SIR ROBERT W. PERKS NOW IN OTTAWA

In Interests of Georgian Bay Canal Scheme.

Opposition Members Have Signed Memorial in Favor of Company—Action Repudiated by Board.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 13.—Sir Robert Perks, the British capitalist and parliamentarian who came to Canada last week to confer with the government concerning his proposition to have the Georgian Bay canal built by a company of which he is the head, with government control of rails and the right to expropriate at any time in return for a government guarantee of bonds, is now in Ottawa interviewing members of parliament and cabinet ministers relative to the scheme. As a result of a canvass by a local agent of the company a considerable number of members of the opposition have already signed a memorial favoring construction of the canal on the terms suggested. Mr. Borden has, however, repudiated their action, as being in any sense a declaration of party policy, in view of the fact that the construction of the canal by a private company does not give the public ownership planks of the Halifax platform.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is already on record as favoring the construction of the canal by government as soon as the finance committee will permit. It is very unlikely that anything will be done this year at least by the government looking to a consummation of the long-mooted Georgian Bay scheme.

JAPANESE SEAL POAGHERS WARNED TO CLEAR OUT

Alaska Customs Collector Boards a Vessel Found Within the Restricted Limits—The Habit is Common.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 13.—A cable despatch from Cordova says that when en route from Juneau to Cordova on the steamer Portland, J. B. Willis, collector of customs for Alaska, warned a Japanese sealing schooner to leave the restricted fishing limits. Collector Willis boarded the vessel and found it to be the Naot Maru with a crew of thirty-six men. The captain claimed that he had put in for water but sealing implements were found on board and he was given six hours to put to sea and a penalty which sealed Collector Willis thinks that the sealer was waiting for the big herd of seals now going up the Alaska coast. This is the second Japanese schooner found within the restricted fishing limits this spring.

LOST THEIR LIVES TRYING TO SAVE FIVE CENTS

Three Men Were Drowned While Hundreds of School Children Watched.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 13.—To save five cents bridge toll, five foreigners who had been out of work for many months attempted to cross the Monongahela River at McKeshort, a suburb, yesterday, in a small boat which sank as they got into midstream, drowned three of the men. Five hundred school children enjoying their first day's diversion in a new playground saw them drown.

DR. RANDALL WINS BALLOON RACE

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., May 13.—The point-to-point race between the Eulons Greylock and North Adams No. 1, which ascended from here today was won by Dr. Roger M. Randall, of North Adams, who piloted the Greylock to a descent at Pine Grove, three miles from Leeds, Mass. The latter being the point which he had selected for his descent before his departure from North Adams. In the North Adams No. 1, N. H. Arnold and Arthur D. Potter, of North Adams, and George H. Sanderson, of Greenfield, Conn., 55 miles from Turner's Falls, Mass., which was the point selected by them to be reached in their voyage. The race gives the Forbes cup, which was won by Mr. Potter last year, to Dr. Randall.

WALTHOUR NOT INJURED.

PARIS, May 13.—There is no truth in the report that "Bobby" Walthour, the American bicyclist, has been injured in an accident. Walthour is in Paris training for his forthcoming race with Darragon.

YOUNG TURKS LIKELY TO BE KEPT BUSY; SIGNS OF DISAFFECTION AMONG THE TROOPS

Officers at Saloniki Send an Urgent Message That a General Massacre is to be Feared—Further Ghastly Details of the Recent Massacres of Armenians

SOLDIERS TAKING AMERICAN TOURISTS TO THEIR HOTELS CARRYING AWAY WOUNDED

MARASH, Asiatic Turkey, May 13.—Distressing accounts continue to be received here from the countryside of Armenian villages assailed by bands of Mohammedans, who, acting on the supposition that the Armenians were rising against the Government, were quick to strike the first blow. The men killed whoever was found within reach of knife or bullet. The girls received no consideration and some of them were carried off to become the wives or slaves of sick men. Houses were sacked and then burned and farm animals were driven off. The entire population of Bechkevy, 2,000 souls, moved to the Zaitoon region for safety. In other towns, notably Yankoon, where the Armenians were well supplied with rifles, they fought day and night and kept off large numbers of besiegers. There are probably 14,000 refugees in Marash.

COLOGNE, May 13.—The Koelnische Zeitung publishes a despatch from Saloniki, saying that the Young Turk officers at Erzurum, Asiatic Turkey, have sent a telegram to the local officers of the committee of union and progress, declaring that their soldiers are refusing obedience and demanding the restoration of the Sheriat and at the same time threatening a general massacre.

The message begs Shefiat Pasha, the commander of the third army corps, to send representatives to quiet the troops and the people and concludes with the statement that the Young Turk officers do not dare to show themselves abroad.

ALEXANDRETTA, Asiatic Turkey, May 13.—(Wednesday)—The U. S. Revenue Cutter Tacoma arrived here today for the protection of American interests. This vessel was on her way to the Pacific Coast via the Suez Canal and was diverted from Gibraltar. She is the first American ship to appear in Turkish waters since the beginning of the massacres and disorders in Asiatic Turkey.

FRENCH POSTAL STRIKE IS A FAILURE; VERY FEW EMPLOYEES HAVE JOINED THE MOVEMENT

PARIS, May 13.—The number of striking government employees shows no appreciable increase this morning. Services are normal, and at some places, notably Bordeaux, the telegraphers who went out yesterday have returned to their posts.

The concerted efforts of the strikers stationed at various bureaus in Paris, to induce their comrades to join in the movement, have been without effect. The authorities are confident and express publicly their firm belief that the strike will be over in a few days. On the other hand the leaders in the strike claim that the government is "bluffing" and that its figures regarding the number of men out are ridiculous. They declare the movement will extend rapidly and they do not refrain from applying vile epithets to Premier Clemenceau, Minister of Public Works Barthelemy, and other government officials, and they intimate that the general federation of labor soon will make a drastic appearance on the scene.

Only at Havre where both the post and telegraph services are practically tied up is the situation worse today. The batch of dismissals last night evidently has dismayed the rank and file. The government this afternoon will ask for a vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies and if this is obtained another and larger batch of dismissals will follow immediately. The official statistics issued at noon give the total number of strikers at 824.

The postmen charged with the delivery of newspapers refused to make their rounds this morning. They were expelled from the post office and replaced by men of the navy.

NATHAN STRAUSS SAYS THE FIGHT IS FRUITLESS

Campaign Against Consumption is Not Effective While Tuberculous Milk is Sold.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—That the vigorous campaign against tuberculosis has failed to check the great white plague was the startling charge made today by Nathan Strauss, the New York philanthropist, at the fifth annual meeting of the National Association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis here today.

Mr. Strauss backed up his assertion by official statistics from the New York Health Department, showing an increase of 33 per cent. in two years in cases of tuberculosis in the city that Dr. Koch described as leading the whole world in the fight against the disease.

WEALTHY TORONTO MAN GIVES FORTUNE TO CHURCH

Only His Living Expenses—All the Rest to Religion.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13.—The sensation of the Southern Baptist Convention in this city was the announcement by the laymen last night by Joseph N. Shenstone, millionaire manufacturer of Toronto, Ontario, that of his immense fortune, he would keep only enough for his future living expenses and would devote the remainder to the service of God.

SCHOONER ASHORE IN PRECARIOUS POSITION

ROCKPORT, Mass., May 12.—Mistaking off Cape Ann late today the three-masted schooner Henry Withington, bound light from Bay-view to the harbor, ran ashore on the north side of Halibut Point and ought to be in a precarious position.

Fourteen Mutilated Bodies Recovered—The Others Buried Under Tons of Rock.

JEFFRIES NOT ANXIOUS TO MEET JOHNSON

CHICAGO, May 12.—There was no meeting between Jack Johnson and Jim Jeffries in Chicago. Johnson evading the issue which opened to him, slipped out of town last evening and will fill an engagement in Buffalo. As for Jeffries he frankly admits he does not want to hold any conversation with the negro boxer. Jeffries stated that in case Johnson tried to confront him there would be no trouble. "I not only did not see him, but I do not want to see him."

Church Congress Takes Up the Emmanuel Movement—Conductors in Session—U. S. Tariff Debates.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Major Albert E. Johnson, one of the oldest practicing patent attorneys in the United States, died here last night in his 83rd year. During the civil war he acted for some time as private secretary to Edward M. Stanton, secretary of war. At one time he was prominent in Masonic circles.

