Germany Replies to Pope's Peace Note

PLANS TO RE-ORGANIZE RUSS ARMY--- BRITISH HOLD ALL GAINS AGAINST FOE

Favors Universal Restriction of Armaments

Reply is in Reality no Reply, But an Attempted Justification of Germany's Course in the War; Kaiser Ever The Champion of Peace and Liberty Says This Remarkable Concatenation

By Courier Leased Wire.
Amsterdam, Sep. 22—Following is the complete text of the German reply to Pope Benedict's peace proposal:

"Herr Cardinal:
"Your Eminence has been good enough together with your letter of August 2 to transmit to the kaiser and king my gracious master the note of His Holiness, the Pope, in which His Holiness filled with grief at the devastation of the world war, makes an emphatic peace appeal to the heads of the belligerent peoples. The kaiser king has deigned to acquaint me with your eminence's letter and to entrust the reply to me.

APPRECIATE POPE'S EFFORTS.

"His majesty has been following for a considerable time with high respect and sincere gratitude His Holiness' efforts in a spirit of impartiality to alleviate as far as possible the sufferings of the war and to hasten the end of hostilities. The kaiser sees in the latest step of His Holiness fresh proof of his noble and humane feelings, and cherishes a lively desire that for the benefit of the entire world the papal appeal may meet with success.

WILHELM THE PEACEMAKER

"The effort of Pope Benedict is to pave the way to an understanding amongst all peoples and might more surely reckon on a sympathetic reception and the wholehearted support from his majesty seeing that the kaiser, since taking over the government has regarded it as his principal and most sacred task to preserve the blessings of peace for the German people and the world. In his first speech from the throne at the opening of the German Reichstag on June 25, 1888, the kaiser promised that his love of the German army and his position toward it should never lead him into temptation to cut short the benefits of peace unless war were a necessity, forced upon us by an attack on the empire or its allies. The German army should safeguard peace for us, and should peace nevertheless be broken, it would be in a position to win it with honor. The kaiser has, by his acts fulfilled the promise he then made in 26 years of happy rule, despite provocations and temptations.

FORCED INTO WAR!

"In the crisis which led to the present world conflict his majesty's efforts were up to the last moment directed towards settlement of the conflict by peaceful means. After the war had broken out against his wish and desire, the kaiser, in conjunction with his allies, was the first solemnly to declare his readiness to enter into peace negotiations.

"The German people supported his majesty in his keen desire for peace.

"Germany sought within her national frontier the free development of her spiritual and material possessions and outside the imperial territory unhindered competition with nations enjoying equal rights and equal esteem. The free play of forces in the peaceful wrestling with one another would lead to the highest perfecting of the noblest human possessions. Disasterous concentration of events in the year 1914 absolutely broke off all hopeful course of development and transformed into a bloody battle arena.

APPROVE PROPOSALS.

"Appreciating the importance of His Holiness' declaration, the imperial government has not failed to submit the suggestion contained therein to earnest and scrupulous examination. Special measures which the government has taken in closest contact with representatives of the German people, for discussing and answering the question raised prove how earnest it desires, in accordance with His Holiness' desires and the peace resolution of the reichstag of July 19, to find a practical basis for a just and lasting peace.

"The imperial government greets with special sympathy the leading idea of the peace appeal wherein his holiness clearly expresses the conviction that in the future the material power of arms must be superseded by the moral power of right. We are also convinced that the sick body of human society can only be healed by fortifying its moral strength of right. From this would follow according to His Holiness' view the simultaneous diminution of the armed forces of all states and the institution of obligatory arbitration for international disputes.

"We share His Holiness' view that definite rules, a certain safeguard for a simultaneous and reciprocal limitation of armaments on land, on sea, and in the air as well as for the true freedom of the community and high seas, are the things regarding which—the new spirit that in the future should prevail in international relations—should find first hopeful expression. The task would then of itself arise to decide international differences of opinion, not by the use of armed forces, but by peaceful methods, especially by arbitration whose high peace producing effect we together with His Holiness fully recognize.

"The Imperial Government will, in this respect, submit every proposal compatible with the vital interest of the German empire and people. Germany, owing to her geographical situation and economic requirements has to rely on peaceful intercourse with her neighbors and with distant countries. No people, therefore has more reason than the German people to wish that instead of universal hatred and battle that a conciliatory fraternal spirit should prevail between nations.

"If the nations are guided by this spirit it will be recognized to their advantage that the important thing is to lay more stress upon what unites them in their relations. They will also succeed in settling individual points of conflict which are still undecided, in such a way that conditions of existence will be created which will be satisfactory to every nation and thereby a repetition of this great world catastrophe would appear impossible.

"Only on this condition can a lasting peace be founded which would promote an intellectual rapprochement and a return to the economic prosperity of human society. This serious conviction encourages our confidence that our enemies also may see a suitable basis in the ideas submitted by His Holiness for approaching nearer to the preparation of future peace under conditions corresponding to a spirit of reasonableness and to the situation in Europe."

The document is signed by the Imperial Chancellor, Michaelis, and is addressed to Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State.
Not Yet.
Rome, Sept. 21.—The Vatican's courier, from Switzerland had not arrived in Rome up to this evening, with the Austrian and German replies to Pope Benedict's peace proposals. Cardinal Gasparri, the Papal Secretary of State, said the courier arriving here next Wednesday possibly would bring the replies.

FOE FAILS IN ATTACKS ON BRITISH

AERIAL ACTIVITIES

Birdmen Played Big Part in British Drive Last Thursday.

By Courier Leased Wire
British Headquarters in France and Belgium, Sept. 22.—(By the Associated Press)—Fighting is still raging to-day in the neighborhood of Tower Hamlets, which has been the scene of almost continuous strife since the offensive of the British to the east of Ypres on the Belgian front began. On the left the British line was reported to be intact, but no news of the situation on the right could be had this morning.

London, Sept. 22.—Troops of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, continued last night to launch heavy counter attacks against the new British lines east of Ypres on the Belgian front. Field Marshal Haig in his report to-day to the war office says that the Germans used considerable forces in their attacks without gaining any result except to heavily increase their losses.

The text of the British official statement says:
"Hostile counter attacks continued yesterday evening on the Ypres front. Considerable German forces were engaged without any result being gained except a heavy increase in the enemy losses.

"At dusk the enemy launched a powerful counter attack in massed formation on a wide front east of St. Julien.

"At one point his troops succeeded in penetrating a short distance into our new positions, but they were immediately and completely driven out by our local counter-attack.

"At all other points West Lancashire and London troops repulsed the enemy's infantry with great loss. At the end of two hours of fierce fighting our whole line was intact. The attack was delivered with great determination and the enemy losses were exceedingly severe.

"Early in the night after the failure of his attack on the Tower Hamlets ridge during the afternoon, the enemy again attacked with strong forces on both sides of the Ypres-Menin road. Here also heavy fighting ended in the complete repulse of the enemy.

"During the evening, a third hostile attack east of Langemark was crushed by our artillery."

Aerial Activities
London, Sept. 22.—The following official statement dealing with the activities of the British aviation corps during the British offensive in Flanders was issued last night by the war office.

"During the first two hours of our attack on Thursday, low clouds and a drizzling rain, made flying almost impossible. However, our airplanes flew out at low altitudes and dropped bombs on a hostile airfield near Courtrai, besides firing at bodies of German infantry. As soon as the weather slightly improved, our aerial activities became greater, and contact was kept with our advancing troops, and both airplanes and balloons gave observation for our artillery. On several occasions the location of enemy troops preparing for a counter attack was reported to our artillery who successfully dealt with the situation.

"While the attack was in progress airplanes fired from their machine guns over 28,000 rounds, from heights ranging from between 100 and 1,000 feet at German infantry in their trenches and shell holes, at reinforcements coming up to the battle; at bodies of troops on roads and (Continued on page five)

try into the war there will be little of the gay social life this winter that has made New York society the most brilliant in the country. This is said by several prominent society women, under whose direction the most important subscription and dancing classes are given.
It was said that all large formal attairs will cease altogether during the war.

Announcement is expected during the week of the abandonment of the junior assemblies, regarded as the most important and smartest events of the season, and held particularly for debutantes. They have been held

On Tuesday evening at six p.m., a quiet but very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Messecar, 141 Sheridan St., when their eldest daughter, Eva, was married to Mr.
Perey Logan of Vancouver, formerly of this city. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a handsome gown of champagne georgette crepe. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Wright, of London, uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Wright, pastor of the Park Baptist church, Mr. George
White, organist of the Colborne St.
Methodist church, played the wedding march. Some thirty or forty guests were present, including guests from London, Scotland and Toronto.
After the ceremony, the young couple left on a trip to Montreal, Boston, and New York, the bride travelling in a brown broadcloth suit with mole skin cape. Mr. and Mrs. Logan will stop over for a day or so in Brantford on their return from New York before leaving for their home in Vancouver, B.C.

who compose the "Mutual Admiration Society," which assumes to call itself the Trades and Labour Council.

The procedure adopted in calling the meeting was quite consistent and had no political significance whatever. Circulars were posted at the different factories of the city asking the men to appoint their delegates to attend our meeting. The space at the city hall was limited, and each factory was asked to send from three to five men. The choice of the representatives was entirely in the hands of the men themselves. The fact that out of all the Brantford factories, none were asked, who designated Kite or Keene their delegates is proof conclusive that the above gentlemen are not in any sense the representatives of labor, either organized or unorganized.

The fact that they have now made an unwarranted attack on the sponsors of the Food and Fuel referendum is an indication of just how sincere they are in their loud and oft repeated professions of helping the working people.

Keene is fearful that if the political move, and advises that it will be well to watch Ald. MacBride. Ye gods, imagine Keene or Kite being afraid of politics. Are they not a political party in themselves with a permanent platform of "condemnation"? Whoever heard either of them raise his voice or pen in commendation of anything—no matter how much in the public interest. Just a "joyless and dull" chorus.

The Trades and Labor Council, properly constituted, is entitled to equal consideration with other public bodies, and if it wishes to lend assistance to a scheme in the interest of all the people, it will never have a better opportunity than that now presented by the Food and Fuel committee.

If I may be permitted to offer a suggestion—let the Trades and Labor Council cast out its Kite-Keene politicians and make itself a truly representative labor organization, as it was originally before the days of honorary delegates and agitators. Watch MacBride! Bless their hearts! MacBride doesn't mind being watched. He is content to be judged by his performances. While, just at present, he is engaged on working his proposition, he is just as ready to lend assistance to anything that will benefit any section of this good city.

