JOHN PRODGER IDENTIFIED BY HIS VICTIM MISS FRANK "THAT'S THE MAN," SHE SAYS

Photograph Shown Her by The Advertiser Was First Identified—Later the Prisoner Was Brought Before Her and Identification Was Complete.

PRISONER DID NOT SAY A WORD

Grew Extremely Nervous When the Woman Pointed to Him—Aged Lady Showed No Hesitation Whatever, But Identified Him on the Spot.

Miss Elizabeth Frank positively identified a photograph of John Prodger, shown her by an Advertiser reporter this afternoon, as the man who on Tuesday afternoon made a most brutal attempt to murder her.

When The Advertiser man was taken to the sick room, Miss Frank raised herself slowly in her bed, and, after adjusting her glasses, looked carefully at the picture for about a quarter of a minute.

"That's the man," she said without the slightest note of hesitation. "I remember the face perfectly, and particularly the expression about the mouth."

Again she looked the picture over, and again she said: "That's him. He was very broad across the shoulders, and had curly hair."

The effort of sitting up so long proved wearisome to Miss Frank, and she lay down again, and removed her glasses. She then asked her sister, Mrs. Rudd, to look at the picture, and when she had done so, said again most positively: "That is the man."

Wearied by the exertion of sitting up and of talking so much, Mrs. Frank then closed her eyes.

Mrs. Rudd has been in constant attendance upon her sister since yesterday.

NOT SO WELL TODAY. Miss Frank was not so well this morning, and her condition is still very serious.

Her head is wrapped up in immense bandages, and she suffers considerably at times.

Shortly after the visit of The Advertiser, John Prodger was taken over to the Frank house by Detective Egelton and Down, Dr. George Wilson was also there. The bedroom was made as light as possible, and Prodger was brought in.

PRISONER EXCITED. He was excited and was extremely nervous.

Miss Frank raised herself, and looked him over carefully, and then said: "That's the man."

"No, I'm not," shouted Prodger, angrily. "You're mistaken."

Prodger became very nervous, and Miss Frank repeated her statement that he was the man who shot her.

He was then taken away, and taken back to the jail. The prisoner said nothing on the way back.

POLICE ARE CERTAIN. Chief Williams stated to The Advertiser this afternoon that the police are absolutely certain that they have the right man.

"We were sure before he was seen by Miss Frank," said the chief, "and now that she has identified him positively, there can be no doubt about it."

Chief Williams stated that Mrs. Kennedy had told Detective Thomas Nickle that when Prodger came in on Tuesday evening, he told her his hat had blown under an automobile, and that was why he was wearing an other.

To The Advertiser last night, Mrs. Kennedy said Prodger told her his hat had been run over by a street car on Adelaide street.

MAY BE MURDER CHARGE. Should Miss Frank, the victim of the shooting, succumb to her injuries within the year, the perpetrator can be tried on a charge of murder.

There has been some discussion around the city regarding the time limit in such cases, but the law for years has stipulated that a death as the result of injuries inflicted within a year can be avenged with the death penalty.

It will be remembered that at the time of the murder of Harry Phair, the detective (who died within six weeks), by Burke and Wilson, the charge against the pair was murder, but when the aged William Clark was beaten in his home where he lived alone in the North End some twelve years ago, his death resulted a few days over the year, and a charge of manslaughter was laid against Prodger and McInnis, who served long terms each.

The murder of Clark was committed under similar circumstances to the attack on Miss Frank.

The old fellow lived alone and was reputed to be worth considerable money. He was attacked at his home by two men, and was brutally beaten by the thugs, who demanded money.

PRODGER A MAN OF FEW WORDS BUT VERY BAD MAN TO HANDLE

Comes of Family Noted for Physical Strength—Was Quiet When Sober and Bothered No One—Is Said To Be a Maniac When Drunk.

John Prodger, the man arrested by the police on suspicion of being the perpetrator of the shooting, is a member of a family noted for their physical strength.

As a boy he went to school at the old Waterloo street and Horton street schools. Both institutions have since disappeared, Chalmers Church occupying the site of the former, and Brenner's cigar factory the other.

Prodger's father, the late John Prodger, was a very respectable man, and the mother is still living in the city with her daughter.

SOME HISTORY. The father of the family was a member of the Twenty-third Welsh Fusiliers, which regiment was wrecked on Lake Erie about 50 years ago, and nearly all were drowned. Prodger was a survivor.

He came to London from Port Stanley, and for over 40 years worked on the Great Western and Grand Trunk Railways.

He was a man of powerful physique, but known as one who minded his own business, and a good neighbor. In the half-century he lived on Ottawa avenue, he was never known to be in trouble, and no person cared to trouble him.

The boys grew up a strong sturdy family, and took to railroading for the most part.

They would be the last men in any crowd to start a fight, and certainly the last men to be on the ground when it ended.

They gave offence to no one, but when drunk, if interfered with, were holy terrors.

Worked on G. T. R. "Jack" Prodger, as he was called in the south end, worked for years on the G. T. R. as a blacksmith's helper.

For some time he was away in the United States, and then he went back to the road. Later he was a stoker at the London Asylum for the Insane.

Prodger had been in numerous fights, not very often of his "picking," but he always came out on top.

When he was drinking, he apparently became a maniac, and knew nothing of what he was doing.

BRITISH COMMERCE. London, April 7.—The March statement of the board of trade shows increases of $30,534,500 in imports, and $12,134,000 in exports. The principal increases in imports were in foodstuffs, and raw material, and in exports in manufactured goods.

MISS FRANK STILL IN DANGER SUFFERS GREATLY FROM SHOCK

Sedatives Have Been Administered Constantly by Dr. Geo. H. Wilson, Who Is in Attendance—When She Is a Little Stronger John Prodger Will Be Taken Over for Identification.

Miss Frank, the victim of Tuesday afternoon's shooting affray, is in much the same condition, and has been sleeping quietly ever since yesterday afternoon. She was in such a condition from shock that for some hours it was almost impossible to keep her quiet.

At times she became quite excited, and wished to get up and walk about, and it was only with the greatest difficulty that she was kept in bed.

Sedatives Administered. Dr. George Wilson, who is in attendance, administered sedatives, and ever since early yesterday afternoon Miss Frank has been sleeping quietly. Dr. Wilson states that Miss Frank is doing well, but is not out of danger, as complications may develop at any time. As soon as Miss Frank is strong enough the police will take Prodger over to the house and see if she can identify him.

PRODGER REMANDED A WEEK APPEARED COOL IN COURT

Charge Read to Him That He Attempted to Murder Miss Elizabeth Frank—Prisoner Had No Lawyer—A Man of Remarkable Appearance in the Cage—Chief Feels Sure He Is the Man Who Did the Shooting.

John Prodger appeared before Magistrate Love at the police court this morning, and as the prisoner stood up when his name was called, the magistrate read to him an information, stating that he was charged with shooting with intent to kill, and did shoot Miss Elizabeth Frank at her home on Tuesday afternoon.

Prodger was unrepresented, and Crown Attorney McKillop, who will conduct the prosecution, stated that he was not ready to go on and asked for an adjournment until April 14. This was granted.

Neatly Dressed. Prodger was neatly dressed in a brown suit and wore a brown tie.

On the whole, he took matters quietly, but his eyes roved about the room unceasingly as he encountered the eager gaze of the large crowd in the spectators' box.

When his name was called he rose and leaned against the bars of the cage and gripped them tightly.

His general appearance is one that would not easily be forgotten. His hair, which is tinged with gray, is inclined to be curly. The face is a strong and heavy one, with a determined jaw.

As quickly as possible Prodger got out of the court room and was led away to his cell.

