Other Officers Elected by Acclamation-Resolutions of Confidence and Endorsation -- Large Attendance and Rousing Speeches. Nothing could have been more cordial or encouraging than the attendmeeting of the South York Liberal-Conservative Association at the Labor Temple on Saturday afternoon. The rousing speeches made by Richard a number of other gentlemen. The president, Mayor Fisher, opened the meeting and for the election of offi-cers requested Alex. McCowan, M.L.A., to take the chair. He described the constituency as in the midst of a camconstituency as in the midst of a campaign with the prospects very bright.

Resolutions of confidence in R. L.

Borden, M.P., and the policy of the party, and of appreciation of Premier Whitney and his honest government, and the vindication of the people's rights in connection with the Niagara power policy were adopted.

A motion was submitted to re-elect the officers, but this was defeated by a close vote. On the offices being put

President of South York Conservative the officers, but this was defeated by a close vote. On the offices being put up separately, however, this course was followed. Mayor Fisher defeated Dr. Walters for the presidency. C. Jennings declined to oppose Dr. Walters as first vice-president, and T. H. Thempson as second vice-president, and Herbert Ball as secretary were re-elected by acclamation.

Riding in Good Shape.

W. F. Maclean, M.P., spoke of the outlook in Centre York. He had never seen a riding in better shape, and no candidate had ever had better feeling shown him by his opponents. In Markham, Unionville, Scarboro there was fine feeling, and the meetings in the west end were splendid. He look-ed for Tom Wallace's return as cer-

Richard Blain, M.P., Peel, complimented the association on their work and their officers. He took the opportunity of expressing his appreciation of the policy of Mr. Maclean. Some might think he took too many speed powders—(laughter)—but he was an 'admirer of his progressive ideas. Mr. Maclean had been of much service to the Liberal-Conservative party, and to say he would be re-elected was what they all knew. He was sure Mr. McCowan would retain the seat he had won from the Reform party. Mr. Whitney's government was an honest

Whitney's government was an honest one, and in the mind of both parties he stood for honest dealing.

At Ottawa they had another true man in Mr. Borden. He would be much surprised if the electors did not march to the polls and turn out the dishonest government of the Dominion, as had been done in Ontario in 1905. He congratulated the association in having such a candidate as Capt. Tom Wallace to do honor to the county.

George Syme said tho he was first resident of the new association it

court having refused him an opportuni-Japan Count Witte had recommended the abandoning of Port Arthur, considering that the opening of Port Dalny had destroyed the strategic importance of the fortress, Count Witte has broken his long silence, in a two column letter to The Novoe Vremye.

It is an interesting disclosure of excerpts from secret documents which throw light on the inner councils before the war and seeks to prove that Kuropatkin was guilty of misleading the whole government by an overestimate of Russia's preparedness for war. In July, 1903, according to Count Witte, after a tour of inspection in the east, Gen. Kuropatkin, in a written report to the Emperor said:

"Two years ago we thought ourselves ready to defend the Amur region and North Manchuria. To-day we cannot only do that, but can be perfectly confident of the fate of Port Arthur." only do that, but can be perfectly con lident of the fate of Port Arthur."

A Great Story

Premier Whitney's statement regarding the power bylaw is remarkable in that it indicates A GREAT STORY of bulldozing, misrepresentation and betrayal on the part of the electrical interests in their dealings with the government of the people of Ontario. Perhaps it will include the story of men, who pretended to be his friends, but who were, in reality, only monopoly promoters.

Some day THE STORY may be told in all its details. At present, however, Premier Whitney exercises great restraint in merely indicating the treachery of the electrical interests.

Premier Whitney's statement is one of the strongest arguments yet made for the carrying of the power bylaw.

Caldwell Arrested on Shipboard at New York For the Authorities in Britain.

The Chief Witness.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—The charge against Robert C. Caldwell is conspiracy and wilful and corrupt perjury in the evidence he gave while testifying in the Druce case. Papers giving full details on the subject are being prepared by the home office and will be forwarded thru the foreign office as soon as possible.

The arrest of the American, who was the principal witness for the prosecution, and without whose testimony the case probably would never have been brought, will add immensely to the already widespread interest in the sensational suit.

The opening of the vault containing the body of Thomas C. Druce, has been provisionally fixed for Dec. 27. One of the results of examining the coffin will be to prove immediately the truth or the falsity of one of the main points in Caldwell's evidence, and probably settle the question of his extradition.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 .- Robt. Caldwell, the American witness in the famous Druce case in London, was arrested at Hoboken, N. J., to-day after the arrival of the steamer Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. The arrest was made upon the request from the British authorities for perjury in the British authorities for perjury in the Druce case. Caldwell was taken into custody soon after he left the steamer. He appeared to be broken in health and said that he believed himseif to be in a serious physical condition.

Robert C. Caldwell on Nov. 8 testified at the Marylebone Police Court that he knew the late Duke of Portland, botter the duke and as T. C. Druce, at Welling the Court of the duke and as T. C. Druce, at Welling the Court of beck Abbey and at the Baker-street bazaar. He added that he treated the duke at both places for a disease of the nose. Caldwell further testified that in conjunction with the duke he arranged the mock funeral of Druce. He said that at the duke's request he employed a carpenter to make a coffin, purchased 200 lbs. of lead and put it in the coffin himself. The funeral occurred on the following day, identified Photographs.

United States 369,672,000 18,851,000
In the United Kingdom, Germany and the United States the production of coal in 1906 was greater than in any previous year. The production per head of the population and the price per ton at the coiliery in these countries were as collows:

Per head. Price.

United Kingdom 5% tons. 7s. 344d.
Germany 244 8s. 114d.
United States 41-3 5s. 84d.
Despite the great increase in production last year the price of coal rose by 4d. per ton in the United Kingdom, 31-2d. in Germany and 11-4d. in the United States.

In the year 1905 there were 837,100 persons employed in coal mining, above and below ground, in the United Kingdom, the average output per head being 282 tons per annum. There were 626,300 persons employed in the United States, the average output being 560 tons.

united States, the average output being 560 tons.

Last year the United Kingdom experted 76,788,000 tons of coal, and Germany 25,807,000 tons. On the other hand. Germany imported 10,175,000 tons, of which 7,500,000 tons were obtained from this country. France and Italy are our other principal customers.

The total quantity of coal brought into the area within a radius of 25 miles of Charing Cross last year was the mine. For this reason the rescuers did not take time to bring out the bodies as they were found, but pressed forward, to open a passage to and explore every section of the mine.

The toreign miners who escaped the disaster made the night hideous in their little village. They had suspended work because of the Russian holiday in honor of the czar's name day, and most of them followed their usual holiday custom of drinking to excess. Many were intoxicated before the catastrophe, and afterwards they put themselves in worse condition, some drinking in celebration of their escape and others drinking to drown grief over the death of relative or friend. All night there was carousing and disorder at times bordering on rioting.

It is believed that a majority of the victims are Americans. Such of the foreigners as belong to the Greek Catholic Church did not go to work yesterday morning, that they might celebrate St. Nicholas Day, an important holiday in their church calendar.

Immediately upon hearing of the explosion, the men in all the mines hereabouts suspended work and many of them hurried here, many offering their services as rescuers. Many more are coming in to-day, for, as is usual following disasters, the miners within a wide radius will not resume work for

ominent Novelist Declares Classics

LONDON. Dec. 20.-At the annual of the most prominent novelists of the day declaimed against the fate which prevented him from calling himself a journalist. He went on to insinuate that the day of the book that should live for all time was over, that all books now and in the future were merely commercial ventures out of which one was to make as much as

Mr. H. G. Wells, the speaker who thus made bold to scoff at the exalted ideas of the novelist, said that he resented the distinction drawn between one sort

"What is the difference between literature and journalism? As far as I can see it consists in the fact that journalism does not pretend to immortality, and literature does. Journalism deals with current reality in times of current thought, and it appeals immediately to living and acting readers. In my opinion this is exactly what the novelist does. What is the typist, the city clerk, or the self-educated working man to make of Ben Jonson or 'The Faerie Queene?' He has not the capacity to deal with these subjects. He asks for intellectual bread, and you give him a fossil. Presently when the working classes come to us when the working classes come to us to know what they shall read we shall tell them to read journalism, the book of the hour, the day, and the week; then they may get rid of the terrible intellectual irony of the present day. Ltt. erature or classics are things of the past. We no longer produce them. The industry has died out."