M. MACBRIDE.

STATEMENT FROM MAYOR BOWLBY

Brantford, Sept. 21, 1917. Editor Courier:—On July 3rd, 1917, the only ruling as to any matter respecting the coal given by me is hereunder set forth.

Extract from the Minute Book of the City Council. "Moved by Ald. English, seconded by Ald. MacBride, that by-law No. —, to buy and sell fuel and food" be now read a second time, and that the Council go into Committee of the whole thereon.

The Mayor, as soon as the resolution was in his hands, stated that he would vote nay and asked for the yeas and nays. Ald. Jones took exception to the Mayor's ruling, and contended that the motion had not been put, and insisted upon an appeal to the Council, from the Mayor's ruling.

The yeas and nays being called for by Ald. Jones resulted as follows: Yeas—His Worship Mayor Bowlby, Nays—Ald. English, Kelly, Bragg, Hess, Secord, Symons, Jennings, Jones, Varey, Wiley, Mellan, Harp, MacBride, Dowling, 14.

After further discussion the yeas and nays were taken on the original motion, as follows: Yeas—Ald. English, Kelly, Hess, Secord, Symons, Jennings, Jones, Varey, Wiley, Mellan, Harp, MacBride, Dowling, 14. Nays—His Worship the Mayor, Ald. Bragg, Mellan, 3.

The motion was declared carried. By-law No. —, read a second time.

This the representation by Ald. MacBride that I ruled the by-law out of order is a misstatement, and

W. J. BRAGG, Auctioneer.

The Minute Book of the Council will prove absolutely that I made no such ruling.

I protest strongly against misrepresentation whatever, the object may be, I confess to having pronounced views on this coal question and am the last man in the world who would in any way obstruct the wheels of progress or add anything to the burdens of the people in respect to coal or any other necessary thing for the maintenance of life and comfort. The United States and Canada as well, already have coal controllers who have fixed prices at the mines, also costs of transportation and the quantities to be allowed to different localities. I attended these Controllers at Hamilton, and received the fullest assurance that Brantford would receive just treatment and be allowed her proper share of coal. All the by-laws and all the resolutions of Brantford City Council cannot produce for us because we are allotted share, a single bushel of coal.

Then it is a question solely of dis-

See the car at our garage. Measure for yourself the value offered in the Gray-Dort. Ask yourself isn't there more real comfort, more true beauty, more sheer mechanical efficiency, more dollar for dollar value built in the Gray-Dort than in any car near its price?

Everything is there to give a complete realization of the Gray-Dort triumph. Inspect first the cut-open chassis. See for yourself the marvelous engine—the second masterpiece of Etienne Planche, creator of the world-famed Peugeot motor (fastest of all motors)—the engine whose generous power and well-tuned action have made its designer's name doubly famous.

Satisfy yourself of its mechanical excellence and turn then to the roomy comfort, the unequalled convenience of the Gray-Dort touring model.

And view with as critical an eye as you may the beautiful modern lines and the masterly finish of the Gray-Dort Roadster.

Truly, you will say, outstanding value is there—dollar-for-dollar from whatever angle you judge, on whatever judgment you invest.

THE SITUATION
The British have consolidated all the ground taken in the Ypres drive and taken other positions needed to complete the end in view. General Haig reports losses as light, while the enemy suffered severely and it is reported that their dead literally cover the field. The extent of the achievement can be gleaned from the fact that it is stated there were four Germans to every yard of front. The number of prisoners now totals some four thousand.

Argentina is expected to break treaty with Germany, and in that event is said, will offer troops to the Allies.
In Russia General Alexieff, Chief Staff under Kerensky, has resigned, or been fired. He is succeeded by M. Tchevertski, who is described as a drastic reformer. Kerensky's new plans will be a new War Minister and Staff Chief.
The President and Chinese Cabinet have offered a division of 24,000 soldiers to go to France if money, equipment and shipping are available. The entente Allies have approved the proposition, and the trip, successful, will lead to the use of any thousands more.

NOTES AND COMMENTS
Playing bridge with the St. Lawrence River, is a pretty expensive game.
Quite a natural thing to talk of the "cabinet of China."

It is pleasing to know that the Brantford Fair, despite a recent fire visitation, will be on deck as usual this year. No one hereabouts wants to miss that great annual gathering of the clans.
The Toronto Globe charges that the Borden Government has been engaged in "election strategy." As a matter of fact, the great simon pure, all wool and a yard wide manipulator in that respect has been a gent named Laurier.

William Jennings Bryan, erstwhile peace champion, recently spoke of war critics as "Anarchists." William is getting along.

Haig knows how to make the right kind of a response to premature peace talk.

Whether this is Indian summer or just a sample of what ought to have happened earlier in the year doesn't matter. It's all right.

If Chinese troops get to France, as talked of, it is to be hoped that they will efficiently help in still further branding the willow pattern on the Hun.

The name of the new Russian chief of staff sounds like a sneeze.
According to a circular letter recently unearthed, the citizens of Teuton origin residing in Western Canada had planned a campaign to elect German members to the next Dominion House. The Election Act, however, served to knock that little scheme on the head.

LAG DAY.
There is no doubt in the mind of every employe at least that today is "lag day." The man in question is a returned soldier and to a doctor this morning, he said: "I didn't get my nose out the door this morning when I was called for a job and as soon as I got up town I saw my wife. She tagged me too, and I would be satisfied with nothing but a ready cold cash."

The financial demands arising out of the war have been splendidly shouldered after by Sir Thomas White, who has proved himself one of the outstanding men at the capital. A war profits tax, tax on income of over $2,000, and stamp tax, constitute three of the leading items of increased revenue, with undoubtedly more to follow. War loans and war certificates have been successfully floated and by common consent, the Finance Minister has made good in a most complete manner.
Taken all in all, the Borden Ministry has met exceptional demands in a most capable manner, and the tremendous extra burdens so suddenly thrown upon them, have been splendidly taken care of. This is especially true of Sir Robert, upon whose shoulders, as First Minister, the heaviest part of the load has fallen.
As for the approaching contest it will be one of needed conscription versus the backing out and the deep

ATTENDED WOUNDED SOLDIER
Ex-Premier Clemenceau, of France, who as a physician attended an injured soldier.

CLOSE OF SESSION
On the eve of the sixth anniversary of the last general election, the twelfth Parliament of Canada has come to a close. Its career was one of the most momentous and historic ever recorded in the Dominion, for it has marked Canadian participation in the greatest war that the world has ever seen. No other Parliament in this country has ever had so long an existence, and even so it would have been better had dissolution been still longer delayed, on the same basis as in the Old Land, viz. that electoral strife is not a desirable thing during this period of Empire crisis. No one can doubt that Premier Borden made sincere efforts in this respect, but there were two influences which stood directly in the way—Laurier and Quebec. The "White Plumed Knight" without any doubt is anxious to have one more try for office in his old age, and the Quebec influence hopes at the polls, to be able to carry the mandate which shall present such an active future participation of this country in the struggle. That is the plain English of the matter, and it is useless for anyone to try to blink the fact.
From the very nature of things, the time and the purpose of the government for the last three years and over, have been devoted to matters arising out of the great conflict. The Premier has twice visited the Mother Land in this regard, and he has scrupulously avoided any public discussion of controversial subjects. Venomous and totally unwarranted attacks hurled at his administration from various quarters might well have incited retort from any man less level minded than he has always proved himself, but throughout he has held to a plain and patriotic course as he saw it, and the small-souled revilers have not even had the satisfaction of his notice.
Without any doubt, the historian of the future will find that the government, precipitated into a vortex which has disrupted so many lands, kept a clear head and a forceful purpose. The voluntary system, despite all that jaundiced critics may say, was given a fair and impartial trial, and achieved good results, with the notable exception of Quebec. As in Great Britain, the time arrived when the voluntary method did not suffice, and then it was that the selective conscription act was introduced. Anyone who gives the matter careful thought, must realize that there can be no other way, if the brave Canadians at the front are to be properly reinforced, and surely there is no one with a spark of red blood in their veins, who can feel that the men of the Maple Leaf should be abandoned, and the glorious work which they have already accomplished be set at naught. It is not enough to say that matters will come all right in any event, for chances cannot be taken at such a grave period as this.
With a forced election to soon take place, a franchise act was introduced and adopted, which is properly restrictive in many respects. In the life and death struggle which is now taking place, it would have been a most unseemly thing to allow the many people of alien enemy race within these borders, who are not subject to service, to have a say in determining the future course of this country with regard to the struggle against the lands from which they hail, and with whose interests they are still identified. All such, unless citizens of fifteen years standing, are cut off, in the matter of the ballot, and so are those whose religious tenets prevent them from taking part in wars. Each of the fighting men at the front is to have the vote, including those who are under 21 years of age, and that privilege is also extended to nurses, and to the mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of those who have listened to the call of duty to the extent it needs be of making the supreme sacrifice. Most assuredly these things are as they should be.
The financial demands arising out of the war have been splendidly shouldered after by Sir Thomas White, who has proved himself one of the outstanding men at the capital. A war profits tax, tax on income of over $2,000, and stamp tax, constitute three of the leading items of increased revenue, with undoubtedly more to follow. War loans and war certificates have been successfully floated and by common consent, the Finance Minister has made good in a most complete manner.
Taken all in all, the Borden Ministry has met exceptional demands in a most capable manner, and the tremendous extra burdens so suddenly thrown upon them, have been splendidly taken care of. Towards The Goal
By Mrs. Humphrey Ward.
with a preface by the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt "England has in this war reached a height of achievement loftier than that which she attained in the struggle with Napoleon, and she has reached that height, in a far shorter period. Her giant effort, crowned with a success as authorial as the effort itself, is worthily described by the author of this book. Mrs. Ward writes nobly on a noble theme."—Theodore Roosevelt.

GRANT TO SECRETARY.
The Great War Veterans' Association recently expressed their opinion of the services that had rendered to the organization. Vansickle, who recently resigned his position as secretary, was appointed and duly inaugurated. G. W. Seago, secretary, pointed to the secretaryship as a position of honor and responsibility. The new members were initiated and arrangements made for a meeting on the 29th inst. for the benefit of the members who are working at the front.