The weather has become much cooler in Ontario.

In the West cool conditions prevail generally.

The police state that he has made no further statement.

Chief Williams commented to The Advertiser on Prodger's appearance, particularly his curly hair.

Description Tallies. "The first item in the description by Miss Frank was that her assailant was a man with thick curly hair, and that he had a bald spot. This corresponds exactly with Prodger, although he has apparently read about the bald spot in the papers, for he has his hair combed over it today."

"He also, in all probability, noted what the papers had to say about the trousers worn by the man who was seen running away being torn, and took the hint and destroyed them. He probably burned them. We have information that Prodger was drinking nearly all morning and part of the afternoon of Tuesday. We have, I am certain, a very strong case against him."

Miss Frank's Condition. The detectives had an interview with Miss Frank yesterday, but decline to make any statement as to what she said.

Dr. Wilson saw Miss Frank yesterday morning and said that she was in excellent spirits.

"The man must have taken me for a dog without any muzzle on," she said jokingly, "and shot me."

BOY THROWN FROM LOAD HAD HIS WRIST BROKEN

Stephen Dann, of Bryanston, Met With Painful Accident Today.

While driving on a load of hay on King street this morning, Stephen Dann, son of George Dann of Bryanston, was thrown off the load, and his wrist was broken. He was otherwise unharmed, but will recover very shortly.

Young Dann with his cousin, George Dann, were driving along King street, and when opposite the central fire station the front wheel of the wagon came off, upsetting the load. Stephen Dann fell over the front end, and in putting out his arm to break the fall, the wrist snapped. Frie Chief Aitken drove the lad to Dr. Moore's office, where his injuries were dressed. George Dann slid off the load and was uninjured.

Interesting Story of the Whereabouts of the Officers and Men Who Helped Suppress Riel's Rising Twenty-Five Years Ago—Big Banquet Will Be Held at the Tecumseh Tonight.

A quarter of a century ago today the Seventh Regiment (then battalion) departed for the Northwest to take part in the quelling of the Riel rising in that country.

Tonight the veterans will celebrate the occasion by a reunion and banquet at the Tecumseh House. There will be visitors from all parts of the country, and it is expected that fully 70 veterans will take part in the exercises today.

Already the Boys of the Old Brigade are spinning yarns and recounting experiences of the olden times.

The menu card for the banquet has been so arranged that it will recall many of the leading incidents in the journey to the west, and stories of great and gay will be told of London's soldiers.

"Auld Lang Syne." It will be a pleasant affair, although there is a sad side to the reunion. There are many pleasant memories, and the boys who are gone will be given their tributes along with the living.

A comparatively large number of the officers have passed to the Great Beyond.

Major McMillan, paymaster of the regiment, afterwards judge at Cayuga, is among the number.

Chaplain Ball, father of Police Magistrate Ball, of Woodstock, is also dead, and the kindly advice of the veteran minister will be greatly missed.

Quartermaster-Sergt. J. B. Smythe, known of later years more familiarly as Squire Smythe, has passed away.

Lieut. Charles Cox has also gone, and Lieut. Payne, afterwards Col. Payne, Toronto, died some years ago.

Col. Williams in the West. Of the other officers, Col. Williams, senior in command, is at Outlook, Saskatchewan, attached to the Mounted Rifles, and is apparently good for many years' service.

Col. A. M. Smith is in the wholesale grocery business in London, and retains an active interest in affairs military in this district.

Col. Gartschore is also in the city, manager of the McClary Manufacturing Company, and is still proclaimed by

FRANK HOME HAS BEEN TARGET FOR ATTACKS OF BURGLARS

Old Story of Thirty Years Ago Brought to Light—Attempt Was Made to Rob the House When Three Girls Were Left There Alone.

Old residents of the neighborhood point out that this is not the first time that an attempt was made to rob the Frank home, on the Wellington road.

About thirty years ago, the three girls, Libby, Ann and Jane, were alone in the house.

It appears that all the men were away on business, and that there was a considerable amount of money in the possession of the ladies, who were intending to bank it the next day.

The girls were aroused shortly after midnight by someone trying to get in the front door. Then, attempts were made to enter the windows.

A Trying Time. Furniture was piled against every window and door, and the front door, in addition, was secured by a bar.

For hours the burglars worked away persistently, and took no notice of the screams and shouts of the women.

Finally the marauders attempted to pull away the bricks at the side of the door, so as to remove the big bar.

It was then that one of the girls, located an old double-barrelled gun, and fired it off. Some neighbors heard the report, and the screams of the women, and after a siege of several hours the frightened females were relieved.

TAYLOR--NOXELL

A Quiet But Pretty Wedding at Askin Street Methodist Church.

A quiet wedding took place at the parsonage of Askin Street Methodist Church, when Miss Minerva Noxell, second youngest daughter of Mrs. E. Noxell, of Dundas avenue, was united in marriage to Mr. Patterson R. Taylor, of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, the ceremony being performed by Rev. A. K. Birks. The happy couple left on the evening train for Detroit, Saginaw and other western points, the bride wearing a blue broadcloth suit, with hat to match. The bride and groom were the recipients of many useful and valuable gifts, among them being a beautiful silver pudding dish and jardiniere from the Helena Costume Company, where the bride was employed, and a handsome urn and royal Hampton mantle ornament from the employees of the skirt department. CATHOLIC RECORD ON ST. JAMES' CHURCH

Local Organ of Church Refers to Recent Fireworks at Vestry Meeting.

The Catholic Record says: It is customary for the Anglicans to hold annual meetings of their various churches on Easter Monday to present a financial report and consider matters of interest. One of these meetings was held in connection with St. James' Church in South London. Our friend, Dean Davis, is the rector of this church—a gentleman in every respect, and one who takes a higher view of church government than most of his colleagues. We do not pretend that vestry meetings are any of our business. The report of St. James' vestry meeting was stormy. But notwithstanding the strong language which without consideration was hurled at the rector, and notwithstanding the feeling which gossip had evidently nurtured, Dean Davis maintained his position with firmness and dignity. When he came to quote the canon law to his people, democracy rose up to protest. "The canon law"—started the dean. "That is the Church of England every time," came as a hot report. "Are we men or mice? The lady know and the clergy know that the enforcement of it at times is an injury. Here is this church to the west of us with 800 to 1,000 people at the evening service. The people there have actually a say in their own affairs. They are a democratic people. The people of this country are democratic, and they will not be sat upon. Democracy has not much to do with it, nor did Christ establish the church with the intention of having everybody manage it. Such an argument may be advanced in an Anglican vestry. There are vestries where canon law is real and where authority does not directly concern us, we are confident that many who took part will feel that a mistake was made in becoming so heated and in allowing the proceedings to get into print. One of the fallacies due to these meetings is the idea that a minister is a paid servant. With Catholics it is the opposite. The obligation devolves upon people, and has its source and sanction in the general laws of the church. Disputes between a priest and his people are referred to the bishop, who has full authority.

ALD. RICHTER ON CITY ASSESSMENT

Does Not Believe It Is Done in the Proper Way at the Present Time.

SOME SUGGESTIONS MADE

Finance Committee Failed to Reduce the Tax Rate at a Meeting Held Last Evening.

The finance committee of the city council made another attempt last evening to reduce the expenditure, for which the council is responsible, in order to bring down the tax rate, but after a couple of hours' work they failed to reduce it.

Incidentally the present method of assessment was also discussed, and Ald. J. G. Richter made plain his views on the question.

He divided assessable property into three classes—manufacturing, residence, and offices, stores, theatres, etc.

He took the position that the land should be assessed to about its reasonable value. At the present time he did not consider, in all cases, that the land was properly assessed.

