet on what they are basing their investigations, but they are confident of effecting an arrest shortly.

Tottering Government Railroads.

(Wall Street Journal.)
It has been the happy lot of one of the Canadian papers, while hopefully advocating government railway operation, to group and propound the most formidable objections to it. The occasion was the recent annual statement of the privately-owned and managed Canadian Pacific. The necessity was to confess and avoid its consequences. Canadian Pacific was constructed when labor and material were cheap. Lines built in later years did not have these singular advantages. The admission itself concedes little. The 1890-1898 level of prices was not greatly different from that of 1887-1891. In so far as it varied from the later level, or from that of 1909-1913, its economic difficulties were similar, except only where they were greater. Labor was cheaper, material was cheaper, but both were equally if not more difficult to finance. The West was a wilderness of raw material in the form of land. No pioneer transport system had quickened its health, invited competition and afforded physical facilities for new roads. The East had a small commercial and manufacturing interest, barely and no more than adequately weathering its own adversities. Labor and material were as hard to buy then as now—indeed harder.

Auction of Motor Cars.

Only one of the 4 motor cars auctioned to-day was disposed of. The car sold was a Hudson Super Six, it being knocked down for $700. A Chalmers 1920 model was set up at $1400 but there was no bidding. A private offer for this amount had previously been made. A five passenger Chevrolet at $600.00 and a Ford runabout at $300 were also offered but no bidding was done.

Rugger Game To-Day.

A Rugby Football game will be played this afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Tannery grounds between the Bishop Field College 1st XV, and the "Barbarians," a team consisting chiefly of old boys of the school and men who have played the game in the public schools of England and Eastern Canada. The game is bound to be an excellent one and all interested in Rugger should go and see it.

Rev. Jeffrey's Vouches for Destitution.

Rev. Chas. Jeffrey of Whitbourne vouches for the following copies of receipts received by one of the principals in the Whitbourne episode:
(1) Received from Mr. Uriah Drover the sum of nine dollars part payment for two and a half acres of land on the Briggs Road and opposite the land of William Peddie. Sept. 17, 1920.
(2) Received from Herbert Drover the sum of two dollars on account of land. Oct. 30, 1920. Drover is certainly destitute.
The rev. gentleman in his letter also states that Drover is certainly destitute but adds that he has enough land on which to sow potatoes which was denied by a former correspondent.

The Song of the Sucker.

We're wary of bankers and bankings; We look upon bonds with distrust; You never can know when the market will blow.
Or if institutions will bust; But offer us any investment That will promise a thousand per cent.
And our homes we will hock to get hold of your stock.
With trusting and graceful content. We never will question your methods. What matters it how it is done; Though the profits you say you are going to pay.
Are got with a club or a gun? We aren't going to scruple with ethics. While we toil to the end of the day.
This safe and sure stuff never nets you enough; We want an investment that pays.
The fact that you may be a grafter But anyway now you are out! It isn't our business to ask you If you have a rating or not.
With Bradstreet or Dun, if you'll pay ten for one.
We'll trust you with all we have got. And if you go South with our savings. Which, doubtless, is what you will do.
Because we were rash with our dear-ly-earned cash.
We will mope for a fortnight or two. And save some money, and then. But soon we'll return to our labor. When we hear that some gent pays a thousand per cent.
We will do it all over again!

New York.—Jack Dempsey now is located at Atlantic City, where he will do his training for the Carpenter bout before admiring crowds. There is nothing subtle about Dempsey's methods. He has nothing to hide and probably would welcome a visit from Carpenter to his training quarters.
With Carpenter it is different. The slender Frenchman believes in secrecy. He deals in mystery and does most of his real work behind closed doors. When Georges was preparing for his affair with Joe Beckett, he hid himself away in the country and would permit not permit visitors to enter the gym while he was at work. He caused reports to be sent out that he was having all kinds of trouble with his condition and that he was a war-worn wreck. No doubt Beckett was deceived by these false reports, but whether the effect was helpful to Carpenter is doubtful. When they faced each other in the ring Beckett was nervous and Georges was able to put over the winning blow before the Englishman got over his stage fright. If Beckett had expected an easy victory he would have been less nervous and more dangerous.

"Ze Vrai Francais."

Appropos of the report that certain prominent politicians are studying French with a view to addressing meetings in Quebec, the following may be of interest: An English engineer, long a resident of that province and extremely popular with the men under him, is known throughout the district as Monsieur Bob. His French, picked up in daily intercourse with his men, is fluent, and peppery, when needed. His wife speaks the polished French of society. A workman from the factory, after getting instructions from the latter as to some repairs to the house, said, "Ah Madame Bob, you have ze francals de ze dictionnaire and ze grammair, but Monsieur Bob, he have ze vrai francais."

MAYFLOWER MORE YACHT THAN FISHING CRAFT.

LUNenburg, May 13.—That the Lunenburg schooner Bluenose would not have the ghost of a show in a race with the Boston schooner Mayflower over the course in and off Halifax harbor unless in a gale with heavy seas, which he does not consider likely to happen, is the assertion of R. C. S. Kaubach, of this town. Mr. Kaubach, who was on board the Bluenose in the International races off Halifax last year and who inspected the Mayflower on the stocks at Essex this Spring, knows a thing or two about fishing schooners, even if he is not a fisherman.

The Bluenose, Lunenburg's contender for the right to represent Canada in the 1921 International, is in the same class as the Mayflower, he says. And he speaks from firsthand knowledge. He saw Captain Angus Walters' craft building at the yards here and at Essex. He made a most careful examination of the Mayflower a week before she was launched.

It is Mr. Kaubach's belief that she never will be a fishing schooner built in Lunenburg. Country to race on equal terms with the Mayflower. He is fully convinced, he says, that in this international race it is to survive another year the Mayflower must be excluded. Furthermore, he believes that her owners will be broad-minded enough to see the wisdom of withdrawing the Bluenose in order to perpetuate the race.

A BOSTON OPINION.

Boston, May 12.—Roy W. Pigeon, chairman of the schooner Mayflower Association which built the vessel that is to represent this country in the International fishermen's races next fall to-night asserted that the American defender had complied with the stipulations of the Halifax Herald. Owner of the trophy, in leaving for the fishing banks before April 30. The Mayflower sailed from Boston on April 28.