A. R. CLUB.
Addresses on the Italian Campaign were delivered to the members of the A. R. Club at the last night in the Y. M. C. A. building. The speaker was President Logan Waterous. The Italian Red Cross fund. Three members of the club, vassing the different factories, John M. Grant, secretary, resignation as secretary and pointed press representative organization. G. W. Seago, secretary, pointed to the secretaryship as a position of honor and responsibility. The new members were initiated and arrangements made for a meeting on the 29th inst. for the benefit of the members who are working at the front.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

The regular monthly meeting of the Terrace Hill and Grandview Women's Institute was held on the evening of the 13th inst. The President, Mrs. A. McWebb was appointed delegate to attend the convention at Toronto. At this meeting there were four girls appointed to sell tags at the ploughing match. The portion allotted for share in furnishing a room for returned soldiers, was also voted and 15 for yarn. This concluded the business part of the meeting. Miss Kavanaugh sang very sweetly "Sing me to sleep," and a paper entitled "Evening at the Old Home," by Mrs. A. Kinney, proved most interesting. An original poem by Miss Tattersall was given by request.

GOES TO CHATHAM.

Mr. C. S. Vansickle, former secretary of the C. W. V. A. here, leaves tomorrow night for Chatham, where he has accepted a responsible position in the assembling room of the Gray Dorr Motor Company. "Skelly" will carry with him the best wishes of a host of Brantford friends.

GRANT TO SECRETARY.

The Great War Veterans Association recently expressed their appreciation of the services that had been rendered to the organization by C. S. Vansickle, who recently resigned the secretaryship, by voting him a substantial grant from their fund. Mr. Vansickle was the first permanent secretary appointed and during his incumbency fulfilled the duties of his office to the general satisfaction of the members.

A. R. CLUB.

Addresses on the Italian Red Cross campaign were delivered to members of the A. R. Club at their meeting last night in the Y. M. C. A. by President Logan Watrous and Vice-President Logan Watrous and Vice-President Logan Watrous. To-day thirty members of the club are canvassing the different factories of the city. John M. Grant turned in his resignation as secretary and was appointed press representative of the organization. G. W. Seago was appointed to the secretaryship. Several arrangements were made for a meeting in the Temple building on Sunday afternoon for the benefit of the members who are working at night.

HYDRO BILL. The city's account with the Brantford Hydro Electric System for lighting in the various civic departments up to September 15th, amounts to $18.23.

WITH FOOD CONTROLLER. S. Roy Weaver, managing editor of the Toronto Daily News, has left for Ottawa to undertake the duties of publicity agent in the Food Controller's office. This post was formerly held at a salary of $4,500 per annum by Walter Willison, son of Sir John Willison, former editor of the Toronto Daily News. Walter Willison is to go overseas as the special correspondent of the Canadian Press Association at the front, in succession to Stewart Lyon.

VETERAN HOME. Unheralded and unexpected, Pte. Mason slipped this morning into the city, which has long been his home, and to which he had adieu on August 17, 1914, leaving to join his regiment, the Borderers, in England. Pte. Mason has served almost continually at the front since that time, being wounded at Ypres. Nothing was known of his home coming, and hence no arrangements had been made for a fitting reception to a veteran of such long service. His home is on Bruce street.

ARTISTS ATTENTION. An art competition for children under 15 years, will be found on page ten of this issue of the Courier. There will be three prizes, first prize being $3.00 the second $2.00 and 3rd $1.00. You should color the drawings on the page just as you think their true colors are. The page does not have to be returned until Friday noon, Sept. 28. Return all pages to the Courier, addressed Art Contest.

RESIDENTIAL DISTRICTS. The city of Galt is anxious to draft some by-law or arrange in some way to protect the residential districts from objectionable works, such as factories. If any similar action has been taken by the local city council City Clerk McCarthy of Galt would like information regarding the procedure.

FUEL AND FOOD BY-LAW. "That while this council regards the action proposed to be taken as inadequate, to meet the situation, and deplores the long delay in dealing with the question, this council is of the opinion that the proposed fuel-by-law is a step in the right direction and strongly urges its enactment." This resolution, accompanied by the request to bring it to the attention of the city fathers, when they meet on Monday night, was received at the City Hall this morning from Secretary George Keen of the Trades and Labor Council.

FIFTH DAY. Representatives of the local Collegiate Institute athletic association will take part in an open field day at Woodstock on Sept. 28. An invitation from the Y. M. C. A. of that city has been received to send men to participate in a mile relay race, half mile run, high jump and pole vault, and the local association will next week select the members who will bear their colors in the events. All the cities of western Ontario are being invited to take part, so that hot contests are assured.

S. S. ASSOCIATION. A meeting of the City Sunday School Association was held last evening at the home of the president, Mr. Ranton. Reports were heard from the superintendents of the different branches of work, and the outlook in Sunday School work is very bright.

Mr. Chrysler reported on his Baseball League among the boys this summer. The Eagle Place boys succeeded in defeating first place, and winners each boy received a job. Another encouraging feature was the report given by Mr. Gordon, teacher of Institute gymnasium, as to the number of schools preparing to enter in this phase of the work. Timed leadership will mean better Sunday schools and there is nothing more important than Sunday school work. During the meeting it was moved, that from henceforth, the two secretaries of the Y.W.C.A. be asked to attend Associational Executive meetings.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS ALWAYS IN THE HOUSE

Mrs. Eugene Vallancourt, St. Matthew, Que., writes: "My baby suffered greatly from constipation, so I began using Baby's Own Tablets. I was surprised when the prompt relief they gave him and now I always keep them in the house." Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she always keeps a supply on hand for the first trial convinces her there is nothing to equal them in keeping her little ones equal to the best. The Tablets are sold by medical dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MOTORIST MUST PAY

"I have an automobile and pay an auto license. Should I have to pay poll tax too?" was the anxious query that came over the telephone into the city tax collector's office this morning. The inquirer was told that he certainly would have to pay the poll tax, and as one of the city officials remarked, if he were so lucky as to have a car, he could afford to pay double what the unlucky beggars contribute who have to walk.

DAINTIES BANNED

Owing to the lack of shipping space, the Red Cross and Canadian War Contingent Association will not be able to accept contributions of cake and Christmas delicacies for overseas shipment. Instead of this, all societies are asked to contribute to a special "Christmas Comfort Fund" to be sent overseas and used to provide Christmas cheer for our men. Contributions to this fund must be sent in not later than the first week in October.

SPECIAL SERVICE.

The subject of the First Baptist tomorrow evening will be of special nature. The sermon subject will be "The Forgiveness of Sins," and all the service will centre about this idea. Mrs. Secord will sing a prayer for forgiveness, Mrs. Dr. Nichol and Miss Gladys Hildred will sing a duet, "Praise for Forgiveness," while the choir will sing "God so Loved the World." "Alexander Kerensky" will be the subject of the prelude to the sermon.

THE MARKET.

Plenty prevailed on the local market this morning. There was excellent quality and quantity of all varieties of market garden produce. Prices remained unchanged however, and the produce was disposed of at the usual figures. Crawford peaches are beginning to appear on the market and are selling at from 80 to $1.10 per basket, according to the size.

TWO FULL MOONS

Not since 1899 has the distinction of possessing two full moons fallen to the lot of any month. The moon's wanderings have again brought its position up to a point where it appears, in the present month, in two full phases, one on Saturday, Sept. 1, and the other on Sunday, September 30. The time required by the moon to complete its cycle from full moon to full moon is 29 1/2 days. This period is called its synodic revolution, and is what we ordinarily speak of as the lunar month. This period is liable to slight variation. It sometimes amounts to a little over half a day one way or the other. A complete revolution of the nodes takes place every 18.6 years. After the lapse of this period the motion is repeated in the same manner.

FOE FAILS IN

Continued from page one working behind the lines and at hostile batteries, machine guns, and transport. During the day, 68 bombs were dropped on the Ledeghem railroad station, 96 on two airdromes northeast of Lille and 103 on billets and ammunition dumps in the battle area. At night, in spite of the most unfavorable weather, bombs were dropped on two towns, on the Ledeghem, Roulers and Menin railway stations.

"In the middle of the day, the German craft became very active, attempting to interfere with our artillery and our bombing and low-flying machines. In evening when the weather improved they kept well to the east of the lines and were not inclined to fight. Ten hostile machines were destroyed and six were driven down out of control. Ten of our machines are missing."

Are YOU Missing Something that Millions Enjoy?

Why do you suppose the majority of men on this continent who can afford the money for shaving satisfaction, are using the Gillette Safety Razor?

Why is the Gillette a treasured item of equipment in the kit of practically every officer and of tens of thousands of men in the Canadian Overseas Forces?

Only one reason could possibly hold good with so many level-headed men. It's this—the Gillette gives a shave, day in and day out, that no other razor in the world has ever equalled—and does it handily in five minutes or less. That is why over a million more men everywhere are adopting the Gillette every year.

YOU would appreciate this as much as any other man! The saving of time—the independence of barber shops—the resulting economy—and above all the matchless comfort of the clean, quick Gillette shave—these are real, personal advantages which you must not longer miss.

The Gillette Safety Razor is a leading specialty with Hardware, Drug and Jewelry Dealers everywhere. "Bulldogs", "Aristocrats" and Standard Sets cost $5.00—Pocket Editions $5 to $6.—Combination Sets $6.50 up.

SAYS THE DRUG IS AN ETHER COMPOUND

Just a few drops loosen any corn so it lifts out without pain.

You simply say to the drug store man, "Give me a quarter of an ounce of freestone." This will cost very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn from one's feet. A few drops applied directly upon a tender, aching corn should relieve the soreness instantly, and soon the entire corn, root and all, can be lifted out with the fingers without pain. This new way to rid one's feet of corns was introduced by a Cincinnati man, who says that while freestone is sticky it dries in a moment, and seems to simply shrivel up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Don't let father die of infection or lockjaw from whitening at his corns, but cut this out and make him try it.

Interesting Sidlights on the Personalities of Various Stars of the Giants, Who Will Clash With Chicago In the Big Time Series.

Bill Rariden—"Whoa Bill" is generally recognized as one of baseball's most efficient catchers. Clever at fielding bunts, fast at backing up plays and a fast thinker, he compares well with other big league catchers. He was a Federal leaguer when the Feds blew, and Harry Hempstead purchased his release from Harry Sinclair. Rariden has been a consistent hitter. His blows have been timely. He bats and throws right-handed, and chews his tobacco raw.