GIVING CHRISTMAS CHEER

One Hundred and Fifty Little Ones Made Happy by Chalmers' Church Bible Class.

When The Sunday World man eached Chalmers Presbyterian Church, orner Dovercourt-road and Dundasstreet, Friday night, a sight to be seen but once in a lifetime met his gaze. turkey, cranberry sauce, plum pudding and fruit, were some 150 of the happiest children that the City of Toronto at that moment could produce. The occasion was the annual Christmas dinne which the Bible class of this church gives to the children of Elizabeth-street School; and, if merry voices and gladsome faces tell a true tale, a din-ner which will not be soon forgotten by the waifs and strangs who were for-tunate enough to be selected to enjoytunate enough to be selected to enjoyits bounty.

Everywhere Mr. M. Parkinson, member of the board of education, and teacher of the class, was giving his close attention to his little guests, and as the piles of turkey and dressing disappeared a look of satisfaction settled down on the countenances of both teacher and members of the class. Surely, around that table the Scriptural text, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," found ample fulfil-

When the good things ea eat had been disposed of; and every boy and girl had tucked away an orange or girl had tucked away an orange of two for future reference, and when Mr. M. Rawlinson, member of the board of education, who had gratuitously brought the children in his sleighs, had spoken briefly to them and called for three cheers for the host of the evening, all adjourned to the school room of the church. Here an even room of the church. Here an even more pleasant surprise awaited the children, for a great jingling of sleigh bells and clatter of prancing hoofs was the signal for the electric lights in the hall to be switched off, just as a real live Santa Claus dashed into the midst of the delighted children. At the same moment another electric switch was opened, and, as if at the command of Santa, a beautiful Christmas tree, cov-ed with gifts and festooned with coled with gifts and festooned with col-ored electric bulbs, burst into a flood of dancing light. For a moment there was deep silence, and then a bursting cry of childish joy, which will not soon be forgotten by those present. And from many a heart of the older people present went up an earnest expression of thanksgiving for the joys and bless-ing of the Christmas-tide.

Santa at once proceeded to distri-bute the gifts from the tree, each of which was labeled in the name of the child for which it was intended. More delights and surprises, of course, followed, and when it was all over each girl had a beautiful doll in her arms, each boy a Christmas annual open be-fore him, and every boy and girl a

Promptly at 9 o'clock the children were ready for home. Then came the loading again into the sleighs, and with merry laughter ringing out into an ideal Canadian night, and with rousing cheers for Chalmers Church Bible Class, the happy band were whirled away to their homes in the ward.

Everyone present was struck at the order preserved by the children. Miss H. How, the principal, and Miss Florence Sims, one of the teachers, accompanied the children. These self-sacrificing women have, and fully deserve, the gratitude of all Toronto citizens for the great work they are doing in Elizabeth-street School.

Among the children present last night were all colors and all creeds, but the reverent manner in which, led by Miss Sims, they sang grace, and their full-voiced rendering of the "Glory Song." Canadaian Labor party is practically called for by the minister of the church, the Rev. H. A. Macpherson, a second time, "Christmas Bells" and second time, "Christmas Bells" and "God Save the King," left no doubt

A MESSAGE FOR ALL

THE SAD STORY OF NURSE PASSMORE

An Open Christmas Letter From W. J. Gage, on Behalf of the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives

Writing on behalf of the Trustees of the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives, Mr. W. J. Gage, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, has sent out the following letter to his fellow-citizens:

Toronto, Dec. 21st, 1907.

You will probably say you are tired of these letters and of appeals, but what shall the Trustees of the Muskoka and Toronto Free Hospitals do with 120 patients, whom other hospitals refuse? With a number pleading for admission, with increased cost in food supplies, without any endowment—to whom shall we go? After appealing for special help to the Government, to the City Council, and to our Bankers, in our disappointment we come to

In the beginning of November, we spoke of a newspaper report of three deaths in one family in this city, within a month, from Consumption, the father dying at the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives, and two children buried from their own home in one day,

In the last week of the same month, The Telegram tells us of the death of Miss Passmore, aged 24. Briefly, the story was told that she had been a nurse. Ten months ago, while attending her mother's funeral, she contracted a cold, ending with her death from Consumption at the Torontc Free Hospital. The last paragraph reads: "Within two years, her father, mother and brother had died with the same disease."

What an awful tragedy is thus made known-four deaths in the one family from this dread scourge

Administration Building and Pavilion. Toronto Free Hospital for

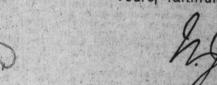

No sensational headlines were used. The facts are reported as a matter of everyday

During the month of November, all the churches of Toronto have been aroused by a movement to raise half a million dollars to carry on missionary work in Canada, in China and Japan. The fact that this remarkable movement is likely to prove successful shows that the people of Toronto only require to know the need in order to secure the desired result.

May not the Trustees of the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives appeal with equa confidence for help to save the lives of some of the families that are being blotted out in this city by this awful scourge?

On behalf of such as Nurse Passmore—on behalf of the 50 patients who belong to our own city, who are sick and dying, and whose only refuge is the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives—the Trustees make this last Christmas appeal, not for money to erect buildings or to pay for luxuries, but for mency to buy food and pay the nurses who minister to these lonely and sick ones.

Yours, faithfully,

The keeping open of the doors of this hospital is sometimes a serious problem with the trustees. There is no endowment. All patients admitted are charity patients—patients other hospitals refuse and friends often will not have in their own homes.

The whole situation is most pitiable—indeed, alarming.

Here is the one and only hospital that admits this class of patients—the advanced, the far-advanced,

Is the work to stop, or in any way be circumscribed for want of money? This is the problem. Your Christmas givings will help to solve the problem.

upon which to transfer and the elec-tric forces accomplish the rest. Mental repose is necessary, and the one sitting must be as quiescent as possible so as to study this phenomenon with a view to understand what it sig-nifies. Rapid results can follow and the explanation given later. This, then, the relation that exists between mortals and spirits.

I quote from Professor Farraday in an answer as follows: "What effect have the skeptical minds and spirit grabhers upon your operation on the spirit side before the grabbing is made?"

I answer that the general hostility on the part of mortals results in exditions of the circle and prevents satisfactory results. This act on the part of "spirit grabbers" is an aid to those undeveloped spirits on the spirit side of life who are contrary to giving the true manifestation, and these, if they can, will seize the medium and produce a counterfelt.

When we consider and remember that when we consider and remember that all is a question of conditions, we are surprised at so good results. Spirits are not to blame if mortals neglect to protect their mediums from unscrupulens persons after the sensational and whose individuality is so unspiritual

These elements from the battery being arrested in point of contact by the exhalation of the medium are precipitated on the spirit form, which gives it a double form, apparently of the same structure as when in the earth life.

In most of the cases there were two birds, but in some of them I saw as many as four or six."

Witness told of taking two cases of pheasants to an express company. He wasn't exactly certain where they went, but he thought it was to Cincinnati. He had also taken pheasants to the pheasants to the pheasants of the pheasants of the pheasants of the pheasants and that all the money received from the could remember having been brought from outside were four or five, which had been born in the 200.

Who Got the Money?

Mr. Raney read from the witness affidavit that Carter let him understand that all the money received from the pheasants and other birds shipped away was turned over to Mr. Chambers. He spoke to Mr. Chambers about it and he said the only money he received from the witness was asked if this were true and he replied it was.

