"When I began taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I was so nervous that when I picked up a cup of tea my hand would tremble like a leaf. I could not sleep well, could not remember things, and there were neuralgic pains through my body. After taking seven boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, however, I am in perfect health."

CHAPTER X.

Instead of taking up his watch, he walked round to her.

"Inez," he said, gently, "forgive me for speaking to you here, and so late;—I will not detain you long."

"You must not," she replied. "I ought to have gone an hour ago; but the fire and my own thoughts tempted me."

"My thoughts tempt me," he said. "Inez, listen for one moment; I am not worthy of you;—you are so beautiful, so bright, so gifted. I am not worthy of you;—but will you let me love you? Will you promise to be my wife?"

On the day of his death Lord Lynne never forgot the look of startled happiness upon that lovely face.

"Do you love me?" she whispered. Could he help it, that love-lit face turned up to his, those wondrous eyes looking into his own, her hair touching his cheek?

"I love you, my darling," he said. "Will you be my wife?"

He never forgot how for the next few minutes she stood as one rapt in a silent ecstasy, then she turned away from him.

"To-morrow," she said,—"wait until to-morrow; we will talk about it then."

"But you will say one word, Inez?" he interrupted; "say you love me."

"I love you," she replied; and the music of those words never quite died in his heart.

CHAPTER XI.

"At last—at last," murmured Inez, as she reached the quiet sanctuary of her own room. "I have won him, and I will only live to make him happy. He shall never repent the words he said this night. I will make him happier and greater than my cold, quiet sister could have done."

In that hour of triumph Inez forgot the false, cruel treachery that had led to her present happiness; she never thought of her sister, betrayed and unhappy; she remembered only her love and its success. The fatigue and weariness that a short time before had almost overpowered her, disappeared; it was a fresh and radiant face that smiled so brightly, as busy thoughts painted the past and present in strong colors.

"It is not only that I love him," she cried; "were he penniless and obscure I would endow him with all my wealth; but there is triumph to me in the thought that my father's neglected child will be Lady Lynne, mistress of this proud home; exiled and neglected no longer; loved and revered as Lady Lynne."

She would not remember the falsity that had crowned her with success. By a strong effort of her indomitable will she swept away all unpleasant thoughts. She remembered only that she loved and was loved,—that the one thing she coveted was now hers,—her hopes gratified, her wounded pride soothed, the cup she had craved for filled to the brim.

Perhaps no one ever felt a greater shock of surprise than did Lord Lynne when he awoke on the morning following the scene in the boudoir. It rushed upon his mind as soon as his eyes were opened to the light of day. He, who only yesterday was thinking of going abroad, was now the betrothed husband of one of the loveliest and wealthiest women in England, and she loved him. Ay, how she loved him! The remembrance of the joy that had flashed in her face, the silent happiness that entranced her as he spoke, came vividly before him. This glorious beauty, with her wealth and talent, her genius and grace, loved him who had never felt anything but the calmest brotherly affection for her. The young heir of Bohun loved her; the gay and gallant Captain Marchmont had laid his heart and fortune at her feet; but she cared for none, loved none save him. A hundred resolutions of love and devotion crowded into his mind. He would forget Agatha, whose sweet

If all this could have been attained by fair and honorable means, Inez would have been better pleased. She did not like to remember the false words that had stained her lips, or the pain she had seen in her sister's face. But—and she silenced the outcries of conscience in the thought—he would be the happier for it in the end, and so would Agatha; they were not suited to each other, she said to herself over and over again. Agatha had no ambition; she would be content to dream away her life at Lynne-wolds, satisfied in seeing her husband fulfilling the duties of a wealthy landed proprietor, without caring for or thinking of fresh glory. But it would not be so with her. She would incite him, help him, urge him on, until the name of Lynne was known and revered throughout the length and breadth of the land. He should be a statesman such as the Lynnes of old had been, and all England should ring with his fame and his talent. Then he would turn to her, and bless her as the center and source of all his success. Then to himself he should own that it was well the fair-haired cousin had rejected him, and the half-Southern sister crowned him with her love. When the mighty voice of a mighty nation was raised in his praise, when honors had been thrust upon him, when the first and grandest of positions were open to him, then he would but love her the more, for she would have helped him on his brilliant career.

In such thoughts and dreams Inez forgot less pleasant things. She never for one moment feared detection. Agatha would not return yet; and even when she did so, both she and Lord Lynne were far too honorable, she knew, to make any reference to their past attachment now that she was his betrothed wife. There was no fear for the future. Love, triumph, ambition, all wore their finest colors; and no shade saddened the brilliant face that watched the moonlight and the first flush of dawn. Even when she fell asleep at last it was with a smile of child-like happiness upon her lips.

Perhaps no one ever felt a greater shock of surprise than did Lord Lynne when he awoke on the morning following the scene in the boudoir. It rushed upon his mind as soon as his eyes were opened to the light of day. He, who only yesterday was thinking of going abroad, was now the betrothed husband of one of the loveliest and wealthiest women in England, and she loved him. Ay, how she loved him! The remembrance of the joy that had flashed in her face, the silent happiness that entranced her as he spoke, came vividly before him. This glorious beauty, with her wealth and talent, her genius and grace, loved him who had never felt anything but the calmest brotherly affection for her. The young heir of Bohun loved her; the gay and gallant Captain Marchmont had laid his heart and fortune at her feet; but she cared for none, loved none save him. A hundred resolutions of love and devotion crowded into his mind. He would forget Agatha, whose sweet face haunted him. After all, was he not to be envied? He remembered her on the night he had played Romeo, how those dark eyes fell before his gaze, and he wondered how he could have been blind so long. He seemed to hear again that cry "I love him so!"

Yet in some way he shrank from telling his mother the news; nor did he seem in any violent hurry to descend to the breakfast-room. When he did so, his first thought was one of wonder at his delay, for there next to his mother, sat a fair and radiant girl whom any man would have been proud to claim. The rich flush that crimsoned her face, the sly, sweet glance that half met his, stirred his heart, and he felt that he had won a prize. He could not go near her for the Countess of Strathdale and Lady Victoria had remained for the night, and were now seated in great state at the breakfast table. His almost undivided attention was given to them. Her ladyship's carriage was ordered at last, for she had promised to lunch at Bohun Court; and Philip, despite his impatience, could not leave until both ladies were seated and the coachman had received his orders. Then he turned to look for Inez, but she had vanished.

"Mother," he said to Mrs. Lynne, "will you walk up and down the lawn with me? I have something to say to you."

"Find me a shawl," said Mrs. Lynne, with a smile, "and then I will walk as long as you please."

But when her son had fastened the cashmere over her shoulders, and had placed her arm in his, he walked by her side in perfect silence for some minutes.

"I thought you wanted to talk," said his mother, with some amusement. "What is it? Have you settled anything about your journey?"

"No," he replied; "I had forgotten it."

"Ah, my dear boy," interrupted Mrs. Lynne, "I wish you would renounce the idea. I would give all I have in the world to see you settled and happy. Do not be angry with me if I ask you one question."

"Ask what you will," he replied. "Tell me," she said, "how it is you do not ask Agatha Lynne to be your wife? If I know anything of the young girl's heart, I am sure she is not indifferent to you."

Lord Lynne attempted to speak, but the words died away upon his lips.

"I would never advise you to marry for money," continued his mother; "and I think your uncle's will both cruel and unjust; still, Agatha is so sweet and gentle; out of all the world she is the girl I should have wished most to see your wife."

Mrs. Lynne waited for a reply, but none came; her son was thinking that at any price, he would keep his cousin's secret.

"I cannot understand your indifference," said Mrs. Lynne. "I used to think you loved Agatha. Now with Inez the case is different,—she is very beautiful; but there is something so inscrutable in her, I can never fancy any one loving her."

"Flush, mother!" he cried; "do not speak so. I brought you here this morning to tell you that Inez has promised to be my wife."

Mrs. Lynne dropped the arm she was holding, and looked up into her son's face with astonishment almost too great for words.

"Inez!" she cried, at last; "why, Philip, how can that be? I thought you loved Agatha, and she cared for you."

"That was a mistake, mother," he replied, lightly; "Agatha has always thought of me as a dear cousin and a true friend, but nothing more."

"Of course you know best, my dear," said Mrs. Lynne, meekly. "I will never pretend to any judgment again."

"But you do not say one word, mother," he replied, half impatiently. "I thought you would be so delighted to know that I was going to marry and settle, as you call it, at last."

"So I am, Philip," said Mrs. Lynne. "Do not mistake me, I forgot my happiness in the greatness of my surprise. But I never saw any signs of your love for Inez."

"You will welcome her as your daughter, will you not?" he asked.

American Tourist Bring New Money to Vancouver.

Vancouver is preparing for a very busy summer and improvements are being made to handle the increased tourist traffic. Before the end of the season, pavement will be completed so that there will be a hard-surfaced road all the way to Seattle, 165 miles, and most of the road is paved to Portland, 388 miles.

An announcement just made shows how the tourist traffic puts money into every line of business. There will be a new hotel of 300 rooms started at once in order to take care of the increasing number of travellers and this hotel will require an investment of considerably over $1,000,000. New boats, summer camps, etc., are also being added to the equipment for entertaining the visitors.

