PRACTICAL EXPERIMENT IN CHURCH UNION MAY BE TRIED BY MONTREAL CHURCHES

(Montreal Daily Witness)

A merger of two of the largest churches in the city is not an impossibility. Negotiations are under way now for the union of Stanley Street Presbyterian Church and the Dominion Square Methodist Church. Both are alike in that they are homeless, each having sold its property on Stanley street and Dominion square within the last few months. They are alike, too, in that they have each purchased fine sites on the upper level in Westmount, where they plan to erect modern structures in the near future. In fact, the Presbyterian church was on the point of awarding the contract for its new home, when the plan for union was mooted. As a result everything has been held in reserve for the time until the outcome of the negotiations is seen.

Some time ago a sub-committee of the Interdenominational Board of the city suggested to the churches that as each has sold their present home to erect a new one in the same part of the city, and as there was so much union talk and spirit in the air, it would be advisable to consider if it were possible to unite the two congregations before any new structures were erected. On Monday evening a committee of that Board met the trustees, board of session and Board of management of Stanley Street Presbyterian Church to discuss with them the proposition. The committee was composed of the Rev. Dr. Pedley, chairman; the Rev. Dr. Young, Mr. W. M. Birks, Mr. William Yule, and Mr. J. H. McKeown. They suggested that the Presbyterian representatives should meet the Dominion Square Methodist board to confer about a union church for the two congregations on the upper level. The question was discussed for over one hour, when it was decided unanimously that the idea was a splendid one and that, if the legal difficulties could be adjusted, the congregational board was willing to enter into such a union. The difficulties are understood to be the absence of any church law in either denomination permitting the use of denominational money for the erection of a union place of worship. But in the proposed union of the two great denominations provision is made for such an emergency.

Last night the leaders of the Dominion Square Methodist Church met and reached the same conclusion. A meeting of the boards of the two churches will be held on the 27th inst., at which the interdenominational committee will be present, and the proposed union will be discussed in greater detail.

The friends of the movement to merge the two congregations suggest that such a plan would permit the erection of a great church equipped in every detail for its work and its opening absolutely free of debt. This would enable the accomplishment of an enormous work; there would be no heavy debt to act as a millstone upon the congregations. With equal amounts of cash invested in the new building there would be no fear of any unpleasantness arising later. For the first four or five years it would probably be necessary to give the mission money contributed by the united congregation to the boards stipulated by the contributors, but when the union of the two denominations is completed everywhere that necessity would pass away.

The erection of such a place, too, would enable the church to enlarge the scope of its operations and to enter fully into every work for the uplifting of humanity. Being free from debt they could undertake work of every kind wherever the need was most urgent.

It is said, too, that there are many people in Westmount who would not hesitate to identify themselves with such a church, since the new cause would have even more support than that which the union of the Stanley Street Presbyterian Church and the Dominion Square Methodist Church would bring to it.

The project is an ambitious one, but conditions could not be more favorable for its successful completion and, if the denomination church law difficulties can be overcome, there is apt to be on the upper level in Westmount the first great union church in a large city in Canada.

United States Scheme to Block the Georgian Bay Canal

The following communication comes from the Office of the Canadian Federation of Trade and Municipalities, Castle Building, Ottawa, Ont.

A press despatch from Washington in the Montreal Star of May 5th discloses a move on foot to block, if possible, the opening of the all-Canadian deep waterway via Georgian Bay and the Ottawa River from the Lakes to the Atlantic in favor of an international scheme which would enable the United States to retain practically a controlling interest for all time in navigation outlets to the Atlantic.

The following is the text of the despatch:

(Special Staff Correspondence)

Washington, D. C., May 25.—Legislative action on the resolution to enter into negotiations with the Dominion of Canada or Great Britain regarding a better waterway through the Great Lakes is promised tonight, following a conference between Senator Stone, of Mississippi, and Senator Townsend, of Michigan. The resolution will undoubtedly be favorably reported from the Foreign Relations Committee, of which Senator Stone is Chairman.

Senator Townsend's idea is to open up the passage-ways between the Great Lakes, and to improve the harbors to such an extent that ocean-going vessels will be able to dock at Duluth, Minn., and all other lake ports.

From Duluth to Liverpool would be the trans-Atlantic route under the Townsend idea. He believes that unless the United States take the initiative in this matter the Canadian Government will dig a canal from the Georgian Bay to the Ottawa River and provide practically the same accommodations for trans-Atlantic steamers, with the advantage to the Dominion of controlling the artificial waterway entirely.

TO WIDEN AND DEEPEN THE WELLAND CANAL.

Senator Townsend's scheme includes the widening and deepening of the Welland Canal and the improvement of the waterways from Montreal to Ogdensburg. The wording of his resolution is short and simple, and reads:

"Resolved, that the President be requested to enter upon negotiations with Great Britain or the Dominion of Canada with a view to an international agreement for the concurrent or co-operative improvement of navigation in waterways used, or which can be used, as common for the commerce of Canada and the United States."

This was introduced at one time as a proposed amendment to the Reciprocity Act. It was introduced again as it now stands, but the Committee upon Foreign Relations took no action upon it. It is again before Congress with the promise from Senator Stone that it will be acted upon, and a favorable report from the committee is a little more than possible.

It will be recalled that the Great Waterways Union, formed at Berlin, Ont., recently issued a pamphlet advocating a 30-foot waterway on the international route, and violently attacking the Georgian Bay Deep Waterway. The proposals endorsed by the Waterways Union are essentially the same as are now being fathered in the United States Congress by Senator Townsend of Michigan. The chief authorities quoted in the pamphlet mentioned are Senator Townsend, and Gen. Bixby, Chief of the United States Army Engineers. A Canadian engineer, who has been cited as a disinterested party, was associated with American interests in connection with the well-known attempt of an American trust to grab the water-powers at the Long Sault Rapids on the St. Lawrence.

Senator Townsend's present move gives fresh evidence of the fear felt in the United States that construction of the Georgian Bay Canal will virtually give Canada sole control of the traffic between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic. It will be remembered that three or four years ago the Superintendent of Public Works for New York made an official recommendation to the State Senate that the New Erie Canal between Syracuse and Buffalo should be abandoned, and a 21-foot waterway constructed from Oswego to the Hudson River, with the same purpose of blocking, if possible, the Georgian Bay Canal, and checkmating Canada. Many Canadians have hitherto failed to recognize the real significance of these moves, and have supposed they were acting in the Canadian national interest, when, in reality, they were assisting the schemes of Americans to gain control of the Western trade of both countries, and opposing the only means whereby Canada can secure a deep waterway absolutely independent of United States influences, and control her East and West waterborne commerce to her own advantage.

Until the meaning of these American schemes and their bearing on Canada's commercial independence are fully understood, the Canadian government might well postpone expenditure on the New Welland, which involves the deepening of international waters on the St. Lawrence River, with the almost certain result of making Canada's navigation and water-power interests on that river subservient to American control. The opening of the direct national route from Georgian Bay to Montreal would at once obviate the necessity for our entering into any such international arrangement, and would retain for Canada forever the undivided control of the traffic of the West.

MISS BOOTH FEELS AND PRAYS FOR BURGLAR'S PUNISHMENT

London, May 24.—Capt. Mary Booth, daughter of Gen. Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army discovered a burglar in her bedroom at two o'clock this morning. Instead of calling the police she confronted her visitor and talked seriously to him about his wickedness.

Learning that he was driven to crime by hunger, she promptly took him to her kitchen and gave him a good square meal. While he ate she continued to talk to him, and when the meal was finished she knelt down and prayed with him. She insisted on the man praying for himself. Then he promised to turn over a new leaf, and, with the counter-promise to be his friend if he would live a better life, she saw her guest off the premises.

TERRIBLE ENDING TO EMPIRE DAY IN CALIFORNIA

Thirty-Seven Persons Were Killed and More Than Half a Hundred Were Injured When the Land End of a Big Municipal Pier Collapsed.

Long Beach, Cal., May 24.—Too weak to uphold the burden of nearly ten thousand human beings assembled for the festivities of "British Empire Day," the land end of the big double-deck municipal pier in front of the city auditorium collapsed today. Hundreds of people on the top deck were plunged down on the heads of other hundreds crowded on the second deck. The lower deck then gave way and all were dropped down a chute of shattered woodwork, to the tide-washed sands twenty-five feet below.

THIRTY-SEVEN KILLED.

Thirty-seven persons, mostly women were killed by the shivered timbers, or crushed to death by the fallen bodies of companions and friends. Fifty more were seriously injured while hysteria and fright caused the disabling of scores of others.

IN HONOR OF LATE QUEEN.

The accident occurred a few minutes before twelve o'clock. The Empire Day parade, the principal feature of the celebration in honor of the late Queen Victoria's birthday, had just ended and the participants, with thousands of other visitors were crowding up the steps of the pier and surging toward the auditorium when the pier floor sagged. An instant later the supports gave way and the crack and groan of breaking timbers mingled with the shrieks and cries of victims, as all went down into a mass of broken wood and writhing human forms on the sand.