According to Molntosh, Carter had a very extensive and elaborate chicken flam. His brood contained Yokohamas, Black Sumatras, Anconas, White and Black Wyandottes, Japanese, and Chinese Bantams, and other francy stock. His list totaled over 162. Doings at the Repository. Burns and Sheppard's weekly letter is as follows: "We had a remarkably good auction on Tuesday, but only a small supply of horses to sell during the latter part of the week. We had excellent con-signments of all classes for Tuesday's sale, giving buyers a first-class choice all round. Heavy draughts were particularly strong and made a capital show. The shipments of fresh horses from the country showed a good improve-ment in numbers, while this class was augmented by a special sale of the horses of the White Pine Lumber Co., Webbwood. These were a particularly good bunch of workers, and found ready purchasers, as did also a number of contractor's horses sold later. In addition to many local buyers, we sold carload lots for ship-ment to the west and to northern On-

For next week's sales we will have a thoroly good list, and purchasers looking for horses will have a sufficient range of choice. We will hold a special sale of a consignment of sleighs on Tuesday. In Estimating the Future Values on Wall Street ---Local Financial Condition.

World Office,
Saturday Evening, Dec. 21.

Wall-street financiers are now as much mystified as to the future as is the ordinary trader. The latter is always in doubt, but now with both on a parity the problem becomes more interesting to the outsider, securities having declined to a point where intrinsic value is represented by a reasonable percentage, and where, temporarily in any event, financial interests provide a foundation pending if necesprovide a foundation pending if necessary a new range of values. After more than a year of continuous decine in prices it must be apparent that a settling point is within close range. The financial institutions which have endeavored to protect themselves against the avalanche of liquidation have in most instances survived the ordeal. They are overcharged and

Wall-street now, more than usually, must be measured from the standpoint of expediency and by the technical state of holdings.

Railroad earnings and bent clearings are the only current indices of the trend of commerce. Both of these savor strongly of retrenchment. The declaration of the regular dividend on L & N. and N. Y. NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Bullish operations are again likely in the stock market to-day in anticipation of a good bank statement. We would not be surprised at a moderate reaction before the closing of Monday, however, and daily operators should not, therefore, ignore fair returns on bulges. Purchases should again be made on moderate recessions, for the trend continues upward. There is not yet much stock offering now.—Financial News.

men at the close of the season that Angus Pointer could beat 2.00, and could beat any horse in the world, Dan Patch not excepted.

Had he lived it is probable that he would have been barred in the Grand Circuit next year. The fear that this would be done, making him almost valueless for racing purposes, prevented many horsemen from bidding on him at the recent Garden sale, and he was struck off to the agent of Senator George E. Whitney for $8000.

The Buick Company manufact actured by the O The 4-cylinder r Ont. This reputable firm has secured the right to manufacture one of the best known American cars, the "Bulck." With this object in view a new charter has been taken out and the company will be known as the McLaughlin Motor Car Co.

The carriage company began experimenting with automobiles about two years ago, and since that time extensive additions have been made to the driving shaft. the driving shaft.

A larger touring car, rated at 40 horse power, is one of the 1908 features. This car has a wheel base of 108 inches and 34x4 inch tires. Semielliptic springs are used thruout. The engine cylinders are 4 5-8 and 5 inches, with the Buick Motor Car Company of Michigan, this was abandoned and it was decided to build a car that had been thoroly tested and proved a success.

To say anything eulogistic about the McLaughlin Carriage Co., is quite unmarked. This car is furnished as a tour-incompany with the products are recognized. McLaughlin Carriage Co., is quite unnecessary. Their products are recognized thruout the Dominion as being of the highest grade, and their going into the automobile business is evidence by propeller snatt and floating rear axel. Toronto, the Centre of Motoring.

Anybody that was in Toronto last Monday would have noticed in the downtown district a score or more of large automobiles, many of them limousines, running thru the deep slush with apparent ease, and bearing their fair occupants to the various stores for Christmas shopping. That, in a nutshell, is the significant feature of automobiling as far as Toronto and the Province of Ontario are concerned. Up to date the big machines have had no difficulty in negotiating the winter conditions that prevail here. That fact alone settles the so-called weather problem as far as automobiling is concerned in Toronto and Ontario.

Another feature of the automobile situation that is significant is that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier of Canada, has a fine new English limousine, and that he goes to and from his office daily in Ottawa in it without any difficulty, the the snow is much deeper there. Ottawa is also a winter automobile town.

Sir Wilfrid's great friend and admirer in the City of Toronto, Senator Cox, does the same thing with his new limousine of magnificent design, built by the Canada Cycle & Motor Co. of Toronto.

In Toronto, J. C. Eaton, president of the T. Eaton Co., uses a high-class American runabout and an English Napier, and he is frequently seen on the streets acting as his own driver. Among automobilists in Canada Mr. Eaton is looked upon as the most expert motorist in the Dominion

The premier uses an English machine, and in that way shows that he winks at the preferential tariff. The senator, who uses a Canadian machine, encourages home industry, and other of our citizens, like Mr. Eaton, have a weakness for high-class American cars, which, as a matter of fact, dominate in Toronto, tho there are also a lot of English and French machines of the highest class that seem to be steadily holding their own with Canadians.

The automobile has won out as far as efficiency and reliability are concerned, and instead of being in a way set back by our climate, they do, as a matter of fact, give the safest and quickest and best means of communication that has ever been available in this country. They go fast in all weathers, they afford a protection against the weather, and instead of the climate being against them, they are really the best amelioration of our climatic conditions that has yet arrived

From a social point of view the automobile is making a record. Anyone and everyone who figures in the social world is identified in some way or other with the use of the automobile, or is considering the proposition. Ladies have found that the most reliable vehicle for shopping is the limousine, and scores of them are now used in Toronto for this purpose, and not only that, they are useful for all kinds of night engagements; for going to and from theatres and parties, and for getting home comfortably and speedily in the small hours of the night. A limousine is almost a boudoir on wheels.

Bankers, business men, capitalists are also all taking to the automobile, for the reason of the great comfort, convenience and speed that it affords, and also for another reason; it is the best way to get in quick and private touch with a man with whom you wish to do business. Ask him to get into an automobile and go for a spin for an hour or for a half-hour, and in that way you can have absolute privacy for conversation or business. There is no other way or getting away from the world and its incessant breakings in available to many men but the inside of an automobile on the go.

Inasmuch as Toronto has good streets, and as more good streets are coming, and inasmuch as there are good roads leading from Toronto to all parts of Ontario, and all kinds of resorts, and inasmuch as Toronto has a large number of people that are wealthy, and who are socially prominent, the automobile trade the world over has come to recognize this city as the leading city in America of its size for high-class automobiles. The World believes that there are as many or more high-class machines than in any other city on the continent, and that the demand has as yet only been very partially filled; and now that the as bile has proved its usefulness, its speed and its attendant comfort, there is every prospect of a wide it for high-class machines, whether from Europe, the United States, or built in our own country.

Incidental of the automobile, and something which many people are talking about now, is the advent of the taximeter cab. A number of capitalists in this city are preparing to launch a taximeter cab company in Toronto, which will give cheap, comfortable and reliable carriages at the disposal of all who may wish this class of vehicle at a fixed rate, the machine making a record as to distance, time and price, automatically. There is room in Toronto for hundreds of these vehicles, and The World is informed that two or three American companies are looking over the ground with a view of establishing a factory in Canada for building these machines, and it is also likely that some of our local automobile factories will take

The World is also glad to hear that the Canadian builders are now getting on their feet, so to speak, and are either designing new models for themselves of a high-class, or arranging with prominent American companies for the reproduction of their machines in Canada, in Canadian factories. All indications point to the most of the large English and French houses and the leading American houses being represented by special agents in Toronto during the season of 1908.

Of course, the great feature in the automobile business in Toronto and Ontario will be the show to be held at the St. Lawrence Market arena in March next, and everything goes to indicate that it will be a great social success, as well as the finest and most representative gathering of automobile production that has been seen anywhere up to date. It is now known that a large number of English and all the best American builders will be here to exhibit.

The automobile shows in New York, in Chicago and Paris have become great social events, and it has even been said that the falling off in the attendance at the horse show in New York is due to the fact that the automobile is making great inroads into the heretofore special territory of the four-footed favorite of

The Sunday World will, therefore, more even than in past seasons, pay special attention to the news and business of the automobile and to illustrating in our regular art supplement all the latest photographs of new and high-class machines, as well as the more moderate and more democratic runabouts.