"We do not deny that the Mayflower has taken her time getting out to the Banks," said Mr. Pigeon, "but we wish to add that we here in Boston don't know just what Captain Larkin (of the Mayflower) has been up against. If he was unusually hampered by fog, thick weather and storms, we don't blame him for not putting off to the Banks. There is no requirement that either schooner shall be on the fishing banks at any stipulated date, and I cannot see the point of the Halifax criticism."

Mr. Pigeon said the owners of the Mayflower objected strongly to information that the schooner was a "toy boat and not a fishing vessel" and offered the Canadians a challenge to "an open sea race next winter."

"The Mayflower was built for a fishing vessel," he added, "and will be in commission during January, February

Forestalling the Moth.

If winter clothing is not put away in spring time, but is left hanging in a closet all summer, it is apt to suffer deterioration from dust, moths, and even from rats.

In the northern part of this continent the moths begin to lay their eggs between April and June. The little gray moth miller can be seen flying about the rooms trying to find a place to deposit her eggs, so that the larvae when they appear may have the best of food.

The larvae of the moth is of special danger to woollen garments, and those suits that are not clean, well brushed and in use are most apt to become infested.

If the larvae are once hatched in the cloth they are apt to begin their ravages, in spite of any preventives placed there to destroy them.

The only safe method of caring for clothing and furs is to keep the flying moth out of them by putting the garments away in tightly closed paper packages, in boxes, in cedar chests, or in heavy tar paper bags.

Garments that are not to be put away should have frequent shakings, brushings, beatings, and exposures to the sunlight.

Camphor and naphthalene balls, cedar chips when fresh, sprayed benzene or formaldehyde and other remedies are of service if the eggs are not already laid in the cloth.

Fads and Fashions.

A lovely afternoon frock is of white crepe de chine, its drapery giving the uneven hem line and its girde being of coral ribbon.

One organdie frock has a sash of white crepe de chine, with diamond-shaped organdie insets and a fringe of white silk threads.

A summer suit has a draped skirt of blue-and-white foulard over an underskirt of white serge and a jacket of the white serge.

LUMBAGO

If you feel a touch of lumbago, you can ward off the evils of recurrent attacks, by taking Gin Pills without delay. Learn a lesson from the experience of Mr. H. A. Jukes. After suffering with lumbago for years, and being confined to the house at times, Mr. Jukes began to take Gin Pills. His letter to us reads, in part: "and much to my surprise, I at once felt a change for the better. I have been taking them at intervals, and, up to date, have had no recurrence of my old trouble; in fact, I have not felt better for years."

Where No Woman is Allowed to Enter.

East of Salonika the Chalcidic Peninsula spreads its unequal shape down into the waters of the Aegean Sea, and here are found some of the most interesting of the world's monastic institutions—the famous monasteries of Mount Athos, exercising both a civil and an ecclesiastical domination, with many quaint regulations—one being to the effect that no woman shall ever set foot upon the monastic possessions.

This rule is strictly enforced, and one may well imagine the consternation of the father when the Queen of the Greeks proposed to pay a state visit to Mount Athos after the fall of Salonika.

Mount Athos is among the richest of the world's monastic establishments, not alone in the amount of its revenues and the fertility of its estates, but in its rare library of manuscripts of the early fathers of the church, few of which have yet been opened to the scrutiny of scholars and in which there doubtless is to be found a mine of information touching both faith and doctrine as they were delivered to the saints.

The orthodox monasteries of the Near East have played a most important part in the history of that region. Their origins, naturally, are for the most part shrouded in mystery, but their place in the estimation of the people is clear—and justly so.

It was within these cloistered walls that the Christian faith was kept alive through the long night of Turkish rule in the Balkans. Here, too, was maintained the tongue of whatever race the pious brothers claimed and to-day Greek, Bulgar, and Serb, whatever else they may differ upon—and their quarrels have been many and desperate—unite in a veneration and love for the church as an institution which has never been equalled elsewhere.

Finest Traditions of Near East.

About the Balkan monasteries cluster many of the finest traditions of the Near East. For example, the beautiful cloisters of the Metropolitan monastery at Cetinje are a venerated sanctuary of faith and freedom in the Black Mountain dating back for a full half millennium. It stands upon the spot where Ivan the Black established his seat of government when he fled from the Turk and where he set up the first Slavonic printing press in the world. Often besieged, it once capitulated to the Turk, but it was soon retaken by the sturdy warriors who descended in force from the height of the Lovcen, whither the Moslem had been unable to follow them.

Once the monastery was blown up by the monks themselves, who perished with their precious books and documents rather than see their sacred walls degraded by the Mohammedan foe.

In its present form the structure dates only from the eighteenth century but its quaint clock tower and its shaded cloisters give it an aspect of much greater age.

Here rest many of the valiant Viadikas or prince bishops, who so long ruled the land with a combination of church and state, and here are to be found the cannon captured from the Turk on many an historic field. Here, too, is preserved a page from the first gospel issued from the famous press (whose type were afterwards melted down to make bullets); and it is little wonder that the Montenegrin peasant making his way to market at Cetinje pauses as he glances the shrine from afar and crosses himself devoutly as he whispers a prayer for his country.

Above it rises the tower of the Skulls, the old-time citadel of the monkish defenders which takes its name from the fact that up to a short time ago it bore a grisly fringe of Turkish heads impaled upon its ramparts. These grim reminders of a gory past were dear to Montenegrin veterans; and many the Gospodar concluded to remove them.

Had Varied Fortunes.

The monasteries of Greece have had a varied fortune. Some of them, wax-

MAIL ROBBERIES.

Once a man could send a letter this wide continent across, and he didn't need to sweat or walk the floor through fear of loss. We had faith in Uncle Sammy as the guardian of the mail, and the robber's fate was clammy when he would lift our uncle's kale. Oft I mailed a million dollars to some creditor of mine—men who dealt in socks and collars or in hops of kickless wine—and they always got the plunder on the right and proper day; it was then a thing of wonder if a kopeck went astray. Then the robber told his fellow, when they planned a crib to slam, "Steal from any other fellow—do not steal from Uncle Sam; thieves have tried in countless numbers that old graft without avail, for our Uncle never slumbers and he never quits a trail." But the robbers now are busy swiping mail from Uncle Sam, and he's looking pained and dizzy, and as helpless as a clam. Every day a fortune's taken from the mails, the nation grieves, and the sleuths bring home no bacon when they go to pinch the thieves. Every World's Finest Harbors.