MORE TARIFF DEBATES

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The schedule relating to iron ore will be before the senate when it meets today, and may give rise to speeches favoring the placing of four great natural products, iron ore, lumber, oil and coal, on the free list. So far as possible Mr. Aldrich, in charge of the tariff bill for the committee on finance, will endeavor to have the senate agree to paragraphs passed over on the previous reading of the bill so that schedule still under consideration may be reduced to the lowest possible number.

CHURCH CONGRESS

BOSTON, May 13.—With two important topics to be considered the National Episcopal Church Congress opened its third day's session today. In the morning the subject was "The possible contribution of Oriental thought to present day Christianity," and tonight the general topic will be "Psychotherapy as an aid to pastoral work," a subject that is of special interest in this city, where the so-called Emmanuel movement originated.

CONDUCTORS IN SESSION

BOSTON, May 13.—The consideration of location of a national headquarters aroused the utmost interest at the third day's session of the Order of Railway Conductors 32nd grand division in this city today. The most enthusiastic claimants of the honors were Indianapolis and Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

LOPUKINE GETS FIVE YEARS

ST. PETERSBURG, May 13.—M. Lopukine, a former director of police, who was arrested in St. Petersburg last January and placed on trial May 11 on the technical charge that he was a member of the revolutionary organization, was today condemned to five years' imprisonment at hard labor.

Combine is Turning Out More Work Than at Any Time Since 1907, and Prices are Better Too.

NEW YORK, May 13.—William B. Corey, President of the United States Steel Corporation, sailed today on a vacation trip to Europe. Mr. Corey spoke optimistically of steel conditions and declared that with an early tariff adjustment and average crops a speedy return of prosperous conditions might be expected.

The death of Paul Derrier occurred last evening at his father's residence, 104 British street, after a lingering illness. The deceased was a son of Jefferson Derrier and was in his tenth year. Besides his father he is survived by three brothers and four sisters: George, of Maine; Charles, of St. Andrews; Mary, of Moncton; Cecil, of Moncton, and Maggie, Jennie and Corcoran, at home. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at two o'clock.

The death took place last evening at 393 Queen street, after a lingering illness, of Mrs. Matilda, wife of Timothy Donovan and daughter of Ann and the late James Holt. She is survived by her husband and six children: F. J., Boston, Mass.; Lewis, Chicago, St. D., at home; Misses Agnes, Mary and Annie, at home.

An interesting event took place last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cummings, of Waterloo street, when the Rev. George Pitts united in marriage Albert Major and Miss Blanche Cummings. The marriage was solemnized in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents.

A. P. Barnhill and John Keefe, Canadian commissioners in connection with the St. John River dike, accompanied by their counsel, Hon. H. A. McKinnon, left yesterday morning for Fort Kent, and will be joined by the United States commissioner in an inspection of the place on the river which will be a difference of opinion. After this inspection arrangements will be made for the taking of evidence.

The floral cantata at St. Stephen's school this evening will be the most delightful children's entertainment in St. John for a number of years. Some sixty little maidens dressed to represent the many beautiful flowers, will take part and the concert will be a bright and pleasing one from start to finish. This entertainment was recently given in Deser, Col., with very great success to crowded houses. Judging from the large advance sale, standing room will be at a premium tonight. The concert begins at eight sharp.

At a largely attended meeting of the St. Vincent's Alumnae held last evening, it was decided to hold the annual "at home" and reception for the graduates in the assembly rooms at Keith's Theatre on the evening of June 30. Miss McInerney, the president of the alumnae, occupied the chair and after the reading of the minutes, plans were advanced for the at home. It is proposed to have a musical programme carried out and light refreshments will be served. It is expected that about one hundred and forty members will attend. A meeting of the committees in charge of the assembly will be held on Wednesday, June 2nd.

Keen interest is being displayed on the meeting to be held in connection with the formation of a provincial league. Frederickson, St. John, Amherst and Moncton will have a strong representation at the meeting. There is a possibility that a decision will be reached immediately and a league schedule formed. Meanwhile the Inter-Society League teams are getting in some good practice. The opening game on Monday evening next between the St. Josephs is attracting much attention and a large crowd will undoubtedly turn out for the opening.

The management of the Clippers feel that their proposition to the Marathon Club was a fair one and deserve a response.

DEMAND FOR ROUGH LABOR

Increase, According to Associated Charities REGULAR MEETING Boston Board Makes Inquiries Concerning Four St. John Families.

At the regular meeting of the Associated Charities yesterday several matters of interest were discussed. The report of the secretary showed that while there are more names on the society's books now of persons seeking work or other relief than have ever previously been recorded, there is a stronger demand for unskilled and domestic labor. Applications from persons desiring work are quite numerous, but so plentiful are the laborers that all requests are promptly refused. The work is done as fairly as possible between those seeking employment, and while conditions are generally speaking steadily improving there are still many in need.

It was also shown that there is developing a close relationship between this society and those in other cities. As an instance it was noted that during the past few months Boston sought information concerning four different families of former St. John people now residing in that city.

Miss Robertson reported on her work of friendly visiting. It was felt that as at the present season there are few industrial activities and few opportunities for contributions, this would be a good time to ask for clothing for boys and girls, especially boys. Miss Robertson finds many children sorely in need, and while it is usually comparatively easy to provide for girls, great difficulty is experienced in obtaining garments for boys. The coats, trousers and boots sent in from time to time are generally so worn out as to be fit for nothing but the stove. There are several pressing cases under observation at the present time.

Another position. Miss Eileen Warner has been selected from the Public Service offices of this society and those in other cities. As an instance it was noted that during the past few months Boston sought information concerning four different families of former St. John people now residing in that city.

LACHUTE MAN, AFTER FOURTEEN YEARS SUFFERING FROM HEALTH AND STRENGTH IN AN OLD RELIABLE KIDNEY REMEDY.

LACHUTE, Que., May 12 (Special)—After fourteen years of suffering, which started from pleurisy, followed by dropsical swellings, and culminated in Lumbago, and confined him to his bed, Malachi F. McAuliffe, a well-known resident of this place, has entirely recovered his health, and he says without hesitation, "I am sure I owe it entirely to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

TORTOISE LIVED FOR 250 YEARS. Eastertide visitors to the London Zoological Gardens will miss a familiar (if wrinkled and horny) face in the tortoise-house, for Methuselah, the 250-year-old "elephantine" tortoise is dead.

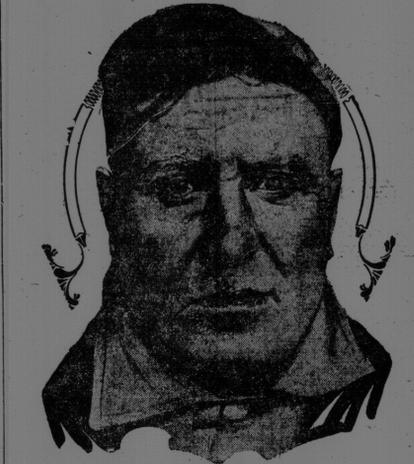

RINGS OF AGE. The popularly adopted estimate of this tortoise's age, 250 years, can neither be proved nor contradicted. A tortoise's "plates" (the sections which combine to form the shell proper) grow a fraction of an inch round the edges every season, forming a series of rings. The tortoise grows all the time he lives, and the shell enlarges in the manner described to make room for its expanding owner. By counting the rings on the shell sections the reptile's age may be ascertained, the topmost rings being those of babyhood. But in a venerable reptile like Methuselah these rings are so worn down and obliterated a scientific guess is the only gauge of longevity.

Methuselah was a very long time settling down to the sleep which proved to be his last. He broke all records by showing signs of activity in November last—two months after he should have been entering into hibernation. Maybe he had premonitions.

Henry, Methuselah's 250-year-old companion, who seemed to have been always snubbed by the now deceased patriarch on account of youth and inexperience, is still asleep. They fear to wake him and break the news. However, Henry now becomes the doyen of the garden, and respectfully may sober him.

Meanwhile, the death of a creature which links us with the times of Milton and the Great Plague is a matter for vacillate.