No matter where the land was situated, vacant or improved, it should be taxed a reasonable amount.

Manufacturers' Assessment.

Manufacturers should be assessed at, say, 50 per cent of the reasonable assessment on the land. This was due to the fact that while a manufacturing plant may cost considerable, it might not be worth nearly that amount, if there was a sale, or anything of that nature.

Residences should be assessed two-thirds of their value, plus the reasonable view of the land. The smaller houses in the city were taxed to the limit now, he thought, but there was some discrepancy in the case of better houses.

Offices, stores, theatres, and the like should be assessed to about its reasonable value, but not more than 75 per cent of their value.

"If that were done, the assessment would be increased $2,000,000," said Ald. Richter. "That would do much to assist us in keeping the tax rate well within limits."

Ald. Stevenson's Position.

Ald. Stevenson also claimed that the assessment was not adequate.

Some houses were assessed now beyond all possibility of obtaining a reasonable return for the money invested.

This matter will be taken up by the finance committee, with the chairman of the other boards, and an attempt will be made to solve the problem.

Ald. Richter is of the opinion that a board of valuers should be appointed.

The estimates of the board of education were presented by Mr. W. W. Gammage, the chairman, was present, and explained them in detail. It was found impossible to reduce them any.

Mr. Thomas Gilman presented the library board estimates, but it was found that they could not be reduced. The same was true of the board of health estimates, presented by Mr. John Graham, the chairman.

Complimented Chairman.
Ald. Richter complimented the chairman on their desire to keep the expenditure within reasonable bounds.

Those present were: Ald. Richter, chairman; Ald. Underwood, Ald. Ecken, Ald. Stevenson, Ald. Treasurer Bell, City Auditor Jewell, W. W. Gammage, Thos. Gilman and John Graham.

"Jack Straw."
A very brilliant audience last evening witnessed the performance of "Jack Straw" by the members of the London Dramatic Club, at the Grand, and all voted the play cleverly presented, and the local amateurs were congratulated on the really clever acting shown during the presentation of the play.

A military tone was given the affair by the presence of a large number of officers in uniform, and the decorations, of which there were many. Practically every seat in the house was filled. There were also several box parties.

The performance was finished, and the acting clever. Each seemed particularly cast for his or her role.

The story concerns the adventures of Archibute Sebastian, of Pomerania. After a rather lively flirtation with a ballet dancer, the boy is banished from the country. He goes to England, and decides to roam the world inognito. He becomes an actor, and then a waiter. Here he becomes acquainted with Ambrose Holland, the Parker-Jenningses, a nouveau riche family, equipped with much money, and decidedly bad manners, had snubbed a friend of Holland's, and they determine to get even. Jack Straw, as Archibute Sebastian, was known as a waiter, and was induced to impersonate a scion of royalty at the Jenningses' garden party. When the denouement came, of course, they expected to be amply revenged on Mrs. Jennings. The bargain is struck, but Straw insists upon being taken as Sebastian, his real name. The garden party is a great success. Mrs. Jennings being particularly amiable to the archduke, so-called. Then she and the family are informed of the imposition, and a storm follows. The schemers desire Straw to withdraw from the performance.

Had gone far enough, but Straw had become infatuated with Miss Ethel Jennings, and desires to remain indefinitely.

There is a stormy scene, of course, but the revelation comes at last, and Sebastian, the real archduke, becomes engaged to Miss Ethel.

The bulk of the work of the play falls upon Miss Patti MacLaren, as Mrs. Parker-Jennings, and Dr. Pardee Buckle, as Jack Straw. Miss MacLaren was particularly good as the bad-mannered, ambitious Mrs. Jennings, and was extremely popular with the audience. She has scored many triumphs on the local stage, but it is doubtful if she ever appeared to better advantage than last evening.

Dr. Pardee Buckle, as Sebastian, was excellent. In every scene he was satisfactory in the role, although it must be admitted that as a lover he does not rise to the possibilities of the piece. However, he showed marked ability.

Stanley Meredith, as Vincent Parker-Jennings, was very natural in the role, and scored. Mr. Charles Hunt, Mr. Campbell, Richard, Mr. Weston, Beake and Mr. Alex. Powell did finely in their respective roles. Col. Hodgins, as the Ambassador, was natural and easy in the part. Miss Mary Love, as Miss Ethel Jennings, was winsome and engaging, while Miss Anita Hunt, Miss Meta Macbeth and Miss Dora Labatt left nothing to be desired in their parts.

The lady members of the company were presented after the first act with handsome bouquets of roses. Mr. C. E. Carrothers acted as instructor to the troupe, and the careful training of the company showed in the fine rendition of the play.

The proceeds will be devoted to the Children's Aid Society.

"Girl Question" Tonight.
A genuine novelty of "The Girl Question," the delightful musical play, by Hough and Adams, and music by Joseph E. Howard, which comes to the Grand tonight, is the musical type-writer number, which opens the third act. The chorus girls representing stenographers, are seated at machines, and as they operate the keys, chimes operated by electricity and placed all over the house, chime an accompaniment to the words of their song. The audience is always mystified at this number, and invariably demand a dozen encores.

"St. Elmo" on Saturday.
"St. Elmo" is to be presented here by a company of ability on Saturday, matinee and evening. A cordial reception is assured, for the reason that the book itself retains to a large degree its great popularity. The seat sale opened this morning, and a large crowd took advantage of the bargain matinee and evening prices.

LONDON, THURSDAY, APRIL 7.

A HOUSE DIVIDED.

The malady from which the Federal organization of the Conservative party is suffering are those which are supposed to afflict Governments, not Oppositions. We have been told on high authority that Governments are prone to accumulate barnacles, which ought to be treated with a more or less ferocious hand. According to a popular theory, the longer a Government is in office the more it is infested by parasites and the harder it becomes to shake them off. In this respect an Opposition is presumed to have an advantage. A period of exclusion from office is believed to be favorable to virtue. It affords a party an opportunity to bury the past, and get rid of individuals and influences that have helped to bury the party. It is looked upon as a form of the rest cure, during which a political organization may tune up its system.

This is what makes the present plight of the Conservative party so extraordinary. It has been out of office for fourteen years, but if we are to credit its candid friends, it has experienced none of the medicinal and rejuvenating effects of Opposition. These ought to be more pronounced with every year of exile, but time has only aggravated the trouble. Instead of dropping off, the barnacles grow more tenacious with age. The chief newspaper counsellor of the party, the Toronto News, urges the iron-hand penalty, but there is some doubt whether Mr. Borden carries a mailed fist under his velvet glove. Meanwhile the barnacles are offering something more than a passive resistance. The most conspicuous one, Mr. Foster, says he will not be removed by anything less than divine power. At the time of going to press, Mr. Monk was also standing pat. Messrs. Taylor, Blain, Sproule, Haggart, and the others who come under the News' classification of "remnants" will not be showed out of the front pew if they can help it. A touch of comedy is provided by the Toronto Mail and Empire, which protests that the Opposition is a happy family, or would be if the other Conservative newspapers would let it alone.

With one section of the Conservative press calling upon Mr. Borden for a house-cleaning, and with the "remnants" declining to aid in a process which would put them out of doors, the position of the leader of the Opposition is no sinecure. The job is not to Mr. Borden's liking, but unless he turns his house in order it is in danger of tumbling about its ears.

A CRYING NEED.

The Paris, Ont., Star-Transcript reports the arrival in that town of 22 "strolling female operatives" from England, engaged by the Pennmans, Limited, the leading Canadian woolen makers. The Star-Transcript adds:

"They were a well-mannered lot of young people and elicited much favorable comment. This is the first contingent, and Mr. Penn, who is in England soliciting help for the Pennman Company's Mills here, has been very successful so far in securing extra good help, and expects to send out upwards of 100 more girls."