Virtually the entire land end of the pier was wrecked and a portion of the auditorium front fell.

The cause of the accident was the over-burdening of the pier. This, according to an official statement tonight, was due to the delay in unlocking the doors. Had the doors been unlocked at the proper time, it was asserted, the crowd would have got into the auditorium, instead of massing at the doors where the weight overwhelmed the pier supports. Scottish bag pipes had just entered the portal of the auditorium and were still marking time when the timbers were sundered.

THE MAYOR ESCAPED.

Mayor Hatch of Long Beach, who was to have been one of the principal speakers at the celebration was in the midst of throng on the pier and at first was reported to be among the dead or injured. He escaped unhurt, however, and aided by Mayor George Alexander of Los Angeles, who came down at the head of that city's public hospital corps, and several platoons of police, helped direct the work of rescue.

In addition to the thousands gathered on the pier and its approaches, the Strand was thronged by a crowd of probably 25,000 persons.

There was but little warning. A resounding crack alarmed them and panic spread from one end to the other of the beach, while women began to shriek. Then occurred a desperate rush for the stairways as the flooring gave way and the victims slid into the gaping hole, as into a huge funnel.

Soon the huge pile of wreckage, marking the site of the dead and wounded, was surrounded by a dense throng, which overwhelmed the comparatively few policemen on the Strand, and for some time rendered futile every effort at rescue.

The police could not get through the crowds, even when Chief of Police Austin gathered his entire force on the scene. An appeal was sent to Los Angeles, twenty-four miles away, for reinforcements. These came in autos, and after helping to drive back the thousands of anxious and overwrought people, they assisted in succoring the injured and removing the bodies of the dead.

The tide was out when the crash occurred else the collapse would have thrown hundreds of persons into the sea and many drownings would have been added to the list of fatalities. The crowd massed about the auditorium doors was composed mostly of women and children who had gathered there before the Empire Day parade ended. When the section about the doors sank, they went in with it, half a dozen policemen who had been vainly striving to hold the throng in check, went with them. Only a comparatively small number of men were caught in the trap as most of the male celebrators were taking part in the parade.

Many who were not standing on the section which collapsed were drawn or pushed into the vortex and those who escaped crowded panic-stricken toward the outer rail of the pier, starting a wild scramble for safety.

A TERRIBLE SCENE.

Those who fell into the hole last week to scramble over the entangled bodies to the broken ends of the floor, so deep was it massed with struggling bodies. Fallen timbers and flooring were jammed among the limbs of those caught in the trap and ropes were required to pull back the jagged edges of the sunken flooring and broken joists before the dead and injured could be taken out.

It was fully an hour before the yawning hole in the floor of the pier could be emptied of its mass of humanity, the dead separated from the injured, and the dying extricated from broken timbers. Dead and seriously injured alike were laid in rows on the beach, while scores who had sustained less serious injuries wandered in a dazed way seeking missing relatives and friends. A number of those taken to hospitals were found unscratched but suffering from nervous shock. Many of the women and men collapsed on the pier when the search for missing ones ended at the long row of dead and injured.

REMOVAL OF THE DEAD.

The work of removing the bodies to Long Beach morgues did not begin until well in the afternoon.

Long rows of saddened spectators, most of them still wearing the tiny Union Jack, emblematic of the day, watched in silence as dead were taken from the temporary morgue in the armory to the waiting undertakers' wagons.

Although most of the victims were from Long Beach and Los Angeles, nearly every town in Southern California was represented among the dead and injured.

Long Beach, Cal., May 26.—Evidence to be presented Thursday at the inquest over the thirty-seven persons who lost their lives in the collapse Saturday of a portion of the Municipal pier will bear directly upon the question of who was responsible for the condition of the structure which proved too weak to withstand the weight of several thousand men, women and children, who had gathered to celebrate the birth anniversary of Queen Victoria. Daughters of the Empire and Sons of St. George, the two principal organizations which had charge of the Empire Day celebration started a campaign today for the relief of the victims.

While the seriously hurt numbered not more than sixty-five, nearly two hundred were injured so that aid will be given them.

Rev. I. B. Kiborne, aged eighty-four, one of the injured, died this afternoon. This brings the total number of dead up to thirty-seven. James Twomey, City Building Inspector, said today that the vibrations, caused by the Empire Day parade marching up on the pier were responsible for the collapse.

"An expert inspection just before the disaster," he added, "would have failed to disclose that anything was wrong with the pier."

Clarence Walker, banker and head of the Citizens' Relief Committee, said today that a fund sufficient to pay for the funerals of the dead and hospital expenses of the injured would be guaranteed by the City of Long Beach.

NOTES FROM THE NOVA SCOTIA AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

In accordance with the legislation for the encouragement of horse breeding passed by the Nova Scotia House of Assembly in 1912, all stallions offered for public service in Nova Scotia are required to be enrolled with the Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture. Up to the present time the enrollment, including applications for enrollment, is 220, but the number should be considerably larger than that. Of this two hundred and twenty, 76 horses are Pure Bred, 76 are Grades and 68 are either Cross Bred or Mongrel.

If the experience of Nova Scotia turns out the same as the experience of other countries, the time will not be long before the percentage of Pure Breds will be very much larger than it is now.

The law in regard to the enrolment of stallions was amended during the past session and for the year 1914 provision has been made for optional inspection for soundness, according to which any owner of a stallion wishing to have his horse inspected can have this done and a certificate issued in accordance with the report of the inspection by applying and by paying the necessary fee to the Department of Agriculture.

The correspondence received at the Department of Agriculture indicates that the present law is endorsed by the leading horsemen of the Province, who evidently consider that it is a step in the right direction. The amended law, which will go into force in 1914, will strengthen the present one, and will, it is anticipated, lead to a marked improvement in horse breeding in the Province of Nova Scotia.

WOMEN MAY RUN MOVING PICTURE SHOWS.

The Calgary Council of Women has made the eminently practical suggestion to use its efforts towards the establishment of a motion picture theatre for the education of the city, the proceeds of which would be used for charitable purposes and the betterment of conditions in Calgary. The idea is to make the people's pleasure contribute in some way to the public weal. One of the best methods of exercising a censorship of such places of amusement is to place the control of them in the hands of such a body as the Council of Women. These picture shows have come to stay, and may be powerful influences for good or evil. Women interested in preserving the youth against the dangers ever present in commercialized forms of amusement have the remedy in their own hands. Those who rightly attack the evils of monopoly and money-greed in some industrial undertakings lose sight of the fact sometimes that huge profits are made out of the amusements of the people by men and women who are not always scrupulous as to the forms of entertainment provided. The entry of the Council of Women into this profitable field would not only provide the sinews of war for social work, but prove in wise hands a bold constructive plan for ridding our towns and cities of many of the evils that arise from tainted sources of pleasure and amusement. An agitation is in progress in England for municipally-owned theatres, and the day is coming when the legitimate and healthy amusement of the people will be a primary function of every progressive municipality. Calgary has already set an example by providing municipal golf links for the people.—Weekly Globe, May 14.

CHINA AND THE OPIUM TRAFFIC

General Chang, President of the National Opium Prohibition Association of China, has arrived in the British metropolis, delegated to place before the British people the plain facts of the opium suppression movement and appeal on behalf of the men of all parties and provinces in China for a complete release from the obligations imposed by the existing treaties in respect to the Indian traffic. General Chang, discussing the British policy in an interview with The Daily News, referring to commercial relations, says: "Now that the Chinese people have generally realized the evil opium is doing in their country, they find it hard to forgive Britain for insisting on its importation. The poorer people are learning to read, and many of the new vernacular newspapers are very bitter. It would be going too far to say that there is a definite boycott against British goods, but certainly when something else will do as well. From many points of view British influence in China is decreasing, solely on account of the resentment against the opium traffic. As long as your Shanghai stocks of opium are coming in these strained relations will, I am afraid, continue." The agitation in the British press has already had the effect of moving the Government of India to prohibit the further export of opium to China, and a public subscription is on foot to buy and destroy the disputed opium lying at the treaty ports of China. Public opinion has at length been moved to a sense of the wrong so long done the Chinese people by this opium traffic. The civilized world will rejoice that China has shown such vigorous signs of moral awakening as to take the initiative in the campaign for prohibition of the accursed drug that has so long held her people in bondage. It bodes well for her political evolution that so early in the career of the young republic her statesmen and people rest their claim to consideration by other nations on such strong evidence of national regeneration.—Weekly Globe, May 14.

A TERCENTENARY

(By Gilbert O. Bent, St. John, in Educational Review.)

The Year 1913, is the three hundredth anniversary of an event of considerable historic interest, namely the first clash between the French and English in America.

