Our Delta correspondent says their club is now open for challenges. Come boys of our town waken up, organize, challenge and defeat their club without a day's delay.

Mr. W. Connors of Montreal was in town yesterday and called in to see our old friend, Mr. Donnelly, who is now residing in Toronto. Wellington has been stopping in Montreal during the winter and looks as slick as a new hat just out of a bond box.

It is reported in Ottawa that Chief Justice Hazey of Ontario has placed his resignation in the hands of the premier and that the post has been offered to W. B. Meredith, leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature.

Fierce flames of fire issuing from the premises of our citizens need not alarm anyone. It is only the head of the house carrying out the instructions of his better half in the way of cleaning up the backyards, pruning the fruit trees and burning the refuse.

The Dominion Parliament meets tomorrow, and the bets made and the elections as to the government's majority will soon be settled. It will be interesting to know which of the Toronto daily papers came the nearest to the actual majority. This is what they said, Globe 10, Empire 42, World 89, News 85, Mail 27, Telegram 30.

Our London Letter.

The following extracts are taken from a letter received from one of our subscribers, now residing in London, England.

I have visited Madame Tessa's, and there saw all noted characters, such as Bireheli, life-size, rather a short man, also Mrs. Peorcy, she that was hanged during our stay in London, the Hated Heath, and the murderer that was put to death by electricity in New York, those belong to the Chamber of Horrors. Other noted characters such as John West Stanley (the African explorer), all the old kings and queens of home and abroad, all the royal family and thousands of other characters can be seen in this museum, in life-size wax works.

We also visited the great work of art, the Albert Memorial, in commemoration of Prince Consort, the height of which is between 80 and 100 feet. On the four corners of this monument is the representation of Europe, Asia, Africa and America, and the animals of each nation. Above the corners is Prince Consort sitting in an armchair, who sits of a massive gold gilt. The monument itself is white marble, and is finished up with a body of police. Opposite the memorial is the Albert Hall, a handsome round building, the inside of which is shaped like a horse shoe.

The next view from the Victoria Bridge which is under construction, when finished this bridge will be one of the finest bridges over the Thames.

We went under the Thames by a boat of a distance of about 10 minutes walk. Just imagine walking under the River Thames. I think after this, wonders will never cease.

We viewed the Thames, and the enormous traffic passing to and fro beyond description. We saw one of the finest churches in the world called St. Saviour Southwark. Our next visit was Windsor Castle, a distance of 15 miles from Plaislow, one of the Queen's residences, a magnificent ancient building of stone, built in the time of William the Conqueror. Passing up the main entrance we saw the statue of Queen Victoria in commemoration of jubilee year. Our first view was St. George's chapel, a handsome interior of carved wood-work, with banners and armors on each side, and on the same ground floor, is the memorial of Prince of Leopold and Prince Consort, lying in a large marble statue in life-size in a chapel called the Albert Chapel. We visited the state apartments called the Queens Drawing Room, the next grandly decorated by the next grand reception room, the Walls, is embellished with some fine needle work, representing the story of Jason and Medea. From this room we passed into St. George's Hall, an apartment of enormous dimensions, being 200 feet long and 34 feet wide and 32 feet high. Its walls are decorated with the portraits of the sovereigns from James I to George IV. The rest of the rooms are called Vandeyk, Yuccardill, State, Ante, Grand Vestibule, Waterloo Chamber, Throne Room, Grand Reception Room, St. George's Hall, Princess Chamber and Queen Audience Chamber. Passing through these rooms we had a grand view of the present given to the Queen in the year of jubilee. Time would not permit to describe the difference in taste between the past and present. We then proceeded up the Round Tower, circumference is 302 feet. In reaching the top of the tower, pen could not describe the sights. From the Home Flag is 295 feet. Around the walk is something handsome. The long walk from the castle is a distance of three miles straight, at the end of the walk is a statue of George IV. After leaving Windsor Castle, we made our way towards Eaton College, a handsome building where some of our greatest men have been educated. As we boarded the train for home, we viewed the train from the Thames, a more handsome sight, pen could not describe. After leaving the train we walked over Waterloo Bridge, and viewed the lights of London, a sight once seen never to be forgotten, also the Thames embankment by gas light. On Easter Sunday we went to the St. Mary's Catholic church, and heard some of the professional singers, and an excellent sermon by Cardinal Manning. We took a walk over Hanstead Flats, a large heath in connection with Epping Forest, where fairs are held in holiday time. There is a fair consists of swings, roundabouts, etc., but as the streets were crowded with an immense circus. There was a gathering of 200,000 persons on the ground. On another outing we took a walk around a place called Hatfield, where we saw all kinds of things from china to clothing. It would be useless to describe the different classes of people. Sunday is their money-making day. I have seen some of the streets where the poor unfortunate women were murdered by Jack the Ripper, although I have not come across him yet. I forgot to mention one of the largest stores in London, called B. K. W., where you can buy anything from a pin to a white elephant. It covers 3 to 4 acres of ground, and employs 500 hands, and you can pass from one room to another and not go out of the building.