George Gibson—Gibson came very near sliding into a state of innocuous desuetude before John J. McGraw finally hitched a string to him and pulled him onto the Giants' pay roll. The veteran's sensational come-back this year proves McGraw wasn't mistaken in believing the old-time Philadelphia star would be a winner. Gibson has been almost exclusively assigned to the task of handling Ferdie Schupp's shoots, and the pair have had fine success. An injury a short time ago may handicap his work in the world's series, but McGraw is banking heavily on him just the same. Gibson was a member of the Pirates when they won the 1893 world's series from Detroit.

Low McCarty—McCarty missed participating in the last world's series when he was traded to the Giants by Brooklyn, and came very near being checked out of this autumn's big season in Cincinnati, and only in the last few weeks has he been allowed to take part in any games. His hitting is one of his chief claims to fame. His broken leg appears to have knit in splendid shape, but still is very weak.

William D. Perritt—They call him "Poll" because most parrots are known by that monicker, and partly because his nose bears a resemblance to the beak of one of these birds. But aside from that Poll is considerable of a pitcher, after an off year he experienced last season. He has been the only reliable pitcher the Giants have had who could work with a right-hand delivery. Poll had the same affliction that struck Slim Sallee. He was with the Cardinals until he succeeded in convincing Miller Huggins he was needed in New York. He's been a big leaguer since 1912, when he graduated from the Vicksburg club of the Cotton states league. If any right-hander gets a chance against the White Sox in the forthcoming series it will be Perritt.

Fred Anderson—This young man was a bear when in the Federal league. With Bill Rariden he formed the star battery of that circuit. His spitballs, however, have lasted on an average of about six innings in the National League. His effectiveness for a few innings has never been questioned, but his ability to blow suddenly, disastrously and unexpectedly may keep him from doing more than relief work in the big series. He is a capable right-hander, while his staff is left.

Al Demaree—Al is a cartoonist, which should change his luck around but hasn't. Al is the luckiest man in baseball, not excepting Jack Barry or any other others who have earned the title of luckiest. John McGraw took Al into the big leagues, but got tired of having him around along in 1914, so stuffed him off to Philadelphia where he got in on the pie when Philadelphia won the National League pennant. After Al left the Giants he made it his ambition in life to trim the Giants often and effectively. He did it with such precision and regularity that the impression prevails that McGraw came to the conclusion that he would have been better off if he had kept the big right-hander so he traded Pte Kilduff, one of the infield finds of the year, to Chicago and got Al back again. Al is still there throwing baseballs with his right hand and chewing big black cigars with his front teeth.

Ferdinand Schupp—This youth is the most brilliant achievement John McGraw has offered the baseball public for many a year. He flashed right into the hall of fame almost in a single stride last summer, when he negotiated a huge share of the Giants' record-breaking run of victories. Schupp is endowed with a splendid stand lots of hard work. His home is in Louisville. He does his heaving with his left hand, and did it only in small bits before he finished a sentence of three years on the bench.

Rube Benton—Rube almost came into and went out of the big leagues without ever a chance to show what a whiz he could be. He was with Cincinnati so long he had to threaten to quit baseball before any one would believe he really could do extraordinary curving. His eccentricities, however, finally landed him with the Giants, where he has become a part of the temperamentals McGraw holds in check. Benton has been the most effective south-paw in the National League this year, and he has been the Giants' most consistent winner.

Daily Courier Recipe Column

PRUNE PUDDING

One pound of prunes, 3 eggs; 1-2 cup sugar; pinch of salt. Put prunes on stove and stew until soft. When cool, chop fine; add sugar and salt; beat whites of eggs to a stiff froth; mix all together; bake 15 to 20 minutes. Sauce: Scald 1 pint milk; beat yolk of eggs; add to milk; when thickened remove from fire; sweeten to taste and flavor with vanilla.

SPONGE PUDDING

One fourth cup sugar; 1-4 cup of butter; 2 cups flour; yolks of three eggs; 1 pint milk; whites of 3 eggs; mix sugar and flour; wet with a little cold milk and stir into boiling milk; cook until it thickens and is smooth; add butter and when well mixed stir in the well beaten yolks; then add whites, beaten stiff. Bake in cups or shallow dish. Place in pan of hot water while in oven. Cook 25 or 30 minutes.

COFFEE CUSTARD

Tea 1 cup ground coffee in a piece of muslin and put on to boil with 1 quart of milk; boil 10 minutes, then take out coffee and stir in 1 large cup of sugar, the whites of four and the yolks of eight eggs; stir two minutes and strain. Set in cold water, stirring occasionally until cold, little salt.

DELICATE INDIAN PUDDING

One quart milk, 3 eggs; 2 tablespoonfuls Indian meal; 4 tablespoonfuls of sugar; and 1 of butter; 1-2 teaspoonful ginger; 1-2 teaspoonful of salt; stir the butter into the sugar. While boiling put the meal into the milk; scald all together and bake one hour or an hour and a half.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson XIII.—Third Quarter, For Sept. 23, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Dan. vi, 10-23. Memory Verses, 22, 23—Golden Text, Pa. xxxiv, 7—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Our last lesson ended with a reference to the epistle of Nebuchadnezzar (chapter iv), in which, after his seven years insanity, he acknowledged the True God and humbled himself before Him. In chapter v we see a proud, rebellious king, who would not humble himself before God, and he had to be taken off the earth. We cannot but think of the sad ending of the rich man of Luke xvi, 23, xli, 20. In this book there is wonderfully shown up the great contrast between the wisdom of this world and the wisdom that comes from God only. In the first and second dreams of Nebuchadnezzar and in the matter of the writing on the wall at Belshazzar's feast all the learning and wisdom of Babylon were utterly helpless to understand or interpret either. But the God of Heaven, the Most High God, whose alone are wisdom and might, who only can reveal secrets and make known what shall come to pass hereafter. He could and did tell Daniel what the king dreamed and the interpretation of it and the significance of the words on the wall.

The learning and scholarship of these days in which we live are just as helpless to interpret the things of God as were the wise men of Babylon, for the things of God knoweth no man, but only the Spirit of God (chapters ii, iv and v and I Cor. ii, 11). There is another matter we should lay to heart in these last days at the end of the time of the Gentiles, and that is that "the Lord of hosts hath purposed it, to bring the pride of all glory and to stain into contempt all the honorable of the earth." For "the lofty looks of man shall be humbled and the brightness of men shall be bowed down, and the Lord alone shall be exalted in that day" (Isa. xlii, 9; 11, 17). Those who know only the god of man, the god of the world, will be likely to unless in some matter connected with his religion. Knowing that he worshipped and prayed to a God whom they knew not, they approached Darius, the king, with a bit of flattery, asking him to sign a decree that any one asking a petition of any god or man except himself should be cast into the den of lions (verses 4-9). They set the time limit at thirty days, but probably knew that a much shorter time would be sufficient to catch their prey. Darius thoughtlessly fell into the snare and signed the decree. Daniel, knowing all about it, kept right on communing with his God in the usual way and did not think it worth while to close his windows. Of course he was soon caught, for his enemies meant business, and although the king, when he found how he had been entrapped, labored till the going down of the sun to deliver Daniel, his love was powerless against the law, which had fallen in his favor, and the stone upon the mouth of the den is sealed with the king's own signet. It may have been that Daniel's enemies made merry over their success in getting him out of the way; but, if so, they were a much shorter time to be laughing at, for the triumphing of the wicked is short.

"The king, who sought to comfort Daniel with the assurance, 'Thy God whom thou servest continually, He will deliver thee' (verse 16), passed a sleepless night, fasting, and very early in the morning was at the den of lions, crying with a lamentable voice, 'Oh, Daniel, servant of the Living God, is thy God, whom thou servest continually, able to deliver thee from the lions?' (verse 20). What a burden must have rolled from the king's heart when he heard the voice of Daniel assuring him that God had shut the lions' mouths and they had not hurt him! Quickly Daniel is taken from the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God (verses 22, 23). It was truly a good morning for Daniel, reminding us of the morning that will soon dawn for all the people of God (Pa. xiv, 5, margin; xlix, 14). It was a terrible time for Daniel's enemies (verse 24), reminding us that there will be no morning for those who do not believe God (Isa. viii, 20, R. V.). He who loved us more than Darius loved Daniel suffered the extreme penalty of the law in our stead, and the stone that covered his tomb was also sealed, but no power of the enemy could hold Him, and now He is alive forevermore, and we are alive in Him if so be we have truly received Him, and there is no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus. When Daniel's people shall be made all righteous with an ever-lasting righteousness—at His coming in glory—then shall we come with Him and share with Him and them the everlasting kingdom after the time of the Gentiles shall have expired (Dan. ix, 24; vii, 13, 14; Pa. xxii, 27, 28; Col. iii, 4).

MAXWELL

Most Miles per Gallon Most Miles on Tires

We have not deviated from our fixed one chassis model policy. But we have refined and developed the Maxwell. The new compensating under-slung rear springs mean comfort for you and preservation of your car. This is the type of spring used in the newest models of many of the highest priced cars. The wheel base is six inches longer—the frame has been strengthened—the windshield sloped, the body lines made more graceful and the body made roomier. But the Maxwell price stands at a figure which still makes it "the world's greatest motor car value."

CONGRESS OF LABOR

By Courier Special Wire Ottawa, Sept. 22.—The first business discussed by the Trades and Labour Congress at the session this morning was a proposal made by Delegate Murphy, Ottawa, that the report of the committee on pensions, which was adopted yesterday should be printed and that copies should be distributed among the soldiers of the Dominion of Canada. In this matter the attitude of organized labor toward the men in the fighting ranks and to the veterans would be more clearly defined. There would be no possibility of the soldiers not understanding how labor viewed their problem.

It was decided to have 10,000 copies of this report printed in English and 3,000 in French, the method of distribution to be decided by the executive council. The pamphlet also will contain the labor congress' views on conscription as set forth in the resolution adopted. Delegate Jos. Mayor, Winnipeg, then talked on the question of an Independent Labor party and mentioned that "he was an industrialist and revolutionary Socialist"—making it clear that he was not a trade unionist. "Boos" were heard all over the hall and protests were voiced in no uncertain manner. Vice-President Rigg, who was in the chair, called the delegates to order. A motion was made that an extension of time be granted to Delegate Naylor. Delegate Rollo, Hamilton, remarked that Naylor had admitted that he was not a trade unionist and that if he wanted to "shoot off bunk like that" no extension should be granted. The motion was put to a vote and lost. Delegate Naylor took his seat.

