Lord Cecil's Dilemma

The Picnic

Woodall Forest

CHAPTER XLIII.

"Nothing, if you will persist in your delicate state of health. Do you think that I am blind—that I cannot see that you are ill? I believe that you parted on friendly terms! Why this change?"

"For an instant it occurred to her that she had misjudged him—that he knew nothing of the stolen letter. But, no! Why had he been to the Stanthorpes—to Swinford Abbey? Why had he come here? He had learned all about the letter—he had denounced her to Lady Gladys—he had come to denounce her to Sir Charles!"

Her knees threatened to give way, and she stepped forward to help her to a chair, saying:

"I have heard from Lady Hastings that you are upon the point of returning home, and consider that you are acting rashly, Miss Craythorne."

Though his tones of sympathy surprised her, she ignored his speech.

"Mr. Gardner," she said, coldly, "I believe that you picked up an envelope, when you were here last, addressed to Sir Charles Hastings?"

"I did," he replied, uneasily.

"And you knew that it was from Lady Gladys Howard?" Her tones wavered a little.

"Yes, I knew that also."

"Why did you take that envelope away?" she demanded, fiercely.

"Do you press the question? I feel that I am at a disadvantage."

"I demand a reply," was the reply.

"Well, I was shocked to think that the inclosure had not reached Sir Charles—that you had—"

"Told it? You were right; but I have made reparation, and I don't

The Right Brush

HE is using the Prophy-lactic Tooth Brush, brushing the upper teeth downward and the lower teeth upward, and employing a rotary motion so that the tufted bristles can reach between the teeth. The curved handle enables him to clean even the backs of his back teeth.

Save your teeth and your money by visiting your dentist four times a year.

Frequent examinations cost little—delays are expensive.

Clean the teeth regularly twice a day with the Prophy-lactic Tooth Brush.

Adult's, youth's, and child's sizes. Always sold in the yellow box. For sale by leading druggists.

Lord Cecil's dilemma in to put me a lifetime of sorrow. Man, are you ever a coward that you persecute a woman?"

Gardner was astonished by the fierce outburst, and his cheek flushed guiltily.

"Miss Craythorne," he replied, sternly, "you misjudge me. I have not persecuted you—no one knows from me one thought of my suspicions. You must remember that Sir Charles and I have never had a thought apart. I knew of his love for Lady Gladys. I saw your passion for him; Lady Hastings told me of it. To me his happiness is dearer than my own, and I had already formed so high an opinion of you that I was pained even to think that my ideal of womanhood should have stepped from the pedestal upon which I had placed her! Yes, you may start, Miss Craythorne—you may even look incredulous—but I admired you from the moment I first beheld you. I treated Lady Hastings' words with contempt until I saw that you cared for her son, and I knew that your passion was hopeless. I know it, because he had laid bare to me every incident of his life. Then came the episode of the envelope, and while feeling shocked and grieved, I had to acknowledge to myself that I would have given worlds for the love of a woman like you. Is that not very strange? I heard that you had bound Sir Charles to you by some promise, and I knew that it was madness for him and for you. I came to warn you, Miss Craythorne, if you persisted in holding a sick man to a promise made when his faculties were numbed—when he was overwhelmed by feelings of gratitude for you—I came to warn you of the ultimate misery that you would entail upon both. You were right when you called it a moment of madness. It was that, and nothing more, and I rejoiced to know that it is over. It has taken a weight from my mind—a weight of sorrow and regret that you may never know!"

Miss Craythorne listened to him in amazement, but she could not forget the humiliation, the shame, that surrounded her.

"My judge is very lenient," she said, a little scornfully, "I could almost imagine that he is practicing the amateur theatricals."

"It was an unkind remark, and she regretted it as soon as uttered, for a look of acute pain crossed his fine face. She had entered at his sincerity; had cast a doubt upon it.

"I have one request to make," he continued. "I wish you to forego your determination to leave here to-day. You are not yet strong, and a storm is rising—"

She interrupted him with a haughty gesture.

"Sir, this is insolence!" She rose from the chair, angrily, and laid a letter upon the table before him.

"This is the answer to a communication I received from you yesterday, and also refers to other matters, particularly concerning yourself, which came to me accidentally. If you will await me one favor, and—"

Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER III.

But, even at this his first interview with Lady Iris, he did not feel quite so sure on the latter point. She would require a great deal of wooing—that was quite certain; she would not be won by a few amities and honeyed words. He would have to take pains over the process. Never for one moment did it occur to him that he could by any possibility be refused.

"I shall be compelled to give myself some trouble," he thought, "but she is worth the winning."

Yet the more sincerely he watched her the more uncertain he grew. Her face was so beautiful and so proud that he could scarcely believe it under a mortal crown. She could never dream of it as attained by love, or made tender by human passion. Hence he lost some of his customary ease before he had been in her presence very long. He saw that he must exert himself to amuse Lady Iris, and that he must do so in a way that was a

Household Notes

When mayonnaise curdles, set it aside and start making a fresh supply. As soon as this begins to thicken, beat in the curdled mayonnaise slowly.

To make tartar sauce for fish, add three tablespoons finely chopped pickles and olives and one tablespoon finely chopped parsley to a cup of mayonnaise.

Sew a snap on each button corner of your curtains, and one on each edge near the top. They can be snapped up each night and saved from rain.

If going on a long automobile trip, prepare dinner and put in a one-compartment wireless cooker. It will be fully cooked when you reach your destination.

Peaches and pineapple make an unequalled conserve. To 1 pint peaches, use 1 cup pineapple, 2 1/2 cups sugar, and the juice and rind of both an orange and a lemon.

For yellow sauce, beat 1 cup milk, pour over two egg yolks beaten with 1/2 cup sugar; cook in double boiler until thick; cool, and add 1/2 teaspoon lemon extract.

Fashion Plates

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A FINE WARM WEATHER GARMENT.

4087. The clearest notes have inspired the making of children's fashions. This little dress may be used as an apron if desired, or as a dress worn over knickerbockers or bloomers. Satton, cretonne or percale are good materials for this model. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8, and 10 years. A 6 year size requires 1 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. Patterns mailed to any address on receipt of 15c in silver or stamps.

A FLASHING APRON DRESS.

4082. This model supplies the place of a house dress and is adapted for all house keeping activities. It is comfortable, neat and simple pocket. Checked or striped gingham with piping for the bands would be good for this style. Volls, percale, poplin, cotton crepe, chambray, linen and unbleached muslin are also good for this style. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 34-38; Medium, 38-40; Large, 40-44; Extra Large, 44-48 inches bust measure. A Medium size will require 2 yards of 36 inch material. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15c in silver or stamps.

DELCO LIGHT

More than 100,000 Delco Light lamps were used in the war. They were used in electric light in camps, stations, hospitals, Y. M. C. A. halls, airplane hangars, and in the branches of the service.

In Red Cross hospitals at the front, Delco Light lamps were used for electric light.

Delco Light was specified by the Government because it is dependable, efficient, simple, compact, requires little attention, and because it is DELCO.

The quality of Government lamps is the satisfactory one. Delco Light lamps are your assurance that you get the best. Same Delco, reliable service.

Delco Light lamps are made in the U.S.A. and are guaranteed for one year.