Angora Rebuilt May Become New Capital of Turkey.

Angora--If Admiral Colby M. Chester and his American associates undertake to convert Angora into a modern capital on the lines of Washington, they probably will find sufficient work to occupy them for many years. Under the terms of the economic concessions recently granted to the Americans, Angora is to have broad streets, high buildings, wide public squares, parks and spacious railroad terminals, just like any modern American city. This will involve the demolition of the thousands of squat brick and mud buildings, the narrow, winding, dark streets and the inadequate sanitary system which have made Angora one of the most primitive cities in the world.

If Angora is rebuilt it may mean the abandonment of Constantinople as the capital of Turkey. Many Turks favor the retention of Angora as the seat of government because of its military and naval invulnerability. It is 315 miles southeast of Constantinople, free from attack by hostile armies or navies entering the Dardanelles. The Greek army essayed to reach Angora in 1921 with disastrous results. The surrounding country is conspicuous with few railroads or highways. One of the purposes of the new contracts let to the Americans is to bring Angora within easier reach of the Sea of Marmara, and the Black and Mediterranean Seas.

The most imposing building in Angora, among an array of structures that would scarcely do credit to the most backward of American mining villages is the extravagantly-named Grand National Assembly. It is a dilapidated two-story affair that was once a club. Only constant repair has kept it from falling to pieces. Yet it was in this modest edifice that the new and greater Turkey was born and fostered. It was from this toy citadel that the Kemalists held the whole world at bay last year.

The membership of the assembly presents an extraordinary picture of turbaned heads, kalpaks, fetes, and European and Moslem dress. There are a large number of priests in the assembly, and their long flowing robes of black and their colorful turbans give a picturesque touch to the otherwise drab gathering of 300 or more deputies. Mustafa Kemal has given Angora much of its importance. He lived here many years and was the leading spirit in the foundation of the Nationalist movement which has reunited the Turks. He realizes that to keep up with the west, much of the western civilization must be adopted. Education, to be for the good of

A Wistful Girl's Timid Smile

Fervent beauty, dainty grace and lissome figure stirred the pulse of a rich nobleman whose hirelings stole her away from her blind sister and took her to his midnight fete. A handsome young aristocrat lost his heart, avenged her with his sword, took her to safety. She met another--a leader of the People. He, too, loved her. The fatal duel in the midst of the gorgeous splendors of a regal orgy as thousands of the starving rabble clamored at the palace gates, the love of the young aristocrat for the country-bred Henriette, and the love she inspired in the heart of Danton, leader of the uprising against the French Monarchy--These things, each punctuated by a kiss, formed a chain of circumstances that quickened the sedition of the People into open and armed rebellion--that brought the Fall of the Bastille--the "Feast of Reason" when all Paris went mad--the "Dance of the Carmagnole" when woman led the wild revelry. Then came the Commune--the Reign of Terror--the Guillotine--the downfall of Danton, leader--the sentence of death--the reprieve--Peace! And so, all because of Love, a King was deposed, a great monarchy fell, a great republic came into being.

MINARD'S LIMEWATER FOR COUGHS

Candle Shades.

Dainty candle shades can be made very quickly from two little ounces of crepe paper. Leave the paper folded as it is when bought and cut right through it to a depth of six inches with a sharp pair of scissors. The paper is usually about ten feet long, so this gives a strip of that length. Cut this up into four pieces of equal length to make two candle shades.

Take one piece and roll it at both edges between the thumb and forefinger as you would do when about to "whip" material. Take another piece and roll it at one edge only. Put the pieces one over the other so that the piece with the single rolled edge comes a little below the top one of the other both together at the top edge. Cut a circle of card to fit the shade holder and sew the frills to this. These shades are lovely in warm, glowing colours like yellow, rose, and red. As a fold of paper costs less than one shilling a whole set for a dinner table can be made for this small sum.

A very charming result is also achieved by decorating the plain little white parchment shades with the special oil-colored transfers now obtainable from some shops.

It saves expense if the maker cuts out her own shades from thick parchment. Use an old shade as a pattern. Lay it flat on the parchment and trace around it with a sharp pencil and cut it out. Put a line of gold paint around the top and bottom edge and join up the sides.

It is also quite easy to stencil these shades if they are done before being joined up. The stencils are bought ready cut and the designs painted in water-color or poster paint. Anyone with a little experience of painting will be able to shade them.

On shades required for a writing table where the light has to be thrown downwards trace a stencil design on a shade and cut it out, and then paste a piece of parchment over the back of the shade. When the light shows through the design will be semi-transparent. Paint it in water-colors and finish the card round the edges with gold paint, and the effect is beautiful.

Will it be Fine.

HOW TO READ YOUR BAROMETER

The barometer behaves in an unexpected manner sometimes, going up or down, as the case may be, with results quite different from what we anticipate.

When the mercury has fallen very low continuous rain is the natural expectation. But that is where you will be at fault. In the contrary there is no likelihood of being very much rain, only short, heavy showers, with some squalls of wind. The mercury drops because the air is either very warm or very moist, or both. But it will part with its moisture in the form of rain until cold air comes along. This will condense the vapour, rain will fall, and the glass will rise.

Moisture in the atmosphere keeps the air light, so that there is very little pressure on the mercury. When the atmosphere is dry the air becomes heavy, and as the mercury is subjected to more pressure, it rises.

SIGNS OF RAIN.

The barometer is lowest during the day after a long spell of frost or after a southwest wind, both of which fill the atmosphere with moisture. It is highest during a long frost or a continuous northerly wind, which are very dry.

If the barometer is low during fine weather, clouds are likely to gather and the sky will become overcast. On the other hand, when the glass is high and there are clouds overhead, it is unlikely to be wet, though, should the glass fall, rain may be expected.

When the mercury falls suddenly in fine weather, look out for thunder or light winds. In frosty weather a sharp fall is foretold. When the weather is already well and the mercury continues to descend, snow may be expected.

During winter the movement of the mercury is unsettled, with sudden rises and falls, unsettled weather conditions are likely to prevail.

TRAINING DOGS TO PICK POCKETS.

Dogs play an important part in detective work in this and other countries. Few people are aware, however, that canines criminals are by no means unknown to the police.

Recently an elderly man, walking in a Paris street, was knocked down by a black retriever. The dog's master ran up, apologized profusely, and helped the man to his feet.

Reaching home, the victim found that his watch and purse were missing. They had been stolen by the owner of the dog, which was specially trained to assist its master in this way.

A Brussels jeweller was showing a customer some diamonds worth approximately $350 each. The jeweller was called away, the customer meanwhile standing by the street door and watching the people pass.

When the two returned to the private room in which the diamonds were on view, it was found that three of the stones were missing. Search was made everywhere, but without avail.

It took the cleverest detective in Brussels to solve the mystery. The customer having been detained for further inquiries, suspicion somehow fell on the spaniel which had accompanied him into the shop. An X-Ray examination revealed the presence in the spaniel's stomach of the missing stones. In this case also the dog had been trained to help its master in pursuing his crooked calling.

A business man in Germany received a note informing him that unless he forwarded to the sender the equivalent of $100, certain information regarding his past would be made public.

The prospective victim was invited to send the money by a carrier pigeon which would reach him on a given date. The bird arrived, but the money was not forthcoming. Instead, the blackmailer was traced and arrested.

Farming Foxes for Furs.

A PROFITABLE AND INTERESTING OCCUPATION.

The present craze for wearing silver fox fur has led to the development of a fascinating and profitable industry.

Canada is the home of the silver fox. Until a few years ago foxes were caught wild all over the Dominion, but the clearing of the forests and the development of the land led to the disappearance of much of the wild life.

This was the opportunity of a few shrewd men who saw the possibilities of fox-ranching. The knowledge they had gained in hunting and trapping served them well, and they soon proved that fox-breeding is a lucrative as well as an interesting occupation.

To-day there are 768 fox farms in Canada. A large ranch will contain as many as a thousand young foxes, but many small farms are very successful. The

The largest fox ranch in the world is in New Brunswick, but there are small farms as far north as the Yukon. The owners of the best ranches register their farms with a Government department at Ottawa. By this means those desirous of starting a fox farm for themselves can be fairly sure of obtaining good animals.

Relics of Famous Ships.

Furniture Memento of Arctic Voyages.

An anonymous donor of $200,000 has saved Nelson's "Victory" from falling to pieces at her anchorage in Portland Harbour. While she still lives relic-hunters have been busy with her body, and in many parts of the country you will be shown furniture and various objects of wood which have been made from partly defective hulls of timber extracted during repairs.

It is seldom that a famous ship disappears utterly when she reaches the breakers' yard, though no trace remains of the collier "Endeavour," in which Captain Cook made his voyage through the South Seas.

Drake's tiny ship, the "Golden Hind," lives on at Oxford in the form of a chair made of timber broken from her when she was chopped up at Deptford.

Taken in Tow.

When the "Resolute" was sent to the Arctic to look for Sir John Franklin she was frozen in, and abandoned by her crew. After years of drift she was borne south by a melting sea, and found by an American whaler, which took her in tow. The American Government redited her and returned her to us.