All the world knows that Scapa Flow could and did hold at their anchor the British and German Fleets. We are also proud of our splendid Milford Haven, one of the most capacious harbors in the world. But the two finest harbors in the world are Port Jackson, often called Sydney Harbor, and the harbor of the capital of Brazil, known as all sailmen as Rio, short for Rio de Janeiro. The harbor of Rio with its seventy islands, its palms, its white buildings, its wooded hillsides, is one of the great sights of the world. Port Jackson is its one and only rival, and the Australian beauty spot beats it in everything but its majestic mountains. The people of Sydney are exceedingly proud of their lovely harbor, which is the finest in the world. It is capacious, landlocked, and sheltered. With its bays and coves it possesses a deep-water frontage of over one hundred miles. Large vessels can lie at the quays and wharves of the city, and the harbor could accommodate the combined navies of the whole world. The National Park overlooking this splendid inland sea contains 35,000 acres of the loveliest woodland forest, mountain, and river scenery, and has a frontage of eight miles to the Pacific Ocean.

MUTT AND JEFF TOUGH LUCK, MUTT LOSES HIS WAY TO FRANCE. —By Bud Fisher.

The Situation at Grand Falls.

Grand Falls, May 17, 1921.
 Dear Sir,—This second letter is written in order to keep the general public in touch with further developments in the strike situation at Grand Falls. First we will say something about cable messages sent to the London Office of the A.N.D. Co., Ltd., and to Lord Northcliffe, personally, and give the reasons for sending same. We thought that although the Directors of the Company residing in England might be conversant with the proposed reductions as expressed in a percentage of present rates of pay, they might not know precisely what the effect of such reductions would be on standards of living. Therefore the following messages were sent:—
 "May 8th.
 To Andropian London.
 "All employees on strike to-morrow. New rates pay are below subsistence level for great majority, but management refuse to compromise. Does this policy meet with Directors approval."
 "Paper-makers Union Local 83."

A reply was received to this message on May 12th, as follows:
 "London.
 "Paper-makers Union Grand Falls
 "In reply your cablegram. We would point out that the newspaper is being delivered at London newspaper rates at four and one half cents per pound, which is much less than the price at which paper can be made at Grand Falls even at the reduced wages. On top of these Newfoundland costs, there is the cost of shipment to England. If you will approach Mr. Harris we are sure you will find him reasonable and considerate."
 "Andropian."

On May 8th we sent the following cable to Lord Northcliffe at his private address:
 "All employees at Grand Falls on strike from to-day. Management has announced a cut in wages which reduced majority of workers to subsistence level. Reductions are 30% for skilled and 33-35% for ordinary labor. Price of coal has been raised about 125%. Cost of living has decreased 10% only. Have been working only five day week since Easter. This makes actual wage reduction about 45%. Some family men would have only $1.00 per day for food and clothing. This policy is so different from usual that employees cannot be held to it has your sanction. May we ask for your influence to help us."
 "Employees Committee."

The reply received on May 11th, was as follows:—
 LONDON, May 10.
 To Employees Committee.
 Grand Falls.
 "Urgent. In the absence of President, who is out of England, cannot definitely reply to your message without consulting him. Personally, I deeply regret what at this end of the cable looks like very heavy action on part of our workers who have been so long being proud to be associated. This is the first strike in the history of our many businesses. Canadian, Newfoundland and United States mills must realize that paper is being sold in London at four and one-half cents a pound, which is less than we can make it for at Grand Falls. Newspapers cannot exist with paper at war prices. Personally, I have fullest confidence in Mr. Harris and his colleagues. I strongly urge you all to consult with him quickly. Am re-cabling to Harris the message you sent to me, and also copy of this, my reply to you. Cannot tell you how deeply I regret first trouble of any kind with my fellow workers."
 NORTHCLIFFE.
 To this cable we replied on May 12th, again to Lord Northcliffe's private address:—
 "Thanks for wire of 10th instant. No one regrets strike more than em-

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather in an instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread. It coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

 Employees Committee.

This second letter will put your readers in touch with all the material facts bearing on this dispute which are in our possession. We have not, up to the present, made any comment on the statements contained in these two letters, whether for or against the Company, but have rather endeavoured to present an impartial summary to the people of Newfoundland. In conclusion, we would say that the men are more than ever determined to stand solidly together in their demand for a sufficient wage to provide them with the standard of living which a citizen of the British Empire has a right to expect.

Child Welfare.

A public meeting for the purpose of forming a new organization to take over the work of Child Welfare was called on Monday, May 16th, in the Grenfell Hall, by the Executive of the Women's Patriotic Association, who, according to a Resolution passed at the 5th Annual Meeting of that organization (now defunct) was asked to remain in office until such time as a new Association be formed to continue the work.

In the absence of the President, Lady Harris, and 1st Vice-President, Lady Horwood, the second Vice-President, Mrs. R. A. Squires, presided. After explaining the object of the meeting, she then called upon the Hon. Secretary, Miss Mary MacKay, to read the minutes of the last annual meeting of the Women's Patriotic Association. The meeting then elected a new Committee for Child Welfare, which resulted as follows:—
 Honorary President—Mrs. W. G. Gosling.
 President—Miss Southcott.
 Vice-Presidents—1st, Mrs. V. P. Burke; 2nd, Mrs. A. Marshall; 3rd, Mrs. MacKeen.
 Hon. Secretary—Miss Mary C. Ryan.
 Hon. Treasurer—Miss Mary MacKeen.

These officers were empowered to elect their Committee which is as follows:—Lady Crosbie, Mrs. J. A. Cliff, Mrs. (Dr.) Scully, Mrs. J. Angel, Mrs. R. B. Job, Mrs. (Mrs.) Martin, Miss M. Furlong, Miss Gertrude Barnes. The meeting was very well attended and much interest was displayed in this most important work. As suggested, I strongly urge you to do so. We have a strike here in England involving two million people out of work. For the present we refrain from this huge upheaval, which is crippling all industries, including newspapers. This foolish strike has lasted forty-three days and could be quickly settled if all parties would meet, and put their cards on the table, and get back to work and happiness. Hope soon to hear from Grand Falls that you have all got together. Am sending copy of this to Harris. NORTHLIFFE.