VETERAN MAKES LAST STAND AFTER LONG BASE BALL CAREER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 12—One who's looking at you? What? Don't know him? Oh, yes, you do, only you don't want to let on. Honest? You don't recognize him? Why, man, it's your old college pal, Perry Werden, who played ball with Anson when granddaddy wore kilts. Like the object of the song, Perry is a good old wagon, but he's done broken down. His ball playing days were over about the time the Florida sunset started renovating hearts and calmed livers, but his day of usefulness did not pass when he could no longer play first and bat 300. No, he secured a job as arbitrator in the American association, and when he could no longer keep tabs on an individual, he hired out to Indianapolis as official coach. It looked like the soft and downy for the ancient one for several seasons, but the rule limiting to 16 players is in effect in the association this season, and it promises to lop off Werden. "All teams must be cut to 16 players by May 15," insists President O'Brien, and unless Werden is coach is of more value than a player he seems due to draw his release.

SCORE DEAD AS RESULT OF A BLAST

ALBANY, N. Y., May 12—At least twenty men were killed by a premature blast of dynamite today in a stone quarry operated by the Callanan Road Improvement Company, near the village of South Bethlehem, eleven miles southwest of Albany. It was at first believed that the death toll would reach thirty, but tonight several Italian workmen, who had been reported as missing, were accounted for, and it is not believed that more than a score of lives were lost.

REV. DR. MORISON PRINCIPAL SPEAKER

The services for the children in connection with the 12th anniversary of the St. Andrew's Church were continued last evening. The large edifice was crowded with young people who listened with great interest to the lecture delivered by the pastor, which was illustrated by handsome stereoscopic views.

On her way home from morning services, says a writer in the New York Press, Mrs. Scott complained to the friend who had joined her of the excruciating dullness of the sermon. "Yes, mamma, but it was very cheap," little Jimmy hastened to say. "You only paid a dime for it."

TWO INJURED IN ONE HOUSE HAMPTON, Kings Co., May 12--An extraordinary double accident occurred this afternoon at the residence of Clara R. It seems that Mr. Smith had gone into the cellar, which is reached through a trap door, to procure some vegetables, not knowing that the trap was open. In the darkness she fell down upon the lower third of the thigh bone. Assistance was at once obtained and Mrs. Smith was taken up to her room, where she was placed on a cot and the bone set by Dr. J. Newton Smith.

THE MAGIC MUSICIAN.

(By Stuart B. Stone.)

Francis, first violin at the glided Belvidere, had two precious secrets pent in his warm, Gallic heart. The first of these was known only to a very proud, ancient family upon the vineyard banks of the Loire; the second was really no secret at all—for Francis told the beautiful story in the wailing, pleading tones of his beloved Strad every night to the gay parties that thronged the Cafe Belvidere. This was his love for the lady of the lavender orchard plume.

Francis had singled her out one night when her party was the merriest of the times. Madame of the lavender plume, when the others joined hysterically in the applause, had said merely, "good."

The next day Francis fixed his bright, brown eyes upon Madame and rendered "The Cavalier's Golden Dream." Madame, who was very sensitive to these things, dropped just one little, unbidden tear upon her lobster, according to Newburg. Francis saw and dreamed of her that night in his tiny, tenth floor garret.

After that the secret ceased to be a secret. Madame came nightly with her grand friends. After a bit, in his ardent ecstasy, he would advance and face his lady forgetting the crowd and Josef and Paul and the other musicians. Thus Madame became a rare sight with Madame's grand friends.

Finally the great news came to Francis from across the sea, bearing a crest of ancient honor. The first pre-emption secret was ready for the greedy world.

Then Francis came down to the Cafe Belvidere in a rented dress suit of extraordinary splendor. When Madame came with her friends, he stepped out upon the floor and played as even he had not played before. It was "The Sad Heart's Message," and the strains called and allured and beckoned to Madame until she half arose from her chair. Francis saw and came near.

"Oh, Madame—come, please!"

She followed him, while the crowd around and behind a front of forty feet on the said street and thence extending back preserving the same width and frontage to the rear boundary with the buildings and improvements thereon and the rights and appurtenances to the said lands and premises belonging or appertaining." Dated the seventh day of April A. D. 1909.

DIME NOVELS AGAIN.

Yesterday a fifteen year old boy appeared in court to answer a charge of burglary. When he was arrested a copy of a five cent "blood and thunder" novel was found in his pocket. Yesterday's papers recorded the case of a boy in another town who held up a school and made the children dance at the point of a revolver in emulation of the playful antics of his heroes of the dime novel. These are only a couple of the cases which come to light once in a while to give the adults an idea of the effects of such reading on the mind of a boy. Time and again the downfall of youthful criminals has been traced to the cheap novels which they had been in the habit of reading. The evil results of such mental distraction cannot be measured, however, by the career of the boys who run foul of the police. For every boy who goes to that length there are hundreds who do not achieve such notoriety but whose minds have been warped, their taste for good literature destroyed, and their youthful ideas set adrift by the same influences. The evil results of such reading are too well known to need emphasis. Unfortunately those who do know this are not the ones in danger and little is being done to save the boys from the danger. An almost incredible number of these cheap novels are sold to boys in all classes of life. To one who has not acquired a better taste they gratify the youthful desire for stories of excitement and adventure. This is a natural craving on the part of a boy, and until something better and more attractive is substituted the boys are likely to continue to patronize the five and ten cent sensational novels. There are two methods of keeping the boys away from such trash. One is by keeping them too busy either with sport or with work to give them time to indulge such fancies. The other is to cultivate a taste for better reading. The latter if continued is likely to be more effective. Parents might do much along this line by seeing that their boys are given good books to read that will appeal to a strenuous youth. The public library does something of this nature, but its work might be widely extended. School libraries might be made a means of distributing good literature and teachers might help such a movement along. There is another possible method of suppressing the evil, that is by forbidding the sale of the books. It would do no harm to have the display in the windows of the news stands done away with, but it would be difficult to arbitrarily suppress their sale. More can be accomplished by educational measures, and the need of such measures is very urgent.

THE MOTH.

By G. L. Marlett, Entomologist, Acting Chief of Bureau of Entomology, Department of Agriculture, Washington.

As for moth preventives, every woman you meet has one. And in the majority of cases, one is as good as another.

There is no easy method of preventing the damage done by moths. To keep whole the clothing they are likely to attack demands constant vigilance, with frequent inspection and treatment.

Things in daily or weekly use and apartments frequently aired and swept, or used as living rooms, are not apt to be seriously affected. Carpets under these conditions are rarely attacked.

Beating, shaking or brushing and exposure to air and sunlight, are old remedies and still among the best at command. Tobacco, camphor balls and cedar chips have value if the garments are not already stocked with larvae. If the larvae are already present, these odors have no effect.

Cedar chests and wardrobes are of value in proportion to the freedom of the material from infestation when stored away; but, as the odor of the wood is largely lost with age, in the course of a few years the protection greatly decreases.

Furs may also be stored in trunks which have been lined with heavy paper. New papering should be given to such receptacles every year or two. Similarly, tarred paper moth bags are of some value.

To protect carpets, clothes and cloth-covered furniture, furs, etc., these should be thoroughly beaten, shaken, brushed and exposed as long as practicable to the sunlight in early spring, either in April, May or June, depending on the latitude. Brushing is very important to remove the eggs which might escape notice. If no other protection be given, the garments should be examined at least once a month during summer, brushed and exposed to light.

It would be more convenient, however, so to wrap up such material as to prevent the access of the moths to it, after it has been treated and aired. Secure some large pasteboard boxes such as tailors use, and pack away in them all winter clothing, gumming a strip of wrapping paper around the edges so as to seal up the box completely and leave no cracks. These boxes with care will last many years.

In the case of cloth-covered furniture left unused in summer, spray it twice or three times with benzene or naphtha, or sponge them carefully with dilute solution of corrosive sublimate in alcohol, made just strong enough not to leave a white stain.

Turpentine is good for moths. Saturate pieces of brown paper with it and place them in boxes.

Insect powder is also good. Get an insect powder blow gun, which will cost but a few cents, and a dime's worth of the powder. With the gun blow a little powder just under the edges of carpets to keep moths away. Also on closet shelves where you lay away bedding.