We hope to make our regular Sunday issue of first-class concern to all interested in automobiling and we intend to make a special feature all along the line of the coming automobile show here in a few weeks. The automobile is not alone for the rich; it is bound to be the great road traction of the ordinary everyday citizen, as well as those of wealth or other distinction. The farmers' machine is coming—as cheap as a horse and buggy—is even now here, and when here goodby to the last of the prejudice against the new vehicle and hail to the opening of a new and greater era of good roads for everyone.

be no explosion: Like the child that learns the stove so mankind learns by experience, even if that experience is costly to life and property. But in the taking hold of the question, in a business like way, determines the success of an enterprise. Wants must be supplied. The new inventions of recent years have created many new wants. In the satisfaction of these gasoline has been used largely; but how to handle it had to grow also.

In the new method of pumps and tanks the S. F. Bowser Co. of Toronto, seem to have solved the question.

In the new method of pumps and tanks the S. F. Bowser Co. of Toronto, seem to have solved the question. In their perfect system of self-measuring gasoline tanks, and click valve force pumps, they insure against fire, leakage, dirt, contamination and discomfort for the operator.

In one room of their offices, this firm has a practical illustration of an underground tank with pump attached. By this means the steel tank is buried in the ground at some distance from the pump, with which it is connected by pipe. This pump is fitted with a contrivance that enables the operator to take the exact quantity of gasoline or oil from the tank that he needs, no more, no less. The escape of gasoline or oil from the tank that he needs, no more, no less. The pump is then locked, and no one but the operator can get the gasoline or oil, as the case may be.

The tank is filled from the outside and then locked. The equalizing of the air pressure in the tank is provided for by an ingenious device in the cap, whereby air escapes or enters automatically. By means of an inner tube fitted with a strainer, all dirt can be easily removed from the tank. The action of this pump is so thoro that a person can take out five gallons in less than a minute of time. Often the complaint against the carburcters is heard, when really it is poor gasoline that is at fault.

Special discharge registers, as well as other modern ideas, make the pump one of the best on the market.

These pumps are also used for private and public garages, for oil dealers, and paint mixers. In fact the variety of their use, does not grow upon one until he gets intimate with the business requirements of the large industries of our country. The cabinets especially fitted for private garages, and furnished with pumps finished in cooper, produce handsome effect. Besides their beauty of construction, these appliances are easily first because of their complete insurance against possible accidents.

clubs in Toronto, as well as elsewhere, that the National Trotting Association are concerned, greater fredom in racing. There is a marked desire to bring about uniformity of rule in opportunity to race without incurring retunity to race without incurring records.

The National Association secretary, W. H. Gocher, who was in Toronto last Thursday, has followed the report of the recent board of review with the following letter and copy of resolution to secretaries of the various organizations connected with the National Trotting Association:

Dear Sir: It is necessary to state that in the event of greater freedom to race without incurring records being allowed by the members of at the next conress, Rule 42, Section 1, which defines a public race, must be amended. It now reads as follows:

"Any contest between horses for purse, premium, stake or wager, or involving admission fees, on any course and in the presence of judges and timers shall constitute a public race."

other rules provide that the time in every public race or performance against time shall be taken by three timers, and a horse winning a heat or making a dead heat under such conditions acquires a record of bar. (See Rule 39, Section 1; Rule 24, Section 1; Rule 43, Section 7, and Rule 40. Sections 1 and 2).

tion 1; Rule 48, Section 7, and Rule 40, Sections 1 and 2).

As set forth in the resolutions adopted at the December meeting of the board of review, delegates to the next congress will be asked to consider the wisdom of adhering to the present rule, on to substitute a rule which will be so worded that in order for a horse to acquire a record or parit will be necessary for him to compete for money or in events to which an entrance fe is charged. In the event of the latter being adopted, it would permit meetings or matinees at which premiums are offered as prizes, providing the competitors did not pay an entrance fee to start, and also permit an admission fee charged at the gate without the heat winners acquiring records or bars.

In order to ascertain the opinion of the fficers and directors of your association on the subject, which is a very important one, I write to learn if you have been giving matinees; if there is a matinee club now using your track; would one be organized in the event of such a change being made in the rules, or would meetings of the above character increase the earnings of your track and at the same time promote the horse interest in your vicinity?

The strictness of this rule was relaxed some years ago by the American Trotting Register Association, the American Trotting Register Association and the National Trotting Association, adopting rules providing that horsemen may have "trials of speed" at any time without incurring records or bars, where there is no pool selling, book making or other public betting on the event, no money competed for, no entrance charged or collected from competing horses, no admission feer charged to the gate or grand stand, and no privileges of any kind sold, and by the further provision that amateur driving clubs in membreship with the League of Amateur Driving Clubs and in membership with the association might give one meeting, not to exced three days, each year, at which gate admission may be charged, if all the other speed trial conditions above mentioned are compiled with. At such a meting records cannot be made or bars incurred. They are not considered public races.

The Aberican Trotting Association is now working under a different rule. passed by its congress last winter. It is best for he horse interest that the rules governing it should be uniform and we recommend horseman and track organizations to give this questior among other careful consideration during the season, and come to the National Trotting Association congress next winter prepared to take such action as may seem wise and best for all concerned.

It is very possible that after a while Martin may return to the turf as an owner or trainer. Sooner or later he will make money out of his Montreal stock. The new Jockey Club in Canada did not pay dividends last season, but last season, it must be remembered, was the first of big racing at the metropolis of Canada. There were many construction bills to pay. But unquestionably racing will eventually pay handsomely all over the north, and especially at Canada's richest, most populous and most enterprising city.

Chapter 1.—At Unalaska, Glenister

Dextry, gold miners bound to Nome, save a young woman from a party of sallors. The three sall north on the Santa Maria, the girl as a stowaway in the miners' cabin, while the men go below. Dextry has been warned to guard his claim and to beware of a man named McNamara, who backed by the courts, is going to Nome. The girl overhears Glenister say he considers her "spoils of war."
Chapter II.—The girl, carrying important papers, had left Seattle for Nome on the Ohio, which with smallpox aboard, had been quarantined at Unalaska. She had fled from the Ohio in order to reach Nome as soon as possible.
Chapter III.—The girl tells Glenister her name is Helen Chester. She is, "bringing the law" to Nome. He tells her he will guard his mine himself. He kisses her against her will.
Chapter IV.—As Helen leaves the pier on the ship's arrival at Nome, she is seen by Mrs. Champain of Nome. Struve the lawyer, whom Helen has come to see, is found drunk. Glenister saves Helen from accidential shooting. Glenister and Dextry take Helen, for safety, to their mine, the Midas.

Chapter V.—Judge Stillman, Helen's uncle, arrives at Nome and takes charge of her. Other arrivals are Alec. McNamara, a political schemer, and Dunliam, partner of Struve. McNamara and the two partners plot to jump the Midas claim. Their agent, Galloway, has been driven off by Dextry. Struve, acting on instructions in the papers brought innocently by Helen, has clouded the titles of the richest placers in Nome. McNamara is head of a scheme to oust the rightful mine owners. There have been many attempts to "jump" claims. Glenister promises Helen he will try to become civilized and will not shoot the claim "jumpers."

Chapter VI.—McNamara as receiver for Galloway, takes charge of the Midas by order of Judge Stillman, He has already sejzed many other claims. Glenister promises Helen he will try to become civilized and will not shoot the claim "jumpers."

Chapter XI.—After a fierce encounter with the wind and the waves, Wheaton returns from Frisco with a writ of supersedeas directed against Judge Stillman and McNamara is ordered to turn over the Midas and all the gold. He refuses to obey; a riot follows, which the military suppress, and Glenister is once more baffled.

No one had, and when they were later assembled to take stock of their injuries he was greeted by Dextry's gleeful anouncement:

"That's the deuce of a fight. We 'ain't got so much as a cold sore among us." "We have captured fourteen," another announced, "and there may be more out yonder in the brush."
Glenister noted with growing sur-barracks to help you?" he asked.

"Not a troop. We haven't seen a soldier since we went to work."