So much is heard of the "Mayflower" and her cargo that we are apt to lose sight of the fact that Anglo-Saxon civilization was well established in America before the voyage of the "Mayflower" in 1620. Jamestown, Virginia, was founded in 1607. The Virginians laid claim to the whole Atlantic coast, from Florida to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, although the French had preceded them, in the north, by their settlement in Acadia in 1604.

Among those interested in French colonization was the Marquise de Guercheville, "one of the most beautiful and zealously religious women of her time." She was a patroness of the Jesuits, and sent out to Port Royal, in 1611, the two Jesuit missionaries, Biard and Masse. This was the first appearance of the Jesuits in New France. Huguenot sentiment was strong at Port Royal and there was much discord there for two years. Madame de Guercheville then resolved to establish a new colony, under Jesuit auspices. She and the Jesuits purchased from De Monts his rights in America and also secured a fresh royal patent. In the spring of 1615 a vessel named the Jonas, which had previously voyaged to Acadie, was despatched, with a party of colonists under La Saussaye, including two Jesuits, St. Quentin and Du Thet (a lay-brother). This vessel took possession of LaHave and then paid a visit to Port Royal, where Biard and Masse were taken on board. The course was then laid for the coast of Maine, the intention being to ascend the Penobscot, as far as the Kenduskeag River and establish their settlement at the present site of the city of Bangor. There were forty-eight souls in all on the vessel. Unpropitious weather and disensions in the crew caused them to make a landing on Mount Desert Island, near the entrance of Frenchman's Bay, south of the present Bar Harbour. Here it was decided to remain. They named the place St. Sauveur, considering it their salvation, without any suspicion of the destruction so near at hand. There they raised their crosses and began tilling the soil and building houses.

Thus they were busily employed, one fine summer day, when an English ship, carrying fourteen cannon and sixty musketeers, suddenly appeared, bearing down upon them. Captain Samuel Argall of Virginia, was in command. He had just come from a voyage up the Potomac river, during which he had performed his abduction of the celebrated Indian girl, Pocahontas, and carried her to Jamestown. The Frenchmen's vessel lay at anchor, with sails down and used as awning. A few men, including Du Thet, were on board. The English ship, Biard tells us, came on swifter than an arrow, driven by a propitious wind, the banners of England flying, and "tout davis de rouge." Trumpets and drums made a horrible din. The unfortunate French taken entirely by surprise, could make little resistance. Brother Du Thet fired off a cannon at the invaders, but neglected to take aim. A volley from the English gave him a death wound. Two other Frenchmen were killed and four wounded. Argall captured this vessel and another smaller one and took them to Virginia. The members of the colony were dispersed in various directions, some were on Grand Manan and Long Island, in the Bay of Fundy. Most of them found their way back to France after many vicissitudes. Among those taken to Virginia were the two Jesuits, Biard and St. Quentin.

Upon Argall's arrival at Jamestown, and conference with Governor Dale, it was resolved to complete forthwith the work of exterminating the French on the Atlantic coast. With his own vessel, and the two taken at St. Sauveur he sailed again northwards, with instructions to destroy all fortifications and settlements of the French as far as Cape Breton. Biard and St. Quentin were with him. A call was made to complete the levelling of St. Sauveur. Here, and in various other places, Argall erected English monuments, as the Jesuit Relations tell us, "declaring the whole coast to be under the sway of the British King." The remains of the settlement at St. Croix were destroyed, and, on the night of October 31, 1613, by the light of the moon, Argall with his three vessels sailed into the beautiful basin of Port Royal. In the morning a landing was made, but the inhabitants had fled. Nine days appear to have been spent here and the destruction and pillage were most complete, ending by the burning of the houses. Father Biard had his revenge. Some deny that he was Argall's pilot in the Baie Francaise, but they seem to have had a good understanding, and Biard speaks of Argall as a man "who has a noble heart." On the return voyage to Virginia, Argall's smallest vessel was lost. A call was made at Manhattan Island.

Thus the English asserted themselves and put a stop, for the time, to attempts at French colonization in Acadie which had been making, through trials and tribulations, for nine years. The attempt made no attempt to colonize until Sir William Alexander's unfortunate Scotch colony of 1629.

In Alexander's map of Acadie the Bay of Fundy, is called "Argall's Bay."

These English expeditions from Virginia had, however, a more important bearing upon history than appears to be generally recognized. Without a decided check, such as administered by Argall, the French would undoubtedly have extended their settlements southwards. Even in Massachusetts Bay, instead of the Pilgrim Fathers, might have appeared another very earnest people, Jesuits. But the "Mayflower" came, and many other ships, and the Puritans became rooted in New England, only to be overwhelmed later by various strange and less pious people, who had no proper appreciation of the severities of life.

Argall, who appears to have been a good specimen of the old English sea-rover and adventurer, was deputy governor of Virginia for two years; became Sir Samuel Argall in 1622, served as admiral in Spanish wars, and died in England in 1626.

Such, in brief, were the circumstances under which the first shots were fired in the long struggle between French and English in America. A Jesuit was the first to lay down his life. Just a hundred years later, in 1713, Acadie became permanently British, by the treaty of Utrecht. In fifty years more, in 1763, all Canada was finally ceded to Britain by the treaty of Paris. Another hundred and fifty years have passed, and in this good year of 1913 those who still cherish the traditions of La Belle France are found living in peace and amity under the Union Jack, Canadians all, and following, with faith, the rising star of the great Dominion.

NIGHT PLOUGHING.

A novel departure is reported to have been made in New South Wales by starting ploughing by night. For this purpose two powerful acetylene headlights are attached to the traction engine which draws the ploughs and the ground is so well and brilliantly lighted that the operator can work over the field quite as well as by daylight. Departures of this character frequently lead to many improvements in the application, operation and adjustment of the lights.

NEWFOUNDLAND SEAL FISHERY.

The Newfoundland seal fishery of 1913 closed this month, with a more successful record than that of last year. Figures show that 272,965 seals valued at $494,406 were caught by the nineteen ships manned by 3608 men. Last season's catch was 175,128 seals divided among twenty-two ships and 4176 men. No ships were lost and so serious accidents occurred.

POLICE, FIRE CHIEF AND CONSTABLE CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Stratford, Ont., May 13.—At their post of duty during a fire which completely destroyed the handsome Knox Presbyterian church, in this city, at an early hour this morning, Police Chief J. A. McCarthy, Police Constable Mathew Hamilton, and Fire Chief Hugh Durkin were instantly killed, when the huge burning belfry crashed from a height of one hundred and sixty feet, catching the unfortunate men before they could rush to safety.

The three men were bachelors, and all were well known in Stratford for years.

During the progress of a light electrical storm about midnight, the one sharp flash struck the high steeple about half way up, and it immediately took fire. The brigade was at the scene within a minute or so, but owing to no water tower, the men were helpless, as the streams did not approach the burning spot.

The fire ate its way through the steeple and the burning embers set the roof ablaze.

Chief Durkin, who was standing by his ladder, placed against the building to enable the men to reach the roof proper, noticed the top of the ladder burning. He called for assistance to move it, and Hamilton and McCarthy jumped in just as the heavy timbers and thousands of bricks toppled and fell with a tremendous thud.

McCarthy and Hamilton were instantly killed by two timbers, Durkin died on the way to the hospital, after being taken from the debris which half covered his body.

The blaze burned itself out, but at noon today the ruins were still smoking.

The loss will be very heavy, but cannot now be estimated, although the insurance on the church is $34,000.

A splendid new organ, which cost $10,000, and which was to be finished in order to hold a formal opening this month, was destroyed.

If the standing walls are solid enough to work on, the rebuilding of the edifice will be commenced as soon as possible.

It is likely that a public funeral will be held for the dead officials.

TELLS STORY OF TRAGIC DEATHS.

London, May 20.—John K. Davis, commander of Dr. Mawson's Antarctic ship Aurora, has arrived in London and gives in an interview fresh details of the sufferings of Mawson and his comrades and the deaths of Lt. Ninnis and Dr. Xavier Mertz, the Swiss scientist and ski runner.

"We were not more than half a mile from Mawson when he returned," said Davis, "but could not relieve him and his party. Mawson had gone out with Ninnis and Mertz. Twenty-five days after the little party started, Ninnis fell into an unfathomable crevasse, with a sledful of provisions, and his body was not recovered. For thirty-four days after this catastrophe, Mawson and Mertz struggled across the plateau on the verge of starvation until on January 17, Mertz, too, succumbed as the result of exposure and want of food."

"For twenty-two terrible days more Mawson struggled alone with a few starving dogs as his sole companions. That he did not go mad under such conditions is wonderful, and the account of his journey, when he tells it, will prove one of the greatest stories of Antarctic heroism."

At the urgent request of Mawson signalled by wireless, Davis has come to England to try to obtain part of the money rendered necessary by the extra season's work which has been forced upon the explorers, who are compelled to remain in the Antarctic until Davis relieves them at the end of this year.