Railway Disaster to Scottish Troops.

A railway disaster surpassing in magnitude every railroad horror in our history occurred just beyond Grains in Scotland, on the 22nd of May, 1916, the toll of dead—most of whom were men of the Royal Scots Regiment—being not less than 152. Another 100 were killed or burned to death upon the huge funeral pyre, a list which by July 3, was increased to 227. Over 200 were injured. When the 6:10 a. m. passenger train for Carlisle arrived at Quintinshill, there was a goods train standing on the "while local" (the first train) to allow the express to pass, and as the goods train was in the up loop, the local was turned on to the down main line. It had a hardy come to a standstill when a train, packed with soldiers off to the war, hurtling at fifty miles an hour down the long slope from Beattock, crashed into it. The troop train suffered most by the impact, but considerable parts of both were thrown on to the up main line and almost instantly the Easton-Glasgow "sleepers" one of the giants of the railway, ploughed at nearly sixty miles an hour into the wreckage. So great was the wreckage that lay in its track that the express came almost to a dead stop, though not until the first of its two great engines had jumped clean over one of the other engines. The goods train was nearly buried, and its engine derailed. Almost instantly the Glasgow-Carlisle express, which had mutilated passengers who were bound for an Eastern battlefield vanished entirely. Death could not have come more violently with horror more terrible had they met it on the field, yet nowhere could men with greater fortitude have met the "Angel of Death" than in that holocaust. The noise of the impact brought help speedily from the military hospitals on the line, and almost before the motor fire engines from Carlisle arrived, but the wrecks were burning fiercely and could not be extinguished until they had exhausted the combustible material in the mound of ruins. So high did the flames reach at one time that the tops were burnt down to the level of the telegraph poles on the line side. The inferno that raged kept the army of rescue workers at some distance from the pile wherein the train was nearly 500 officers and men; when the roll was called about noon only about 50 men remained. The rest had perished in the day. The grass field on the western side of the railway was strewn with the injured (many of who died on the way to the hospitals), and in another part lay the dead, the toll of whom gradually mounted. One poor man had a great cylinder of compressed air, which he required a crane to lift it. Another, conscious of his appalling position, had one leg pinned fast by part of the heavy engine and besought the rescuers to free him by cutting off his leg. This was done by a doctor as the only chance of saving his life, and his gratitude was great when he was reformed and found himself free.

Moderate Prohibition.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir,—Now that two of your correspondents have revived interest in a modification of the Prohibition Act, reminds me that in the winter of '20 petitions asking for a modification of this Act were circulated in this town and signed by a fairly large number of voters, and had the town been properly canvassed fully as many more would have signed it. I understand that something like 20,000 signatures were obtained in the Dominion. For the Assembly to ignore the prayer of nearly half the electorate would be a thing unprecedented in the history of Responsible Government. Some recognition of it must be taken.
 I happen to know several of the gentlemen who compose the Moderate Prohibition Committee and cannot understand why they have allowed interest in it to lapse. Here we are not favoured like St. John's where, if reports are correct, the law has been so far relaxed that almost any person can obtain what spirits he requires. Neither is every household allowed to have his own still and manufacture whatever quantity of "Moonshine" he requires and same is winked at by the "powers that be."
 Come, gentlemen of the Moderate Prohibition Committee, "get a gait on."
 Thanking you for space.
 Yours truly,
 SALVAGE.
 Hr. Grace, May 13, 1921.

Horrible Discovery.

Workmen Find Decomposed Body.
 A horrible discovery was made yesterday by some workmen who were clearing out a cellar on Tenssion Street off Carter's Hill. They had been at work for some time when they were shocked to find, hidden away in a corner, the decomposed body of an infant wrapped in a burial bag. Judging by the state the body was in, it had evidently been in the cellar all the winter. The police were at once informed of the dreadful find and had the body conveyed to the morgue where a post-mortem was held this morning. Inquiries are being instigated by the police, who, it is said, have sufficient evidence to effect an arrest.

Is your skin pale and sallow?

How you can rouse it

If your skin is pale and sallow, it shows clearly the need of a more stimulating treatment than you are giving it.

Don't let this condition become chronic. To give your skin the soft, clear color every healthy skin should have, follow once a week this special treatment:

JUST before retiring, fill your basin full of hot water—almost boiling hot. Bend over the top of the basin and cover your head with a heavy bath-towel, so that no steam can escape.

Steam your face for thirty seconds.

Now lather a hot cloth with Woodbury's Facial Soap. With this wash your face thoroughly, rubbing the lather well into the skin with an upward and outward motion.

Then rinse the skin well, first with warm water, then with cold, and finish by rubbing it for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

THE other six nights of the week cleanse your skin thoroughly in the usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter, and begin tonight this special steam treatment. A 25-cent cake of Woodbury's lasts for a month or six weeks. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ontario.

TRINITY.

The two great factors that have moulded and shaped the character of the Church and the School. We had much evidence of the truth of this in the past history of Trinity, and to those departments—the Divine and the human—we owe largely the men and women of the last generation, as well as those of the present, whom we have most cause to be proud.

In my wish to do honour to those men and women who taught school in Trinity during the last century, and to whom we are so deeply indebted, I feel that I am more or less handicapped, by not having at my disposal the material at hand, necessary to supply detailed information, data, and sequences; hence I must be content with revivifying their memory. We owe much to Trinity to the old Colonial and Continental Church Society for a generous supply of teachers. One of its earliest teachers was Mr. Benjamin Fleet. He was assisted by his sister Mrs. Simmonds, who, being at the time an invalid, and unable to leave her bed, successfully conducted a class assembled at her bed-side in the old Parsonage. Mr. Fleet was familiarly and affectionately known as "Daddy Fleet," and although he was possessed of a good deal of useful knowledge, plus the faculty of imparting it to others, he was not too familiar with some of the practical things of daily life; and the pupils often took advantage of his credulity, to advise him to their own advantage. When, for instance, the old fashioned box-stove belonging to the school was put up the first winter Mr. Fleet was here, it was found to be disgracefully rusty, and one of the boys advised him to rub it well with fat pork whilst the stove was cold. He did so, with the result that the smoke and fumes from the heated grease, drove everybody from the room the next morning and a half-holiday resulted; which, of course, was the advice he had in his mind when he gave the advice, re the pork. Mr. Fleet taught school in Portugal Cove after he left Trinity, and several years afterwards he was given holy orders. He died at Hopewell—near Kelligrews—and is buried in the Hopewell Cemetery.