Merchant Marine Costing Canada Many Millions.

NET LOSS LAST YEAR WAS MORE THAN TEN MILLIONS.

OTTAWA—The total deficit on the operations of the Canadian Merchant Marine last year, including interest and depreciation, was $9,649,478. The gross revenue from closed voyages was $9,795,786, the operating expenses being $12,859,976, leaving an operating deficit of $2,384,189. The interest on notes due to the Government was $4,978,277; depreciation was $2,952,130; the reserve for outstanding liabilities $40,000; the reserve for doubtful debts and claims, $96,122, and the interest on the Government advances, $118,769.

"The loss in operation of your fleet during the year owing to adverse conditions in the steamship business was to be anticipated. It is admitted by the best authorities that the past year was the worst in recent shipping annals. While tonnage offering increased to some extent, the commodities were of lower value than in preceding years and, as a consequence, the earnings fell off considerably. Outward tonnage was fairly well maintained, but on the other hand, the inward business, more especially from the United Kingdom, Oriental and Australian ports, fell away to such an extent that it was exceedingly difficult—and at times impossible—to obtain. On this account, a great proportion of the voyages during the year resulted in loss."

The following recommendations are made:

"That the fleet be kept in operation but reduced to a total complement of 37 vessels, the balance to be disposed of."

"That the capital cost of the vessels be reduced to what may be considered present replacement value, as recommended in our report for 1921."

"On account of the great value to the Canadian National Railways of the operation of vessels on recognized trade routes, your directors would be much opposed to withdrawing altogether from such services but desire to confine operations to vessels suitable for these services and capable of making an economic performance."

It is suggested that as $50 a ton would represent construction cost of the fleet that this should represent fair replacement value.

ROMANTIC STORY OF THE "LONDON GAZETTE."

For the first time in its 258 years of existence, publication of the "London Gazette," Britain's oldest and most official newspaper, was delayed recently owing to a labour dispute.

While its title is familiar to most people, its pages are read by few. Yet in many respects there is no more interesting paper in the world.

It is the only newspaper whose statements are accepted unreservedly in the witness-box, and the only journal in which certain people are compelled to advertise. On the other hand, many people could not secure advertising space in it even though they offered thousands of pounds for the privilege.

There are many more remarkable features about the "Gazette." It is the only paper which can boast of possessing an editorial staff of Cabinet Ministers, by whom much of its "copy" is written. The Lord Chamberlain may not inaptly be termed its chief reporter. Kings and queens have contributed to it. No newboy has ever shouted its name in the streets, and it has never been sold at a bookstall.

Flight From the Plague.

In Cromwell's time the "Gazette" took the form of two separate news sheets, the "Mercurius Politicus" and the "Publicus Intelligencer," the two papers being combined under the one title—the "London Gazette"—in 1658.

Its infancy was fraught with various difficulties, mostly financial, to cope with which its editor did what many have done since—doubled the price. A month or so later the Plague drove the Court to Oxford, and with it the "Gazette," the "London" in the title being exchanged temporarily for "Oxford."

Since then the "London Gazette," has had little cause for complaint. It has recorded the births and deaths of kings, queens, princes, and princesses; the fall of thrones; the winning and losing of battles by sea and land; the passing of great men and women; the granting of commissions in the Services to hundreds of thousands of officers; the bestowal of distinctions of every grade; the degradation of knights and others; the findings of courts-martial; bankruptcies; together with official news and despatches of every description.

One of the most diverting chapters in its story was written on the night of Saturday, September 30th, 1854. The editor was sitting in his office, when a messenger arrived with the request that he would go at once to Downing Street to see the Duke of Newcastle, Secretary of State for War.

The editor found the Duke greatly excited. "We have glorious news," he said, announcing the result of the Battle of the Alma. "But, alas, nobody knows it and I don't know how to let them know it!"

Breaking the News.

The "London Gazette" had been published two days before, and the editor suggested making the announcement in the theatres. He himself hurried to the Mansion House, where the Lord Mayor rose from his bed and, on hearing the news, called for a cab and dashed off in his night attire to a meeting of the Sheriffs in Bishopsgate.

"It was an extraordinary sight," the editor recorded. "The Lord Mayor burst into the room in the middle of a speech and, brushing the speaker aside, read out the news to the astonished and delighted company."

With the coming of the telegraph and telephone the great days of the "Gazette" were numbered. Yet although its circulation to-day is smaller than that of any other newspaper, its authority remains undiminished and unquestioned, while its potency for making and unmaking careers is as great as ever. It is still published twice weekly, and on the same days of the week as it was 258 years ago.

Every native and every alien should know all there is to know of the land they live in. $1.00 invested in the New Mid. Year Book will do it. Get yours now set many left. S. E. GARLAND, St. John's—may 19, 21

Striking Scenes Mark Norma's "Smilin' Through"

Beautiful architecture and striking scenic effect are predominant features of Norma Talmadge's brilliant and powerfully moving production, "Smilin' Through," which is playing at the Nickel Theatre this week.

A pretty little cottage in Ireland, a quaint old English village, a beautiful wedding fête of the 60's in a picturesque garden whose bowers and trees are hung with gay lanterns—a tragic interruption by a rejected suitor, stirring scenes of 1914 when England's young manhood was called to the colors, a romance of modern backgrounds—all these are shown in a magnificent screen panorama, the sheer beauty and pictorial splendor of which are in themselves a crowning triumph for the photodramatic art.

Added to all this is a wonderful story of love and tragedy, in which Norma is at her historic best in the dual role of the beautiful Moonreen of the 70's and the equally charming Kathleen of modern times.

Although butter cakes baked on a soapstone griddle are more attractive in appearance, they are slightly tougher than those baked on a greased pan.

To give potatoes an additional savouriness, rub the pan in which they are to be boiled with a little garlic and cook a sprig of mint with them.

A Critical Situation.

The enforcement of the Volstead Prohibition Act by the United States Government has recently reached a climax which may have serious consequences as regards the trade and commerce between the Republic and the European countries. The new measure which has been lately upheld by a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States is so drastic in its scope that public opinion in England as expressed in the leading newspapers is colored with doubt as to whether the Customs authorities of the United States really intend to carry it into effect. This factor of uncertainty has resulted in the British Government and the shipping interests taking the proposal so far calmly in the hope that a way out will be found to obviate and avert such a serious interference with the rights and liberties of Great Britain and her seamen. The British shipping from time immemorial provides that a certain quantity of ardent spirits shall be carried on every ship trading to foreign countries for the use of her seamen, engineers and stokers. The United States Supreme Court has ruled that no ship, local or foreign, entering her ports shall carry any liquor either for beverage or medicinal purposes. Reprisals have been talked, but chiefly in a jocular way, as the possibility of the enforcement of the law is not taken seriously. Public men in England have suggested that Great Britain should enact a retaliation law to the effect that no United States ship shall be allowed to unload at British ports unless they carry a certain quantity of spirits for medicinal purposes. This attitude is certainly as logical as the other and serves to illustrate the ridiculousness of the situation and the extremes to which the U.S. Prohibitionists seem determined to go in their efforts to make the United States bone dry. The closing down and sealing of the bars at the three mile limit does not seem to satisfy Uncle Sam any longer. It is to be hoped that a middle course will be found before any bad feeling is engendered. The law comes into force on June 10th. After that date all liquor must be listed on the ships' Manifest.

THE SHIPS' LIQUOR PREDICAMENT.

Another decision of the Supreme Court of the United States tends to make the application of the Volstead Act to foreign shipping a matter more delicate than ever. By the terms of this decision the masters of vessels arriving in American ports must list on their manifests all articles on board, whether the merchandise is for importation or not. If a foreign ship arriving after June 10 with intoxicating beverages in its stores or cargo lists this liquor, then the customs men cannot easily overlook the violation of the law. What will happen if the Treasury Department agents thereupon board the vessel and attempt to seize the intoxicants? The seizure of liquor brought into our wharves by foreign ships but obviously not intended to be put ashore would mean that the United States had cut adrift from international usage. It would mean that this country had turned its back on principles which the Government has defended for more than a century.

In the British House of Commons recently the Government was asked what it would do if the United States confiscated British ships carrying liquor as sealed cargo or stores. A Labor Member, Lansbury, interjected a rough but suggestive answer: "Do what you did with the Soviet—break off negotiations and go to war!" The case is not as bad as that. There are calm men in London and Washington. But the comparison with the Soviet, rude as it may seem, is not utterly unjustified. The Soviet declares that it will impose upon foreigners any law that it pleases. The Volstead Act, thanks to its faulty construction, puts the United States in the position of enforcing its will to the detriment of honest and friendly foreign commerce. It is a delicate situation. The Treasury and State Departments are expected to find a way out—New York Herald.

Responsible Government.