Be sure and buy the Everlast Black Hosiery at G. W. Beach's.

Jan Stinson, of Rocksping, father of John and Jas. Stinson of this village died after a short illness on Monday. Funeral to-day (Tuesday) at 10 a.m. from the parlour of the late Mr. W. G. Parish has purchased the planning mill and door and sash factory of E. W. Middleton, and will run the factory for all it is worth the coming season.

Builders should go to G. W. Beach's for Nails, Building Paper, Putty, Oils and all kinds of House Furnishings.

Don't forget to pay your dog tax before Thursday next. The "Chief" has positive instruction to "haul up" all parties who refuse or neglect to pay the registration fee and procure a tag and has said he is going to do it. Therefore don't delay.

A treat is in store for the people of Athens and vicinity on Friday evening next. The pupils of the high school, assisted by several amateurs will give one of the best entertainments of the season in the lecture rooms of the high school on that evening. See programs, to be issued tomorrow. Admission 15 cents.

At the sale of the Moles property yesterday the prices offered did not come up to the reserve bid and the sale was consequently postponed. It is said the place will be offered at private sale. It is a good property, well located and would make a desirable home for a small family.

Phil Wilcox has added a fresh coat of paint to his store front which adds very much to the neat and substantial appearance of the block. Billy Brown manipulated the paint brush.

About two a.m. this (Tuesday) morning Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Kerr, of this village were horrified to find that their six months old babe, which was lying beside the most on the bed, had disappeared.

The little one had been in the best of health and was not even restless during the night and could not possibly have been smothered as it was lying in its place in bed with its head under the blanket. Dr. Cornell made an examination of the child, a few hours afterwards but could give no cause of death.

Special sermons were preached throughout the Dominion on Sunday last by the I. O. O. F. Rev. Mr. G. Scott preached in the Presbyterian church to the Mallorytown, Delta and Athens Lodges. There were 67 on the march but many more were present than could be accommodated. The church was beautifully decorated including the emblematic three links, in flowers, which was suspended to the wall in rear of pulpit. We regret that the space at our disposal this week prevents us giving a synopsis of the sermon as well as a more extended notice of the procession and ceremonies. Rev. Mr. Wright preaches at Delta for other lodges next Sunday.

A fracas is said to have taken place at the Athens depot on Friday evening between two our local sports. Geo. Scott was wrestling with some young fellows, when, it is said, Mac Davidson interfered, and endeavored to throw Scott. Scott accepted the challenge and the fight was on. The referee was second best, whereupon, it is alleged, he dealt Scott two cowardly, brutal blows in the face. It is said that Scott will bring the matter before the J.P. for settlement.

Two of our high school scholars had an experience which is not ordinarily expected, which stamps them as being exceedingly tender hearted and solicitous for the feelings of others. One of the young men had asked his companion to spend the night with him at his home in Elgin, and the invitation was accepted. In the dead of night the servant awakened by a noise in her room, and hastily arising he rapped at the door of her young mistress, the daughter of the house, and informed her that burglars were in the house. The young lady arose, and in the absence of her parents, rapped at the door of the young man's chamber, and an excellent sermon by Cardinal Manning.

We took a walk over Hanstead Flats, a large heath in connection with Epping Forest, where fairs are held in holiday time. There is a fair consists of swings, roundabouts, etc., but as the streets were crowded with an immense circus. There was a gathering of 200,000 persons on the ground. On Friday last a private letter from Friend, Nebraska, conveyed to us the sad news of the death on the Monday previous of her husband's residence near Friend, Elizabeth Oids, wife of Daniel Blanchard well known in Greenbush. Mrs. Blanchard had been in poor health for some months past, and about six o'clock in the evening was taken violently ill with the grippe and after entering dreadfully until two a.m. on Monday morning she passed away. The physician who attended her, gave as his opinion that she could not have been attacked with the grippe and after entering dreadfully until two a.m. on Monday morning she passed away. The church was beautifully decorated including the emblematic three links, in flowers, which was suspended to the wall in rear of pulpit. We regret that space forbids us to describe the details of the services. We preceded up the Round Tower, circumference is 302 feet. In reaching the top of the tower, per cent describe the panoramic view. From the Round Tower to the top of the Flag Staff is 295 feet.

The long walk from the Round Tower to the distance of three miles straight, at the end of the walk is a statue of George IV. After leaving Windsor Castle, we made our way to wards Eaton College, a handsome building where one of our greatest men have been educated. As we boarded the train for home, we viewed the castle from the Thames, a more handsome sight, per cent not describe the details of the train we walked over Waterloo Bridge, and viewed the lights of London, a sight once seen never to be forgotten, also the Thames embankment by gas light.