Rev. David Martin and Rev. Thomas Baggs taught in the old Colonial School, with such painstaking and thoroughness as made a lasting impression upon the young people of their day, in the practical subjects that were then taught. Those men were in deacons' orders, and are referred to in the Church Registers as "Assistant Ministers" and "Deacon School Masters." They were useful to the priest in charge of the parish, and their services were appreciated by the people. Mr. Baggs died in Trinity, and is buried in the old Church-yard.

Mr. James Campbell taught a select school in the old Court House during the day, and then taught navigation at a school in the school-house, which was held in Mr. Pittman's house on Hog's Nose.

Rev. Mr. Crouch, who was assistant priest to Rev. Benjamin Smith, conducted a private school, chiefly for the children of Mr. Smith and Dr. Johnson in Capel Street. Those of us who remember the culture of Canon Smith, his sister Annie, and his brother Tolson, have some idea of the thoroughness of the accomplishments that were parts of the curriculum. Miss Frances Kelson and Miss Harriet Gaylor taught a private school in the same building.

Mr. Shannon taught for a short time in the old Colonial School, and did also Mr. James Collis, Miss Edwina Collis, Mr. W. J. Kent, Miss Emma Martin, Mr. Philip Jordan, Mr. Robert Randall and Mr. Andrew Tait. Those of us who went to school fifty-five years ago have some vivid recollections of Mr. James Collis and his assistant, Miss Sarah Morel. These were "days of real sport" after we got insured to Mr. Collis' methods of discipline and punishments. His status as a teacher (in common with other teachers I have mentioned), did not depend upon the number of children that mechanically passed a "higher examination" every year, but upon the general qualifications of the young men and women, when after years of careful instruction in practical subjects, they were sent out into the big world, to do their respective duties in the state of life which God had called them; and when judged by this practical standard, Mr. James Collis has nothing to be ashamed of.

Each of the other teachers I have mentioned, rendered a valuable service to the young people of his day and generation in Trinity; whilst Eternity alone will reveal of Miss Emma Martin the extent of her good—spiritual, mental, and physical—that has been, and will be for years to come, the result of her arduous, painstaking, and highly intelligent methods of teaching.

Several of us to-day who are going down the other side of the hill of life, owe a debt of gratitude to Samuel West, for the valuable assistance rendered to us, during the few years that he kept school in Mrs. Kelson's old house; whilst Patrick Fagan, belongs the heartfelt thanks of those of us who were privileged to be instructed by him, during the holidays. In this time a new "Commonwealth" School was built in Trinity, in which Mr. James Goodwin (father of Mrs. Jenkins) was the first teacher. He was followed by James O'Donnell, Miss Chamberlain, Miss Gribble, and Mr. John Stewart, to each and all of whom those who were then being taught owe a debt of gratitude. Last, but by no means least, amongst the Educational aids of the past, was the Private School taught by Miss Mary Elizabeth Crocker in her own home; and the gentle refinement of her personality, as well as the discipline that had to be respected, produced results that had not been met with the formation of Christian character in the individual life. Probably I have (though unintentionally), omitted names of others who, like those I have mentioned, rendered unselfish service to us and ours, and have now gone to their eternal rest. May God be good to them all.

The old Marriage Registers of the Church have a strange fascination for me; and as I read over and over again, the entries of events within the last seventy or eighty years, they take me back in pleasant thought, either to the wedding I remember as a boy, or to the homes of those who were married before I was born. Not only am I interested in the names of those who were married, but also in the names of the witnesses—the "bridesmaids, and maids," as they were known to us. The law demands at least two witnesses to constitute a legal marriage; and whilst the clergy of a hundred years ago were satisfied to keep within the letter of the law in this respect, it did not satisfy Rev. Benjamin Smith, and he pressed into the service of witnesses, everybody who attended church officially with the bride and groom. Let me give a few entries to illustrate this:

Benjamin Smith, and he pressed into the service of witnesses, everybody who attended church officially with the bride and groom. Let me give a few entries to illustrate this:

"Married, Jan. 6th, 1867, Dugald White and Helen Crocker. Witnesses: Stephen Crocker, Mary Ann Crocker, John S. Collis, James M. Collis, Jas. Crocker, Frances I. Collis, Sarah Pittman, Elizabeth Ash."

"Married, Charles Granger and Mary Lockyer, May 15th, 1868. Witnesses: George Lockyer, Sarah B. Lockyer, Charles Granger, Jr., Rachel Morris, Charlotte F. Granger, Mary Lockyer, Miriam Granger."

"Married, James Gent and Frances H. Pittman, December 15th, 1868. Witnesses: William Hart, M. A. Gent, Arthur Tavernor, Eliza Hart, John S. Collis, Annie Bremner, John Pittman, Thomas Collis, James Collis, Joanna Lockyer, Alonso W. Earle, Miriam Granger, Arnold Collis."

"Married, John Sabin Collis and Sarah Pittman, December 23rd, 1869. Witnesses: William Pittman, Margaret C. Thomas, Collis, Joanna Lockyer, Alonso W. Earle, Miriam Granger, Arnold Collis."

The most interesting wedding party of my boyhood days, was one that came to Trinity from the different parts of the Bight—Ireland's Eye, or English Harbor. They always came to Trinity in a cool sailing boat, and usually landed at George Stoneman's wharf. As the procession passed Mr. Christian's shop, where I was working at the time, all work in the shop was suspended till we counted the couples, ribbons and sashes of the bridesmaids, and saw whether the bride's hat was of the father-giver was too big or too small for her. The same hat always adorned the father-giver, no matter whether he had a big head or small one. The understanding of those days was: "If it is a wedding, let it be a wedding," and hence no expense was spared for ribbons and gunpowder. A local custom was responsible for continuing the firing of guns till daylight and hence the saying, which is still a familiar one: "Like an Ireland's Eye wedding; a scattered gun all night."