Greek Forces Utterly Routed.

Allied Troops Landed at Smyrna --- Irish Republican Leader Reported a Prisoner.

PARIS, Sept. 6. Latest advices reaching official circles here on the Asia Minor situation indicate that all that remains of the Greek army is one hundred thousand men fleeing in utter disorder before the victorious Turkish Nationalists, at a rate of more than sixty miles from the Mediterranean. These advices indicate that probably only half that number of Greeks will reach the sea, the organized fighting units of the Greeks are forty miles from the Sea of Marmora. The Turkish advance, however, is stated to be more than a hundred and thirty miles, which experts here say is one of the fastest advances in all the history of wars.

U.S. DESTROYERS FOR SMYRNA. WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. Acting Secretary of State Roosevelt on Tuesday ordered Admiral Bristol, the United States Fifth Commissioner at Constantinople, to dispatch a force of destroyers to Smyrna to protect lives and property.

AUSTRIAN REPRESENTATIVE WAKES UP LEAGUE. GENEVA, Sept. 6. Chancellor Seipel, of Austria, made a marked impression on the Council of the League of Nations to-day, when he warned the members that Austria would take measures to break the economic ties around her, unless the League was able to do something for her.

25 BODIES RECOVERED. WHITEHAVEN, Sept. 6. Twenty-five bodies had been recovered Wednesday from the pit in which forty men were imprisoned by an explosion on Tuesday. A heavy fall of rock and much gas hampered the rescue work and it is feared the pit will be sealed as in the case of the accident in a neighbouring mine 12 years before when 135 workmen lost their lives.

POISONED BY WOOD ALCOHOL. NEW YORK, Sept. 6. The sixth death attributable to wood alcohol poisoning in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn this week occurred to-day.

McMILLAN'S DISCOVERIES. SYDNEY, Sept. 6. After penetrating into the frozen arctic along the western coast of Baffin Land to a point never before reached by a white man, Donald B. McMillan, arctic explorer, reached Sydney on Wednesday on his schooner Bowdoin on the return to civilization, after fourteen months in the north. During his time in the North, he discovered that considerable land alleged to have been found by "North-west" Fox over three hundred years ago does not exist. The Fox Channel is a much larger body of water than formerly believed, and the entire map of the western coast of Baffin Land would have to be revised. "We had an excellent winter, no sickness and the entire trip was a great success in every way," Captain McMillan said.

NO CHANGE IN INDIAN POLICY. TUESDAY, Sept. 5. The Viceroy of India, Earl of Reading, in opening the session of State and the Indian legislative session emphatically reiterated that there would be no change in the policy of His Majesty's Government towards India, according to a Reuters despatch from Simla. If there is any shadow of doubt on that point, he reminded the members, they must surely have been dispelled by the statement Premier Lloyd George had authorized him to make in reference to the former's recent speech in the House of Commons, in which he said India would require the services of the civil service staff for an indefinite period.

McMILLAN PARTY AT SYDNEY. JACKSON, Cal., Sept. 6. A despatch from Sydney states that the auxiliary exploration schooner Bowdoin, carrying Donald B. McMillan and party, arrived in Harbor this morning from Baffin Bay. The expedition set out from Boston a year ago and has been in the Arctic regions since that time.

Plot Against Roumanian Royalty. BUCHAREST, Roumania, Sept. 5. A plot to kill the Royal family while attending the races has been uncovered and a number of former Hungarian officers arrested.

Secret of Long Life. Can the human span of life be prolonged to a term of 150 years? What is claimed to be another epoch-making secret has been wrested from the serum discovered by Dr. Henri Spahlinger, the world-famous Swiss scientist and bacteriologist, whose serum and vaccine treatment for the cure of consumption represents the most successful effort yet made to rid mankind of this mortal disease. Injections of ferments from the Spahlinger serum are stated to have resulted in a rejuvenation and prolongation of the life of the body that equal, if they do not surpass, the wonders of the curative effects of the serum injected in the consumption. Accredited scientists and medical men, associated with Dr. Spahlinger in his researches, confidently hold that injections of the serum ferments, which stimulate and revivify the body cells, will in time prolong the human span of life to a term of 150 years. If their hopes are fulfilled monkey glands will be out of date. The Spahlinger serum takes anything from one to four years to produce, and at the present stage of work seven horses are required for manufacturing one complete treatment. History in Surnames.
THEIR CURIOUS ORIGINS.
It is by no means every man who knows that in the name he bears there is probably an interesting and valuable clue to his ancestry.
Thus, if he signs it Harcourt or Venables, Pelham or Percival, Denny or Daubney, he may be pretty sure that the founder of his family had his cradling in Normandy—though whether he was a lord, knight or a scullion is hidden from him.
Similarly, if he bears the name of any town or village in England, or of a county that village or town was the cradle of his forefathers, though here, again, he gets no clue to the quality of his first bearer, who might be the lord of manors, or an honest tradesman or artisan. And when there are several places of the same name, often in different countries, he is still ignorant as to which of them he originally hails from.
Even when a man's surname throws no light on the place of origin, it often gives interesting clues to past history. Thus, if he is called Tanner or Glover, Butcher or Baker, Carter or Carpenter, he may know that the first of his forefathers to bear that name followed one or other of these occupations.

The First Thwaites.
The first Thwaites was a feller of wood; Jensen was a joiner; Wilson a miller; Webster, a maker of shoes and spurs; and so on through the long list of old-time trades, many of them now scarcely identifiable by the average man—such as stringer, a man who made bow-strings; Tiger, who tipped arrows; and Fletcher, who affixed the feathers.
When surnames throw no light on the place of origin, they occasionally reveal the situation of the origin home. Thus, Tom who lived at the foot of the hill was labelled Underhill; if his home was on the shore, he was Tom-by-the-sea. And similarly, we get such patronymics as Undercliff, Alwood, Almsor, Dymish, and so on.

Buddy Russell.
Other surnames tell us what kind of man were they who first bore them. Dark or Fair; Ruddy (Russett) or pale (Whiteman); whether they were "long" or "short" or "broad"; "Marry" or "Sadd"; "Bold" or "Coward"; "Lightfoot" or "Heavyhide."
When in those olden days there was no such way of distinguishing a man, it was an easy matter to identify him as his father's son. Thus, Richardson boys became known as Richardsons; Williams as Williamsons; and Robins as Robinsons. And when in process of time, these labels became plentiful and confusing, the father's name was prefixed to other surnames to such an extent, indeed, that the connection is almost impossible to trace.

For years I have never considered my stock of household remedies complete unless a bottle of Erasmic Liment was included. Erasmic Liment sprains, frostbites or chilblains it excels, and I know of no better remedy for a severe cold in the head, or that will give more immediate relief than to inhale from the bottle through the nasal organ.
And as to my supply of veterinary remedies it is essential, as it has in very many instances proven its value. A recent experience in reclaiming what was supposed to be a lost section of a valuable cow's udder has again demonstrated its great worth, and prompts me to recommend it in the highest terms to all who have a herd of cows, large or small. I think I am safe in saying among all the patent medicines there is none that covers an larger field of usefulness as does Erasmic Liment. A real trueland-good for man or beast.

A Legend!