The young lady who was in connection with Epping Forest, where the fair consists of swings, roundabouts, shows, run on the same principle as an American circus. There was a gathering of 200,000 persons on the ground. On another outing we took a walk around a place called Petticoat Lane where Jews sell all kinds of things from china to clothing. It would be useless to describe the different classes of people. Sunday is their money-making day. I have seen some of the streets where the poor unfortunate women were murdered by Jack the Ripper, although I have not come across him yet. I forgot to mention one of the largest stores in London, called Whiteley's, where you can buy anything from a pin to a white elephant. It covers 3 to 4 acres of ground, and employs 500 hands, and you can pass from one room to another and not go out of the building.

I forgot to mention one of the largest stores in London, called Whiteley's, where you can buy anything from a pin to a white elephant. It covers 3 to 4 acres of ground, and employs 500 hands, and you can pass from one room to another and not go out of the building.

The young lady who was in connection with Epping Forest, where the fair consists of swings, roundabouts, shows, run on the same principle as an American circus. There was a gathering of 200,000 persons on the ground. On another outing we took a walk around a place called Petticoat Lane where Jews sell all kinds of things from china to clothing. It would be useless to describe the different classes of people. Sunday is their money-making day. I have seen some of the streets where the poor unfortunate women were murdered by Jack the Ripper, although I have not come across him yet. Our London Letter. The following extracts are taken from a letter received from one of our subscribers, now residing in London, England.

I have visited Madame Tessaard's, and there saw all noted characters, such as Birchell, life-size, rather a short man, also Mrs. Pearey, she that was hanged during our stay in London. The Hamlet Heats and the murderer that we put to death by electricity in New York, those belonged to the Chamber of Horrors. Other noted characters such as John Wesley, Stanley (the African explorer), all the old kings and queens of home and abroad, all the royal family and thousands of other characters can be seen in life-size wax.

We also visited the grand work of art, the Albert Memorial, in commemoration of Prince Consort, of height of which is between 80 and 100 feet. On the four corners of this monument is the representation of Europe, Asia, Africa and America, and the animals of each nation. Above the corners is Prince Consort sitting in an armchair, which is of a massive gold gilt. The monument itself is white marble, and is guarded night and day by a body of police. Opposite the memorial is the Albert Hall, a handsome, round building, the inside of which is shaped like a horse shoe. We next visited the mint where the money is made, and the new Tower Bridge which is under construction, when finished, this bridge will be one of the finest bridges over the Thames. We went under the Thames by the subway, a distance of about 10 minutes walk. Just imagine walking under the River Thames. I think after that experience will never cease. We viewed the Thames, and the enormous traffic passing to and fro is beyond description. We saw one of the finest churches in the world in the name of St. George Southwark. Our next visit was Windsor Castle, a distance of 35 miles from Plaistow, one of the Queen's residences, a magnificent ancient building, of stone, built in the time of William the Conqueror. Passing up the main entrance we saw the statue of Queen Victoria in commemoration of Jubilee year. Our first view of St. George's Church, a handsome interior of carved wood-work, with banners and armor on each side, and on the same ground floor, is the memorial of Prince Leopold and the Queen's death, being in a large marble statue in life-size in a chapel called the Albert Chapel. We visited the state apartments called the Vandyck, noted for its paintings protected by glass. The grand staircase, the grand reception room, The Walls, is embellished with some fine needle work, representing the story of Jason and Medea. From this room we pass into St. George's Hall, an apartment of enormous dimensions, being 200 feet long and 34 feet wide and 32 feet high. Its walls are decorated with the portraits of the sovereigns of the British Empire from the reign of James I to George IV. The rest of the rooms are called Vandyck, Yuccardil, State, Ante, Grand Vestibule, Waterloo Chamber, Throne Room, and Accessory Rooms, St. George's Hall, Presence Chamber and Queen Audience Chamber. Passing through these rooms we had a grand view of the present given to the Queen in the year of jubilee. This is a world not permit to describe the different rooms. We then proceeded up the Round Tower, circumference is 302 feet. In reaching the top of the tower, per cent describe the panoramic view. From the Round Tower to the top of the Flag Staff is 295 feet.

Around the wall is something 'undiscoverable'. The long walk from the Round Tower to the distance of three miles straight, at the end of the walk is a statue of George IV. After leaving Windsor Castle, we made our way to wards Eaton College, a handsome building where one of our greatest men have been educated. As we boarded the train for home, we viewed the castle from the Thames, a more handsome sight, per cent not describe the details of the train we walked over Waterloo Bridge, and viewed the lights of London, a sight once seen never to be forgotten, also the Thames embankment by gas light.