Truly, Man proposes, but God disposes. Mr. Thomas Morel left Trinity a fortnight ago for his old home in the island of Jersey, where he had planned to spend his last days. Though all his friends in Trinity bade him God speed, and hoped that he might be many of his days, his heart, yet knowing his great physical weakness, they hardly dared to believe that he would be equal to the sea voyage. They had not thought any serious efforts from the train journey to St. John's, yet that journey proved too much for him, and after a few days in St. John's, he was taken to the hospital. Mrs. Eriksen was on a business trip to St. John's. Magistrate Somerton paid an official visit to Careville this week. Mr. Samuel Grant has erected a wayside Gasoline supply tank near his garage. The forty members of the G.F.S. (Girls' Friendly Society) held their 25th anniversary meeting in the Hall on Tuesday evening last. It was not open to the public, nor was there any admission fee. Each member was permitted to bring a friend, and an interesting entertainment was given by the members, consisting of vocal and instrumental selections, dramatic recitations, etc., after which all enjoyed a cup of tea. Mrs. Samuel Grant was the pianist. It was in every respect a Friendly Entertainment.

Amongst those upon whom degrees were conferred at King's College Convocation (Windsor, N.S.) on May 15th, was Rev. David B. Bailey of this parish. He received the degree of B.D. (Bachelor of Divinity) and the man who can pass the necessary qualifications for this degree at King's College, may well be proud of his knowledge. We offer to Rev. David Bailey, and to his parents at Bonaventure, our sincere congratulations. Score another for the parish of Trinity!

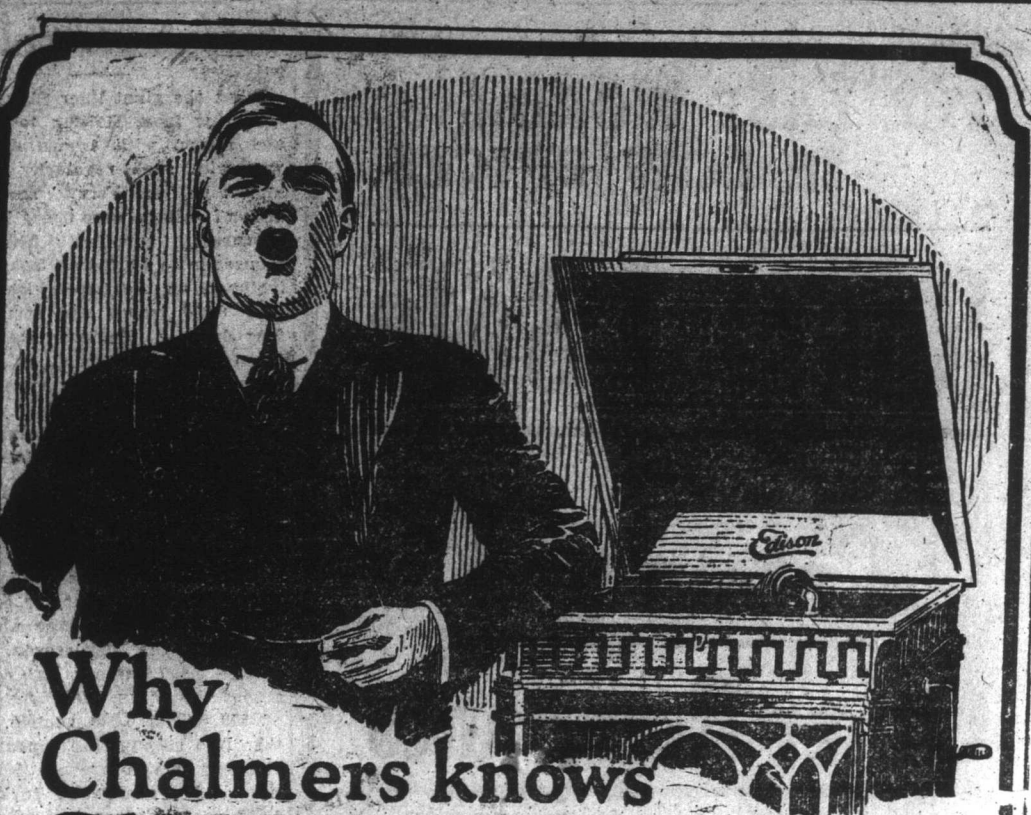

The Bishop of Newfoundland was the preacher in All Saints Cathedral, Halifax, at the opening service of the annual meeting of Synod. He was also the principal speaker at the Synod Missionary meeting, held the next evening at St. Paul's, Halifax. It was a message from old St. Paul's of Trinity, Newfoundland, to old St. Paul's of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Why Chalmers knows The NEW EDISON gives his true voice

BECAUSE he has compared his voice with its RE-CREATION by the New Edison. Because thousands of people have heard this comparison. Because no one distinguished any difference between his living voice and his RE-CREATED voice.

Don't take the statement of an artist that a phonograph gives his true voice. See whether that phonograph can sustain the comparison test. If it can't, you know that such phonograph does not give you the artist's true voice, but merely a mechanical version of its own. Think about these things! Then remember that the New Edison does sustain the comparison test, that it is the only phonograph which sustains the comparison test; and that we are always glad to prove this to you.

If you love music, your credit is good here. You can arrange your payments on a gentleman's agreement.

In looking over the Christian names of people who lived in Trinity a hundred years ago, I have not found any for males, that are very different from those of the present day. There are several, however, for females, that, though more or less common two generations ago, are not found in our midst to-day, for example:—Tabitha, Tally, Silence, Sweet, Selah, Canilla, Selah. There may be good reasons for giving up such names as Tally and Silence, but surely no man ever voted to discontinue the appropriate name Sweet! and yet it has been ruled out by somebody. It must be the women who did it. I wonder!

Food on a Giant Liner.

