FOOD FOR THOUGHT

A Canadian Journalist Who Presents Some Startling Facts

Under the somewhat startling caption, "A Whisper of Death", a writer in the Montreal Star discusses financial conditions in this country. While it is not at all probable that his views will be concurred in by all the readers of THE ACADIAN, we incline to the opinion that there is a large element of truth in what he asserts. We give it a place in our columns with the belief that it will be found profitable reading.

There are three great groups of spenders of public money in Canada—the Dominion Government, the Provincial Governments, and the municipalities—and they all appear to have thrown prudence to the winds in the matter of expenditures and taxation. At the rate of progress maintained during the past decade they cannot go any further.

Taxation has already passed the limits of safety. We are on the broad road to very grave trouble. The Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, which has done exceedingly useful work during the past four or five years, cannot be accused of bias or ulterior motives. It is an independent body, formed solely for the purpose of analyzing in a scientific and impartial way the financial operations of government in Canada.

It has not a word to say about "The Whisper of Death"; but its investigations, as disclosed in official bulletins, give ample support to all that has been recently presented in these columns in relation to the reckless waste of public money.

In a bulletin just issued it deals comprehensively with the revenues and expenditures of the various provinces on a per capita basis, which is a sound method of analysis for comparative purposes. The figures are decidedly alarming.

Comparing outgo on the per capita basis in 1918 with outgo in 1921, the Institute gives the following results:

Province	1918	1921
British Columbia	$23.07	$38.64
Alberta	11.48	17.93
Saskatchewan	10.05	16.10
Manitoba	8.60	15.03
Ontario	5.73	8.99
Quebec	5.50	6.22
New Brunswick	6.66	9.23
Nova Scotia	5.26	8.68
Prince Edward Island	3.58	8.31

With the exception of Quebec and New Brunswick, the increases run all the way from 54.5 to 74.8 per cent during this three year period. Revenues did not increase by nearly the same ratio. For example, while income grew by 6.8 per cent in the case of Saskatchewan, outgo was swollen by 60.2 per cent.

Manitoba had receipts 29.9 per cent larger in 1918 than in 1921, but expenditures were 43.4 per cent larger. Ontario had a 56.9 per cent increase on the side of revenues; but spent more by 56.9 per cent.

In this situation the provinces had to borrow. They should not have put themselves in a position which made that necessary; but it was all a product of the reckless spirit which has come over the country during recent years.

The Citizens' Research Institute does not in this particular bulletin give the facts with regard to provincial debts, but they are available down to the early part of the current year from other sources. The total in 1919 was $261,288,954. In March last it was $597,184,154.

The increases, by provinces, are peculiarly startling. They were as follows:

Province	Per Cent. Increase
Alberta	330.1
British Columbia	116.1
Saskatchewan	67.9
Manitoba	95.7
Ontario	236.6
Quebec	40.0
New Brunswick	55.3
Nova Scotia	44.8
Prince Edward Island	16.4

No man in his sober senses, whose future is wrapped up in the growth of Canada, can view these figures without the gray hairs of apprehension, and alarm. Joined to the burden which the Dominion Government and its municipality have laid on his shoulders, they must cause him discouragement.

The sole hope of the country lies in his feeling that way. He was indifferent while the railway tragedy was taking place, while incompetency and mediocrity were wasting his money, and the money of his neighbors, and unless there is a popular awakening there will not be a change to the road of safety.

That road is the hard and rugged road of economy and sacrifice; for we cannot retrace our steps to the safe highway we left fifteen or twenty years ago without inconvenience and pinching.

The spendthrift always suffers in the long run. He follows a smooth and pleasant pathway while his money holds out, but he pays for it all in the ultimate reckoning. In this case, however, it is not those who spent the money who have to get to endure the bitterness of a long and trying road, but those whose money was being spent.

The people always pay. They trusted their representatives to be prudent and patriotic, and now they are brought face to face with a situation which is going to try their very souls. The cruel part of it is that this trial could have been avoided.

But let us not presume. There are men and newspapers who are trying to tell the people that all this "Whisper of Death" is a nightmare and the product of a disordered vision. At this moment it is a question whether or not these apologists for the wasters of public money will be believed.

It is not an agreeable task to tell the people of Canada that they are in great danger. It would, on the contrary, be pleasant to talk about our noble heritage and inviting destiny; but duty demands that the truth should be told at any cost.

Read the official figures and do your own thinking. The Citizens' Research Institute of Canada has no object in deceiving you. It is dealing with the matter precisely as a doctor would with a case of disease. It says:

THE THREE COUNTIES FAIR

Special Prizes That Should Attract Attention

Aldershot Camp Grounds, Kentville, will be the scene Oct. 2nd, 3rd and 4th of the King's, Hants and Annapolis Counties' Exhibition. The outstanding feature of this fair will be the fruit show. What this exhibit will comprise can somewhat be ascertained from the special prizes of any exhibition in Nova Scotia.