The boon of Responsible Government was granted to the people of Newfoundland after a prolonged agitation on the part of our liberty-loving and sturdy forefathers after an agitation that lasted for a quarter of a century. It began in 1830 and the full measure of autonomy was not gained till 1855. The principles of the Constitution were clear cut and well defined, and when any infringement of the rights of the people was attempted, our forefathers took alarm and arose as one man in their indignation and did not rest till the principles they fought for were recognized. The written as well as the unwritten principles of our Constitution were regarded as sacred and no man, no matter how exalted, was the office held, dared to disregard the rights and liberties secured under Responsible Government with impunity. Within the past twenty years politicians having more regard for their own political ends than the preservation of the principles of Responsible Government have been undermining the laws and customs of the Constitution in an insidious manner, and as the years go by the practice is growing worse and worse. As there is very little protest, the political leaders grow bolder, and under the rascally aegis of "political expediency" they perpetrate the most atrocious breaches of the ethics of Responsible Government, so that at the present time they have reduced the Charter for which our forefathers struggled so hard to obtain, to a farce. If they can do as they have done there is no reason why they cannot go further and do much worse. The men who would rise up and denounce them and cry "hands off the Constitution," have, we fear, all passed off the stage long ago and are quietly resting in their graves. The new generation seems to be satisfied to have the charter of our liberties and our rights torn to shreds, as long as the Government that does so gives them the loaves and fishes and divides a share of the spoils amongst them on the eve of an election. Where is this going to end? Men who have not been elected by the votes of the people are boldly given seats in the Executive Council and made heads of Departmental offices in violation of law and custom, and the public are expected to take it all lying down. It was bad enough to allow the Minister of Agriculture and Mines to hold that Department the past three and a half years without appearing in the House of Assembly, but the new and latest attempt to allow the Minister of Finance to retain that office without having been elected and without putting in an appearance in the House of Assembly is the most outrageous of all. It is without precedent in Newfoundland, and as far as we can ascertain, in any self-governing country in the world. If we are to go on in this way, it would be more honest to scrap the charter and let us have an autocracy pure and simple.

Annual Meeting Nfld. Football League.

FOOTBALLERS HAD SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

The annual meeting of the Newfoundland Football League was held on Saturday night last in the office of the President with the representatives of the League clubs in attendance. President Higgins presented the handsome gold medals won by the B.I.S. and Cadets, and before doing so, congratulated the winning clubs on their splendid achievement. Captain H. Phelan and M. Madigan, on behalf of their teams, accepted the souvenirs, each making a brief and happy reply.

Girl Guide Entertainment

MAJESTIC THEATRE EMPIRE DAY. At the Girl Guide Entertainment to be held at the Majestic Theatre on Thursday evening, Empire Day, not only will the audience enjoy the Tableaux Vivants, and the humorous play and sketch, of which we spoke on Saturday, but they will have the privilege of hearing the Orchestra and Musical Items arranged by Miss Alison Renie. The Orchestra will be under the direction of Mr. F. W. Brougher, and composed of Mrs. Melville, Mrs. F. Mews, Miss Alison Renie, Miss Power, Mr. Leslie Marshall, Mr. W. I. Church, Mr. F. Burley, Mr. A. E. Chown, Mr. L. Skinner, Mr. G. Bishop, Mrs. H. D. Reid and Mrs. W. R. Warren have kindly consented to sing. The Association is fortunate in having so many to show interest in their work and the audience may count on a delightful evening in return for their support of the movement.

C. L. B. Excursion.

Now that the season is at hand for the usual summer outings, what better start could be made than that excursion to Carbonar advertised for Empire Day. Here we have the advantages offered far in excess of anything of its kind for many seasons past, and its now up to the general public to support to the fullest extent all endeavors of this sort of recreation. What is more beneficial to the lovers of nature than the ruggedness of the country through which you pass on your way to Carbonar, is itself well worth the outlay expended. The music offered cannot be excelled and the general programme provided will be no doubt executed with the thoroughness which has been characteristic with the success already achieved in the past, by this enterprising combination of entertainers.

The matter was reported to the police.

HARVEY'S FREIGHT SHED BURGLARIZED. While the night watchman of Harvey and Company's eastern premises, was making his usual rounds at 3 a.m. yesterday, he entered the shed, and discovered two men ransacking the place. The men immediately disappeared through a hatchway, to a boat underneath the wharf and made their getaway. The thieves in their hurried departure left everything behind, including two bags in which they hoped to carry off their loot.

Boy Week.

In connection with the Boy's Week movement sponsored by the Rotarians, the Rev. Hammond Johnson at Gower Street Church last night preached a sympathetic and forceful sermon from the text, "Is the Young Man Absalom Safe?" At many of the other city churches the subject of "The Boy" was also given sympathetic treatment. The week so well begun yesterday was continued this morning when certain gentlemen who are friends of the Rotarians visited the colleges and city schools and gave a ten minute address on the subject of "Loyalty to Newfoundland" to the boys. The speakers were Mr. H. W. LeMesurier, St. Bonaventures; W. R. Howler, K.C. Bishop Field; W. G. Gosling, Methodist College; J. A. Young, St. Patrick's Hall School; J. W. McNelly, Springdale Street School; L. E. Emerson, Holy Cross School. The addresses will be continued through the week at other city schools. On to-morrow at Rotary Lunch, representatives of industry and general labor organizations will be present. The Rotarians have arranged to have their speakers touch on the following phases of the Boy. Mr. Geo. Tucker on the Boy from the labor points of view; Mr. C. P. Ayre "The Boy" in industry. The third speaker will probably be Rev. Mr. McDermott, V.G.

North Sydney, N.S. May 16.—A government wireless station is to be erected on St. Paul's Island, which stands in the entrance to the Gulf of St. Lawrence off the most northeasterly point in Nova Scotia. Two wireless engineers were landed by C. G. S. Montclair at St. Paul's Island yesterday to arrange for the erection of the station. St. Paul's Island is at present connected with the mainland by a telegraph cable which has not only become expensive to maintain, but is frequently interrupted by breaking waves to various marine causes. ## World's Champion Cow

IS HONOR-GUEST AT BANQUET.

Agassiz, B.C., May 13. (A.P.)—Led among rows of tables in a brilliantly lighted banquet hall and milked in the presence of 300 members of the British Columbia Dairymen's Association here, Agassiz Segis May Echo, champion butter-producing cow of the world, was toasted in foaming glasses of her own milk here recently.

The famous cow was led into the banquet hall with a silken rope by a pretty milk maid. She showed no signs of embarrassment or fright when a storm of applause greeted her and quietly chewed her cud, when, under the ministrations of her fair attendant, the streams of milk made bubbling music in a silver pail.

Agassiz Segis May Echo is a five-year-old Holstein bred and owned by the Canadian government's experimental farm near here. She recently established a record of 30,838 pounds of milk in 365 days, yielding 1,881 pounds of butter. Her milk record has been beaten, but her butter record is far greater than any ever made before in the same period of time.

The Feast of the First Fruits.

The Feast of the First Fruits, also known as the Feast of Weeks, or Shabuoth in Hebrew, has been for the most part superseded by the observance of Confirmation Day in many synagogues of this country. In celebrating the holiday on Monday, May 21, the outstanding feature will be the confirmation of the children of the religious school.

The Feast of the First Fruits, like many other festivals inherited from ancient days, has undergone considerable modification. In remote antiquity, even in early Biblical days, this feast was one of the three pilgrimages which the Jews made to the Temple at Jerusalem. There, in numbers vast, they offered up on the altar their sacrifice of parched corn and wheat loaves at the end of the first seven weeks of the Spring planting.

On this foundation of an agricultural festival which the crude farmer of that age observed by offering the things-grown by his planting, the rabbis of the Talmudic age built up a symbolic ceremonial of larger significance and vaster potentiality. In their poetic idealism the revelation of the law on Sinai was associated with this Feast of Weeks. At that time the Ten Commandments were made known and Israel was pledged to be the bearer of this revelation.

To the rabbis the consciousness of this consecration to a moral duty and destiny to be fulfilled throughout all ages and among all human beings was the symbolical equivalent of a harvest, a harvest of the spirit. Israel offered the first fruits of spiritual achievement and religious inspiration at this historical consummation.

Shabuoth then becomes a memorial of this consecration, when Israel was chosen from among all the nations to become the priest of God's law of love and justice, the herald of salvation unto all families of man. Those teachers of Israel who invested Shabuoth with an historical association commemorative of this revelation placed among the summits of creation. They said that man was endowed with the light of reason, and was designed to lift up his eyes unto God and to seek and find Him in this marvelous world.

The Confirmation Day ceremony in many of our American synagogues is a recent adaptation of this consecration. It is on the one hand a graduation from the religious school. The confirmands are those who have attended religious school from their kindergarten days to the first and second year high school age. They have studied the Bible, Jewish ethics and literature, religious ceremonials, doctrines and duties, and also considerable post-biblical history of the Jews. Some have also studied the Hebrew language. At the same time the graduation from the religious school are held under moral responsibility to remember their consecration to Israel's mission of service as a priestly people who are called upon to be a blessing to all families of the earth. This renewal of fealty to Israel is as glorious and triumphant a moment as graduation. Both are voluntary and both call for ardent service.

Throughout all American Jewish communities where the Confirmation ceremony is observed receptions are held in the homes of the parents of the confirmands or in the synagogues where the exercises are held.

Members of I.W.W. Not Wanted in Kansas.