The Pennmans, a great and progressive firm, would not send to England for operatives if Canadian labor of the same class were available. It is an other illustration of Ontario's backwardness in the matter of technical training. Canadian manufacturers and Canadian workers are suffering for want of these facilities. The former are compelled to search for skilled labor abroad and assume the risks and expense of bringing operatives to this country. Canadian labor is deprived of its fullest opportunities and prevented from rising to a higher stage of efficiency. In England, there is a great class of labor, especially in the textile trades, which possesses inherited skill and attitude. The sons and daughters follow in the father's footsteps, and get their industrial education in the factory and the home. These conditions do not prevail in Canada. The disappearance of the old apprenticeship system is another reason why Canadian industry should be reinforced by a system of technical training. Canadian workers are as intelligent and adaptable as any in the world, but they are not being given the opportunity to develop the highest skill, an opportunity enjoyed in nearly every industrial center in Europe, where the reward of labor is not so great as in this country. It is a question of national efficiency which Canadians cannot ignore. A start has been made in the Maritime Provinces, but the premier industrial province of Ontario is doing nothing.

MORE MISREPRESENTATION.

It transpires that Canada's submission to the United States was even more indefensible than was at first supposed. Inquiries made in the House of Commons yesterday elicited information which shows that Canada not only made the concessions which satisfied President Taft, but Canada had an emissary at Washington to open up negotiations. —London Free Press.

Nothing of the sort "transpired," Mr. Fielding distinctly asserted that no emissary had been sent to Washington by the Government. Editor Macdonald, of the Globe, to whom our contemporary refers, chanced to be in Washington on private business, without the knowledge of the Government. He met the President, as any visitor would have done if he had the opportunity, especially a journalist. Mr. Macdonald himself relates that as he was sitting in the gallery of the House of Representatives he received a note from President Taft requesting him to call again at the White House. During the interview the President asked him if he would take a message to Ottawa inviting Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding to meet him at Albany. Mr. Macdonald, of course, complied. The overtures, therefore, came not from the Canadian Government or any representative of Canada, but from the President of the United States himself.

The Free Press is not above misrepresenting the facts in its pitiable attempt to argue that Canada has been humiliated by the recent tariff settlement, which every sane Conservative newspaper in the country accepts and approves.

President Taft is not the only party leader with insurgents on his hands.

Will Mr. Borden have to announce that he comes to bury Foster, not to praise him?

According to Principal King, race suicide would not be so calamitous in India as in some other countries.

The Ontario Premier defends the Ontario Primer. It is just possible he doesn't know as much about it as the Ontario teachers who have to use it.

Punch pokes fun at Roosevelt and pictures him riding to Windsor in a taxicab. The humor of this will be less obvious in America than in England.

Two Pittsburg millionaires have confessed to bribing councillors. The curious thing about graft is that the more it is traced to its beginnings the higher up it goes.

Mr. Wilcox, M. P., describes the race meetings at Windsor as "social and sporting events." Some of the society they bring from across the river is the kind good Americans would be happy to permanently part with.

The Montreal correspondent of the Toronto World says the Ottawa Opposition would have done much better in Quebec in the last election if Hon. Bob Rogers had not carried the party funds off to fertilize the west. Does this Danse show explain the Opposition's good crop in Manitoba?

NOT THE SAME.

Elvira—And he said my beauty was intoxicating, did he?
Pauline—Well, he didn't put it just that way.
Elvira—Then what did he say?
Pauline—He said your face was enough to drive a man to drink.

THE EVENING PAPER.

[Ottawa Free Press.]
There's no time like the evening for reading the newspaper. The day's work is done. The time of leisure has arrived. The news is in a tentative food. The evening paper is read from top to bottom.

There is no street car circulation or waste paper basket circulation about the evening paper.

It goes to the home, and when it gets home it stays there. It is read by all the family.

The evening paper is the paper of the feminine readers—the great dispensers of the family income.

THE MILLINER.

[D. B. Van Buren.]
How doth the little milliner
Concoct each costly hat,
And gather shekels all the day,
Until your purse is flat.

How nobly she charges you
For ribbons by the mile,
To decorate confessions
In the best Parisian style.

Who ever knew her miss a chance
A gorgeous plume to fit
In just the proper spot to slope
The total up a bit.

And then with what sublime aplomb
She pens her little bill,
That states you on the pathway to
The poorhouse on the hill.

No doubt but old King Solomon
Thought of her when he spoke
About the marked rapidity
With which the fool goes broke.

So aptly doth the milliner
The Scriptures justify.
By parting in her wondrous way
The truths from the guy.

TRUE BROTHERHOOD.

[Hamilton Spectator.]
Thirty-five years ago a London man was injured in a building accident. He died yesterday. For the whole of the thirty-five years he had been bedridden, and during all that time was looked after by a fraternal society to which he belonged at the time of the accident. Thus does the spirit of true brotherhood show itself.

A CANDID DOCTOR.

[Youtia's Companion.]
Physicians and lawyers are sometimes charged with practicing profitable "cases" through months and perhaps years, that could have been disposed of in a few days or weeks. One medical man, who had been tempted to that kind of practice, was frank enough to take advantage of the impeachment and put the blame where it belonged. A lady who was very solicitous about her health. Every trifle made her uneasy, and the doctor was called immediately. The doctor was a skillful man, and consequently had a large practice. It was very disagreeable to him to be so often called away from his other cases for nothing, and he resolved to take an opportunity of letting the lady see this. One day the lady observed a red spot on her hand, and at once sent for the doctor. He came, looked at her hand and said:

"You did well to send for me early."
The lady looked alarmed and asked:
"Is it dangerous then?"
"Certainly not," replied the doctor.
"Tomorrow the spot would have disappeared, and I should have lost my fee for this visit."

TREASON TO THE FUTURE.

[Toronto Globe.]
The men who try to make party capital against the Government of Canada, and the tariff settlement with the United States are willing to mortgage the large future of this country for what they think would be a present-day party advantage. That is treason of the most indefensible sort. Even ordinary political sagacity condemns it. The members who interrupted Mr. Fielding with their irrelevant questions when he was making his statement to Parliament on this subject last week made manifest nothing but their own unfitness for dealing with large public matters of any kind.

TWILIGHT IN THE ALPS.

[Henry Van Dyke.]
I love the hour that comes, with dusky hair
And dewy feet, along the Alpine dells,
To lead the cattle forth. A thousand bells
Go chiming after her across the fair
Of sunset on the snowy mountain flane
And valleys darken, and the drowsy spells
Of peace are woven through the purple air.

Dear is the magic of this hour; she seems
To walk before the dark by falling rills,
And lends a sweeter song to hidden streams;
She opens all the doors of night, and fills
With moving bells the music of my dreams,
That wander far among the sleeping hills.

FASCINATION OF EGYPT.

[London Chronicle.]
Cairo, in Illinois, the scene of the latest lynching horrors, is the best known of the many United States towns named after the Egyptian city. There are at least eighteen of them. Egyptian place names for some reason have appeared strongly to American town names. We find eighteen Alexandrias also; Memphis scores eleven or more; Thebes two (though one or both, of course, might be in honor of the Theban gods). Nile three, and Egypt itself seven. Rosetta and Suez score one apiece. And there is one Khedive, though, curiously enough, not a single Pharaoh. Moreover, there are two lakes, a bayou and a mountain group.

FIXED RATIO.