When the giant liner Olympic made her trips from Halifax to Liverpool and return with troops during the war with such regularity as to be known as "the Ferry," many thousands of dollars were spent in Halifax purchasing supplies. There were thousands to be fed on board, as for instance, on the trip which she had over 8,000 troops who remained for four days in Bedford Basin until given orders to depart, as well as being six days on the voyage. This meant supplies for 10 days, and with her crew practically bringing the total on board to 7,000, which meant 210,000 meals for the voyage. Now that she has been restored to her place as a regular liner, it will be interesting to quote from an article in the New York Times which says: "6,500 pounds of meat are eaten in a single day on a voyage aboard the Olympic in the busy season. The ship carries 3,500 persons on each trip across the ocean, including her crew of 875. This 6,500 pounds does not take into account the consumption of chickens, which average 500 a day; nor ducks, geese and turkeys; nor 1,000 game birds eaten on each voyage; nor fish, the latter averaging 3,000 pounds a day.

In addition to these staples, the people on board manage to dispose of 4,000 eggs daily, and 480 quarts of milk every twenty-four hours. Butter is consumed at the rate of 200 pounds a day, and 2,700 jars of jam and 1,800 jars of marmalade disappear on the voyage like dew before the rising sun. For each round trip twenty-five tons of potatoes are taken aboard.

Three tons of carrots, three tons of turnips, 2,000 heads of cabbage, weight-five tons, are also taken aboard for every voyage. A hundred crates of lettuce, a ton of Bermuda onions, or a similar quantity of Brussels sprouts, are ordinary items in the ship's victualling list. When supplies are ordered, 250 boxes are none too many for the trip. Grape fruit comes aboard 100 boxes at a time and oranges in 200 box lots.

Included in the meat item of provisions for the voyage are 8,000 lbs of bacon and 2,500 pounds of ham, which are the principal salt meats carried. Lamb and mutton figure largely in the fresh meat supply, about 300 carcasses being taken aboard.

But the great staple in meat is fresh beef. It may be said that the public when crossing the ocean travels on beef. It demands meat three times a day. Whether the voyager occupies a first, second or third cabin, he must have his meat; and whether it comes to the table as sirloin steak, rib roast or filet mignon in the first-class dining-room, or as plain roast beef in the second class or beef stew or baked beef in the third, it is the best quality of beef that money can buy—the complete opposite of the "salt horse" served on the old-time sea voyages. The roast beef alone for a single day on the Olympic totals 1,500 pounds.

The condition of the food served at sea on the great liner is always prime. Refrigerators that have a capacity for 5,000 tons of food are freshly filled for each voyage, and they keep everything put into them in perfect condition. Milk and cream are kept sweet for a week's voyage without the use of preservatives. Lettuce is as crisp after travelling 3,000 miles as when received on board. Fruit also keeps for long periods. Ice, to supply the refrigerator, is made daily—the amount required being 3,000 pounds every twenty-four hours.—Acadian Recorder.

When a Government Goes Into Business.

The fact that while Winnipeg has piled up a surplus of $100,000 in connection with the Manitoba Government telephone system, the enterprise as a whole has created a deficit of $200,000 is bringing home to the residents of the prairie metropolis a realization of some of the weaknesses of the public ownership theory. The Tribune calls attention to the fact that the Winnipeg user is charged less than the cost of his phone while the user elsewhere is charged less than the cost of his phone—and the more the system is extended the greater the loss and consequently the bigger the bill Winnipeg has to pay.

Pointing out that the deficit of the system increased from $25,000 to $200,000 in one year, the Tribune declares that increased wages and higher costs of material do not explain a loss of more than $1,000 per day but that the showing can only be explained in excess labor and inefficiency. A friend of public ownership, the Tribune is hoping—and it would seem to be foolish hope—for better things when it says:

"The people of Manitoba are committed to the principle of public ownership in a good many directions and they look forward much more to the extension of its operation than the reverse. But they assuredly propose in all matters where they are responsible, to have ordinary principles of business economy applied to the transaction of their affairs. In the provincial telephones there has been an obvious departure from these principles. Here is a brilliant opportunity for zealous reformers to lay their hands to a practical achievement and bring their theories to earth."—Financial Post.

"REG'LAR FELLERS"

Playing the Game at Monte Carlo.

Replying to the criticism against women who find entertainment in the gambling which Monte Carlo provides, under the heading of "Vanity Fair," a writer in the San Francisco "Argonaut" has the following interesting remarks to make: "The moralist—who, by the way, is usually a most immoral person—holds up pious hands in horror at the sight of the women who crowd the gambling rooms at Monte Carlo. Play, it seems, ought not to be allowed at a time when the whole world is in misery, although those whose minds are still unclouded by uplift are likely to think that this is exactly the time when play should be, not only allowed, but encouraged. But then the moralist has ways of thinking—he calls it thinking—all his own. The remedy for tears, according to him, is more tears instead of luck. What is beginners' luck? Either these games are games of chance, or they are not games of chance. And if they are games of chance, how can there be such a thing as beginners' luck? Is there such a thing? Gamblers all over the world say that there is. No gambler is so intelligent as to be proof against the conviction that there are ways to woo the goddess of chance, and that she will surely respond if only she be addressed in the right manner and in the language that she understands. Here at Monte Carlo are hard-headed bankers, lawyers, merchants, who change their chairs every half-hour, who choose their seats according to the color of the hair of the woman on the other side of the table, who persuade young girls to place their stakes for them. What superstitions! What strange aberrations of the mind! What insults to reason! How easily we cite the old formulas of superiority. But in our heart of hearts, we believe that there is "beginners' luck" in all things, that it is wise to "bet on our luck," and that if we laugh at prejudices and omens it is well also to observe them.

Is there such a thing as chance, or is chance only the name that we give to laws that we do not yet understand? It is a curious fact that those who see most of the workings of chance believe it in the least. The croupiers at Monte Carlo tell us that it is by no means the uneducated or the weak-minded gamblers who watch for omens and presages. On the contrary, it is usually they who laugh at them. It is the man of education and intelligence who is "superstitious." Familiarity with the elusive wheel and the agile dice seems to produce the conviction that they are not governed by chance, but by law, and that an omens is no more than an indication of the way in which that law works. And it may be said that the croupiers themselves—and some of them have written fascinating books—are by no means inclined to laugh at superstitions. All too often they have watched them "work."