TOPEKA, May 14—(A.P.)—As a result of the recent decision in the Kansas supreme court, members of the Industrial Workers of the World are not wanted in Kansas.

The high court has sustained an injunction against the I.W.W., its officials and all members, issued in the district court of Butler county. It has been held by the attorney general's department that the possession of an I.W.W. membership card is sufficient grounds on which such member may be held in contempt of the injunction in any county in the state. C. B. Griffith, state attorney general, in his brief before the court, said: "It will be seen at once that the acts of the organization are not single acts of crime, but every act is a part of a system devised and intended to inflict unlawful injury and damage upon the citizens of the state to overturn the industrial system and overthrow the government itself."

Potato Growing.

Now that the season for planting potatoes is near at hand the following article on potato culture published last year in the Telegram of May 18th is reprinted for the benefit of those who do not profess to be experts.

CARE IN SELECTION OF SEEDS.

The land for growing potatoes must be well prepared and brought to a fine "tilthy" state if a good crop is to be expected, good seed and a fair dressing of manure is also an essential. As both the quality and productiveness of any variety of potatoes will deteriorate or degenerate, care in the selection of seed is necessary. Size of sets will not materially affect the produce and good crops will grow from small potatoes provided the variety has not degenerated or run out. When potatoes are cut for seed each set should have two eyes. Small tubers should be scarred, as in some soils without this precaution, the set will fail to decay and the crop in consequence will be a light one. The blunt end of a tuber invariably contains the leading eyes. They develop earlier than sets from any other portion. Cut seed should be planted as soon as possible to prevent wilting. In horse cultivation it is the usual practice in the neighbourhood of St. John's after plowing and harrowing the ground, to open drills 2 feet apart (2 1/2 feet is recommended) and six inches deep. About three inches of manure is put in the bottom of the drill and on this the seed is placed. The drills are then split with the plough to cover the seed. When weeds begin to appear the drills are cross harrowed. If the ground is very weedy several harrowings at intervals are given until the potato shoots are nearly three inches high. At this stage the "scuffie" is brought into play and the potatoes kept ridged until the final earthing, which is usually done when the rows of stalks begin to meet. No other attention is given until digging time arrives. With good seed, properly cultivated one barrel of seed should yield 15 to 18 barrels and that on less than 35 square rods of land.

Black Magic.

SIR H. RIDER HAGGARD AND DANGEROUS NONSENSE.

"All this business about Lord Carnarvon having been brought to his end by magic is dangerous nonsense," Sir H. Rider Haggard told a Rotarian audience at Hastings recently.

It was dangerous, he said, because it went to swell the rising tide of superstition which at present seemed to be overflowing the world. Did they suppose that God Almighty would permit a Pharaoh, who after all was only a man with a crown on his head, to murder people by magical means, thousands of years after his own death, and to let loose what people in spiritualism circles called an elemental, which he (Sir Rider) took to mean a devil? If that could happen let them abandon all hope, for indeed they were in the hollow of the hand of darkness.

Speaking of the violation of tombs, he said it was not right that these royal personages and others should be half naked in a glass case in a museum.

SIR A. CONAN DOYLE'S VIEWS.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, thinks

Lord Carnarvon may have died as the result of the occult influence of an "evil elemental."

"There was once a mummy in the British Museum," remarked Sir Arthur, "which it was believed was guarded by one of those elementals, for everyone who came in contact with it came to grief. This was the mummy of a Queen, and even one of my dear friends, a journalist, who investigated the misfortunes that befell those who handled the mummy, was himself stricken with typhoid fever and died."

"The son of a friend of mine, Sir William Ingram, found the mummy while hunting in Somaliland. Inscribed on the mummy's breast were the words: 'May the person who unwraps me die rapidly, and may his bones lie unburied.' This young man was drowned a few days later in a water course, and his body was never found."

Sir Arthur further asserted that modern spiritualists were even now in communication with ancient Eastern spirits, and said: "Through my wife, who is a medium, I often get advice from one such on spiritual matters. He lived 3,000 or 4,000 years ago in Arabia."

It is very unwise to serve coarse-grained cereals unless they have been cooked overnight.

Metal Roofs as Aerials.

SYDNEY, N.S.W.—Using a galvanized iron roof as an aerial, a radio amateur in Hobart, Tasmania, declares he has heard messages from Panama and Manila. His name is S. G. Lewis.

As most of the houses in this Commonwealth have iron roofs, the question of aerials would seem to be solved.

The use of real caramelized sugar will give clearness, a good flavor and color to confections.

GIFTS.

Which would you rather a gift should be, a total surprise or something you want very much or greatly need? We were talking of gifts in general at a wedding party in particular. You know they say that in the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love, a young girl's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of pretty new clothes, and a young couple's thoughts turn apprehensively to wedding presents for their friends who are about to follow them into matrimony. "I just can't think what to give Mary and Sam," our little neighbor across the way said when the approaching marriage of her brother-in-law came into our conversation. "Ask them," her practical husband suggested. "Why, the very idea, John! You've no sentiment about things at all. Where would the surprise be, if we asked them?" Our little neighbor replied. "The Other Side. They did not ask me for my opinion, but their conversation brought to my mind— A friend who did exquisite needlework and who had for years before her marriage put hours of spare time into the creation of beautiful linens for her "hope chest." It was the most complete chest of linen I have ever known a bride in moderate circumstances to begin housekeeping with, and she was justly proud of it. Her fiancé had made his home with an aunt of some means, who determined to surprise him and his bride-to-be with a very nice wedding gift. The spirit that prompted that gift was greatly appreciated. I know, but tears came to the bride's eyes. Just the same—the gift was a complete set of embroidered household linens. And they did need silver, too!"

And, speaking of silver, reminds me of another newly married pair whose income was very limited. "We seized our happiness and economized on the furnishings," the young wife explained when she told of the inexpensive way they had furnished their tiny flat. The man's married sister knew far it would go in the new household. Her wedding gift to them was silver. A sterling silver after-dinner, coffee service, which was beautiful, yes—but the money that went into it would have bought the complete set of plated silver that was needed in the new home.

Even Generosity Can Be Selfish. It is not the gift, to be sure, but the spirit that counts. But isn't the spirit a bit selfish when it puts haste or thoughtlessness or display before helpfulness and understanding and intelligence? It seems to me the spirit is sweeter and the giver more gracious when the gift is suitable and "exactly just right." Doesn't it to you, too?

Of course I am referring only to the big gifts from relatives or close friends, and not to the little tokens. In their case I quite agree that unexpectedness is one of their greatest charms.

Just Folks.

WORDS.

Words are like people, passing every day. Strange, scornful, cheerful, brave and good and bad. Some clean and fresh as youth and just as glad. And others old and worn and pale and gray. Some words there are which trip along the way. Some dwell with sorrow and are always sad. Others are idlers, soiled and poorly clad. And thus our choice is told in all we say.

Since from the passing throng I would not call Base men and vile to walk life's path with me. But want the brave and wise, and, first of all, The clean and true to share my company. Shall I make friends with ugly words and base, Scorning the good to choose the commonplace?

If the soup selected is sufficiently nutritious and is served with crackers, it makes an excellent light luncheon.

Trouble Brews With N. Scotia Steel Workers.

ST. JOHN.—The same business interests of the Maritime provinces look with misgiving on the projected visits to the provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia of Alexander Howatt and William Z. Foster, leaders in the Red-Internationale, also known as the Workers' Party of America. Howatt is the deposed president of the Kansas United Mine Workers. For his radical utterance he was expelled from organized labor, violence and disorder. The British Empire Steel Corporation is preparing for emergencies, guards having been placed on the company's property.

Foster will not be in a position to visit the Maritime provinces as early as anticipated, owing to the decision of the authorities in Michigan to try him again on the charge of criminal syndicalism. On his first trial recently the jury disagreed, six to six. Foster has been extended an invitation by the steel workers in the employ of the British Empire Steel Corporation. He led the steel strike of 1918, and is a recognized Red. Both Howatt and Foster advocate sabotage, violence and disorder. The British Empire Steel Corporation is preparing for emergencies, guards having been placed on the company's property.

The steel workers demand a thirty-per-cent. increase in wages and a closed shop. The company has allowed a twelve and one-half per cent. increase in some cases, but will not agree to the closed shop. The miners demand a huge increase in wages, the definite advance not having been named. Additional demands are for the closed shop and a continuation of the check-off in union dues. Under this latter system the company has been collecting union dues from the wages. President Wolvin announces decision to discontinue the check-off system and to maintain an open shop. Further, he states, the British Empire Steel Corporation is not in a financial position to allow substantial increases in wages. H. W. Corning, a Conservative member of the Nova Scotia legislature, has demanded an investigation of the industrial situation, and alleges the government is under the dominance of the coal and steel interests.—Financial Post.

HELPING HANDS.