HAVE YOU A SKIN RASH?

ZAM-BUK WILL END IT.

For skin rashes, eruptions, eczema, etc., either in adults or children, there is nothing known to science which equals Zam-Buk in the quickness and certainty of its curative power. Mr. Raymond Webber, of Allambury, Ont., writes: "I have tried Zam-Buk for many ailments, and every time have found it successful. Some time ago I had a bad rash all over my body. I tried home-made salves, herb salves, and various home-made preparations, and these proved of no use, but when I tried Zam-Buk I was cured in a quarter of the time that I had been experimenting in pain with other preparations."

"On another occasion I had one of my fingers crushed, and in that case also Zam-Buk was the only remedy I used. It healed the wound splendidly. My boy had boils, and once again Zam-Buk brought about a complete cure. We have also used it as a household balm, for the injuries and skin diseases which are common to every person, and can say that in our experience there is nothing to equal Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk owes its unique healing power to certain herbal extracts it contains. Unlike most ointments it contains no poisonous coloring matter, no animal fat, but is purely herbal. For eczema, piles, blood poison, abscesses, cuts, burns, and all skin injuries and diseases it is without equal and should be in every home. 50c. box all druggists and stores. Use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

EMPEROR WILLIAM PARDONS THREE BRITISH SPIES

Berlin, May 19.—The Emperor William, as an act of grace in connection with the visit of King George of England to Berlin for the marriage of Princess Victoria Louise today, granted a pardon to three English spies undergoing long sentences in German jails.

The first was Lieut. Brandon, of the British Royal Navy, who was arrested at Borkum in 1910, while taking photographs of German fortifications. He was sentenced on December 22, 1910, to a term of four years and confined in the fortress of Wessel.

The second was Captain Trench of the British Royal Marine, arrested at Emden on the charge of photographing German fortifications. He also was sentenced on the same day to a term of four years at Glatz.

The third was Bertrand Stewart, a London lawyer, arrested at Bremen on a general charge of espionage and sentenced on January 3, 1912, to three and a half years imprisonment at Glatz.

BRIDGETOWN, MAY 28, 1913.

The Forty-second Report of the Halifax School for the Blind informs us that there has been in attendance during the past year the large number of 162 pupils, 83 males and 79 females. The most of them belong to Nova Scotia,
but, others came from New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland; and a pair of twin sisters, nine years of age, from St. Anthony's, Labrador. The school has a Literary,
Musical, a Domestic Science and a Technical Department, and in addition gives instruction in shampooing, massage, type-writing and physical training.

For the past fourteen years a quarterly
"News Letter" has been issued to graduates and former pupils, keeping them in touch with the school, and the school in touch with them. And, it must be encouraging and gratifying to teachers and patrons of the school to know that so many of the graduates and former pupils are profiting by the instruction received so as to merit such complimentary notices as the Report contains, of which we give a few examples.

One is doing a thriving business in selling brushes of his own manufacture.
One is conducting a successful grocery business in Sydney and proving himself to be very competent in the work.
Another has received commendations of the mothers of a large number of girls in music, in Port Hawkesbury. Another is a successful practitioner of Osteopathy in Halifax.

The Superintendent, Mr. C. F. Fraser,
LL. D., will in the coming June complete the fortieth year of his Presidency of the Institution, and he gratefully recognizes that in his work he has "one of the most progressive Boards of Management" to be found in connection with any Institution in the city.

The members of the Board would,
however, oh their part, no doubt, attribute the success of the Institution very largely to the zeal and devotion of the Superintendent.

Mr. J. A. Ruddick, Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner, Ottawa, in an address delivered January 9th, last, states that he recently collected as accurate statistics as possible from twenty-four Cities in Canada, and taking these as the basis of his calculation, he estimates that in the year 1912
the quantity of cream used in the manufacture of ice-cream in these cities was equivalent to nearly two million pounds of butter, or over four million pounds of cheese. Adding the sweet cream sold, he makes a total which represents six million pounds of butter, or thirteen million pounds of cheese. And this business in sweet cream and ice cream has reached these large proportions from a comparatively small amount six or eight years ago. The Managers of the establishments heard from say that the trade in these luxuries in 1912 was twenty per cent greater than in 1911.
Adding again the domestic use of milk and the quantity of condensed milk manufactured, Mr. Ruddick estimates the value of the milk used in Canada in these ways as amounting to one hundred million dollars.

Basing his opinion upon these statistics, he attributes the lessening of the export of butter, not to the falling off of the home supply of milk, or to the importation of New Zealand butter, but,
to the increased use of milk in the ways
first mentioned, namely sweet cream, ice-cream and condensed milk. He admits, however, that in British Columbia, the New Zealand butter is selling at a premium of one or two per cent over that of Eastern Canada, because of its supposed better quality; and it may be that an ocean voyage is more favorable for butter than the long jolting of a railway train.

Four thousand ministers and laymen of the Presbyterian Church are called to meet in Massey Hall, Toronto, for a five days' session, beginning on the 31st inst., for the consideration of various phases of the work of the Church. This will be the largest ecclesiastical gathering ever held in Canada, and is made possible by the gifts of five wealthy laymen, who each contributed twenty thousand dollars for the purpose. Though Massey Hall is very large, it will be necessary to provide for overflow meetings in other buildings.

This large gathering will be preparatory to the meeting of the General Assembly, in the same city.

Two Large Specimen of Bear Trapped at Dalhousie

An interesting and somewhat thrilling bear story comes from Dalhousie this week. Signs of the presence of these beasts of the forest had been noticed in the territory near Long Lake, two miles south of "The Hill," and several large steel traps had been set for them. On Monday afternoon Mr. Chas. Todd and his brothers Tom and William, visited the traps and found one of them missing with abundant indications that "something was doing." The Todd Brothers "struck the trail" and after a tramp of two miles they came upon "Mr. Bruin" caught by his left paw, who put up a strong fight of self defence. It required four well-directed shots from the rifles of the Todd Brothers before
"Mr. Bruin" was finally subdued.
The brute measured nine feet from tip of nose to tip of tail. The brothers then set out to visit other traps and had their first experience repeated. "Mr. Bruin" No. 2 had carried his trap with all its incumberances over a mile, and made havoc with trees and everything else that caused obstructions in his path.
He also required four shots before it was deemed safe to approach him to take his measurement. No. 2 measured seven feet from tip to tip. A good bear skin brings as high as $40.

An Appropriation for Bridgetown's Post Office

Citizens of Bridgetown in general have cause for rejoicing in the word that comes from Ottawa that an appropriation of $4,000 for a new post office in Bridgetown has been made in the supplementary estimates. This is but the beginning of a public improvement that the Bridgetown Board of Trade, and citizens through a petition, have been working for. In a recent letter to the Secretary of the Board of Trade, Mr. A. L. Davidson, the County "member, expressed a hope that an appropriation for Bridgetown would be made at this session of parliament, and it is a matter of gratification to all concerned that Mr. Davidson has been able to secure at least the beginning of what is hoped to be a larger apportionment.

Annapolis County Boy Prosperous in Colorado

The annexed paragraph which we copy from the Colorado Springs Gazette of May 18, refers to Jas. P.
Foster, a Port Lorne boy, who for a number of years was a clerk in "the employ of John Lockett & Son. In a letter to the Monitor concerning his new position Mr. Foster says:
"This is one of the big positions in the State."
"Mr. J. P. Foster, who has been associated with the Pelta company for the past several years as manager and advertiser, has accepted a position as manager of the State Mercantile Company of Fort Collins. He will leave Monday to assume his new duties. The State Mercantile Company is one of the largest and finest in the state and Mr. Foster will have the entire management of the company. In recognition of the establishment in which he was held by the employees and associates at the Pelta Company, Mr. Foster was presented with a handsome diamond ring yesterday."

WHITMAN—DANIELS.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Daniels, Lawrencetown,
N. S., on Wednesday morning, May 21st, when their youngest daughter, Katie Hilda was united in marriage to Prince P. Whitman of Inglisville.

The ceremony was performed in the parlor which was profusely decorated with apple blossoms while the exterior of the house presented an array of Canadian flags.

At nine o'clock to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, which was beautifully rendered by Miss Mary Beals, the groom supported by Mr. Samuel Bishop, took his place beneath an arch of cedar and apple blossoms, which had been constructed by friends of the bride. There they awaited the coming of the bride who entered the room leaning on the arm of her sister, Miss Eva Daniels.
The bride looked charming in a gown of white silk marquisette over white silk with trimmings of Irish lace and white satin, and carried a bou-quet of apple blossoms and maiden hair fern.

The bridesmaid wore fancy silk muslin over pale blue silk with trimmings of white lace.

Rev. H. G. Mellick was the officiating clergyman.

After the ceremony and congratulations a sumptuous repast was served to about forty guests.

The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents including a large sum of money, a parlor and bedroom suit, china, silver and linen.