As the Aldershot Speedway is one of the best tracks in the Province, and there are to be horse races for three days, there would appear to be considerable to substantiate the Kentville Driving Club's announcement that it will be "the biggest racing event of the season."

As an indication of what value attaches to the importance of the fruit exhibit, a review of the special prize list shows: Furness, Withy Company, Ltd., Halifax, offering $150.00 for the best 25 boxes actually divided between King, Wagner, Ribston, Blenheim, Russet; and J and H. Goodwin Company, London, offering a similar prize for the same combination.

The Dominion Atlantic Railway offers a $100 prize for the best five boxes each of King, Wagner, RedGravenstein and Golden Russet, and Mr. George E. Graham is offering $50.00 for the best five boxes each of Red Gravenstein and McIntosh Red. The International Mercantile Marine offer $100.00 for the best six boxes, four boxes each of King, McIntosh Red, Ribston, Spyn.

The Red Cross line offer a ticket from Halifax to New York and return, with steamer, berth and meals on trip (valued at $65.00) for the best nine boxes, 3 each, of Gravensteins, Ribstons, King.

There are special prizes offered in educational and homekeeping exhibits, grain and vegetables; and in poultry, life stock and swine. Altogether there $2,000 offered in special prizes.

The Exhibition is open to the Province. The formal opening will be attended by Premier Armstrong, Lieut. Governor Grant and E. W. Robinson, M. P.

THE MINAS BASIN SERVICE

The Kingsport—Parrsboro service of the Dominion Atlantic Railway, SS "Prince Albert" in commission, with its increased accommodation for carrying automobiles and its arrangements for serving light lunch and teas, has grown in popular favor this present season.

As the "Prince Albert" steams along Minas Basin and skirts around majestic Blomidon, one's admiration of nature's handiwork reaches the point of sublime ecstasy. The dykes and undulating topography of the country, the fleeting glimpses of Cape Split and myriads of enchanting scenes as the steamer glides along, form a panorama of beauty rarely surpassed anywhere. Parrsboro shores and town, as you reach them, complete a rare treat of a sail over unique Minas Basin.

The reduction in the rate on autos carried on the SS "Prince Albert" between Kingsport and Parrsboro, effective August 10th, will be appreciated by automobile owners. For details of rates and reservations, apply D. A. R. ticket agent at Kingsport or Parrsboro. 47-4i

LITTLE GIRL KILLED BY AUTO-MOBILE

The death of six year old Mary Buchanan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Buchanan, of Hortonville, occurred on Monday morning. Much sympathy is felt for the parents in this sad accident. On Friday little Mary was on her way home from school at noon when she ran in front of an automobile driven by J. E. Barteaux, Inspector of Turo. In turning she fell and it is supposed the forward axle of the car struck her, fracturing the skull. Mr. Barteaux was driving slowly sounding his horn in warning and immediately stopped and took her to her home, where the best medical aid was procured. It was thought at first that she might recover, but it was soon seen that her injury was of a fatal character.

A Tourist Tip:

An American Visitor, who has been coming to Canada for holidays the past eleven summers, says he squares himself when he goes home by always bringing a five pound package of Moir's Chocolates.

Another buys four of these five pound packages before going home and says he wouldn't be allowed back without them.

Canadians like Moir's Chocolates, Americans, when they get the chance, are crazy about them.

A DISGRACEFUL EPISODE

That more than eighty-five thousand persons assembled at the ring-side in New York last week to witness the spectacle of two representatives of physical efficiency battling for fistic supremacy is certainly not creditable to our boasted twentieth century civilization.

BRITISH APPLE PRICES

Further evidence of the need of better marketing arrangements for Nova Scotia fruit in Great Britain is contained in an important cable report published recently.

A departmental committee on distribution and prices of agricultural products, found as many as six intermediaries between growers and consumers and described Covent Garden, London's famous fruit market, as an anachronism.

This report substantiates the complaints made by our growers that they were not getting a fair price for their fruit shipped to British ports and justifies the action of the Ontario shippers in organizing a co-operative association to market their fruit in the Old Land.

Apparently it will be necessary to establish through advertising a consumer demand for our particular brands of apples, a demand that will be so persistent that the retailers must meet it. At the same time the price of our fruit must be under control right through to the retailer.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

Reports of automobile accidents in the United States to date indicate that deaths from such cause in 1923 will exceed 15,000 which averages a death every fifty minutes. Those injured in such accidents, it is estimated by insurance companies, will exceed 170,000.

The figures above cited are, in large part, to be listed as the toll which the nation pays to carelessness on the part of motorists and pedestrians. For most automobile accidents are avoidable. The great majority of them are attributable to speeding, to reckless driving, to joy riding, to intoxication at the steering wheel, to failure to exercise proper care as to safety appliances, to lack of care on the part of pedestrians and to their carelessness.