Persons troubled with carpet moths should try scrubbing the floor, with strong salt water before laying the carpet and sprinkling the carpet with salt when one sweeps it.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 12.—Ten bodies had been recovered when the search was abandoned at dark tonight for the victims of last night's ferry-boat accident. A revised list carefully gone over tonight shows that the total death list will be twenty-three, instead of twenty, as reported last night.

SOMERSWORTH, N. H., May 12.—Between 100 and 600 cooking ranges in a storehouse of the Somersworth Foundry Company were destroyed by a fire that burned the storehouse tonight. Other buildings of the plant were saved by the combined efforts of the South Berwick and Somersworth fire departments and the fire pumps of the company on the premises. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

FRANKLIN, N. H., May 12.—A verdict of accidental drowning was returned tonight at the conclusion of a hearing conducted by County Solicitor Thomas F. Clifford, medical referee, G. P. Conn of Concord, in the case of Norman H. Morrill, whose body was found today floating in the Johnson grist mill pond. Morrill was 32 years old. He disappeared suddenly on April 10 and no clue to his whereabouts was obtained until today, when his father and sister discovered the body in the water.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Will the above happen to the great bull, Jas. A. Patten? May 31 will tell the tale. That is settlement day. On June 1 all the world will know whether or not Patten has won.

Never in the history of the wheat pit has any man passed settlement day a winner. Mr. Patten has tried. But what has beaten him. The history of wheat corners is a story of ruin and dishonor and suicide and financial wreckage and broken men.

Some people are beginning to think let us see, in plain United States language, just what will happen on May 31. Whether he wins or loses that day will go down in history as one of the most stormy in the story of wheat speculation.

Let us remember first that a short, or a bull, in this story, is a man who has contracted to deliver wheat to Patten on May 31. The price ranges up to $1.20, or whatever may be the highest option price reached by that time.

The short in making his contract, believed that he would be able to buy wheat at a lower price before May 31, and make a profit on his wheat.

The bull, or long, is the man, like Patten, and those who believe in him, and have followed his lead, who has contracted to pay for wheat at prices ranging up to the highest option price.

The option price, we said. That is the wheat pit price.

There is a cash wheat price, too. That is the price you'd have to pay in open market for the actual wheat. It's been about 20 cents higher than the option price so far. If it were lower the shorts could buy what they wanted and fill their orders with Patten at a profit—or else Patten would go broke trying to pay.

What will happen then on May 31 in the Chicago wheat pit?

IF PATTEN WINS—

The shorts, trying desperately to beat down the price, will have failed. Patten has said all along that this is a short year for wheat. His prediction will have made good. The shorts, if they have to buy wheat at anything like the present cash price, will lose hundreds of thousands of dollars, millions of dollars, in the aggregate.

They will ransack the world for wheat, but they will have failed. In a last desperate endeavor, as they face ruin on May 31, they will try to buy and fill the order they have contracted to deliver to Patten.

But they can't buy the wheat. It is not to be had. Each man who fights for wheat will stimulate the demand, and the price will soar higher and higher.

The only price at which they can buy the precious kernels is beyond the frenzied shorts. Then the secretary of the Board of Trade, black coated, the only unmovable figure in that manly whirlpool of humanity, will rap for order.

All trades will be firm of Blank, Deans and Co. must be closed at once, he will announce.

And the wheat pit will know that a great brokerage house has gone to the wall.

There will be a consultation in Patten's office. White faced and pale men will bargain with their victorious master. He will name the price at which he will allow them to settle.

In other salubrious offices, men immaculately dressed, may fight their battle out with a loaded pistol in the top drawer, and that knows what the police will come before night unless—

IF PATTEN LOSES—

Then the mountains of wheat garnered around the world and rushed to the thousands of Chicago granaries, by armies of men in overalls toiling night and day like fire fighters, will have been enough and more than enough to crush into man who would dare to try to control the world's food.

With Patten fighting a losing battle the price will be beaten down and down. He has contracted to pay, say, $1.20. In the open market the shorts can buy for $1.25, for $1.20, for $1. And Patten will have to pay.

To realize ready money he will have to throw some of the wheat he has already bought back into the pit. He will get the money, but that wheat will have pushed down the price another notch. A minute later that wheat will rise up to help to smash him.

For weeks he has been quietly selling, cautiously, so as not to interfere with the upward march of prices, realizing money for the supreme struggle. He has shipped his wheat all over the world—anything to get it away from Chicago so that it can't come back and be used by his enemies.

But it isn't enough if the bears win. The shorts can buy all the wheat they want and deliver it to Patten at the price he set. And he will have to pay.

Another broken corner will have gone down in history.

And Jas. A. Patten will join the ranks of Lefter and Gate and Old Hutch and the rest who defied the lightning.

They are beginning to think that Patten will win. He said from the outset that there would be a wheat shortage this year. His information seems to have been right.

In Lefter's corner in 1888, cash wheat could be had for $1.40, while the wheat pit price was $1.50.

But in 1909 cash wheat is soaring 20 cents higher than the wheat pit price. The short, Patten's enemies, can't get the wheat unless something breaks.

May 31 will tell the tale.

Can Patten, With His Corner, Pass Settlement Day?—Just What Will Happen If the Great Bull Wins and Also If the Bears Whip Him—Begins to Look That He Will Succeed Where Nobody Else Has—Great Losses and Maybe Failures Whichever Side is Victor.

There in the middle of the pit, surrounded and assailed by herd after herd of wolves, he stood, braced, rigid, his head up, his hand, that had once held, the whole pit in its grip, flung high in air, while his voice, like the clangor of bugles sounding to the charge of the forlorn hope, rang out again—d again over the din of his enemies:

"Give a dollar for July—give a dollar for July!"

Then the avalanche, the undiked ocean of wheat, leaping to the lash of the hurricane, struck him early in the face.

He heard it now, he heard nothing else. The "W" had broken from his control. For months he had, by the might of his single arm, held it back; now it rose like the upbuilding of a colossal billow. It towered, towered, hung poised for an instant, and then, with a thunder as of the grind and crash of chaotic worlds, broke upon him, burst through the pit and raced past him, on and on.

What happened next snapped in his brain. Blind and insane, he strove against the torrent of the wheat. One minute only remained active, and that vibrated with terrible rapidity, his rhythm beating out the old and terrible cadence:

"Wheat-wheat-wheat. Wheat-wheat-wheat."—Frank Norris in "The Pit."

NEW YORKERS SEE LIVELY FEATHERWEIGHT GO

NEW YORK, May 12.—Unmolested by the police, Johnny Connors, of Chicago, and Harry Lenny, of this city, fought ten rounds to a draw before the Shuskey A. C. tonight. These two featherweights acted as substitutes for Harry Stone and Ben Douglas, who were put out of the ring in the second round by the referee for "stalling." Lenny was knocked down in the first round but recovered quickly and by constant hammering at Connor's stomach managed to get a draw.

THE MOTH.

By G. L. Marlett, Entomologist, Acting Chief of Bureau of Entomology, Department of Agriculture, Washington.

As for moth preventives, every woman you meet has one. And in the majority of cases, one is as good as another.

There is no easy method of preventing the damage done by moths. To keep whole the clothing they are likely to attack demands constant vigilance, with frequent inspection and treatment.

Things in daily or weekly use and apartments frequently aired and swept, or used as living rooms, are not apt to be seriously affected. Carpets under these conditions are rarely attacked.

Beating, shaking or brushing and exposure to air and sunlight, are old remedies and still among the best at command. Tobacco, camphor balls and cedar chips have value if the garments are not already stocked with larvae. If the larvae are already present, these odors have no effect.

Cedar chests and wardrobes are of value in proportion to the freedom of the material from infestation when stored away; but, as the odor of the wood is largely lost with age, in the course of a few years the protection greatly decreases.

Furs may also be stored in trunks which have been lined with heavy paper. New papering should be given to such receptacles every year or two. Similarly, tarred paper moth bags are of some value.

To protect carpets, clothes and cloth-covered furniture, furs, etc., these should be thoroughly beaten, shaken, brushed and exposed as long as practicable to the sunlight in early spring, either in April, May or June, depending on the latitude. Brushing is very important to remove the eggs which might escape notice. If no other protection be given, the garments should be examined at least once a month during summer, brushed and exposed to light.

It would be more convenient, however, so to wrap up such material as to prevent the access of the moths to it, after it has been treated and aired. Secure some large pasteboard boxes such as tailors use, and pack away in them all winter clothing, gumming a strip of wrapping paper around the edges so as to seal up the box completely and leave no cracks. These boxes with care will last many years.