She was one of Lawrencetown's favorite young ladies, having spent some time in Morse's drug store, where she won the esteem of all. The groom is a young man of sterling character.

Mr. Miner Daniels with his handsome span of gray horses drove the happy couple to Bridgetown, where they boarded the express en route for Boston and vicinity, where they expect to spend a few weeks. On their return they will reside at Inglisville.

The bride's traveling suit was tan serge with large black hat.

We wish Mr. and Mrs. Whitman a long, happy and prosperous married life.—COM.

Fire completely destroyed a Maxwell runabout and an automobile garage owned by Mr. John Bernie early last Thursday morning. An alarm was rung in at 1:15 a.m. and the fire brigade quickly responded to the alarm, but the garage being a small one and the flames having a big headway before being discovered, the building and machine were well nigh consumed before the arrival of the firemen.

Prof. Gilbert Buckton gave a repetition of one of his delightful recitals in the Methodist church lecture room on Monday evening. Longfellow's "Evangeline" was the principle item, and it was keenly enjoyed by everyone present. We are glad to know there is a prospect of hearing him again in this same number very shortly, when he will render it "Under the open sky in the odoriferous air of the orchard." Prof. Buckton's next recital will be given in Annapolis Royal.

"The County Sheriff" is one of those stirring dramas of the early days on the borders of civilization in which sweet story is woven from, and tells a story of true love. All the good that is in a man comes to the surface. It is the pure soul triumphing in the end, by his very trust and honesty. It is the fundamental principle of success and happiness that triumphs. "The County Sheriff" will be the attraction at the Primrose Theatre on Monday night, June 2nd. Positively one night only.

Mr. John E. Trimper of Clements vale, under date of May 22, writes the Monitor as follows: "As Mrs. Trimper and I were driving to Clements vale on May 18th, we witnessed a beautiful site. A mile from the Port and within 80 rods of the settlement south from the Port we saw three beautiful deer in the clearing alongside of the road. A large doe and two last year's fawns stood and looked at us until we came within one hundred feet of them. They crossed the road, just ahead of our horse, in a hurry, with their bushy tails standing straight up in the air."

The Cadet System in Schools

There are Canadians who object to the introduction of cadet drills into the schools because they think it develops a spirit of militarism. Experience has proved that this view is incorrect. Boys thoroughly enjoy cadet work without any direct consciousness of its relationship to war. The boy thinks only of the immediate effort, the immediate discipline, and the immediate enjoyment, and not of any ultimate and distant possibility. This well known psychological principle has a most important bearing on the whole question of the desirability of introducing cadet work into the schools.

It should be remembered in this connection that soldiers do not cause war. Grave dissensions between nations result from differences between the political and financial leaders of different countries, not from anything the soldiers of the rival countries say or do. The soldier is not the warrior. He is more likely to become the war-victim.

There are men who attack those who advocate cadet work in the schools, and who charge them with approving of "conscription." This charge has absolutely no foundation. The cadet system is a rational substitute for conscription. It avoids all the evils of conscription, and it develops the best elements of human power and character, while at the same time it secures all the supposed advantages of conscription in the most natural and the most thoroughly effective way. Those who attack the principle of universal training are evidently not aware of the fact that the law of Canada now recognizes the principle that all men, comparatively few exceptions, are responsible for the defence of their country. Between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, inclusive, men are now, by law, liable to be called upon when necessary to do military service in defence of their country. There is no logical basis for good citizenship but the one that recognizes a man's duties to his country. There is no proper system of training in citizenship that does not make all children—girls as well as boys—conscious of their responsibilities as individual units in their country. Boys should understand that they will become responsible for the defence of their homes and their country when they reach the age of eighteen. They should be trained to use their influence to avoid war; but the fundamental principle is that they are liable by law to give their services to defend their country when necessary in return for the privileges they enjoy as citizens.

It is an indefensible moral ideal that a man should enjoy the many rights of citizenship without recognizing his responsibility for the duties of citizenship. The advocates of a Cadet System do not wish any change in the law which makes every man between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years responsible for the defence of his country. They do, however, regard it as a grievous mistake to make all men within these age limits liable for military service, as the law now does, without providing in some way for their training in order that they may be able to render efficient service without the terrible sacrifice of life that would naturally result from the vain attempts of masses of untrained men to perform the duty required of them.

Universal liability for defence service is unquestionably right. This being true, it clearly follows that all men should, in some way, be prepared to perform the duty laid upon them by their country. The country that demands universal service without providing some adequate system of universal training for the men on whom it properly lays the duty is culpably negligent. The question to be solved really is: What is the most effective and most economical system for giving universal training?

The Cadet System has the following merits from the national standpoint—

1. It is given at a time when lessons learned by operative processes are never forgotten. Drill is an operative process. Operative processes are not recorded in the memories, but in the lives of students.
2. It costs the country less to train the coming citizens in the schools than in any other way.

3. It interferes with the ordinary duties of men less than any other possible plan to have the foundation of military drill given in the schools.
4. It qualifies the men of the country for more complete military training in much shorter time than it would take to train them without cadet training in the schools. Men in later years will find their training in military drill to be mainly reviewing the work they did in school instead of having to learn the whole work at maturity.
5. Boys like military drill. From twelve to sixteen years of age, they generally like it better than baseball or lacrosse, and because of this fact, it may be used so as to produce the most beneficial effects upon character.
6. A Cadet is not a soldier. He takes no oath of military service. He is a boy who, for his own good and the good of his country, is disciplined through wholesome exercises, some of which have had a military origin, and some have not. Any possible objection to a Cadet Corps applies with equal force to a Boys' Brigade.

The following are the general advantages of Cadet training to the Cadets themselves:—

1. It provides an excellent setting-up drill for boys physically. Boys whose teachers, parents and physicians have tried earnestly to train to sit and stand properly without success, in most cases respond at once to drill and become new physical types. Drill exercises are good for the general physical development of a boy, but they produce better effects than additional strength and improved health. They give a more graceful carriage of the body and a more definite step.
2. It is not possible to train a boy so that throughout his life he will stand erect and walk with more grace and dignity without, at the same time influencing him morally for good. The physical, the intellectual and the moral natures react on each other. They should be trained in harmony, in order that each individual may reach his best development in the three departments of his nature.

Every parent in Canada who has had sons at the Royal Military College, and every man who has met boys before and after their course there, has recognized the extraordinary improvement in health, strength, stature and physique which has followed that course.

Every man, whatever his party politics, who has seen the military training in Germany or in Sweden or Switzerland, testifies to the improvement in health, strength, bearing and self-respect which has attended it.

2. It trains boys to be promptly, definitely, intellectually and cheerfully obedient. There can be no diversity of opinion in regard to a training that develops prompt, definite, intelligent and cheerful obedience to regularly constituted authority. There is no other school process that develops these types of obedience in a boy's character so naturally, so effectively and so permanently as drill.
3. It reveals law to a boy, not as a restraining force merely, but as a guiding force, by enabling him to achieve much more perfect results under law than he could possibly achieve without law. Without the laws that govern its movements, a Company or a Regiment would be an unrelated mass of individuals or a mob; under law, it is a perfect organization, capable of executing a very complicated series of movements accurately and unitedly, not as individuals but as an organic unity. One of the most essential elements of true moral training is reverence for law as a guiding force. To understand "the perfect law of liberty," and have a true consciousness of what is meant by "liberty under law," is one of the strongest foundations of character. This recognition of law gives a man a deeper and broader conception of his true attitude to his fellowmen and to his duty.
4. It develops a boy's genuine patriotism; not an arrogant or offensive consciousness of national importance, but a genuine faith in himself and his country. Such a faith is one of the basic elements of a strong and balanced moral character. In many parts of Canada, a great many foreign boys are making a new home. There is no other process by which they can be made proud of their King their new country, their flag, and the institutions it represents so quickly and so thoroughly as by wearing the King's uniform, and keeping step to patriotic British-Canadian music behind the Union Jack as part of a patriotic organization, along with British-Canadian boys. In this way the spirit of patriotism enters a boy's heart and life.
5. Drill does more than develop the spirit of patriotism. It reveals to a boy his value as a citizen, and, therefore, his responsibility for the performance of his duties as a citizen.

not merely in defence of his country, but in the highest development of his country in all departments of national life.

6. Cadet drill helps to make a boy executive, and executive training is the training that gives real practical value to all other kinds of training. One of the greatest causes of failure in the schools of the past was the lack of executive training.

7. All modern advances in education are based on a reverent recognition of the value of the individual soul, and of the supreme need of its development. Drill gives a boy an opportunity to learn the value of individual training and of individual effort by experience, better than any other school work except organized play, or organized work in Manual Training or some other form of employment. Each boy knows from the first that the standing of the Company depends on the work of each individual boy. He knows also that his failure brings discredit on his Company. This knowledge will, in due time, reveal to him the need of his life-work to aid his community and his country to their highest development.

