BOY IS IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Five-Year-Old Donald Ward Suffers Fractured Skull and Leg.

PLAYING IN STREET

Driver Rushes Boy to Hospital —Mother Away From Home.

Little Donald Ward, 5-year-old son of Mrs. Joseph Ward, 21 Stanley street, was knocked down by a truck belonging to the London Pure Meat company at half-past ten this morning, and may die as the result of his injuries.

Horace McGuire, driver of the truck, rushed the boy to Victoria hospital, where immediate X-ray examination showed a fractured skull and broken left leg. The boy's condition is regarded as critical.

Mrs. Ward, who is a widow, was down town shopping at the time of the accident and could not be found for nearly two hours after it occurred.

The little boy was playing with a ball on the boulevard when it rolled on to the road and he followed it. The truck, which was coming east along Stanley street, struck the boy before he could get back to the sidewalk.

Horace McGuire, the driver of the truck, reported the accident to the police shortly after noon, and stated that the boy ran suddenly out from behind another car in chase of the ball. He did not see the boy until he had hit him, he says.

TOWN PLANNER AT UNIVERSITY

Adams Here To Complete Details of City Plan With Engineer.

Thomas Adams, town planner of New York and London, England, is in the city today, and will see the city engineer in connection with the London town planning scheme. Mr. Adams is in the city to look over the grounds of the university of Western Ontario, on which he has been asked to advise. Later in the afternoon he will go over the city's town planning map with H. L. Seymour and City Engineer Near.

At the time that Mr. Seymour was asked by the city council to complete the Adams map, part of the agreement was that the signature and approval of Mr. Adams should be secured at the conclusion of the plan. It was thought that this would lend authority to the city's plan which would be invaluable in future. The question of this signature and recognition by Mr. Adams will be discussed today.

URGES PRIVACY IN TAX RETURNS

Local Inspector Declares Citizens' Incomes Should Be Kept Secret.

The citizen's desire for privacy in the matter of publishing income tax returns should be respected, is the opinion of George Tambling, inspector of federal income taxes here.

On the subject of the present warm discussion in Ottawa concerning the veil of secrecy enshrouding the work of the department, Mr Tambling said that it was his opinion that a man's income, of all things, was his own business, and he should be allowed privacy in handling it.

His experience has been that the majority of people wish to keep their incomes a secret for business and personal reasons. Occasionally there was a man who did not care. In the main, citizens were very much against the public knowing their business.

ITALIAN WOMEN GRANTED VOTE

Mussolini in Supporting Motion Declares Time Ripe For Fuller Rights.

RIOT IS AVERTED

Associated Press Despatch.

Rome, May 16—A bill granting women the right to vote in Italian municipal elections was adopted by the chamber of deputies last night after a debate marked by lively scenes.

The Communist deputy, Greco, aroused the ire of the majority by expressing the hope that the day would come when a Communist revolution would establish conditions under which women would not be considered animals.

This precipitated a rush toward the Communist benches, but a clash was prevented by the sergeant-at-arms.

The same deputy told the Fascisti: "Your women stay at home while ours work," causing such an exchange of insults and threats that the president of the chamber had hard work restoring order, so the session could continue.

Adoption of the measure came after a speech by Premier Mussolini, in which he gave it his support, declaring he did not think it would open the flood-gates to the suffrage movement in Italy, but believed that "in a century which has thrown millions of women into work in the fields and factories," the time had come for them to participate at least in the municipal life of the country.

The measure now goes to the senate.

City Nurse Amputates Arm When Bandits Block Roads

Daughter of Thomas Baty Has Interesting Experiences in Chinese Mission.

BANDITS MENACE

New Hospital Guarded by Seventy Soldiers As Protection Against Raids.

How many women could amputate a man's arm, with no doctor near, and in a foreign country with bandits blocking the road to help?

This has been the experience of Bessie Baty, R.N., superintendent of nurses at the Canadian Presbyterian mission at Kei Kwong hospital, Keung Shan, Kwongtung, China, and daughter of Thomas Baty of London, who was sent out to China under the auspices of the Presbyterian mission board four years ago, following the designation services at St. Andrew's church. She also had service overseas with the nursing sisters, and was particularly well equipped by training and experience for the work she was undertaking.

Dr. George G. Wannop of Winnipeg is the medical superintendent of the hospital, while Miss Baty has charge of the nursing and much of the work in the dispensary. A case recently came to the hospital that brought into play some of the training and initiative of which she is possessed.

Had Crushed Arm.

A native was brought to the Kei Kwong hospital with an arm badly crushed, having been caught in the rollers at a factory where sugar cane is crushed. Dr. Wannop was absent from the hospital and would not be back for a day or so. Ordinarily, in such a case, the injured man would have been taken to Dr. Macdonald

PEPALL'S FIGHT TO GO LIMIT

Former Toronto Bond Dealer Will Appeal to Supreme Court.

FILE HABEAS CORPUS

Attorney Claims Diplomatic Action To Secure Decision Was Unfair.

Special to The Advertiser.

Washington, May 16.—It was indicated today at the state department that the extradition case of Andrew H. Pepall, wanted in Toronto in connection with the bond swindle, will not be decided until careful consideration is given to the argument submitted in Pepall's behalf by Attorney Hunter of Los Angeles.

Should the state department find that the Los Angeles commissioner acted properly in ruling Pepall subject to extradition, it is believed here that Hunter will immediately file habeas corpus proceedings to obtain the liberty of Pepall, which would bring the case into the federal court of California.

Should this court concur in the commissioner's verdict for extradition, Hunter will doubtless attempt to effect an appeal, which may eventually bring the matter to the attention of the United States supreme court for a decisio

While here, Hunter indicated that Pepall will resort to all legal methods to prevent his return to Canada, holding that the action of the immigration authorities in finding Pepall legitimately entitled to remain in this country establishes his right to remain and prohibits Canada from attempting to over-ride one quasi-judicial decision by resorting to diplomatic steps to win a favorable decision.

Officials of the British embassy expressed assurance that the state department would not reverse the action of the Los Angeles commissioner, who held Pepall subject to extradition.

"It would be a very extraordinary precedent for the Washington government to set aside the action of one of its legal branches in this extradition matter," one embassy official said.

Hiles Templin, on the left, headed the polls in last night's elections for the 1925-1926 boys' council. He is a member of Knox Oswegoes group and is a prominent figure in C. S. E. T. work in London. On the right is Howard Obeay of the Dundas Centre Nikators, who won a close three-cornered race for the boy mayoralty. Magistrate and Mayor Plan To Make Wife Deserters Aid Dependents With Jail Pay Sawing of Wood or Crushing of Stones Would Be Way To Get Money.

POLLOCK LECTURED

Characterized by Court As the Laziest Man in the City.

A new method of attack has been devised by Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon and the mayor in London's war against wife deserters. Henceforth men found guilty of failing to provide their wives and families with necessities will be sent to jail to either cut wood or crush stones. They will be paid for their labor, but the money will be turned over for the maintenance of their families. The wood cut will be used in next year's relief work.

The mayor and Mr. Graydon conferred on the plan following two cases of wife desertion in this morning's court.

Deserves Flogging.

Stewart Pollock, who has had 80 jobs in the past six months, and who has been living on charity for some time, was "one of the most cowardly and lazy men," the magistrate has ever dealt with.

"I have no sympathy for you at all," the magistrate told him after evidence had been heard. "The only way to deal with you is to take you out on the market and have you flogged.

Pollock has four children, all under the age of 16 years. He and his family have been depending upon city relief for their living. Several days ago when the man secured a job and made more than $19 he left the city for Windsor, refusing to give his wife a cent of the money.

He was remanded to jail for one week in Magistrate Graydon's court this morning. Inspector Kelly of the Children's Aid society declared him to be one of the laziest men he had ever seen. He positively refused to get out of bed in the morning to look for work, his wife testified.

Jail Is Best Place.

"Men of that type are better in jail," Mr. Graydon said after convicting Pollock. "I intend to send all of them there, too. If they refuse to work and wish to be charges upon society, it is cheaper to keep them in jail."

M. J. HANEY,

DOMINION SHIPS SOUGHT BY ENGLISH SHIPOWNER, CABLED REPORTS SHOW

Offer Made in February By English Shipowner, Cable Shows.

REPORT IS TABLED

Government Would Have to Pay £300,000 to Lloyd's.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, May 15.—Fifteen inquiries, besides the offer of Sir William Petersen, have been made to the government from people desirous of purchasing government-owned ships during the last three years.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, May 15.—An offer to buy the whole fleet of freighters in the government merchant marine was made to the minister of trade and commerce on February 7 last by Sir William Petersen, with whom the government made last December an agreement to subsidize freighters for the transatlantic trade. The fact that the offer was made was revealed today when a copy of Sir William's cabled offer was tabled in the House of Commons.

Sir William's cable makes his offer subject to ratification of the ship-subsidy agreement, which is now being considered by a special committee of the House of Commons. Amongst the terms and conditions set out in the offer, there is one requiring payment by the Canadian government of £300,000 towards reconditioning and renewing Lloyds classification on the ships. The cable was acknowledged and the matter referred to the cabinet. No further correspondence is contained in the file brought down today.

Wants Right to Sell

Sir William would reserve the right to sell any of the steamers which proved unsuitable "for the purpose of the associated lines" and also to utilize any of the vessels adaptable to the Atlantic trade in conjunction with the projected subsidized steamship lines. "If I do utilize them, the amount of subsidy required should be two-thirds based on dead weight capacity in proportion to what has been agreed already," he adds.

PURITY DECLARED HIGHEST STANDARD

Mrs. Veronica Hensman Speaks in Interests of Girls' Friendly Club.

"Purity is the highest standard in the world," said Mrs. Veronica Hensman of England, who spoke last night at Cronyn hall in the interests of the Girls' Friendly Society. Mrs. Hensman gave a most inspiring address, putting before the small, but appreciative audience, the ideals of womanhood.

"If purity and fellowship, two of the finest things in the world, are carried out, the future of the world will have higher repute and power than at the present time," Mrs. Hensman said. "The Girls' Friendly Society is not an end in itself, but a background in each life—the backbone of the nation."

"If one hasn't purity, which is power and force, then one cannot contribute these splendid qualities to the nation," the speaker stated, and further said, "We are all dependent upon each other, and more so now, as the distances between the countries of the world are becoming reduced through modern transportation."

"Somehow, some day," Mrs. Hensman said, "all the nations will get together for commerce; yet the work of God cannot be done unless the people are sympathetic and understanding with each other."

Mrs. Hensman spoke very highly of marriage, and inspiringly encouraged the girls to enter it with purity, and in so doing bring back the high standard of that greatest thing in life that has been lowered through sin. "Run straight," was the way she put it. "Girls," she said, "grow up that boys may respect womanhood and be chivalrous once more, for it is the girl of today that men are looking to for high standards in life, which the womanhood of the nation must set. Men do not only want to flirt with you, but they want to look up to you and honor you."

Helping one another was also one of the great things the speaker put before the gathering. She showed the girls that to help the person who was "down and out" was a nobler thing than being selfish. She stated that more and more girls should broaden out and become self-sacrificing, instead of narrow.

His Lordship, Bishop Williams, was the chairman of the evening and expressed in a few inspiring and well chosen words the purpose of the girls friendly society and voiced his appreciation of the privilege afforded those present of hearing Hrs. Hensman. Dean Tucker and Rev. A. L. G. Clarke also spoke briefly. At the conclusion of the evening Mrs. Williams moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Hensman and Miss Matthews was the ready seconders.

FINE FURNITURE FOR 22 YEARS

Name of Thomas Synonymous With the Best—Firm's Small Beginning.

For 22 years the name Thomas has been synonymous with fine furniture in the Forest City. The Thomas policy of giving the fullest measure for every dollar offered in trade has maintained a public confidence that has brought a rich growth in business from year to year.

The firm originated in East London under the name of Elgar & Thomas. Even at this early period the success of the enterprise was established. A large East London clientele formed the nucleus of a city-wide popularity and the growth of the young furniture firm was steady from the start.

So promising was the future that it was deemed wise to move into larger quarters in the downtown district to better care for the demands which were already taxing the facilities of the small store in the eastern part of the city.

The People's Outfitting Company was the name of the firm when it was established in its new Dundas street quarters, and for several years it took a leading position among the furniture concerns of London.

With an eye to greater all-round efficiency, which would result if the members of the firm were allied with each other by family ties, W. D. Thomas in 1913 conceived the idea of creating a new company with his three sons as partners.

This step was taken and the Thomas Furniture Company made its debut to Londoners. Although the business growth in the past had been steady, an even greater increase was apparent when the new family concern was well under way.

It was found necessary to enlarge the Dundas street store three times since the Thomas Furniture Company was formed. Even these changes grew inadequate as the years brought a further business growth, and last year the officials of the firm realized that the Dundas street store, though one of the largest in the downtown section, was becoming too small for the heavy demands of district trade.

Rather than remodel the premises a fourth time, they formulated and completed a plan for an entirely new store, far larger than the first and with warehousing facilities second to none of any retail concern in London. So the business was moved to Richmond street between King and York streets.

CAILLAUX, BRIAND SEEK WAR DEBT SOLUTION

French Deputies Authorize Ministers to Study Allied Problems.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Paris, May 15.—Finance Minister Caillaux and Foreign Minister Briand were today authorized by the chamber of deputies to study the inter-allied debt question in an effort to find an acceptable solution. This decision of the cabinet was given out officially after a long discussion of the problem this morning and the delivery of opinions by both M. Caillaux and M. Briand on what they thought should be done.

Finance Minister Caillaux has expressed the view that the inter-allied debt problem must be solved to re-establish French credit, and he told the finance commission of the Chamber of Deputies on his recent appearance before it that part of the Dawes reparation plan receipts must be devoted to this purpose immediately, even though France were hard pressed for money.

M. Briand, as foreign minister, is known to have been considering the debt question as part of his foreign policy, and, although his views have not been revealed, it was said recently in authoritative quarters the negotiations for the settlement of debts would be resumed during the present month.

CITY TAX APPEAL LOST BY BELL STOCKHOLDERS

Revision Court Chairman Declares Dividends Are Not Being Doubly Taxed.

A holder of Bell Telephone stock introduced an interesting question at last night's court of revision for ward four. He asked the court to exempt him from assessment on the dividends obtained from the company's stock which he held. He said that the stock was already taxed as part of the company's earnings.

The court, however, took a different angle. The chairman stated that the company was taxed on 60 per cent of its earnings, and that the dividends payable to stock-holders were taken out of the other 40 per cent of earnings. In this way, he claimed that the stock of the individual holder was not doubly taxed, as the holder last night stated. The appeal was dismissed.

The action of the court as a whole was satisfactory to the city, only $750 being deducted from the original assessment for ward four made by the city assessor.

Mayor Wenige Made Honorary Vice-President of Safety League.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 15.—That the average pedestrian should not rely on statutes but should go carefully on the roadway, and that too many people are becoming indifferent to road accidents and loss of life, were the remarks of George H. Major-General Sir John M. Gibson of Hamilton was re-elected president of both the dominion and provincial safety leagues. LABOR PREPARING ELECTION PLANS

London Branch Believes Federal Election Is Coming Soon.

London Labor, taking time by the forelock and expecting that a federal election would come along in due course this year, appointed a propaganda committee last night. Members of this committee are W. Tite, J. F. Thompson, Arthur Mould, A. Foxcroft, and P. Aristoff. This committee of the London labor party, which has power to add to its membership, is detaled to take charge of labor propaganda in London for the next few months and "to take such educational steps as shall ensure the return of a labor candidate to the federal house when the election comes".

Delegate Thompson who sponsored the motion to appoint this committee declared that with a federal election hovering in the political atmosphere it was time labor took some action along the lines of political education in the city. He was certain that with the right methods and a correct presentation of the situation in the country today that a labor man could be returned to Ottawa when the election took place.

The party endorsed a resolution from the Winnipeg trades and labor council asking the provincial government to include blindness of acetylene welders among the list of occupational diseases. The workmen's compensation board operates under the provincial governments, so that the London request will go to Toronto.

Several members stated that acetylene welding had a detrimental effect on the eyes even though glasses were worn. By adding blindness or impaired sight caused in this way to the list of occupational diseases, the workmen injured will be entitled to compensation from the board. At present he is not.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE MEETING LITTLE OPPOSITION IN ITALY

By HIRAM K, MODERWELL.
By Special Cable to The Advertiser and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright.

Rome, May 15.—Woman suffrage appears to be coming painlessly to Italy.

Discussion of suffrage in parliament on Thursday revealed practically no opposition to it. Underlying all the argument was the assumption that the question already had been threshed out and settled generally throughout the United States and Europe.

The present proposal would give women only a municipal vote, but parliamentary suffrage is expected to follow, perhaps with educational or property qualification. It is worthy of note that the present suffrage bill was advanced and practically assured of passage before the women began agitation for it.

Premier Mussolini is supporting the proposal in fulfilment of a promise made two years ago to the international suffrage congress, which was held in Rome. The general belief is that women will constitute the Conservative element in politics, and that although the men may amuse themselves with extremist theories, the women will watch the price of bread and vote for stability.

TOURIST CAMP IS GREATLY IMPROVED

Many Added Conveniences Are Now Installed, A. O. Hunt States.

London's new up-to-date tourist camp at Wonderland is ready to receive visitors, A. O. Hunt, acting manager of the public utilities commission, announced this morning that the improvements in the accommodation at the camp, undertaken by the commisison at a cost of approximately $1,000, have now been completed.

Mr. Hunt speaks enthusiastically of the accommodation now provided at the camp for tourists, and draws attention to the fact that the camp is now one of the best equipped camps in Western Ontario.

The camp has a large, airy dining-room, kitchen with four electric cookers, running water, sanitary conveniences and showers, in addition to an adequate enclosed parking space, register, and man in attendance at all hours. The grounds at the camp are electrically lighted.

All this splendid accommodation, Mr. Hunt intimates, will be afforded tourists at the rate of $1 per automobile per night, regardless of the number of passengers in the car.

Last year's camp attracted a very large number of automobile loads of tourists, but Mr. Hunt is confident that the accommodation now provided at the camp will attract a much larger patronage this year.

It is expected by the commission that the nominal fee of $1 per night will place the camp on a self-sustaining basis and probably place a small balance to the credit of the commission at the close of the season.

NURSE AMPUTATES ARM AS BANDITS BAR ROADS

at the hospital at Kong Moon, but on this occasion it was impossible to do so on account of the operations carried on by bandits between the two stations.

Miss Baty knew from the nature of the injuries that it was necessary to attend to the case at once, because she feared the setting in of blood poisoning. There was no alternative but to perform a case of amputation herself. She secured the services of a Chinese doctor, studying in the hospital, and directed the giving of the anesthetic, after which she performed the operation herself, and in a short time the patient was on the road to recovery.

Soldiers Guard Hospital.

In a letter to her father, Thomas Baty, Nurse Baty describes the opening of a new hospital, at which it was expected there would be a number of visitors from outside points including Hong Kong. This hospital has been built by funds supplied by native Christians. To provide for the visitors who are expected to attend the opening, a huge mat shed had been erected on the grounds facing the hospital, and the magistrate ordered 70 soldiers to be on duty and form a cordon around the temporary structure, the idea being to prevent any raids on the visitors by bandits.

So great was the fear of the bandits who might be attracted by the journeys of wealthy people from Kong Kong to the new hospital, that the trip was postponed, and it is actually recorded that the authorities were much relieved when they found thay were not going to attempt the trip. Nurse Baty's reference to it is that "the opening was a very successful one, and was carried on by the lesser rich."

MAYOR CONDUCTS OWN FIRE PROBE

Will Take "the Necessary Steps When He Is Ready" in Crash Inquiry.

No steps have been taken yet by the mayor to hold an investigation int othe accident on Thursday night, when the fire truck struck a private car on the corner of Talbot and King streets. He says, however, that he has been conducting an investigation on his own and that he will take the necessary steps when he is ready.

While the mayor said yesterday that the onus lay entirely on the chief and that the chief had only to ask for all the extra men he needed to get them, the minutes of the city council show that the mayor voted against the addition of ten men. On April 24, in No. 1 committee, he voted against this proposal, and again on May 5 in full council. Alderman McKay also voted this way.

The mayor says that at that time the new equipment was not in use and that these men were not necessary then.

Since then, he says, the chief has been given permission by the council to get all the men he needs.

Ald. Leonard Douglass, however, says that it was due to his insistence that the chief was able even to get ten men in 1924, and that if he had not fought the chief's battles in committee and council at the time the estimates were being set that there would not have been the ten new men. As for the chief being able to get all the men he asked for, Dr. Douglass says that is out of the question.

Chief Aitken says that not only does he need more men, but that Dr. Horace Brittain of the citizens' research institute at the time of his inspection of the department recommended more men if the department was to be 100 per cent efficient.

VICTORIA PARK TO BE AT BEST TOMORROW

Thousands of Tulips and Daffodils Will Be At Height of Bloom.

Victoria park will be looking its very best tomorrow and that means that a visit to the park will more than repay lovers of the beautiful.

The park with its 20,000 tulips and daffodils, not to say pansy beds, will be all dressed up in its Sunday best, and in fact its season's best, for after Sunday the blooms will begin to fade and will yield place to the summer bedding plants.

Thousands of Darwins and Breeders, late blooming tulips, will greet those who stroll through the park tomorrow, and the 40-odd beds of white, yellow, pink, pink and white, and even black tulips will quicken the spirit and gladden the heart to the full realization of the fact that this is not such a bad world after all.

When the tulip and daffodil season passes, as it will this week, the parks department will carefully take up the bulbs and lay out the beds with summer bedding plants, including cannas, geraniums, colues, begonias, and an innumerable number of other floral wonders, and so the cycle of beauty will be maintained uninterrupted until the fall and again the winter season of the year.

QUATRAIN RULES FAVORITE TO WIN KENTUCKY DERBY

One Hundred Thousand Expected To Witness Running of $50,000 Classic.

Associated Press Despatch.

Louisville, Ky., May 16.—It is expected a record-breaking crowd this afternoon will witness the 51st running of the $50,000 Kentucky Derby. As soon as the gates of the Churchill Downs course were thrown open the turnstiles started clicking like the second-hand on a watch, giving indications that a record-breaking attendance of 80,000 to 100,000 spectators would witness the struggle of speed, stamina, breeding and fitness of the continent's best thoroughbreds.

Twenty-four colts and one gelding were named to face the starter, but it seemed certain early today that the field would be narrowed down to possibly twenty and perhaps less, depending on track and weather conditions. The race, the fifth on the program, is scheduled for 4:45 p.m. central standard time.

The event, at a mile and a quarter, carries a cash value of $53,475 to the winner, provided twenty horses go to the post, with $6,000 going to the horse finishing second, $3,000 as the prize for third place and $1,000 for fourth.

Quatrain, winner of the New Orleans Handicap and the Louisiana Derby, remained the outstanding favorite in the early wagering at odds of 5 to 2. Captain Hal was quoted at 8 to 1, while the four horses, headed by Chantey, representing the Whitney entry, were third in the wagering. The price on Kentucky Cardinal was 6 to 1.

Notwithstanding Quatrain's tremendous popularity, the experts figure the race as an open event, in which anything might happen, but they are unanimous in naming Quatrain, Captain Hal, Kentucky Cardinal, Lee O. Cotner, Chantey and Almadel as the six ranking contenders, with Prince of Bourbon as a possible dark horse. Quatrain will be ridden by Jockey Benny Breuning, a comparative novice, but chosen because the colt seemed to work better under Breuning's guidance than any other rider.

Windsor, May 15.—After a wild chase of 78 miles, extending from Ojibway on the Detroit river, back through Leamington, Cottam and several other towns and villages or Essex county interior, the provincial police flier, with Provincial Chauffeur Archie Hudson at the wheel, accompanied by Provincial Constable Coulthard, stopped J. MacPatterson of Windsor at Amherstburg with 25 cases of beer in his car. The speed of the two cars, it is claimed, never dropped below 60 miles during the wild ride, and at times was over 70. Patterson was stopped at Amherstburg when the police car cut lots and crashed into the nose of his vehicle while he was attempting to make a hairpin turn.

TRIBESMEN PREPARE FOR NEXT OFFENSIVE

Next Attack by Moroccan Rebels Will Be in Rough Foothill.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, May 16.—The next big clash between the French troops in Morocco and the invading tribesmen under Abd-el-Krim will be on the rought foothill territory between Chechaouen and Ouezzan, it is believed here.

This conclusion is based upon news of the concentration of Abd-el-Krim's forces on the western flank of the French. The French need reinforcements to deal with an attack from this direction, which is taken in official circles as explaining the periods of stagnation between the French drives.

General de Chambrun has been obliged to use air forces extensively to protect his flanks, because he is operating with the bare minimum force required to protect his advanced posts. However, reinforcements are continuing to arrive, and will be available for use whenever the Riffians choose to attack.

Generous Response Greets Appeal For Dumb Animals

Little Red Hearts Are Tokens of London's Wish To Aid Humane Society.

$1,000 NEEDED

Tag Day Appeals Meet With Few Rebuffs—Welcome Halts For Bills.

Little red hearts, dangling from the coats of hundreds of Londoners today are tokens of the city's wish to aid the London humane society in its tireless mission to relieve distress among anmals.

Generosity is everywhere greeting the "Have a Heart" appeals of the 50 girls and the dozen or more school children who are participating in the tag day. One thousand dollars is urgently needed to care for the year's expenses of the society and morning heart sales indicated that a good portion of this would be raised today.

"Have no change" excuses were offered in only a few instances, downtown taggers found, and the eloquent plea embodied in the bright red hearts met with few rebuffs from pedestrians.

More than one tagger made welcome halts while big-hearted men folded dollar bills so that they could slip in the little niche in the white box. Coins, of course, were favorites, but a lot of them were big ones.

The street car junction point at Dundas and Richmond streets proved a fruitful spot for two little misses. Fifteen or tweny motormen and conductors were waiting for the change in shifts and the gay taggers took them by storm. Smiles and money flowed fast ond the red tag of cooperation soon graced the uniforms of all the men.

PREMIER INVITED TO LAY CORNER-STONE

St. Thomas Board of Education Changes Date For Celebration.

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, May 15.—After a more or less heated discussion at the special meeting of the board of education this evening, a motion asking Premier Hon. Howard G. Ferguson to lay the corner-stone of the new composite high school as soon as convenient in July, was passed and an amendment sponsored by Trustees Mrs. McCulley and Cook, conferring the honor on Dr. Merchant, was lost. The debate on the question developed into a discussion of the W. C. T. U.'s action in "insulting the Premier" by saying he wasn't fit to lay the corner-stone, and the O. T. A. in general, and had to be curbed by the chairman at one of its most tense moments.

The report of the board's findings at the Brantford schools regarding the fire escapes was presented, and the general opinion seemed to be that the spiral shoots were the proper things if they could be kept in working condition. A committee of three will visit the shoots at Ottawa in the near future to see the most modern of this type of fire escape. Trustee Dr. Bennett advocated the firproof stairs, but the expense attached with the installation of these, makes them almost prohibitory.

Convicted of threatening arson and suicide, as testified by four prominent Kingsmill farmers who had employed him, James Warren-Bell, a tall, ungainly 19-year-old English lad was sentenced to two months in the county jail while plans are made for his deportation.

CHECK UP TO BE MADE OF BOOKS AT LIBRARY

Stocktaking On May 25 Will Determine Number of Missing Books.

To find the number of books missing from the shelves of the public library a general stock-taking will be carried out at the main library on Monday, May 25. The whole of the permanent and temporary staff of 26 members will complete the work in one day. There are about 50,000 volumes to check.

Librarian Richard E. Crouch said today that there had not been a thorough checking made for some time. The circulation department and the reference room will be thoroughly gone over. He hopes that all overdue books and those out on special loans will be returned before the day set, so that the work will not be held up.

SWIMMING POOL OPENING DELAYED

Utilities Commission Now Awaits Sanction of Board of Health.

Having arrived at the decision not to open Thames playground swimming pool without the sanction of the local department of health, the public utilities commission is awaiting word from that body.

At the time, some months ago, when the city council lopped off the commission's estimates to the extent of $10,000, the commission was inclined to open up the park as it was operated last year and place the onus of closing the pool entirely upon the board of health.

While the members of the commission would like very much to open the pool this year, they feel that the legal aspects of the case, together with the sanitary side of the question, counsel against such action.

Incidentally, to comply with provincial regulations passed late last summer would necessitate an expenditure of about $6,000 at Thames pool on the installation of a filtration plant, scum gutter and showers.