At this the young leader became alarmed. Had this whole attack mismarried? Had this been no clash with the United States forces, after all? If s), the news would never reach Washington, and instead of accomplishing his end, he and his friends had thrust themselves into the realms of out-lawry, where the soldiers could be employed against them with impunity where prices would rest upon their heads. "Boys, this is no victory. In fact, we're worse off than we were before, and our biggest fight is coming There's a chance to get away now before daylight and before we're recognized, but if we're seen here at sun-up we'll have to stay and fight. Soldiers will be sent against us, but if we hold out, and the struggle is fierce erough, it may reach to Washington. This will be a different kind of fighting now, tho. It will be warfare, pure

"All of us," said they, in unison, and, accordingly, preparations for a siege were begun. Barricades were built, ruins removed, buildings transformed into blockhouses; and all thru the turbulent night the tired men labored till ready to drop, led always by the young giant, who seemed without fatigue.

It was perhaps four hours after midnight when a man sought him out

As Helen and her companion as-cended the mountain, scarred and swept by the tempest of the previous night, they heard, far below, the swollen torrent brawling in its bould-cr-ridden bed, while behind them the angry ocean spread southward to a blood-red horizon. Ahead, the bleak mountains brooded over forbidding valleys; to the west a suffused sun

"That rain raised the deuce with the trails," said Struve, as they picked their way past an unsightly "slip" whence a part of the overhanging mountain, loosened by the deluge, had slid into the gulch. "Another storm slid into the gulch. "Another storm like that would wash out these roads completely." Even in the daylight it was no easy task to avoid these danger spots, for the horses floundered on the muddy soil. Vaguely the girl wondered how she would find her way back in the darkness, as she had planned. She said little as they approached the road-house, for the thoughts within her brain had begun to clamor too than ever before, more terrifyingly sure of himself, was loudly garrulous. As they drew nearer and nearer, the Glenister hurried to the building, which had escaped the shock of the explosions, and, taking down the receiver, was answered by Cherry Malette.

"Thank God, you're safe," she began "The men have just come in and the whole town is awake over the riot. They say you've killed ten people in the fight—is it true?"

He explained to her briefly that all was well, but she broke in:

"Wait, wait! MeNamara has called for troops and you'll all be shot. Oh, what a terrible night it has been! I haven't been to bed. I'm going mad. Now, listen carefully—yesterday Helen went with Struve to the Sign of the Sied and she hasn't come back."

The man at the end of the wire cried out at this, then choked back his words to hear what followed. His free hand began making strange, futile motions as tho he traced patterns in the air.

"I can't raise the road-house on the wire and—something dreadful has happened, I know."

"Wat made her go?" he shouted.

For a long time the girl pored over the documents. The purport of the papers was only too obvious; and, as she read, the proof of her uncle's guilt stood out clear and damning. There was no possibility of mistake; the whole wretched plot stood out plain, its darkest infamies revealed. In spite of the cruelty of her disillusionment. A little later, when the Kid seemed strenger and his head clearer, Helen ventured to tell him of their uncle's villainy and of the proof she held, with her hope of restoring justice. Legendary Lore Enriches Childhood

Each returning Christmas season brings forward the old discussion as to whether it is wise to foster the legends of Santa Claus in the child-

The controversy never makes any material progress; for those who by some peculiar process of mind insist that the child is harmed by this old fiction never present any new arguments, and the millions of people who cling to and practice the Santa Claus delusion go right on encouraging the happy children to believe that the white bearded benefactor with the reindeers are the well-filled pack is a real entity.

It seems almost puerile to attack this ancient and honorable about Santa Claus in an age when there are so many really harmful influences at work unhindered in the childish mind. It would seem, on the contrary, that now as never before the imagination of youth should be fostered and encouraged in those pure beliefs that are symbolized in the advent and work of the season's patron saint.

The modern life with its cold unsentimental and sometimes revolting sm is exerting baneful influences upon the young mind and heart. Childhood, that should be a period of innocence and of eager expectancy, is too often turned into hateful and sordid reality. The childish imagination, that marvelous faculty that has given the world and all the future a and soured by the matter-of-fact exposure of the dear day dreams of childhood that goes on from day to day in this prosaic age. "Where are the children of yester year" the poet sighs.

To-day rude hands open wide the avenues of what is loftily called "practical knowledge" for the child before it is out of the cradle. Fairy stories are sneered at and Jack the Giant Killer is a dethroned hero. The child, sitting amid the ashes of its depopulated city of imagination, and without the power of belief in "the things not seen," is too often a hard, cold, unsentimental and blase victim of ennui before it leaves the nursery.

There are a thousand unchecked influences allowed to ply with forbidden knowledge the mind of the average child. Questionable theatres, dance halls and picture exhibits invite the tenderest youth to learn the hard and bitter ways of vice. Young girls on whose cheek there should be the blush of shame at any suggestion of the improper applaud the vilest exhibits of female depravity.

These things are appalling if properly viewed in relation to the future welfare and integrity of the social life of the nation. Instead of exalted imaginations that once built palaces for pure heroes and heroines, or that peopled the forests with fairies whose mission it was to do good and live righteously, we now have the eager mind of youth on a constant search for some new and spiced tid-bit of reality that reeks of corruption and breathes the foul poison of decay.

Instead of taking away the fiction of Santa Claus, would it not be well to start a crusade on behalf of the banished idols of our childish dreams? Is it not infinitely better for children to believe in the goodness of Santa Claus, in the purity of the fairy queen, or in the tenderness and chivalry of "the Good Prince" than to immerse them in the realities of vice and tear from them the delightful joy of unclouded and unstained

Troubles of School Teachers

School teachers complain, very justly, that mothers expect too much from them. Many mothers habitually take their children's side against the teachers and thereby encourage the children to be unruly and defiant. A wise parent, of course, carefully sustains authority, personified in the teacher, for the sake of maintaining discipline. But, unfortunately, many parents are not wise in respect to their children. They expect teachers to perform miracles and they blame all a child's shortcomings on the teacher and the school.

Parents should take an interest in their children's progress at school. but they should not require a teacher to create talents that a child does not possess. They should keep in mind the fact that a teacher, at best, can only develop latent ability in a child, and cannot do that much, in some cases, without intelligent and sympathetic co-operation by the parents.

The chief difficulties of teachers lie in the parents, rather than the children. One troublesome class of parents consists of those who think they know more than the teacher and who constantly nag at the teacher. Another class consists of those who think that a parent's duty ends when the teacher's begins, and who shift upon the teacher the entire responsibility of bringing up the children.

Parents should reflect that a teacher not only has a larger experience in managing children, but that a teacher is a good deal more likely to judge impartially a child's conduct and talent than a fond father or mother, whose natural impulse is to defend the child. Moreover, parents should keep in mind the truth that a child is under the influence of the home a great deal more time in the day and in the year than he is under the influence of the school. If the home environment and training are not carefully designed to carry on the work of the school, if the home conditions steadily undo the work of the school, how can the teacher accomplish results worth while?

he making of a family quarrel.

A family presupposes at least two opinions and sets of tastes—and perhaps six. To be in a family at all is to now and then meet opposition to the full expression and will of the individual. The great value of the true family relation is that it teaches an individual to be a social unit and not a free lance, irresponsible and self-centred. There being wo opinions, however, or six or a dozen, one must prevai if anything is to be done in family life. It would be a great help to some large families if they would adopt pariamentary procedure and agree on a closure of debate at certain crises.

The rights of minority ought also to be provided for. The trouble with most family quarrels is that the person who quarrels the hardest usually gets his or her way. Holding the purse strings is another invaluable family advantage in such cases. For this reason the wife's allowance should be fixed and ample, so that it will give her a financial standing. A family quarrel in a home where an imperious husband and father holds the power of the tained.

In almost any family, anywhere, any day, there exists | purse is a thing of peculiar bitterness and often causes revolt. It leads to guerilla warfare.

It seems certain that offences will come there is no getting away from them. The most obedient wife may have sons and daughters with their mother's and father's spirit of dominion in them, and as they grow up the family jars commence as inevitably as fate. It is a well-known peculiarity of the family jar that an altogether small thing will start it and divide the household in a day into two hostile camps. A high-tempered matron died the other day whose eldest daughter had not spoken to her for five years before her mother's death. It was because they differed (in the beginning) as to whether blue or green was the proper color for the new dining-room curtains.