Here is an account of an Indian legend. The souls of the poor were standing in front of the closed gates of heaven. They gazed yearningly at the gates, which did not open. Suddenly word came "Make way, make way, O souls, a rich Maharajah's spirit is on its way to heaven and must be instantly admitted." He was admitted, and the weary waiting spirits cried: "Is existence still to be the same for us as it was when we lived upon earth?" "Oh, silence, rebellious ones!" cried the gatekeeper. "Surely, surely, you know that the road to heaven is an easy one for the poor to traverse. You have no temptations in your passage save the ills of poverty. You have not to combat with the lust of the eye, with the arrogance of riches, with the evil wrought by flattery, with the misuse of power. Think what allurement this ruler must have resisted in order to prepare himself for heaven. It is a stupendous feat for a Maharajah to have accomplished, and, added the gatekeeper, unctuously, "we seldom see them here, therefore it behooves us to give instant admittance to such a rare arrival." "And the souls of the poor were silent, for they recognized the words of wisdom which the gatekeeper had spoken."

Fishes Eggs Vary Greatly

SOME FLOAT FREELY WHILE OTHERS SINK TO BOTTOM. You know those old black, purple-like oysters so often picked up on the beach, and which they call "mermaid's purses." They are almost black in color, crinkled and empty; and at each corner there projects a sort of tendril. They really are the empty shells of eggs of dog fish or the skates, and the tendril were originally useful in attaching the eggs to the stalk of some seaweed. The dog-fish does not lay so many eggs as do other fish, and since these take a long time to hatch—some as much as ten months—it is quite necessary that they should be placed in a safe place, and not left to drift at the mercy of every current.

All the fish of the shark family, to which the skates belong, lay these odd, horn-shaped eggs; but most other fish lay round eggs, which have not the same means of attachment to weeds or to the bottom. Some are heavier than water, and therefore sink to the bottom; others float.

NESTING FISH.

The eggs of the salmon are a good example of heavy eggs. They lie on the bottom in hollows in gravel, scooped by the parent fish. Flukes, on the other hand, lay floating eggs, and so do most of the flat fish, such as turbot, sole and dab. Cod's eggs also float, but the eggs of the herring float to the bottom of the sea. Salmon eggs lie separate, one from another, and so do those of trout and char, but the eggs of are attached to one another in long ribbons. The egg of the roach are sticky, and when laid they sink to the bottom and attach themselves to roots and other objects. Eels devour great numbers of them, and possibly not one in a thousand hatches out.

There are few varieties of fish that behave like the birds, building regular nests in which to lay their eggs, and tending them carefully until hatched. The best known in this country is the stickleback, and, oddly enough, it is the male fish which, once the eggs are laid, take complete charge of them until they hatch out. If he did not guard them, the unnatural mother would return and devour them.

Hottest Place. The weather won't get any hotter than 134 degrees Fahrenheit, because that is the highest temperature ever recorded at the United States weather bureau's sub-station at Greenland Ranch in Death Valley, according to Meteorologist Andrew H. Palmer, stationed there. It is the hottest known region on the face of the earth.

INSOLVENCY PETITION. (Before Chief Justice Horwood.) In the matter of the petition of James D. Russell and Albert Soper, alleging that Maurice J. Malone of St. John's, shopkeeper, is insolvent and prays that he may be so declared.

Slept in Barn. Two youths, each 17 years of age, were charged in the Police Court today with vagrancy. They were found sleeping in a barn filled with hay. One of the accused has a home in St. John's and he was ordered to return to it. The other belongs to Boston, but he was told that he must live with her or find some other home.

Quits. An elaborately-dressed woman got into a smoking-compartment just as the train was moving. A few minutes later she informed a man who was smoking a pipe that she would be obliged if he would not smoke. "Do not object to the smell of tobacco, ma'am?" he inquired, politely. "Yes," she said, emphatically. "Well," he replied, with a laugh, "I'm sorry, but as it happens, I object to the smell of scotch—so we are quits."

'The King's Pilgrimage.'

'Our King went forth on pilgrimage His prayer and vows to pay To those that saved our Heritage And cast their own away.'

of attention to the recent strike at Hawke Bay, and laments the fact that men engaged in cutting pit props are not given a living wage.

He uses strong language, when he says that 'any man except a thief or a robber—unless he is totally ignorant of wood cutting—will agree with me when I say that $6.00 per cord would be little enough to pay.'

We shall now show Mr. Boone that at the current price per cord, the man who does an average day's work in a logging industry, can make a good living out of it.

The average man can cut a cord of wood a day and strip it, for this only necessitates the removal of four strips of bark from each log.

Fish and Exchange.

With the recent fall in the value of the Portuguese escudo, the difficulties of profitably marketing our fish in that country are greatly enhanced, despite the fact that the demand is large.

The only salvation, then, is the discovery of new markets. South America has been hitherto, almost unexplored from this point of view.

We have sent fish to Brazil, it is true, but there are numerous other countries in the continent which would, in all probability, take our fish and pay us well for it.

Good Intentions.

We admire the good intentions which inspired Mr. F. B. Boone to contribute a letter on industrial conditions to Tuesday's Advocate, but we deprecate his failure to obtain information concerning that whereof he wrote.

Strikers Seize Steamer

150 Men Board S.S. Home at Hawke Harbour—Department of Justice Will Take Action.

The labour situation at Hawke Harbour was brought to a climax yesterday when 150 strikers boarded the coastal steamer Home and demanded to be taken to Humbermouth.

The only intimation of the seizure of the steamer that has been received came to the Reid Newfoundland Co. in a message from Capt. Noyman of the Home.

The Department of Justice intends to take action in the matter and arrest of the ring leaders who are known is expected to take place during the week.

It is possible that the strikers on arrival at Humbermouth will board the first train going to St. John's and demand free passage to their homes. So far as can be learned, no steps have been taken to prevent this.

STEAMER SEIZED.

The Home arrived at Hawke Harbour yesterday, on her return from Battle Harbour, her Northern terminus. She was brought into the wharf and then boarded by 150 men, although the means employed by them in getting to the ship, are unknown.

The raiders approached Capt. Norman, informed him that they had no money, and demanded a passage to Humbermouth. The matter was reported to the Reid Newfoundland Co., and orders were given for the ship to proceed to Bay of Islands as usual.

Head Constable Peet and three constables, who were stationed at Hawke Harbour, were powerless to prevent the seizure of the steamer.

It is possible that a train will be provided for the raiders when they reach Humbermouth this afternoon. If not, they will probably take the law into their own hands.

Juvenile Court.

ELEVEN CHILDREN CHARGED WITH LARCENY.

Eleven children were charged with larceny before Magistrate McCarthy in the Juvenile Court to-day.

Two young boys pleaded guilty to stealing a fishing outfit from a motor car. Part of the goods was recovered. A fine of $5 or 14 days each was inflicted, the fine covering the value of the goods not replaced.

Four boys, the eldest of whom was 12 years, were charged with stealing footballs and other articles from a city bookstore. As the goods were returned the accused were discharged, but at the request of the manager of the shop, who stated that larceny was of frequent occurrence during his busy season, the parents of the boys were called in and asked to do chastise the young offenders.

Three small boys pleaded guilty to the larceny of $20.40. They had picked up a cheque to this value and had cashed it. None of the money was returned and fines were imposed to cover the value of the stolen cheque.