It often happens as I drive along the turnpike wide, that I have punctures four or five, and blow-outs on the side. And then I don a long tan coat and grab a bunch of tools, and toll around my stranded boat, while sweat collects in pools. It is a grievous thing and dote to see a fat old boob attempting to inflate a tire that has a leaky tube. But when I've spent an hour in toll, and ruined both my thumbs, and sprayed myself with rancid oil, the helper always comes. "Oh, gaffer, you are old and fat," the smiling helper cries; "go sit a while upon your hat and rest and sweat the files; and I will fix your busted tires, for I am full of vim, with tendons tough as copper wires, and pep in every limb." Whenever I am in distress the helper's always there; "You need some aid," he says, "I guess, the way you weep and swear. So tell me what a gent may do to help you in your plight, and I will break a leg or two to set the matter right." I've never yet been in a hole that helpers weren't nigh; and one would bring me his roll, and one would bring a pie. Yet pessimists would have us think that man's a selfish scamp; that none of us would hand a drink of water to a tramp.

Cast of "Stuntsters" in "Hurricane Hutch."

NEW SERIAL AT CRESCENT TONIGHT.

Surrounding a famous "stunt star" with a cast of players of such of the star is no easy matter. At least that is what George B. Seitz thinks, who produced and directed the new Pathe serial, "Hurricane Hutch," starring Charles Hutchinson. And anyone who has witnessed the performance of Hutchinson in "Double Adventure," "The Great Gamble," or any other of his Pathe starring vehicles, should agree with Mr. Seitz.

In the first place, a fearless leading woman is absolutely necessary. Luck Fox, formerly in feature productions, was chosen for the role, and accepted, after taking the advice of Ruth Roland, Warner Oland, who has been hissed throughout the world is the leading heavy man; and Harry Semels, noted for his fearlessness in deeds of daring is his assistant in villainy. Ann Hastings, a daring horsewoman, is cast as the adventuress; and Diana Deer, a society girl, had sufficient courage to play the engine. Spencer Bennett, long in Pathe serials, also plays an important role.

Chop carefully prepared mushrooms, saute add some thick cream and a couple of unbeaten eggs, finish cooking and serve on hot buttered toast.

Fire Raises Interesting Point.

CANCELLED BY ONE COMPANY FIVE DAYS BEFORE; LEADERS COMPANIES QUESTION.

Discussion of the possibility of a fire insurance company withdrawing from one company to another in connection with the Parkdale Canoe Club in Toronto recently. It appears that one insurance company had the policy within a week before the fire, and it was replaced by another company. The question arises as to the liability of the companies concerned.

The opinion is that the company taking over the risk, having accepted it, is liable for its share of the loss.

STANDARD SECURITIES CO.

2 YORK CHAMBERS, MONTREAL.

All mining shares, Unlisted Securities and Labrador Mining Claims bought and sold on commission. Quotations given. A prompt and complete service. USE IT FREELY.

but the position of the company that makes the cancellation is not clear.

The usual practice is for the company to secure the return of its policy, which cancels its liability. Piling this, the company may effect cancellation by giving seven days' written notice without securing the return of the policy. However, much insurance is placed through brokers, and it is claimed that when a broker, being advised that a company wishes to withdraw a risk, places it with another company, the former is automatically released. Claims occasionally occur at the time that insurance is being adjusted, one company reporting a claim which arose fifteen minutes before the insurance terminated.

The exact circumstances surrounding the insurance of the Parkdale Canoe Club have not been made public but the result will be carefully watched by those interested in fire insurance.

Less Suicides in Great Britain Than in U.S.

London.—Official statistics which have been recently published show a striking contrast between the number of suicides in England and Wales and in the United States, there being comparatively few suicides in this country. In 1921 the suicide rate in ninety-five cities in the United States was 15.7 per 100,000 population, as against 9.3 in England and Wales. In 1920 the respective rates were 12.4 and 9.1 and in 1919 14.3 and 9.1. The peak for suicides both in the United States and this country since 1912, in which year the rate in the United States was 19.5 and in England and Wales 9.9, was in 1914, the year the world war started. In that year the rate of suicides in ninety-five cities in the United States per 100,000 population was 20.0 and in England and Wales 10.1. There were also fewer homicides in England and Wales than in the United States in the years mentioned, according to the statistics here. In twenty-eight cities in the United States the rate of homicides in 1921 was 9.3 per 100,000 of population, as against 6.7 in England and Wales. In 1920 the rates respectively were 8.5 and 6.2 and in 1914 they were 8.5 and 6.8. In such statistics it should be noted that acts of violence are more liable to occur among city populations than rural ones.

Sir Douglas Hogg.

WHEN THE ATTORNEY GENERAL WAS IN THE RUN TRADE.

Sir Douglas Hogg, the Attorney General, at the luncheon of the London Association for the protection of Trade, in London, recently, declared that trade, which could not succeed unless free from official interference, must keep a close watch on the Government and demand to be satisfied that the expenditure sanctioned was giving a proper return.

Anyone interested in a trade ought to be protected against the Government, he said, speaking from his own experience of ten years when engaged in making sugar, and, I regret, rum, and in distributing these delectable articles all over the United Kingdom.

Sir Samuel Scott, president of the association, said he saw signs of trade improvement in the recent over-subscription of many industrial capital issues and in the increased iron and steel trade, which, however, he attributed in part to the Ruhr occupation.

ROBERT TEMPLETON

Homestead of Annie Laurie

Edinburgh—Annie Laurie's home to be sold at auction. The modest dwelling which is located near Edinburgh has been in the hands of the family of the woman around whom the famous ballad was written for many generations, but financial need compels them to dispose of it. A relic of Annie Laurie's taste is still preserved in the beautiful Georgian garden in the rear of the house.

Annie Laurie died in 1761 at the age of 79, and she lies buried in the old graveyard at Craighdarroch.

NEWCASTLE, May 21. The captain and crew of the British trawler James Johnson, which was captured by the Soviets, arrived here yesterday. #### LAW'S TROUBLE IS NOT MALIGNANT.

LONDON, May 21. Bonar Law's throat trouble is not malignant, says the Times parliamentary correspondent. This can be stated with authority, he says, and there is every reason to hope that his health will in time be restored. It is understood that he will not resign his seat in Parliament, anyway until the dissolution of the present Parliament; but it is definitely decided that his political career is over.

NO TRUTH IN WALES ENGAGEMENT.

CARDIFF, May 21. Lady Blythwood has stated that there is no truth whatever in the report that her daughter was engaged to the Prince of Wales.

GLOWING TRIBUTES TO LAW.

LONDON, May 21. Unaffected tributes from every quarter are being heaped upon Mr. Bonar Law, Lord Beaverbrook in the Sunday Express says: "Whether his tenure of Premiership be long or short, he already has done enough to render his period in office illustrious. Look at his feats, at home or abroad; in finance; diplomacy or in the department of domestic reform; and one sees an administrative achievement which shines all the more brilliantly in contrast to the black record of the last government. The Prime Minister in his recent illness has been as much a war casualty as if he had received a bullet through his body."

The Sunday Observer says one is able to remember nothing quite like the esteem and affection Bonar Law has created. "Lord Beaconsfield, Mr. Gladstone and Joseph Chamberlain knew on the whole more obliquely than attachment in their earlier phases; and in their latter, except just at the last when pathos was the atmosphere surrounding all three. They were as abhorred by their opponents as they were idolized by their followers." In addition to Marquis Curzon and Stanley Baldwin, the name of Lord Derby is being mentioned as a possible successor and also those of the Duke of Devonshire and the Earl of Balfour.

LABOUR ANTAGONISTIC TO CURZON.

LONDON, May 21. "Inside information" as to Bonar Law's successor is conspicuously lacking from articles of political writers in this morning's papers, this being due, it is thought, to the absence of the many parliamentarians.

who are away for the Whitsun holidays. Prospects of Lord Curzon's appointment to the premiership was received with wistful dismay by the Daily Herald, Labour's newspaper, which says the appointment of the Foreign Secretary would be disaster for Great Britain and Europe. This, however, is an isolated expression and nowhere else is the possibility of Curzon's appointment violently condemned.

Deceased was a well known and popular man as was evidenced by the fact that hundreds of sympathizers came from Aquaforte, Tor's Cove, Caplin Bay and LeManche to be present at the funeral which was the largest witnessed in the district in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Interment took place at 2:30 p.m. The s.s. Cabot returned to this port last evening. #### Oxonian Arrive in Port.

SHIP HAS DAMAGED BOW.

The Leyland Line freighter Oxonian, with her bows damaged by contact with ice, steamed into port at 11 a.m. to-day and berthed at Sises premises. The ship's fore peak is full of water but the extent of the damage to the bows is not known. The Oxonian is commanded by Capt. Thomas and left Montreal on the 16th inst. bound to Birkenhead with a cargo of cattle. Coming out through the Cabot Straits heavy field ice made it necessary for the captain to use extreme caution and keep his ship at very slow speed. Between midnight on Friday and 4 a.m. Saturday the damage to the ship is supposed to have occurred. It was not discovered until it was learned that the fore peak was making water. In order to keep the pressure of water back tarpaulins were hung over the bows. These extended below the water line where the damaged plates are supposed to be and for 3 or 10 feet above it. With these canvas covers on her bows the ship came into port this morning. The Oxonian is not a stranger to this port, as on April 30th last year she was towed here by the liner Winifredian with her rudder broken, and repairs occupied 14 days. At that time she had 700 head of cattle on board, while the Winifredian had 800 on board. Captain Parry, O.B.E., was the freighter's commander, but on her return to England he was placed on the retired list. The Oxonian has now 818 head of cattle on board, and it is probable that they will have to be landed to permit repairs to the ship. The animals are in splendid condition, although according to the Canadian Government Inspector Mr. McClellan who is in charge of the shipment, they are not "finished" and will be put on pasture until this fall. There is, however, one very sleek animal "finished" at the Agricultural College at Edmonton, which is being placed on show. This ox is about 2 years old and weighs probably 1500 lbs. The shipment is the largest to go across from Canada since the lifting of the embargo in England. The S.P.A. Chief, Mr. Jonas Barter, visited the ship a short while after her arrival and found everything satisfactory as far as the animals were concerned.