The offences must come—but all the same, woe be to him or her by whom the offence cometh. If the family becomes a storm centre, it is always somebody's fault. The rule of giving up whenever it is not wrong or cowardly is the best individual rule. It never yet injured individu character or family life. It is, perhaps, a counsel of perfection, but, then, perfection in family life must be aimed at, or even a tolerable home happiness will not be main-

Problems of Life

"I have made a good fight."

Few boasts are so tremendously satisfactory, few consolations so eminently soothing. Life at its best is a fight, and man remains fundamentally a fighting animal, despite the frowns of the Peace Society and the tears of the hu-

Let me put up a good fight! That is the unexpressed ambition of every youngster worth his salt. And the consciousness that one has really fought well crowns one's victories and makes beautiful one's defeats.

The end of the journey matters so little if the traveling has been full of pleasure.

There is no wonder that the self-made man blows himself out with pride and struts, peacock-like, along the streets. Heavily handicapped, alone, and unaided, he has conquered circumstances, accumulated money, exchanged fustian for broadcloth, and he holds his head high. He has won, but he has not won easily; and it is really the memory of the fight rather than the jingle of the victory that stirs his heart within him.

He loves to recount his privations, to dwell on his persistence, to exaggerate his sagacity. And it is splendid that he should do all this. He is the modern gladiator. Why should he not shout paeans for his victories? In all his smugness, he is accenting the essential poetry of living that drab-colored surroundings are utterly unable to take Life persists in remaining romantic. And the struggle of the handful of Greeks against the horde of Persians at Thermopylae was not more splendidly romantic than the stubborn struggle of a strong, resolute twentieth-century man against circumstances.

For if victory is splendid, defeat is splendid, too, supposing, of course, that the vanquished has fought well. The loser, equally with the victor, has had the full fun of the fight. He has been thrilled by the apparent approach of victory. He has fought on and on as defeat surely came near, doggedly reveling in his manhood.

A determined, relentless fighter is a man, and no other person has a right to call himself by that high name. The curse of civilization is that it is bringing softness and namby-pambyism in its train.

And similarly, we are approaching, apparently, time when all the fight is to be taken away from the world. In place of ourselves setting out, equipped as well as may be, to win our own happiness and our own way, it is all to be done for us. Our lives are to be carefully arranged, and we are to be cotton-wooled from the assaults of outrageous fortune.

Risk is the sauce-piquant of life. The best games are the games in which one may haply receive as guerdon a broken leg or maybe a broken neck. And the man who gets the most out of life, whose blood runs swiftest thru his veins, whose hours are fully filled with satisfaction. is the man who carries with him the stimulation of possible extreme physical or moral discomfort. Fear is always a gruesome comrade, but of all men he is the most miserable who is afraid of life.

A dull, grey, anaemic humanity could have no dreams. It would revel in hair-splitting philosophies, subtle paradoxes, perfectly formed verses, signifying nothing.

But it would have no real singers and no real songs. The great poets and the great seers have taken hold of life with both hands. They have learned to sing their songs while they have tasted the joy of the struggie, of the victory, and of the defeat.

It is better to die alone by the wayside, covered with the scars of a dozen fights, than to endure a coddled old age with an unmarked skin.

The ideal world is a world full of strenuous dreamers, of men and women eager for life, of enthusiastic egoists. For the man who realizes the possibilities of himself realizes, also, the importance of his neighbor. The "All Red Route"

In commenting upon an address (published in another part of the aper) delivered by Hon. Clifford Sifton on the "All-Red Route," bject of importance to Canada, The London Daily Standard save

The interesting address on the subject of the "All-Red Route," delivered by Mr. Sifton to the Liberal Colonial Club dealt in some detail with the practical aspects of the great scheme. We are glad to note that his arguments were followed with sympathetic attention by well known Liberals, and that generally the idea has influential supporters in the ministerial press. Mr. Sifton has come to England for the purpose of assisting the project for establishing the means of swift communication between this country and Australia and New Zealand, thru Canada, which formed the subject of the resolution proposed at the imperial conference by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The premier of the Dominion has upon several occasion expressed the strongest views of the great advantages to be derived from such an institution, not only as regards Canada, but in the interest of the whole empire. The premiers of Australia and of New Zealand, speaking upon the resolution at the conference, were equally emphatic. Mr. Lloyd-George, representing the imperial government, while he approved of the suggestion in principle, demanded time in which to consider the details of the scheme. He accordingly succeeded, after a good deal of discussion, in modifying the terms of the original resolution. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had proposed that "steps should immediately be taken to establish a fast service from Great Britain to Canada, and thru Canada to Australia and New Zealand, and also to China and Japan." In the amended resolution it was declared to be "advisable" that "the best service available within reasonable cost" should be instituted. The president of the board of trade pleaded for time in which expert opinion might be consulted, tho Sir Wilfrid Laurier maintained that the circumstances did not isterial press. Mr. Sifton has come to England for the purpose of assistsulted, the Sir Wilfrid Laurier maintained that the circumstances did not require expert advice. It was, however, obvious that before any definite agreement could be concluded, the cost of the proposed steamship services and the amount of the subsidies required must be ascertained; and it was on the understanding that the resolution was altered for the sole purpose of giving the imperial government leisure to obtain this information, that Sir Wilfrid accepted the amended resolution. Under the scheme outlined by the premier of the Dominion, a four days' steamship service would be established between England and Canada, which, with the four days' railway journey across the continent, would bring Vancouver within eight days of the United Kingdom. With an 18-knot steamship service across the Pacific, Sydney would be brought within 24 days of England. The ships would carry mails and passengers, the double transshipment entiting the carriage of cargo, except in small parcels. A speedy mail and passenger service would require a subsidy, which, in the terms of the resolution, should be "contributed by Great Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand in equitable proportions." Mr. Sifton last evening reaffirmed the willingness of Canada to pay its fair share of the cost. Sir Joseph Ward insisted that New Zealand required a quicker service than 18 knots, as proposed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and suggested a speed of 22 knots at least, preferably 24. With a line of 21-knot steamers, coaling at Honolulu and at Suva, Sir Joseph Ward calculated that the passage from Vancouver to New Zealand could be traversed in 13 days. For many years Sir Joseph Ward has been advocating the establishment of such a service. He informed the conference that his country was prepared to pay largely towards the expense of a fast line to Vancouver, but that in default of the establishment of the All-Red Route New Zealand would be forced to subsidise a service to San Francisco. Dr. Jameson interjected a fervent hope that this "horrid possibility" might be avoided.

The enormous advantages of the establishment of the All-Red Route have not been disputed. His Majesty's government have cordially rento the subtle distinction between a "natural preference" and any other preference upon which they base their support. There would seem no doubt of the practicability of the project. The question narrows down to a consideration of the outlay. But any expenditure within reason would surely be justifiable. Even supposing that the whole cost were to be defrayed out of the public funds, could it be seriously argued that the British Empire is unable to afford the expense of maintaining a great imperial road of thru communication? As the matter stands, however, it is only a question of subsidies. We already subsidise a line to New York, which is of little value to British subjects compared with the large opportunities that would be afforded by the All-Red Route. It cannot be often or too insistently urged that the chief need of the empire is swift and cheap transportation, by means of which trade may be facilitated and enlarged, and the free movement of the whole population encouraged. The whole future prosperity of Canada, Australia and New Zealand depends upon the increased immigration of people of their own race. We have ady suggested that Canada, in pursuance of her own interests, should next year charter a fleet of steamships which should bring to her shores, free of expense, selected emigrants from this country. Such an arrangement could easily be made in conjunction with the scheme of the All-Red Route. It is for Australia and New Zealand to complete the system, in so far as they are able to do so, by giving aid from Vancouver. In the meantime, it is the clear duty of the imperial government to take action according to the terms of the resolution affirmed at the imperial conference. Nor can we understand why the small committee to which the matter was referred has been so slow in presenting its report. Mr. Winston Churchill. one of its members, has, we know, been absent from England for several weeks, but even without his assistance the investigation might have been carried on and concluded

Unemployed Should Drown Pride

There are few, indeed, who will not extend the sincerest sympathy to those in this and other cities who are out of employment. But there are many quite justified in asking whether anyone but the idle themselves is directly to be criticized.