Two tiny boys, one only 9 years of age, were charged with the larceny of cigarettes and coppers from a shop. Their parents were sent for and instructed to make good the amount stolen and deal with the children.

Boy Burnt at Stake.

'Playing cowboys,' Billie Durbin, a seven-year-old boy of Akron, Ohio, was lassoed by his playmates, who were making believe to be Indians.

The latter roped their prisoner in the most approved style, and then tied him to a stake. The roared faggots about his feet, soaked them with petrol, and set them alight. Then they began a war dance around their victim, but the leaping flames and the terrified child's screams of pain soon frightened them to stillness. Billie died later. A passing pedestrian rescued him from the stake, but not until he had been hurt beyond hope of recovery.

From Holland to Newfoundland.

During the present summer arrangements have been finalized with one of Holland's oldest and most extensive manufacturers, whereby the Dominion of Newfoundland will be again successful in obtaining a limited quantity of the genuine Dutch Cocoa powder, at a very reasonable quotation. The celebrated house of Messrs. F. Koff & Co., situated at Amsterdam, Holland, has been established since 1811, and undoubtedly has achieved wonderful success in this very important industry.

Ferryland School.

ERECTING NEW BUILDING. Work on the new school building which Rev. Fr. Maher is having erected at Ferryland has already begun. A garden party was held on Sunday in aid of the new school and as a result a substantial amount was raised. During the past three years $50,000 have been spent in Ferryland on church improvements, which have been badly needed. With the completion of the new school the parish will be well equipped for the imparting of a sound education to the younger generation among its inhabitants.

The Evening Telegram Road Race.

JACK BELL WINS TROPHY AFTER SPECTACULAR PERFORMANCE. COMPLETELY 10 MILES IN 54.5. O'TOOLE MAKES GOOD SHOWING.

The Telegram Road Race for the splendid trophy donated by the late W. J. Herder was run yesterday in conjunction with the Championship Sports Meet, and under the auspices of the National Sports Committee. The race was probably the most interesting that has yet been witnessed, no less than 9 competitors out of 16 finishing the ten mile course. It was generally conceded that Jack Bell, our local long distance champion, who has set the record in this connection, would carry off the race, and in this there was no surprise, though young O'Toole, the plucky little runner, who on his first ten mile run, came second, was but two laps behind Bell, and now holds the second best time for the ten miles in Newfoundland. The race was started by W.H. Herder, eldest son of the late proprietor of the Telegram, at 4:10 p.m., sixteen runners, viz.: T. Furlong, J. Redmond, W. Dodd, G. Kelly, R. O'Toole, G. E. Joyce, R. Redmond, G. Clarke, M. Maundor, F. Fleming, J. Fitzpatrick, H. Hill, H. Cooper, J. Bell, P. Dunphy, D. Wall, lined up, and at the start the bunch got away with Furlong leading. He was passed however by Bell before he had gone more than a hundred yards, and the champion, setting a splendid pace, began to haul away from Furlong and O'Toole, who were running close together. At the end of the first mile, Bell had 50 yards on O'Toole who was then second. At the fourth mile Bell had a lead of about 350 yards and was still gaining though O'Toole, who was still making a good showing. The road was in excellent condition for running, while motorists co-operated with the Road Committee in giving the contestants every facility, and only one wagon got in between Bell and O'Toole, causing some annoyance to the latter. Along the route hundreds of citizens assembled and cheered the runners as they passed. Coming into Cornwall Ave. Bell had not slackened his pace and was as fresh as when he started. At the White House, the only runner in sight was O'Toole, who was then passing the Maturity Hospital. Coming into the field, Bell was given an ovation and covering his two laps completed the two miles in 56 minutes, 25 seconds, or two seconds longer than his record of last year. O'Toole broke into the field as Bell was completing his last 30 yards, and was given a tremendous reception. He crossed the tape in 57 minutes, 28 seconds. Both Bell and O'Toole were running for the B.I.S. T. Furlong, who was running third all through, finished in this position and appeared quite fresh. His time was 60:12 1-5. The following finished in the order mentioned: 4th, W. Dodd, 62:09 1-5; 5th, G. Kelly, 62:32 1-5; 6th, P. Dunphy, 62:59; 7th, H. Cooper; 8th, R. Maundor, 9th, R. Redmond.

Railroad Workers Dissatisfied.

ASKING FOR CONCESSIONS.

The following message was received yesterday from Crabbe's Station by Sir Michael Cashin: 'To Sir Michael Cashin, City. The man that we are dealing with, a Mr. Halbot, can he stop August pay for September grub. That is what he is going to do, and what will our families do between this and October. Why cannot we get a car to follow us 11 miles from any store. Please do what you can for us. Reply as quickly as possible. If you cannot do anything for us, the Government will have to take us back. Signed on behalf of 30 men, CYRIL RUSSELL.'

Attending Important Conference.

WELD, DETECTIVE GOES TO U.S.A. On Monday next, Sept. 11th, a convention of Police Chiefs of Europe, South America, U.S.A. and Canada will open at New York, when matters relating to police duties and crime will be the chief topic of discussion.

Our local sleuth, Head Constable Byrne who left here on the last Rossland is attending this conference. It is understood he will also attend a convention in Boston where more than 200 finger-print experts of the Bertillon brood, will be guests of the Massachusetts bureau of identification, and will for four days discuss the many problems which relate to the irrevocable data which stamps and catalogues a criminal beyond all possible deception. The four-day conference, Sept. 13-16, which will meet in the large auditorium in the left wing of the State House, will reach its climax Saturday, when the man best known to America as the leader in criminal research, and the head of the national bureau of investigation, William J. Bureau, will plead for a national bureau of identification. Amongst the notables set to speak at this conference are: Frederick G. Pettigrove, formerly prison commissioner; Hakon Joergenson, chief of police of Copenhagen; J. H. Taylor of the United States navy bureau; A. J. Rocco, president of the Association for Identification, from Leavenworth, Kan., and Sanford Dates and Roscoe C. Hill of the Massachusetts bureau. Head Constable Byrne will probably round off his trip by a flying visit to Montreal, from which city it was recently reported that a 30 pound bag of raw opium seized by the police was destined for Newfoundland.

Published by Authority.

His Majesty the King has been pleased to approve of the award of the Imperial Service Medal to Superintendent William Grimes (late Newfoundland Constabulary), and to Mr. Ford Winsor (late District Chief, Fire Department), D. Dept. of the Colonial Secretary, September 6th, 1922.

His Excellency the Administrator has been pleased to appoint Mr. Charles G. Rendell, (Heart's Content) to be a Justice of the Peace for the Colony. On recommendation of the Superintendent of Education, and under the provisions of the Education Act, Section 4 (3), His Excellency the Administrator in Council has been pleased to direct that: 1. Port Union, in Trinity Bay, be constituted a Church of England District of Education, under the name of 'The Church of England District of Education, Port Union.' 2. The boundaries of the Church of England Educational District of Catalina be changed to read as follows: The Church of England Educational District of Catalina shall extend from Green Bay, exclusive, to Little Catalina, inclusive, excepting the Educational District of Port Union.

Something Must Be Done.