[Puck.]
Actor on the road—I suppose you have no idea what the size of our house will be tonight. It varies, doesn't it?
Natives—Well, you generally tell party accurately by dividing the number of people in the company by two.

OLDEST BANK NOTES.

At the Bank of England privileged visitors are sometimes shown the oldest known bank note, for £55, with the date "1813 Xber 1891." The memorandum written across the note above that payment was made by three instalments. The bank notes of that period were printed from engraved plates, blank spaces being left for the date, the signature, the number and the amount. The watermark can be clearly seen, and in texture and general appearance the notes were very similar to those of today.

ELOPING UP TO DATE.

[Motor Record.]
The coastless man puts a careless arm round the waist of the lattest girl, and she over the road, and the road is a horseless wagon they whirl. Like a leaden bullet from hammerless gun. By smokeless powder driven,
They do to taste the speechless joys
By endless union given.
The only luncheon his coyness pursues
Affords to them the means
Is a tasteless meal of homeless cod,
With a dish of cold sandwiches.
He smokes his old tobaccoless pipe
And laughs a mirthless laugh,
When party tries to coax her back
By wireless telegraph.

THINKS TAFT WAS WORSTED.

[Buffalo News.]
President Taft has made his compact with the Canadian Government, in which he grants minimum tariff rates and gets in return concessions on oils and drugs, lime, sausage casings, fruits, watch movements, dressed linens and some other things, but doesn't get an equivalent.

He smokes his old tobaccoless pipe and laughs a mirthless laugh, when party tries to coax her back by wireless telegraph.

reference to the exportation of pulpwood from Canada to the United States. Canada still proposes to prohibit the exportation of the raw material for making paper, to the great injury of many interests in the United States, including all the big newspapers. The present arrangement is most unjust to the newspapers, for it leaves them at the mercy of the paper trust here, and this should have been one of the strongest points of the agreement. If the president thinks the public will be served by this jug-handled arrangement the News believes he is mistaken.

WHITE LEAD THIEF GIVEN THREE MONTHS

Chris. Haggner Was Yesterday Sentenced by His Honor Judge Macbeth.

Christopher Haggner was found guilty yesterday by Judge Macbeth of stealing 400 pounds of white lead from Cowan & Co. and John E. Young, and was sentenced to three months in the Central Prison, with the recommendation that he be deported afterwards. Letters have been received from Haggner's home in Lansing, Mich., giving him a good character, but Judge Macbeth contended his actions were too strongly as a deliberately planned theft.

TOO MUCH DELICACY LITTLE COMMON SENSE

How Mr. Borden Has Botched Things in Quebec According to Opposition Organ.

The Toronto World (Conservative), yesterday published the following from its Montreal correspondent:

Every good Conservative in this province would be delighted if the serious feeling of discontent over the state of affairs at Ottawa were confined to a few newspaper offices, but unfortunately, this is not the case. At the last Federal election the powers that were decided that the better policy would be to drop Quebec altogether from calculations as to future party success, and this was the beginning of the discontent, although it cannot be said that R. L. Borden was wholly responsible for the blunder.

Those who have watched the assertiveness of Mr. Foster, for instance, the amusing rivalry between Dr. Sproule and George Taylor, the competition between Messrs. Lancaster and Lennox on railway matters; the assumption of wisdom on postal matters by Mr. Armstrong, and the manner in which Messrs. Currie, Meighen, Middleton, O'Rourke, Burrell, and the rest vie with one another in proclaiming their superiority over the older Parliamentary hands, know the name that is being played and realize the difficulties of Mr. Borden's position.

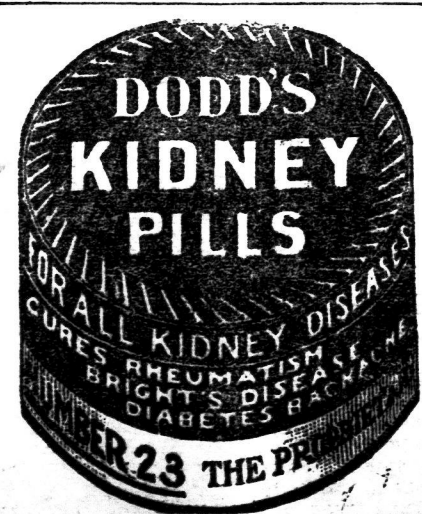

What should be done at the Conservative pow-wow to be held in June, if it is to be held then, is to muzzle the crew and give the capital a chance.

The Opposition ship has too many hands on board who think they know more than their master.

GODERICH MINISTER DIES AT THE CAPITAL

Rev. James Anderson, of Knox Church, Succumbs to an Attack of Grippe.

Ottawa, April 6.—Rev. James Anderson, pastor of Knox Church, Goderich, died here this morning.
He was to receive the honorary degree of D. D. from the Presbyterian College of Montreal, where he received his theological training.
He is survived by a family of five sons and one daughter, together with his wife. Before going to Goderich he was pastor at Whitechurch, and was for some time assistant of the late Rev. Mr. Ure in the pastorate of Knox Church.
Grip was the cause of his death.

"Marrying?" she said, suddenly. "But—why should I marry? Aren't we well enough off as we are?"

"Not quite. I'll never believe I've won you, sweetest woman on earth, until I've got you safe under my own roof."

"My father," she began hastily, "I shall not allow you to come further," she said. "I want to be alone for a little while, to think over this wonderful thing. And he was perforce compelled to take her at her word. But he watched her out of sight."

CHAPTER XII.

Lord Greatheart's answer.

Scroggs was aware of a strange weakness at the knees as he walked down the drive at Merrythought Hall the following morning, and more than once he felt a strange disposition to turn back and leave his avowed mission unfulfilled. It was a daring thing, he contemplated, this storming of a feudal stronghold, with an intention of taking from it its richest treasure. He pictured to himself the wrath and indignation of Lord Greatheart, the incredulity of his contemptuous stare, and he flushed and bit his lip, for no man likes to be treated with contempt, no matter what his station may be. And as he passed through the gates he saw himself as others would see him: as an adventurer, seeking for place and position, hoping that his wealth might buy him social standing in a county that so far had abhorred him. He was swiftly revising his standards. In his own world brain and business acumen had been the hall-mark of position, and he had stood high. His worshipping mother had praised him aloud and to his face, knowing that he could carry the corn of his commendation, and though he had treated her auditions with good-natured tolerance, some of them had found a resting-place in his mind, for no man can be fed on adoring comments and remain unaware forever of his own merits.

Now, however, he understood that all this was changed. He was about to stand before a tribunal that was as much biased against him as his previous tribunals had been biased in his favor. His antecedents would be inquired into closely, and his new position would be forgotten. He would be the man of business standing before the peer, and he would be thought of as a boy, as a boy, he turned into the high road, he wished that he had ordered his car, so that the initial plunge might be taken remembered that the once, as a boy, he had visited the dentist's, and the thought of the agonized waiting on the doorstep between the ringing of the doorbell and the turning of the handle came back to him with a curious similitude. He felt now as he had felt then—as if wild horses could not drag him a step further. Then he remembered that, once he had seated himself in the operating chair, a stony carelessness had held him, and he took heart of grace. After all, was only the initial plunge that counted. Presently the whole thing would be over and done with, and he would be the accepted lover of the woman of his choice.

It had not occurred to him that he might be turned away with contempt, and scorn from the door. He knew that his love lifted him up above himself, and that loved keyed his thoughts so high that the startling difference between his position and that of Marion Seymour was hardly apparent. He loved her—she loved him. Those two facts were enough for Ebenezer Scroggs. Whether they would be enough for Lord Greatheart he did not stop to contemplate.