The Post says that the S.S. Advance, recently purchased by the Tri-National Steamship Corporation, for its service from Boston to Halifax and St. John's, was due at Boston on the 14th, and would make her first sailing on the following night.

Our Montreal Letter.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

May 9th—Spring weather has arrived at last, and activity reigns supreme in all sections of the city. The harbor front is one of the busiest places at present. Several steamers have arrived, both ocean liners and canal boats, and day and night the longshoremen are engaged loading and unloading. The first arrival this season was the C.P.R. liner "Bolingbroke," Captain Edmund Alkman. The second was the Cairn Line freighter "Cairnavons," Captain A. W. Melling, who said that had he been in the sealing business he and his crew would have made a small fortune, for they saw hundreds of thousands of them while the ship was just able to make headway between Cape Race and Cape Ray. Evidently the large herds of seals seen by Captain Melling must have been the main patch which the sealing steamers missed again this season. The Captain spent ten days and nights in field ice, and with heavy fog at times, he had a very strenuous time of it so much so that he was practically worn out for the want of sleep.

Another steamer, the Norwegian freighter "Horda," which was ahead of his ship in the ice pack took a course close in shore at Cape Ray, and Captain Melling left her 800 miles behind, and apparently still ice-bound. Capt. Melling also sighted an apparently abandoned sealing schooner, locked fast in the ice. Not being sure as to her condition he brought the Cairnavons close to the ice to investigate when suddenly the crew jumped out of the schooner and ran over the ice towards the big freighter. "They stood and talked to me right under the bow of the ship," said Captain Melling, "just as they might on this wharf."

"I asked them if they required any food or medical supplies and they said they were quite all right and asked to report them as all well." "I passed another ice-bound sealing schooner the next day and came in close enough for them to show a flag if they needed assistance. When we saw these little schooners sticking it out we felt that we were not so badly off."

Captain Melling was formerly in command of the Cairnavons, which sails to this port and was also commander of the well-known Montreal freighter "Freemont," which was torpedoed under him in 1917. It took three-quarters of an hour to revive him after his immersion in the entrance to the English channel. He lost all his officers in this sinking and 11 of the crew. To-day, he wears a torpedo badge on his cuff as a remembrance.

Although losing a lot of time in getting here Captain Melling mentioned, with a grin of satisfaction, that he has come to the right port for making up lost time. "I got in here last evening," he said, "and before midnight they had shot over a thousand tons of grain into the ship. Everything is going fine now and we will soon have a quick turn round."

Captain Alkman was presented with the gold-headed cane by the Harbor Commission, owing to his ship being the first arrival for 1923.

Faulty foundations caused the collapse of a two storey building in Mansfield Street, the property of the Sun Life Insurance Company. It was occupied by Mrs. David Crawford and five other members of the family, who were away from home at the time. The building was about forty years old. The back wall of the foundation had given away, throwing the whole edifice into the lane behind.

Whether it will ever be possible to keep ocean vessels plying the St. Lawrence to and from Montreal throughout the winter months is still considered as remote by the majority of people both lay and scientific, but one thing appears to be certain—the man who feels that he can manage to bring about this consummation will receive plenty of assistance from Governmental and shipping circles. This is suggested by the fact that the young Roumanian engineer Demetri Josnovici, who claims that he can keep the channel from freezing, already received considerable encouragement to go ahead. He is now back from Ottawa, where he was well received by Government officials.

Accidents and murders seem to be on the increase. A young girl of 4 years was killed by being run over by a motor truck. A boy of 9 while running across the street after a ball was killed by an automobile. An old watchman was shot to death by a gang of supposed robbers. A chauffeur of a taxi was hit on the head by a man who hired him to drive him to a certain place, and died a few minutes afterwards. A man was killed by falling from a load of furniture.

A great military and naval tournament will take place at the Mount Royal Arena on Saturday, May 26th.

The events so far scheduled include a musical ride and mounted feats by the Royal Canadian Dragoons; gymnastic display by the gentlemen cadets of the Royal Military College at Kingston; Olympic exhibition of horsemanship, juggling, etc., by instructors from the R.M.C.; demonstrations by the R.C.R. and many other interesting numbers which will be highly attractive.

The band of the R.C.R. from London, Ont., will play during the performances.

In addition to the military numbers there will be displays by sailors from H.M.S. Wistaria, which has been specially ordered to Montreal by the Commander-in-Chief. Beside the demonstration by the personnel of the Wistaria, there will also be displays by H.M.C.S. Patriot men.

His Excellency Lord Byng, Governor-General of Canada, is the chief patron of the affair, and with him will be associated his Honor the Lieutenant Governor of Quebec and the Dominion Minister of Defence.

People should see that the keys of the gas stoves are turned off before retiring for the night. A family of five here lately were saved from asphyxiation by the presence of mind of a bearded man in the house and the assistance of two constables. The boarder was sleeping near an open window, and smelt the fumes of gas. He called the family, but found they were all unconscious, and shouting to two policemen who were on beat at 3.10 in the morning, the three worked for some time and revived the family.

A pathetic scene was enacted at the Coroner's Court, when a woman pleaded for assistance to bury her only son who died of narcotic poisoning. The young man of 21 years was employed at the Mount Royal Hotel and after his work visited a pool room, where he was taken suddenly ill, and died at the General Hospital shortly afterwards. At the inquest the mother said that her boy never used drugs, though a quantity of heroin was found on his person, and the medical experts of the morgue stated that he had died of drug poisoning. The city had to bury the body.

Sad scenes are in progress daily at Cote des Neiges Cemetery 4,000 bodies were placed in the vault during the long winter months. The burials start at early morning and continue until five or six in the evening. Friends and relations crowd the office and vault awaiting their turn to see the last sad act in life's drama, when their sorrow is again renewed, and they return to their homes poignant with grief over the loved ones, "who are gone, but not forgotten."

Over a thousand people stood in the street watching a long line of mourners following the remains of Charles Hamilton Barclay, the taxi driver who was murdered last Saturday night. St. Patrick's Church, where the service was held after the remains had been borne thither from Joseph Wray's establishment on Mountain Street, was crowded to its doors with men in taxi uniforms, officers of the companies and groups of friends. The service was conducted by the Rev. Father F. J. Singleton, assisted by Fathers J. M. Groves and H. A. Gaboury. Father T. O'Reilly met the body at the church door. The music was directed by P. Shea, conductor of St. Patrick's Church choir.

While the service was in progress, the crowds in the street and the church courtyard pressed to the curb lines, while a squad of six policemen under Capt. Kavanagh, paced to and fro before them. At the church gates men and women tried to force their way into the already dense crowd of onlookers, but were held back by the officers. Then the great hearse of the church rang out, and as though some command had been given, the people stood silent in their places. The pall-bearers, drivers of the Kennedy Company, carried their burden.

Slowly the carriages moved from the entrance. Immediately following them came the taxi company's officials, then 32 Kennedy drivers and 41 of Bramson's men, all in uniform. Various men of the smaller auto services brought up the rear of the line which, filed two-deep, stretched from the church's south entrance to the gates on Dorchester street. Low horns of autos sounded at the gate as a column of 23 taxis drew away from the congested street and followed the procession to Cote des Neiges cemetery.

The two sets of time at present in vogue here are proving very annoying. Mayor Martin is wrathy that the Daylight Saving was adopted by so many large business houses. This week many of the Protestant churches and all the public schools adopted the new time. The Catholic churches and schools hold and will hold to Standard time. In thousands of homes two different hours are used, for rising, for meals and for retiring. The persons who attend to the cooking, seem to get the worst of it, especially at breakfast and dinner. It should be one way or the other, but at the present time, it's like a house divided against itself.

Over $10,000,000 collected over a week-end here, is a record for income taxes. The first day of May brought 25,000 cheques, and some of them for hundreds of thousands of dollars. One of the cheques was for $5 from a conscientious stockholder. The receipt of this cheque nearly disorganized the staff for it is the first time that such a thing occurred.

Montreal's first automatic telephone exchange is now under way. The building will be nine storeys. The contracts have been awarded to E. G. M. Caps and the Dominion Bridge Company. The cost will house three automatic exchanges as well as the long distance equipment serving Montreal. The building will be at the corner of Ontario and St. Urbain Streets.