In order to avoid a tremendous loss of life which is absolutely certain to take place within the next two or three weeks if steps are not taken by the public of St. John's to assist in safely housing the fifteen thousand innocent lives upon whom the attack will be made. It is necessary that our Citizens immediately demonstrate their willingness to assist in saving life, which can be clearly shown by their ordering from The Valley Nurseries, telephone 1613, some of their beautiful Asters that are about to be executed by Jack Frost.

Twenty Five Cents is sufficient to save twelve lives for one week. How many lives are you prepared to save? Prompt action is necessary in order to get this large family housed before Jack Frost appears. sept,21st,th

LONDON, NEW YORK AND PARIS ASSOC. OF FASHION

The Customer's Dollar.

The findings of the Board of Inquiry into the National States Congress, which were investigating prices, costs and profits, will be of interest to the fashion man's wear trade. As they have fully into details of the apparel trade between 1918 and 1921. One thing that report does is to approve the way of profiteering that have so recently been levelled against the apparel trades. It shows that in 1918 the average of net profits in the retail clothing business in the United States was 3.6% while in 1921 the average was but 1.9% net, and it also shows that from 1918 to 1921 the proportion of the customer's dollar that the retailer retained as his profit kept constantly growing less, with the exception of the year 1919, when it was slightly more than it had been the previous year.

Another interesting detail disclosed by this Commission's inquiries is the proportion of the customer's dollar absorbed by the cost of stock and the cost of the retailer's operating expenses and it showed that where these were increased they were increased at the expense of the retailer's profit.

It is apparent that the admittedly high profits figured in dollars and cents that retailers made during the first years were large only when considered as dollars and cents and not when considered in relation to the cash turnover. This has brought about a condition where, with a steadily decreased cash turnover, the retailer's profit in dollars and cents is usually small or practically non-existent and it has also brought about a condition where selling expenses, which with high turnover seemed reasonable, are altogether out of proportion to the small turnover. The economies suggested by the Board of Inquiry to reduce the cost of doing business, to reduce the price to the consumer and give the retailer a fair profit are more in the nature of general improvement in the distributing system rather than economies the individual retailer can put into practice. British Journalism's Grand Old Man.

Great Britain is the land of wonderful old men. Surely there is no other country in which so many men of great age are carrying on responsible duties with their faculties undimmed? Here, for instance—and it is only one instance among many—is Sir John Merry Le Sage, the managing editor of the "Daily Telegraph," celebrating his 85th birthday this week. And he would have celebrated it in the usual way by a hard day's work at his office had it not been for an inopportune cold which sent him to bed for a couple of days! There are no signs of great age about his vigorous, rather military, figure so familiar in Fleet Street even to-day, and yet Sir John Le Sage has had enough incidents and adventures crammed into his 33 years of life to suffice for half a dozen lifetimes. For the paper he now controls as managing editor he served as special correspondent in France, Germany, Russia, Italy, Egypt, the United States, and Canada, and with the German Army in 1912. His memories of newspaper life go back to the old days—how remote they seem—when a reporter went out into the English countryside in a gig and the news itself had to be sent to the office by train. News of a happening a little way out of London often took a couple of days to reach the Press! "It was I," said Sir John Le Sage to a "Daily Mail" reporter who called upon him on his birthday, "who gave Lord Northcliffe his first London morning newspaper engagement."

The teacher in a country school tried to make the lessons as interesting as possible. "Now, children," she said, "let me see what you remember about the animal kingdom. You have named all the domestic animals but one. What is that?"

"There was no reply."

"What!" exclaimed the teacher. "Does no one know? It has bristly hair, likes the dirt, and is fond of grovelling in the mud."

"A small boy at the end of the class raised his hand.

"Well, Alan?" said the teacher.

"Please, 'man'um," said the little boy reflectively, "if I must be so."

The Better Title.

Don't think that a title-writer (for the films) is going to stop at anything when it means satisfaction concerning a title. He will peruse words from a tourist time-table. Poets come in handy for descriptions of sunrises and sunsets. Just as authors and journalists feel that they must avoid certain words that have become hackneyed, so certain words and sentences have to be shunned in titling a moving-picture production. The imaginative and experienced title-writer will write when he sees certain combinations used to denote a passing of time, as, for instance:—

"Three years later—"

"And the next morning—"

"And that night!"

The most useful of words which is banished as far as possible is dear old "meanwhile." You can always tell what the villain has been doing while the hero has been on his honeymoon by resorting to "meanwhile"—and then show the villain using his eyes and plotting. It requires great resistance to escape one "meanwhile" in a production. It is not only a useful word, but it has the recommendation of being one word which conveys a good deal.—Mervant Hall in the Evening Standard.

19th League Match—St. Andrew's vs. B.L.S.—Result: Saints 4 Goals; B.L.S. 1 Goal. Played on Llewellyn Grounds, July 15th 1898.

With beautiful weather and an average gathering of spectators, this match was played last evening. The teams were—
Saints.—Goal, Scapelin; backs—a of St. Andrew's—Goal, Scapelin; backs, H. Rodger and R. Young; halves, S. Rodger, R. Forbes and H. Jardine; forwards, Walker, Munn, Monroe, MacFarlane and Mars.
B.L.S.—Goal, T. O'Neill; backs, Halley and McLoughlin; halves, Donnelly, Connolly and Crotty; forwards, McKay, Higgins, O'Mara, O'Driscoll and Tobin.

The Irishmen won the toss and elected to defend the western goal, thus having the ground in their favour and sun behind them. There was little wind, only sufficient to temper the atmosphere, making it an ideal evening for football. Play was a little loose at the start, until the Saints assumed the aggressive, and, from some good combined play, the ball was quickly transferred to the Irish goal, where two corners conceded proved fruitless. The Blues though playing uphill continued to press the Green backs and they were severely taxed in order to clear, but they were—all three—in great form and put in some fine defensive play. After 20 minutes play, the Saints found the net through MacFarlane, and right after they came again, O'Neill being called upon to

Mr. Irvin S. Cobb, that incorrigible practical joker and prince of humorists, has set all Washington society laughing at the neat way he took down a popular but somewhat conceited Senator there recently.

The latter had just made a really good speech on some measure before the House, when Cobb hustled up to him, shook him warmly by the hand and said:—
"Senator, that was a first-rate oration, but it is a pity you can't be a little more original. Why, I have a book at home that contains every word of it."
The orator was taken aback, and then waxed indignant.
"Rubbish!" he cried. "Why, man, I spent hours in preparing that speech."
"Well, if you like, I'll send you along the book," said Cobb, gravely.
"Do," replied the other drily. "I'd certainly like to see it."
The next day Cobb sent him a copy graph taken in London 50 years ago, of Webster's 'Unabridged Dictionary,'

A New York Mystery.
The New York police are puzzled over the identity of an old man named Edward Huston. In a room in Brooklyn, where he had lived for many years, while a night watchman at the docks, was discovered a photograph taken in London 50 years ago, upon the back of which was pasted a London newspaper cutting, which told of the erratic life of Henry James Fitzroy, Earl of Euston, who married Miss Kate Walsh against the wishes of his father, the Duke of Grafton. The police also found a Masonic apron bearing the crest of the Fitzroys.