"I don't just know how to begin the business," he ruminated, striding on freely. "It will be a bit of a plunge." His pace slackened considerably. "Her father will be difficult to tackle, there's no earthly doubt of that, but I've tackled problems before, and I shall have to tackle problems when the memory of today has faded clean away. How shall I begin it? Lord Greatheart, I have the honor to inform you that I love your daughter, and that without her life will be blank? No, that savours too much of a novel. Lord Greatheart, may I have your permission to pay my addresses to your daughter, whom I love with all the heart that is in me? Not much better. I wonder how men do begin these things? I suppose there are some fellows who would not hesitate to state the commencement to a proposal that they would over-charging a five-pound note. They're the 'lucky ones.' He took out his handkerchief and wiped away a light sweat that had gathered on his forehead.

"This won't do," he said in desperation. "I believe I'm in a white funk. Put your heart into it, Scroggs. After all, his lordship can't eat you without swallowing you. He'll like to know if I've been too hasty? I wonder if I ought to put it off for a while, until the sting of this defeat has ceased to rankle. Perhaps I was a fool to election. Perhaps I should have retired with an easy grace, and I should have cleared a way. Common gratitude might then have impelled him to overlook my many demerits. But no. I give him the election to try to do the people good, and I'd have been several different sorts of a cad if I'd played a double game. I meant to win, and I did win—by one vote."

He laughed a little, but it was a weakly laugh.

"I'm taking the only honorable course," went on his thoughts. "It's what she'd have me do, God bless her!"

She's the very soul of honor, and if I'd taken the easier way, if I'd put on and put off, and if I'd abated one jot of my enthusiasm over this election, she'd have hated me once the first glamor was past. No; there's no drawing back now. No matter what the issue, I must play the straight game, and trust to my love and hers to bring me through."

He began to remember her words of the evening past, and dwelt with loving appreciation on her notions of honor. "That's where she's so different from the rest," he said. "I believe it's all true what she said. I believe that dishonor of any kind would break her heart. She's noble and brave and good, and altogether wonderful; but she'd fade away like a broken lily if a stain of dishonor touched the hem of her garment. And now's a good time to take an oath, Ebenezer. It's a hideous name, but she's got to like it, and so I like it—get back to the point, you fool!"

"Never shall any evil touch her life, if I can help it. I swear it solemnly here. What I can do to shield her from any stain shall be done all gladly. No matter what sacrifice it entails, she shall preserve her ideals untarnished. Let it cost me my fortune, let it cost me my life's work, no matter the cost, her happiness must be all in all to me; and if that happiness is bound up in honor, then dishonor must have no place in her life. I swear it most solemnly, oh, my God! he looked up into the wintry sky, and his words were very earnest. He had taken his vow; and this man, plain and simple, in many ways, would keep it to the full, even though his keeping cost him more than life itself. He was to keep that oath at no very distant date; he was to bring his teeth in bitter torn to his taking; but unwaveringly, he was to hold it, though the fabric of his existence should be shattered about him, and a cloud that was darker than death itself enveloped his life.

SUES TENNIE CLAFLIN

$30,000 Is Silver's Bill—Says She Hired Him to Write Her Biography.

New York, April 6.—Supreme Court Justice Blanchard directed yesterday that testimony be taken in London in a suit brought against Lady Cook (Tennessee) by Harry C. Silver to recover $30,000 damages, on the ground that she hired him to write her biography in 1907, and agreed to buy at least 20,000 copies of the volume. The witnesses to be examined are Sir Frederick Cook, the late Oakley, Mrs. Holroyd Chapman, Mr. Charles Welles and Mrs. Ella Welles, and Mrs. John Biddulph Martin (Victoria Woodhull).

Silver says that Mr. Drayton, a London lawyer, can tell how Lady Cook visited his office with Silver and discussed the means of getting money from Sir Frederick Cook and the Bank of England to finance the biography.

ROCKEFELLER PLAN BAD

Dr. Gladden Says Scheme "Savors Too Much of Conscience Salving."

Columbus, Ohio, April 6.—"More harm than good will be done through the carrying out of John D. Rockefeller's proposed plan of giving away his fortune," is the opinion expressed by Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, theologian of world-wide reputation and long the pastor of the First Congregational Church in this city. In discussing the matter of this eminent divine declared that the distribution of benefaction in the Rockefeller way has a tendency to destroy the self-reliance, self-respect and self-maintenance of those whom it supports, and that it is not restitution, because it does not reach those to whom it belongs, and pampering Peter does not atone for robbing Paul.

Dr. Gladden expressed his doubts as to the social value of the benefactions of Mrs. Russell Sage and Andrew Carnegie.

MOST PAINFUL AILMENTS FOLLOW—THEIR HEALTH AND ACTIVITY RESTORED BY

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

When you catch cold there is nothing better to do than to take a dose of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills at bedtime.

Colds often settle on the kidneys and are followed by the most painful and fatal results. By quickening the action of the kidneys, the time you enable them to carry off the lurking poisons and prevent serious disease.

Keep the back warm, avoid sitting with the back in a draft, and regulate the kidneys by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. These rules are worth following, particularly at this season of the year.

Mr. W. Ferguson, blacksmith, Trenton, Ont., states: "In my work, bending over a great deal, and this, together with the constant strain on all parts of the body, and the sudden change of temperature when going to and from the forge, has brought on kidney disease and backache. At times I would suffer so that I would have to quit work to ease my back, and felt so miserable most of the time I did not enjoy life very much."

"At last I decided that I would have to get relief in some way, and having heard of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a successful cure for backache and kidney disease, I began using them. To my surprise and pleasure they helped me at once, and a few boxes entirely removed my troubles." CHATHAM INCENDIARY GETS FOUR YEARS

Laforest Sent to Kingston for Committing Crime of Arson.

Chatham, April 6.—Edward Laforest, farm laborer at Mitchell's Bay, and whose criminal record is familiar to police of many large American cities, was this morning sentenced to four years in Kingston Penitentiary on the charges of arson and burglary by Magistrate Houston in county police court.

Laforest, at the hearing on Thursday last, confessed to the burning of the Joy Club at Mitchell's Bay two years ago and theft of two double-barrelled guns from the burning building. He informed the court that he and another man named Cedar, who was caught and sentenced over a year ago, had visited the place and poured kerosene all over the interior. Then each had touched a match.

Cedar was caught and sentenced to one year in the Central Prison, but Laforest escaped to the States, and has since served short terms in Montana, Utah and Michigan prisons.

Prisoner is about 35 years old, and appears to be fairly well educated. His home is in Detroit.

Magistrate Houston—Have you any letters of recommendation to show, or any person here to say a word in your behalf?

The prisoner was forced to answer in the negative.

"I move sentence of court," stated Crown Attorney Smith.

The magistrate explained to Laforest just how serious the charges were. "You are liable to life imprisonment on a charge of arson, and fourteen years in the penitentiary for the other. Arson is considered next to murder in this country."

Laforest stood erect all the time, and never batted an eye. His hands hung to his side, and in his right hand he clutched a soft cloth.

"In the case of arson," continued the magistrate, "you destroy something that does no good to yourself at all. I presume that is one of the reasons the penalty is so heavy."

"The sentence of the court on you is," solemnly voiced Magistrate Houston, "four years in Kingston Penitentiary on each charge, but they are to run concurrently."

Laforest's head sank to his breast. Taking his seat, he riveted his eyes on the floor, and never moved them until taken to the jail to await transportation to Kingston.

UNION LODGE HELD ANNUAL "AT HOME"

Pleasant Affair Last Night in Room in Masonic Temple.