8. Drill defines in a boy's mind the need of active co-operation with his fellows—boys and men. It is very important that each man shall become conscious of the value of his own individuality. It is much more important that he learn his supreme value as a social unit, as one working with and for humanity. The true ideals of social unity and social relationship cannot be communicated vitally to children or to adults by words alone. They must be defined by action; by united effort under directive law for the achievement of a common purpose. There is no other form of co-operative activity that so clearly reveals to a boy the need of putting forth his best efforts in harmony with his comrades as drill.

9. Drill trains a boy to be careful of his language and manners, and to value neatness and cleanliness in his clothing and person, and thus develops a conscious personal dignity, which is an important element in character.

That our system of government is democratic quadruples the force of arguments in favour of military drill in schools; for the system tends to a disregard for authority, a due respect for which is restored by a reasonable system of universal military training. The training is therefore beneficial, even desirable, in itself intrinsically and subjectively, quite apart from any outbreak of war, or any need for putting it into practice literally, and it is not discredited or rendered useless though the last and worst occasion for it never arise.

NOTE.—While we give space to this communication of the Honorable the Minister of Militia, which we observe is to be found in the April number of the Journal of Education, published by the Superintendent of Education of this Province, we wish to call attention to the article on "The Cadet Movement," copied from a recent number of the "Christian Guardian," especially the latter part of the article, printed on page seven of this issue of the Monitor.—Ed. THE REGENERATION OF ORGANS.

Many inferior animals have, as is well known, the power of replacing various parts of the body when lost, such as the tail, and even in some cases the head. A worm may sometimes be divided into various sections, and each section will proceed to live its separate existence. Experiments made by naturalists to obtain a better understanding in this regenerating faculty have shown that the lungs of frogs and salamanders have grown again after being almost wholly extirpated. Also the horns of snails have been extirpated with like results. Each so-called horn has an eye which communicates with the outside world, and these eyes have been re-grown with the horn, though practically useless for purposes of vision. It is established likewise that the caudal horn or tentacle of the silkworm, if taken off, will grow again, although it will be smaller than the primitive one, and in some cases invisible to the naked eye. The crab and lobster, as is well known, can grow new claws.

It would surprise you to know of the great good that is being done by Chamberlain's Tablets. Darius Downey, of Newburg Junction, N. B., writes, "My wife has been using Chamberlain's Tablets and finds them very effective and doing her lots of good." If you have any trouble with your stomach or bowels give them a trial. For sale by all dealers.

Eye strain during fine sewing or embroidery is much lessened if an apron of a contrasting color with the work is worn. If the work is white wear a black apron, or cover the lap with something dark and vice versa. This is especially important when sewing in an artificial light.

"MR. SPEAKER."

It is a somewhat peculiar thing that the only man in the Parliaments of England and Canada who is not permitted to speak on any question before the House should be called "Mr. Speaker." He occupies, however, a most unique position, and has some rights and prerogatives accorded to no other citizen except the King. In England he has the right, should his own carriage break down, to take possession of any other that comes along without saying "By your leave." His invitation to dinner, like the King's, is regarded as practically a command.

A writer to the Buffalo Express gives some interesting information concerning the occasion of the Speaker's chair in the English House of Commons.

"The present holder of this office, the Right Honorable J. W. Lowther, is perhaps more in the public eye at the present moment than any other man in England. His decision regarding the Liberal Government's long-promised franchise bill provided the sensation of the parliamentary year. As a result of it, this bill, which was designed to grant for the first time almost universal male suffrage in this country, has been shelved indefinitely. Incidentally, a settlement of the woman suffrage question in England has been postponed for months and perhaps years. Probably at no time during his twenty years in the House of Commons has the many-sided man and all-round athlete who presides over the deliberations of that body found himself so squarely in the limelight. Never, incidentally, has he stood so good a chance of being assaulted as he does at present at the hands of the infuriated women whose long-matured plans he has upset at the eleventh hour. If he is not strongly guarded nowadays when he leaves his official home in the palace of Westminster on horseback to take his regular morning canter in the Row, then Scotland Yard is neglecting its duty.

"Being Speaker is no snap, but the rewards are many and various. To begin with, there is the dignity. As the first commoner in the realm, Mr. Speaker takes precedence of the entire nobility in state processions, coming, in fact, directly after the archbishops, who, in their turn, are preceded only by royalty. At the end of his term of office, moreover, he invariably is elevated to the peerage, usually with the title of viscount and draws a fat pension for the remainder of his days. His official salary is $25,000 a year, which is not bad, considering that he lives rent free in the palace of Westminster during his term of office, to say nothing of having a gorgeous state coach.

"These perquisites are only a few of those enjoyed by the speaker. On being appointed to the chair, a generous nation awards him $5,000 as equipment money, and he receives an allowance of 1,000 ounces of plate, and $500 to keep him in stationery. "Despite his long hours and heavy responsibilities, however, the Right Honorable J. W. Lowther—who is fifty-eight, wears a neatly trimmed beard, and is noted as a careful dresser—always looks in the pink of condition. No doubt this is due to the many forms of exercise in which he indulges. His favorite sport is deer-stalking. He would far rather be crawling on all fours in the rain over a sodden Scotch moor than presiding over the deliberations of the House or acting as host at one of the full-dress dinners to which his invitation constitutes a command. When last nominated as M. P. for his district he rode to the ceremony in his hunting pink, and he rarely misses his morning canter in Rotten Row."

CITY CIRCULATION AGENT

Of Leading Montreal Daily Endorses GIN PILLS

I have long years of suffering from Kidney Trouble, Rheumatism, and GIN PILLS—and it's all gone. That has been the experience of Mr. Eugene Quessnel, Chief City Circulation Agent of La Patrie, of Montreal. He describes it feelingly.

Montreal, May 3rd, 1912

"I have been suffering from Kidney Trouble for over five long years. I had also Rheumatism in all my bones and muscles, could not sleep nights and on some occasions could hardly walk. I had been treated by some of our best Physicians but without relief and I lost over fifteen pounds. One day I met one of our leading hotelkeepers, who had been cured by your famous GIN PILLS, and he advised me to try them. So I bought two boxes at my druggist's and before I had used one box I felt a big change. Before I finished the second one I was completely cured. I can assure you I can hardly believe it for if I had only known what I know now I would not have spent over One Hundred Dollars for nothing when two boxes of GIN PILLS cured me."

GIN PILLS are gaining a world-wide reputation, by the way they conquer the most obstinate cases of Rheumatism and all kinds of Kidney Trouble. Sample free 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Sample free if you write National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto. 149

While drinking whiskey was the fashion all about him, Abraham Lincoln never forgot his dead mother's request to close his lips against noxious liquors. Once when he was a member of Congress, a friend criticized him in his seeming rudeness in declining to test the rare wines provided by their host, using as a reason for the refusal, "There is certainly no danger of a man of your years and habits becoming addicted to its use."

"I meant no disrespect, John," answered Mr. Lincoln, "but I promised my precious mother only a few days before she died, that I would never use anything intoxicating as a beverage, and I consider that promise as binding today as it was the day I gave it."

"There is a great difference between a child surrounded by a rough class of drinkers and a man in a home of refinement," insisted the friend.

"But a promise is a promise forever, John, and when made to a mother it is doubly binding," replied Mr. Lincoln.

There never was a time when people appreciated the real merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy more than now. This is shown by the increase in sales and voluntary testimonials from persons who have been cured by it. If you or your children are troubled with a cough or cold give it a trial and become acquainted with its good qualities. For sale by all dealers.

HOW SHIPS SLIP THROUGH A FOG.

The ship is one of Britain's large food carriers, with a mixed cargo of frozen mutton, grain and wool, bound from New Zealand to London, and, after forty days at sea, has reached the Bay of Biscay, where ships are numerous and fog is a real danger, says London Answers.

I walk up to the second officer who is standing in the centre of the bridge immediately in front of the helmsman, with his hand ready to the whistle lanyard.

"Have you seen or heard any other ships?" I ask.

"Yes, sir; there is a whistle blowing on the port beam." And he sounds our whistle according to the international regulations, which demand that a steamer when under way shall blow its whistle at intervals not exceeding two minutes' duration.

Bo-o-o! Our vessel gives out its warning cry, and, after a pause of a few seconds, I hear what might be its echo, but what I feel sure is the hooter of another steamer.

"Ben like this long?" I inquire of the second officer, as I vainly try to pierce the pall of fog settled around us like a wall.

"Just set in before I called you, sir, and it appears to be getting worse."

"Put the engine to 'Slow,'" I at once order, as the faint sound of a foghorn from another steamer, apparently on our starboard beam, reaches me. Our ship before was making a good twelve knots, but immediately on the ringing of the engine room telegraph the throbbing of the engines becomes perceptibly slower, and the ship gradually loses its speed through the water.