The Shamrock Lacrosse team will leave for Winnipeg on Monday evening, May 21st, where they will play three exhibition games with the Winnipeg Lacrosse team. The expenses of the trip, $3,500 will be defrayed by the Western people. No doubt, the gate receipts will figure largely in the payment of the expenses. The "Boys in Green," Champions of the Eastern Lacrosse League last year will play an exhibition game with their old rivals, the Nationals, the fast French Canadian teams, on Sunday, May 20th at the Shamrock Lacrosse grounds in order to get a few dollars to be used for incidentals on the trip.

The third instalment of profits on the tramway system for the year is being sent to the city this week and is for $105,656. The two previous payments for the quarter ending October is $318,720 and for the quarter ending December $332,741. There is one more payment to be made before the end of the financial year of the Tramways Commission, and it is anticipated that this will bring the total paid the city up to a million dollars, which will be $500,000 in excess of the amount, under the contract, has to be paid the city each year for the use of the streets. In addition to this the Tramways also pay the city in direct taxes and will this year pay something like $200,000 for snow removal.

It is estimated that the Commission offices that the city treasury benefits to the extent of one twelfth of the revenue of the Tramways under its service at cost administration—one ticket in every twelve used by the passengers goes directly to benefit the city treasury and so that extent helps to keep down the taxes paid by the property holders of the city.

The dismissal of Principal Ernest Smith of the Verdun High school and Superintendent of Protestant schools in Verdun on short notice, has caused quite a sensation among parents, friends and scholars. The principal had sent his resignation to the School Board to take effect at the end of the present scholastic term in June. The answer that the Protestant School Trustees gave him was that they assembled in his office in the High School during his absence at lunch one day, and when he entered the Secretary told him that he was his painful duty to inform him that his services were no longer required, and then gave him his check for the balance of the year. When the astonished principal asked when they wished him to go, the Secretary said, "Immediately," telling him to pass over to the Trustees any of their property which he had in his possession. As the principal was not ready to leave "Immediately," he was told that he'd get a few hours to pack his belongings but that he was not under any circumstance whatever to speak of his dismissal to the teachers or the pupils of the school. The Headmaster gave his solemn promise that he would not communicate the news to the staff or the pupils and he was allowed to remain in his office fixing up things under the supervision of the Secretary-Treasurer of the Board. It is stated. When the press made the case public, the parents and pupils became angry and wanted to hold an indignation meeting in the High School. The Trustees refused the hall of the school for such a purpose and the pupils too keep a collection, hired a hall and held a social in his honor, presented him with an address and gifts and said, "Good-bye" to their old friend. A very peculiar phase of the case is that the Verdun teachers and Principals of the various Protestant Board Schools in Verdun, passed a resolution with the School Trustees in dismissing on short notice Ernest Smith, ex-Principal of Verdun High School and ex-Superintendent of Protestant Schools in Verdun for the last fifteen years. The Commissioners are not obliged to give any reason or reasons for dismissing a teacher. And so the case ends and the last chapter of "School Life" in Verdun. Public schools so far as Ernest Smith is concerned is finished and, "the hand that has written it lays it away." It may be his finish in toto in the political line as he may try his activities in some other sphere of labor.

Nearly Everybody Can Use A Motor

In nearly every shop or store there is some place where a small motor could be used to save time, trouble and money. Electricity makes power in small quantities just as efficiently as for the owner of the big factory who uses many large motors. One should certainly give a thought to the possibility of using perhaps one such small motor in his own place.

And Westinghouse men will be glad to talk to you about it and recommend just what little motor would be best for you.

A writer in the Toronto Star gives some whiffs of wisdom over Canadian tobacco and remarks that a Montreal man "has devised a method of taking the bite out of Canadian tobacco and making it mild enough to smoke. Probably he boils it."

It is suggested, as a matter of fact, that many people do smoke Canadian tobacco regularly, but they do not know it, so what harm does it do them or what need have they for any such invention as that spoken of.

The year 1920 was one of Canada's big ones in tobacco production, over forty-eight million pounds, that of Quebec valued at $2,640,000 and Ontario's valued at $3,258,275. This would indicate that some people certainly were using it whether knowingly or not.

The Star person says a man can get used to anything, even Habitant tobacco, but though the smoker himself may get used to it, the fellow at the adjoining desks are always making nasty cracks. The writer smokes Canadian tobacco from motives of patriotism and thrift. "Whatever Canadian is good enough for me," he says, "especially since soft coal has got to be so dear."

Baby Week.

HOW A TEACHER CAN HELP.

1. By learning all he or she can about child life and child mortality, and by spreading a knowledge of this wherever there is opportunity.
2. By giving help, support and sympathy to the Infant Welfare Centre in the city.
3. By offering her services during Baby Week, even if only for a few hours to the local Baby Week Committee.
4. By teaching the children the reason for Baby Week, and the great need for infant welfare work and the great value of it.
5. By developing the idea that it is the right and proper thing for a girl to study the art of mothercraft, both during her schooldays and after.

WHAT TEACHER CAN TEACH THE CHILDREN.

1. That the babies of to-day are the mothers and fathers of the future, and if the mothers and fathers of the future are to be healthy, the babies of to-day must be cared for and be healthy too. Of every hundred babies born, 95 are healthy and would almost all remain so if they were given the care and attention which is their right, but like all young things they are delicate and if they do not receive this care and attention they become sick.
2. Nature has arranged for every animal born into the world a special method of bringing it up suitable to its requirements for growth and health. This can be illustrated by the habits of animals.

II. WHAT EVERY BABY NEEDS.

- (a) SUN AND AIR.
Illustrate how flowers grow well in the sun and open air. Fresh air is good for everyone both day and night. Windows should be kept open always, but babies should be kept out of drafts.
- (b) WATER.
All water should be boiled before giving it to baby.
- (c) FOOD.
Nature has given a mother milk for her to feed her baby with for nine months. This proves that it is the very best thing for the baby, or nature would not have provided it. If a baby is given pap or bread or other food before it is nine months old, it prevents it growing up later into a strong and healthy child. Baby should be fed regularly at the same time every day and never be given anything in between meals.
- (d) CLOTHING.
Light, warm and comfortable, but not too much of it, to be oppressive.
- (e) BATHING AND WASHING.
All healthy babies should have a warm bath night and morning. Care should be taken of baby's eyes. If they are not washed they may become sore and baby may become blind. Many babies are so because their mothers did not realize how important this was.
- (f) CLEANLINESS.
Cleanliness in everything, not only with regard to the baby itself, but also with the preparation of his foods all the utensils used for his food, and also with regard to its clothing.
- (g) REST AND SLEEP.
If the baby has all the needs mentioned here attended to, it will sleep well and be healthy.

III. HOW YOU CAN TELL BABY IS THRIVING.

Take it to the nearest Infant Welfare Centre, and have it weighed once a fortnight. A healthy baby should gain 12 ozs. in two weeks. At the Infant Welfare Centre the mothers will be told how to feed the baby and many other things to keep the baby well.

IV. HOW PRECIOUS BABY IS.

And the necessity of having a Welfare Centre within the reach of every baby. Out of every 1000 babies born about 135 die in St. John's before they are one year old. Of these at least 100 could be saved if people understood the real needs of a baby.

CANADA'S CROP OF CORN.

Winnipeg, May 15. (A.P.)—Dominion bug experts will import from the United States this summer a horde of parasitic wasps which they will turn loose in the Canadian corn belt to destroy and fatten upon their hereditary enemy, the corn-boring worm.

The campaign will be waged along lines drawn by W. E. Walton, superintendent of the insect division of the United States Bureau of Entomology, who offered his aid at a recent meeting of grain-growers.

Wherever corn is grown in America there lives the corn-borer, taking his toll of millions of dollars from the value of crops each year. He makes his home within the green husk of the tender plant, and sends his way over the milky ear, completing his work of destruction long before the crop matures.

Until the United States entomologists discovered in France the tiny wasp, there was no known means of destroying the borer without also destroying the corn. This insect does the trick, according to Mr. Walton. Brought to America to a new hunting ground, it was discovered he liked the climate, reared large families, and had a predilection for corn-borers, making his home on the husk of the ear within easy striking distance of his game.

With the aid of this parasite, considerable progress has been made toward exterminating the borer from the corn-fields of the United States, Mr. Walton reported. It is now planned to bring several armies of the insect from the government nurseries across the border and liberate them, in mid-summer, in Ontario and other provinces of the corn-belt where the borer has been most destructive.

What Books do Women Prefer?

It is a difficult question to decide just what kind of literature the average woman prefers. True it is that some like light novels better than the heavier reading, but the average sensible woman shows good taste in her selection of reading matter, just as she does in her selection of toilet goods or anything else. For instance, it did not take the ladies of St. John's very long to discover that Richard Hudnut's toilet requisites were exceptionally high class. It is only about a year since those goods were introduced to this country, and though competition was exceedingly keen in toilet goods, the Hudnut line sprang into popular favour almost immediately. To-day, all drug and department stores know that Richard Hudnut's goods are fast sellers, and that they bring the best class of customers. Hudnut's Three Flowers Talcum is the favorite Talcum everywhere. Its delightful fineness and fascinating odor are unsurpassable. It is no wonder that good taste demands Hudnut's Three Flowers—may21.31