In the case of cloth-covered furniture left unused in summer, spray it twice or three times with benzene or naphtha, or sponge them carefully with dilute solution of corrosive sublimate in alcohol, made just strong enough not to leave a white stain.

Turpentine is good for moths. Saturate pieces of brown paper with it and place them in boxes.

Insect powder is also good. Get an insect powder blow gun, which will cost but a few cents, and a dime's worth of the powder. With the gun blow a little powder just under the edges of carpets to keep moths away. Also on closet shelves where you lay away bedding.

Persons troubled with carpet moths should try scrubbing the floor, with strong salt water before laying the carpet and sprinkling the carpet with salt when one sweeps it.

PRINCE SUES FOR WIFE'S $200,000

De Bearn de Chalais, of Paris, Demands Estate of Princess From Ross Winans, of Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 13—Princess De Bearn, et al. Chalais, of Paris, France, who married a daughter of Ross Winans, of Baltimore, today began suit against the father-in-law in an effort to get possession of $200,000 remaining of an estate left by his wife.

The Prince got $100,000 when the estate of his wife was settled, but he now claims that he should have control of all of it, asserting that he was married at the time of the negotiations by Mr. Winans and Ferdinand C. Latrobe, formerly Mayor, administrator of the estate.

Mr. Winans says he was notified by the Prince shortly after his daughter's death that she had left a will. Correspondence relative to the settlement of the estate in the manner finally affected was carried on, it is alleged, between Mr. Winans and the Prince through Mandeville C. Jacobus, the Prince's counsel in Paris, and after the arrangements to settle the estate were decided on the Prince then came to Baltimore.

The settlement seemed satisfactory to the Prince, he is reported in the deposition and he went away, but shortly after became dissatisfied with the settlement, the suit following. That the Prince wrote to Mr. Winans thanking him for the honor of being appointed guardian of the children is mentioned in the deposition of Mr. Winans.

Mr. Winans makes the point that the Princess when the Prince gave to him and to Mr. Latrobe, agreeing to take $100,000 absolutely and the income from the remaining $100,000 for the children shall come of age, were made by the Prince of his own free will, without duress or coercion, and that he should have control of the entire estate and that the administrators erred in giving him but one-third of it.

DISCARDED GIRL SAYS SHE WAS AFFIANCED

Testifies That Samuel S. Laird, Jr., Registered Her as Wife.

NEW YORK, May 13—Cora Sinclair, who is suing Samuel S. Laird, Jr., member of a shoe manufacturing firm in Newark and son of Samuel S. Laird, of Philadelphia, for $50,000 for alleged breach of promise, was questioned in the Supreme Court today under an order obtained by counsel for Laird.

Before the examination had gone far to answer certain questions, and the examination was postponed until Wednesday, to allow Justice Davis to pass on the objectionable questions.

Miss Sinclair said that she had been a dressmaker previous to that time, but was out of work and couldn't pay her room rent. She was introduced to Laird in a house in West Forty-ninth street, she said, and soon afterward they went to Atlantic City together, Laird registering them as Mr. and Mrs. Laird.

She said that both at Atlantic City and other places Laird told her he intended to marry her, but that he would have to wait until his father died, because his father wanted him to marry a woman with lots of money.

"On one occasion," said Miss Sinclair, "we were out together and were talking about somebody else being married, and I told him I hoped I wouldn't be long before we were married. He turned around and said: 'Don't worry; it won't be long.'"

Laird was married to Lillian G. Hayes two years ago, and now lives with his wife at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia.

"NOT MY WIFE," SAYS FORMER PENN STUDENT

Sees Picture in N. A. and Writes Denying He Married Girl.

PHILADELPHIA, May 13—Through a picture printed in The North American on January 23 of this year, of a mother and her baby, there was uncovered yesterday a peculiar situation, involving a former University student, the young woman who believed herself to be his wife, and their child, now some months old.

The photograph was that of "Mrs. Armando Moreno" and "Laurencia Moreno" that particular edition of the newspaper, it seems, was sent to Armando Moreno, a student, who is, or was, in La Union, Chile.

A letter, dated at that place, April 13, and addressed to The North American, was received by this newspaper yesterday. It was signed by Moreno, and contained the following statement: "I have never been married. I am a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, and spent four years in Philadelphia, and never while I was there had I any intention of marrying that young lady."

In starting contract to this is the postcard dated at La Union, April 5, which is in possession of "Mrs. Moreno," or Miss Charisse Annet, at her home, 225 Locust street. This probably came to this country on the same steamer that brought the matrimonial letter to The North American.

It is addressed to the baby, and reads: "Greetings to the little man. Ten thousand kisses to my little daughter, who holds my heart in her baby hands. Greetings to the little mamma. My heart is ever hers. Adios."

Surprising as these two missives seem, each in the light of the other, the story told by Mrs. Moreno, or Miss Annet, yesterday, is even more astounding. Not only did she believe herself to be married, but she asserts, she has many letters, some addressed to her and others to the baby, from Armando Moreno. In these, she says, she is addressed as "my dear wife."

And her belief, it would seem, is based on a simple marriage ceremony, in which she says she and Moreno took part, and in the presence of witnesses and kissed each other. "His too me," she says, "was a marriage in his country as binding, and I believed him. He said that because of his religion, his position in Chilean society and the wishes of his family he could not be married in any place other than the Cathedral at Los Angeles in his country. Our wedding, he said, was to be a preliminary affair to the big wedding we were to have when we reached Chile."

FACE OF DEAD MAN IS SEEN ON WINDOW PANE

Squad of Reading Police Summoned to Keep Crowd Away.

READING, Pa., May 12—A phenomenon which has attracted hundreds of persons during the last week in the northeastern section of the city is the appearance of the figure of a dead man on a window pane in his residence.

Oliver D. Angstadt, a tailor, died last October. A week ago today, it is alleged, his daughter saw the face of her father at a second-story window.

Finally the story became known, and the curious ones began to gather at the Angstadt home. When the crush became great a squad of police was sent to the house.

Residents declare that they saw Mrs. Angstadt's likeness on the window pane very plainly. In a way of explanation, it is said that Mr. Angstadt was fond of watching the lightning and some declare that by a strange freak of nature his features were photographed on the window pane and the sun has developed the same.

ENDIRI SENTENCED TO TEN YEARS

Italian Was Found Guilty of Manslaughter.

Fatally Slashed McKay in Row Over a Woman—Eloquent Pleas Made by Lawyers for the Defense.

BENTON, N. B., May 12—After thirty-five minutes' deliberation the jury in the case of the Crown v. John Endiri, the latter charged with the murder of John McKay, returned a verdict of manslaughter. Subsequently the prisoner was sentenced by His Honor Mr. Justice McLeod to a term of ten years in Dorchester penitentiary.

Witness had boarded at the Austrian woman's house since October last. Other evidence given by the prisoner was the same as evidence of other witnesses. McKay and Pickett told the prisoner to get out of his own house, and tore off his vest and struck him in the face. They told him they were going to kill him. The prisoner picked a knife up and being blinded by blood struck at random. McKay had struck him first. They wanted him to leave the house in order that they might do what they wished with the woman. This concluded the evidence.

Mr. Pickett delivered an eloquent address to the jury on behalf of the prisoner. His plea was that the prisoner acted in the defense of the honor of the Syrian woman. Mr. Hearn, who followed, pointed out that foreigners should be taught to respect our laws. It was only a question for the jury to decide whether the crime was of murder.

Mr. Hearn made a very eloquent address. Judge McLeod charged the jury, which retired to the jury room.

The jury returned at 7 o'clock after 35 minutes absence and announced that they found a verdict of manslaughter against the prisoner.

The judge thanked the jury and said he agreed with their verdict. Mr. Hearn, counsel for the prisoner, thanked the judge, the attorney-general and the jury for their fairness and courtesy and made an appeal for mercy on behalf of the prisoner.

Judge McLeod, after delivering some good advice to the prisoner, sentenced him to ten years in Dorchester Penitentiary, which he entered at once. He would be very much shortened by good behavior. A large number of spectators, including many ladies, were in the court during the afternoon. While Mr. Hearn was making his eloquent address to the jury the prisoner and several spectators shed tears.