Built by Monks.
Buried in the heart of Devon between Buckfastleigh and Ashburton at a place called Buckfast, a very old abbey is on the verge of re-opening its doors.

For many years a body of Benedict monks have been busy rebuilding what is perhaps one of the oldest monasteries in Great Britain.

The very early history of Buckfast Abbey is unknown, so the date of its foundation will always remain a secret, but documents that are at present in existence prove that it was before the coming of the Normans.

A grant by Canute of the Manor of Zeal Monachorum is the earliest authentic document now in the possession of the monks, and it is recorded that this abbey was occupied by monks until the time of the Reformation.

In 1538 the abbey was suppressed, and for over 300 years the buildings were in the hands of private individuals, until in 1883 the monks of St. Benedict of La Pierre-qui-Vive of France bought the site.

When the monks again took over the property the buildings were made up of a modern house which had been built from the ruins of the original wall.

None other than the monks of St. Benedict have had anything to do with the rebuilding of this abbey.

QUEENS OF LOVE.

Lady Hamilton—The Beautiful Woman Who Bewitched The Great Lord Nelson.

(Pearson's Weekly.)

Emma—Lady Hamilton. A simple name, borne by a wonderful woman. A woman who inspired undying love in the breast of Nelson, hero of Trafalgar. A woman who was painted no fewer than thirty-nine times by Romney, the most famous artist of the day.

"The Divine Lady" as Romney called her, began life as a nobody. Her parents were unknown, ordinary people. Born in Lancashire, she was known as Emma Hart. We know very little about her early days, except that at the age of thirteen Emma was engaged as a nursemaid to a family of the name of Thomas.

Quick-witted, she picked up odds and ends of what might be called education. She learnt to read for instance, and to write. And she learnt how to keep her eyes and ears open. She watched her little charges, noted all that was said to them, and soon saw how they were taught to mind their manners.

She stayed on in that situation for a year or so, and then went to London, where she acted as nursemaid in a doctor's family until she reached the age of sixteen.

Her next post was a shop-assistant in a draper's establishment, where she had hosts of admirers. But although she was loved, Emma was not over-anxious to fall in love.

One day a rich customer came in, a lady, who was in need of a personal maid, and liking the look of Emma, she asked her if she would accept the position.

Emma was quick to see a chance to learn more of the smart world, to which she hoped to climb, so she jumped at the chance.

Her ambitions always before her, Emma read everything that she could lay hands upon. These were the days of the first novels, and Emma devoured every one she could borrow or lay her hands upon. She filled her head with big ideas, and as a natural result, neglected her work. So it was not surprising that her mistress at last dismissed her in despair.

Now a good-looking girl, Emma soon obtained another post. This time it was as a barmaid, and as one may guess, soon gained many admirers. One of these she cared for, but he was seized by the Fever Gang, who were collecting men for the navy, and Emma went to beg for his release.

That started Emma on her heart-breaking career. The captain to whom she went to plead for her lover, fell in love with her. He granted her lover release, but he made his love to her himself, and Emma blossomed out under his protection.

She became more elegant, learnt to dress well, and it was not long before another and a richer man fell in love with her and persuaded her to leave the man who had done so much for her.

This new lover was a Sussex baronet, and a fine horseman, and the type of man we of to-day would call "a jolly good sort." He had Emma taught to ride, and quickly she became a daring and graceful horsewoman.

Many a man admired her, but so long as she remained with the baronet she was faithful to him. But he lost his money, and she left him—a penniless man.

A thorough little adventuress, down on her luck, Emma met a doctor, or a man who styled himself as a doctor. He declared that he had discovered the Elixir of Youth, and he and Emma planned to make a fortune together.

She agreed to announce that she had taken his medicine when old and ugly. Of course, her youth and beauty brought about, as she stated, solely through the wonderful elixir, drove women by the score to buy the stuff.

Painters, artists, sculptors, as well as men and women of fashion, came to see the wonderful Emma, and they certainly saw beauty of the rarest kind, for Emma looked even lovelier with the quick doctor's carefully arranged scheme of draperies and softly shaded rose lights.

It was thus, reclining on a couch, as though just awakening from sleep, that Romney, the painter, saw her first, fell a victim to her charms, and persuaded her to sit to him as a model.

Emma could sing and dance, and rode well, she had read and covered the ordinary studies of an English girl of that day. Moreover, she could act—and act remarkably well.

She was a born actress, a mistress of make-believe, of calvary, and she knew how to lower her voice so that a man's heart beat furiously; or to lower her eyelids, so that he dared to make love. Mistress Emma was a veritable siren.

It was not long before she had another lover. This time it was Charles Greyville, nephew and heir of Sir William Hamilton. Romney was discarded. He had served his term and helped to make her famous, now Emma looked higher.

She lived with Charles Greyville some years, apparently happily, and one day Charles discovered he had been living above his income, and that something must be done to avert disaster. His money was gone, Emma was very expensive. So he decided to appeal to his rich uncle.

Now Sir Charles was very distressed at the stories he had heard about his nephew and Emma, and he told Charles that he would pay his debts and start him afresh only on one condition—that he gave up Emma. This Charles refused to do.

Sir William was horrified, for he had heard all sorts of dreadful stories about Emma. He talked so much and so long about the difference in their social position that Charles, very much in love, pleaded with his uncle to see his dear one for himself, feeling sure that the old man would be won over.

He was. Old Sir William promptly fell in love with Emma himself. That's how the little sister became Emma, Lady Hamilton.

Emma, now about twenty-seven, beautiful, accomplished, went abroad with Sir William. She had thrown over one lover after another, making each one serve her purpose; she had little use for men who had no money, and she had climbed from humble nursemaid to the position of wife of the British Ambassador to the Court of Naples. He was over sixty, devoted to her, and everything Emma did was right in his eyes.

It was after the battle of the Nile, and the report of how this marvellous woman rose to hold her own as a woman of rank as well as of fashion reads, like a fairy tale. She became the bosom friend of the Queen of Naples, dabbling in politics, and discussing affairs of which she could have had no real knowledge.

It was whilst she was at Naples that Lady Hamilton met Nelson. He was then captain only, and apparently rather Nelson or she fell in love then, for in a letter he wrote at the time Nelson casually mentions Emma as "a young woman of amiable manners." What Emma thought of him, we do not know.

Five years later when they met again, Nelson was a hero. Perhaps this made the difference to Lady Hamilton, and she fell in love then, for in a letter he wrote at the time Nelson casually mentions Emma as "a young woman of amiable manners." What Emma thought of him, we do not know.

Nelson believed he owed a great deal of his success to Emma, and very soon he and Lady Hamilton were openly and unashamedly in love with one another.

For a time he lived with the Hamiltons. He travelled with them, and old Sir William suspected nothing. He was devoted to his young wife, and in his eyes she could do no wrong. Indeed, when people tried to tell him things he would not listen.

There was something rather pathetic about this old philosopher, whose trust in his wife was so great that at the last, when he died, he looked up in her eyes, smiling, believing in her to the last.

After Sir William's death, Emma and Lord Nelson lived openly together, and although gossip was rife with her name, and all sorts of malicious stories were circulated, Nelson himself was so adored by the nation that the stories were set aside. It is true that there were many who hated Emma, but she was received by the mother of Lord Nelson.