I am just speculating as to when the fog is likely to lift, when, immediately after our whistle has sounded I fancy I hear a faint sound right ahead. I glance across inquiringly at the second officer, but evidently he has heard nothing. As the lookout man makes no report, I decide it is echoing in my ears. Our hooter sounds again, and I listen intently in the silence which follows.

Ah, no doubt this time!

"Steamer blowing right ahead, sir," reports the officer.

"Can you place it for certain?" I ask him, although I have already done so.

"Oh, yes; right ahead, sir!"

"Very well; stop her," I order.

The second officer rings the telegraph connection with the engine room, and the throbbing of the engines suddenly ceases, leaving absolute silence, except for the gentle lapping of the water along our sides. We sound our whistle again and immediately we hear a long-drawn reply from right ahead, and considerably louder than before, which tells me the other vessel is approaching us through the fog rapidly and on.

Gradually we lose our headway in the water until we practically stop, and I give the order to blow two blasts on the hooter, which is the signal laid down by the international laws on navigation to show that a vessel is stopped and the way of it.

We then hear two blasts from the steamer ahead, signifying that it has also stopped. Now comes a very trying time for us all. I give the order, "Dead slow ahead." Being unaware of the other's action, neither ship can take the initiative of altering its course, and there is nothing to do but for each ship carefully to feel its way past the other.

With eyes straining into the wall of the fog ahead, the few seconds which pass seem like so many hours. Shall we safely clear one another? Suddenly I see a faint glow of light on our port bow.

"Hard aport!" I cry. And, as the ship answers to her helm, a dim, red light appears shining from a huge steamer slowly gliding past with hardly a ship's breadth of water between us.

A sigh of relief rises from us all as I increase the ship's speed, and we all settle down again to the seemingly endless watching and waiting for the fog to clear away.

EXPERIMENTS IN THE USE OF WASTE WOOD.

Recent experiments demonstrate the complete practicability of utilizing wood waste from lumbering and saw mill or other wood-working industries in the manufacture of paper pulp. Where the wood is resprouts in character, it has been demonstrated that in the case of certain pines and firs, by-products of great value may, in addition to paper pulp, be secured from this source, in the form of turpentine, rosin oils, pine oils, creosote, charcoal, wood alcohol, etc.

A cord of waste wood costing from $2.00 to $4.00 delivered at the works, may yield products worth nearly fifty dollars. The waste material so utilized comes from the wood left in the forest from lumbering, dead and fallen timber, stumps of cut-over lands, and slabs and edgings from the mills. Pines and fir stumps have been profitably utilized in this connection, especially where the removal of stumps is desirable in order that the land may be devoted to farming purposes.

Under the usual methods of utilization, not less than sixty per cent. of the volume of the tree as it stands in the woods is wasted in converting it into lumber. This waste material is now becoming recognized as a potential source of great revenue, through the establishment of properly located plants for the manufacture of some of all of the above by-products. This tendency will become increasingly strong with the inevitable decrease in the extent of virgin forests.—C. L. in Conservation for May.

GRATITUDE PROMPTED THIS LETTER

Prominent People Proud To Testify For "Fruit-a-tives"

MR. TIMOTHY McGRATH

130 ATLANTIC AVE., MONTREAL, MARCH 1st, 1912.

"For years, I suffered from Rheumatism, being unable to work for weeks at a time and spent hundreds of dollars on doctor's medicines, besides receiving treatment at Notre Dame Hospital where I was informed that I was incurable. I was discouraged when a friend advised me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'. After using three packages, I felt relieved and continued until I had used five packages when a complete cure was the result after years of doctoring failed. I consider 'Fruit-a-tives' a wonderful remedy. You are at liberty to use this testimonial to prove to others the good that 'Fruit-a-tives' has done me."

A LABOUCHERE ANECDOTE

A Labouchere anecdote which has not been done to death is given in the new volume of recollections by Sir Henry Lucy ("Troy, M.P."), to whom it was told by Labby himself. It concerned the younger son of a peer, who thought that a berth in the Diplomatic Service was as desirable a place as any for one who took life rather easily. He knew nothing of the special subjects upon which the preliminary examination was based, but there was at least the promise of a lark. As far as he could make out, he did not supply a single correct answer to the long list of questions. Nevertheless, he came out first in the competition. It was a surprise even for a confident young lordling. Meeting one of the examiners at a dinner a few days later, he ventured to ask how the thing came about. "We at once saw you knew nothing," was the reply. "But your manner was so free from constraint under what to some people would have been peculiarly embarrassing circumstances that we said to each other, 'That's the very man to make a diplomatist.' So we gave you a start on your career."

Minard's Liniment Lumberman's Friend.

THE CADET MOVEMENT.

Just now considerable attention is being directed both in the press and in the pulpit toward the Cadet movement in our schools, and the question is raised whether this movement should receive the sanction of the church, some of our preachers being inclined to think that, so far from receiving our sanction, it should be distinctly reprobated as wholly opposed to the true spirit of Christianity.

Of course the movement must be differentiated from the Scout movement, as the latter distinctly claims to be non-military, while the very basis of the Cadet movement is military. The boy is taught something about military drill and he is trained to use the rifle with the distinct understanding that this knowledge may be used some day in the defence of his country. Are these things unwise? Are they morally defensible? No one can say that Canada is in any urgent danger, and no one would care to prophesy a future war with Canadian territory as the seat of its operations, and yet there are many who cannot see that it would in any way injure our Canadian youth to know how to use a rifle.

We cannot forget that both the Empire to which we belong and the great Republic to the south of us are compelled to maintain armies of greater or less strength; and our only warrant of permanent freedom from invasion must lie in the military strength of one or other of these great nations. And whether we base our freedom from attack upon the invincibility of the British navy, or the effective maintenance of the Monroe doctrine, we must acknowledge our dependence upon the military preparations of either one or the other of these nations. Are we prepared to do this? If so, does it not mean that while we will not risk our own lives in defence of our country we will allow others to risk theirs for us?

Personally we do not see clearly that the day has yet come when either Great Britain or the United States could afford wholly to disarm and, until that day does come we think it would be well that Canadians should know how to ride and how to shoot.

But a point was raised in the able article by Edward Trelawney in last week's Christian Guardian, which needs careful guarding, and we are glad to see that the Minister of Militia recognizes this fact, as he has shown by calling representative Christian women into his counsel.

The point is this, that the character of the military instructors must be such as we demand from our public and high school teachers. Canadian parents have a right to, and will, insist that if there is to be military training, it must be of such a character as can be trusted not to lower the moral standard of their boys. From the standpoint of military efficiency alone, cleanliness of life is most desirable, and from the moral standpoint it is an absolute necessity.

There is no necessary relation between the trio of evils, drinking, smoking and swearing, and military service, and the time has gone by when the military hero must necessarily be addicted to any of those things. Both discipline and skill with the rifle are helped by clean living, and if we are to have a wider extension of the Cadet system, let it be distinctly understood that it must be of such a character as will commend itself to the moral sentiment of our people.—The Christian Guardian.

SOCIALIZED SCHOOL BUILDINGS

Amherst, Nova Scotia, has, for many years, been one of the most enterprising and progressive business and manufacturing centres in Eastern Canada. Its citizens are now throwing into educational matters the same enterprise which has built up the town industrially. Amherst has the honor of being the first city of Canada to introduce socialized school buildings. The idea is comparatively new, and its introduction into Amherst is largely due to Mr. John Bradford, Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. Association. The purpose of the movement, as explained in the columns of the Presbyterian Witness in an article by Mr. Bradford, in our issue of April 6th, 1902, is to make the public school building a social centre for recreation, intellectual improvement and culture. In February of last year a school building was opened in Amherst for this purpose, and now the movement is to be extended in the erection of the new High School and Acadia Street buildings. Provision will be made for public meetings, social gatherings, technical school classes. There will be an art gallery, plants, flowers, pictures and objects of art, gymnasium, swimming pool, shower baths library, rest rooms, ample playgrounds and every provision for the development of the mens sana in corpore sano. A new and wider interest will thus gather about the school and its influence upon the intellectual and social life of the community will be correspondingly increased. Within the past few years sixteen socialized school buildings have been erected in various parts of the United States and the idea is rapidly spreading. Amherst has taken the lead in the movement in Canada, and its example will no doubt be followed by other cities and towns.—Presbyterian Witness.

ADVANCE FASHIONS.

It is in the sleeves that radical changes may be expected this spring. Ever since the kimono sleeve began to lose caste the designers have attempted to introduce all sorts of new ideas into sleeves. But there is the satisfaction that it has brought in prominence sleeves of so many types that it is possible for every woman to select becoming ones. The low shoulder seam, so well received the earlier part of this winter, retains the popular feature of the kimono sleeve. The enlarged armhole is likewise an easy transition for the devotees of the kimono. On the newest gowns the armhole has shrunk to its normal proportions, and the novelty lies in the arrangements of the fullness of the sleeve. Fight as women may against fullness in the sleeves, fashion seems to favor it, and it is sure to come if the signs in the fashion world are read correctly.