It is possible that the board of health will allow the pool to be opened without being absolutely up to the standard required by the regulations, and it is along this line that the commission awaits action on the part of the board of health.

DENOUNCE RUMOR OF ANNEXATION

English Paper's Views Meet No Support in London.

There is no support in London for an article appearing in the London, England, Spectator giving annexation with United States as an alternative for Canada with independence or secession of the west.

"There is a noisy minority talking secession, but the heart of Canada is too big for such a thing," is the opinion of Brig.-Gen. W. B. King, C.M.G., D.S.O., general officer commanding military district No. 1.

"Some people talk that way, but they are few in number. When any great issue comes up we find Canada solidly British. I have seen no signs to tempt me to believe in such a thing as secession," he added.

Sentiment Lacking.

"As far as I can see there is no sentiment whatever in Canada toward annexation with the United States," stated Vice-Chairman A. E. Cairncross of the board of education, "and if such a thing ever does come to pass it would be forced by economic conditions.

"We need both English immigration and capital for the development of our natural resources, and the salvation of the present Canadian economic situation.

"Canada is a big countr and as such is bound to develop sectional problems," concluded Mr. Cairncross, "but there is no doubt that all those problems can be handled if we as Canadians get together."

Thought Far Away.

Alton Ryckman, ex-warden of Middlesex county, in commenting on the matter, declared that the people of Canada would not think of annexation to the United States.

"The logical time for a move like that would have been right after the war, when the tax burdens were extremely heavy," said the ex-warden. "We are perfectly abole to govern and finance ourselves. Annexation talk wouldn't get very far these days with Canadian money quoted at a premium in the United States."

County Cerlk John Stuart was of the same opinion as Mr. Ryckman. "There will be no secession unless the Conservatives put the tariff too high," laughed Mr. Stuart. "I do not think that there is any chance of annexation by the United States."

KITCHENER WAS BETRAYED BY HIGH RUSSIAN OFFICIALS

Sir George Arthur Disputes Statement of Ludendorff Denying Charge.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 16.—With regard to the letter of General Ludendorf to V. W. Germains, author of a book entitled The Truth About Kitchener, in which the German general says Lord Kitchener's death was not due either to a German mine nor a German torpedo, "but of a power which would not permit the Russian army to recover with the help of Lord Kitchener, because the destruction of czarist Russia had been determined on," Sir George Arthur, who was Lord Kitchener's private secretary, and wrote a life of the distinguished British soldier, has made a statement in denial of Ludendorf's assertion.

Sir George Arthur says: "There is no question about it. The secret of Lord Kitchener's proposed visit to Russia was betrayed by Russia to Germany, and as a result Germany made special preparations. We know the name of the officer who laid the mine. Whether the secret was given away by Russia to prevent the Russian army from recovering with Kitchener's help I cannot say, but of the betrayal there can be no question."

AMUSEMENT PARK PLAN WILL BE SETTLED SOON

Tenders For Added Attractions To Be Considered By Parks Board.

Early action is looked for in the public utilities commission on the tenders now being received for amusement park privileges in Springbank park.

A. O. Hunt, acting manager of the commission, said this morning that the parks board will consider the tenders received and make a report to the commission within the next day or two.

Though Mr. Hunt was inclined to be secretive about the tenders, it is understood that only two concerns are tendering on the official draft agreement prepared by City Solicitor T. G. Meredith, K.C., and that one of these is the Victor Amusement Company, which has operated an amusement park across the Pipe Line road from the park for the past ten years on private property purchased for the purpose.

Chamberlain Is To Stay On Job

London, May 16.—Reuter's News Agency declares it learns that British official circles dismiss as without foundation the rumor of the approaching resignation of Foreign Secretary Chamberlain.

CHAMBERLAIN MAY QUIT FOREIGN POST

Rumors of Secretary's Resignation Follow Stand Taken Toward France.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 16.—There are persistent rumors, the Daily Chronicle says, that Austen Chamberlain is likely to resign the foreign secretaryship in consequence of divergence with his colleagues regarding his attitude toward France.

Mr. Chamberlain, according to the newspaper, is so much more pro-French than most of the other cabinet ministers that they had to restrain him from making a military pact guaranteeing France's eastern frontier. Such a pact would have been aimed at Germany, and the cabinet decided against it.

When Secretary Chamberlain went to France two months ago he was charged to tell the foreign representatives that this pact was outside the limits of the British policy, according to the Chronicle, which adds that his resignation was then expected.

The paper declares that Mr. Chamberlain's complaisance to the French in the foregoing and other matters is regarded as endangering British and European interests and is causing much anxiety in ministerial circles, but that as he is such an important member of the government everything possible will be done to prevent his resignation.

Nothing regarding the question appears in the other papers. The Daily Chronicle in its editorial policy opposes the Conservative government

"DADDY" ALLEN TO VISIT ROTARY

Prominent N. Y. Children's Aid Worker To Speak At Monday Luncheon.

The Monday luncheon of the Rotary club is to be held at the medical school on Ottaway avenue. "Daddy" Allen of Elyria, N.Y., who devotes all his time to work among crippled children, and who was one of the outstanding speakers at the recent Rotary conference in London, will be the speaker for the day. Another visitor will be Alex. Fitzgerald, past president of the Windsor club, who has taken a keen interest in the work of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. After the luncheon a visit will be paid to the children's hospital.

Members of the London club have been furnished with copies of the April issue of the bulletin issued by Grover Good, district governor, in which a great deal of space is given to the work carried on at the recent London conference. References are highly complimentary all through, and especially is there attention given to the Hobby Fair and pageant put on for the visitors while in this city. The following concludes the reference to these events:

"Every city in our district could adapt this idea, in whole, or in part, to its own community, and by so doing add not only to the pleasure and education of the community, but also do a most constructive and inspiring piece of work for the boys and girls of the community. The bigness of the work that London is doing in this respect should inspire us to greater efforts along these lines for every community, not only in the district, but in the world. We are deeply indebted to London for what they gave us in the Hobby Show and the pageant."

WEST MIDDLESEX TORIES RE-NAMED

Officers Elected at Mt. Brydges Meeting—Nomination of Candidate Doubtful.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Mount Brydges, May 16.—Despite the fact that Frank White, M. P. for London, and George Elliott, M.L.A., North Middlesex, did their best to stir up a little enthusiasm at the annual meeting of the West Middlesex Conservatives here yesterday, no mention was made during the entire session as to the calling of a convention to nominate a candidate for the federal house

Te prevailing opinion in this district for some time has been that the Conservatives have no chance of winning West Middlesex, some of the strongest members of the party stating emphatically that if J. C. Elliott, K.C., of London, is the Liberal candidate in this riding they will most certainly vote for him.

Candidate Doubtful.

It is very doubtful in view of the fact that a convention date was not even considered, if the Conservatives will nominate a candidate at all. Frank White devoting most of his time to a history of the Progressives in the dominion government.

The usual resolutions upholding the leadership of Hon. Arthur Meighan and Premier Ferguson were passed amid "enthusiasm." George Elliott declaring that the Ferguson government was the best that Ontario had ever known. He declared emphatically that the Conservatives had not broken faith with the temperance people by introducing 4.4 beer, and he felt that the government was making temperance legislation more stringent, and devoted much time to telling the audience of the poisonous liquor being sold by bootleggers.

Officers Re-elected.

Following is a list of the officers who were all re-elected for the year: President, R. W. McKellar, Glenpoe; first vice-president, Archie Walker, Mount Brydges; second vice-president, David Matthewson, Komoka; secretary-treasurer, Edgar Weld, Delaware; conveners and vice-presidents in municipalities, Mosa, Edwin Hurdle, Newbury, and Mrs. Thomas Stinson, Glencoe; Newbury, Bert Holman and Mrs. A. D. McVicar; Wardsville, Alex. McIntyre and Mrs. Frank Henderson; Glencoe, W. A. Currie and Miss Emma Oldrieve; Ekfrid, Wilson McPherson and Mrs. D. C. McKenzie; Caradoc, M. Whiteman and Mrs. W. H. Woods, both of Mount Brydges; Lobo, Morrison Sinclair and Mrs. Percy Seabrooke, both of Komoka; Delaware, John E. Pincombe and Miss Grace Cummings, Delaware. Westminster and North Dorchester, placed in this riding by the last redistribution, will add their representatives to this executive.

TOO MUCH FOR DOBBIN ROARING POLICE CYCLE

Starts Delivery Horse On Wild Sprint Down Pipe Line Road.

The roar of Motorcycle Officer Gavin Monahan's machine as it tore along the Pipe Line road yesterday morning, scared the law-abiding horse attached to the milk wagon of Roger Williams, Westmount, and caused the animal to do a King's plate dash for home. The horse was finally caught on the Wonderland side road before much damage was done.

The driver of the milk cart declared that the police cycle sounded like fourteen thousand firecrackers being exploded at one time, and that the noise was loud enough for a deaf man to hear.

SPORTSMAN STRICKEN WHILE PLAYING GOLF

W. C. Hawkins' Death Comes in Fishing Paradise North of Ottawa.

With no undertaker within fifteen miles, the death of W. C. Hawkins, secretary of the Dominion Power and Transmission Company, Hamilton, at Echo Beach fishing club last week, is described as "particularly tragic," by Hon. C. S. Hyman in a letter to friends here.

Mr. Hyman, who with Sir Robert Borden, Senator Lynch-Staunton and others, is holidaying at Echo Beach, north of Ottawa, writes that efforts of club members to secure medical aid were practically fruitless. Mr. Hawkins was stricken while playing golf outside the club. He was carried to his room, and his companions did everything in their power to render assistance. He passed away, however, a few hours later.

Call for an undertaker was put in to a town some twenty miles distant. The following morning two guides erected an improvised stretcher and carried Mr. Hawkins' body to the lake, thence six miles by rowboat and three miles across a divide to a lumbering village. The remains were then taken by train to Hamilton for interment.

Mr. Hawkins was an ardent fisherman, and exceptionally fond of bird and animal life. He was a member of the Big Point shooting club near Chatham. In Hamilton he was associated with electrical and street car interests, being the right-hand man of Sir John Gibson.

Mrs. Hawkins was in New York when news of her husband's sudden death reached her.

DECEIT CHARGED IN GOUGH APPEAL

Crown Attorney Declares Bank Directors Knew Statement Was Incorrect.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 15.—The proper inference to be drawn from the monthly return of the Home Bank for December, 1922, was that it was prepared with the intention of deceiving the minister of finance, declared D. L. McCarthy, K. C. speaking for the crown before the first divisional court this afternoon in reply to the appeal of R. P. Gough, former president of the Home Bank, from his conviction. The monthly statement in question was signed by Mr. Gough in the absence of the president.

Sir William Meredith questioned if it were parliament's intention to demand the president of a bank in the monthly statement show the true condition of the bank. "How is it possible" he said, "for any director to say without qualifications that fifteen days earlier his bank had so much of assets? That is an impossibility."

Mr. McCarthy: "I don't agree with you. This was a small bank. If Gough knew the statement was incorrect he should not have signed it. If he did not know it to be incorrect he was guilty of negligence or willfulness."

The Chief Justice—"The Bank act obliges the officials to sign these statements; they have no option."

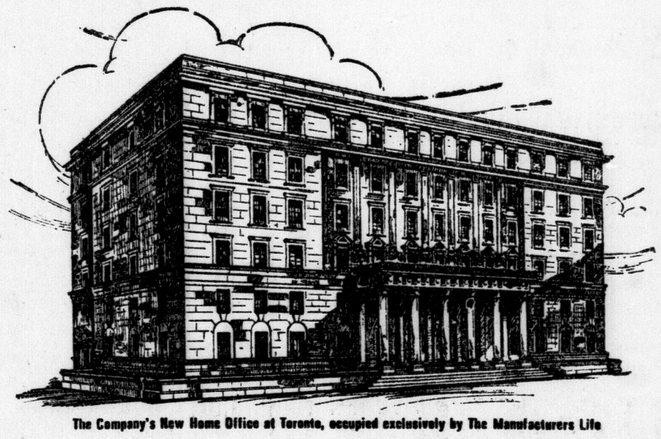
GROWTH!



The Company's New Home Office at Toronto, occupied exclusively by The Manufacturers Life

1924 New Business over 60 Million Dollars

When The Manufacturers Life commenced business in 1887 it was the eleventh Canadian Company to enter the life insurance field. The total business transacted in Canada in 1887 was THIRTY-EIGHT MILLION DOLLARS, divided among eleven Canadian, ten British, and eight American Companies. In 1924, The Manufacturers Life issued policies in excess of SIXTY MILLION DOLLARS, nearly 60% more than the total of all Companies the first year of its history.

The tremendous growth of life insurance is due to an ever-increasing appreciation of its practicability, not only as an unsurpassed method of creating an estate or providing a competence for one's dependent years, but also as a means of establishing a sinking fund to retire a Bond Issue at maturity. It also guarantees immediate funds for Succession Duties. It is a safeguard to a business or corporation to offset the death of an executive or valued employee. You should know what life insurance will do for you.

ELECTROTYPING IS ART THAT FEW UNDERSTAND

Local Firm, Located On King Street, Noted For Service.

Electrotyping is an art that few people understand and yet when one becomes acquainted with it they then realize its value and can rapidly appreciate that which is accomplished by the different processes involved Electrotyping is most valuable to advertising men, for it cuts down expenses. Sometimes you may pick up a newspaper and go over the advertisments and then look at a magazine and find the exact duplicates of them. It is interesting to know how this is done.

First of all there is only one original drawing. It is sent to the electrotyping company on half-tone plate. There it is made into a master plate from which there can be produced unlimited numbers of duplicates. It works out something the same as the reproduction of thousands of phonograph records from one "master" record.

The locals firm at 211 1-2 King street is a branch of the Rapid Electrotype Company, Toronto, and has been established for some ten years. Here specialities are centered in Electrotype and stereotype plate and matrix work. At the Toronto plant new equipment has been put in to take care of lead molds, wax moulds, wax rule engravings, nickeltype and colored plates. The wax rule engravings, for instance, make far better reproductions than hand-set rules. By the use of the special wax method every joint is perfect, something which is most difficult to achieve in hand-setting. These wax rule engravings are used in connection with order forms, charts, seals, time sheets, circles and other irregular shapes in various sizes.

The work of the Rapid Electrotype Company, Limited, extends from coast to coast. Printing houses, advertising agencies, etc., use the complete service of the company to fill their needs. No job is too small for the firm. The staffs are ready and willing to co-operate in every way possible to provide the utmost in service.

Old Magazines Made Like New

Charles Chapman Company Assures Satisfactory Work.

Have you any old magazines around the house? Some of them them may have serials in them that would be interesting to keep. Why not go up in the attic, gather them all up and have them bound? It would make a neat edition to the family library and might prove interesting to the occasional relative or friend that drops in once in a while.

The Charles Chapman Company, 91 Dundas street, does work of this description for individuals and concerns all over Western Ontario. They are doing a great deal of work of this kind at present and many of their customers who are seeking their services are ones of many years standing.

Then again the firm may be able to serve you in some other way. It has the distinction of being the pioneer Canadian concern in placing a practical system of loose leaf school note books on the market in this country, and for twenty years now this concern has been supplying the needs of Canadian students along this line. They also manufacture commercial forms, such as ledgers, bound books and all similar articles used in banks and other business houses. As well as this, it carries on an extensive trade in binding books for individuals and libraries. Williams' Original Method Cures Weakened Cylinders

New System Employed At Welding Works Has Won Confidence Of Public Throughout Western Ontario.

When a piece of machinery breaks down, it does not do for an inexperienced person to try to repair it. Usually they "fix" it in such a way that it is impossible to use it again. Heads of factories realize this and that is the reason for Welding Works. Often the least bit of monkeying will completely destroy a frail cog or wheel. There is no need to throw it away and purchase a new one. Just send it to the Williams Welding Works on King street and their competent craftsmen will repair the article in no time, and make it as good as new. If there is anything in metal that can be repaired this firm can do it.

Their experience in the welding business has given results that have been satisfactory to hundreds of London and district residents. No matter what parts of machinery are broken or missing, this firm guarantees a thoroughly satisfactory repair job.

The Williams Welding Works makes a specialty of motor car work and farm implements and industrial machines. One of the features is the repairing of motor cylinders, which have been scored by wrest pin action. The method used by the works is something that has been specially arranged by Mr. Williams himself. There is no other similar method employed throughout Western Ontario. That this method has proven successful and has won the confidence of the public is evidenced by the number of jobs that are sent to the King street plant from all sections of the country. One cylinder block was sent to Mr. Williams all the way from Nova Scotia, for the owner had confidence that Mr. Williams could do the work satisfactorily.

During this season of the year motor cars are being put into shape for the open weather season. In many cases it will be found that in order to start the new season right it will be necessary to have some repair work done. In instances where welding or brazing will effect a repair it is much easier to have that done than to throw the parts away and purchase new ones.

Before you reach a decision as to what you are going to do about work of this nature, it would be wise to get in touch with Mr. Williams and have him give you some information. It is quite possible that he will be able to save you considerable expense.

Modern Science Is Centered In Commercial Electric Shop

The nineteenth century was one of invention. Machines and processes were developed as never before. Anything to save manual labor was heralded by loud acclaim by manufacturers, and the scientific public. Today in our factories nearly every operation is done by machinery. But for a long time the development of labor-saving devices for the home was neglected. It never occurred to science that the drudgery of housework needed lightening. But with the dawn of the twentieth century, and the last ten years in particular, whole scientific laboratories have been devoted to the means of lightening housework through electricity. Today almost any operation in the home can be performed by electricity, and such shops as the Commercial Electric can show you innumerable electric devices to make the work of housekeeping easier.

In the Commercial Electric one can find everything that is new and modern in the way of electric household devices. The very best makes are stocked. Here one can find everything from a foot-warmer to a washing machine. But besides selling appliances they will wire your house for you at the lowest possible rate consistent with good workmanship and the best of materials. They are willing to offer you gratis at any time expert electrical advice.

Many home owners think that their houses are modern when they lack that essential feature of modernity, plenty of electric outlets, to which electrical appliances can be attached. Is your house one of these? If it is you will be surprised at the small amount required to modernize your house in this respect Drop into the Commercial Electric, next door to the Grand Opera House, and get an estimate.

If you are planning a new home, whether it is to be a two-room cottage or a palatial residence, it will pay to get expert electrical advise on the matter of wiring it, and providing the very best illumination in it at the minimum of cost. Such expert advice you can always secure from the Commercial Electric.

Brighton's Bread Good For Health

Emery Street Bakeries Realize Their Obligations.

Every day your problem is to provide you and your family with food to keep them in good health and strength. The one food of all that will do this is bread—pure safe bread.

Bread is the only food that is served three times a day, every day. It is the basic food of the household. What could be more important than that your family should have good bread—bread that they will enjoy so much that they will eat plenty of it. You remember the old time mother's generous method of bread-making; plenty of good milk, good honest shortening, no short-cuts, no substitutes. That's the kind of bread you have a right to. Good, honest, generous bread, the best food in the world for health and happiness. Today the obligation to produce the right kind of bread is put squarely up to the baker.

When you eat Brighton's bread you know immediately that the baker has accepted his responsibility.

PACE FIRM IN LONDON FOR THIRTY-FIVE YEARS

Gives Satisfaction Always in Painting and Paperhanging.

"Skilful workmanship and only the best materials" for the last 35 years has been the watchword of the local painting and paperhanging firm of W. T. Pace & Son, 251 Ridout street south. And it is because this concern has consistently lived up to this motto that its success has been so marked.

Fred Pace, the manager, has had many years' experience in this field and because of this can give expert advice on all painting or paperhanging problems that confront the homeowner.

Mr. Pace is skilled in his profession. In interior and exterior decorating he has a wealth of knowledge based on actual experience and a keen study of the new things which are decreed by leading decorators. It makes no difference whether it be wall paper or paint, Mr. Pace is in a position to offer the services of an expert.

One of the big features which Mr. Pace follows up is doing interior decorating during the summer months. At this session there is a better opportunity to devote more time and attention to a contract and the customer has a much better range of materials from which to make a choice.

"Many of my patrons are seeing the advantage of having decorating and painting done during July and August while they are on their vacations," said Mr. Pace. "They select the wall paper designs or paint colors and then leave us in charge of the house. When they come back they find everything in proper order. Everything has been cleaned up and furniture and furnishings restored as they were prior to the job being done."

It is a fact that Mr. Pace has won the confidence of his customers. He knows that he has trustworthy and responsible men in his employ and that in taking such a contract no risk is being run whatever while a customer's home is temporarily in his possession.

WOMEN and THE HOME

Many Ontario Institutes Reach 25th Milestone As Present Year Rolls On Movement Begun at Stoney Creek Has Spread Across Atlantic.

75,000 WOMEN

Branches Extend From Coast To Coast in Dominion of Canada.

By MRS. GEORGE EDWARDS,
Western Ontario President.

Attention falls on the women's institutes of Western Ontario this year, because a number of the branches are celebrating their silver anniversaries. 1900 was the year when the women's institute movement first gained impetus. Although two institutes date back previous to this year, it was at this time that the idea first began to take a general hold on the imaginations of the rural women. As a result here and there little institutes began springing into existence.

The first women's institute was organized in Saltfleet townshnp, Wentworth county, on February 20, 1897, with Mrs. E. D. Smith, of Winona, as president, and Miss M. Nash, of Stoney Creek as secretary. The late Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless, of Hamilton, was the prime mover. She had an able assistant in E. Lee, also of Hamilton, and their united efforts secured recognition for home interests in the educational institutions of the province.

Since that time the women's institute movement has progressed throughout the province and the Dominion. In June, 1922, the silver anniversary of the founding of the institutes was celebrated at Stoney Creek, the meeting place of the first institute. The twenty-five years which had then passed over the institute work were successful years.

Public Spirit Develops

In the early days household matters were practically the only subjects discussed at institute meetings, but a public spirit was soon developed and the institutes began to take an interest in community matters. Today they are a powerful influence in community life.

The Stoney Creek institute was closely followed by the organization of the Whitby women institute on June 29, 1899, with Mrs. S. L. Brown, of Whitby, as president, and Mrs.

MISS ETHEL M. CHAPMAN, assistant director of women's institutes for the province of Ontario.

W. Anderson, of Whitby, as secretary. The third institute was organized in Grey county in 1900, with Mrs. James Gardener Kemble as president and Mrs. Wm. McGregor as secretary. This institute, with a number of other institutes, organized about the same time, will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary this year. Among them are Strathroy and Thorndale institutes.

After its beginning in Ontario, the home of the institutes, the movement spread rapidly throughout Canada and even to England, where Miss Emily J. Guest was instrumental in effecting organization. This work of Miss Guest's was done during the war years under the auspices of the British government, and today women's institutes are flourishing in Scotland, France, Belgium and elsewhere.

Old country institutes exchange letters with the institutes of Canada. They seek to learn about Canada and Canadian methods, and no speaker has a bigger reception than a Canadian speaker, straight from the land which mothered the institutes.

Six years ago the Ontario federation of women's institutes came into being and has now become an important institution of the province, so important, indeed, that the Ontario government gives over a branch of the department of agriculture to women's institutes alone. In Ontario the members have a habit of saying that the Hon. J. S. Martin, minister of agriculture, is their chief. The women's institutes department is a sub-department of the Ontario department of agriculture.

75,000 Women.

Mr. Martin gives a personal interest to the work and is always ready to speak at women's institute conventions. George A. Putnam is his deputy as superintendent of the women's institutes of the province with Ethel Chapman as assistant.

In February of 1919, also six years ago, the Dominion federation of women's institutes was formed. The provinces closely followed suit until all were organized and affiliated with the Dominion organization.

This great body of women, stretching from coast to coast, numbers 75,000. In the Western Ontario division alone there are twenty-two branches, with a membership of about 6,400.

Mrs. C. Field Robertson of Lanark is the Ontario president of the women's institutes this year, with Mrs. David Watt of Birtle, Man., as dominion president. Mrs. Watt, who was born in Woodstock, became head of the Institutes of Canada in 1923, and has since held that office. She is also president of the Home Economics society of Birtle, Man.

Five conventions are held in the province during the year: the Eastern Ontario convention at Ottawa, the Northwestern Ontario convention at Port Arthur, the Northern Ontario convention at North Bay, the Western Ontario convention at Toronto. During the first few years of organization, however, but one convention was held yearly, at Guelph.

Exhibit in Toronto.

The Women's Institutes now have representation on the board of the Canadian National exhibition. Last year the Dominion Women's Institute federation held a very successful exhibit in Toronto at the time of the exhibition, and an exhibit is being arranged for this year. Mrs. Aitken of Beaton is convener, and already an excellent program is being mapped out, in which all of the provinces will be represented.

The institute motto is "For Home and Country." And in accordance with this motto the branches are carrying on an effective Canadianization work, welcoming strangers to Canada and then training them to become staunch Canadians.

The Institute work, however, begins by discussing home problems. Of the organizations, a visitor from overseas was heard to remark: "These Canadians know the right place to begin; without homes there is no country worth talkin' about."

MRS. GEORGE EDWARDS
of Komoka, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Western Ontario, who will represent the province at the dominion federation meeting in Victoria this summer.

Girls' Branches, Too.

It is an extraordinary work which the Institutes have been carrying on since organization. Now there are not only the women's branches, but there are girls' branches as well. Here future Women's Institute workers are being trained. During war time their women worked as energetically as did the women of the cities—knitting, sewing and making surgical supplies. Their boxes of comforts went, many of them from farm kitchens, to cheer the men in the trenches.

Village libraries have been started through Institute funds, memorials have been erected, all manner of charitable causes have been helped, through the energetic work of the Institute women. Under their supervision, debating societies have been organized and literary clubs kept going in rural communities. Better education is one of their slogans.

The Western Ontario branches had an important part in raising funds for the War Memorial Hospital for Sick Children erected in London.

The Women's Institutes had an important task in introducing labor-saving devices into farm houses. Through gentle agitation as a body of women, the Institutes persuaded the men of the farms to see that labor-saving devices were as important in the farmhouse as out of doors. As a result, housework on the farm has become easier and the farmer's wife has more time to take her place in the community. And all this because a little group of women with vision began the Women's Institute movement at Stoney Creek over 25 years ago.

GLOVE CATCHES "ZIPPER" FEVER

Popular Disease Started With Tobacco Pouches and Goloshes.

By AILEEN LAMONT.
Special to The Advertiser.
Copyright.

New York, May 15.—No wonder jazz is popular. No woman could possibly make her feet behave when they are clad in the wild leathers which fashion now dictates. As in jazz, the blues are not forgotten. Ensemble leathers, or those composed of wild splotches of color, are being used in conjunction with black patent leather, for heels and counters. The short rounded toe and the heels of medium height are features of the latest models in footwear.

No woman can be blamed for making the most of her good points, and the French designers are making the most of theirs. Many of their newest gowns have the skirts formed of a series of points overlapping one above the other. These usually are outlined or embroidered in crystal beads of rhinestones. The gowns frequently are worn over slips of a contrasting shade.

Zip the Zipper.

The zipper fastening which started out on tobacco pouches and passed to golf and travelling bags, goloshes and dresses, now has been utilized on gloves. The newest of the fairly long, loose-cuffed hand coverings are fastened with the zipper clasp, which makes it unnecessary to fumble with buttons or refractory clasps.

The English have adopted the eye shade worn by Helen Wills, the American woman tennis champion, while abroad, and made a hat of it. That is, they have taken the band with its wide visor and supplemented it with a series of straps passing over the top of the head so that the visor cannot fall too low over the eyes.

For a June Bride.

The wedding dress of one of the prospective June brides has departed from the conventional white in favor of silver. The material is silver crepe morocaine. The front of the skirt, which is quite short, is trimmed with chiffon points. The train also is of chiffon, with a double pleat down its entire length. The veil is of silver tulle, caught at either side of the head by a bunch of orange blossoms.

All the pictures were not confined to those in frames on the walls at the opening of the Royal Academy in London today. The fact that King George and Queen Mary were scheduled to be present attracted society in droves, according to cable advices, and the occasion furnished the first real opportunity for exhibitions of spring finery. The large hats predominated and ostrich plumes formed the favorite trimmings. Hand-painted satin dresses also were in evidence.

SHE WAS FIRST INSTITUTE PRESIDENT.
Mrs. E. D. Smith of Winona, earliest president of the Stoney Creek Women's Institute, where the movement began in 1897, guarded on her left by George A. Putnam of Toronto, superintendent of institutes for the province, and on her right by E. Lee, secretary of the Farmers' Institutes. All three have been instrumental in making the institutes of the province a success.