SIMPLE WASH CURES ECZEMA

Why Salves Fall While a Simple Liquid Has Accomplished Thousands of Cures

It is now thoroughly established among the best medical authorities that eczema is purely a skin disease, due to a germ, and curable only through the skin. It is not a blood disease at all. In fact, thousands of people suffer with skin disease and are perfectly healthy otherwise, and thereby prove they have no blood disease.

Smear salves cannot reach the germs because they do not penetrate the skin. The only way to reach the germs is by means of a PENETRATING LIQUID.

Such a liquid can be obtained by simply mixing ordinary oil of wintergreen with thymol, glycerine and other healing agents. This compound, known as D. D. D. Prescription, stops the itch instantly and the cure all appear to be permanent. In fact, it took thousands of cures, case after case, before the best scientific authorities were convinced of the absolute merit of this remedy. D. D. D. Prescription kills the germs in the itching skin. Its effect is seen within one minute after the first application. The cure is given by Dr. D. D. D. Soap is used in connection with the treatment.

ATTEMPTING MURDER, BEGGAR FALLS DEAD

Niagara Falls Mendicant Piled His Trade with Pistol and Razor.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., May 12—A sudden natural death was averted when Willie White from killing James Thomas here today.

White, armed with a revolver and a razor, attempted to slay Thomas, who was employed and demanded money and, meeting with refusal, drew the revolver and drove Thomas into a corner.

Just as White lifted the weapon and fired he was attacked by a man who was armed with a pistol and a razor. With blood pouring from his mouth, White staggered forward several steps and fell.

"Little Willie—Say, pa, what is a hypocrite. My son, is a man who publicly thanks the Lord for his success and then gets mad every time anybody insinuates that he isn't mainly responsible for it himself."

On the coffee question a lady says: "I used to be so miserable after breakfast that I did not know how to get through the day. Life was a burden to me. When I tried to sleep I was miserable by having horrible dreams followed by hours of wakefulness. Gas would rise on my stomach and I would belch almost continually. Then every few weeks I would have a long stage of sick headaches. I tried a list of medicines and physicians without benefit."

"Finally, I concluded to give up my coffee and tea, altogether and use Postum. The first cup was a failure. It was wicky-wicky and I offered to give the remainder of the package to anyone who would take it."

"I noticed later on in one of the advertisements that Postum should be boiled at least 15 minutes to make it good. I asked the cook how she made it and she said, 'Just the same as I did tea, being careful not to let it steep too long.'"

"I read the directions and concluded Postum had not had a fair trial, so we made a new lot and boiled it 15 to 20 minutes. That time it came to the table a different beverage and was so delicious that we have been using it ever since."

GERMAN SHIPPING TRUST.

It is persistently reported in German financial circles that the union of the Hamburg-America Company and the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, which would mean one of the largest shipping combinations on record, is likely to ensue in the near future.

The combination of the two companies would possess 305 ships, with an aggregate tonnage of 1,924,035, divided as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Ship Name, Tonnage. Hamburg-America: 108, 268,679; North German Lloyd: 187, 64,726; Total: 295, 1,924,035.

In former years the Hamburg-America Company and the North German Lloyd competed against one another freely, but twenty-five years ago their own interests compelled them to conclude a working arrangement based on a division of spheres of interest in the different parts of the world.

In the autumn of 1905 the North German Lloyd was accused of violating this agreement by invading the Hamburg-America Company's preserve, whereupon the latter announced its intention of proceeding relentlessly against its German competitor.

The Emperor intervened in this dispute to bring about an amicable settlement, because strife between the two great German companies would have benefited neither, and would have crippled both very seriously.

The managing director of the Hamburg-America Company, Herr Ballin, and the managing director of the North German Lloyd, the late Dr. Wiegand, came to Berlin to outline the Emperor to mediate between them, and His Majesty endeavored to arrange a settlement on conditions which would have permitted the ultimate fusion of the two companies. Herr Ballin, who aimed at the union of the two companies under his own control, was favorable to the amalgamation, but the late Dr. Wiegand strenuously opposed the proposal. He fully realized that a fusion would mean the absorption of his own company and the destruction of Herr Ballin over practically the whole of the German mercantile marine.

"Not a step will I go," he explained. "How would I feel accepting his invitation three times and me without any way of returning his civilities?"

HAZEN WON'T ALLOW LIQUOR IN CAMPS

TORONTO, May 12—In reply to a letter sent by Rev. Dr. Chown to Attorney General of Saskatchewan, the Premier has written: "I beg to assure you that enforcement of regulations concerning the use of liquor within camp grounds will be attended to by our provincial officers in the same manner as with other liquor laws of the province."

Premier Hazen of New Brunswick also writes about the same matter. "I will gladly co-operate in any way I can with the military authorities so that all possible precautions may be taken to prevent the sale of liquor in camps."

It is said that potatoes are only one-fifth as fattening as dry toast.

BIG BANQUET FOR PUGSLEY

Plans for a monster banquet in honor of the Honorable William Pugsley are now underway and the committee which has the matter in hand is only now awaiting a wire from the Minister before proceeding with the arrangements.

Last night a largely attended meeting was held at the offices of Cowie and Edwards, Prince William street. D. F. Purdy occupied the chair. Brief speeches were delivered by a number of those present and the meeting enthusiastically decided to tender Dr. Pugsley a banquet upon his return from Ottawa as a token of the admiration and confidence with which he is held by his supporters and friends throughout the province. The banquet will be representative of the city, county and province, and will probably form one of the largest of its kind ever held in New Brunswick.

Later in the evening a wire was dispatched to the Minister, tendering him the honor and asking for a convenient date.

The banquet will probably be held in the Keith's assembly rooms. The following is the committee that was elected last night to look after the preliminary details: D. J. Purdy, M. B. Edwards, D. J. Brown, Mayor Burlock, George Flood, AM. Scully and Dr. McAvaney. Further committees will be appointed later.

AMONG THE PERILS OF THE OCEAN

None save a seaman can understand the countless risks that beset the seaman. The sea is a friend in that it carries the keels homeward after many days of absence, but it is also a bitter malignant foe, and it is more as a foe than a friend that the son of the sea understands the element that gives him life. The sea is no friend; she is an exacting mistress, who demands an undivided service, even to the extent of laying down one's life on her behalf and repays the service with endless perils.

NATURE TOO STRONG. But there are other kinds of storms, each one known by a different name, which are not so easy to cope with. The hurricane, for example, is absolutely overwhelming if met with when it has attained its full force. Ships are simply pounded down before a sheer weight of wind; the gigantic sea that arises in the wake of the storm breaks down the sturdy defenses of bulwark and hatch, and often enough the ship is swamped, her hatches stove in, and waterlogged, she sinks ignominiously. Her captain and crew are not to blame; they have done what they could; Nature has been too strong for them, that is all.

But a hurricane gives warning and by obeying the laws of storms a captain might easily keep his ship out of the danger quadrant of the storm. But so with other atmospheric freaks commonly known to those who use the sea. A pampetro, for instance, gives scant warning of its coming. The storm is born on the Brazilian or the Argentine land, and sweeps out to sea with terrific velocity, unheeded by any lowering clouds or lightning flash; a solid thing hurled down on the unready ship to strike her and dismay into the hearts of all aboard. No time to get aloft and clew down the upper sails; they must be let go and blown out of the bolt-ropes if needs be; and if they are stout sails, strong sails, they may resist the firm awful shock of the huriling wind, and drag the ship down on her beam ends before anything can be done.

And here appears another danger—the carelessness of stevedores. The writer remembers a case where a ship laden with nitrates was longward bound from Chili when a pampetro struck her. The Chilean stevedores are amongst the most careful in the world and usually when they load a cargo there is as much fear of the ship's keel starting from its hold as that cargo from its place. But now and then—well, the stevedores who had stored this ship's cargo had forgotten to attend strictly to the trim of the nitrates. As the ship heeled first a few sacks of the weighty stuff became dislodged, this caused her to heel still more. A further avalanche of sacks tumbled down to the low side, she was now over at an angle of forty-five degrees.

Even so she might have saved, but the pampetro redoubled its efforts, pressed her down still further, and still more sacks broke away, and every sack gone meant a lessened resistance on the part of the main bulk of the cargo. Five degrees more of list and the entire mass took charge, thundered down to the lee side, and the ship slowly careened right on her side. An attempt was made to cut away the masts.