"EVERYBODY'S WEARING 'EM"

Ready Sale for Tags and Flags to Aid Italian Red Cross.

By mid-day-to-day scarcely a person on the streets of Brantford was without an Italian flag or tag, conspicuously displayed on coat lapels or shirtwaist front. "Everybody's wearing 'em" complained one little girl "tags" who found it hourly more difficult to sell her wares. Before 8 o'clock this morning, Mrs. W. C. Livingston, president of the Women's Patriotic League, at women's headquarters, 122 1-2 Dalhousie Street, opposite the Market Square, announced that 278 women and girls were supplied with coin boxes, flags and tags for the work of canvassing from house to house in the residential section and the "Italian Day" on the streets. Two hours later nearly 10,000 flags had been given out to the workers, including the men members of the "A. R." club, who are canvassing in the factories and shops. Tags and small pennants alone remain to be sold, and these are in big demand, the women and girls workers continually returning for more supplies.

WHO WILL PLAY SANTA CLAUSE?

On Behalf of the Canadian Soldiers in the Hospitals.

The Canadian Red Cross is asking for thousands of Christmas stockings to distribute in the hospitals, so the Women's Patriotic League have promised that Brantford will be responsible for fifteen hundred, and are asking for volunteers to fill them. Think how interesting it will be to choose gifts from the following list sent out by headquarters, and imagine the exclamations of delight when your stocking is opened in some long ward on Christmas morning! It is suggested that each stocking contain one gift out of each of the following classes: (1) Pocket mirror; cheap styie, pocket pencil; pocket knife; match box. (2) Writing pad and envelopes; fancy post cards. (3) Cigarettes; tobacco. (4) Candies; chewing gum; maple sugar. (5) Handkerchiefs; necktie; socks. (6) Game; book; puzzle; mouth organ. (7) Toilet requisites, such as soap; talcum powder, tooth paste; pin cushion. (8) Packets of raisins, dates or figs, nuts. The total cost of each stocking should not on any account exceed $2.00. Do not put in sticky candy or flimsy packets of insect powder, or matches. The net stockings have been made at the Red Cross rooms in the Y.M.C.A. and amateur "Santa Clauses" should obtain them from them just as soon as possible as shipments are to be made early in October. On Tuesday next the Brantford housewives will have an opportunity to prove their loyalty by staining the Food Controller's Pledge Card, in some districts the workers have already started out and report splendid results, but the general campaign will not be begun until the twenty-fifth of September.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Comrades in Service!

In years to come you will recall with Pride the day you signed the Food Service Pledge.

For it is your Dedication to War Service. Your observance of it will cause you some of the Finer Emotions of Your Life.

You will gradually realize that though your own and your family's self-denial may be small—the mighty Legion of Canadian women pledged to equal service, will mean the difference between Victory and Disaster to our soldiers.

You cannot—you must not desert them. It is not that they want more white bread, beef, or bacon than you—it is just that these foods are less perishable and so more easily exported than others.

So, until Victory is ours, do these simple things.

When making bread, use one-third oatmeal, corn, barley or rye flour, with the white flour. Or tell your baker to bring some brown bread each day.

Substitute for beef and bacon, such foods as fish, peas, lentils, potatoes, nuts, bananas, etc.

Third, and this is very important—prevent the waste of any food in your home.

Be a Comrade. Dedicate yourself and your family to War Service. Display the window card.

Woman's Auxiliary, Organization of Resources Committee, in Co-operation with The Hon. W. J. Hanna, Food Controller.

Practical Housekeeping Hints

THE USE OF FATS AS BUTTER SUBSTITUTES The average Canadian housewife has no conception of the value of fats as food, and as a result much fat is wasted that should be used.

Fats are one of the principal sources of energy. We buy fat in the form of butter and spread it on our bread. We use lard as shortening in bread and pastry, and as a medium in which to fry other foods. The grease which melts out of ham and bacon is sometimes made into gravies; but more often it is thrown away, because the housewife does not realize its value as a food. Beef fat is less appreciated as a food even than lard, and yet, pound for pound, its energy value is as high as butter or lard or any other fat.

When we buy a beefsteak the butcher carefully trims off the fat and throws it into a box under the counter with bones and other waste which goes to the soapmaker. This fat has both a food value and a money value. It belongs to you, and you should have it. You can render it and use it in cooking.

The fine lumps of sweet beef fat or suet which adhere to the roast are used in roasting to give flavor, but most of the fat melts away and is not served at the table. Beef suet is occasionally used in cooking, but rendered beef fat is rarely used as a table fat in this country, although in Europe it is often eaten on bread in the place of butter. Beef suet has a rather pronounced flavor and a comparatively high melting point. These are probably the reasons why it is not more commonly used as a table fat. Much of the objectionable taste may be readily removed. One household method which may be successfully followed is to mix milk with the suet when it is rendered, using one-half cupful of milk to a pound of suet. When strained and cooled, the flavor of the milk is absorbed by the beef fat and changes the characteristic flavor.

Laid at Rest

The remains of the late Mrs. J. H. Scott, were laid tenderly to rest Friday afternoon, at Mt. Hope cemetery. Rev. J. W. Gordou conducted an impressive service. Dr. William Nichol spoke of the great mission and church work in connection with St. Andrew's Church, in which the late Mrs. Scott took a leading part. The floral offerings were beautiful, including: Wreath, Kith and Kin of East Ward; Red roses, a friend; sprays, Kenneth Parkinson, Mrs. H. Berry, Mrs. Girdlestone, Mr. and Mrs. A. Martin, Mrs. and Miss Burch.

BUILDING PERMITS

Building permits were issued at the office of the city engineer this morning to Joseph Whiting, 288 Dalhousie St., for the erection of a frame bay window to cost $70; the Imperial Oil Company, 150 Clarence St., erection of a frame office building, $150; John Greet, 57 Gray St., a frame verandah to cost approximately $550, and to build a frame addition and change style of the roofing of his residence.

REMOVE TREES.

A request has been received at the City Hall, addressed to the city council from Jesse Wood, 95 Cayuga St., requesting that three trees in front of his residence be removed. The trees are of the catalpa species and Mr. Wood complains that the leaves, flowers and pods that fall constitute a nuisance.

THE WORLD OF LABOR Gleaned From the Exchanges and Other Sources A Budget of News for Those Interested in Labor

Street railway employees in Wilmington, N.C., have enforced the reinstatement of two discharged members of the union and an advance in wages of two cents an hour.

Vancouver bakery workers are agitating for the entire abolition of night work. They have had a union organization for some time past, but have at last seen the light, and will affiliate with the Bakers and Confectionery Workers' International Union as well as with the local Trades and Labor Council. It is understood that the master bakers are opposed to abolition of night work, but the workers of the city will give the Bakers' Union solid support, if drastic action is necessary to enforce their demands.

Although only organized several months ago the New Westminster, B.C., local of the International Association of Machinists has secured most substantial benefits to its members. Not only has it secured a shorter workday a liberal increase in wages and many improvements in shop conditions, but on September 1st succeeded in having every machine shop in the city enforce a 44-hour work week. When the agreement was signed there were only about a half dozen non-union crafters in the city, and every one of these have since joined so that the I.A.M. has a solid 100 per cent. organization in the Royal City at the present time.

Prince Albert, Sask., has had considerable of a boom on since the Grand Trunk Pacific has been completed into the city. It has brought a considerable number of outside workers in all of whom succeeded in securing employment. The different locals of the big International unions have joined in a systematic organization campaign, and have rounded up a very considerable number of recruits and several new unions are now in process of formation. This city is developing into a big railroad centre, and bids fair to become a no mean labor stronghold in the near future.

The building trades report business in their line as having slackened up considerably of late in Montreal, and in some crafts all the members are not fully employed and with very little signs of improvement in the situation in sight. It is a little back in the building trades to slacken when there is any work in view, as this is the best season of the year for building operations. A number of the bands who have been laid off have secured jobs in other vocations, but with many munitions workers receiving their discharge it also looks like a coming hunt for jobs when the snow begins to fly.

The Teamsters' Union of Vancouver, B.C., had a great record for the month of August, having initiated 215 new members with half as many more applications for membership received. Already it is getting up in the roster of the big labor organizations in the city and has succeeded in securing materially better working conditions for its members, a material increase in wages, as well as reduction in hours. It is now carrying on a campaign among the labor unions of the city to enlist their sympathy in demanding that their members and friends shall demand delivery of goods to their homes by men who wear the union button.

The Canadian locals of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have made most substantial progress during the last four months. Among other locals the following have secured new agreements with substantial wage increases and other concessions. Hamilton has reduced hours from 10 to 9 and extra pay overtime; Quebec, an increase of $2.50 a week in wages, and time and one half for overtime; Ottawa, a 10 per cent. increase in wages; Winnipeg, a 12 1/2 per cent advance in wages and better working conditions; Vancouver has enforced a minimum wage of 62 1/2 cents an hour, and Toronto an increase of $2.20 per week in wages, and the inauguration of a straight 44-hour work week. That looks like going some, and there are others coming.

Some of the miners at least in northern Ontario are doing their share in the war production of food. One mile from Cobalt station the employes of the Buffalo mines have planted and tilled sixteen acres of land from which between 3,000 and 4,000 bags of potatoes of the best quality will be produced. In addition to over 6,000 cabbages, nearly 100 vines which are loaded with tomatoes and large supplies of Brussels sprouts, onions, beets, celery, turnips, etc.

It is now only a question of time when the entire shipbuilding industry in British Columbia will be thoroughly organized. Already the bulk of the workers in the big shipyards have joined the unions, and speaking of the outlook the B. C. Federationist sums it up thusly: "With the organization of the employes of the shipbuilding yards on Poplar Island, New Westminster and Coquitlam, practically every shipbuilding yard in British Columbia will have been unionized. A meeting was held in the New Westminster labor hall last Sunday, at which there was a fair attendance of employees in these yards. Every man present, who did not already belong to a union, signed up to join, and the gathering was very enthusiastic. The engineers employed in shipbuilding yards are organized 100 per cent. and it is expected every yard in the province will be as strongly organized in the very near future. Summen in the city, and every one of these have since joined so that the I.A.M. has a solid 100 per cent. organization in the Royal City at the present time.