Rockefeller Heiress Has 'Obey' Taken From Service

Plain Gold Band Serves To Bind Husband and Wife.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, May 16.—The wedding of Abby Rockefeller, granddaughter and heiress of the famous oil magnate, to her childhood pal, David Merewether Milton, which took place here Thursday, apart from the prominence of the bride, had a number of features that served to arouse widespread public interest. Among the features of the ceremony that are being discussed today are:

The word "obey" was omitted from the service.

It was a single ring ceremony, and the ring was an old-fashioned gold band, not the platinum affair that society brides today insist upon.

The majority of the men guests wore business suits.

The bride and groom started their honeymoon in a cut-rate taxi cab.

"Dave" and "Babe" as they call each other, will keep house on an income of $23,000 a year, of which $15,000 is the husband's.

WEDDINGS

MacDONALD—TEMPLAR.

A most interesting event took place recently in the Anglican church, St. John. The occasion was the marriage of Emma Templar, daughter of the late Mr. George Burrows, Adelaide street, London, to Commissioner Angus D. MacDonald of Stratford.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Lowe. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion by the many friends of the bride. And a more pretty wedding has seldom been witnessed in the church. After partaking of the wedding repast, the happy couple left for Detroit on their honeymoon. The large number of handsome presents of which the bride was the recipient of, showed the high esteem in which she was held. Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald will reside at 20 Shrewsbury street, Stratford.

WOMEN and THE HOME

THE NIGHT OF THE WEDDING

By C. N. and A. M. WILLIAMSON.

Copyright, 1924, by Public Ledger Company.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.

EVELYN HASTE, beautiful and rich girl, who sits down at the piano on her wedding night—and mysteriously disappears.

KENNEDY HASTE, her husband, who suspects complicity on the part of his old war comrade,

SIR RAWDON WELLS, an amateur scientist, who has insisted on lending the couple Hidden Hall Court, his gloomy and mystery-ridden estate, for their honeymoon, and who is found after the disappearance in a secret chamber.

PANDORA, a gypsy-like girl, adopted sister of Kennedy and secretly in love with Wells.

MISS GILLETT, an ex-war nurse, who fell in love with Haste in a hospital, and who is an intense person.

DAGON, youthful Scotland Yard detective, who has done glorified "spy work" in the war. He is of vivid Italian temperament, though Canadian in training.

INSTALLMENT XXI.

"I think," the pretty little woman went on rather nervously, "that Italians are the most romantic, picturesque people on earth, and I just adore them. You do look rather Italian, I see, now you speak of it! But you are simply the image of Captain Haste's adopted sister. Have you met her yet?"

"Not yet," Dagon answered. By this time he was seated on a chair opposite Mrs. Payntor's sofa; and he realized with a certain brisk enlightenment how much she had changed since the time when his services had helped to restore her lost pearls. She had been a good-looking, middle-aged woman then. Dagon had taken her for forty-six. Five years had passed, and she was ten years younger—or it wasn't her fault if she was not! In those days she had been innocent of make-up, and her neat hair had been frankly fading. Now she had the pink and white complexion of a girl; her eyebrows and lashes were as dark as Eve's; she had quantities of "marcelled" golden hair; and her dress was suited to the part of a "siren" on the stage.

She was in love with a man younger than herself, of course. That was one of the things Dagon had come to find out, and he had found it out almost at first glance. He thought that he had already "spotted" the man, too, but he would soon be sure. And he hoped to turn several other conjectures into certainties as well.

"So I am like Miss Haste!" he said.

"Oh, astonishingly! You might be brother and sister."

"Maybe we are!" (He pretended to laugh at this jest.) "I hear she was a foundling. So was I—a self-made foundling! I hope to see Miss Haste. Did the captain tell you how she'd disappeared"

"Yes, she must have escaped, clever little creature! She's not guilty! The idea is ridiculous."

"So I think."

"Not that I'm fond of the girl. I could have been, for she's fascinating—so odd, and gypsy-like. But she couldn't bear Eve. Naturally I resented that, though I always behaved nicely to the child. I used to be quite sorry for her, too. She was sick with jealousy!"

"On account of her brother?"

"Well, I suppose she wanted to give that impression. She must have known that she showed her feelings toward Eve now and then, so she hoped people would believe it was on account of her brother. My private opinion, however, Mr. Dagon, is that she was dead in love with Rawdon Wells. Very likely he'd have cared for her if he hadn't met Eve. He'd known Pandora and made a great pet of her since she was a child. Used to give her presents and flowers, take her motoring, and all that. I've been told, especially after he was invalided out of the war in 1915, while her brother was away. But I should say she was—is, I mean—a proud and honorable little thing. She wouldn't have hurt Eve for the world. How quixotic that she should try to sacrifice herself to save Don Wells from suspicion. I don't imagine he appreciates it!

"I think he will, some day," said Dagon; who fully intended that Wells should do so. "By the by, that's a good picture of Captain Haste you have on the piano, and a beautiful one of his wife. May I ask who is this very handsome young man, rather like Sir Rawdon Wells, but better looking?"

"Oh, that! What a wonder you don't recognize his face, Mr. Dagon," exclaimed Mrs. Payntor, jumping up and flitting—if a plump woman can flit—to the piano. "He's one of the most popular cinema actors in the world, Paolo Magnani, Rawdon Wells' first cousin. That's why they're alike. Their mothers were sisters. Paolo is a great friend of—of Eve's and mine. We admire him immensely, and—he likes us." (She was all smiles and blushes.)

"He is certainly very handsome indeed. There couldn't be a finer looking man," said Dagon, gazing at the three portraits.

Mrs. Payntor beamed on him. "That's absolutely true!" she agreed rapturously. "And he's as charming as he looks. You know, there's a great romance about Paolo Magnani. He might have been in Rawdon Wells' place, with those splendid estates and all that fortune, instead of depending on his own work for money."

"Indeed! I didn't know. Do tell me the story," Dagon encouraged her.

The lady was delighted with the invitation. Evidently it was delicious to her to talk of Paolo Magnani.

"Yes," she explained, "The sisters were twins. It was Paolo's mother (of course she wasn't married, and so he was not born then) with whom Sir Rawdon Wells fell in love—in Naples, I think. She was a singer—wonderful voice. By the way, Paolo inherited it—but, alas! lost it after an attack of diphtheria, otherwise he would now perhaps be the leading tenor of the world instead of a motion-picture actor. But we were speaking of the mother. She and Rawdon senior were going to be married when the twin sister—a dancer—came home to Naples, to dance at San Carlo in the famous ballet they have there.

"She was even more beautiful and fascinating than the sister, and either she was unscrupulous or else she fell madly in love with the Englishman. Anyhow, he lost his head completely. The two ran away together and were married, leaving the other twin plantee la, as you might say. She was so wild with rage and humiliation that she married a tenor in the same opera company who'd been hopelessly in love with her before the Englishman came along. He was a very poor match—shiftless and without much talent. They led a cat and dog life. That was the history of poor Paolo's childhood. What a sweet nature he must have had not to be embittered, and to be as devoted to his English cousin as he is, instead of brooding over what might have been."

"Yes, fine of him!" agreed Dagon.

"Paolo has often told us about his wretched childhood, poor and neglected by his parents. He's quite frank—not a snobbish bone in his body! He isn't sure that his father wasn't actually mixed up with the Camorra—that terrible secret society in Naples which does every sort of crime, and sends the 'Black Hand' to America."

"You are right, Mrs. Payntor, it's mighty romantic," said the detective, delighted with the way that things were going.

"It would make a scenario plot for one of Mr. Magnani's screen plays."

"Wouldn't it? And all that came after."

"What did come after?" Dagon asked innocently. "I don't quite know."

"Well, Paolo used to sing in Italian cafes and weird places like that to get money for his training. When he'd saved up something he began to study for the operative stage, and had glorious prospects with his looks and voice. But then he got ill, as I told you. His voice was injured. The poor fellow was in despair, and thought of killing himself; but just then—and that was like a play, where everything happens at exactly the right time! — his cousin Rawdon Wells, came to Italy on purpose to look him up. He—Don Wells—had finished his course at Oxford and was free to travel. He'd always wanted to find Paolo since his mother—when she was dying, I fancy—told him the trick she'd played on her sister Francesca. Paolo and he were about the same age. Don insisted upon settling an allowance on his cousin, and invited him to come to England. They took a trip together to New York, too; and that's where Paolo got his first start in the moving pictures. What a pity we didn't meet them then! But we were in the south and Eve was still a child."

"What an interesting story!" Dagon flattered the little lady. "I'm quite thrilled. Truth is stranger than fixtion. Mr. Magnani must have made a fortune for himself as an actor."

"Not a fortune, I'm afraid," sighed Mrs. Payntor. "I expect poor Paolo is rather generous and extravagant.

"Why, for example, he's away now, doing a picture in a wild part of Skye—has been there since Eve's wedding day—started directly after—but look at these lovely roses, my favorites! He has ordered three dozen to come to me every day. I hate to have him spend the money, they're so expensive now! But what can I do?"

"What, indeed?" laughed Dagon. "Well, that settles one question for me, which I meant to ask you."

"What question," she inquired curiously.

"You won't think me impudent if I tell you."

"Of course not! We're old friends. You did me a great favor once. Ask any question you like."

"I don't need to ask it now. I was wondering—in my detective metier, you know—if Mr. Magnani had been one of Miss Carroll's admirers before her marriage. But a man isn't in love with one woman and sending such flowers every day to another!"

"Oh, do you think that?" breathed Mrs. Payntor in ecstasy. "Well, I used to fancy he liked Eve. He came often with Don, when Don's affair with her was in full blast. And he sometimes looked at her as if—but then, most men looked at Eve. I never saw a girl more attractive to men. I had an idea it was that wonderful perfume of hers that added to her fascination. She never would tell even me what it was made of. But—well—I tried to console Paolo when I thought he was falling down on his luck. And—anyhow, he has seemed grateful."

Dagon thought hard for a minute. Eve was much richer as well as much younger and prettier than her Aunt Jean; still, Mrs. Payntor wouldn't make a bad "second fiddle."

She was hurrying on, however, with her history of Paolo, as though she had read the detective's mind.

"If Rawdon died unmarried—or even now, if Eve doesn't come back, and he never marries, Paolo will be a very rich man, so he doesn't need to be a fortune hunter," she said. "Rawdon has made a will leaving everything, even Hidden Hall Court, to Paolo if he himself dies a bachelor. He can leave the Court as he likes, you see, because he's absolutely the last of his line. And if he has no heir of his own, it's really quite fair he should wish to make up to Paolo for the past."

"Oh, quite, quite," murmured Dagon. "And where do you say Mr. Magnani has been since the day of the wedding?"

"In Skye."

"You are quite certain he's been there ever since, and is there still?"

"Entirely certain," said Mrs. Payntor with modest triumph, "because he wires me every day without fail."

Dagon did not answer. This reply of hers had been a blow to his theory. It was tottering. It might have to fall.

That same night Dagon went back to Essex with haste, and was given quarters at the Court. Everyone there knew that he was a detective, but he had a way of ingratiating himself with each member of the household, no matter how humble, making him or her believe that everyone else was under suspicion.

His mission being frank and above-board, he could go where he pleased, do what he pleased, and ask what questions he pleased without arousing resentment.

There were few old servants indoors at the Court since Mrs. Jenkins, the late housekeeper, had been obliged to leave, and Davis, the butler, had been replaced by Marianti. None of the new ones had seen much, if anything, of Pandora Haste; but Mrs. Gillett and her daughter both remarked the likeness between the girl and the detective.

MRS. JOHN STEVELY, who was elected president of the Women's Canadian club at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Stevely is one of the pioneer members of the club, which has just completed its 15th year since organization.—Portrait by Darragh Studio.

GOES WALKING ALONE ON 96TH BIRTHDAY

Congratulations Are Showered Upon Mrs. Margaret Guest.

It's something to be 96 years of age. But it's a greater accomplishment to be able to go out walking alone on your 96th birthday. And yet this is what Mrs. Margaret Guest, 737 William street, was able to do yesterday. Later in the day, about twenty of her friends gathered at the house to offer congratulations.

Mrs. Guest in her childhood attended a little log schoolhouse on the 7th concession, London township. Her home was with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzgerald, who farmed near London, and all her life she has lived in this neighborhood.

She has six sons and one daughter, including Richard Guest and James Guest of London township, William Guest and Thomas Guest of this city, Dr. Fred Guest of Regina, Dr. A. W. Guest of Jamestown, North Dakota, and Miss Sarah Guest at home.

Richard Guest, her husband, died three years ago at the age of 91 years. Mrs. Guest is still bright and cheery and able to go about easily, in spite of her years. Congratulations were showered upon her yesterday by her many friends.

CANADIAN CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

That the Women's Canadian club should have a membership of 1,000, was the appeal made to the organization yesterday afternoon by the newly-elected president, Mrs. John Stevely.

"We shouldn't feel that we have a Canadian club at all until we have 1,000 members," she declared in her presidential address before the club. Mrs. Stevely succeeds Mrs. F. W. Hughes, who has just completed a most successful term of three years in office. As a tribute to the retiring president, the club presented her with a large armful of Columbia roses, Mrs. Stevely, the new president, making the presentation.

There are 60 prizes in all, members of the Women's Canadian club visiting the schools Empire Day to make the presentations.

Yesterday's meeting was featured by a very interesting account of the recent International Council of Women sessions in Washington, given by Mrs. Tom Robson. The program also included attractive vocal numbers by Miss Muriel Lancaster, Miss Eleanor Kerr and Miss Rose Tuck. Mrs. H. V. Eckert acting as accompanist.

Suggestions For 1925.

An outstanding feature of the afternoon was Mrs. Arthur Greenslade's very excellent report of the year's work. The meeting also was featured by the reading of useful suggestions for next year's program. One idea was that afternoon tea should be made part of each meeting to promote intercourses among the members.

It was further suggested that members of the club or other Londoners be asked to debate a subject of interest before the members at one of the meetings next year. Lectures on subjects relating to the home, such as interior decorating and the science of cooking, were also suggested.

The membership of the club has been 380 this year, and 22 meetings were held with outstanding speakers. The total expenditure amounted to $1,152.82, according to the report of the treasurer, Mrs. A. T. Edwards.

Preceding the meeting, tea was served under the direction of Mrs. Mungo Nelles, convener of the social committee, assisted by Mrs. A. T. Edwards and Mrs. T. C. Benson. Mrs. Bowley Green and Mrs. A. T. Edwards presided over the tea table, made attractive with purple and gold tulips. The meeting was held in the schoolroom of the Talbot Street Baptist church.

MRS. FRED BLACKWELL,

DRAMATIC ABILITY TESTED IN CHURCH

Clever Contest Held at St. Mathew's This Week—Two Other Churches Complete.

An interesting event took place in St. Matthew's church this week, when Mrs. English, teacher of the Bible class of that church, arranged a dramatic contest.

Members of the A. Y. P. A. of the church as well as groups of players from the Church of the Redeemer and the Church of the Resurrection, presented clever half-hour plays, which ranged from drama to comedy. The players in each case did splendidly, and the evening's entertainment was a decided success, and the efforts of the young people were greatly appreciated by a large number of friends, who were present.

Certain rules were set up and the judges were Rev. Dr. McIntosh of the King Street Presbyterian church; Rev. A. E. M. Thomson of Centennial Methodist, and Miss Teasdale. Their decision was in favor of St. Mathew's, whose cast included Mrs. W. H. Johnston, Miss Connie Parker, Miss Beatrice Jones, Alfred Mawson, Miss Bessie Spence and Miss Mary Last. Their play was entitled "The Arrival of Billy," and it was quite humorous.

Rev. T. J. Charlton, rector of St. Matthew's, acted as chairman, and during the evening Miss Logan and Mr. Short contributed pleasing vocal solos, and Bruce Wells rendered a much-appreciated violin number. Miss Alice Dunlop also gave readings.

Porter, secretary-treasurer. The year's work was reviewed and the annual reports were very gratifying, showing a most successful year, in which much had been accomplished. At the conclusion of the meeting light refreshments were served by the hostess.

Let The Women Tell Their Story

Every woman is interested in another woman's letters, and we shall give the women a chance to present their experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food by quoting from their letters.

If you do not find anyone you know among these ladies, write us for references from people in your community, or ask your friends and neighbors for particulars about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

There is scarcely a town, village or hamlet in this great country but can produce splendid evidence as to the restorative, upbuilding influence of this well-known treatment for the blood and nerves.

Girlhood

MRS. M. E. ROBSON, 170 Dublin St., Peterboro', Ont., writes:—"My daughter of 15 lost appetite, color and was on the verge of nervous collapse. Five boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food completely restored her health and strength."

Womanhood

MRS. N. C. MCDONALD, RR. No. 2 Colborne, Ont., writes:—"When a girl, my health became run down. I was sleepless, had nervous headaches and finally developed St. Vitus' Dance. I was completely relieved by a course of treatment with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I am married now, have three children and have had no return of the old trouble."

Motherhood, Middle Life

MRS. A. ERNEST, R.R. No. 4, Walkerton, Ont., writes:—"For some time after the birth of my first child I was in a weak, nervous condition. I could not sleep well, had frequent headaches and buzzing in the ears. I also had neuralgic pains through my body, twitching of the nerves and was subject to weak spells. I had indigestion and seemed tired and languid. I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and found the results most satisfactory. I have used a great many different medicines, but never found one as good as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It is especially good for quieting the nerves and I feel very grateful for the good it has done me."

MRS. M. E. MCCARTHY, Gardner's Creek, St. John Co., N.B., writes:—"In my estimation there is no medicine that will so quickly build one up and restore the nervous system as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. From worry and hard work, I began to get behind as regards general health. It seemed as though each day some new ailment cropped up and before I realized it I was just about "down and out." I turned to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for help and was not disappointed. I took six boxes and felt like a girl of sixteen. My nerves are as steady as I could wish them to be and I am having no trouble at all in passing through that time of life when some women experience so much suffering."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

It is woman's greatest friend at every critical stage in her life and is endorsed by women everywhere. 60 cents a box of sixty pills, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

"From my experience as a wife and mother I find that the majority of users of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are women, especially women passing through the change of life; next by young mothers to regain strength after baby comes, and also by mothers for their young daughters entering their womanhood. While it is good for all classes of humanity, I am sure it is especially so for women, as they seem to be troubled most by nervous diseases."—MRS. H. ALCHORN, 23 Gerald Street, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Critical Age

MRS. C. NICOL, Gormley, Ont., writes:—"I consider that I owe a prolonged term of life to Dr. Chase's medicines. Like many others, when at the critical stage of middle age, I threw aside doctors' medicine and turned to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. For three months I continued to use this combined treatment and cannot find words to tell how much it helped me.

"I have recently been using Dr. Chase's Catarrh Powder for a stubborn case of catarrh, and it has relieved me greatly, having stopped the pain in the head and frequent headache from which I have been suffering."

Advanced Years

MRS. MARY ROWDON, 22 North St., St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"My husband died in February, 1923, at the age of 74 years, and after that my nerves became very bad. I started taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and have found it all you claim it to be. For run down constitution and tired, exhausted nerves, there is nothing like it."

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1925,

Should Be Determined Quickly.

Whether the fire department in London is so undermanned that some of the trucks leave to answer calls with an insufficient number of men to properly run them is a matter that should be decided very quickly.

A truck came along King street on Thursday night and, in trying to avoid a collision with a sedan, crashed into the curb and against a building at the corner of King and Talbot. The driver of the fire truck was seriously hurt.

Whether there was sufficient warning given of the coming of the truck is a question not yet determined. Driving a large truck with a very extensive wheelbase is plenty to engage a man's entire attention, and the fact that he takes right-of-way over other traffic increases the need for him to have nothing else to do but drive.

Provision is made in the regulations for a man to sit in the seat with the driver and keep the siren in operation. This should and must be done continuously to warn traffic of the approach of the speeding fire truck. It means safety for the public and for the fire-fighting apparatus as well, and, what is equally important, a quick trip to the scene of the fire.

It should be easy to determine whether there are sufficient men on the department to guarantee this margin of safety. If there are not, then there should be.

Then and Now.

The passing of a person of prominence today gives the star men on a newspaper staff the scope they desire to turn in a well-written story. It does not consist of merely relating the facts concerning the man, his achievements and the events leading up to his death, but the writer seeks to catch the spirit of the man's life and carry some portion of it back to his readers.

The obituary of Oliver Cromwell, published in papers of 1656, appeared in part as follows:

"His Most Serene and Renowned Highness, Oliver, Lord Protector, being after a sickness of about fourteen days (which appeared an ague in the beginning), began early this morning to draw near the Gate of Death, and it pleased God about 3 o'clock of the afternoon to put a period to his life."

Today the sickness and death of a man of equal prominence would have provided news from the first intimation of illness. Morning and evening papers would have carried bulletins from the sickroom in each edition. Staff artists would have been busy preparing old and recent portraits for immediate use; special writers would have his history in readiness, and word of his passing would have meant the release of a story, or many of them, each in its way a complete section of the biography of a great man.

It is a development that has come gradually, and for that reason it has been sanely and well worked out. In this way it is possible for the people of today to be infinitely better informed on current events than those of even a few generations ago, when the facilities for publishing news were more restricted than they are today.

Paul and His Message.

Sunday school scholars come this week to a lesson on Saul, afterward Paul. Apart from Christ himself, Paul is the outstanding figure in the New Testament, and it remained for him to give to the world a remarkable exposition of the Christian faith in its application to the lives of people.

If Paul were living today he might be termed in some quarters as narrow, and as not being tolerant enough of the views of others, but never could it be charged that he was not sincere. It might be that he would not fit in very well with some of the maze of organization that has been built up around the church of today, and it is quite possible that Paul might complain that some, if not much of it, tended to obscure the great mission of the church.

His theology was simple to the point of being blunt. He states it in his own words: "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." And from that theology he never departed. In the face of persecution by beating or stoning, with his feet fast in the stocks of a Roman prison—through shipwreck and privation—Paul never forgot his mission, nor did he complain. He entered the service of his Master expecting prosecution, for he knew well the temper of the times and the path that was his to travel. His was the faith that saw persecution as an opportunity for an outstanding testimony, and recognized in physical suffering the force that was to make him lean more heavily for support on his God. Through all and above all he was able to say, "All things work together for good to them that love God."

But Paul was the full-orbed Christian. He was not given to compromise, yet there comes to the surface all through his letters appeals to the early Christians to exercise those fine virtues that should be above all else the exclusive property of Christian people. He had a great open space in his teachings for love and mutual assistance. His theology, if it can be called that, was "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ." Or again, "And be ye kind to one another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God, for Christ's sake, has forgiven you."

It was certainly never in Paul's mind that there should be persecution carried on under the guise of the cross of Christ. He expected it for himself, but was not prepared to inflict it on others. This apostle even goes farther and bares the secret that made it possible for him "to run with patience the race" that was set before him, and it was all in the few words that he wrote to the Phillipians, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

Paul remains as one of the greatest exponents of the practical Christian life. In the center he held up Christ and Him crucified, and around that he built the lesser things. With his idea that Christ must increase but Paul must decrease, he found it possible to go even into detail of what he considered Christian standards. Probably nowhere have these been more forcefully stated than in the passage that reads, "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Teachers who have the opportunity to present the lesson on Paul to their classes have a wonderful opportunity, for they are dealing with the greatest exponent of practical, unadulterated Christianity who was ever called into the service of the Master.

Seeing and Knowing Canada.

The average school teacher travels because in travel is found new ideas and an intimate knowledge of many things that appear on the school course. It is of particular interest that Canadian teachers should know Canada, but the cost of travel has been one of the drawbacks. Last year the C. P. R. performed a commendable service in arranging a thoroughly Canadian trip for the teachers' federation.

This year a similar event is planned under the direction of Dean Laird of the school of teachers of MacDonald college, Quebec, and it has been so arranged that teachers will have an opportunity to gather a thorough knowledge of the Canadian west. It will make it possible for the east to know the west, and the cost has been so reduced as to make it an attractive proposal. Money spent on travel pays good dividends in more ways than one.

Macdonald and McDonald.

There was a Macdonald and a McDonald working on the treatment for high blood pressure recently described before the Ontario Medical Association. Dr. Macdonald of St. Catharines took his ideas to a clinic laboratory in Hamilton, where it was found that the other McDonald, a chemist, had been experimenting for some time on similar work but on different lines. So it came that William McDonald, F.C.I.C., worked out the chemical development of the ideas supplied by William Macdonald, M.D.

And it is at this stage that another William McDonald, ex-M.L.A., comes in to rejoice mildly over the success, the third McDonald being the publisher of the Chesley Enterprise, and the father of the chemist. And the newspaper fraternity will rejoice with him over this worthy son of a worthy publisher.

Your Own Home

No landlord yells at me no more, I dread not now his monthly call, I dab red paint upon the floor and drive great spikes upon the wall.

Long years I dwelt in rented homes, and to the landlord paid my kale, nor missed a month for fear that I be sentenced to the county jail. Most landlords be a goodly sort, but watchin' of me now and then, for fear I turned my humble hut into a mangled pauper's pen.

It always grated on my nerve to ask him for a quart of paint, or sendin' men to fix the place to look up somewhat like it ain't.

My landlord come to me one day and threatened for to take the law, or bat a hammer on my skull or bounce his fist upon my jaw, for I had driv great six-inch spikes to hang my Sunday hat upon, him holdin' how a trick like that be wicked like and powerful wrong.

So when he went I reckoned up the cash I had within my jeans, me bein' a humble sort of jay, not blessed with hunks of worldly means.

But when I scooped my roubles up and started out to buy a home, I quickly got a humble shack, a dwellin' we could call our own.

Sweet liberty she come to me, for in that house where now I dwell, free fancy runs its race uncurbed, we fix it up in ways what's swell. And if I want red paint to go and decorate the kitchen floor, there be no landlord on my neck a-belchin' forth an awful roar.

And when I want to drive some nails to hang thereon my Sunday vest, there be no man to grab me down and sit a spell upon my chest.

I drive great spikes into the wall and chop the kindlin' on the floor, such pleasant things could not be done the way I lived on heretofore. And when we paper up the house we put on green and blue and pink, I grow great thistles in the yard, dump ashes in the kitchen sink.

If I want windows where there's none I call ten neighbors to my aid, and gouge great holes into the wall, none cause me now to be afraid.

I scratch the matches on the door, and carve my toothpicks from the wall, when days be wet the youngsters come and toss their horseshoes in the hall.

Sweet peace has come to dwell with me, contentment dwells within my dome, since I first shelled my roubles out and went and bought myself a home.—ARK.

Driver Who Has Seen Towers in Operation Elsewhere Would Have No Officer and Let the Automatic Run It.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—It seems certain that the new traffic control signals installed at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets are to be made the occasion of endless inconvenience and annoyance to vehicular traffic, despite the fact that their best purposes have been well worked out in cities big and little all over this continent. The writer has driven under the same system in many cities and in traffic of great density, and has not found officials in the pop-eyed throes of gooseflesh over what should be done about it. If an automatic time control is put on these lights and the tower locked up, the system will do a better job automatically than can be done by any less than an extraordinarily fine traffic policeman.

I see that the city engineer wants to shut off not only left-hand turns but right as well. Ald. Douglass, we are told, opposes him, and he is right. In New York city, on Fifth avenue, in the heart of the retail shopping district, where the big Fifth avenue buses and fleets of taxis add to general congestion, there is no confusion. Frequently there are no police even in the traffic towers. East and west traffic, which is over the side streets, has usually a half-minute, and the north and south traffic a minute and a half. Between changes, while the amber light is showing, a 10 or 15 second interval is allowed while the left hand turns are taken. It is easy on everyone and there is no confusion. Even a stranger who has never seen New York can catch the idea by watching one change.

Woodward avenue, Detroit; Main street, Buffalo; Euclid avenue, Cleveland; Atlantic avenue, Atlantic City, Broad street, Philadelphia, and scores of others permit turns. Occasionally, left-hand turns are prohibited when other streets where the turn is permitted are a short distance away. There is seldom or never a ban on right turns. Add a flock of "verbotens" to Dundas and Richmond streets and you will cause endless trouble, and the tourist traffic will be herded into the back streets, where downtown storekeepers will never get a crack at them.