TRACHEROUS SOUTHERLY BUSTERS. But this ship's masts were steel, her rigging was wire, held to her deck by steel rigging screws. The axes would never sever the steel, and before the screws could be wrenched free the work was done. Only at the last moment were the crew enabled to throw over a boat and escape with their bare lives.

Similarly, southerly busters are treacherous things. They occur off the Australian coasts and come along with most alarming suddenness, generally from a nearly opposite quarter to that from which the customary wind is blowing.

I remember my first experience of a southerly buster. It was a glorious day; the ship was sailing free from a fresh, crisp breeze that barely lifted the waves into foam. Working on deck I saw the man at the wheel making motions to me to give a hand with the helm; I ran to his assistance, but before I could touch a spoke the buster was on us. I had one glance of the wave-tops, swept clean off as if by a gigantic roar, then the ship was over on her side, cracking furiously aloft. She had been caught flat aback, the sails were flattened against the mast, and she was listing over to what had been the weather side a few moments before. Then a solid sea broke over her as she lay there; it swept away everything that was movable and roamed on.

For ten long minutes not one of us but thought the signal had settled us completely; and if it had not been for the fact that the helmsman had looked ahead and noticed the wave-tops cut off by the buster, and had got his helm partly up in time, we might never have seen another day.

PANDEMONIUM IN HARBOR. The screaming typhoons of the China seas are terrific in their danger, ships are blown all whither at once, their sails are ripped clean out of the ropes, and the yards thunder after them; the masts unable to bear the awful pressure, fall like snapped carrots; and so, unable to heave to or to run before the storm, the unfortunate ship is often simply swamped by the seas that follow after her and break over her stern. When a typhoon strikes a harbor full of anchored shipping the scene simply becomes pandemonium. The stoutest anchor cables cannot stand the strain; anchors are dragged from their holdings, and the helpless craft—for a ship in port is usually very helpless—are either driven one on top of another and so crushed in to their doom, or they are taken up in the arms of the wind, and cast ashore, like toys, on sand-bank or reef, bilged or wrecked, and it is only a mere chance if a single soul survives.

But apart from storms there are endless other dangers. Two of the derelicts, both of which are to be encountered in most of the well-known seas. And neither iceberg nor derelict carries life.

There used to be an iceberg afloat in the Atlantic which carried on its base an entire liner, which had run up the shelving lee as if up a regular ship, and remained there whilst the berg slowly melted and rose higher in the water, until there you had the forty feet above water, apparently unharmed, and yet it was easier to reach the moon down out of the sky than bring her back to her native element until the course of time made the iceberg melt still more, and then the sea poured in through the rent bottom and the liner went to join the host of arrivals in the Port of Misadings Ship.

Derelicts, again, who could guard against them? They lurk unseen, hardly beneath the water, perhaps just able to float, invisible to the keenest eye on a dark night, but sinister always. And whilst speaking of derelicts a case that is peculiar crops up in the writer's mind. A large American schooner turned turtle in a squall that is another danger in these days of great sail across—her masts broke off short, and she went bottom up. The majority of her crew were on deck, these were swept away and drowned.

KEPT Afloat BY AIR. But four poor men were at work in the hold, and these remained alive. They had no means of escape, but the ship had carried a cargo of grain at no very distant date, and all it remained in odd corners. The air in the ship's hold kept her from sinking, the water could not penetrate a certain distance through the hatch and keel. These men had a sufficiency of air and food, and they had no desire to end their days in black darkness. They thundered constantly on the wooden bottom of the ship, but obtained no answer, and then, realizing the need for displaying some slight sign of their plight, for most ships would give a derelict such as a wide berth, they resolved to cut through the ship's bottom to the open air. They had to cut through solid oak some twelve inches or more in thickness, and their did it.

DEVOURING FIRE. Fire, of course, is a ghastly danger, and the annals of the sea teem with cases where the bravest men have perished through the want of something appalling in the case of a ship afloat, especially when a storm rages over-side.

One remarkable case of a fire at sea here comes to mind. It was a German ship this time, laden with saltpetre homeward bound. Saltpetre is not particularly deadly when treated with proper care, but once it does get a light nothing can stop it. This ship fell under the ban of a thunderstorm, a flash of lightning struck her; the fluid travelled down a mast into the hold, and in another moment she was on fire. The nitre burned like gunpowder; it was impossible to stop it. The decks caved in, the flames shot up about the masts and licked the sails away one by one. The crew, realizing their incompetence, abandoned ship without a moment's hesitation, and the vessel tore on, a glowing ship of fire, until finally the masts crashed down, boring holes in the heated bottom. There was a vast plunge, and the work was done.

LABOR MEN ANGRY. QUEBEC, May 12.—The private bills committee of the legislative council spent two hours this morning listening to the representations of the Montreal Trades and Labor Congress as to why the property qualification for aldermen in Montreal should be struck out. At the afternoon session of the committee the clause was retained without a dissenting vote. To say that the labor men are angry is expressing it mildly.

DECLARES NEGRO PASTOR "HONEYFUGLED" RIGHTEOUS. General Grant Stevens' Feelings Were Hurt by His Arrest on Charge of Disturbing Meeting.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Was it the devil, Old Nick, disguised in a long-tailed frock coat and shiny top hat, Satan in black face, who broke up the meeting in the Mount Olivet Negro Baptist church on a Sunday in February, 1908, or did General Grant Stevens have something to do with the row in church that sent a good part of the congregation to the West Forty-seventh street station house? That was a question which a jury in the City Court took so long to consider this evening that Judge Donnelly got tired of waiting and went home, after notifying the twelve to send in a sealed verdict. At any rate, Pastor Matthew W. Gilbert and his flock, many of whom appeared in their best dress today, will know tomorrow whether they will have to pay for causing General Grant Stevens to be arrested, or whether Brother Stevens tinkered with the law.

It was all very much mixed up, the rights and wrongs of the case. As presented by the witnesses, Brother Gilbert had been honeyfugled the righteously, while counsel for the pastor and the two trustees, James Edward Taylor and J. B. Wood, said that General Grant Stevens was the ringleader in singing down the pastor.

TROUBLE OF LONG STANDING. It is a matter that has been agitating the old-line negro Baptists that live around Seventh avenue and Fifty-third street, where the Mount Olivet church is located, for sixteen months. It started in November, 1907, when Pastor Gilbert resigned because he didn't like some things that had been said by members of a faction, but the majority decided to stand by Pastor Gilbert, and they wouldn't let him resign.

On that Sunday in February, 1908, when the congregation met for worship, there were signs of coming trouble, and Pastor Gilbert had asked the West Forty-seventh street police to have a man on hand. Pastor Gilbert went into the pulpit and opened his mouth to speak, but fifty or fifty-five policemen came to sing hymns.

Policeman Wagner took a look at the recalcitrants and decided they were too many for him, so he sent in a call for the reserves. When the reinforcements came they gathered in, after a lot of confusion and shuffling and shouting, many who had been singing loudest, but somehow General Grant Stevens was overlooked and the congregation met for worship.

Pastor Gilbert said that General Stevens beat it out of a back door when the row got hot, but the general turned up in the station house, "right in the maw of the law, your Honor," said the general lawyer, and was arrested at the request of Trustees Taylor and Wood. There was a great to do that morning, but the case against Stevens and others was dismissed by a magistrate.

But the general's feelings had suffered. Great mental anguish and tribulation of souls, pangs of humiliation and flashes of just rage rent the general's bosom, according to counsel, and he went to law to get square. He sued Pastor Gilbert and Trustees Taylor and Wood for $2,500 apiece for false arrest and malicious prosecution.

"And what, I ask you learned gentlemen," said the lawyer, "was this man doing in the maw of the law, in the very teeth of the police, if he had been guilty of wrongdoing? Are you peeps going to let this preacher honeyfuge and bamboozle you and jump on an offending worshipper? The whole question was that the row wanted the filthy lucre. Think of it, a minister of the Gospel wanting filthy lucre! Is that the spirit of the Master?"

But Pastor Gilbert's lawyer contended dryly that Brother Stevens had been foremost in singing down his priest. There had been a conspiracy, deep-dyed and secret, to break up the meeting. Judge Donnelly charged the jury that their principal business must be to settle in their own minds whether Policeman Wagner was telling the truth when he said that he was arrested and saw Brother General Grant Stevens leading the chorus of dissension.