The "At Home" of Union Lodge, No. 330, A. E. and A. M., held last evening in the Masonic Temple, was one of the most successful affairs of the past season. There were about 75 couples in attendance, and a very pleasant time was enjoyed by all.

A musical programme was given during the first portion of the evening. Wor. Bro. J. H. Moran presided, and on behalf of the brethren of Union Lodge, welcomed the visitors to the entertainment.

Miss Anna Taylor then sang a solo in splendid voice. Wor. Bro. J. A. Gorman sang a song pleasingly, and Miss Vera Ross gave a fine reading, while Mr. Walter Nixon sang a solo pleasingly. Joe Cortese gave a harp solo in a manner that compelled an encore. Miss Irene Somerville acted as emcee, and her services were most appreciated.

Dancing followed, the music being furnished by Tony Cortese's orchestra. One of the best numbers was the harp number by Joe Cortese.

The committee in charge, to whom great credit is due, were: Wor. Bro. J. H. Moran (chairman), Bro. A. R. Skelton (secretary-treasurer), Bros. F. J. Delaney, A. E. Somerville, William Flowers, A. C. DIVORCE SURPRISES HER

Kate Claxton Will Have Lawyers Investigate It.

New York, April 6.—Kate Claxton, the actress, who went to Jersey City Monday to look up the records of her husband, Charles A. Stevenson, said today she never was served with any divorce papers by Stevenson and did not know until lately that he had obtained a divorce. She was married again. In private life Mrs. Claxton retains the name of Mrs. Stevenson. She said that she saw her husband before his departure for the west last November.

"In none of our interviews did he mention the subject of having obtained a divorce from me or deciding such, and the first intimation I had of divorce was when I was taken to Jersey City yesterday and learned the facts from the records. I shall have my lawyers investigate this matter and take such steps as may be necessary to protect my rights."

RADIANT HAIR

New York Society Women's Hair Matched Only by Parisians.

While much attention is given to choicest gowns by New York society women, the turbulent fad just now is the care of the hair.

For many years the clever women of Paris have been famed for the magnificent beauty of their hair.

"Glorious hair," a Virginian calls it, "so radiant and luxuriant that it not only attracts but attracts and compels unstinted admiration."

But now that the elite of New York, ever anxious to improve their beauty, have learned that Parisian hair is a remarkable and almost marvelous, hair nourisher and beautifier, is almost entirely responsible for the charming hair of the ladies of France, the demand for it has become enormous.

Parisian hair is now sold all over Canada, and in London by W. T. Strong, who is glad to guarantee it to eradicate dandruff, stop falling hair and itchy scalp in two weeks of money back. Large bottles 50 cents.

charged with threatening to kill court officials. This grim climax followed a plot of George Mohr, a merchant, to make Brandes believe a pretty widow wanted to marry him. When Brandes discovered the joke, he sued Mohr for $200 damages for loss of time. He lost his suit, and brooded over it until he concluded the court officials were leagued against him. He rushed into the clerk's office yesterday, grabbed the papers in the case, and escaped. He was arrested on a warrant charging threats. He was ordered held for examination into his sanity.

BETTER THAN TEXAS IS SASKATCHEWAN

And in Twenty Years Will Produce More Grain Than United States.

New York, April 6.—William Whyte, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who is at the Waldorf-Astoria, made a prediction today that within a very short time the Province of Saskatchewan will produce more wheat than Texas. "And in 15 or 20 years," Mr. Whyte added, "it will be producing more wheat than the whole United States. We had fine crops last year in the three prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, wheat, oats, barley and hay, all being excellent."

"They fetched good prices, and that put the farmers in the position of being able to purchase more goods and to travel. Consequently the effect upon immigration this year is bound to be enormous."

"Last year we had the largest immigration Western Canada ever had. We are getting a great many English, Scotch and Irish—not city-bred, but the better classes from the country. Last year we got 90,000 Americans, and they are the best settlers we can get. They come with their stock and their implements and their cash, and above all, with their experience in prairie farming. So they strike work at once. They are settling chiefly in Southern Alberta."

SAYS "RED WAVE" IS SIGNIFICANT

Professor Rein Believes the Masses Are More Intelligent Than in Past.

Berlin, April 6.—Prof. Rein, of Jena University, contributes to the Tag an article explaining the significance of "The Red Wave" in Germany. That the wave is increasing in size and, indubitably shown by elections in the empire and the elections for the diets of the separate states, and he attributes his advance to the improvement in the education provided by the schools and the army.

What are described as "the masses," he contends, are, as they become more intelligent, acquiring a desire to take a position in public life, and the movement has been furthered by the financial reform recently adopted.

The people, he says, believe that an unfair proportion of the new taxes has been imposed on them, and that the possessing classes refuse to bear their due share of the burdens. The outcome of the movement will, in his opinion, depend on the manner in which the governing classes defend their position.

The advancing masses, he declares, have no wish to wage in blood. What they want is justice, understanding for the intellectual and economic needs of the people, consideration for the weak and participation in public life of the economically strong.

It would be a fatal mistake, he asserts, to attempt to repulse the "red wave" by the employment of force, and, if serious consequences ensue, the blame will attach to the statesmen and politicians who fail to understand the spirit of the times. He prophesies that the next election will prove the strength of the increased strength of the Socialist party, what a mistake has been made in regard to financial reform.

Two Mills Using Same Quality of Wheat May Not Produce Same Quality of Flour

The quality of flour largely depends on the milling. Two mills might grind wheat of the same quality and the product of one far outclass the other. It is not only the high quality of the hard wheat used, but also the superior milling facilities, that places "PURITY" flour so far above all others. Our milling plant at St. Boniface, Manitoba, cost nearly $1,000,000, and is one of the most perfectly equipped mills in the world. The wheat itself is subjected to the most wonderful system of cleaning and scouring, passing through twenty distinct machines. Fifty-five steel rollers, the largest in Canada, reduce the wheat into flour. Then it is purified and dressed by "bolting" it through silk sifters of fine mesh. Not a "branny" particle or speck of dust is ever found in "Purity" Flour.

You may have to pay a little more for Purity, but baking results, quality and quantity, prove it is worth far more than the slight difference.

We have two other modernly equipped mills at Brandon, Man., and Goderich, Ont.

OAK HALL

ALL DAY DEBATE ON BETTING CRITICAL STAGE FOR MEASURE

Amendments Reported by Special Committee on Miller Bill Present Their Findings to Parliament—Appeal to French Prejudice Fails.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Ont., April 6.—The Miller anti-gambling bill made a start in the Commons this morning after its experience before the special committee, which found strongly in its favor. There was evidence given that the measure is to be fought all along the line of further legislative steps, and from the indications this morning the opponents of the bill may delay it in the House or the Senate until over-taken by prorogation. The proceedings this morning saw some sparring for position, which resulted in an appeal for a decision by the Speaker and a division of the House. At the very beginning there was a question as to procedure on the anti-gambling bill. Mr. Miller moved that the House endorse the special committee's report favoring the bill. It was pointed out by Mr. R. L. Borden that this would avoid the committee of the whole stage in the House.

Evils of Racing. Mr. Miller finally changed his motion, and made the reference to committee of the whole. Mr. Miller then presented his argument in favor of the bill, which prohibits race-track betting and which the special committee approved. Of Mr. Miller said that even the opponents of the bill admitted that there were evils in betting based on horse-racing, and they were willing to have them stamped out. All they wanted reserved to them was the right to have betting carried on only during race meets and only upon the race-tracks.