Offer of Assistance to Enter Prosecution Against the Shooting of Pet Dog By Constable in Kingsville.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—Kindly accept the gratitude of a dog-lover for having brought to public attention the case of little Alfred Pierce, Kingsville boy, whose dog was shot and killed by one Brown, who seems to be putting to bad use the job that gives his ilk subsistence at the public trough. If the circumstances as related in the despatch are accurately stated, and if the writer has a reasonably accurate knowledge of the rights and limitations of a man, whether chief of police or not, to discharge firearms on the public highways and to destroy the property of a boy not able to frighten him off by some show of physical resistance, then this chief of police is open to prosecution and it should be done. If the boy, or his family, or any humane society in London or elsewhere will take this person into court the writer herewith subscribes $5 to open a fund to cover the costs of doing it right.

The brutal act of shooting this pet, and that on a public street, and in the presence of its little owner, is an act of tyrannical officiousness that calls for the severest condemnation.

THREE LOST AS CATTLE SCOW OVERTURNS IN ST. LAWRENCE

Tragedy Occurs Near Cornwall in Swift River Current.

LIVESTOCK PERISH

Brother of One Victim Drowned At Same Spot Few Years Ago.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Cornwall, Ont., May 15.—Three lives were lost by drowning in the St. Lawrence River at Barnhart's island this afternoon, when a scow engaged in ferrying livestock from the Canadian side to Barnhart's Island on the United States side, turned turtle at a very swift point in the river.

Several sheep and young cattle were also lost in the disaster, which was the worst drowning accident to occur in this locality for a number of years.

The victims of the accident comprised the owner of the scow. They were Donald McMillan, Abel Vice and Clarence Cowell. None of the bodies has so far been recovered.

A unique fact in connection with the tragedy is that a little more than three years ago Lorne McMillan, a brother of one of the victims, was drowned in almost the same spot.

THREATENS FRESH FRONTIER DISPUTE

France May Demand Policing of War Zone By Spanish Troops.

By OLIVER FOX.

Special Cable to The Advertiser and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright.

Madrid, May 14.—Abd-El-Krim's attack on the French protectorate in Morocco is closely engaging the attention of students of the Moroccan question owing to the effects it may have on the international outlook in Morocco.

The day of reckoning is approaching for the situation created by withdrawal of Spanish troops last autumn. Spain contends there is nothing in treaty engagements to oblige her to occupy within a given time her protectorate zone in Morocco.

The rise of Abd-El-Krim to sufficient power to make a bid for supreme authority in Morocco, a power he acquired at Spain's expense, and which he maintains arms and munitions captured from her, is a "new fact," from which many things may spring.

French War On Riffs.

The French republic is obliged to support the sultan of Morocco and now is, to all intents and purposes, at war with Abd-El-Krim. French lives and treasure are being expended in defence of a frontier which never has been delimited, and which is marked differently on French and Spanish maps. Therefore, one of the consequences of the fighting which now is taking place may well be a frontier dispute on interpretation of the somewhat vague articles of the Franco-Spanish treaty of 1912 which attempted to describe a land which nobody had visited.

It is possible, therefore, that France will be obliged sooner or later to call upon Spain to undertake seriously police operations in her zone.

Soviet Funds Used.

In well-informed circles it is stated that Soviet funds have been supplied to Abd-El-Krim via Germany. Abd-El-Krim, however, seems to have accepted the gold, but not to have obeyed yet the accompanying instructions, which were to make a drive on Tangier.

NEARLY ALL BUSH FIRES HAVE BEEN EXTINGUISHED

Associated Press Despatch.

Fort William, May 15.—No reports of further destruction by bush fires have been received today. There are numerous small fires in the vicinity, but they died down to some extent during the night, which was calm and windless.

So far the fires have been confined to the more settled areas, and there seems to be no immediate danger to the larger pulp limits.

GREGORY REPORT FULL OF ERRORS

Great Harm Has Been Done to Ontario, Says Beck.

FALSE CONCLUSIONS

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 15.—Vigorous denuciations of the report of the recent Hydro-Electric inquiry Commission—popularly known as the "Gregory Commission"—appointed under the Drury administration of the Province of Ontario to investigate the operation of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario was issued today by the latter body in the form of a printed statement entitled "Erros and misrepresentations made by the Hydro Electric inquiry commission known as the Gregory Commission—respecting the public owned and operated Hydro Electric Power undertaking of municipalities in the Province of Ontario".

In this statement the assertion is uncompromisingly made that the Gregory report is "Permeated by incorrect and misleading statements", particularly concerning the relation that certain conclusions reached and comments made by the Gregory Commission bear to the evidence submitted at its hearings.

"It is these inaccuracies and misrepresentations" says the statement which have caused the Gregory Committee report to be so injurious." And Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Committee says that statements from the Gregory Committee report are, in an injurious manner, being disseminated throughout the United States.

The present statement consists of a foreword by Sir Adam Beck chairman of the Hydro Commission, which is followed by a detailed discussion of various "Errors and misrepresentations" the Gregory report is said to embody. The commission's statement throughout is supported by extensive citations and refenences to governmental and other accredited documents.

LOMBARDO BOYS COMING TO LOEW'S

London's Own Orchestra Is Returning After Two Years in Cleveland.

London's Own Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadian orchestra, who have been such an outstanding success for the past two years in Cleveland, Ohio, are returning to London to play at Loew's Theatre, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Lombardo's popularity is easily seen from the stories that have been printed about him and his band in the Cleveland newspapers. On every occasion that he has appeared he has been forced to give four, five and six encores to each number. Arrangements have just been completed for Lombardo to play from the Willard battery radio station, and from the information his band will be one of the highest paid radio bands in the air.

Londoners should avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing Lombardo and his Royal Canadians and should turn out and give the boys a rousing reception.

"OH, YES" COMING TO GRAND SOON

All Previous Efforts Eclipsed in New Dumbell Revue.

When Captain Plunkett and his ever-welcome "Dumbells" come to the Grand theatre for three days only, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee, May 28, 29 and 30, they will offer an entirely new and highly diverting revue entitled "Oh, Yes!"

The same splendid cast, chorus and orchestra that made "Ace High" the best liked of the entire series of Dumbells revues up to that time, have eclipsed their previous efforts and achievements by making "Oh, Yes!" an even better entertainment than "Ace High."

Probably one of the biggest factors that has made for the success of this new revue is that it is timely. "Oh, Yes!" is a springtime attraction. The songs, the playlets, the action, the scenery, the costumes—everything pertaining to the performance—has been written, composed, built, painted and produced, and is being sung, danced and played with youth, laughter, love and romance, as embodies in the spirit of Maytime, as the keynote.

Another innovation to be found in "Oh, Yes!" is the increased number of short scenes and playlets. There are just as many song numbers as ever, but they have been more closely woven into the fabric of the action itself. For instance, there is a delightful little cameo scene between Stan Bennett and "Jock" Holland. A clever little thing called Scene and Heard in the Dark, with the entrance of a London 'tube" as its setting. During the action of this sketch Holland sings Take No Notice, Bennett sings Never As Long As I live, and they wind up the act with The Stile At the End of the Lane.

The two principal sketches, A Home From Home and Red Justice, each have their song hits, while The Midnight Cabaret scene introduces an all-star sextet in Goo-Goo, Ross Hamilton in The Sunrise and You, and a jazzy dance number by Glen Allan.

Of the outstanding individual song hits, Al. Plunkett's songs, My Mother's Lullaby and Do Shrimps Make Good Mothers? Ross Hamilton sings I Love Them All and Lips I Have Kissed. Stan Bennett offers Colonel Lipstick of the Coldstream Guards, and Pat Rafferty scores in Lips That Touch Kippers Shall Never Touch Mine.

"Red" Newman has two dandy songs in Keep the Money in the Country, and How Does Milk Get Into Cocoanuts?

"Oh, Yes!"—it's a great show. Don't miss it.

Mail orders now accepted if accompanied by check, express or post-office order plus tax. Box office sale opens Monday, May 25, at 9 a.m.

GAS ATTENDANT HURT BY EXPLOSION OF TIRE

Woodstock Service Station Hurt by Flying Bits of Steel.

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, May 15. — John Meadows, an employee of a local automobile service station, was badly cut about the face and neck when parts of the steel rim of an automobile wheel struck him. A truck had drawn up to the service station for air, and the tire was being inflated when it burst with a loud explosion, hurling fragments of the steel rim into Meadows' face and throwing another bystander a distance of about ten feet with the force of the concussion. The wounds on Meadows' face required a number of stitches.

Bees Are Killed By Tree Spray

Elgin Keepers Complain of Havoc Wrought.

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, May 15.—C. W. Buchanan, agricultural representative for Elgin county, has received a number of complaints from beekeepers living on the outskirts of the city. They report that certain small fruit growers, are spraying fruit trees while in blossom. Mr. Buchanan makes it clear that there is a heavy penalty for such an offence, as the bees are poisoned with the spraying solution and die. Experts claim that it is not necessary to spray fruit trees at this period, the proper time being after the petals fall from the blossoms.

Talks On Health

Dengue Fever Present in Manila Practically Always—X-Ray Often Useful in Treating Boils—Alcohol Does Not Develop Body Tissues.

Edited by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association and member of the staff of Hygeia.

In this column, published every Saturday, there appear discussions of subjects related to health, hygiene and the prevention of disease, and condensed statements of articles written for Hygeia, the official organ of the American Medical Association, for the public; also answers to questions provided by authorities through the association. Requests for specific medical advice or diagnosis, which can be given only by the physician on seeing the patient, will be answered by a note to that effect. This department is especially prepared for The Advertiser and other members of the North American Newspaper Alliance, with the co-operation of Hygeia. All questions should be accompanied by a stamped addressed envelope.

DENGUE FEVER.

Dengue fever is a condition that occurs occasionally in the southern part of the United States and along the Atlantic coast. In Manila it is endemic, which means that the disease is present in that city practically all the time. A person with this disease usually has a mild fever for several days. In the beginning he suffers with chilliness, headache, backache, pain in the eyes and a feeling of weakness, the tongue may be coated, the glands of the body enlarged and there may be a slight red-colored rash over the abdomen and on other parts of the body. The temperature falls gradually, and after a week the patient usually recovers completely.

When this disease appears in a community it apparently spreads rapidly, and attempts have been made by many research investigators to find the cause of the disease, the way in which it is transmitted, and whether or not a person may succumb to frequent attacks. Because of the location of the areas in which this disease most commonly appears, there has been for some ten years a well established belief that the disease is transmitted by mosquitoes. Now Drs. J. F. Siler, M. W. Hall and A. P. Hitchens of the United States army medical department, have completed experiments which prove absolutely the transmission of this disease by the mosquito and indicate the proper method for its prevention.

They were aided in their work by 42 soldiers of the United States army who volunteered for the experiment, and who submitted themselves to biting mosquitoes that had previously bitten persons suffering with dengue fever. They were able to produce dengue fever in 25 of the 42 volunteers. The mosquito may secure the infection from the patient during the first three days of the disease.

Evidently the infection does not develop in the mosquito until 11 days after the time it bites a patient. If it is permitted to bite a normal person during the first ten days, it does not produce the infection. It was found also that this infective capacity is retained by the mosquito for at least 66 days. Apparently only one type of mosquito is involved in the transmission of the disease, the form known by scientists as the "aedes egypti," also called the "stegomyia fasciatus."

Finally, the mosquitoes that had been infected with this fever were permitted to bite ten persons who already had dengue fever. Fifty-eight per cent of these persons did not develop a new infection, and those who did develop it were sick a shorter number of days than on the first occasion when they were infected. The studies of dengue fever are of great interest, because the method of transmission is the same as that for yellow fever. Dengue fever, however, never results in death, and is in every way a much milder condition than is yellow fever.

ALCOHOL.

Physicans have always been concerned with the effects of alcohol on the human body; first, because some of the effects are closely allied to the conditions of health; second, because the place of alcohol in our social and economic lives has been of considerable importance in the past and still attracts a large amount of our interest. Regardless of the misuse of alcohol by those who drink themselves into unconsciousness, the most debated fact among physicians has been on the question as to whether or not alcohol has any special food value which makes it a desirable adjunct to the practice of medicine.

Dr. Francis S. Benedict, director of the Boston nutrition laboratory of the Carnegie institute of Washington, has just published figures to show that alcohol taken into the human body in not too large doses is used by the body and that it may contribute to keep the body warm and to aid the performance of muscular work. He felt, in fact, that small doses of alcohol are more completely used up by the body than any other substance, with the possible exception of pure sugar. On the other hand, alcohol does not aid the development of the tissue of the body in any manner.

The problem for the physician who wants to use alcohol in cases in which the body needs a quickly usable, nutrient substance is to determine whether or not the social, economic and psychologic factors involved are such as to permit him to avail himself of this substance. Recently-published literature indicates that practically all persons have slow response to stimulation, less accurate vision and poor co-ordination between the movements of the eye and the hand two to five hours after moderate doses of alcohol.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Boils.

W. F. writes: Please let me know the causes and cure of boils. My son has had them for a year and a half. He has taken serum treatments and blood treatments with no result. I had a cousin who had boils for two years, but has lost the prescriptions that cured him, and the doctor who prescribed for him is now dead. One of the remedies was a dry powder to dust on the boils.

Ans.—It is not possible to precribe intelligently for boils without an examination of the person afflicted, and a thorough knowledge of his history. Often boils are persistent and continue to appear for a long time in one spot or another, and then within a short time disappear and do not return.

X-rays are often useful in the treatment of this condition, but such cases can be successfully handled only by a competent physician after a thorough examination.

Removing Scars.

M. E. W. writes: Will you please tell me if there is any way of removing scars from the abdomen, caused by childbirth? What can a prospective mother do to prevent these marks?

Ans.—Undue scarring results from an unduly large child, frequent child bearing and a small pelvis. (The latter is determined in the infancy of the prospective mother.) The unduly large child is partly due to the physique of the father and partly to the amount of starchy food eaten by the mother and also the amount of exercise done with her abdominal muscles.

The mother may use some oily preparation for massaging the abdomen during pregnancy; this slightly diminishes the amount of scarring. Wearing of a properly fitted girdle minimizes the amount of scarring.

There is no way of removing the scars following pregnancy, but the reddened area changes to a silvery color after some time, thereby rendering the scar less conspicuous.

BEST MEDICINE SHE EVER USED

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Highly Praised By a Nova Scotia Lady.

Among the well-known and esteemed residents of Hemford, N. S., is Mrs. Amanda Woodworth. Some four years ago Mrs. Woodworth had the misfortune to lose her husband, and as a result of caring for him during his illness, and attending to farm duties, she became terribly rundown. Mrs. Woodworth says she felt as though her blood had turned to water. The least exertion would leave her tired and breathless. She was often attacked by spells of weakness that left her almost speechless, and frequently suffered from severe headaches. The medicines she took did not help her, and she almost despaired of gaining her health. In this condition she one day read in a newspaper of a case very similar to her own, in which health was restored through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This made her decide to give these pills a trial. After using a few boxes she found the pills were helping her, and she continued their use until her oldtime health and vitality were restored. Now Mrs. Woodworth looks after a small farm of fifteen acres, besides doing all her housework, and says she never felt better or more energetic in her life. She gives credit for her present splendid health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which she says are the best medicine she ever used, and strongly recommends the pills to all rundown people.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box, from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.—Advt. b

A Saving of $36,000,000

According to the most conservative calculation, American motorists pay $36,000,000 a year for chassis lubrication.

And that sum represents but a fraction of the saving that motorists would enjoy if all cars were, like the Cleveland Six, equipped with the

"One-Shot" Lubrication System

(Licensed under Bowen Products Co. patents)

This exclusive, high pressure system does more than eliminate the actual cost of having a garage or service station lubricate vital bearings.

It eliminates the inconvenience of leaving the car to have it done or of doing the job yourself. It reduces service, maintenance, and depreciation costs. And it guarantees a properly functioning, smoothly operating car at all times.

For you simply step on a plunger and every moving part is flushed with clean, live lubricant. Any Cleveland Six dealer will show you.

Radio Answers

BY C. H. LANGFORD

This department is conducted in this column every Saturday. Questions on any radio problem you may have or information desired may be sent in. As many of these questions as possible will be answered in the Saturday edition. Address all communications to The Radio Department, The London Advertiser, London, Ont.

Of importance to local listeners is the fact that if they are subjected to occasional interference on their sets to inquire through their neighborhood if any one uses any form of battery charger that is of the vibrating reed type. These chargers generate considerable interference under usual conditions, and where there are a number in any one vicinity, interference will be extreme. The above applies only when the charger is in operation and where no special precaution is taken to overcome this nuisance. There is a remedy for this in a very simple manner. All that is necessary is to connect a one-half or one microfarod condenser across the contacts of the vibrating reed. Not only will this eliminate the interference locally but will save the owner of the charger the exepense of buying contact points so often. The condenser absorbs the small spark which is so destructive to the contacts and at same time stopping the source of interference at its start. The condensers to use are conveniently made up in small tin cases, with leads attached. They are usually known as a telephone stopping condenser. Time required to attach condenser is about five minutes. If further information is necessary this may be had by asking any radio dealer or writer.

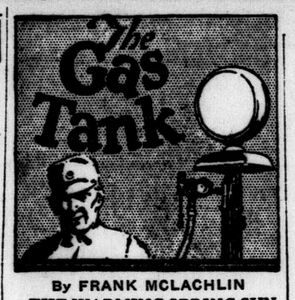
There are other types of interference that are experienced in some localities. A new form of antenna has recently been brought out by a concern in Aberdeen, Washington, U. S. A. This antenna uses wires that cross each other at intervals, yet do not touch. Spreaders keep the two wires apart and two insulators at the end of each spreader (which are spaced every few feet) to keep wires apart. This transposing of the two wires is said to neutralize practically all electrical interference. In conjunction with the regular antenna—a second antena, known as a counterpoise is suspended beneath the regular antenna and used in place of the usual ground connection. The counterpoise does not necessarily have to be suspended directly below the special aerial. The static ratio is also claimed to be considerably lowered by this combination aerial system. The above system will be tried out locally and details of success had will be given at a later date.

H. G. of city writes: I am installing receiving set, consisting of one stage tuned radio and two stage audio amplifier. What phones would you advise buying? I want good phones that will last and not have to be thrown away after short time. What make of tubes should I get? Is stranded aerial wire better than solid wire? I intend putting up an aerial, using one wire 40 feet high and 70 feet long. Also another aerial at right angles to this one of same size. Intend to use a double-throw switch, so that I can use either antenna I want. I have been told that the direction your lead-in is taken off, the broadcasting stations in that direction will come in clearer than those facing the opposite end of the aerial. Is that so? Can B batteries be recharged?

Ans.—Sorry, but it is against policy to recommend any particular make of apparatus. Suggest that you get phones somewhat over 2,000 ohms resistance. Phones sold today are selling at prices that correspond with quality built in them. The same applies to tubes. Buy genuine tubes that have quality built in them. When you buy cheap tubes that is just what you have. New Dutch tubes are making appearance on the Canadian market and are reported excellent. These are the only foreign tubes that should be looked at. The aerial you speak of should be capable of giving you good results. Solid or stranded wire o. k. Solid enamel good if obtainable. Sometimes a directional effect is noted on certain stations. B batteries of the storage type can be recharged. Dry B batteries cannot.

C. N. D. of St. Thomas, Ont., writes: I wish to know why I cannot get stations in the daytime? At night all manner of stations are heard. Also I cannot hear KYW.. Can you explain this? My set is of single circuit type.

Ans.—Radio waves, called electromagnetic waves, are set up near the earth's surface and are partly transmitted along the earth's surface, modified by refractions and absorptions at its irregularities. In daytime the upper conducting boundary is less definitely marked than at night on account of ionization of the air by the sun's rays. At night, when the upper boundary is more sharply defined, there is more reflection of the space wave, which in general gives stronger signals at night. Adding a few turns of wire to your receiver or coil will enable you to get KYW.



By FRANK MCLACHLIN

THE WARMING SPRING SUN is bringing out the buds and birds and cars by the thousand. Never do we remember so many cars on the road this early in the season. Over Sunday we covered a stretch on the east of town, and it seemed that all the world and his wife and family were speeding into the country. Certainly looks as if another record automobile year is in the making. We're ready with 21 new models. This year, too, is Studebaker year.

"Oh, Don't You Remember When—"

Frankly, we'd forgotten how much progress has been made of recent years in motoring conveniences. A delighted woman purchaser gave us this reminder. It seems half a century but it's only 20 odd years or so since the old days when we just had to crank up in starting; when we had bright and shiny but deuced-hard-to-keep-clean headlights of polished brass; when we pinched an India rubber ball for a horn; when getting out and under was the rule instead of the exception as nowadays; when — but you remember yourselves.

We're a long step ahead from those old days, aren't we? And new improvements are coming regularly along. F'rinstance on the new Studebaker models, the old spark lever on the steering wheel has departed. In its place is the lighting switch — right at the finger tips, where it should be, for night driving. Spark control is now automatic. And the old emergency brake lever has been taken away, leaving much more room in the front seat. Now the emergency lever has become a pistol grip handle neatly tucked under the instrument board. The instruments are now grouped together under glass, with a clock and gasoline gauge among them. Great improvements, these. They add very considerably to the pleasure of driving, as any Studebaker owner will tell you.

BILL Says:

"It ain't how much you pay for a car, so much as how much a car costs you!"

And that's something you don't find out until after you've driven it a few thousand miles.

Salaams to Mrs. Motorist

It's the women who seem to be buying the cars these days. With and without husbands, they come into showrooms and make known their requirements in a business like way that would show up many a man. Technical questions, too, they ask. Nothing is beyond them. And when they're through questioning, there's very little worth knowing about the car that they haven't touched on. No, they don't buy so readily as menfolk. They're shoppers—out to compare values, out to get the most for their money. And we think it's good for the auto industry. It means more cars will be sold on their merits alone, instead of somebody's say-so. Course, Studebaker welcomes that, because Studebaker values are greater. Women are discovering it. We take off our hat and bow respectfully to Mrs. Motorist.

CARE IN DRIVING WITH LIGHTS AT NIGHT.

"SAFETY LIGHTS" SHOULD BE ON EVERY AUTO.

"Most of the fatigue and strain from night driving of a motor car comes from bending over to grope for a light switch on the instrument board to dim headlamps just at the critical moments when eyes should be kept on the road," believes Frank McLachlin, local Studebaker dealer.

"Since the advent of our new line of cars," he declares, "I have had any number of persons comment on the relief, the safety and convenience of one of its new features—the location of all lighting control on the steering wheel, at finger tips.

"Formerly, on meeting another car in the country, one had to bend over and down twice to dim the headlamps. Moreover, he had to look away from the road to find the switch, just at a moment when he ought to be watching the road.

"That constant bending over was hard work, an enforced exercise which kept him fatigued when he wanted to sit back on comfortable seats and rest, enjoying the evening. The strain on nerves of having to look away from the road added to the unpleasantness of night driving.

"On our cars he need never take his eyes from the road. Moreover, just when abreast of the coming car a finger throws on the lights.

"So many drivers tell me of the new convenience and the new release from strain and hard work, that I believe the tendency which was displayed at the automobile shows, of bringing the light control on to the wheel, started by Studebaker, will become general with all cars when their first changes in construction are announced.

MECCA PILGRIMS SAIL AFTER WAR ZONE DELAY

London, May 15. — The Bombay correspondent of the Morning Post reports that the first shipload of pilgrims to Mecca is sailing from Bombay tomorrow, after being held up for weeks, because of the fighting in the kingdom of the Hedjaz, where the Moslem holy city is situated.

The contingent, numbering 1,200, will disembark at Rabigh. The correspondent says much concern is felt in Bombay, as the route from Rabigh to Mecca lies through the war zone.

FIRE LOSSES HIGHER.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 15.—Fire losses in Canada during the week ended May 13 are estimated by the Monetary Times at $1,612,500, compared with $434,500 the previous week, and with $583,700 the corresponding week of last year.

"Go ahead, but they must be up to the Studebaker standard—"

WITH this injunction, Studebaker engineers set out to design the Studebaker Standard Six and Special Six Coaches several months ago. There could be no compromise in quality. The new Studebaker Coaches had to maintain Studebaker's time-honored reputation for quality. They could be coaches IN NAME ONLY!

Tribe Makes Bid To Sweep Series With Formidable Wolves By Taking First

Concentrate Blows in Two Big Innings to Insure Well-Earned Victory.

JOE BREAKS JINX

IKE BAKER'S crew of local tribesmen still perched upon the dizzy top rung of the abbreviated ladder of the Mint last night as a result of their 7 to 4 win over the 1924 champions, Bay City.

Two big innings of concentrated sock earned the locals their victory, but the fanettes on the first ladies' day got their thrills with the constant snarls of the Wolves and Joe Delman, even though he was safely ensconced behind a four-run lead, got a real fright in the ninth, when, with two gone, Knothe and Ashley banged out triples so fast that the echoes produced a static. With the memory of two defeats in the ninth inning still fresh in his mind, there was little enough comfort even in a three-run score margin for Joseph. Baker gave a hurried look at the score-board, and then concluded to leave Joe to his fate. This happened to be nothing worse than a short fly to center from Rawlins' bat, which Klein gobbled.

Clustered Hitting.

The hitting rhythm that the Tecs have struck insures them a pretty fair chance of sweeping the series with today's game and giving the Londoners a comfortable lead to take with them into the wilds of Michigan.

Joe Delman hurled a nice steady game, although he was in plain sight of possible trouble quite often during the filt. He got by the fourth and fifth without allowing a hit, but walked two in the latter round, so that the fans wouldn't starve for the apprehensive thrills. Thrilling support at critical junctures also aided the big blonde boy's cause.

The tribesmen used up one of Manager Brenn's pitchers in the first frame. Klein single, Hughes' bad throw to first to catch Baker napping on Stimpson's fly out, and singles by Cross, Rose and Kernan all were grist for four runs and the exit of Miller. Hasty, who took over the hill, retired Walton on a foul, and then threatened to hold the Londoners while the Bay City batters found a weak spot. He got along nicely on this idea until Jim Kernan decided their wasn't excitement enough and plunked in a long triple to right in the sixth. Walton's sacrifice fly scored this. The idea misfired entirely in the seventh, during which the Tecs concentrated a bombardment of four hits. Sandquist's triple driving in the last two of three runs which came here.

A single by Brown, a walk to Prysock and Walton's misplay on Cline's smash gave the Tecs a deficit in the first frame.

Baker's high throw, a walk to Rawlins and Hasty's sacrifice had Delman hurling careful in the fourth, but he took Hughes' hot grounder himself for a third out.

Generosity.

In the fifth two were gone when Delman was struck with an ill-timed generous streak and walked two. Sandquist took Knothe's wicked submarine grounder for a killing at third.

Ashley's single opened the sixth. Mike Baker leaped into the air and stabbed Rawlin's hard drive as it took a bad hop behind second, and, still off stride, got his man at first. Hughes was hit, and then Brown's tallied Ashley.

Brown drove another run in in the eighth after Blackstock, pinch-hitting, and Hughes had singled.

Prysock opened the ninth with a single. Cline hit into a double-play.

HOWARD HARTRY.

The amusement program for the W. O. B. A. bowlers this year is in good hands. Howard Hartry and W. J. Ashplant have been elected to look after this department.

but the decision at first on him was close, very close. It didn't mean a thing as things turned out, except that it would have been one more run for the Wolves.

Heart Was Weak Nerves All Gone

Mrs. J. H. Hallenbeck, 117½ Welland avenue, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"I was in a gas explosion; it left me with a weak heart, and my nerves were all gone. I suffered everything; couldn't sleep, or endure any excitement, and when left alone I felt as if I could scream. I took dizzy spells, often falling and bruising myself. My mother read about your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and bought me a box, but having taken so many different kinds of medicine it just seemed that I did not have any confidence in any of them. I took one box of H. & N. Pills, and felt so much better I continued with them until I had used five boxes, and after I had taken them I did not need any more. I cannot praise or recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills too highly after all they have done for me."

WARD'S BUNT DECIDES.

Chicago, May 15.—Kamm's wild throw of Ward's bunt sent two runs across the plate in the ninth for New York today, which gave the visitors a 6—5 victory over Chicago in the final game of the series. Pipp's double and Meusel's homer were responsible for the Yankees' first four runs. Chicago bunched two hits with three bases on balls and two errors for their first three runs and Sheeley's homer in the eighth gave the locals their fourth run.

LOST AND FOUND.

The most sudden case of a pitcher suddenly finding the one factor which he needed to make his pitching successful was that of young Webb of Hamilton, who hurled the Mint league's first—and it may be the last—no-hit, no-run game against Flint yesterday.

The case of Webb and of Bussler, the big Flint pitcher, was being discussed the other night. Both had failed to stay the route, and yet both were marked out as promising pitchers.