It now seems that the reports sent out from Montreal in the press dispatches that the local Trades and Labor Council had called a general strike in the city in opposition to the whole cloth, as the central labor body has taken the stand that even if it favored such a course it has no power, as it is a purely legislative body, and the question is one with which the various international unions would have to deal. No strike was called and none was contemplated by the Trades and Labor Council, and how such a baseless demand could be circulated it is hard to understand. The trades unions in Montreal like the trades unions in Ontario, are keeping their overseas members in good standing on the books, and will insist that they must be put back in their old positions. It is felt that the Montreal unionists have good cause for resentment at the baseless reports sent out in regard to the failure of the alleged strike which was never contemplated, never called and did not eventuate.

ILLUMINATE REAR WHEELS WITH THEIR OWN HEADLIGHTS

Owners of Dodge Brothers' Motor Cars Have Convenient Arrangement.

Night touring over elegant concrete roads on warm summer evenings, although admittedly a delight, is not wholly without its little vexations. Puncture a tire, or spring a leak, for instance, and begin your little task of repairing. It is dark and perhaps there is a wind. The flicker of matches and newspapers only irritates your temper a little more, and you accomplish nothing.

Not so with the owner of a Dodge Brothers motor car. His reversible headlights here prove a boon and he repairs his puncture and mounts his tire as quickly as in day time. Merely by turning the headlight around it is possible to direct its full glow on the rear wheel. Then by training the same light on the open front door, a brilliant illumination is provided for the front wheel, being reflected from the high lustre of the enamel on the door. The reversibility of the headlamps also enables the motorist to illuminate the engine from both sides.

SPORTING COMMENT

They said the "war with Mexico" would kill baseball, but the game went on. America's entry into the great world war surely meant the death of the game, they said, and here we are preparing for the biggest World's series crowds in baseball's history. And so does baseball hold its mastery year after year in spite of local troubles here and there, a collapsed league or two and the minor vexations that follow anything big, but never seriously harm it, writes James C. Isaminger in the Philadelphia North American.

The grand old game has survived fads, storms, dissensions and wars, and always opens on schedule time in the spring. It was predicted that bicycle riding would cause every major league park to be converted into a brickyard or slaughter house. It only caused the stands to be increased in size.

The same was said about the automobile. The automobile grew along with baseball. It showed the fan the best way to get to the park. Every hall player in America drawing more than $2,000, owns an automobile. Baseball and the automobile are brothers. One is the booster of the other. There isn't a bit of jealousy between them. How can that put the park near to the fan? No, indeed, baseball owes a debt to the automobile for favors extended.

A league on a desert out west shut shop for the season. Men 1,000 miles away say "baseball is dead." Might as well say that the copper industry has gone to smash because one mine is exhausted.

Baseball is dead," they say, forgetting that 19,000 went to Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Labor Day to see the Athletics filling the tail-end place, play two games, with Washington, occupant of sixth place.

When baseball begins to curl up and die the manufacturer of baseballs will be tipped off about the illness before anybody else. Most of the baseballs used to-day are made in Philadelphia, and the manufacturers say that year after year there is always a steady increase in the output.

If any further proof is wanted as to the supremacy of baseball in America, it is brought out by the dispatch printed recently, saying that on each day of the world's series a 1,000-word account of the game would be cabled to the American troops in France. These soldiers did not ask for news of a boxing bout, a golf match, or tennis tournament. It was good old baseball they demanded.

Soldiers are writing to America for baseballs and accessories. Thousands of dollars have been collected by Clark Griffith to supply them with spheres, bats, macks, and gloves, and the baseball weekly that is the official organ of the game is sending thousands of copies of each issue to the trenches and camps, and the soldiers cry for "still more 'dope'."

Nothing has brought home the hold baseball has on America more forcibly than this war.

Baseball is not selfish and welcomes golf and all the sports to have a share of property, but it can't understand why some persons say it is ready for a coffin.

Local ticket scalpers who are mobilizing their forces to reap a golden harvest out of the World's series are going to have the battle of their lives, writes I. E. Sanborn in the Chicago Tribune.

Charles Comiskey declares that for every reserved seat sold for the games played in Chicago he will have the name and address of the purchaser, and for every seat that gets into the hands of a scalper he will be able to publish the name and home address of the person who bought the seat for the purpose of making money out of it. Moreover he declared he would let the public know the names of fans who scalp tickets by advertising them in the newspapers of Chicago as his own expense.

Publicity is the process by which the master of the White Sox hopes to cope with the evil that has created more scandal than anything else in connection with world's series contests in the past. In previous years, investigation has shown that the ticket scalpers profit chiefly through the greed of baseball fans, who obtain reserved seats in good faith on their own names and addresses only to sell them to scalpers at double the price.

It is Comiskey's plan to expose that kind of people to their neighbors, if the Sox are contenders in

SIDE TALKS

BY RUTH CAMERON
THOSE QUEER FEELINGS

One of the many things that appears to every young person is to discover that he is an unusual and singular person, that he has strange thoughts, that he is subject to peculiar feelings that probably never came to anyone else.

And one of the many awakenings that come to the same young person as he grows a little older, is to discover that other people also have these thoughts and feelings.

Those Haunting, Taunting Half-Memories
We were discussing some of these queer sensations the other day. Of course the commonest of them is the sense that somewhere before you have been in just the same position, heard the same things said and made the same answer. The average young person is inclined to fancy that this is some vision that of a former existence, some vision that the "shades of the prison house" have not yet been able to shut out. He thinks that he is peculiarly favored. When he discovers that almost everyone is subject to these haunting, taunting, half memories he is surprised—and probably not wholly pleased.

Could Anyone Think "I" Instead of "Me."
Another experience that most of us have had is that of catching a glimpse of oneself in the glass and suddenly becoming detached from oneself. One realizes all at once that that person in there, the person that other people see and talk with and that I never really see is me? (I can't imagine anyone highbrow enough to think "I" instead of "me" at such a moment.)

One feels momentarily as if one had lost one's grip on oneself; had become detached from that physical body and couldn't get back in it as if one were slipping off the world of material things and whirling away into space. I have really felt almost physically dizzy when I have thus become detached from my body.

To See a Familiar Housemate as if for the First Time
Still another of these psychological experiences is to suddenly see a familiar housemate as if for the first time. I think this most often happens with husbands and wives. One is sitting behind his evening paper and wonders suddenly, "Why is he here? Isn't it queer that we, who have never met till a few years ago, should have left our kindred and come together this way?" And for a moment he becomes almost like a stranger. Then the commonplace reassures itself in some way, and the world swings back into its ordinary orbit.

Perhaps there will be some reader who will judge me to be a fit subject for the psychopathic ward from these confessions. But for every one who feels that way I am willing to wager that there will be ten who will say to themselves, "Why, that's just the way I've felt sometimes."

Rippling Rhymes
THE FAULT FINDER
The most unfortunate of men is he who hunts for something wrong, who strains his ear, again, again, to hear the false note in a song. 'Tis he who marks with gloomy eye the bridal couple as they pass, and says, "They grow old, all flesh is grass." 'Tis he who stops the flow of mirth by preaching trouble and despair, who says that everything on earth is but a pitfall and a snare. He sees the ring around the moon, when other men the moon behold, and says a storm will come full soon, with hail and sleet and bitter cold. He sees the sundogs standing guard, when other men behold the sun, and says we'll be frozen hard before the current week is done. Oh, gloom and trouble are his pets, with them he eats and drinks and sleeps; he's only happy when he frets, he's only joyous when he weeps. 'Tis would be no concern of mine, if he would nurse his grouch alone; but publicly he weeps his brine, and heaves his deep, heart-rending groan. And in these crucial times we need no added weight to loads of care, no sighs that make our bosoms bleed, no throats or onsets of despair.

Haunts of the King of the Canadian Forest

THE Province of New Brunswick, a favorite Canadian haunt of the sportsman, is one of the most popular for big game hunting. Moose, caribou and deer are plentiful in this region along the lines of the Canadian Pacific. A magnificent specimen of big game is the moose. When fully grown he weighs over 1,000 lbs., his massive antlers are long and generally average six feet in width. He may be found in twelve of the fifteen counties of the province. To hunt moose "calling" is done early in the season, and the "still hunting" done later on—in the cold weather. In September and October the moose is often surprised and shot, walking in the lakes and rivers, feasting on the roots of water plants. While pursuing the moose, the hunter can distinguish between the tracks of the male and female for the male leaves round tracks, and those of the female are somewhat pointed. Fredericton, Haslerock, Newcastle, Belburn, Campbellton and Perth are good starting points.

A graceful antlered monarch of New Brunswick is the caribou. He weighs over 900 lbs., on an average. A full grown caribou stands from four and a half to five feet in height and there are two varieties, the woodland and the barren ground species. The woodland is generally found in herds of about half a dozen, and barren ground caribou travels in large herds, and its coat is light. This kind is noted for its migratory habits. In New Brunswick the places where the hunters are likely to achieve the best results are North West Miramichi, Restigouche, Upsalquitch, Mepisquit and Tobique Rivers. The starting points for these areas are Newcastle, Campbellton, Bathurst, Chatham and Perth, all of which are reached by the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Pacific. There are few localities in New Brunswick where a deer may not be located. Like the moose and the caribou he gives those who follow him interesting sport.

Sportsmen desirous of hunting the big game of New Brunswick may secure good accommodation at the homes of their guides. Good hotels and boarding houses are also available. The season for the hunting of the moose, caribou and deer opens on September 15th, and continues to November 30th. Shooting on Sunday is prohibited by law. Non-resident hunters must be accompanied by a licensed guide. The license to kill one bull moose, one bull caribou, and two deer costs a bona-fide resident of the province $5, and a non-resident $25. Hunting with hounds is forbidden.

GREAT STRUGGLE IN JULIAN ALPS

A Drama of Quite Napoleonic Dimensions.

Courage of Italians Surprises Austrians.

Wonderful Visibility of Bainsizza Plateau.

(By a staff correspondent of the New York Times.)

With the Supreme Command of the Italian Armies, Sept. 20, the Italian front in Austria is the place of all places where war remains a dramatic spectacle.

Here it can be followed by the eye through a thousand cloudlets of breaking shrapnel. The artillery can actually look upon the objective for its shells. The observer can really gaze down into the trench lines, watch troops on the move, and catch the glimmer of sunshine on the bayonets in the Austrian posts many miles distant.

Here one really sees the war. I was told all this before I came by the few correspondents who had been here and come away. It seemed incredible in view of the difficulties on the northern front, where the observatories are low and everything is blotted out in smoke.