He longed for the time when he would be able to retire and devote his life to the woman who reigned queen of his heart.

Then came Trafalgar. Everyone has read the story of the death of Nelson, has seen the picture of his last moments—a little wisp of a figure, with his shirt open and his chest bleeding.

There in the cockpit, with the aid of a dim light of a ship's lantern, supported by Comander Hardy, Nelson looked up with a pitiful smile. "Come nearer, Hardy," he panted. "I'm going fast."

There were tears in the eyes of the grim Hardy when Nelson begged for his will to be brought, and, with faintness of death, sealing over him, laboriously added a codicil, begging his King and Country to repay his services by settling a pension on Emma Lady Hamilton.

The pen dropped from his fingers, Nelson smiled faintly.

"Give my love to my dear Lady Hamilton," he cried. "Hardy, see that she has my personal belongings. Take care of her, my dear—my poor dear, Lady Hamilton. Thank God, I have done my duty."

Then he died.

Although his last thoughts were of Emma, she knew that with Nelson dead, her career was over. His last letter to her, written just before the battle of Trafalgar, but never dated, breathed love and devotion.

At the bottom of that unsealed letter Emma wrote:—"O miserable and wretched Emma! O glorious and happy Nelson! And her words were true. Her day

Hard Luck.
 The young man arrived at the party and made his way to the hostess, greeting her and apologizing for his lateness.
 "Awfully glad to see you, Mr. Jones," said the hostess. "So good of you to come. But where is your brother?"
 "He was unable to come. You see, we are so busy just now that it was impossible for both of us to get away, and as we topped up to see which of us should come."

The Season's Wear.
 Seventy-nine pairs of shoes had been shown to the customer, and still he wasn't suited.
 Prolonging the eighth, the shop-assistant said blandly:—
 "Now, here's a pair which I think will suit you to perfection."
 The customer's eyes then closely scanned them decisively—
 "No, I don't like them. They are too narrow and pointed in the toes."
 "But, sir," said the assistant in a last desperate effort, "everybody is wearing these long, narrow-pointed shoes this season!"
 "May be," was the quiet reply: "but I'm still wearing my last season's feet."

Regimental Reunion.

SERGEANTS MESS DINNER AT DONOVANS.

The third annual reunion of the O.S. and Sergeants of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment was held at Donovan's on Tuesday night some 30 members and their friends attending. The affair was a great success and was marked by splendid addresses, for which Pres. Baird of the G.W.V.A. set the pace. The company was a very jovial one and during the evening the old familiar songs and choruses were heartily sung and many memories of the old days were recalled, while the proverbial mess hospitality was not lacking. After the party had done justice to a very excellent dinner, prepared by Mrs. Hughes and her assistants the following toast list was gone through: The Kings—Prop, the Chairman; Resp. God Save the King. Absent Comrades—Prop, Padre Clayton.

The Navy—Prop, Mr. C. E. Hunt; Resp. Capt. T. Connors, R.N.R.

The G.W.V.A.—Prop, Hon. Dr. Modell; Resp. Capt. A. B. Baird, President.

The Regiment—Prop, Hon. Tazewell Cook, Mayor; Resp. Major R. H. Tait, M.C.

Our Guests—Prop, C.S.M. F. P. Legrow, M.H.A.; Resp. Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., M.H.A.

The Ladies—Prop, Councillor R. Dowden; Resp. Sgt. H. Mitchell.

Sergeant Ricketts, V.C.—Prop, W. J. Higgins, K.C., M.H.A.; Resp, Sgt. Ricketts, V.C.

During the evening songs were rendered by Capt. J. Snow, Sgt. T. Morrissey, Capt. E. Chafe, M.C., Staff Sgt. Edwards, and Sgt. J. Dooley, while C.S.M. Ern Fox presided at the piano in a most capable manner. Before the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was accorded all who so kindly placed cars at disposal of the Mess.

What the Trouble is With Europe.

While few will agree with the hesitant attitude of the United States with respect to European affairs, there is something to be said for the recent utterances of Senator Borah, who in a speech in the Senate stated that there was nothing to be gained by cancelling financial war obligations so long as the war lord walked abroad. "If cancellation is to be considered at all," said the Senator, "it should be considered in the interests of humanity, of economic sanity, and not to enable these countries to build up and maintain these military establishments, these great armies, which are new burdening and torturing and threatening Europe and which will lead inevitably to greater suffering, more misery and more war."

The French attitude, to which Senator Borah referred, is unquestionably threatening the stability of all Europe. That country will not, and apparently cannot, come to its senses. The French Government does not see that by driving its mortal enemy Germany into the last ditch, and possibly bringing on a complete financial collapse, with results that may lead it to become a second Russia, it is imperiling itself. Nothing of a financial nature can be hoped for from a beggar, and nobody realises this better than does David Lloyd George, who as this is being written, is trying to impress the fact upon Premier Poincare.

Senator Borah, and no doubt many other Americans, are of the opinion that if France were to be forgiven her debts it would only mean that they were aiding and abetting the building up of further great military and army establishments. Europe's present problems in economic restoration of ruined markets. It is by this means and this means alone that Continental Europe can be restored.

No doubt forgiving your enemies is a hard job, particularly in the case of one like Germany, but this must be done sooner or later in the general interests of humanity. France cannot expect to port Germany to the last gasp and still reap financial benefits. The security of France remains in her own hands. The mechanism of international trade cannot be restored, and this the French Republic is dependent upon if she is to receive her indemnities, even in moderate amount, without the use of logic and broad common sense. Conciliation rather than coercion is the need of the hour.—Saturday Night, Toronto.

SEVEN POINTS FOR PARENTS.

It is a shame to snub a child for "being curious." Curiosity is the natural reaching-out after knowledge. It is a shame to suppress a child's spirits. High spirits are the outward expression of a happy life.

It is a shame to compel a child to eat what it doesn't like. The best food does the body no good if eaten with repulsion.

It is a shame to deceive a child. Deceit is learnt from deception.

It is a shame to tease a child. These children who have never lost their tempers are those who have never been compelled, by teasing, to find them.

It is a shame to frighten a child. Sow the seeds of fear and the harvest is cowardice.

It is a shame to forget to remember that a child is a child.

Great Double Bill at The Nickel.

EARL WILLIAMS AND ETHEL CLAYTON AS HEADLINERS.

The holiday show at the Nickel yesterday was a big double-head consisting of a Vitagraph special, entitled "Bring Him In." A beautiful photodrama of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, featuring Earl Williams. Out door sports, such as horse back riding, fishing and hunting form an important part in this picture. The cast is one of excellent quality. The picturization is a credit to Mr. Williams who co-directed himself with Bert Esslinger. The other picture is "The Thirteenth Commandment" with Ethel Clayton in the leading role. The theme of this picture delighted the audiences yesterday. It talks about marriage—the idle, extravagant wife and the wife who makes herself independent by "going to business." But it doesn't preach about it. First and foremost, "The Thirteenth Commandment" is a forceful and intensely dramatic motion picture. The big cabinet episode and the scene in which an automobile is wrecked in a smashing accident are real thrillers. The supporting cast is great. It consists of Anna Q. Nilsson, Chas. Meredith, Monte Blue and Irving Cummings.