"I'd like to have someone tell me why Webb can't win ball games?" one of the Hamilton men asked. "He has everything. A beautiful curve, a remarkably fast ball and proper aim. He knows the game, he can field his position, and yet he is beaten every start." The answer coming from a critic, was this: "Webb is everything you say, as far as we have been able to tell in a few innings. But he never will be a good pitcher until he develops a change of pace. He didn't show me a slow ball all the time he was working. Every curve, every fast ball was thrown with the same speed. Batters were able to get a 'toe hold' and pound the ball hard. I'm surprised that a man who has been in baseball as long as you have is unable to tell Webb what is wrong."

Apparently Webb was handed this good advice, or found the information himself. Certainly no pitcher, who lacked change of pace, could set the Flint club down without a hit or run.

DEEP STUFF.

The only time local fans were treated to much in the way of deep stuff was the first year Wetzel was here, and the first season London won a pennant. Bill Dowling, who had played on the Chicago White Sox—on the bench—for many seasons—was a bear for signals. The silent Wetzel also gave credence to the widely-held opinion amongst local fans that every move of the then Tecumsehs was the result of some signal from the depths of the London dugout, where Buzz was variously pictured, a la Mugsey McGraw, signalling every pitch, and as the brain centre of the team generally.

This, it became afterwards more or less noised abroad, was some distance from the truth. If Buzz was in deep thought about the pressing problems of a ball game, the team never heard about it. He gave ordinary routine orders to batters going up and things like that,—an interrupted a yawn to do these little things very often, too.

However, Bill Dowling, as field captain, did use a system of signalling to the outfielders. The London outfielders, Stimpson, Crichlow and Schaefer, of that date used the "shift with the pitch." Dowling used to signal every pitch. The outfielders using their knowledge of the bater's habits and what should happen if he hit an inside fast ball, or an outside curve, got set for the expected blow, and theoretically had the advantage.

There is something to all this, and again it is as Mike Baker might say in a moment of carelessness, and for the sake of emphasis, the "bunk." If outfielders getting the signal on the pitch make the move too soon, the batters soon learn to reverse the deductive process, and what the pitcher is going to hurl—or try to—is an open book to them.

Signals listen deep, but the outfielder, with a good memory of where opposing batters generally hit, average fleetness of foot, and that instinctive judgment of the ear, which tells him approximately the distance and the height of the ball as soon as the bat meets horsehide, can struggle along manfully without the tips from the infield.

ENGLAND AND IRELAND WON THEIR MATCHES

Miss Wethered and Miss Leitch Both Won Golf Matches.

Associated Press Despatch.

Troon, Scotland, May 15. — England beat Scotland 8 matches to 1 and Ireland beat Wales 7 matches to 2 today in the international golf contests between picked teams of women representing England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. These plays are preliminary to the women's open golf championship play, which will commence here Monday.

Miss Joyce Wethered, holder of the British women's open championship, defeated Miss C. Montgomery, Scottish champion, 7 and 6. Miss Cecil Leitch, former British champion, defeated Miss Audrey Kyle, 8 and 7. Miss M. Cox, Welsh champion, defeated Miss Janet Jackson of Ireland, 3 and 2.

The British international matches were played in beautiful weather today. Last year at Portsmouth England gained an easy victory by winning 24 matches against 18 by Ireland, 9 by Scotland and 3 by Wales.

At the conclusion of play today England had defeated Ireland 9 to 0. Scotland beat Wales 7 to 2.

TERRIER PUP GOALIE GOES TO GREEN SHIRTS

Roll-Call Finds Galt Senior Hockey Team Intact.

Special to The Advertiser.

Galt, May 15.—A roll-call taken of the local talent this morning revealed that none of the senior Terriers had done the fly-by-night stunt, but one of the Terrier pups, Harold Bolt, goalkeeper, had changed his address to Kitchener, where it is said he will guard the twine for Harry Wismen's Big Six Green Shirts, Cuney Woods, last year's goalkeeper, having deserted them. Bolt is one of the most promising goal guardians in this part of Ontario. He played a few games for the seniors and stood up well. He is a big boy, very shifty on his skates, the possessor of a fine pair of "lamps," handy with his stick and not afraid to take a chance. He only lacks experience to make him a star. In addition to hockey, Bolt also plays soccer and is no mean outside wing, and should make a place on one of the Kitchener W. & A. teams.

The management of the Terriers considered it a little too early to discuss prospects for next winter, but gave out the assurance that Galt would have one of the best senior sextets it has ever had, all of which was good news.

HORNSBY GETS HOMER.

Associated Press Despatch.

Brooklyn, May 15.—Brooklyn made it two out of three with St. Louis today after a long drawn-out game, due to arguments and protests. The score was 8 to 7. A long delay was caused in the fifth when the Dodgers objected to four St. Louis players standing behind the backstop swinging their bats. Umpire Sweeney, after consulting with O'Day, ordered two of them to the bench. Hornsby, besides fielding brilliantly, made his second home run of the series.

Mulqueen of Prague, Que., announced today that the main instructions to them as representing Canada at the Olympic congress were to ask for autonomy for the dominion, for permission for Canadian women to manage their own athletic meets, subject to approval from the Canadian Athletic Union, and to try and get lacrosse adopted as a major Olympic sport.

Biggest Throng On Record Expected To See Historic Kentucky Derby Today

25 Named Last Night, But Field Is Expected to Shrink.

QUATRAIN RULES

Associated Press Despatch.

Louisville, May 15.—With Quatrain ruling as the ranking favorite, the $50,000 Kentucky Derby, the outstanding race classic of the nation, will be decided over the Churchill Downs course tomorrow afternoon, with the prospects of an attendance of 80,000 to 100,000, the greatest throng that ever witnessed a horse race in this country.

Twenty-five of the country's best three-year-olds were named tonight to go to the post, with the possibility that the field will be narrowed down to perhaps twenty starters or less depending on track conditions. If tomorrow afternoon brings a golden May day and a fast track, as many as twenty colts may face the flag. If showers develop, as the weather forecast indicates, resulting in a muddy track, it is likely that not more than fifteen will engage in the struggle.

Twenty-One Record Field.

If more than 21 start, it will be the largest field that ever went to the post for the classic. Last year when the little colt Black Gold came thundering down the stretch to racing glory, he was followed by eighteen others; in 1923 the great Zev had nineteen other contestants.

Tomorrow's race, the fifty-first running of the Derby, will be over the mile and quarter route, with each colt carrying an impost of 126 pounds.

The race will have a value to the winner of $53,475, providing twenty go to the post. The horse finishing second will win $6,000, third $3,000 and fourth $1,000. In addition to first money, the winner will receive a gold trophy.

Quatrain, a son of Omar Khayham, winner of the 1917 Derby, rules the favorite because of his impressive victories in the Louisiana Derby and the New Orleans Handicap last winter.

Two other Kentucky-bred colts, Captain Hal and Kentucky Cardinal, are regarded as Quatrain's most dangerous challengers.

In betting odds quoted tonight, Quatrain ruled the favorite at 3 to 1, while Captain Hal was second choice at 7 to 1. The Whitney-Greentree stable entry of four horses headed by Chantey was third choice at 10 to 1, while Kentucky Cardinal was rated fourth at 12 to 1.

Sande's Mount.

Earl Sande, premier race rider of America, will ride Flying Ebony, Gifford A. Cochran's entrant, tomorrow, he told friends here today.

Yesterday Sande made Jockey Bruening a $2,000 offer if he would let him ride Quatrain, Frederick Johnson's great colt, and he said he would give Breuning an additional $5,000 if Quatrain won. Breuning refused to give up his mount, however. Sande originally was scheduled to ride for the William Zeigler, Jr., stable, but Borderland and Needle Gun have not shown good form in recent trials. This left Sande free to obtain another mount.

Among the candidates withdrawn were some which loomed up as heavy favorites during the late winter and early spring. These included Master Charlie and Stimulus, Sunny Man, a Wilis Sharpe Kilmer nominee, which was removed from the ranks of strong contenders recently when he died from alleged poisoning.

Other horses withdrawn from the classic through lameness or failure to round to form include Young Martin, Cup Bearer, Blue Warrnbler, Sumpter, Special Gamester and Our General. Within the next twenty-four hours names of scores of other nominees are expected to be withdrawn.

There was but little training action here yesterday, but those that were set down turned in speedy moves. Prince of Bourbon and Sweeping Away covered a mile and an eighth in 1:55 1-5 and 1:55 2-5 respectively; Flying Ebony a mile in 1:42. Captain Hal, three-quarters in 1:13 2-5; Almadel a mile in 1:43, and Voltaic a mile and an eighth in 1:55 4-5. Other workouts were not clocked as meaning much.

Bauer allowed five hits, three of which were bunched for the thirteenth run in the ninth.

Leadership - and why

Graham Brothers impressive advance to first position in the 1½ ton truck field, and second in the 1 ton and the 1½ ton fields combined—during the first quarter of 1925—is explained by four vital reasons:

1. Distinct price advantage.
2. Pronounced quality advantage.
3. Dodge Brothers engine.
4. Substantial character of Dodge Brothers dealer organization.

Ordinary logic demands that these facts receive your immediate consideration if you have any need whatever for a truck.

Webb, Wetzel's Kid Find Hurls No-Hit, No-Run Game

Wildness Prevents Perfect Game For Rookie Moundsman.

COLTS LOSE 11—3

Special to The Advertiser.

Hamilton, May 15.—"Lefty" Webb, smart-looking youngster picked up by "Buzz" Wetzel, entered the hall of fame here this afternoon when he stopped the Flint Vehics in the first game of the series without the semblance of a hit or run, winning the game by a score of 7 to 0. Webb set the Vehics down in order throughout the greater part of the game, but his wildness caused him to walk five and hit one to spoil a perfect game.

With men on the sacks, which was seldom, he tightened up and showed the Vehics a great assortment of left-handed slants. He fanned four and allowed only two balls to be hit to the outfield, one of which was a foul, and the other a short fly to right by Lecronier, the last man to bat. The Clippers gathered ten hits off Wilson for their runs, homers by Duckworth and Daubert helping.

Froman had a perfect day with the stick, getting three for three, including a double and triple, and had 16 chances without a slip.

ACES WIN.

Special to The Advertiser.

Kitchener, May 15.—Saginaw opened their three-game series here this afternoon with an easy 11 to 3 win over the locals, the Aces hitting the offerings of Piecoots hard and often. Sixteen hits were made by the visitors, good for 25 bases, and they made sure of the contest by scoring seven runs in the first three frames. Included in the hit collection were five doubles and two triples, though two of the doubles were decidedly lucky ones, being lost in the sun, and the other being a case of poor judgment on the part of King.

The Colts, though they played better ball in the field than on the previous day, were guilty of a couple of bad plays, but it was pitching that caused their downfall. Piecoots, the losing pitcher, had a perfect day with three singles and a walk in as many trips to the plate.

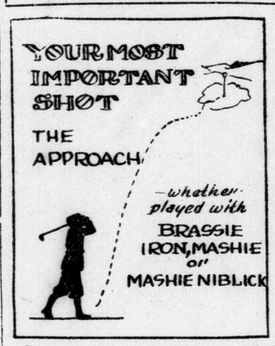
Golf AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT



What is the most important shot?

By ABE G. ESPINOSA,
One of America's Leading Professionals.

The most important shot in golf is the approach or shot played to the green, whether with the brassie, mashie or mashie-niblick. Many players, who would otherwise turn in very favorable scores, ruin their chances through the poor quality of their approach shots. In other words, getting well up to the pin on these shots is absolutely essential for a good score. And again, as is the case in eliminating other poor strokes, it is PRACTICE that will add to your efficiency in this department of the game. Practice the use of the above-mentioned clubs whenever possible, with an eye to direction, distance and balance.

A.A.U. of C. Officials Will Attend Wossa Meet Today

Fair Weather Promises Record Crowd to Top Record Entry.

OVAL IN SHAPE

Prospects of fair weather, the high water mark in entries with 198 different boys in 530 events competing and the staging of the meeting at the new Western University cinder oval all combine to make today's Wossa meet epochal.

Word has been received from Starter McGarry that he has two guns, never felt better, and is known to get the boys off. In addition the president of the Ontario branch of the amateur athletic union, F. Johnston, together with Harry Price, a new member on the Ontario athletic commission will be present. Mr. Crocker of the Y. M. C. A., a referee of some 30 years' standing, will also be on hand.

No better list of entries has been received for any athletic meet, and the public will have not only an opportunity of witnessing a fine exhibition of track and field athletics but some very close contests. The track is in excellent condition, and everything points to the biggest day in the W.O.S.S.A. history.

The athletes are warned that the only call they will receive is that on the program, and they must be prepared to contest the track events as they are published.

Weighing sharp at 11 o'clock. Those desiring lunch may secure same at the university dining hall. The meet starts promptly at 1 o'clock.

Order of Events.

Competitors are warned that no event will be held more than one minute after the ringing of the bell by the assistant clerk of the course.

EGG MARKET REVIEW

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, May 15.—Advices from Great Britain state that a number of Irish packers are this year putting eggs into storage, and this will mean that more eggs will be held in Ireland and less in England. These advices state there will be opportunity for Canadian, American and Argentine eggs if they can be delivered into England at a price a little below, at which it is expected. Irish and pickled Danish will come out of storage, possibly around 16 shillings per ten dozen. Polish and Russian eggs are now commencing to arrive, and supplies from these countries are expected to be heavy during this month. These cheaper grade eggs retail from 2c to 3c each from May until October.

The Canadian situation continues very firm, with very little change in prices. Sales are reported from Western Ontario in part carlots. Western offerings show no change in prices. Eastern buyers are not doing very much business in these eggs, though it is reported that Montreal dealers are taking more than Toronto.

Toronto—Jobbing specials 35c, extras 33c, firsts 31c, seconds 27c to 29c.

Montreal—Jobbing extras 35c, firsts 33c, seconds 30c.

CHEESE

UNITED DAIRYMEN.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, May 15. — At the United Dairymen's co-operative association auction sale of Western Ontario cheese held here today there were 1,084 boxes offered, of which 220 boxes of No. 1 white sold at 17⅝c per pound, 247 boxes of No. 1A colored at 17 11-16c and 437 boxes No. 1B colored at 17 11-16c per pound. The price paid for the white cheese was the same as last week, but the colored was 1-16c per pound higher.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, May 15.—The receipts of cheese were 4,556 boxes, as against 3,123 for the same day last week and 1,973 for the corresponding day a year ago. The export trade in cheese continues quiet, owing to the fact that English importers show little disposition to operate at present, and exporters state according to the tone of cables coming forward the indications are that lower prices will have to be accepted here in order to make sales. The demand for supplies on spot was also slow, and the market on the whole was dull, with western No. 1 white and colored nominally quoted at 17⅝c to 17¾c per pound, and eastern No. 1 white and colored at 17½c to 17⅝c per pound.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, May 15.—Cheese firm; receipts, 122,401 pounds.

Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, May 15.—Good buying by export houses of the lower grades of wheat gave the market here today a strong tone. Early demand carried the price of May delivery to the peak of $1.83, and despite minor reactions, a fairly orderly trend was maintained, May closing at $1.82¾, an advance of 1¾c. July was up ⅝c at $1.73⅛.

Trade volume was not particularly large, which was attributable to light offerings. The strength of the May future clearly reflected a "short" interest, and, with the elimination of this factor, sustained export buying alone will be able to hold the present price levels.

Export sales yesterday were estimated at more than 1,000,000 bushels of wheat. Private cables indicated that the demand in European market was quieter, due to a reported increase in the Argentine surplus, and that Australian wheat was pressing for sale.

Light showers and overnight frost in Saskatchewan and Manitoba brought about weakness in the October future, and strengthened the belief that it would be used as a hedging month. Oats and barley were dull, with a small trade passing. Prices underwent fractional declines before the close of the session. Rye and flax were featureless.

Continental interests worked a large business at the lower grades of cash wheat. Acceptances also were reported from the United Kingdom. Millers indicated that the domestic demand for flour had slightly improved. Cash oats continued fairly active. Barley also met a good inquiry. Trade in cash rye and flax was a carlot proposition.

Cash prices:

Wheat—No. 1 northern, $1.82¼; No. 2 northern, $1.79¼; No. 3 northern, $1.74¼; No. 4, $1.59⅞; No. 5, $1.44½; No. 6, $1.25½; feed, $1.15½; track, $1.76¼.

Oats—No. 2 C. W., 59⅞c; No. 3 C. W., 55⅞c; extra No. 1 feed, 53½c; No. 1 feed, 49¾c; No. 2 feed, 46¾c; rejected, 42¾c; track, 55⅝c.

Barley—No. 3 C. W., 88½c; No. 4 C. W., 83½c; rejected, 81¼c; feed, 79¾c; track, 88½c.

Flax—No. 1 N. W. C., $2.45; No. 2 C. W., $2.41; No. 3 C. W., $2.33; rejected, not quoted; track, $2.45.

Rye—No. 2 C. W., $1.17½.

CHICAGO

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, May 15.—Indications that a good deal of wheat is likely to come here from Minneapolis and Omaha eased down the Chicago wheat market today after the price of May delivery here had risen as high as $1.71 a bushel, the top level in many weeks. Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ranging from 1c net decline to ⅝c advance, May $1.68½ and July $1.51¾ to $1.52. Corn closed ⅜c to 1⅞c off, oats ¼c to ⅝c down, and provisions unchanged to 37c higher.

Scarcity of wheat available for filling May contracts here gave such a sharp new upturn to Chicago prices early that buying of wheat to be forwarded to this city was soon reported from Omaha and later from Minneapolis. The advance here had been accompanied by talk that supplies in Europe were also becoming very light, and that import requirements there would be heavy within the next few months. Rains over the southwest and west tended further to diminish the effect of scarcity of wheat to apply on May contracts. The rains were regarded as bettering the new crop outlook, and therefore caused decline in price for the July delivery and for September.

Warmer weather and slowness of cash demand brought about lower prices for corn and so, too, did a further break in hog values. Oats dragged lower with corn.

Commission house buying gave a lift to provisions.

Cash prices:

Wheat—No. 2 hard, $1.69; No. 3 hard $1.67½ to $1.69½.

Corn—No. 4 mixed, $1.09½ to $1.10½; No. 2 yellow, $1.18.

SPECIALTIES LEAD ADVANCE AT N. Y.

High-Priced Industrials Hold Center of Wall Street Stage.

New York, May 15. — Strength and activity of the high-priced industrial specialties, several of which soared 3 to 8 points to new high levels for the year, overshadowed all other developments in today's rising stock market.

Mack Truck was the sensational feature, reaching a new high for all time at 166¾, or nearly 50 points above the year's low, and then easing to 165½, where it was up 7½ points on the day. Wall Street was generally inclined to attribute the buying of this issues to expectations of an early announcement of recapitalization plans involving an increased dividend. American Can touched the highest price in its history at 190¾.

U. S. Steel common advanced 1⅜ to 116⅛, and Baldwin closed 2½ points higher at 114.

Interest in the rails centered largely in the Frisco and Wheeling and Lake Erie issues, all of which attained new peak pirces for the year. Buying of Wheeling and Lake Erie was based on rumors that the road will be incorporated in the proposed "fifth trunk line" system in the east.

The Pierce-Arrow issues all attained new maximum prices on net gains ranging from 3 to 7½ points.

Call money opened slightly higher at per cent, in reflection of the relatively heavy overnight demand for funds for mid-month payments and payroll purposes, but eased to 3¾ per cent later.

The foreign exchange market was irregularly lower. Demand sterling held firm, just above $4.85, but French francs lost about 2 points to 5.19½c, and other sharp recessions took place in the Norwegian and Danish currencies.

SMELTERS AGAIN MAKES NEW MARK

Stock Continues To Be Out-Standing Leader at Toronto.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 15. — Attainment of a new record price by Conolidated Smelters shares is becoming almost a daily occurrence. Today was no exception, since this security touched 78 on the Toronto Stock Exchange, and was the active leader throughout the day. There were two other spectacular features in the day's trading, a sudden rally of 9½ points in Provincial Paper shares in the final minutes of trading, and a reappearance of interest in Canada Bread after a lengthy period of quiet.

Canada Bread common also came to life quite suddenly. After selling at 117⅛ in the morning, the stock was firm at 120 to 121 in the afternoon. Comparatively little interest has been shown in Canada Bread since the unofficial announcement of recapitalization plans was made a short time ago.

Smelters continued to set a faster pace than any other security on the board. There was further buying power shown in respect to this security, and the point now seems to be reached where the stock is sufficiently scarce to make almost any market performance a possibility. Atlantic Sugar common also came to life suddenly in the afternoon session. The stock was at 23⅛ bid in the morning, with no offers, and in the afternoon it was run up speedily to 26⅝.

Sales for the day, 5,552 listed shares; 6,264 unlisted, and $800 government bonds.

INTEREST DISPLAYED IN NEW HAVEN BONDS

Company's 6's of 1948 Climb Two Points to 91.

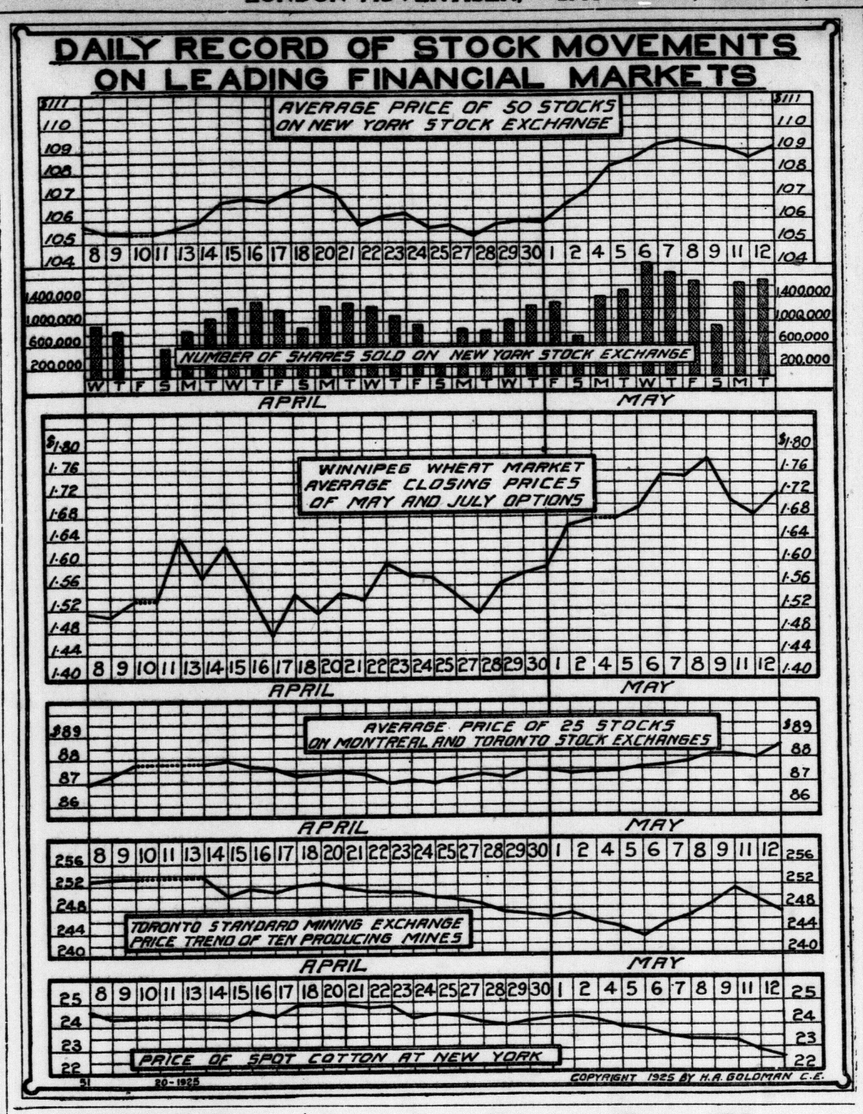
New York, May 15.—Bond prices broke into new high ground again today, as railroad issues resumed the leadership of the market.

A revival of buying interest in New Haven securities was one of the features of trading in railroad liens. The company's 6's of 1948 climbed two points to 91, and the collateral sixes gained more than a point. Wheeling and Lake Erie issues were under accumulation in the belief that the rails might be bought for merger purposes.

Prospects that an early reorganization of the St. Paul Railway will begin to take shape contributed to the strength of these bonds, which extended their recent advance.

Price movements in the industrial group were mixed, but the main trend was upward, with average gains of a point registered.

Preparations were understood to be in progress for a $27,000,000 offering of Federal Farm Loan bonds, which probably will be placed on the market next week. The issue is expected to bear a 4½% coupon.



EARTHQUAKE'S TOLL.

Peking, May 15.—The famine relief commission here reached an estimate today that 6,500 persons were killed in the earthquake at Talifu, in Yunnan province, on March 16.

PRINCE INSPECTS TOWN OF GOLD DUST AND BLOOD

HUMAN SACRIFICES

Coomassie, Once a Place of Murder, Now Modern and Prosperous.

By W. WARD PRICE.
Special Despatch to The Advertiser and the North American Newspaper Alliance.

Coomassie, African Gold Coast, May 14.—This town is built on gold dust and on blood, both spilled by order of its old (yet recent) kings.

The gold is there because, by royal decree, gold dust used as currency, which fell to the ground, could not be gathered up on pain of death, but became a perquisite of the crown, or rather the Golden Stool, which was the potent symbol of Ashanti monarchy. What the royal overseers missed still glitters as precious dust in occasional spadefuls during the digging of foundations for the new buildings which, with the eager energy of a western mining town, are being set up in the new Coomassie.

The blood was a libation poured out far more freely. At regular intervals it gushed from the seered necks of hundreds of victims into the broad round bowl which was carried off one night by General Baden-Powell, and now stands in the United Services Museum. For these sacrifices at the foot of the gnarled fetish-tree that our troops blew up with dynamite in 1895, condemned criminals, slaves, and captives were gradually gathered into pens for months ahead.

Bloodthirsty Jokes

Life was so precarious an affair in the Ashanti of those times that their fate was not regarded as one deserving pity. They were just the victims of implacable public pity, like a British householder called to sit upon a jury. When Ashanti kings really wanted to be severe they had a ritual which lasted from early morning until dusk. The rash lover who had seduced a royal wife, for instance, was sent on a tour of all the hiefs in the neighborhood of Coomassie. Each would play his bloodthirsty little joke upon him.

A favorite prank was to erase, with a blunt native knife, a patch of skin from the small of the victim's back and, presenting it before his goggling white eyes, to say, "There, that is something you never saw in your life!" An even better jest was to amputate his legs below the knees and then urge him to dance to the gay strumming of the tom-toms. After this the whimsical chieftain would fall back guffawing on to his chair.

Reformed Ex-King.

Soe of those very chiefs, under the identical umbrellas and flapped by the same fly-whisks, came decorously forward to shake the hand of the Prince of Wales. Meanwhile, I myself was standing next to the arch-despot of them all, the ex-King Prempeh, who made two wars against us, and paid for them with 27 years of exile in the Seychelles, from which he has just been ollowed to return to his native land.

We later drank a glass of beer together at the house of a provincial commissioner, and I learned that Prempeh has progressed so far from human sacrifice that his sole interests now are Christian missions and the fine new house and 200-acre farm with which the Gold Coast government is endowing him.

Prempeh is in the fifties, and looks as vigorous as if they were his thirties.

Though now but a private prisoner of the British, released on good behaviour, his word is still of paramount authority to the Ashantis. The chiefs mentioned his release with gratitude in their speech of welcome to the prince, and Prempeh's presence in the royal stand today lent added importance to the obeisance received by 'H'im who will be the Great White King."

Ashanti Now Modern.

The new Ashanti is a place of town-planning, tarmac roads, prosperity and peace. Coomassie, its capital, presents the appearance of a strange grafting of the Riviera upon a Surrey common. Beside long, straight, palm-lined roads stand broad-verandahed villas of British officials, set about with bushes of brilliant crimson hybiscus, purple bougainvillea, dark blue "morning glory," red Cana lilies.

They make a garden suburb in a setting that only the tropics could provide. The native town is equally modern. Even the floating population of native traders and carriers is lodged in regular lines of concrete houses, with wash-rooms and kitchens that many British mining villages might envy.

FEAR LOSS OF LIFE AS YUKON FLOODS

Dawson Threatened With Destruction—Ottawa Asked For Relief.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Dawson, Yukon Territory, May 15, —Fears are entertained for the safety of several farmers living on the islands on the Yukon river, three miles south of here, as a result of the worst flood in the history of Dawson, and which for several days threatened to wipe out the city.

Late today, city police in a launch were making an effort to reach the islands and ascertain the fate of the inhabitants.