Of course it is all very absurd. We must keep our common sense at all costs—those of us that have any. It is an entirely humdrum and everyday sort of world in which we live. Actually there are no mysteries, none at all. There are no undiscovered laws of nature. Have we not been told over and over again by the scientific changes who write for the Sunday supplements that the last secrets have been wrested from the reluctant hands of nature, and that there is no such thing as fate or destiny, that the roulette wheel stops when it does because—oh, well, because it does, even though it decree a suicide, a broken-hearted wife, a family ruined to the third generation? But the gambler does not believe in chance. He is a non-contentious cuss and will not argue about it. Curiously enough, the soldier does not believe in chance either, not after he has seen the storms of bullets sweep over the stricken field. He believes that every bullet has its billet, that it either carries your name or it does not—and that you can no more avoid the bullet intended for you than you can avoid the tax collector. A most curious superstition, and one quite unworthy of the intelligent attention of those who stayed at home and who never faced either a bullet or a dice-box. And so perhaps we may begin to understand why the bereaved women who for so many years have been watching the continental table

SPREADING DISEASES. Defective teeth, diseased gums, discharging abscesses, gum boils are positively dangerous because of the spreading of the infection to other parts of the body; indeed that infection can spread to other parts of the body. More than this, those suffering from these conditions are more likely to contract diseases entirely apart from the infections themselves. Their systems are likely to be permeated with virulent germs and therefore in no condition to make the resistance necessary to ward off these other afflictions.

presentation to Mr. March.
A deputation of friends waited on Mr. March Monday evening and presented him with an address and a purse of gold. An account of the event is unfortunately crowded out of this issue, but will appear in our next. The Star is happy to associate with the deputation and with the larger body of friends and fellow citizens of the venerable recipient, who appreciate the outstanding services to the community and to his country. We are ourselves indebted to his initiative and wider conception, for it was his mind which conceived and his money which gave birth to the Western Star. It was his pen which contributed to its first issue, and his son, the late Walter March, was its first editor. The Star joins with his host of friends in felicitating Mr. March on this occasion and expresses the wish that he may be long spared to see the fruition of the good wishes he has so recently been the recipient. —Western Star, May 11.

What About This?

WHO IS THE ST. JOHN'S CORRESPONDENT?

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 16.—Threats of the unemployed here to close the legislative assembly and to take by force for their families food now in storage, led representatives of the Colonial Government and the city Saturday night to arrange a relief programme to be put into effect on Monday.

Under the plan devised one thousand men will be given employment on public works in and around the city. Efforts will be made to obtain loans from the banks during the week to make possible a larger programme.

Appeals have been received from Clergymen, magistrates and others in the fishing settlements along the coast for the extension of Government aid to the fishermen, large numbers of whom have been unable to purchase equipment for the annual codfishery.—Morning Chronicle, Halifax.

Civic Commission.

WEEKLY MEETING.

The Weekly Meeting of the Municipal Commission was held Thursday last. Commissioner Morris presided; Commissioners Ayre, Peet, Jackson and Vincombe were present.

The Minutes of the previous meeting were read, after which Commissioner Ayre referred to the sudden passing of the wife of the Deputy Mayor, which occurred within the past few days, and moved the Council place on record its sympathy with the Deputy Mayor in his great sorrow.

A communication was read from the Colonial Secretary, stating that guarantee had been forwarded the Royal Bank of Canada for the loan required by the Municipality.

Manager J. Hubert of the Royal Bank of Canada informed the Council the loan required for Water and Sewerage extensions was now available.

The Auditor General wrote re pipes supplied the Council for water extension to Poor Asylum, which, he understood, would be a charge against Council. The pipes in question were given for the purpose of adequate water supply to the Asylum, in case of fire. An arrangement was entered into between the Prime Minister and the Council whereby the Government were to supply the pipes and the Council to do the necessary trenching, pipe-laying and back-filling.

Application of the Royal Bank of Canada for water and sewer connections to new Bank Building will be attended to.

Mr. Alfred Rees asked compensation for loss of this year's hay crop, through the opening of new road, Meyraside to Portage Road. This was referred to the City Engineer for inquiry.

Communication was received from Mrs. M. Moore regarding appropriation of property, Waterford Bridge Road.

Mid Atlantic Fisheries, Ltd., stated scows, moored near the Trestle Bridge, would be removed.

Wm. Griffiths, Power Street, asked that attention be given this year, for the application to hold Band Concerts in Bannerman and Victoria Parks during the summer months. Same were ordered to stand over.

A petition was read, from the residents of Ford's Hill, asking for extension of water and sewerage to this locality. Same will be given consideration.

Resident of Lincoln's Lane asked that the widening of this lane be undertaken. This matter will be given attention as soon as possible.

Plan submitted by L. J. Stephenson for Cadogan's "L'Amour" Road was passed, subject to Engineer's approval. Permit for repairs will be given R. Williams, Pleasant Street.

Within the past few weeks the re-numbering of the extension, Patrick Street, was undertaken. Numbers placed on the houses, in some cases, had been removed by owners, who refused to recognize same. The matter was referred to the Solicitor.

Reports of City Engineer, Health Officer and various Departments were read; the payrolls and bills were ordered paid, after which the meeting adjourned.

Help the Child.

Young men and maidens yours is the responsibility yours is the privilege to attend in full strength on Monday night the Daughters of Empire Dance for the benefit of the sick and poor children of this town. The society of "Daughters" knows no distinction of class or creed and its membership is open both to age and youth, while its object is entirely patriotic and social. The executive of this organization realize that the destiny of our country will one day rest entirely in the hands of the children of the present, hence their efforts to save the children is a noble ambition and deserves the backing and whole hearted support of this community. It is therefore up to our young people to enter into the spirit of this enterprise and to decide for this one night to act as bankers for the less fortunate children of their home town. This they can do by attending the Monday night dance in full force, and it is needless to remark that in the matter of refreshment and material comforts, those in charge of the sale will maintain their usual high standard of excellence. All that is needed is the co-operation and activity of both young and old and the result will be a happy committee who have taken upon themselves the task of voluntary labour in the peculiarly valuable work of Child Welfare.—DUNES.

This Freezer is small, but it will make two quarts of Ice Cream, enough for quite a large family. It weighs only 2 1/2 lbs., and may be kept on the pantry shelf. It saves ice, for it requires about half as much as a freezer with a wooden tub. It can be placed in an ordinary refrigerator after the cream is frozen.

This saves ice and time and labor in packing.