Sanitary Employees Outing.

ENJOYABLE DAY AT BUTLER'S FARM.

The first outing which the Sanitary employees held for the past 18 years took place yesterday, when a very enjoyable time was spent at Butler's Farm on the Portugal Cove Road. The party left town in the morning, being driven to the sports field in motor busses. An excellent programme of sports had been prepared by the Committee headed by W. Boyles and W. Williams, and though the weather in the forenoon was not pleasant plenty of amusement was provided to keep the crowd happy. In the afternoon the sports programme, which included football, cricket, three ladies' races, tug of war and old men's race was run off and provided considerable excitement by the closeness with which the events were contested. Amongst the visitors to the field were Deputy Mayor Martin, Superintendent Dwyer and Councillors Vinnicombe and Dowden. Return to town was made at 10 p.m., all voting the affair a great success.

Shipping Notes.

S.S. Canadian Challenger, 11 days from London, bound to Montreal, arrived here yesterday short of fuel oil. The ship has on board a vast cargo of coal and general cargo as well as 60 tons of explosives. There are also three passengers who are going to Montreal.

Schr. Edith Cavell, Capt. Jao. Whelan, has arrived at Oporto after an excellent passage of 15 days from Ramoa. Capt. Whelan is fast making a record for quick passages.

S.S. June cleared from Nipper's Hr. on Tuesday for Lewisport with 1208 cords of pulpwood. At the latter port the ship completes her cargo and sails for Cardiff.

Schr. Gerald is loading at Wesleyville for Oporto to the order of W. & J. Moores.

Why Does A Cup of Tea Taste Better?

Some of the "kill joys" will tell you it is imagination. But you mustn't mind them for that is what they lack.

The joys of trout are not for them. The music of the salmon reel they will never know. The beauty of the berry patch, the red of the partridge berry, the blue of the whort berry and the satisfaction of the well filled basket are not for them.

Even the beauty of our Newfoundland scenery, the glory of the Topsail sunset will leave them cold. But let us forget them and let us make for the old Southside Hill, now carpeted with the green and red of the partridge berry, or out to Topsail, or un to Manuel's River, or let us make for the old "Cow Path" leading to beautiful Holyrood, (and along the said "Cow Path" the whorts never grew thicker than they do this year) and let us "boil the kettle" and T bet you it will be a good "cup of tea", unless your grocer has done you dirty altogether. For the secret of it is, you steep the tea as soon as the kettle boils, and any old tea will taste pretty good, I'll bet you.

But it is just as well to take the best tea with you, it doesn't cost much more. The last time we were out we had a splendid tea and it only cost us 65c. lb. It had a sort of artistic name—"Mount View". We bought it at Henry Blair's. They had another good tea there at 50c. per pound, but the clerk said "the best is the best", and we believe him!

Freshly boiled water is the secret of the cup of tea you drink out camping, fishing, berry picking or picnicking, but it is just as well to have the best tea. You can get it for 65c. per lb. at Blair's "Mount View", that is the slogan.

Paying the Difference.

"How much an I out sir?" Tommy asked.

"Fivepence," said the master. Tommy put his hand in his pocket and produced four pennies, a half penny and two farthings. "The awl-berry sir," he said, "I paid it I pay the difference?"

It was a glorious summer day, and Tommy was tired of the arithmetic lesson. He stood before the desk waiting to be told that he could go.

"Your last problem is wrong," said the master. "You must stay and make it right."

Tommy was tired of the arithmetic lesson. He stood before the desk waiting to be told that he could go.

What is a Boat?

BOSTON SKIPPER GETS HOT UNDER COLLAR OVER MISUSE OF THE TERM.

(Captain CHARLTON L. SMITH, in "Boston Transcript.")

Newspapers, and the public in general, have a tendency, of late years, to call every sort of a floating craft a boat. This makes us sad. It makes us hark back to the days of our youth. We see in memory's mirror the water side of Concord and Border streets, East Boston, crowded with wharves, spar yards, establishments with "rail-yards and blocks," cooper's shops, caulkers' headquarters, rigging lofts, ship painters, shop mounds left, boat builders' places and junk dealers' dingy cellars smelling of tarry hemp. There was a dry dock off Atlantic Avenue, at Fort Hill then, and "The Avenue," as well as Commercial Street, on the town side of the harbor, was plentifully sprinkled with the above-named businesses—all but the yards where they actually built ships. Forests of masts met the eye. So many of them were square-rigged that each pier had numerous signs admonishing captains to cock-bill their yards before trying to dock. The Penbody Packets, ships mostly, could nearly always be found at Lewis wharf. And the pretty little white painted bark, hailing from Portland, Maine, were often lying at Union wharf, National Docks, at East Boston, always had a large fleet of one, full rigged ships of that beautiful style that came immediately after the clipper days. A full-rigged brig and a topsail schooner were occasional sights, while brigantines and barkentines were very plentiful.

But we must get to our theme. I cannot remember of hearing, in those days any misuse of the word boat. The present loose habit seems to the sailor man ridiculous. Let me spin a yarn. In my deep-water days I happened to be an officer of the ship Paul Revere on her passage from Baltimore to San Francisco. We had shipped nondescript crew, all of them signing on as A. B.'s, but many of them fresh from the plow, or from riding rods under freight cars. The first mate, a typical Yankee mariner, had the deck one afternoon. I had just eaten dinner and was near an open window in my room. "Boat on the starboard bow, sir!" hailed a well-meaning inlander, whom the mate had nicknamed "Jack the Ripper."

"Where away?" belovied Mr. Stewart, rushing for the glasses. "Why, right over yonder," cried Jack. "Don't you see her smoke air?" "You ding-blasted fool, don't ever announce anything that way so long as you're in this hallyloo. Call a ship a ship, a bark a bark and a steamer a steamer, or I'll break every bone in your tarantion body. I thought a vessel had been abandoned and you had sighted her boat."

This shows how the professional mariner values precision of speech. He is always methodical (until paid off), has a certain place for everything, for his very life depends on it. He never belays royal gear on top-gallant pins.

But that troublesome inlander's little word of four letters is at first thought, used indiscriminately by the seafarer. And it is to a certain extent. For although, generally speaking, a boat is an open craft, small enough to be rowed or sculled by oars, long years of custom have modified the use of the word. Even Mr. Stewart would have said that the Paul Revere was "a fine sea-boat."

One says "mail-boat," though the steamship named be nearly 1000 feet in length. He says "Fall River boat, pilot-boat, tugboat"; yet these are large craft. Surely, the occasions when it is permissible to say boat are arbitrary to a marked degree. Amateur yachtsmen of great skill in the handling of their speedy toys, are nearly all of them given to this same misuse. In their case it does not surprise the seaman; for the gentlemen stars flitreat, or misname, most every nautical term.

Served Him Right

A railway-director rebuked a ticket collector who allowed him to go through the gate without producing his pass. "No matter if you do know who I am," he said, in reply to the collector's excuse; "I am entitled to ride free on my train when I am travelling with that name. You don't know whether I have it or not." The collector, nettled into action, demanded to see the pass. "That's right," exclaimed the director. "Here—why—where—well, I believe; I must have left it at the office." "Then you'll have to pay your fare," responded the collector, grimly. And he did.