Instances are numerous of men ignoring the opportunities they had to obtain work, because the nature of the employment did not please them, or the wages paid were low.

A week ago, Toronto was visited by an exceptionally heavy snowfall. People's doors, verandahs, sidewalks and drives were rendered practically impassable by the drifting snow. The weather gave men who wanted to earn a few cents a chance to get out and earn them.

On several streets, which could be named, small boys went from house to house with brooms and shovels, asking if they could clear away the drifts. They were, here and there, given the work. In this way they got quite a few silver coins to put in their pockets.

It was observed that no men came around with shovels and brooms on their shoulders. Had they gone to the houses, as did the boys, and stated they were out of work and wanted to earn some money, many persons would have treated them well. A quarter at one place, a dime at another, and now and then a five-cent piece, would have amounted to considerable in the evening. An evidence would also have been given that the unemployed were thoroly in earnest, and were willing to work at Workingmen often have an idea that certain kinds of toil are too menial to go into. This is a wrong spirit in Canada. Nearly any labor is onorable here. Shoveling snow is just as respectable as shoveling coins over a counter. Men who are steady, sober, conscientious and hard workers generally get along well. Those who are out of work now should not hesitate to do anything which offers wages.

Let us under the guidance of a superior light pay Him those honors which are justly due. There have been various opinions about the precise day on which Jesus was born. Chronologers have placed that event in almost every month of the year. Some think that Christ could not have been born in the month of December, because the shepherds and their flocks were out in the fields when the angel proclaimed His birth. But they do not recollect the difference of climate between Judea and western lands.

We contend not, however, for the exact date of the day, but we do contend for the thing. He is not Christ because He was born on Christmas Day, but it is Christmas day because He was born on that day. It is proper to have a day set apart to commend.

Canada recently accepted this treaty made by Great Britain. This simply goes to show that Canadian flour can get a better price than the market in Japan will offer, which is a comfortable situation."

William Sloan's Warning

We are just rounding off the first century of British dominion on the northwest coast of America. In that brief space of time, thru the indifference of imperial statesmanship, we have lost large areas of territory and coast line both on the south and north of what we now hold, and my firm conviction is, in view of past history and present conditions, that unless there is a complete reversal of policy, time will see our present possessions of British Columbia from the Rocky Mountains westward to the Pacific Ocean become a colony, and ultimately a possession, of a united orient.

The All-Red line, from which we expect so much, is a bond drawing together the outposts of the British dominions. It narrows to a slender thread in the defiles of the Rockies. Guard well, then, the west; fill it with people who will be loyal to our ideals of national life. Guard well the strategic position, which is not only of Dominion. but of Empire.

England has made an alliance with this new world power, but this alliance and all other treaties or compacts of an Eurasian complexion can never endure. They can at best possess all the elements of expediency. They can never possess the elements of permanence or stability. It is impossible; it is impracticable. Nay more, it is unnatural. As individuals the races do not and never will assimilate.

Weakness of Our Position.

It has, however, only taken a few months' experience with this treaty to manifest the weakness of our position in so far as immigration is concerned, and it has been found necessary to send a plenipotentiary in the person of the minister of labor to Japan, with a view to more definite understanding. That our representative to Tokio will be firm, even to the verge of failure, is my hope for Canada at this time, thus leaving the government in a position to carry out their avowed policy of 1993, and I trust that legislation will be introduced this session with that in view. Canada should not and must not recede from the position that immigration to this country should be controlled from within and not from without. Other self-governing colonies assume and maintain this position; that we, the connecting link, of British dominions,

It has been stated that this is a problem for the west. With that I must take exception. In my opinion it demands the highest consideration of statesmanship and diplomacy, both I notice in the recent press despatches from Tokio a statement credited to Baron Ishii, chief of the bureau of commerce of the Japanese foreign office, who has just returned to Japan from a trip to the United States, and Canada investigating the immigration problem. The essence of this statement is that Japan would bow with deference to the wishes of the United States and discontinue sending her laborers to that country,

It is no doubt hard to say what it would be best to do. The first step, it would seem, should be, not a departmental enquiry (of these many have been probably already held), but a public investigation conducted before experts of independent character and proved capacity. In fact, what is wanted is a commission to overhaul the administration of justice from top to bottom. Hon. Clifford Sifton Gives an Exposition of His Views Before London Club.

LONDON, Dec. 20.-The "All-Red Route" was the subject of a discussion which took place at a dinner of the Liberal Colonial Club at Prince's Restaurant a few evenings ago, the guest of the evening being Mr. Clifford Sifton, a past Canadian minister of the interior.

Mr. H. J. Tennant, M.P., was in the chair, and among those present were Lieut. Carlyon Bellairs, M.P., Sir J. Sitton, said that they ail rejoiced at the resolution which was passed at the recent colonial conference gard to the project of the All-Red Route. There might possibly be some of the members of the Liberal Colonial Club who had been captivated by the idea of imperial colonial preference. It had captivated a large part of the country. (Hear, hear). Even if they did not all agree on that point, they desired to strengthen the mighty fabric of imperial union. Those were to be found in the projected All-pounds annually upon the navy tor the very proper purpose of guarding the seaway, the speaker thought a very small sum might be contributed towards a project which, in time of war, would become a necessity. (Cheers). There had been suggestions that the colonies should share in bearing the cost of the navy. The scheme offered a very practical contribution. While the AM-Red route was not a commercial proposal, Mr. Sifton felt convinced that within a few years it would prove itself a sound commer-cial success. The proposal was justi-fied on high political grounds.

Mr. Pember Reeves (the high commissioner for New Zealand) observed that the lesson Englishmen ought to learn from the history of the past was to knit all parts of the empire together by roads on land and roads on sea. (Hear, hear). A talented young violinist of this city who is to play at the newsboys' concert.

Hans O. Wendt, the pianist, has taken up his residence in Toronto and will be associated with Mr. Wilhemi in the production of French and Italian opera. Mr. Wendt was a pupil of Cavenhagen, Berlin, and has had marked success both as a teacher of vocal and pianist. Besides being a teacher Mr. Wendt has also had much success as a choral leader, both in vocal and instrumental work and his decision to reside in Toronto will add to this city's reputation as the musical centre of Canada.

The Dominion Bureau of Music and Organists' Exchage is an institution which will be welcomed, both by chuch committees and concert artists. The bureau is conducted upon unique and original ideas, and its success is assured. The object of the bureau is to supply church committees, which as a rule find it difficult to secure the talent which they need, with all the requisites which go to make a successful choir. These are supplied without any cost to the churches, and enables the committee to make a choice which is possible in no other way. This system will no doubt fill a long-felt want.

Star This Week.

The moving pictures of the Burns-Moir battle, which took place in London on Dec. 2, will be shown this week at the Star Theatre for the first time in America. These are the first moving pictures where the knockout is plainly shown. They show where Moir took the count four times during the fight, and not once did he have a chance. The pictures open showing both men in the ring. There is a slight bustle around the ring before the bell, and Burns leans over to his seconds and has his face wiped off with a sponge. The bell sounds, and they walk to the centre. Burns offer-ing his hand, but Moir backing away to a neutral corner, refusing to shake. In the tenth round Moir is plainly seen lying on the floor, after being counted out, and Burns in his corner getting his hand shook off him by his few admirers. Burns' statement of Moir's gameness is plainly shown all thru the contest. The pictures arrived from London by steamer last Tuesday, and Manager Stair lost no time in going to New York and securing them as his extra attraction for Xmas week. Patrons of the Star Theatre this week will have the first opportunity of seeing the greatest film ever taken of any fight. The pictures are clear and sharp in every detail, and one would not wish for a better view on would not wish for a better view of the great championship battle which took place at the National Sporting Club, London, on Dec 2. CHRISTMAS TIME.