Anomalies of Law. Commenting on anomalies of law, Mr. Miller asked why, when gambling was a crime, an exception should be made in the case of gambling on race tracks? Why should a thing that was wrong on the street, or in a place adjoining a race track, be within the law on a race track. There were four objections to the bill: (1) That thoroughbred horse is necessary in breeding of good horses, (2) That racing is necessary to maintain thoroughbreds, (3) That professional betting is necessary in order to maintain racing, (4) That horse racing is the sport of kings and should not be prevented. Mr. Miller admitted that the thoroughbred was an advantage in breeding many horses, but he did not admit that racing was necessary to maintain thoroughbreds, although it was one means of testing thoroughbred horses and he absolutely denied that professional betting was necessary in order to maintain racing. With regard to the fourth objection, it was not denied.

whole public sentiment was largely behind this bill.

Samuel Barker, of Hamilton, argued that there was just as much of the element of gambling in insurance, stock speculation and other forms of business as well as in well-regulated horse-racing. These things were all a matter of chance, and it was quite impossible to say where the line should be drawn.

He said Dr. Shearer has shown inconsistency by practically telling the committee that it was not wrong for a man to gamble, provided he could afford to do so. The member for Hamilton argued that gambling in horse-racing was not profitable for those who encouraged the sport. He owned one $100 share in the Hamilton Jockey Club, on which he had paid $40.

He had not drawn one cent of interest on the share, but had paid out fees to the club.

A Reform Necessary. Hon. Clifford Sifton said that as a father of a family he approached the question involved in this proposed legislation with a full sense of responsibility. The measure had come before the House in a most peculiar way, being promoted by a number of gentlemen whose avowed object was to promote moral and social reform throughout the country. Some unkind things had been said about these gentlemen, which he could not indorse, because, while they might at times be injudicious, their work was most laudable and praiseworthy. This had been demonstrated in connection with the Lord's Day observance act, when they had been able to get the Government to stand sponsor for their proposed legislation. In that instance of they had proposed a measure which was a credit to the House. On this occasion they had not, apparently, been able to convince the Government that the legislation should be made a Government measure. For this he was sorry, because it was clear that reform was necessary. However, as the Government had decided to father such legislation, the promoters had induced a private member to introduce it, as they had a perfect right to do so.

Good and Evil. Mr. Sifton said that for thirty years he had attended horse races, but had never been financially interested in the sport or placed a dollar on a race. Gambling had always been to him a form of stupidity, in which he did not care to indulge. To his mind, however, the evidence taken before the special committee had clearly proven several things.

That the English thoroughbred is the basis of all successful light horse breeding.

That racing has improved the quality of the English thoroughbred.

That the stopping of betting will do away with the conduct of racing by reputable means and that it will result in it getting into disreputable hands, and that the last state of racing would be worse than the first.

That the importation of high-class horses would be stopped.

Suggests Compromise.

In conclusion, Mr. Sifton argued that there was no precedent for one section of a community having enacted, in the face of strong opposition, legislation declaring the acts of a large section of the community to be illegal; that if the bill were passed it would open the door to dangerous class legislation, that no case could be shown where a law which would confiscate large property interests and brand as criminals a large portion of the population of the country when no opportunity had been afforded the people of the country to come to a reasonable opinion on the subject; that there had been no concerted demand by the press or the people for this legislation, and that it would be the part of prudence, common sense and good judgment for the supporters of the bill to accept a compromise along the lines he had suggested.

J. E. Armstrong, East Lambton, denied Mr. Sifton's assertion that the question had not been discussed during the last campaign. He declared that it had been freely discussed. Mr. Armstrong stated that the committee was justified in bringing in the report as presented. The bill was for the general welfare of Canada and her people.

A Poolroom Amendment. After J. W. Madden (Cape Breton) had spoken in support of the bill the House went into committee, when Mr. McColl moved an amendment to the bill which strengthens the criminal code against poolrooms, wagering records, or registers, bookmaking, etc. Proposed section 235 would read: "Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to one year imprisonment, and to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, who keeps, or knowingly allows any part of any premises under his control to be used for the purpose of recording or registering any bet or wager, or selling any pool, or keeps, or knowingly allows to be kept, exhibited, or employed, in any part of any premises under his control, any device or apparatus for the purpose of recording any bet or wager or selling any pool; or Records or registers any bet or wager or sells any pool, upon the result."

Of any political or municipal election; Of any race; Of any contest or trial of skill or endurance of man or beast.

Advertisements, notices, exhibits, posts up, sells, or supplies, or offers to sell or supply, any information relating to pool-selling, bookmaking, betting or wagering; or Aids or assists in any manner in any of the said acts which are by this section forbidden.

The provisions of section 226, 227, 228, and of this section shall not extend to any person by reason of his becoming the custodian or depository of any money, property or valuable thing staked, to be paid to the winner of any lawful race, sport, game or exercise, or to the owner of any horse engaged in any lawful race, or to bets made on the race course of an incorporated association during the actual progress of a race meeting.

Provided that no such race meeting shall continue for more than eight days of continuous racing on days or which such racing may lawfully be carried on, and no such association shall hold more than two race meetings in one year with an interval of at least 30 days between each meeting.

 Lieut.-Col. Williams Was in Command—Staff Was a Notable ter the Seventh Regiment left for the Northwest rebellion, just 25 years ago today.

"Prepare at once. Be ready to march at 3 o'clock," was in substance Capt. Butler, Lieuts. Chisholm and Gregg, Color-Sergt. Gould, Sergts. M. Lintock and O'Rourke, Corps. D. Denson, James Gould and Brown, Sergt. M. Cuthart (pioneer); Lance-Corps Graham and Andrews, Priv. M. W.

an order received from the militia department at the brigade office yesterday morning. For days the officers of the Seventh Battalion have eagerly awaited that command, and the men have longed to hear the stirring words, "Forward march!" When the order came, it sent a thrill from man to man.

Gen. W. Smithson, McRoberts, James, Bond, H. Arbachle, J. J. Walker, James Johnson, J. F. Gray, Westaway, Neil, Crofts, A. Davis, Lozier, Harwood, Lively, Beaver, Ferguson, Geo. Davis, Sonerville, Davison, Watson, Brennan, Barlow, Matthews and Chamber—37.

man, and soon thousands of citizens were awake to the military realities of the hour. It was a new sensation to know that the famous Fusiliers of London were actually under arms and that in a few hours the gallant boys would be speeding away to the front.

No doubt many a mother and wife and sister had fondly cherished the thought that perhaps after all the battalion might not be required on the field of action, but now the final decision, and a bad one, and the sad recessive drifter inaction, and the real coats could but bear the parting word and obey the call of duty. They need no assurances that the best wishes and brightest hopes of every citizen, old and young, are with them on the journey and all through the campaign, till they return home with honors.

No sooner was the order made known than the excitement of hurried preparations in the drill shed and throughout the city began. Touching leave-takings were witnessed in many a home, and on the streets and in the shops and stores could be heard the "good-bye" and "good-afternoon."

scores of other hearty expressions, the words, "Godspeed the boys."

A Scotch Evening.

The Scotch evening given on Wednesday in the lecture-room of the

First Presbyterian Church by the ladies of the Westminster Woman's Institute quite eclipsed all other social events in a very busy social season.

The room was beautifully decorated with Scotch and Canadian emblems and devices. The supper was elaborate, and Mr. W. S. Laidlaw, the chairman, was an ideal host. The programme of song illustrated the pathos, heroic and humorous, in Scottish song,

was rendered by a choral club of 35

members; solos, duets and choruses all reflected the careful training of the leader, Mr. John C. Nichol. An admirable address by Dr. McCrae on the heroic in Scotch character was followed by one on the humor of the Scotch by Mr. Currie, of Belmont. The president of the institute, Mrs. Walter

Laidlaw, Mrs. G. B. Laidlaw, Mrs.