The floodwaters have subsided and all danger to the city is over.

The flood was caused by the cold spring weather, followed by a sudden thaw. All along the Yukon Valley torrents of rain poured out of the side streams into the river.

London Paper Sees Plot At Washington to Break Empire Bonds In Canada

Spectator Fears Forces Are At Work to Bring About Annexation.

URGES EMIGRATION

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 15.—The London Spectator publishes a very interesting article on the future of Canada, but the editor points out that while the paper welcomes the expression of the views contained, it disclaims any responsibility for them. The writer, who seemingly has recently studied political conditions in Canada while on a visit to the country and states that not a few Canadians believe that if the country has not yet arrived at the parting of the ways it will do so soon, finds that there are three courses before the dominion—independence, annexation to the United States, the secession of the western provinces.

Secession by the western provinces, he believes, would be fatal. The U. S. would absorb Canada piecemeal, and if the western provinces hoisted the flag of rebellion like Louis Riel and his supporters, the same result would follow as befell the cause of the noted Canadian agitator when he and his followers surrendered to the British forces exactly 40 years ago today. The threatened secession of the west may be bluff, but it will be folly if carried too far. The contributor to The Spectator is evidently impressed most with the possibility of Canada uniting with the United States.

"Powerful forces are at work and pan-Americanism is busy," he declares. "Its elaborate organization at Washington seldom sleeps. It has no direct connection with the American government, yet the American politicians wink at the operation of the pan-American bureau within a stone-throw of the capitol."

To remedy this condition, the contributor believes that 250,000 British emigrants to Canada yearly for the next 50 years would make the dominion so solidly British that annexation sentiment would have little chance to develop, to which might be added more direct British industrial and financial interest in Canada.

Thanks Gin Pills for excellent health

An ex-alderman of the city of Hamilton tells an interesting story.

Finest In Store Planning Achieved By Thomas Co.

Fine New Three-Story Location On Richmond Street Marks Fourth Move in Twelve Years—Much Furniture Already Stocked.

Four times in the past twelve years the Thomas Furniture Company has found it necessary to meet an ever-increasing business by enlarging it's premises and bettering it's facilities for meeting the public. The fourth occasion finds the firm in an imposing new store on Richmond street between King and York.

After months of alteration work, the three-story building now only lacks a few finishing touches to give it an aspect of elegance to match the beautiful furniture it will house. A large portion of the stock has already arrived and it is but a matter of days until the new store will be complete in every detail.

The floor space of the store proper measures 20,000 square feet, permitting a liberal and artistic display of the goods of every department. Warehousing facilities are unusually extensive in the every department, 21,000 feet of space being available for this purpose. This section of the building is within easy access of any of the floors and has direct connection with the second and third floors through wide, covered runways.

Protection From Rain

The attractive marquee, built over the sidewalk, offers patrons arriving in cars protection from unfavorable weather. It is one of the outstanding features of the store exterior and sets off well the 25-foot electric sign. Plain, thirty-inch letters make the display visible for blocks.

Two roomy show windows, simple yet compelling in design, flank the main entrance. The lighting arrangements are so set that a piece of furniture isn't the background no matter in what section of the window it may be placed.

The main store is one hundred feet long and forty feet wide and is divided into five floors, basement, mezzanine, main, second and third. The flooring is all of attractive hardwood and particular attention has been paid to the installing of as many and as large windows as possible to insure standard lighting in every corner of every floor.

The new Thomas building enjoys the distinction of being the only London store boasting a full mezzanine floor. The added charm afforded by the mezzanine makes itself apparent as soon as the front door is passed.

Latest in Elevators

The newest type of push button elevator has been installed and provides patrons speedy passage between the floors and various departments. The elevator is regarded by the Otis-Fenson company to be fool proof in every particular and as safe a carrying machine being manufactured today.

In the well-ventilated and well-lighted basement will be displayed kitchen furniture of all kinds, medium-priced dining room suites, medium priced bedroom furniture, dinner ware and verandah furniture.

Here, a completely furnished rest room will always be at the disposal of patrons.

Furniture of the better grade, including living room, dining room and bedroom suites, will be kept on the main floor. This floor will also display the more artistic types such as novelty bedroom and dining room pieces. Other pieces in this class include spinnet desks, console tables, mirrors and magazine stands. An augmented stock of lamps and shades of every description is planned and these will also be shown on the main floor.

Offices Convenient

The store offices, which have been installed at the rear of the main store, are on a direct line with the street entrance, furthering their convenience.

The bedding department is being established on the attractive mezzanine. This floor will also show the stock of reed furniture including the suites. Tables and lamps, in two-tone colors, baby carriages and the Macey sectional bookcases will be kept on this floor as well.

In one section of the second floor will be found the drapery department. Living room furniture, including novelty pieces, are to be displayed here. It is also planned to establish the oil cloth, linoleum and rug departments on this floor.

The third and top floor, just as roomy and just as appealing as any of the lower floors, has been set aside especially for dining room, bedroom and breakfast room furniture. This will be on of the most attractive places in the entire building when the displays are arranged.

Large Range of Finishes

Generous stocks will be carried of every type of furniture to give the public as great a range as possible from which to choose. Bedroom and dining room furniture will be carried in all the new finishes, such as imitation walnut, plain walnut finish, two-tone walnut finish, French walnut finish and two-tone French walnut finsh. The popular enamel finishes will also be well represented.

Genuine walnut furniture may be secured in the same finishes that apply to the imitation walnut.

Those whose tastes lean to oak will be able to buy their favorite pieces in any of the popular finishes. The golden oak finish, fumed oak, Windsor brown and old oak tones will predominate.

Just as broad a range will be carried in living room furniture. A variety of mohairs and velours will permit a wide selection while the attractive and serviceable cane suites will also be offered to Londoners.

Officials of the firm lay stress upon the fact that all tastes, from the most modest to the most elaborate, will be satisfied in the new store. Inexpensive furniture will be given just as prominent a place and will be kept in just as large a quantity as the more costly home accessories.

The Thomas Furniture Company is supplied by several of Canada's leading and most dependable plants including the Hespler, Andrew Malcolm, Arthur Baetes, F. C. Coombs, Armstrong and Snyder Brothers factories.

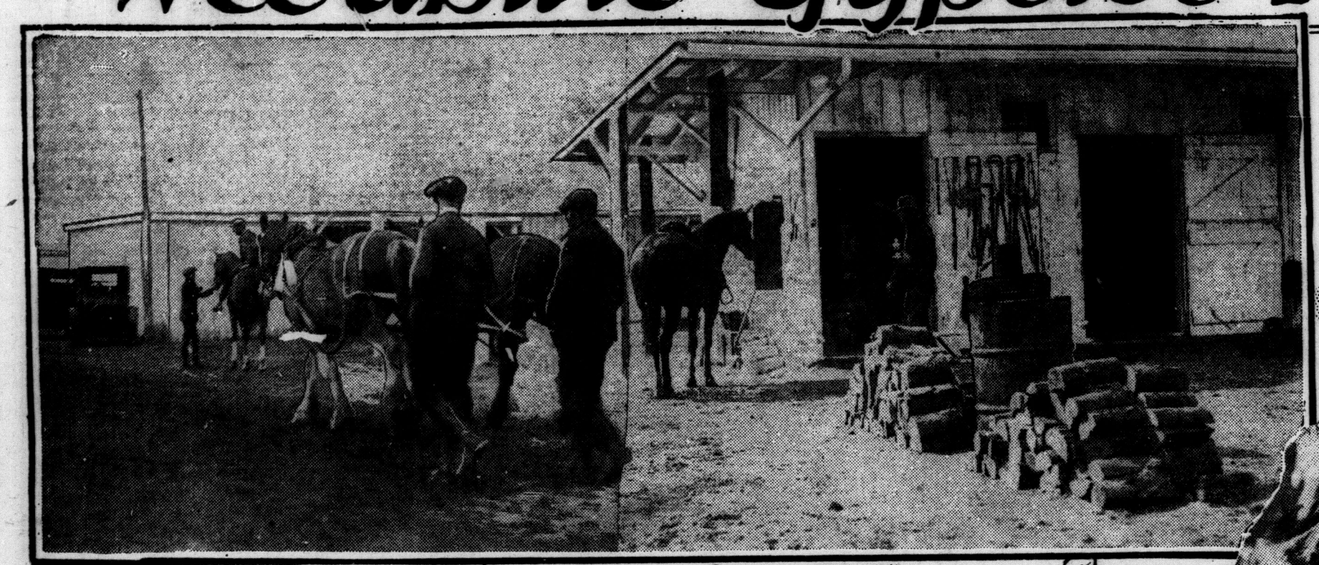
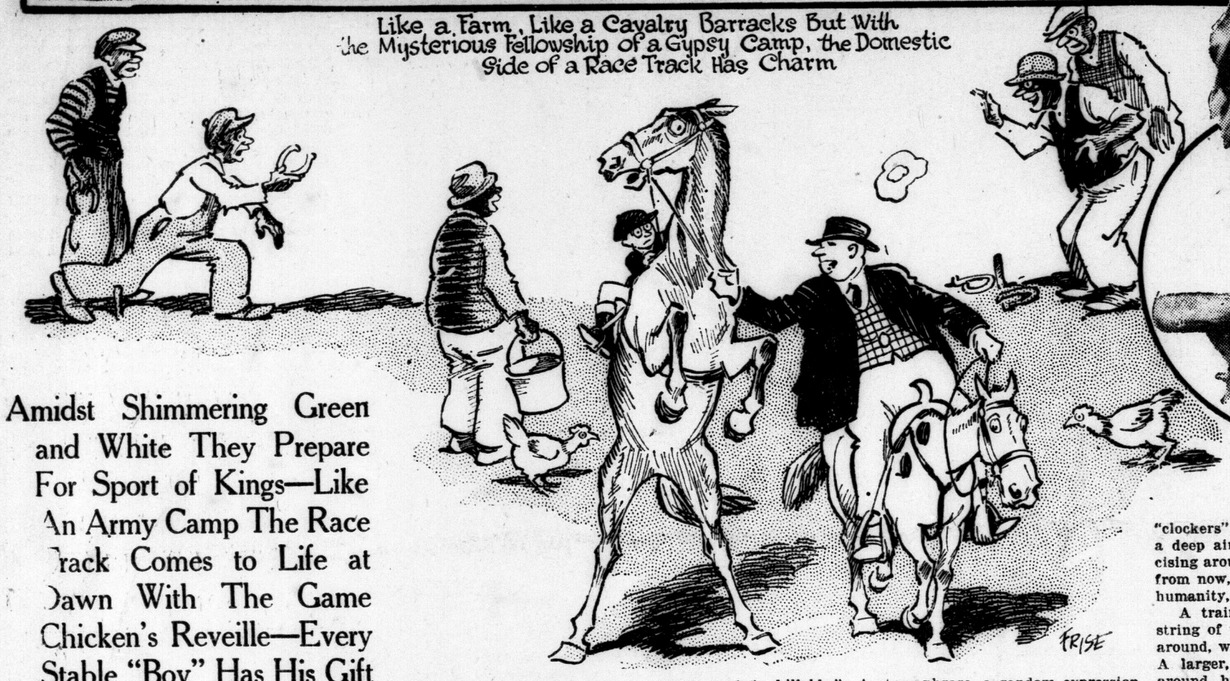
Woodbine Gypsies Muster from Afar



Like a Farm, Like a Cavalry Barracks But With the Mysterious Fellowship of a Gypsy Camp, the Domestic Side of a Race Track Has Charm



The Game Cock Sounds Reveille.

In the Cold Gray Dawn, the Clockers Try to Get a Line on the Coming Winners!

Amidst Shimmering Green and White They Prepare For Sport of Kings—Like An Army Camp The Race Track Comes to Life at Dawn With The Game Chicken's Reveille—Every Stable "Boy" Has His Gift

By GREGORY CLARK

ALL green and white, shimmering and shining, with the blue sky above and the blue lake beyond, the Woodbine is the most beautiful gypsy camp in the world, right now.

From Mexico, from Montreal, from soft and sunny lands of the south, the gypsies of the horse-racing world are mustering for the opening of the racing season in Canada.

Hundreds of horses, hundreds of men who own and train and ride and tend these elegantes of the animal kingdom, are gathered for their approaching week of glory. The vista of buildings and stands and tiny pagodas are painted a dazzling white. The lawns that in an hour's time will be trampled and torn and profaned are clipped and brighter than any emerald. In contrast to the massed emotion and excitement of the seven days that are coming, the peace and quiet of these days of preparation at the Woodbine carry three distinct likenesses. The Woodbine is like a gypsy camp. It is like a beautiful farm. It is like a cavalry barracks.

Like an army encampment, the Woodbine comes to life at dawn. The soft tramping and sharp snorting of horses precedes even the sound of the trumpet sounding reveille. But when reveille comes, it is not a trumpet, but the harsh, strong crow of the gamecock. Armored in gold and copper, silver and blue, the gamecock that is to be found wherever the gypsies of the race track are found shouts his challenge to the world. And in a few moments the long aisles of snowy white stables are alive, their doors open, and to the music of expectant and hungry horses stamping and calling, men begin to come alive all over the place, with water buckets, feed pails, brushes and blankets.

Three mighty attractive characteristics: the smart, orderly discipline of the barracks; the odd, gripping fellowship of the gypsy camp; and the peace and comfort and unhurried industry of the farm.

Yet, by the time the business world of the city is just entering the office doors of downtown, the day at the Woodbine is waning, the panting and curveting horses are being led reluctantly back to their stalls to be rubbed down, blanketed and put to rest for the day. By ten o'clock an afternoon-on-the-farm quiet has descended. The "boys" are seeking the shade.

Gypsy Talk of Racing Stable

UNHURRIED, mysteriously happy and reserved, these "boys" are gypsies sure enough. Two of them, one as black as coal, the other a blond young giant, are standing beside a large tin kettle over a bonfire, in which feed for the horses is cooking.

"Youaw ain agwine be in tam ter see yat yeah thing run ef youaw doan git outen heah," says the blond boy to the negro.

"Yee-hee!" laughs the negro, shrilly. "Big bo, Ah doan aim ter be nowhah nohow when yat yeah thing runs."

It has a faint echo of English in it. It is the gypsy talk of the race stable. It is the horse-talk of Kentucky.

Four boys, evenly divided as to color, are pitching horse shoes. They are having the time of their lives, their laughter to be heard from one end of the silent stables to the other. But not a word of what they are saying is intelligible save: "Big bo, wheh is you?" "Big bo, cheatin' is killable." A stray phrase, a random expression strikes familiarly through the rich gloaming of their English.

A few minutes past the game chicken's reveille, the men bring out the horses, saddle them, and wispy little boys and men are legged up high and perilous on the lithe and restless horses. Trainers with overcoats over their pyjamas accompany these through the misty dawn, and by the time the sun peeps over there are horses trotting and rocking and cantering all around the ring of the track.

On a far corner, near the finishing post, a group of stolid men—local by the cut of them—are standing with watches and note books, the "clockers" trying more or less vainly, but with a deep air, to discover from these horses exercising around the track what they will do a week from now, when the quiet scene is electric with humanity, aglitter and athrob with pulsing life.

A trainer on a stocky white pony leads a string of tall, million-dollar two-year-olds slowly around, with a bevy of wispy boys astride them. A larger, even leaner, horse comes pounding around, head down, silver heels aglinting, with his jockey hanging high up on his neck. The string of two-year-olds rear and panic and shake wild heads at the music.

Discipline is Strict

AT an improvised wire barrier half a dozen half-crazy horses are being "schooled" to stand still and line up like gentlemen side by side, rehearsing for the show that is coming. These are restive babies, who want to jump anyway to the swish of the fast-sprung wire. Their jockeys snarl profanely at them to urge them away to a good start.

"Grrrrrr!" growls the jockey savagely into the slim beast's mane, as they break away with a high leap into the open track.

For two hours, this taking out and walking and running goes on. Then, in the first bright sun of the morning, the horses, blanketed in bright colors, are walked round and round, in a circle in the shelter of the white stables, to "cool out." Rubbed, bandaged, watered and fed, they are locked in the stalls, and out come the brooms.

"How do you get such discipline?" we asked a trainer. "These stables are just like army barracks, spotless, tidy, everybody on the job."

"Well," said the trainer, "there are about seven million boys want jobs in racing stables in this world, and only about a hundred thousand jobs to go round amongst 'em. That's the answer. We trainers don't have to do any bossing or urging. If a boy ain't a worker, he ain't working in racing stables, that's all."

The boys' quarters are little rooms not much bigger than the horses' stalls. A little iron cot, a shelf, lamp, mirror. On one side are neat, shining racks of harness that old Sir Sam Hughes would have fairly gurgled over in an artillery camp. Pictures clipped from illustrated papers, pictures of girls and jockeys and horses, mostly, decorate the whitewashed walls.

All the pails, pans and other utensils of the stables are hung up in precise method along the walls and supports of the stables, and are painted vividly in the owner's colors, red and white, orange and black, and so forth. The earth floors are swept and scraped hard and spotless. In the middle of each stable yard, where the horses are cooled out, a couple of cooking mash pots smolder. They, too, are painted the owner's colors.

"Why do the boys like this life?" we asked a trainer.

"Well, look at it. Happy, lots of company, something to play with all the time if it ain't horses it's horse shoes or something else. Every one of them a character. If he ain't done something, he doesn't last long. He's either ridden a famous race or groomed a famous horse. Every one of these boys has a gift."

"What gift?"

"Well, see that black boy there? We got two horses will eat out of his hand, no matter how excited they are. Then that old fellow peeling carrots—he's been with horses since he was a baby. He speaks their language. Watch this, now. Hey, Bo!"

Knows Horse Language

THE old man looked up from his pail of carrots.

"Call that yella two-year-old of yours to the door."

The old man pursed his lips and made some sound not audible to us. There was a scampering sound in a stall thirty feet from the old man, and a bright chestnut head with gleaming eyes leaped out a stall door and cocked slim ears towards the old man. The old fellow grinned at the horse and made a murmuring sound. The horse twitched its ears in the friendliest possible of salutes and retreated back into its cell to its feed.

"That old Bo had a sick horse on his hands. He just went in and sat with it for three days and three nights and the horse wouldn't lie down without him, walked the stall all night. He knows them all. He speaks their language. That's his gift."

"What about those little boys there?"

"Those are jockeys. Ridden hundreds of horses. That one whittling is one of the greatest jockeys in the world."

"And the kid watching him?"

"That kid is nineteen. His gift is that he is honest. One of the squarest men I ever met. He can't ride much, but he is a good influence to have around the stable. He is a good fighter, too. Boxes right smart."

Most have gifts that relate to horses. But some have gifts with poker or bones, some have a way of getting things done, some can read oats and hay when they see it, some can cook to the king's taste.

For there are no women in this gypsy camp of the horses. It's all men. The mamma of these little boys is some oldish man with an apron on and a paring knife in his hand. Rules are strict about living. No excesses. To bed early, for early rising is the law of horses. There are some men who simply can't get up in the morning. These are never in the horse racing game.

After lunch the agricultural calm descends on the Woodbine. Reapers, harrows, plows lie asleep in the shelter of sheds—implements for keeping the green in order. The horses stand quiet,—as quiet as the most high-strung creatures on earth may stand. The boys go and lie down to doze. A few dogs curl up in the sun. A few chickens scratch and chuckle in the dust. The game roosters are penned up for fear of what they might do to the domestic roosters. They crow desperately at the chuckling ones in the dust.

Discipline, ordered toil and an almost masonic fellowship, the gypsies of the race track prepare with little excitement, amidst shimmering green and white, for the sport of kings.

Yukon's Richest Shovelful Panned $625 in Gold

Eighty-Thousand-Dollar Clean-Up in Two Days in Dick Lowe's Famous "Fraction" —Wonders of Mining Boom and Story of A. N. C. Treadgold Recalled by J. B. Tyrrell of Toronto—Oxford Tutor Became Millionaire

HERE is a little slice of history from the ancient Yukon of the 'nineties. It was given when J. B. Tyrrell of Toronto, the well-known geologist and mining engineer, was asked to tell something of A. N. C. Treadgold, whose name has come up again recently in connection with some new activities of a financial nature.

Treadgold, it appears, was a tutor of Greek at Oxford University, an Englishman, not quite thirty, when the Klondike boom startled the world, including England. The young tutor was bitten by the gold bug. He was seized with the wanderlust, as Englishmen have frequently been seized before. He decided to leave the cloisters of Oxford for the golden open spaces of the northwest.

Treadgold went to London and visited the editor of the Mining Journal, with whom he talked, persuading him to appoint him special representative of the paper in the Yukon. With these credentials he came to Canada and visited Mr. Clifford Sifton, then minister of the interior, at Ottawa, who promised him every facility in his venture.

That was in '98, when the Klondike was in full boom. Mr. Tyrrell went there that year for the first time on geological survey. And thus he met the young Englishman, who had a letter of introduction to him.

Mr. Tyrrell arrived at Haynes Mission, near where Skagway is now, and took horses across the coast range inland, striking the Yukon river at Five Finger Rapids. He hailed a boat which happened to be in charge of six Russian Jews, and asked them to take him to Dawson City.

"Can you steer?" one of them shouted, in reply to his question. "If you can we'll take you."

"How much will you charge?" Mr. Tyrrell countered. "I don't want to be stuck in when I get to Dawson.

"All right; I'll steer."

The men in the big rowboat actually did not know how to guide it. That was typical of the Yukon in those early days. These Jews were not going in to mine but to trade. One of them, Isaacs, eventually became owner of the biggest clothing store in Dawson City.

Mr. Treadgold joined Mr. Tyrrell during that summer and spent weeks with him learning about the district.

He was with the geologist when the latter paid his first visit to the valley of Bonanza Creek. It was July, when every day gave twenty-four hours' daylight. The two men tramped twenty miles in the heat and reached what was known as Dick Lowe's Fraction dead tired.

They pitched their tents on this rich ground and spent the afternoon panning gold. "Take a shovelful out from over there," said Dick Lowe, pointing, to Mr. Tyrrell. The latter took the one shovel of gravel and when it was panned it gave $625 worth of gold. One shovelful! That was the richest shovelful of gold, taken at random, in the history of the Yukon.

Dick Lowe's Clean-Up

THE men in the camp, some half dozen of them, were busy shoveling gravel into the sluice boxes. They had been doing so for two days and had a pile to clean up. As Tyrrell and Treadgold went to bed about eleven they asked Lowe: "When are you going to clean up the boxes?"

"To-morrow morning," he answered. So the two men, who were anxious to see the process and the yield, turned in, anxious for sleep.

They had been lying down only about an hour in their tent when Mr. Tyrrell heard a sound like that made by the riffles or screens. It was just midnight but bright. He gave his companion a punch in the side and exclaimed: "Dick Lowe's starting to clean up."

The sleepy Treadgold grunted: "He can't be. He said he wouldn't till to-morrow, you know."

"But this is to-morrow," said Tyrrell as he crawled out of the blankets, pulled his boots on and went out into the open. Sure enough the men were at work.

First Scotch Undertaker: "When ye came up Kirk street did ye notice if the blinds were doon at the widow Fraser's?"
Second Scotch Undertaker: "Ay, they were down."
First Scotch Undertaker: "Ah! Then I'll no be troubling to go any further."

"What are you blamed fellows doing here?" asked Lowe in strong language which has been toned down.

"We'd like to see the clean-up if we may," answered Mr. Tyrrell in a conciliatory tone, for he and Treadgold were indeed anxious to see what promised to be a sight of extraordinary riches. As indeed it turned out to be.

"Oh, all right," grumbled Lowe: "'s long as you're here you may as well see it."

What the visitor saw eventually as the result of two days' shoveling on the part of six men was eight pans filled to the brim with gold. Allowing to each pan $10,000, they saw in bulk $80,000 in gold.

It was the first clean-up they had ever seen, this one at midnight on the Fraction, and it was one of the biggest ever seen in the history of the Yukon.

No wonder that Treadgold decided to go into the venture, not as a spectator for a London journal, but as a real Yukoner, like all the rest. He learned the game from the ground up, spent years in the country and gradually collected a group of claims for a syndicate known as the Yukon Gold Company. These he eventually turned over to the Guggenheims, getting as his share, so reports said at the time, a million dollars. Which was a considerable change from tutoring at Oxford.

Mr. Treadgold still retained his interest in the Yukon. He started the North-West Corporation, formed of London capitalists, and set to work to acquire other claims. He has not been heard much of in recent years, but he is likely to come into the limelight more in the near future.

A man of great physique, self-contained, almost secretive about his affairs, Mr. Treadgold had the energy and capacity to get riches from the Yukon. He has not been in Canada since before the war, during which he gave up his time to the securing of certain mineral supplies necessary for army operations.

THE leaning tower of Pisa, Italy, is in danger of entirely toppling over.

M.P.'s Baffled by Mysteries of Canadian Trade—Editor Tells Judge How He Won Success

CURIOSITIES of trade are baffling, even to M.P.'s. The other day, D. A. McKinnon, M.P. for Queen's, P.E.I., told the House of Commons that when he went to Toronto he found people buying potatoes from Virginia, produced from seed sent down from Prince Edward Island, and paying customs duty on them. But he is not the only politician who does not understand the mysteries of trade. A few years ago, H. S. Clements, then M.P. for Comox, declared his dissatisfaction with the policy by which British Columbia halibut was allowed to be shipped in bond across Canada to Boston and then re-imported into Canada, paying duty just as if it were caught on the Grand Banks by fishermen from Gloucester, Mass.

MERLE CROWELL is the editor of the American Magazine and a man who can put more honey into an interview than any other gentleman of the same calling in this so-called temperate zone. A few days ago he was haled into court in the great city of New York on a charge of speeding.

"You ask me," he said, using the rhetorical form of interviewing himself employed by most magazine editors, "how it happens that a calm, though radical, intellectual should give way to this crass modern phobia for speed?

"I answer, the impulse is rooted in a liberal impulse to foster self-expression. Here I am breezing along on a good road with a 140-h.p. straight eight. I love the automobile. I regard it as an instrument almost human. Now it isn't reasonable to believe that a 140-h.p. straight eight would be content to express itself in terms of a four-cylinder flivver.

"No, sir; a 140-h.p. straight eight yearns to express itself in terms appropriate to its composition. Here enters the man-made law that crushes self-expression. The same law that says human genius shall express itself in time-worn dogma says a 140-h.p. straight eight shall express itself in terms of 20 miles an hour.

"Right here I come in contact with the law, not because I selfishly disregard human life, but because I feel for the crushed and restricted straight eight, and, regardless of consequences, I demand that it shall have self-expression."

Yes, he paid a fine.

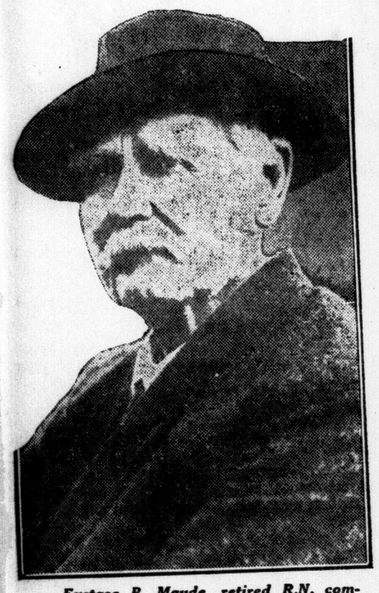
EACH and every week there is a startling budget of news dealing in some way with one or another of the American cabinet. This week's bulletin is quite up to standard.

Mrs. John Garibaldi Sargent, wife of the attorney-general of the United States, has, until the present, been unable to visit Washington, though her husband has been in office for some time. It seems, declare the despatches, that her hens were busy with a setting of 125 eggs and this enterprise required her constant personal attention. Information, supposed to come from reliable sources, now discloses the facts that the hatching process was satisfactorily carried through and the dear little chicks will soon be able to scratch for themselves. Then, and not till then, will Mrs. John Garibaldi Sargent visit her husband and the national capital of the United States.



Eustace B. Maude, retired R.N. commander, now a resident of Vancouver, who is sailing for England from British Columbia via the Panama canal in his 25-foot sloop, "Half Moon," with a copy of Shakespeare's works as his sole companion. Commander Maude is now 77 years of age.

LADY MAINWARING, one of the beautiful members of British aristocracy, has just returned from a trip through the Sahara with such glowing accounts of the district that many people are trying to book rooms there during the July and August vacations.

"We went into the desert on camels," she says. "I loved it. Whenever we were tired, our guide summoned the flute player, who played divine little Arabian love-songs.