Now observers and military experts are discovering this front en masse. Every day new ones arrive at the commando supreme, eager to look at last upon a real battle.

It is a real battle, I doubt if it is yet realized that it is now the biggest battle that had got into full swing upon any front during the entire war.

Battle of Julian Alps
Up to now it has always been referred to as the battle of the Isonzo, but that name has become a misnomer, because the Isonzo, excepting one little portion opposite Tolmino, at the northern extremity of the offensive line, is now well within Italian possession. It might better be called the battle of the Julian Alps, for one by one the peaked valleys and table lands of this gigantic range are coming behind the Italian lines.

The concept of the battle is Napoleonic—seven more than that. The sheer audacity of it is what contributed to its initial success a few weeks ago. The retreat of the Austrians across the Bainsizza plateau was almost a flight, partly because they could not believe the Italians would have the courage to try it.

Plateau is another misnomer, for Bainsizza. There is nothing of a table land in its composition. It is a vast, terribly rocky ground, with hills at least a thousand feet high, and corresponding valleys. It is a plateau only in comparison to the peaks surrounding.

The understanding by the Italian military authorities of what war correspondents are for is so clear and intelligent that I must digress from a description of the great battle to tell first of the extraordinary facilities given me to come and go as I pleased on any part of the entire line.

Without entering into comparisons I might say that on the Italian front a correspondent is credited (once he is accredited) with having common sense and patriotic zeal to see the allies win the war. When I alighted from the train at the commando supreme I found a soldier waiting to take my luggage to the chief censor who is the best informed censor I have ever met, and he is in possession of something that so many censors need, namely, supreme authority.

He handed me a pass bearing my name and personal description which said that I was free to go anywhere I chose in the zone of operations to see what I pleased at my own time and convenience. He introduced me to an officer, appointed as my guide, who explained that this officer would be necessary at first, just in order to teach me the positions. If I remained long enough and learned the lines, then the officer would no longer be necessary, and I was free to go along with only a military chauffeur as a guarantee that I had the right to take an automobile along with me.

In Middle of Front Row
I will not follow in chronological order my witnessing of the battle of the Julian Alps, but rather I will show the progression of the line from the northern point of the offensive opposite Tolmino to the Isonzo and Bainsizza, over Monte Santo and Monte San Gabriele across the Carso, in front of Hermada, out to the Adriatic. In seeing this battle the correspondent is free to choose his seats from the gallery down to the reserved boxes beside the proscenium arch. Let us first go to the alley entrance and climb many flights to the second balcony, where I managed to find a seat in the middle of the front row.

From there, especially with good glasses, the view is splendid. It is the very top of Mount Zagradian, many thousands of feet above the sea, but not so high as the gigantic snow peaks beyond. On those snow peaks trenches are cut in the solid glacier. On Zagradian they are cut in the rock, but are always provided with coverings to prevent their being filled with snow. It is not a tremendously difficult climb; in fact, we went four-fifths of the way in an automobile, so wonderful and enduring are the Italian mountain roads.

Special Mountain Roads
My officer remarked that these roads would not be of much use after the war. I was surprised, for they seemed to have been there always, but he explained that every road in that whole country was new and had been built just after the Italian occupation. The Austrian roads, always notoriously bad, were mostly paths. Some of the roads now talking their places, and leading almost to the topmost peaks, were built in 21 days under shell fire, after the Italians had occupied the particular mountains about which they climb.

I had always imagined that of all the countries at war it would be Italy who would bother least about the neatness with which her work was accomplished. To my additional surprise I had never seen such neatness on any front, no matter what the operation in hand. On these roads, for example, which often run along precipitous thousands of feet down there are continuous lines of concrete posts marking the ledge. There are slabs cut in the granite sides of the mountains at intervals during the ascent to let posterity know what hand of engineers accomplished that particular work. Although up to many points the traffic is so heavy that two roads have been built, one for ascent and another for descent, I will not travel over a single one of these new-made mountain roads where two automobiles could not pass each other safely.

"You can see lines," he said, "you can see lines. Those are our roads. And down some distance from the summit you can see our trenches—a long, zigzag line in the white rock. Just under the crest runs another line. That is the Austrian trench." I studied my glasses on the stone parapet that formed my balcony railings. Although the trench line was always visible, I was gradually able to see more clearly. At several points along the Austrian trenches I discovered vertical shafts of light that seemed to flicker and bob along irregularly. I asked what that meant, and my guide told me it was the sun shining on the bayonets of the Austrian sentries. I looked again, and beside every vertical shaft of light I could see a black patch that moved against the lighter color of the trench wall. The patches were Austrian soldiers.

"Why don't your snipers get them?" I asked. My officer smiled. "They are at least five miles away," he said, while someone else remarked that an observer in that Austrian trench might make the same observation concerning us. We were just as clearly visible.

Both Sides Visible
This matter of visibility struck me so forcibly that my guide recalled something else that I had almost forgotten. The night previous I had dined with a general at his headquarters, nearly ten miles behind the lines in front of Gorizia. A couple of nights before that a shell had crashed through a wing of the general's building.

My officer said: "Did you think it peculiar that a shell should have hit that building? I replied that it had occurred to me it seemed pretty good shooting, and I wondered at the time if they knew it was the general's quarters. The officer said: "Well, why shouldn't they hit it? It is in plain sight." In fact, almost everything is in plain sight in that country, so that if the artillery whaled away at everything visible they could use up all the ammunition in the world. I remembered how on that night of the general's dinner we went out on the balcony and watched the fireworks display on Mount St. Gabriele, a dozen miles away.

My guide told me to keep following the trench lines with my glasses down far into the valley, where they disappeared under the hills in the foreground. Then I studied the Isonzo as it wound its way about Tolmino.

That Austrian town was basking in an afternoon siesta. There wasn't a shot fired to disturb its tranquillity. I could see Austrian soldiers lounging in front of the barracks. I could see horses hitched to wagons standing in the village square, and pedestrians moving in and out of the shops. It was all within easy striking distance of hundreds of Italian guns, but an Italian shell has never yet been fired into Tolmino. Perhaps that will never happen. The Italians hope it will not be necessary, and that Tolmino will fall in another way. They don't want to wipe it out in such a fashion as Gorizia.

Water Pipes to the Peaks
In all that land there was no water when the Italians arrived. It is here now—everywhere. It is there because the Italians are the best engineers in the world. They have run pipe lines from the valleys up to every mountain crest.

The last fifty of the journey to the top of Zagradian we climbed as easily as on an ordinary flight of stairs, up treads cut in the side of the mountain. At the very top we found an artillery observatory built of stone, and apparently meant to last through ages. "We do our work much better here if we are comfortable," an officer explained. "That is why we built a house instead of a shack."

"You see that long ridge connecting the peak with the mountains beyond? That is where we made a strong feint attack. We sent two columns along that ridge, so that the Austrians thought that was all we intended to do. But the third and principal column went up the precipice. They did it during one dark night. It was important that they should do it without a sound, as they were to take the summit on the rear by surprise. So they climbed up without rifles, which might have knocked against things and sent stones crashing down and they went up in bare feet to avoid slipping and also to avoid sound. They carried only revolvers and hand grenades.

"They jumped on the Austrians just at dawn. But the Austrians, though surprised, were very strong. We quickly used up our revolvers, and bombs and we took Mount Nero with our hands. I mean that the fight became so desperate that our Alpini literally conquered by fighting hand-to-hand, so that hundreds of Austrians were hurled bodily down that cliff to the valley, over a mile below."

I meditated upon what I had been hearing as I looked at that appalling cliff, and it seemed as though I had been reading some ghastly fiction. Then he told me to shift my glasses to the right along the ridge connecting Mount Nero with the Marnek—a lower peak, almost due north of Tolmino.

"And attend to me—you're not to give Adele—or Walter, either, when he gets here, any reason to suspect you've confided in me. I wish everything to go on precisely as it has been going—so far as they can see. Avoid them as much as possible, when it isn't possible, give them a dose of their own medicine if necessary—I mean, fib. There's an explosion coming, but I don't wish it to happen until I'm sure who and what are going to be blown sky-high, and I am quite prepared to stand by and enjoy the fireworks. Meantime, don't let anybody frighten you; no matter how serious matters may seem or be represented to you, help implicitly on me. And whatever is said to you that seems of any consequence—or if you should see anything—find some way to report quickly to me. Now what did you say you did with that jewel-case Adele gave you?"

Sally repeated her account of its hiding place.

"You didn't unwrap it, you say. Well and good!" Mrs. Gosnold nodded intently. "Then don't; leave it as it is, and some time to-day, if I can manage without being observed, I'll drop into your room and have a look at the box myself. But you are on no consideration whatever to touch it until I give you leave."

"I understand."

"If Adele and Walter want to know what you've done with it, tell them the truth—you've done nothing. Say you've not yet found a good chance to tell them where it is, but assure them it's perfectly safe there."

"Yes, Mrs. Gosnold."

Momentarily the older woman was lost in a reverie of sullen malicious cast, to judge by the smile that faintly shadowed the firm lines of her handsome face.

"A surprise party—" she observed obscurely.

Of a sudden, with a sort of snap, she roused herself back to more immediate issues. "Oh, come! the morning almost some already, and nothing accomplished! Oh, with you! But before you go, do, for goodness' sake, attend to your eyes; if some one were to see you going through the halls the way you are—it might be ruinous. Bathe them with cold water in the bath-room there—and you'll find plenty of powder and stuff on my dressing-table."

And while Sally hastened to profit by this advice, the other pursued. "You should school yourself never to cry, my girl. You're too sensitive and emotional by half. If you go on this way, at the least excuse—great heavens! what a humiliated life you'll lead! Now let me look at you. That's much better. You'll do very well—if only you've wit enough not to worry—to trust me, whatever the emergency. Now, when you come back, tell Thomas to let me know. If I need you during the day I'll send for you."

As it happened, she didn't send for Sally before nightfall; but she kept her busy with commissions delivered by word of mouth—so busy, perhaps considerably, that the girl found little time to waste in futile fretting, but was ever conscious, when now and again her thoughts did inevitably revert to the status of her personal affairs, of contentment crooning in her heart like the soft refrain of some sweet, old song.