ON A LONG TRIP.

In making a long trip on the train, always slip a folding coat-hanger into your travelling bag. When the porter brings the large paper hat bag just ask for another one, which he is always willing to let you have. Put your coat on the hanger, and turning one of the bags upside down, slip it over the coat, making a small slit for the hook of the hanger to go through. Thus the coat can be hung up in good shape and thoroughly protected from dirt during the entire trip.

KITCHEN WINDOW SCREENS.

It is a good plan to put the window screens in the kitchen in the upper instead of the lower half of the window. Having that half open makes the kitchen so much cooler. The heated upper air is allowed to escape and also sash curtains can always be kept in place, and much cleaner when the lower half of the window is stationary.

DATE PIE.

One-half pound of dates, let soak in one and a half pints of sweet milk on back of stove where they will keep warm but not cook. Let stand about two hours, then rub through a sieve into a rich pie crust. It will thicken like custard when baked. Frost with beaten whites of two eggs, little sugar.

SCOTCH SHORTCAKE.

One and three quarter pounds flour, 1 lb. butter, 1/2 lb. brown sugar. Cream the butter and sugar and mix in the flour until all is worked in. Roll about 1/2 inch thick and bake in a slow oven.

AUNT SUE COOKIES.

One cup sugar, 2-3 cup butter and lard mixed, 1 well-beaten egg, 1 cup sweet milk. Sift 1 heaping teaspoonful baking powder in a little flour. Flavor with nutmeg. Flour to roll. Have oven hot, but watch closely.

The Home

ROUNDING OUT THE HOLLOW.

A letter from "Virginia" voices the troubles of many younger women. She says: "The bones of my neck are very prominent, and I have great hollows about them. Can you tell me how I can fatten the neck in a short time?"

The hollow neck with the prominent bones also shows neglect of health—a very criminal neglect, too. The hope of the lungs come just where these hollows are and extend a little above the prominent collarbone. First of all, then, deep breathing exercises are necessary to fill out the lungs. Stand with the head back and slowly inflate the lungs until you can draw in no more air; then tap the distended lungs lightly and quickly with your hands, after which gently exhale your breath. You will feel a little dizzy when you first try this deep breathing, so that you can do it only a few times at first, but after a while you can take thirty or forty, and even more of these deep breaths. You should do this before an open window, or in a room where the air is fresh.

Usually those who complain of the hollow necks are too thin, and need to build up all the tissues of the body. "Virginia" asked how she can do it "in a short time." It is not possible to do this in a short time. Continual persistent effort is needed.

The next thing to do is to develop the muscles of the neck. These are the most neglected muscles of the body in grown-ups. One seldom throws back the head to look up, and to look around, and yet these are the very movements needed to develop the muscles.

ADVANCE FASHIONS.

It is in the sleeves that radical changes may be expected this spring. Ever since the kimono sleeve began to lose caste the designers have attempted to introduce all sorts of new ideas into sleeves. But there is the satisfaction that it has brought in prominence sleeves of so many types that it is possible for every woman to select becoming ones. The low shoulder seam, so well received the earlier part of this winter, retains the popular feature of the kimono sleeve. The enlarged armhole is likewise an easy transition for the devotees of the kimono. On the newest gowns the armhole has shrunk to its normal proportions, and the novelty lies in the arrangements of the fullness of the sleeve. Fight as women may against fullness in the sleeves, fashion seems to favor it, and it is sure to come if the signs in the fashion world are read correctly.

ON A LONG TRIP.

In making a long trip on the train, always slip a folding coat-hanger into your travelling bag. When the porter brings the large paper hat bag just ask for another one, which he is always willing to let you have. Put your coat on the hanger, and turning one of the bags upside down, slip it over the coat, making a small slit for the hook of the hanger to go through. Thus the coat can be hung up in good shape and thoroughly protected from dirt during the entire trip.

KITCHEN WINDOW SCREENS.

It is a good plan to put the window screens in the kitchen in the upper instead of the lower half of the window. Having that half open makes the kitchen so much cooler. The heated upper air is allowed to escape and also sash curtains can always be kept in place, and much cleaner when the lower half of the window is stationary.

DATE PIE.

One-half pound of dates, let soak in one and a half pints of sweet milk on back of stove where they will keep warm but not cook. Let stand about two hours, then rub through a sieve into a rich pie crust. It will thicken like custard when baked. Frost with beaten whites of two eggs, little sugar.

SCOTCH SHORTCAKE.

One and three quarter pounds flour, 1 lb. butter, 1/2 lb. brown sugar. Cream the butter and sugar and mix in the flour until all is worked in. Roll about 1/2 inch thick and bake in a slow oven.

AUNT SUE COOKIES.

One cup sugar, 2-3 cup butter and lard mixed, 1 well-beaten egg, 1 cup sweet milk. Sift 1 heaping teaspoonful baking powder in a little flour. Flavor with nutmeg. Flour to roll. Have oven hot, but watch closely.

Joker's Corner

The editor was dying, but when the doctor bent over, placed his ear on his breast and said: "Poor man! Circulation almost gone," the dying editor sat up and shouted: "You're another! We have the largest circulation in the country!"

BRIGHT OR LAZY.

"Johnny, I don't believe you've studied your geography."
"No, mum; I heard pa say the map of the world was changing every day an' I thought I'd wait a few years till things got settled."

WHAT HE WOULD DO.

"What are you going to do when you grow up, if you don't know how to read, write and cipher?" asked a school teacher of a lazy, stupid boy.
"I'm going to be a schoolmaster, an' make the boys do all the readin', writin' an' cipherin'," replied the boy.

HUMAN NATURE.

"Why is it," asked the curious guest, "that poor men usually give larger tips than rich men?"
"Well, suh," said the waiter, who was something of a philosopher as well, "looks to me like de po' man don't want nobody to find out he's po', and de rich man don't want nobody to find out he's rich."

Now, my man.

"Now, my man," said the Magistrate at a Police Court to an old offender, an Irishman, "what's brought you here again?" "Two policemen, yer honor," was the reply. "Drunk, I suppose?" inquired the Magistrate. "Yes, sorr," answered Pat, "both av them." "Five days or seven and six," ordered the magistrate, "Thank ye kindly, yer honor," added Pat; "if it's all the same to you, I'll take the seven and six."

Champ Clark has the happy knack

of being able to parry inconvenient interruptions with some smart retort that immediately squashes the interruption. He was speaking at a rather noisy meeting not long ago, and after a short time a big chunk of wood was thrown at him. Fortunately the aim was bad, and it fell harmlessly on the platform.
Mr Clark picked it up and showed in tones of mock anxiety, "one of our opponents has lost his head."

Sir Leopold McClintock, the Arctic explorer, was once giving an account of his experiences amid the icefields of the north.

"We certainly would have travelled much farther," he explained, "had not our dogs given out at a critical time."
"But," exclaimed a lady, who had been listening very intently, "I thought the Eskimo dogs were perfectly tireless creatures."
Sir Leopold's face wore a whimsically gloomy expression as he replied: "I—er—speak in a culinary sense Miss."

Boys are not alone in their spirit of bragging about the distinguished qualities of "Dad." A number of little girls were boasting of the ranks of their respective families. They had passed from clothes to personal appearance, then to interior furnishings, and finally came to paternal dignity. The minister's little girl boasted:

"Every package that comes for my papa is marked D.D."
"And every package that comes for my papa is marked M.D.," retorted the daughter of the physician.
This was followed by a look of contempt from the youngest of the party. "Huh!" she exclaimed, with nice disdain. "Every package that comes to our house is marked C.O.D."

How Concrete Work Was Made Easy For You

UNTIL a few years ago farmers considered concrete a rather mysterious material, that could be used successfully only by experts. They knew that upon the quality of the cement depended much of the success of concrete work. They had no means of testing cement, such as big contractors employ, and so could not be sure of its quality.

Yet the farmer needed concrete. He was kept from using this best and most economical of materials by

1. Lack of knowledge of how to mix and place concrete.
2. Lack of a brand of cement upon the quality of which he could absolutely rely.

Canada Cement

has supplied both these requirements.

We employed men to make a thorough investigation of the farmer's requirements; to find out where and how he could use concrete with profit to himself; to discover all problems he might come across and to solve them. This investigation was expensive. But when it was completed we had the material for our campaign to show the farmer how and where to use concrete, and we printed a book, "What the Farmer Can do With Concrete," for free distribution. That book makes every farmer who reads it a concrete expert, as far as his needs are concerned. He finds that there is nothing mysterious about concrete—that a few simple rules supply all the knowledge required.

At the same time we met the farmer's second objection—inability to test the quality of cement—by producing cement of a quality that does not need to be tested.

The Canada Cement that you buy by the bag is the same Canada Cement that is sold by the train-load for great elevators, buildings and bridges.