But Lady Mainwaring's maid fell for the charms of a Biskra sheik and it was only when she was told that she would be one of a complement of four if she married him that she desisted.

The complement was too much for the compliment, it seems.

PROFESSOR SHELDON of the University of Chicago has a theory that people with red hair and long legs are better than the rest of us. It seems that there is a relation between the morphologic index and the intelligence. To find the morphologic index, you add the length of the arm and the leg and divide by the volume of the trunk.

If the quotient is high, then you are smart enough to understand what the professor is driving at, comments L. H. R. in the New York Times. No rush for tape measures is expected.

Five Unique Methods of Gaining International Publicity

Many and varied are the ways of attaining fame, glory and world-wide reputation in this age of advanced publicity. Getting your picture in the papers is one of the most popular, and the five people, shown above, are the most unique examples brought to light during the past few days. Left to right in the top row are: Miss Ryder, who is running a nine-ton motor boat from the Mediterranean to the Isle of Wight as a protest against the pink-tea tendencies of present-day ladies; Helen Sartory, who asks $10,000 damages on the grounds that a gentleman stole a kiss; Roger Cornell, physical culture expert at a Los Angeles hotel, who claims a steamed sphaghetti bath is a wonderful strength builder and skin purifier. Below is Frank Richards, also of Los Angeles, which seems to be thick with wierd experts. Mr. Richards claims that he has strengthened his muscles so that sledge hammer blows mean nothing in his busy life. On the lower right is Billy Murphy, champion cooper of slack barrels, who also admits that he is a miracle man and can perform startling cures with a patent Indian remedy.

Loves Hot Mince Pie Though 107 Years Old

Mrs. Sarah Bradway Breaks All Existing Rules for Longevity and Is Past Century Mark

ALL existing rules for longevity seems to be fairly well fractured by Mrs. Sarah Besworth Bradway, aged 107, born in Eastwood, Conn., in May, 1818, and still living there.

Due to her extreme age, Mrs. Bradway is now forced to spend most of her time in bed and is cared for by her 80-year-old daughter.

Her diet, for one of her age, is more than unique. Hot doughnuts and mince pie are her favorite forms of food and she eats them whenever they are obtainable. She drinks plenty of hot tea and coffee and sometimes sips cold tea or nibbles candy at night if she is hungry. She eats three meals a day regularly and absolutely refuses to consider cold water as a beverage.

She hates fresh air as much as she abhors cold water. Even on the warmest of spring days, she will not allow her window to be opened an inch.

If all these things are not sufficient claims to distinction, there are the additional facts that she has rarely been outside her home town in all her lengthy life, that she has never ridden in a trolley, a train, an automobile or an airplane and that her family physician declares she will likely live for some time yet.

Accumulated One Cow What Was He to do?

Hon. W. L. M. King Found Himself the Possessor of Live Stock Which He Didn't Want

SOME years ago, when the present Premier Hon. W. L. M. King, was a Federal candidate in North Waterloo, he passed through the small village of St. Jacobs during course of his campaign. An auction sale was in progress and, seeing the crowd gathered, Mr. King went over and watched proceedings.

The auctioneer was attempting to get rid of a cow but there was a scarcity of bids; in fact, there were no bids at all. The premier-to-be was anxious to help things along and so made a preliminary bid of $2.00. The animal was in poor condition and the auctioneer promptly knocked it down to him.

Here he was then, on the way to keep a speaking appointment, accumulating a cow while en route. For a moment, he was bewildered but the problem was soon solved in typical fashion. The animal was presented to a widow in straitened circumstances who was overjoyed at the gift.

DECEPTION NEVER RIGHT NOT EVEN IN EMERGENCY

ONE of the best stories told by Josephine Victor, the popular actress, now in England and very well known in the dominion, concerns two little girls, Joan and Jane, who had been very strictly brought up.

Especially had they been taught that under no circumstances must they try to deceive.

One day, during a visit made by the girls to an aunt in the country, they came face to face with a cow in a field through which they were passing. Much frightened, the youngsters stopped, not knowing quite what to do. Finally Jane said:

"Let's go right on, Joan, and pretend we're not afraid of it."

"But, Jane," said Joan in shocked surprise, "that would not be right. We should be deceiving the cow."

Salesmanship Leads to Fame as an Author And There's No Such Thing as Inspiration

Seven Successful Writers Tell How They Did It and Lay Down Seven Absolutely Different Sets of Rules to Follow

THE hoary topic of whether writers are born or made is now as unique a problem for debate as the relative merits of steam, or was it gas, and electricity.

Still the subject has its interesting points, particularly since practically everyone has, will have, or did have, ambitions to be a writer, and, in addition, since the matter has now been taken up by such people as Irvin S. Cobb, Walter Pritchard Eaton, Rachel Crothers, Kathleen Norris, and, as is inevitable, Channing Pollock.

Let us commence with Mr. Pollock and get him out of the way. Mr. Pollock is the playwright and author of "The Fool." He acts sometimes, in the bargain. Genius is not the important thing in writing, he declares. Salesmanship is. Genius, he remarks, gets his manuscript back accompanied by a printed slip, while the salesman gets rid of 10,000 words that mean nothing and receives nothing in return but a fat check.

"I regard my real metier as salesmanship," Mr. Pollock continues. "In twenty-three years of writing from five to twenty-four hours a day, I have never written a word that hasn't sold, and, to persons acquainted with the output, this must be some testimonial to my persistence and powers of persuasion."

Incidentally, forgetting the question at issue for a moment, there are some fifty words of Mr. Pollock's in the above paragraph, which, as you may have already guessed, he did not sell. For a man who sells every word he writes, this must be quite a charitable donation.

Irvin S. Cobb is equally frank and refreshing. "Authors are neither born nor made," he sums up. "They make themselves. There's no more reason for them to be born into the writing profession than into any other. If such were the case it would be an awful blow to maternity."

Mr. Cobb goes on to picture possible birth notices: "Born to Mr. and Mrs. Blank, a son and author"; and comments that there is no reason for confining this belief to writers. Why not: "Born to Mr. and Mrs. Blank, a son and bricklayer," or "Born to Mr. and Mrs. Blank, a first-class bootlegger."

"And I don't believe in inspiration," continues the great Mr. Cobb. "I never had any inspiration in my life. I write because I have to make a living. If I didn't have to I wouldn't do it. Authors are copyists; every piece of literature is a combination of fragments its writer has read somewhere. And when a writer can take those fragments and knit them together into a coherent work, and inject some of his own personality he has what is called 'style.'"

Ability Depends on Training

"TRAINING is one of the main points," says Walter Pritchard Eaton, who takes up the cudgels at this point. "I don't mean the cut and dried 'Short Story Writing Taught by Mail in Ten Lessons.' I don't mean necessarily university courses. It seems to me that a splendid text-book could be compiled if each successful author would write down the thing that had influenced his work.

"Not such as 'The Bible and Shakespeare have always been my models,' when he really may have gotten his inspiration from reading yellow-back thrillers. I mean a plain statement of the books or portions of books, or possibly even some scene or incident, that in some way had a part in determining his future style and type of writing.

"The only way it can be done is by constant writing," says Rachel Crothers, who ought to know. "Reading and criticism—self-criticism and otherwise—help, of course, but actual writing is the only way to acquire and cultivate a style which will be your own and no one or nothing can influence it in any way."

"Why wouldn't instruction in rhetoric, forms of best expressing ideas, and analization of technique prove equally beneficial in learning to write and save a great many years of experiment and wasted effort, as the training of people in every other profession?"

It is Kathleen Norris who is responsible for this.

We will close this guide to the tyro stylist with a few short words from Harold MacGrath and Meredith Nicholson.

First, Mr. MacGrath: "Broil a little while on the grill of newspaper work. You learn to make words count."

And Mr. Nicholson: "The only way to write is to write."

Laments the Sad Fate Of Sir George Foster

WHENEVER he roams away from his home in Ottawa—which is fairly often—Sir George Eulas Foster is in keen demand as speaker at luncheons and other public gatherings. He is held by many to be Canada's premier orator, and as he has been practicing on large audiences for well over fifty years he now knows all there is to know in the art of declamation.

Sir George has made important speeches in Canada, the United States, England, Scotland, France, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium, the West Indies, Australia, New Zealand and a few other countries. So far as is known, he has never been at a loss for the exact word or precise phrase.

On his last visit to Vancouver, the veteran statesman addressed the Canadian Club on the "History of Canada," his speech making a tremendous impression.

The following Sunday Sir George occupied the pulpit in Wesley Church, taking as his subject "The League of Nations," on which he was peculiarly well fitted to speak, because of his active participation in the Geneva and other conferences.

The great church was filled to capacity an hour before the service was due to commence. Included among those who managed to crowd in at the last moment was a big business man whose political faith is not that of Sir George.

After church he was accosted by a friend, who said:

"I noticed you were just as entranced by Sir George Foster's address this evening as you were by his speech before the Canadian Club. He's a real orator, isn't he?"

"I should say so!" agreed the business man, "but all the same I can't help thinking what a wonderful career that man might have had if he'd only been lucky enough to be born a Liberal!"

POULIOTS KEPT RIDING IN THEIR OWN FAMILY

Representing Temiscouata in the Federal House Seems to Be a Hereditary Position

TO be the fourth in direct line of descent to represent a federal constituency is the unique distinction of Jean-Francois Pouliot, M.P. Aside from that he is the baby of the House of Commons, being only thirty-five years of age. The member for Temiscouta is a Quebec Frenchman who looks like a handsome Irishman. He has the fair hair, the fine pink skin and sparkling blue eyes of a favored son of Erin.

His career is also typical of the Irish. He was expelled from college in 1908 for delivering a speech at a stormy Laurier meeting. The doors of the hall of learning were closed to him when he returned from the gathering. Pouliot had been guilty of a grave breach of discipline. He then betook himself to the study of law, and since being called to the bar has not only distinguished himself as a pleader, but as the author of two valuable works on municipal law.

The youngest member of the House of Commons is somewhat of a go-getter. Last summer, when he was jockeyed out of the Liberal nomination in Temiscouta by an alleged packed convention, Mr. Pouliot was not dismayed. He calmly announced that he was going to run anyhow. The Mackenzie King government kept out of the fight, and Pouliot won the seat of his fathers by a large majority. He has made a splendid impression among his confreres since taking his seat in the House of Commons. His speech on the budget revealed his breadth of mind. "We must see to it that we shall be openly and candidly Canadian," was one striking sentence.

In Canada, we are apt to forget that some of our people have their roots in the soil, and that they have been rooted for four and five generations. Mr. Pouliot's case is rare, but exceedingly interesting. His great-great-grandfather on his mother's side was Louis Bertrand, who was member of the legislative assembly of Lower Canada in 1840. His great-grandfather was J. B. Pouliot, who came to Ottawa at the time of Confederation as member for Temiscouta, C.E.

Pouliot, the present member's father, after a long term in the legislative assembly of Quebec, was elected a member of parliament for Temiscouta in 1896, but died the following year.

But the young member's connection with federal affairs does not end there. Luc Letellier, former minister of agriculture in the Mackenzie administration, was his great-grand-uncle, and Sir Hector Langevin, minister of public works in the Macdonald and Tupper administrations, was his grand-uncle. It is also interesting to note that it was his great-grandfather, Louis Bertrand, who gave his seat to Baldwin when the latter was defeated in Upper Canada.

Mr. Pouliot is happily married to a very good lady who was Maria Maubach of Constantinople.

Speaking of good looks reminds us that Mr. Pouliot's great-grandmother was a Miss O'Brien of Limerick.

Jean-Francois Pouliot, M.P.

Thought Rosita Forbes Was New Kind of Angel

Woman Explorer Returns From Remarkable Tour of Abyssinia—Saw World's Busiest Empress

IT does not seem like many months since Rosita Forbes, the intrepid woman explorer, was lecturing in Canada. Yet, in the meantime, she has made an 1,100-mile caravan trip through the wildest parts of Abyssinia.

"Abyssinia," she says, "is a country of loose stones pinned together by thorns."

She took with her a movie camera, which resulted in a series of interesting experiences. The camera was mistaken for some new variety of religious ceremony, and the explorer herself was classed as a white angel by the natives.

While there she interviewed the Empress, a direct descendant, it is said, of the Queen of Sheba, who received her at seven in the morning, due to the fact that she was giving a dinner to 5,000 people the next day and was very anxious to get back to the imperial kitchens to see that everything was properly done.

PUIR JAMES! AYE LAZY!

IT is told of Sir J. M. Barrie, the famous playwright and novelist, that as a boy he was the despair of his teachers; in fact, he was marked down by them as the laziest lad in his school, Dumfries Academy.

This was remembered against him when, after achieving fame and fortune, he returned for a while to his native village of Kirriemuir.

"Puir James!" they exclaimed, shaking their heads dolefully. "Puir James! He was aye that delicate, and aye that lazy! No wonder he had to tak' to writin' buiks for a livin'."

MUST OLD JOHN BULL GO AS EMBLEM OF ENGLAND?

Suggestion That He Be Dismissed as No Longer Truly Representative of His Country

A NATION OF POETS NOT OF SHOPKEEPERS

H. A. L. Fisher Would Change From John Bull to Shelley and From Blank Check to Blank Verse

By P. W. WILSON

THERE is now a suggestion that England should dismiss John Bull from further services. John Bull, poor old fellow, has served his country faithfully in cartoon, song and speech for two long centuries, and it is hard on a man to be told that he is too old at 200.

The opponent of John Bull is a certain H. A. L. Fisher. He is another legacy left by Lloyd George, who appointed him minister of education and even suggested him for the British embassy at Washington. Mr. Fisher was once the president of a local university at a city in England called Sheffield, and what he dislikes about John Bull is John Bull's association with trade. Perish Byron's description of the English as

Those haughty shopkeepers, who sternly dealt
Their goods and edicts out from pole to pole,
And made the very billows pay them toll.

England, says Fisher, is not, as Napoleon put it, a nation of shopkeepers, but a nation of Shelleys. And the goods that Sheffield sells to mankind are not, as supposed by her slanderers, a line of cutlery for her friends and cutlasses for her foes, but a large output of odes to skylarks, which commodities, with matrimony, were Shelley's well-advertised specialty. In Moscow to-day there are 10,000 persons whose only livelihood is poetry. And as English slowly but surely becomes Bolshevist it is clear that her national emblem should be changed from John Bull to Percy Bysshe. Good homespun sonnets are what the unemployed should produce, so preserving Shakespeare for Stratford-on-Avon and Bacon for breakfast. A blank check for blank verse is the new industrialism and rhymes replace roast beef.

The only question is whether Mr. Fisher has been entirely fair to the reputation of John Bull. Has John Bull ever admitted that he is a shopkeeper? The whole point about him is, surely, that he personifies the Englishman when the Englishman is not keeping a shop. Whatever else is to be said for or against shopkeepers, they do not go to business as a rule carrying a horsewhip and booted and spurred for the hunting field. Their tail coats are not a bright blue, their waistcoats are not a bright red, and their breeches are not white. John Bull is not a business man but a man who can leave his business behind. According to Cowper, John Gilpin was a linen-draper bold,

As all the world doth know;

a remark which, by the way, illustrates the enormous value to linen-drapers of judicious publicity. But on the other hand, John Gilpin was also a citizen

Of credit and renown
A trainband captain eke was he
Of famous London town.

Business in Business Hours

So with Lord Leverhulme. In Liverpool he sold soap, but in London he was "your lordship." And it was as a peer of the realm and not as a purveyor of soap that Lord Leverhulme, in velvet and amid curtains and marble, had his portrait painted for the Academy, which is nothing unless it be "royal." Lord Leverhulme knew how to leave business behind. Similarly, Sir Thomas Lipton. In Hoxton and Shoreditch he sells tea, but tea is the last of all letters in the alphabet that you will write when you spell a Lipton yacht. If you want a packet of tea you do not go to the Shamrock in order to get it, nor are you served at your store by a man with a cap from Cowes and a reefer jacket adorned by the Royal and Ancient Order of Binoculars. What Lipton and Leverhulme achieve is the gospel of John Bull, which is that the aim of trade is life, not that the aim of life is trade.

So with England, as a whole. In that much misunderstood country there has always been—there still is—a certain amount of commerce. If you look for such things, you will find, here and there, a shop, a factory, a mine and even a bank. But the commerce is carefully concealed by sports, churches, aristocracy and the glitter of the socialism that scintillates over society. At Wembley, for instance, there is a genuine effort to promote zoology, anthropology, metallurgy, geography, Boy Scouts, national worship, the Prince of Wales and rodeo from the Wild West. From these shows you cannot entirely exclude a commercial element. Trade will creep into an empire even so British as the British empire. But to mention trade when John Bull is dressed for hunting is bad form. It is here that John Bull differs, politely but firmly, from Uncle Sam, whose considered opinion has been that the dollar is almighty. John Bull never says that the sovereign is almighty. He simply keeps his sovereign on the throne and in his pocket, which arrangement he calls a constitutional monarchy. Tennyson manufactured idylls of the king. Outside those hours he was not poet but a peer. In England to-day there is a stupendous business carried on in art and literature of all grades. But what is the object? An inch in the Queen's doll's house. Giles Scott designs Liverpool Cathedral. And again, what is the reward? Precisely the reward won by Sir Thomas Lipton, who sells tea. He is knighted, and genius kneels for the accolade. If Shelley had been living to-day he would have been a master of foxhounds and arrayed as John Bull should be arrayed. For England is the one country in which it is held that if an anarchist is an efficient anarchist he should be put into Debrett. There must be business hours and hours off business. An English schoolmaster out of school becomes the very boy whom, in school, he is trying to teach. So with the English manufacturer. When he locks his desk he becomes a customer and a gentleman, who never made a penny by the loom and the lathe, but lives on his private means.

The Englishman is sometimes accused of hypocrisy. That word is, of course, Greek for wearing a mask, and in that innocent sense the phrase may be perhaps justified. For it is John Bull who is the Englishman's incognito. Suppose that it is your job to be the Prince of Wales. As John Bull, you tug-of-war, pillow-fight, sing jazz, box, navigate the Berengaria, play polo and do anything and everything except wear robes and a coronet, which, after all, is your professional career. While you are really Wales, you are called Renfrew. And, appearing as a gentleman of private means, you avoid the mere taint of trade. You have a shop called St. James' Palace where you dispense what the department stores call "notions," but you do not talk shop. You appear to have no other occupation except smiles and cigarets. And you dismiss monarchy, like other merchandise, from polite conversation.

Misunderstanding Old John

THEN, again, the Duchess of Rutland. Her husband, having been a duke, which he could not help, had to do something for a living, and, like his father, he was in real estate. But you would never know this from Mary Pickford's eyes, which the duchess so charmingly pencils. The duke's lovely daughter, the Lady Diana, does not go about declaring "My popper's a rent collector." She poses sweetly as a Madonna. Her gesture is Morris Gest and her merchandise is a miracle. One thing at a time—that is England's motto- and another thing when the time comes for it. If cameramen want to take snapshots of King George at church, which is the right thing at the wrong time, they may do it, but only in silk hats. They must dress as Eton boys at Lords when there is a cricket match with Harrrow.

The English view of commerce is thus so simple that the Englishman's country has sometimes been described as "perfidious Albion." The Germans were completely deceived. It seemed to them to be ridiculous that flanneled fools and muddied oafs, as Kipling called his countrymen, could fight a conscript army. Fritzy-boy is now disillusioned and talks about John Bull leading a double life like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. All you have to do about John Bull is to watch the fellow when he is off duty. John Bull tries to climb Mount Everest and incidentally overlooks a land called Tibet. He wanders into Egypt as a tourist and stays there in the prettily worded capacity of resident. His interest in Zionism is so sincere that he must needs capture Jerusalem and govern Palestine. Antiquarians from the Athenaeum Club overrun a valley called Mesopotamia. There never was a more charming book than Doughty's "Arabia Deserta," and John Bull, like Micawber, will not now desert Arabia. In India he only finances railways because he wants to shoot tigers, and it was because FitzGerald translated Omar Khayyam that John Bull, by a mere coincidence, discovered oil in Persia.

He boatraces on the Thames and develops a mercantile marine. He manages Westminster Abbey, and also hotels at Westminster for transatlanticians. He is very pleasant, but he does not exclude a profit. All that he suggests is that the profit, while included in the pleasantry, is not more a detail. When he was pleasant it was not profit that he was thinking about. And the profit could hardly be refused when it came along.

The creator of John Bull is, of course, no Englishman, for no one sees himself as others see him. It was John Arbuthnot who described the rubicund and prosperous gentleman who, since his day, has been the best abused man on earth. Arbuthnot was a Scottish doctor who in his spare time played around as a satirist. To Arbuthnot, John Bull lived in "a bottomless pit" where flourished "the art of political lying." He was a prosperous fellow, but always in trouble, especially with his wife, which meant his government.

Hence arose the myth that England is an incompetent old gentleman, without humor but not without temper, who leaves his affairs to other people to manage, and is thus to be pitied rather than blamed for the many blunders into which he constantly tumbles.—New York Times Magazine.

Blind Man Has Best Sense of Equilibrium

Ordinary Person Cannot Walk in a Straight Line, Scientists Declare — Try It

HAVE you ever tried to walk a chalk line? If you have, you probably found it difficult. The reason is obvious—your supporting base was narrowed and you had to support your body almost on a point.

But can you walk in a straight line employing your usual gait, with feet at a normal distance apart? Without hesitation you will say "Yes." However, unless yours is an unusual case, you are wrong. You can't do it. This has been proved definitely by interesting scientific tests recently completed, writes Robert E. Martin in "The Popular Science Monthly" for May.

Try it yourself. Walk across a wide plaza or through an open meadow toward an object on the other side. Unless you make a concentrated effort, not permitting your vigilance to relax even for a second, you will probably find yourself veering off sharply to the right or the left.

At the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., Dr. J. Q. Holsopple, of the department of psychology, is investigating equilibrium and orientation, which means your ability to keep your balance and your direction. The straightest of all walkers—virtually the only straight walker among mankind—Dr. Holsopple says, is a blind man, for the blind man has learned to walk by ear. That does not mean by listening, but through understanding of the messages transmitted to the brain by the semicircular canals in the ear that govern our ability to maintain our balance and our equilibrium.

These canals contain a fluid that moves in the direction in which we move. When we whirl rapidly about the fluid is distributed and we become dizzy. When we move forward the fluid moves forward and we receive the sensation of forward motion. When we stop the motion of the fluid stops and transmits to the brain a sensation of moving in the opposite direction. Close your eyes in a railroad train, an automobile or an elevator as it stops. Without your eyes to tell you whether you are at rest or in motion for a few seconds after you stop the semicircular canals in your ears will cause you to believe you are traveling in a direction opposite to that in which you have been moving. You can test this strange effect by permitting some one to whirl you about about on a piano stood, or swivel chair. You can also test the odd propensity of humankind to move in circles by walking blindfolded across level ground.

I HOPE God hasn't made him put on wings—
He'd look so helpless if he had to fly,
Just like a long and solemn Gothic saint
Snatched from its niche to dangle in the sky.
I hope God lets him limp about the streets
Of heaven the very way he did down here—
He was so proud of that stiff knee of his;
He got it playing football junior year.
So, when it's spring in heaven and tulips cup
The sunlight, and white lilacs plume the air,
May he limp by, his halo in his hand,
And may the youngest angel children there
Pause in their flight and ask him as we asked
On April Sundays when he'd come to tea—
"How are you, Mister Green?—It's growing warm!—
And how, we wonder, is your poor stiff knee?"
And may he answer them as he did us,
"I guess I've told you how it came Well, then,
I'll tell you now, WE won the game all right!"
And then we'd hear the story once again.
Perhaps the angel children, listening there,
Will wish, as we wished, that they too were lame
Instead of winged, and that they might bear
Through heaven the scar of such a football game!

Never-To-Be-Forgotten Panorama Will Greet Tourists In Peninsula

Festivities Officially Open at Monster Meeting in Beamsville Monday.

MARTIN TO SPEAK

Beauty of Blossoms To Be Seen In All Its Grandeur

Next week is Blossom Week in the Niagara peninsula, and provisions are being made in the entire area between Hamilton and the American border to handle a greatly-increased number of tourists, attracted to the district by the prospect of seeing 30,000 acres of fruit trees in blossom. This sight is one not seen every day, and one which once seen is never forgoten.

The idea of Blossom Week was evolved from Blossom Sunday, which heretofore has been an annual affair. However, this year the communities in the Niagara district decided to launch a move to give the season of blossoms a greater significance. Scott Murray, a well-known businessman of Hamilton, was the first to conceive the idea of Blossom Week, and as well he has been an untiring worker in perfecting the plans for staging this festival. Other men to whom great credit is due in this respect are Capt. Hugh Bell, secretary of the Hamilton chamber of commerce; Russell Kelly of Hamilton and many others in the various municipalities in the Niagara district.

The week's festivities will officially open in a monster meeting in Beamsville, when Hon. John S. Martin, minister of agriculture, and Hon. George S. Henry, minister of highways, will be the principal speakers. The Beamsville community hall will be the headquarters of the organization which will assist in making the visit of the tourists as enjoyable as possible.

Here day guides will be present, properly badged for the occasion, and they will conduct visitors to the points where the panorama looks its best, and where the unsurpassed beauty of Niagara blossoms can be seen in all its grandeur.

RUSSELL T. KELLY,

president of the Hamilton Advertising Agency, and past president of the Hamilton chamber of commerce, has been one of the most energetic workers in the movement to make Blossom Week in the fruit belt a success.

Hotel Close to Cataract Provides Service of Better Type.

A view which people come from thousands of miles away to see is that which greets one from the veranda of the Clifton hotel at Niagara Falls, Ontario. This view is the unparalleled sight of the mighty Niagara Falls, thousands of tons of water pouring over the sheer cliff, energy sufficient to generate electric power for places hundreds of miles away—and all the indescribable grandeur of the rising spray, the incessant roars which through the years never diminishes a whit, and the awe which the entire spectacle induces in the hearts of men.

The Clifton, to those who have been its guests, needs no recommendation, others who are not acquainted with it can be assured that in this commodious hotel they will find everything they expect in a modern hotel. Nothing has been left undone to make the service at the Clifton the best that is possible.

CONDITIONS IDEAL AT SMITH PLANT

Wholesome and High-Grade Preserves Made in Modern Factory.

From coast to coast the housewives of Canada are daily asking for E. D. Smith preserves in the grocery stores of the Maritimes, New and Old Ontario, and the Western Provinces. Such widespread demand means that the Smith products have proven of high merit, that they possess the essential characteristics of being pure and wholesome and high-grade always.

So beautifully are the grounds laid out that one would little suspect that on the Smith estate at Winona there is a factory. Alluring gravel paths, winding through a little paradise of incense - breathing flowers and shrubs and hedges, whose perfection is evidence of years of care and cultivation, make of the Smith estate something to linger in the memory.

It is one of the real attractions in this area, and it is in these ideal surroundings, in this land of benevolent sunshine and lake-washed air, that the jams and catsups and marmalades bearing the Smith label are manufactured for the tables of Canadians.

The management of this concern extends to all Blossom Week visitors a hearty invitation to come in and inspect its plant when passing through Winona.

Two Tame Bears Welcome Guests

Village Inn at Grimsby Provides Air of Home.

"Hey, Donnie, guess what we saw out on the highway?" was the question flung across one of Hamilton's streets yesterday afternoon by a youngster as he leaped from the family sedan after a trip down through the blossom belt.

"I dunno," was Donnie's laconic reply, as he continued poking at the wheel of his express cart, thinking doubtlessly that his sharer of mischief and doughnuts was about to unfold an every-day story of seeing a machine from far off Texas or California or a roadside mishap.

"Well," the first lad shrilled, "guess."

"To heck with guessin'. What did you see?"

"A couple of bears."

Donnie "snapped out" of his abstraction in no time. "Bears!" he gasped incredulously. "Bears?" Here was something standing higher than vehicular smashups or Texan tourists in the scale of youthful significance. "Where at?"

"Down at Grimsby. The man that runs the Village Inn there has 'em. They'll come right up to you, too. I gave 'em a banana."

The two tame bears at the Village Inn in Grimsby are but one of the many reasons why tourists like to stop at this homey hostel along the blossom route. Here they will find an expanse of five acres of natural park developed and cared for by N. Servais, the proprietor of this up-to-date establishment. There is ample space, too, for parking any number of automobiles. A visit to the Village Inn at Grimsby is well worth while.

STAFFORD IN HAMILTON HAS HOMELIKE AIR

Old English Style Adopted by Popular Hamilton Inn.