Her social education had made a gigantic forward stride with her surprising discovery that confession is good for the soul, that honesty in all things is not only expedient, but wholesome. If material advantage had accrued unto her through that act of desperate honesty, if she basked all this day long in the assurance of immunity from the consequences of her folly and imprudence, it was less with the arrogance of Fortune's favorite daughter than with the humility of one to whom life had measured out benefactions of which she was consciously undeserving. The assertion that the world owed her a living was forgotten; and if recalled, would have been revised to the sense that she owed the world the duty of honorable and conscientious living. If her temper was tolerably exalted, it was well chastened to boots.

Thanks to the tardy advertisement of the fete, the avidity of a people ever seeking some new thing, and the fame of Abrigall Gosnold as an entertainer of eccentric genius, that day could hardly be said to wane; rather, it waxed to its close in an atmosphere of electric excitement steadily cumulative. The colony dined like some huge dynamo with the rumor of select preparation against the night. Other than servants hurrying to and fro on pressing but mysterious errands, few folk were visible in the afternoon; the drives and beaches, the lawns, terraces, courts, gardens, verandas, and casinos were one and all deserted.

At Gosnold House, below-stairs, in kitchens and servants' halls, and all about the routine of a well-maintained household proceeded marvelously without apparent hitch or friction, luncheon and dinner degenerated into affairs of emptiest formality. At the latter indeed, Mrs. Gosnold presided over an oddly balanced board; three-fourths of those present were men—fully half the feminine guests dining from trays in their rooms or else abstaining altogether, in order that not one precious moment might be lost to the creation of their improvised disguises. And the talk at table was singularly disconnected, with an average of interest uncommonly low. People were obviously saving themselves up. There was no lingering over tobacco; the last courses served, the guests dispersed in all haste compatible with decency.

It was at this meal that Sally got her first glimpse of Savage since his arrival in the course of the afternoon. She had been far too busy to keep watch and unable to invent any plausible excuse for inquiring after him, but the thought of his return had never been far out of mind. However busy, she had not been able to dismiss entirely the consideration that Savage was bringing the first authentic news of whatever activities the police might have inaugurated in connection with the burglary and whatever their progress in pursuit of the cine furnished by the garments discarded in the bath-room. And all the reassurances of Mrs. Gosnold were impotent to counteract apprehensions fostered by such reflections. But there was the length and the width of the table between them. She had to be content with all that

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Satin will be the smartest material to use for this dress for early fall wear, either in blue or any of the fashionable shades of brown, with collar and cuffs of white satin. There is a draped bib section which extends up in front as far as the square neck. It is drawn softly toward the underarms, where it joins the sash ends, which tie in a loose knot. Folds of Georgette crepe soften the outline of the neck. The collar is in the new shape—rather narrow at the back and having deep points at the front. The two gored skirt is gathered slightly all around to the regulation waist line.

The dress pattern, No. 8455, is cut in sizes 36 to 42 inches bust measure. Width at the lower edge of skirt is 2 1/2 yards. The 36 inch size requires 5 1/2 yards 36 inch material and 3/4 yard 36 inch contrasting goods.

To obtain this pattern send 1/2 to the office of this publication.

Savage found chance to accord her—a bow, a smile, and a glance down his nose significant of unspoken intelligence.

She thought he looked a bit pale and worried and betrayed more nervousness than was natural in the man as she had come to know him. Whether or not he had been accompanied by the threatened insurance adjuster (for detained!) she was unable to surmise, notwithstanding several strange faces in the number at table, she was inclined to believe that a person of such character would have been lodged somewhere in the village which served as the island's main port of entry, rather than brought to Gosnold House—already crowded with guests.

Good Night Stories

By Alice Schreier

THREE MISCHIEVOUS FAIRIES. Once upon a time, long, long ago, there lived in the land of the Fairies three little brother fairies—Nanie, Payne and Nod.

They were terribly mischievous little fellows and spent most of their time playing pranks on the other fairies until Mother Fairy became very sad. Then she decided it was work they needed to keep them busy.

One night she sent them to hang the star lanterns in the sky so Lady Moon could see her way among the clouds.

"Shall we play, work or sleep first?" asked Nanie.

"Let's take a nap first. Then there'll be time to play before we work," Nod suggested, and the three little fairies cuddled down on a soft gray cloud and soon fell asleep. They forgot all about Lady Moon and the dangers of a dark sea of clouds, unaware that they were awakened by a cry for help.

Up they jumped just in time to see Lady Moon's silver boat tip and a great big black cloud wave wash her out of sight.

"Oh, what will Mother Fairy do?" cried Nod.

They didn't have long to wait, for Mother Fairy heard Lady Moon's cry and knew what had happened, and she was very angry, and Nanie, Payne and Nod were cast out of Fairyland.

They called down the cloud sea weeping bitterly. Sandman heard them as they drifted by his castle in Dreamland and called to them to stop.

They told him why they had been cast out of Fairyland.

"We aren't good for anything. What can we do?" cried Nanie.

But Sandman told them he needed three bright little fairies in his court and asked them to stay with him.

"I want someone to go into the world at sundown and sprinkle sand in little children's eyes to make them blink," said Sandman.

"That's me!" cried Nanie.

"Sure enough," answered Sandman. "And one to fan them with the Dream fan until they begin to wink."

"That's work for me," exclaimed Payne.

"And last of all some one to make them nod until they drift into the castle of dreams."

"I can do that, for my name is Nod," cried the last little brother, and so the little fairies agreed to help Sandman in his nightly task.

When night came they sailed in tiny little boats into the windows of little children. Nanie sprinkled sand in their eyes to make them blink, Payne fanned them until they winked, and finally Nod helped them to drift into Dreamland.

They were so happy in their new life that they never cared to return to Fairyland, but still live with Sandman in his Castle of Dreams, and every night they creep into your bedroom on the last rays of twilight.

Maybe some night you may see them if you watch real close, for they never miss a single wink. But if you try to keep awake of course they can't come, so just watch for that last ray of twilight and then close your eyes and drift to Dreamland, in their tender care.

WHICH?

"This bulk tea is the best I could buy at the price, Mrs. Brown, but I believe you will like Red Rose better."

"We use Red Rose at home and like the rich flavor. My wife says it goes further."

Hundreds of grocers are making statements somewhat like this.

They have sold Red Rose Tea for many years and have found the quality so good that they use it in their homes.

Most grocers naturally like to make an extra profit on their bulk tea, but they cannot help recommending Red Rose Tea because they know it's worth the price.

They know it goes further because it consists chiefly of the teas from Assam in Northern India, the strongest, richest teas grown anywhere in the world. Red Rose tastes better and goes further.

WHY MAGGIE WANTS HER MOUNTAIN

Inhabitants of the park at Banff. (1) A solitary yak. (2) Mountain goats. (3) Buffalo.

HERE are a good many of us who wish the war would hurry up and be over, for one reason and another. But Maggie has a reason that's unique. If somebody would just go and kill the Kaiser, she'd get her mountain.

Maggie's second name is Mountain, too and her last is Goat. She lives at Banff, Alberta, together with two of her friends, in a big raggedy paddock full of bushes, with a stone-built house in the centre. You can generally see her up on top of it, silhouetted against the sky, gazing disconsolately away off to where she can see that mountain of hers, fur-trimmed and full of gloriously impossible ledges. She tries to pretend the ridge pole at her present home is one of them. But it's no go. The wretched little gophers climb up and run under her very nose and she's too mournful to care!

You see, the Parks Commission, which is the Supreme Court and the Privy Council and Santa Claus and the Board of Health to Maggie, had decreed that in 1914 the mountain goats were to be transferred to a locality more in keeping with family traditions. There is a large and indefinite number of unattached mountains around Banff, inhabited only by some of Maggie's uncaught relatives, and the Commission was going to fence in one of these for its goats. The ledges would give them exercise, the big trees would enable them to stretch their backs at the season indicated by their primitive fashion magazines, and the men interested in wool problems would have better looking goat specimens to judge from when they figured as to whether it was or wasn't worth while to try breeding them for mohair plush.

And then came this confounded war! Camp Hughes, Camp Borden, Valcartier and the rest of the khaki features are up a million times over the cost of wiring poor Maggie's hilly heaven, which had to be pigeon-holed until "after the war."

That's how it comes the official in charge of all the wild wards of the park at Banff will tell you apologetically that the reason the goats look like ladies in evening dress is because they can succeed in rubbing the light wool off their necks, but the heavy matted body-growth won't come away from the paddock. So some day he'll have to catch Maggie and her two friends and pluck them like chickens. Which proceeding Maggie will resent most bitterly.

The rocky mountain sheep have the ideal range. They are trees that soar up like trumpet notes, there are meadows carpeted with wild columbines for looking at and the sweetest of sweet grass for eating. Above all there's a real, cool, compact little mountain for big horns to show off in the pasture, five of whom are scary-looking spring lambs. If they were to die and go to the butcher's heaven they'd bring far more than ordinary tame Mary-sorts lambs. At least they ought to, for they taste so much better.

"There are plenty of wild ones on the mountains hereabouts," our friend in the Government told us as we left the horses outside the gate and came walking in through the long grass, hoping to catch a glimpse of a big horn." Last year I caught three in a trap I made—a hundred and twenty by eighteen feet. It works with a gate, you know. Scares 'em a bit, but doesn't hurt 'em. They're in the—"

There was a scatter of little hoof beats and the whole flock came round from behind the big barn and stood, poised for the levellest photo with the brown tree trunks for a background.

The big horn is a wonderfully picturesque beastie with a touch of the dramatic in his make up, or he could never have arranged his harem with such an oh-you-kodak effect. But the last film had been used up trying to get Maggie properly sky-lined and we could only sigh regretfully.

There's a herd of buffalo at Banff too, but they're not of a hand shaking disposition. Nobody is allowed to go to call on the monarch of all the plains the C. P. R. has left, unless he goes on horseback or in a motor. Old Dad, the boss of Buffaloville, has been known to charge an auto, when his dinner hadn't agreed with him. And when he charges, you wonder if the Imperial Limited hasn't got off into the meadow by mistake.

There's the funniest animal in the park—and doubtless the most sniffed at by the native Canadians—is the yak, who is a horn Tibetan, with a face that looks half way between an Arab steed and a moose-cow, a grandly sweeping tail, and a wonderful glossy black coat which is of normal length on his shoulders and flanks, but goes into the widest and foppiest of fringes on his legs and under body. To begin with, the sixteen Tibetans were demitted in Brantford. But however excellent the climate of Manitoba may be, as a substitute for the Himalayas it leaves a few things to be desired. So the yaks were hoisted up after the fashion of a white elephant where they are doing splendidly.