Father, mother and wee Bess, With tiny Tim and Flo, Are gathered 'round the Christmas tree;

Outside is white with snow.
It is the children's bedtime, And Santa comes to-night, To fill the stockings big and small With good things, ere it's light.

The children's eyes shine like the Their excitement is intense.

They wonder if old Stanta can Climb o'er the high board fence. Kind daddy says he'll leave the gate Wide open all the night. S) Santa can walk in with ease And treat the children right.

The little tots now snug in bed. Each sleepy eyelid closed, While Santa fills the stockings full, Then silently he goes.
They wake right early in the morn-To find all kind of toys
And happy is the Christmas spent With children's glee and noise.

A Fugitive Bit.

"Well, I've got rheumatism in my back and I've got to get that bag over to the Bank to deposit it. Just tote it over and I'll be yours truly."

The reassured capitalist complied, but his subsequent conversation was so sulphurous, in an earnest effort to express his chagrin to see that the money went back to the bank from which he had drawn it that the town marshal experienced the necessity of taking him in hand.—Breeders' Gazette.

Long Enough.

"How long would you be willing to wait for me?" she asked in tones so low he could scarcely catch the words. And then she went on: "You know, George," in a silver mine and he is going there at once, and I cannot leave mother alone. So I ask you again, George, how long would you be willing to wait for me?" "Wait for you, my darling?" repeated for you, my darling?" repeated for you, my darling?" repeated for you until we learn how the silver mine turns out."

"Lend me a pencil," said the press humorist.

"Thought of something funny?"
"No, but I've thought of something that will pass muster as a joke."

"Advice to Boys.

"I advise boys to give up smoking altogether until at least 18 years of age, and then, if they will smoke, to get a pipe," said Mr. Fordham at the North London Court yesterday.

CHRISTMAS BELLS.

I heard the bells on Christmas Day Their old, familiar carols play, And wild and sweet The words repeat Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

And, thought how, as the day had The belfries of all Christendom Had rolled along The unbroken song
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

Till, ringing, singing on its way, A voice, a chime, A chant sublime

Of peace on earth, good-will to men! Then from each black, accursed mouth, The cannon thundered in the south,
And with the sound

Of peace on earth, good-will to men! It was as if an earthquake rent The hearthstones of a continent, And made forlorn

The waterfront is a sandy beach, free from rocks and stones, where children, both large and small, can bathe and boat with perfect safety, the water being invitingly warm every day in the year. Ocean Beach, about fifteen feet above the sea, surpasses in every way the famous "Old Orchard Beach," "Atlantic City" or "Ocean Grove," and is destined to become the finest watering place in Cuba. Moral: Locate near the coast. None of our land is more than 15 miles from the sea coast. It costs more to transport a box of oranges or a crate of pineapples by rail from the interior to the coast than it does by steamer to its destination. People owning farms in the interior of Cuba, like California fruit growers, are placed at a great disadvantage; the rates are so high that ers, are placed at a great disad-vantage; the rates are so high that over to the railroad, the dock owners and owners of lighters at the ports, a good share of the results of their labors. To augment their value by reviewing the commercial and industrial life of Cuba we could not do better than quote a few passages from the impartial speech of Governor Magoon, made at a recent banquet of the chamber of commerce of the island. Speaking of trade outlook, he said:

"It has not escaped my observation during the past year, that the commercial development of Cuba is far in advance of the development attained in many other fields of endeavor. This results, in part, from the fact that the commerce of Cuba is so widespread, its products go to and its purclases come from so many and such far-distant markets that its merchants participate in a world commerce and necessarily meet and deal with the competition of the world and learn not only the capacity and necessities of every market, but also the business methods and practices of every land and every clime; this development is due, also, in part, to the wonderful richness of the soil and the superior quality of its products whereby the entire world is induced cheerfully to pay tribute to the island; but, I believe, this commercial development is also due to the chamber of commerce, industry and navigation of the Island of Cuba, for by means of this organization co-operation of all branches of commercial life is secured, and individual and mutual interests are protected and promoted.

"The commercial, agricultural ana industrial outlook for the next twelve months in Cuba is most encouraging. We have heard much of the long continued drouth of the past year. This lack of rain has been world-wide and has affected Cuba less than any other that The Sunday World publishes country. We have had rains in Cuba, these excellent and representative pho- not torrential nor with the usual frequency, but sufficient to keep the crops growing steadily if not so rapidly as in some other years. All the agricultural products of the island are in healthy, growing condition and the only result of the alleged drouth will be to delay the opening of the harvesting season for about thirty days, in order that the cane and other products may attain their usual size. The rains are coming now with increased frequency, volume and extent, and all season of the year, it rains centenes. Of course there are pessimists who complain continuously; if it rains centenes they lament that it does not rair double eagles, but to the business man, accustomed to gauge the present by the past and look into the future by the light of experience, the prospect in Cuba is altogether bright.

"There is an increased acreage of cane, tobacco, pineapples, oranges, bananas and winter vegetables. It is certain that the yield of all these crops will be up to the average of the past five years and reasonably sure that they will exceed the average. It is certain that prices will not fall below the average and practically certain that prices will exceed the average. The balance of trade between Cuba and the other countries is largely in favor of Cuba. With the United States the ratio is two to one. In other words, the United States buys two dollars' worth of goods from Cuba for every one dollar's worth of goods that Cuba buys in the United States.

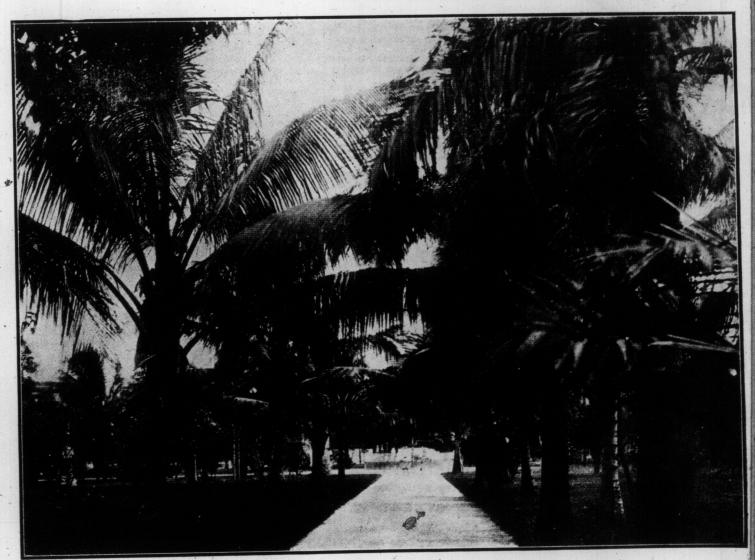

CATACOMBS DESTROYED ON ACCOUNT OF BUILDING OPERATIONS.

Cuba has immediate access to the greatest market in the world, and that market is opened to it upon preferential terms refused to all other countries. "The great work of constructing long-needed public improvements, inaugurated and provided for by the Cuban congress, will continue thruout the year with the same energy, and even broader scope, as during the past few months. The "dead season" of past years will not return during the next twelve months. The close of the safra season will be the signal for beginning work on new roads, harbor improvements and municipal betterments. The government contemplates expending from twelve to fifteen millions in these long-needed, much-de-sired works. Of this money at least 70 per cent. will be paid to the working classes of the island, and theretrial classes as during the months of the harvest season. The workman does not hoard his money; he spends it. The effect of this upon the cormerce of the island can hardly over-estimated. I can conceive of ne reason why the domestic or interna trade of Cuba should not substantia ly double within a twelve months period. The immediate effect upo commerce of the large expenditure for labor and material in the cor struction of the public works is well shown by the increased receipts of the Havana customs house. The firs six months of the existence of the pro visional administration was devot to repairing the damages inflicted the cyclone and preparing plans for the new projects. During these si months the increase in the receipts of the Havana customs house over the receipts for the same months in 190 was $222,435. During the six month ending to-day extensive public work have been in progress and the increas of receipts in the Havana customs house over the same period one year ago is $1,379,635. This shows that the trade of Havana has increased ap proximately $6,000,000, and it also shows that the government has received back approximately one-fourts of what it expended in these work during that period."