Maybe the end is not yet, whatever verdict the jury brings in. Pastor Gilbert insisted that he was fighting for a principle, while Brother Stevens said that he was representing all mankind in fighting against malicious prosecution.

PARIS REJECTS THE KING'S FASHION. Beau Brummels of All Nations Seen With Side Trousers at the Races.

PARIS, May 12.—It is worthy of remark that till now not a trousers leg in Paris, so far as is known, has adopted the side creases noted in King Edward's while he was in Paris. Sunday races afforded an unsurpassed field of observation, attended as they were by the Beau Brummels and Comte d'Orsay's of all nationalities. Fashionably ironed creases were aplenty but without exception they were all, as heretofore, fore and aft.

"Are all the people really going to strike?" inquired a woman this afternoon as she took tea on the terrace outside "Les Cent Portraits." If they do I shall believe it is simply to annoy us. We reached Paris the day before the former strike, then going to Constantinople. We were no sooner there than the Turks overruled. Now returning we seem to have jumped from the frying pan into the fire. I want to go home.

The opinion of cosmopolitan society as to whether or not the threatened strike will take place appears to be about equally divided, perhaps with a slight leaning toward the likelihood of a strike. Nobody seems to care particularly one way or the other.

Quits as much, if not more, interest is taken in the recent started rumor that King Edward will visit Cauteira before the summer is out, and the probable consequences should the rumor prove well founded.

Appropos of summer resorts, an American woman, remarkably good looking and apparently in the very best of health, had been at a table when her husband joined her. As he took a seat she greeted him with:

"X says I've got the gout and must go to Aix, Vichy or some other old place for the cure." Thereupon, without turning a hair, the man enunciated quietly the following:—"People nowadays are doctor ridden. They used to be priest ridden. Formerly they couldn't live unless they went to church and had the priest's advice. Now they can't live without consultation with a doctor. If I were to begin life again I would be a fashionable physician." (With apologies to both, whose little dialogue could not but be overheard.)

Out of sixty-eight people in the restaurant at the time forty-nine were unmistakably Americans and six just as unmistakably British, which shows that this year's immigration of Uncle Sam's charges is large.

APPRECIATION NEEDED. Hostess (gushingly): The guests appreciated your playing of the nocturne very much. Your praises were in everyone's mouth. Musician (bitterly): Ah? While at the piano I heard them talking, but had no idea what it was about.

PORT RICANS DO NOT LIKE TAFT'S MESSAGE

Next he broke the news to the captain that he himself in his capacity of aldermanic critic of the ferry service intended to show the wondering populace just what could be done with a ferry boat when it was handled right. Taking the wheel from the hands of the captain, who is supposed to have been too dazed to protest, he pointed the bow of the craft straight for the east side ferry docks and gave the signal for full speed ahead. There was no jockeying with the currents in his program. He knew the action that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points and he intended to take it. He kept the boat pointed for the docks all right, the only difficulty was that the boat was not going in that direction.

SOLD FAKE CHINA TO A CHILDISH OLD MAN

Famous Case in London Ended, When Dealer Was Ordered to Pay Damages and Costs of $55,000. LONDON, May 13.—The sensational "spurious China" case came to a sudden termination this morning with the handing down of a verdict against a China dealer named Arthur Ellis for damages and costs aggregating $55,000. This case developed when the executor of the estate of the late G. J. Dickins, founder of the dry goods firm of Dickins & Jones, sued Ellis on the allegation that while Mr. Dickins was suffering from senile decay Ellis palmed off on him spurious modern Chinese wares for Dresden ware alleged to be years old.

THE WORLD'S COMMERCE

WASHINGTON, May 13.—A new record for the international commerce of the world was established in 1933 according to the statistical abstract of the United States prepared by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor. This abstract puts the total exports of the various countries and colonies of the world in that year at $14,000,000,000 and the imports at $16,000,000,000. Ten countries contributed more than two-thirds of the total. On the export side the United Kingdom headed the list with $2,073,000,000, the United States coming next with $1,835,000,000; Germany next with $1,625,000,000, and France fourth with $1,080,000,000. On the import side the United Kingdom again headed the list with $2,314,000,000; Germany second with $2,025,000,000; France third with $1,910,000,000 and the United States fourth with $1,814,000,000. Practically two-thirds of this total of international trade is accredited to Europe. In the year under consideration Canada took 88 per cent. of her imports from the United States.

LIVELY BREEZE SENDS THE HATS FLYING

St. John looked like a training camp for a bunch of Marathon runners and sprinters this morning. There were few citizens who escaped having an exciting race with their hats, with which the breeze was endeavoring to have a little fun. The breeze came from the northeast, and while the observatory only recorded a speed of 38 miles an hour it seemed as if it was that to the man whose hat got a half block start of him on his way down town. The most disastrous feature of the day was occasioned by the immense clouds of dust and silt which were blown around the streets by the gale.

The perjury case at St. Andrews came to an end last evening with a verdict of guilty against the accused, Robert McDuire. Judge Landry deferred sentence until June 1st, when he had an opportunity to look into the objections raised by the prisoner's counsel with respect to the prisoner's raising evidence in the case. McDuire took the stand himself, and reiterated the accusations he had made. He had started out of Peru with a heavy train of coaches and could not remember having left them anywhere. Dalhousie, the night operator, immediately got into communication with the train dispatcher at Peru, who said the coaches had left Peru all right with the train that was just leaving Logansport and was halted and the trainmaster ordered Beckley to back up and hunt the missing cars. At a meeting of the Board of Health held last evening it was decided that the inspectors would start on their annual visitation on Monday next. A number of other matters were discussed and Secretary Burs instructed to write to the Commissioner of Agriculture and to take action in regard to the inspection of dairies. An Italian was drowned three miles below Plaster Rock yesterday afternoon. He had taken some men across the river in a boat and was returning when the boat suddenly overturned and sent down. The man did not rise to the surface. He had a dog in the boat with him which swam ashore. The man's body has not been recovered. Last evening during the delivery of a lecture in St. Columba's Presbyterian Church, Fairville, the church lights went out as did the street lights and Fairville was in darkness. Oil lamps were supplied and Miss E. Pidgeon, the lecturer, continued her description of a recent trip through England, Scotland and Ireland. A main fuse burning out was the cause of the lights going out. Last evening Murray Kenneth, the four and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. McDonald, died as the result of scalds received last Monday. It was wash day and some boiling water had been poured into a tub. The little boy fell on a chair into the tub and was terribly scalded. Dr. Bishop did everything possible to save the life but in vain. The steamer Amelia, recently arrived at Fairville via South Shore ports, arrived at Fairville yesterday with several inches of water in her hold. Captain Wrayton was slinging his course towards Lockeport about 10 o'clock at night when he ran on the dangerous ledge of Gull Rock Light. The steamer was going eight miles an hour and the shock was terrific, many of the stowaways were hurled from their bunks. Part of the crew thought the steamer would sink and launched the boats and rowed for their lives. The boat was with great difficulty pulled out of the water and the steamer was forced to go in the stobolow and keep up steam. The Amelia will lay up one trip and go on the marine slip today for repairs.

At the conclusion of yesterday of the Endin trial Samuel Adams, alias Shaw, and who is known under other names, was brought into court and received sentence. Adams made an eloquent address. He brought out that his first incarceration was unjust but was the result of having punished too severely a patient in the Halifax Hospital when he was a ward keeper. He said he did not dread the confinement in Dorchester, but it was the associations, and he would rather die than spend any more time in penitentiary, as it would destroy the last vestige of manhood. Judge McLeod gave Adams a chance and allowed him to go on suspended sentence.

FRESHET IS UP TO LAST YEAR'S MARK Warmer Weather Will Probably Make It a Record Breaker.

The river has risen rapidly at In-diantown and this morning was well up to the mark set by the freshet during the past few years.

With warmer weather promised by the meteorological bureau it is expected there will be a further rise. If this is the case the high water mark will be farther up than it has been for a number of years.

A despatch from Fredericton this morning said:—

"The river rose over another foot here last night, but for the past four or five hours has remained stationary. Unless a warm rain sets in, it is not probable the water will come up much higher."