For people who prefer an hotel with an old English atmosphere about it, the Stafford house, Main street at Charles, Hamilton, on the blossom route, is specially suited. The Stafford is a private hotel, minus the bustle and noise of larger establishments, but possessing to a pleasurable degree every last-minute detail of convenience and accommodation.

Roast beef, cooked as it is in England, Yorkshire pudding, made as it is known in the Old Country alone, and all other items that are found in hostels in England, are part of the service at the Stafford House in Hamilton.

Dancers Gather At the Terrace

Many persons seeing the Garden of Ontario during Blossom Week may be moved by the impulse for recreation of some sort, something to fill in the evening hours when Nature has veiled her children, the blooms on apple and pear and plum trees, with her gossamer mantle of darkness.

For them the Terrace, on the highway two or three miles east of Hamilton, offers exceptional facilities for enjoying to the full any spare time they may have. The Terrace is one of the best equipped and most up-to-date dancing pavilions in the province. Its far-famed orchestra, its floor as smooth as glass, its twinkling lights, and the cool breezes wafting in from Lake Ontario all combine to make of a few hours spent at the Terrace the high light of a tour in blossom land.

Good roads all the way

The sight of a lifetime awaits you in the Niagara Peninsula. From Hamilton to Niagara Falls, along the paved provincial highway, thousands of fruit trees are now in blossom. The road stretches through a veritable fairyland of flowers—the white of the apple and cherry blossoms mingle with the pink of the peach trees; the mountain rises on one side, the blue lake on the other.

There are good roads all the way. Follow the provincial highway through to Hamilton, and thence on to St. Catharines and Niagara Falls. Guides will be available at St. Catharines, Grimsby and Beamsville to direct you to points of interest off the main highway. Adequate provisions have been made for your comfort, and a welcome awaits you wherever you stop.

FORMER PUBLISHER FLOWER PIONEER

Late W. J. Burgoyne Fostered Plan for Beautifying Public Areas.

Blossom Week in the Niagara peninsula recalls a blossom season of longer duration planned for and carried out by the late W. J. Burgoyne, for years publisher of the St. Catharines Standard. Although not shutting his eyes to the beauties of other flowers, rose blossoms and full blooms caught the fancy of Mr. Burgoyne to an unusual degree. Along with several other citizens he busied himself for years bringing in new varieties of roses, particularly climbers, and it seemed that the climate and soil were very much to their liking, for they grow there as in few other places in Canada.

The idea of bringing these beauties out into the open where they could be seen and appreciated by all who cared to come and enjoy them suggested to Mr .Burgoyne the starting of a rose garden on an ambitious scale in the central park of the city. The authorities were only too willing that he should go ahead and start his venture. So a suitable plot was selected and the work progressed, the building of entrances and pergolas, also the bringing in of suitable soil to get the right amount of clay. After that followed the planting of thousands of the best varieties known, and the rose bushes themselves seemed to catch the spirit of the enterprise, for they flourished as few similar gardens have done.

As Mr. Burgoyne sat with the writer on one of the benches in the park on a beautiful day toward the end of June and watched the mothers and children, the men coming from work, all of them going through and admiring the wealth of bloom, he made the remark: "Well, I guess it's been worth while after all." Then it was that he told where he got the idea in the first place. "There are some beautiful gardens around here, wonderful places," he remarked, "but there are so few people ever see them. The people who own the places and a few of their friends enjoy them. Things that are beautiful and God-like ought to be out in the open where we can all enjoy them. That's why I always wanted to make the big garden I had many times planned, out in the open, where it would be available to the public."

Such was the spirit of the public-spirited W. J. Burgoyne, who gave to the people of his district the best that was in him, and gave to his paper, the Standard, a reflection of the same idea. It is a matter of congratulation that the paper, still bearing the family name of Major Henry Burgoyne as publisher, is carrying on the same work in so capable a manner. The paper has succeeded because it deserved success.

THIRTY THOUSAND ACRES OF FRUIT TREES IN BLOOM GREET BLOSSOM WEEK TOURISTS.

Above is shown a typical view of a section of the Niagara peninsula, the Garden of Ontario, as it appears at present. Mile after mile of such scenes as this await the people of Western Ontario who will motor through this area next week, when the blossoms are at their best. Not the least beauty of this vast expanse of blossoms is the heavy, pervading perfume which fills the air from Hamilton right through to Niagara Falls.

CONNON NURSERIES OFFER HELP TO ALL GARDENERS

In all likelihood a trip through the Garden of Ontario during blossom week may imbue many residents of the London district with the desire to emulate the example of folks down Niagara way in laying out attractive shrubs and flowers and in other ways making the surroundings of their homes more beautiful.

The Connon Nurseries, of Hamilton and Stony Creek have specialized for years in developing just such shrubs, plants and flowers. On the staff of this concern are experts who can give all needed information concerning every phase of the art of landscape gardening.

Blossom Week visitors are invited by the management of this firm to stop at Stoney Creek and inspect their greenhouses.

Thirty Thousand Acres of Fruit Trees In Full Bloom Are Awaiting Tourists To Niagara During "Blossom Week"

Heavy, Pervading Perfume From Mile After Mile of Flowered Grandeur Makes of Fruit Belt, the Garden of Ontario, a Paradise That Arouses New Love For Nature.

STOREHOUSE OF LIFE AND BEAUTY

Thirty thousand acres cover a lot of country. Any farm boy between the age of five and fifteen is authority for the statement that even one hundred acres is "one whale of a stretch" when it comes to a more or less daily matter of hunting for the black cow and the red one.

According to the most up-to-date methods of multiplication thirty thousand acres is just three hundred times the farm boy's "whale of a stretch" and if his bovine duo were ever seized with even a mild attack of wanderlust in this territory a ditch-jumping tank or truck with camping equipment would have to be installed to keep the plows and harrows company in the tool shed. And the farm boy would be lucky to find them before he was a grandfather.

Can you imagine thirty thousand acres covered with mile upon mile of apple and peach trees in full bloom, alternating with healthy productive grape vines; rose gardens and peony and tulip beds, surrounding well-built, well-kept homes; and an air of prosperity enveloping the orderly stretches of rich farmland lying between the stone-ribbed mountain on one side and placid Lake Ontario on the other. This is the Niagara Peninsula in Blossom Week.

Thirty thousand acres of blossoms there are at present mile upon mile of heavy, pervading perfume, that, coming to one's nostrils through the cheerful, sun-drenched atmosphere of this garden of Ontario, this paradise for those whose souls are attuned to the unbounded perfection of nature's storehouse of life and beauty, lends to the hearts of men a new and more real and deeper understanding of the infinite beneficence of the Creator when He made the Niagara Peninsula the Eden of flowered vernal peace and fruitful autumnal productiveness that it is.

In the area between Hamilton and Niagara Falls there are 31,004 acres in orchard, 6,843 in vineyards and a total of 2,347 acres planted in trees bearing small fruits.

There are 444,335 apple trees bearing and 67,259 non-bearing; 766,349 peach trees bearing and 132,106 non-bearing; 185,472 pear trees bearing and 62,315 non-bearing; 369,795 plum trees bearing and 72,184 non-bearing; 194,381 cherry trees bearing and 42,077 non-bearing; The total number of grape vines under cultivation is 2,795,681 and all but 172,538 of these are mature vines which will bear fruit this fall.

From the vast number of fruit trees enumerated above and which at present are making of the country between the south west shore of Lake Ontario and the Niagara escarpment a fairyland of pink and white bloom, there will go forth this year trainload after trainload of pears and peaches and plums, of apples and cherries and currants to cities and town and villages in all parts of the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

In New Ontario, in the prairie provinces and in the Maritimes the people who mow their lawns and spade their gardens these days, "even as you and I", are already looking forward to the time when they will sit down to the table whereupon are big luscious Grimsby peaches, Vineland grapes or any one of the many other kinds of fruits grown in the Niagara district, the "Garden of Ontario".

Tourists Invited To Visit Factories

"Shredded wheat, please," the businessman tells the waiter at breakfast time. He eats it but does he ever ponder on the ingenuity, the research and the painstaking development for him to eat such a truly good food.

A visit to the factories of the Shredded Wheat Company, on either the American or the Canadian side at Niagara Falls, will be a revelation to all Blossom Week visitors who have never seen how this breakfast food, used all over the world, is made.

All tourists are asked by this company to visit its factories and gain first-hand knowledge on how it is done.

ST. KITTS BATHS GAIN CONTINENT-WIDE FAME

Welland Inn Has Enviable Reputation Among District Hostelries.

Famous in Canada and many states of the United States for its mineral baths, the Welland Inn at St. Catharines, on the route of Blossom Week tourists, also merits high commendation for the excellence of the service it provides for the travelling public. Here one finds that personal touch, which makes him feel at once that he is among friends, though he be miles or hundreds of miles from home.

An air of restfulness pervades this hotel. The establishment is on a par with hotels in larger cities, from the viewpoint of efficiency and modern equipment, but there is no roar of hurtling passenger trains or frantic clanging of street cars to mar its serenity.

The Welland Inn provides every facility for comfortable accommodation and courteous service, and because of this should prove highly popular with Blossom Week visitors.

G. SCOTT MURRAY,
prominent businessman of Hamilton, to whom is credited the distinction of being the first to advocate the establishment of Blossom Week in the Niagara peninsula. Mr. Murray has worked incessantly to make this this project a success.

BRANT INN PROVIDES BETTER CLASS SERVICE

Recently Purchased by George Stroud, Popular Hamilton Businessman.

"Watch things hum around the Brant Inn now that George Stroud has taken it over," was the comment of one Hamiltonian yesterday in commenting upon Mr. Stroud's recent acquisition of this comfortable inn at the junction of the Beach road and the Toronto-Hamilton highway just east of Hamilton.

Mr. Stroud, who is the proprietor of the Stroud hotel in Hamilton and manager of Pantages theatre in the same city, is known all over the district as a man of boundless geniality, sympathetic, understanding of the problems of others, in short as one who possesses all the attributes summed up in the expression, "He's a good fellow."

Mr. Stroud's latest venture, the Brant Inn, promises to become as successful as previous ones have been. The reason is that it is in a location peculiarly suited to render tourists the kind of service they want.

TEMPERANCE HOUSE ASSURES COMFORTS

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Hotel Has 52-Year Record of Service.

Blossom Week visitors to Niagara Falls, New York, will find in the Temperance house on Second street the kind of service that so often moves people to say when they get back home: "Well, that was a real hotel, and believe me, I'm going to stop there the next time I'm at the Falls."

In one outstanding respect the Temperance house is unique. In the period of 52 years since it was first established, it has never handled liquor or operated a barroom.

This hotel has accommodation for 500 guests, is equipped with hot and cold water, rooms with and without baths on each floor and has a lighting and elevator service one hundred per cent efficient.

The Temperance is but two minutes' walk from the American Falls and Prospect Park. It has been rebuilt and refurnished during the past year and this made it one of the most modern and complete establishments of its kind in New York State. For the last 49 years it has been under the management of William T. Phelps, the present proprietor.

HAND OF FRIENDLINESS HELD OUT TO EVERYONE

New Murray Hotel, St. Catharines, Impresses All With Splendid Service.

Blossom Week tourists stopping in St. Catharines will find in the New Murray hotel a welcome and a friendliness that will make them forget that they are far from home, and infuse into their impression of this garden of Ontario, qualities that are lasting.

Such establishments as the New Murray hotel are one of the potent reasons why the Niagara area is becoming internationally famous as a district where courtesy and kind attention to strangers is part of the philosophy of life of every permanent resident.

Ample accommodation for tourist parties, both large and small, is to be found in this thoroughly modern hostelry, and Blossom Week tourists can rest assured that here they will find the service and satisfaction that mean so much to people away from home.

BEESHEY CHINA SHOP BECOMING FAMOUS

Ridgeway Establishment Has Complete Stock of Celebrated Wedgwood Ware.

Ridgeway is a prosperous little community south of Niagara Falls in the fruit belt, and the reason that more and more tourists are visiting it every year is that in Ridgeway there is a shop which for uniqueness and quality of merchandise has few peers.

This is Beeshey's China Shop and in it are stocked a great variety of the delightful creations of the world's most famous potters, Josiah Wedgwood and Sons, of Etruria.

The Beeshey establishment, because of the high grade of its stock-in-trade and the courteous attention it affords tourist-customers, has grown famous not only in its own district but also in many far distant parts of the United States and the Dominion.

Unc' Billy Follows Peter's Tracks and Guesses Whose Eggs He Mentioned

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

"Whose aiggs were yo' mentioning, Brer Rabbit?" repeated Unc' Billy Possum as Peter said nothing.

"What do you want to know for?" demanded Peter suspiciously.

Unc' Billy grinned. "Yo' seemed to be right smart interested in aiggs yo'self a minute ago. Why shouldn't Ah be as interested in pretty aiggs as yo'?" retorted Unc' Billy.

To this Peter could find no satisfactory answer and so he made none at all. He wished he hadn't talked aloud. He wished he had kept his tongue still. Anyway, he wouldn't tell where those eggs were or whose they were. Thus Unc' Billy would be no wiser and no harm would be done. So he abruptly turned his back on Unc' Billy and took to his heels. Away he went, lipperty-lipperty-lip. Unc' Bill watched him go and chuckled. "Brer Rabbit is trying to run away from his own tongue and taking it with him," said he. "A lot o' folks are that a-way. Brer Rabbit done find some aiggs. If he hadn't he wouldn't have been talking about them. He can't climb trees, so he must have found those aiggs on the ground. He came along the Laughing Brook, so Ah reckon it was somewhere down the Laughing Brook, and not long ago that he found them. Ah reckon Ah might as well take a look down that a-way."

So Unc' Billy climbed down from his perch in the tree and shuffled along over to the Laughing Brook and along the bank in the direction from which Peter had come. His shrewd little eyes kept sharp watch of the ground all about and his sharp little nose was poked into every likely place. But he found no nest and, of course, no eggs. He came to the edge of the Green Forest to where the Laughing Brook went on through the alders and so to the Smiling Pool on the Green Meadows.

"Whose aiggs were yo' mentioning, Brer Rabbit?" repeated Unc' Billy

Unc' Billy paused. He was a bit in doubt about going on. Then in some mud he saw the prints of Peter's feet. Unc' Billy chuckled. "Ah reckon Ah am headed right," said he. "Ah wonder could it have been the aiggs of Longbill the Woodcock that Brer Rabbit found. It will do no harm to look about in these alders."

So Unc' Billy kept on. Pretty soon Redwing the Blackbird spied him and flew over to make a great fuss, calling him a thief, a rascal and other unpleasant things. Unc' Billy didn't mind particularly. In fact he didn't mind at all. You see he knew by Redwing's actions that somewhere near was Redwing's nest. So Unc' Billy began looking up in the alders as well as on the ground. There must be two nests over here, for he was sure that Peter couldn't possibly have seen Redwing's eggs.

But when he reached the edge of the alders without having found any nest at all Unc' Billy began to think that he wasn't so good a guesser as he had thought himself. He didn't just like going out in the open in broad daylight. Just a little way ahead was the Smilling Pool Unc' Billy thoughtfully scratched his nose. There might be Turtle eggs buried in the sand near Smiling Pool. Turtle eggs would be a treat, quite as much of a treat as any eggs Peter Rabbit was likely to have found. This decided Unc' Billy and he moved on again.

The instant he came out from the alders he saw on a stone on the edge of the water a neat, small person, whose tail kept bobbing up and down It was Teeter the Sandpiper. Unc' Billy grinned. It was a pleased grin, a satisfied grin. He recalled that Peter had said those eggs were pretty and he remembered having once found Teeter's eggs and that they were pretty.

"As sho'ly as Ah am an old sinner it was Teeter's nest that Brer Rabbit found," he muttered, and started on.

Legends of Old Recalled By View From Winona Inn

"Sparkle of a thousand ripples coming through the trees; whisper of a million hopes astride the vernal breeze," are the thoughts that first come to mind when one looks out across Lake Ontario from the doorway of the Winona Beach Inn, set in a fairyland of blooms and shrubbery, overhung with gently swaying willow trees, on the shore one mile east of Winona.

Blossom Week visitors to the Garden of Ontario will not have made the most of their tour until they have stood on the graveled drive of this hostel, located in a land rich in history and legend, and have seen the redmen and voyageurs of long ago glide past in their bark canoes, armed for war, perhaps, or bound for an unknown country, where awaited them all the thrill of new adventure. Not everything that is past is dead.

Unbidden, there wells up in one's heart a vague longing to have lived in that day, and known the life that those aborigines and these pioneers knew—to have seen through a morning campfires's smoke the new sun rising to set the lake aglearn with fresh beauty, and at night, its mission done, settle in the far-flung forest to the west.

The Winona Beach Inn is on the shore of the lake, but a short distance from the highway east of Winona village. A large sign will tell the tourist when to turn down its lane. The proprietor, J. C. Campbell, is known as the soul of hospitality to all who have ever been his guests.

HOME COMFORTS GIVEN TO ALL BY LINCOLN INN

Uncertainty of Tourists As To Welcome Dispelled by This Hotel.

Western Ontario motorists, unfamiliar with the Niagara peninsula, may feel a little uncertain as to what is awaiting them when they get into the land of blossoms. But this uncertainty soon evaporates when they have stopped at the Lincoln Inn, on the main highway at St. Catharines, for here there is awaiting them something just a little different in the way of hotel service and hospitality.

The Lincoln Inn enjoys a high repute even in this district of excellent hostelries, and each year sees more and more tourists from all parts of Canada and the United States recommending it to their friends.

Seniors Invade Brantford Today

Locals Confident Can Pull Over a Win.

London seniors will invade Brantford today, and Coach Gill Forgue is quite confident they can put over a win, as they have been practicing faithfully all week, a few of the weak spots have been greatly strengthened and there will also be a few changes made in the lineup. Baker, who has been suffering from a sore leg, is to be moved from the outfield and may help along on the pitching end, with either Quick or Downs, while Filmore will be moved to second, and the outfield will be Arnott, Fichett, Pring or McWaine. Armstrong, Reilly, Doherty and Filmore will compose the infield, and Isaacs will catch.

TWO SEAGRAM FILLIES WORK PLATE DISTANCE

Fast Track Features Workouts at Woodbine.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, May 16.—Ideal weather conditions and a fast track featured the workouts at the Woodbine yesterday. Leading contenders from Canadian stables worked all distances in fast time. The Seagram entries for the King's plate were sent the full mile and a furlong. Duchess, Irish Belle and Tamarind forming the first set. Duchess finished half a length in front of Irish Belle, going the route in 1:58 3-5. The two fillies also made an excellent showing and will probably carry Seagram colors in the King's plate.

The J. C. Fletcher candidate, Fairbank, was given a strong gallop and showed plenty of speed.

Seven Oaks, Forecast II and Jean Crest will get their trial today.

Hoi Polloi and Criqui were given sprints and made the ⅜ in 1:38.

Golden Rule, the Ross stable horse, who will probably be the entry in the Canadian-owned stakes at the Woodbine, worked the mile in 1:43 2-5, which is remarkably good time.

J. C. Gorman's Trigger went the mile in 1:46 2-5, while Hiltman, the Seagram sprinter, showed his form by working ¾-mile in 1:16 3-5.

James F. O'Hara, the Mackenzie province-bred, showed a smart half in :49 2-5, while Chancellor and Cambridge, the Ross stable pair, went a half together in 50 seconds.

DENIES MAILING POISONED CANDY

Suspect Arraigned By Detroit Post Office Authorities.

FACES 10-YEAR TERM

Special to The Advertiser.

Detroit, May 15.—Charles Henderson pleaded not guilty today before J. Stanley Hurd, United States commissioner, of violating the postal laws by mailing poisoned candy to Miss Louise Havers, former Sarnia girl who is employed as a clerk at the Book-Cadillac hotel.

His bond was set at $5,000. Bonding companies stood ready to supply it. The examination wil be held June 1.

Faces 10-Year Term.

If convicted under this warrant, Henderson will be liable to 10 years' imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

E. E. Fraser, postal inspector, agreed with Assistant Prosecutor John V. Brennan that it would be easier to convict Henderson of the mail law violation than of attempted murder, which would have been a state law charge.

Poison Accessible

In the building in which he worked, Henderson might easily obtain the poisons which were found in the candy sent Miss Havers, the police determined. These poisons are of such a powerful nature that they are not sold in drug stores or in places where they can be readily obtained.

Miss Havers was a friend of Alejundro V. Martinez, Mexican consul in Detroit, and Carlos Grimm, vice-consul. The anonymous letters threatened her life if she "continued going with Mexicans."

Henderson's friendship with the Havers family started 20 years ago in Sarnia, Ont., when she was a child.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 15.—The Rt. Hon. Sir George Lloyd, Unionist member of parliament, has been appointed high commissioner for Egypt. He will succeed Field-Marshal Viscount Allenby, who has held the post since 1919.

The new high commissioner for Egypt is an expert in Eastern politics. A graduate of Eton and Cambridge, Sir George began his career as attache of the British embassy at Constantinople.

In 1908, he was appointed special commissioner to inquire into the future for British trade to Turkey, Mesopotamia and Persia.

Sir George served during the war in Egypt, at Gallipoli and in Mesopotamia and the Hedjas from 1914 to 1918.

He then became governor of Bombay, a post he retained until 1923.

Sir George was born in 1879. He married the Hon. Blanche Lascelles, a niece of Viscount Lascelles, who is husband of the Princess Mary.

FORMER HOME BANK HEAD ELECTS TRIAL BY JURY

Canadian Press Despatch.

CONQUISTADOR BEATEN IN COPELAND CLASSICS

Associated Press Despatch.

London, May 15.—Another prominent Derby candidate, Lord Derby's Conquistador, was beaten today in the Copeland sweepstakes of one and a half miles at Haydock Park, when Lord Wavertree's Horace, by Russley-Fellow the Flag, won by one and a half lengths, starting at odds of 33 to 1 against. Horace carried 95 pounds. A. J. Ash's Curry Belle, which ran second, carried 109 pounds, and Conquistador, 114 pounds. Horace had the measure comfortably of Lord Derby's colt two furlongs from the finish. Only the three ran. Lord Wavertree's colt is also entered for the Derby, but has not been mentioned in the betting, whereas Conquistador is one of the favorites.

ROSCOE ARBUCKLE WILL BE MARRIED TONIGHT

Associated Press Despatch.

Hollywood, Cal., May 15.—Roscoe Arbuckle, former film comedian, will make another start toward the alta with his bride-to-be, Doris Deane, in Pasadena, Saturday, it was announced today. The ceremony, which has been postponed several times since the couple obtained a marriage license a few months ago, is scheduled to take place tomorrow night.

Arbuckle, in previous attempts, found difficulty in obtaining a clergyman or superior court judge to tie the nuptial knot.

SMITH CHARGED WITH ASSAULT AND BATTERY

Associated Press Despatch.

Boston, May 15.—A complaint charging Earl Smith, catcher of the Pittsburg club of the National league, with assault and battery was sworn out in court today by Walter J. Lewis of Brookline. A summons, returnable tomorrow, was issued for the baseball player.

Smith was the center of a storm at Braves Fields yesterday, when he resented "ragging" by one of the spectators at the Braves-Pirates game. Lewis charged that the player struck him. Smith has been suspended by the National league, pending an investigation.

GUELPH BOY DROWNED.

Guelph, May 15.—The first drowning accident of the year took place last evening when little 8-year-old Ernest Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Wilson, Elizabeth street, stumbled while climbing up the apron of the dam at Allan's bridge over the Speed river, while playing with other boys. The body was recovered about half an hour later, and doctors' efforts to revive him proved unavailing.

MOTHERS PRAISE BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. L. M. Brown, Walton, N. S., says: "I cannot recommend Baby's Own Tablets too highly. I have found them invaluable for the ailments of little ones." Mrs. Brown's testimony is the same as that of thousands of other mothers who have used the Tablets. To use them once is a sure guarantee that they will always be kept in the home as long as there are babies or young children to be cared for. The Tablets are a laxative—mild but thorough in action—which never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels; relieve constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make the dreaded teething period easy. In fact they banish all the minor ills from which little ones suffer. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers, or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.—Advt. b

NERVOUS BREAK-DOWN
Pains in Back and Legs Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ford, Ontario.— "I had a nervous break-down, as it is called, with severe pains in my back and legs, and with fainting spells which left me very weak. I was nervous and could not sleep nor eat as I should and spent much time in bed. I was in this state, more or less, for over two years, before Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me by my neighbor. Before I had taken five doses I was sitting up in bed, and when the first bottle was taken I was out of bed and able to walk around the house. During my sickness I had been obliged to get some one to look after my home for me, but thanks to the Vegetable Compound I am now able to look after it myself. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine in turn with the Vegetable Compound, and I certainly recommend these medicines to any one who is not enjoying good health. I am quite willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. SHEPHERD, 130 Jos. Janisse Avenue, Ford, Ontario.

Nervousness, irritability, painful times, run-down feelings and weakness are symptoms to be noted. Women suffering from these troubles, which they so often have, should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. All druggists sell this medicine. C

DOES EVERY MEAL CAUSE YOU DISTRESS?
IF IT DOES YOU SHOULD TAKE BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Mr. M. P. Eldridge, Beaver Harbor, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with my stomach for some time, and everything I ate seemed to distress me. I tried many different medicines, but without any results. ADVERTISING MEN HOLD CONVENTION

Francis Frazee Says People Try to Live 48 Hours a Day.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hamilton, May 15.—Advertising men from practically all the larger cities in Canada and the United States attended the opening session of the advertising affiliation convention here this afternoon. Mayor Jutten welcomed the delegates at a luncheon and presented to Clinton L. Lydon, Rochester, president of the affiliation, a golden key, emblematic of the freedom of the city.

J. Fuller, president of the Greater Buffalo Ad club, was director at the afternoon session.

R. O. Eastman of Cleveland delivered an address on the subject of resurveying the market and stated that marketing should be placed on a scientific basis—the same as production. "There is no such thing as a national market. It is really only a composite of local markets," he said.

Francis Frazee of Buffalo, referring to radio, automobiles, etc., said that modern people were trying to live 48 hours a day. To keep pace with this, advertising copy, to carry an appeal, must be brief and must not include generalities.

EQUAL DIVORCE RIGHTS BILL TO GET THIRD READING SOON

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottwa, May 15.—J. T. Shaw, independent, Calgary West, asked at the opening of the House of Commons today when the third reading of his act respecting divorce might be expected. The prime minister replied that it would depend very largely on the progress that was made with government business.

The purpose of Mr. Shaw's bill is to establish equality as between husband and wife so far as the grounds for divorce are concerned.

has its own struggle with the weathercock changes of taste. It takes a bright and far-seeing eye to know when the wind is going to "set fair."

A year ago, indications abroad pointed to the ensemble suit as the coming success of the autumn season. Yet in September, one or two of the largest and smartest of the New York shops had none, or next to none, in stock. They had felt too uncertain of it—

Not so the individual buyers. They went to it with a rush. All kinds of women—everybody—smart and dull, rich and not-so-wealthy, everybody bought ensembles. The Dictators of Fashion felt they must do something—and do it quickly—to keep part of it for themselves.

So they spread its skirts.

But they could not keep the ensemble exclusive. It was a dear, delightful, democratic young thing, full of joy, and all the more welcome when it spread itself a little. It swirled those attractive skirts with the feminine frou-frou that is such a relief to the eyes after so long a course of the Lead Pencil line, and everybody caught at them! The Dictators in Paris tried again.

"Ensembles," said they, "are becoming too much of a popular garment. Especially those coquettish young coats with curves." So they put a ban on them with the Smartest Ladies, and called them "The Fords of Fashion." But the Smartest Ladies only laughed!

"'Tis the prettiest fashion for years," said they. And went on wearing it. So the ensemble came to stay.

Whether you are the type that likes to be exclusive, or prefers to be friendly; whether you buy one suit a year, or several; you need an ensemble. It is made in fabulous material—and in everything else. It is a fashion as universal, and as embracing, as Love!

RESULTS DEPEND

(just as with Love!) on how you do it. You can add distinction and individuality, and a little touch of hauteur with the accessories that accompany it. The well-bred ensemble is never promiscuous. It is not merely the case of the matching coat and frock. The hat that goes with it should be its own exclusive property. Its gloves, scarf, stockings, shoes, parasol, handkerchief, bag, jewelry—the very powder puff that appears in its company—all are closely related.

You can wear it with simple charm, or with a feudal array of accessories. Whichever you do, you will be in the height of fashion. And be in it for months to come. Woman's natural taste has accepted it. Details may be changed, subtracted, or added to it. But the actual fact remains—and will remain for some seasons.