The above figures should drive home to all who use the high-ways the need for exercise of proper care. With victims running above 15,000 annually and with the number of injured exceeding 170,000, the loss in man power that the nation thus sustains becomes staggering.

THIS IS WEALTH

There are two places where we do not care to live. One is in a tenement house and the other is in a palace. Pass the pale of modest means and you invade the realms of unhappy riches or sleep in the attic.

To be able to fully enjoy ordinary life is a great accomplishment, for few people really know how to live. The choicest bits of pleasure and the most lasting happiness you will find within the bounds of modest living. If you have a good job and have good health, congratulate yourself. If you have escaped both poverty and riches you are really resourceful.

The struggle to get riches, the fear in keeping them, the pain in losing them—these are the things that make riches an unpleasant responsibility.

Poverty is not so painful as pretense. Keeping up with the Joneses is as foolish as trying to break the record for endurance dancing, so prevalent at the present time.

When we have what is wanted to make us comfortable, all the rest is vanity, excess and envy. The only poor man is the man who has lost his health. You may not have all the money that you feel you would like to use, but how would you like to trade your good health for a wheel chair and some chronic complaint?

Yesterday we were talking with a man that was rich last week.
Today he is poverty poor, and worse—he is in debt. Tomorrow he will be broke in health for he is terribly worried. Speculation did it. Today we were talking with a man who is proudly happy of a debt he has incurred. He borrowed money to build a home. The man who speculated lost all. The man who went into debt to build a home will whittle down his debt and win all.

HELL GET ALONG

There is so much pleasure in publishing a newspaper that some editors are refusing money as a reward for their services.
It takes wind to run a newspaper. It takes nerve to run a newspaper. It takes a tantalizing, acrobatic imagination, a half dozen white shirts and theatre tickets to run a newspaper. But money—heavens to Betsy and six hands around, who ever needed money to run a newspaper. Kind words are the medium of exchange that the business for the editor—kind words and church social tickets. When you see an editor with money, watch him. He will be paying bills and disgrace the profession.
Make him trade it out. Then when you die after having stood around and sneered at his jimcrow paper, be sure

CROWN RUST OF OATS AND COMMON BUCKTHORN.

(Experimental Farms Note.)
The stem rust of cereals, which causes immense losses in some years, is well known. The crown rust of oats is not so well known, nor do the losses caused by it attract much attention, as they are not usually so severe as in the case of the stem rust. Crown rust is, however, common, and it seems to be growing more severe, especially in western Canada.
It attacks the leaves of oats, killing them and thus reducing the vigor of the plants and lessening the yield. The rust appears as small orange reddish masses on the leaves of oats in the summer. Later the black stage appears on the dying leaves and gives them a dark or black appearance.
Just as the stem rust of wheat may live on the barberry, so the crown rust of oats attacks the common buckthorn in the spring, and produces yellowish masses of spores (seeds) that blow about and carry the rust to oats. Last year in western Canada, owing to favorable conditions, the spring spore stage of the crown rust was very abundant on the buckthorns in some districts—so abundant that they appeared yellow even at some distance. A very heavy attack of crown rust on oats followed, killing practically all the leaves of the oats much before ripening. In consequence the yield must have been much less than if no rust were present. Many experiments in the greenhouse have shown conclusively that the rust on the common buckthorn readily infects oats. In these experiments readily leaves of the buckthorns were placed above oats growing in pots, so that the rust on the buckthorn leaves would fall on the grain in the pots. The oats were then sprayed with water and placed in very moist air. In every case the oats became heavily rusted with the crown rust.

The common buckthorn is a shrub frequently used for hedges and for ornamental purposes. It is valuable for these purposes, but there are many other shrubs that can be used which do not spread rust. The buckthorn is hardy and can readily become established. Should it become general, either from extensive planting or spread from seed, it would cause very serious injury to the oat crop.
The native buckthorn in Canada is attacked by a rust, but this goes chiefly to swamp grasses and does not attack oats.
There is no doubt the common rust of oats is a serious enemy of the oat crop, killing the leaves and reducing the yield.
There is also no doubt that the common buckthorn helps in the over-wintering and spread of this rust. The common buckthorn, therefore, should not be planted or be allowed to grow in countries where oats are a valuable crop. The common barberry and the common buckthorn should be destroyed in grain growing regions.

THE PROBLEM OF WINDFALL APPLES

More Than One Way to Reduce This Usual Crop Leak

(By Prof. F. C. Seans in The Country Gentleman.)

And it certainly is a problem! No other single question causes the apple grower so many anxious hours and sleepless nights. If his apples are in danger from insects or diseases he sprays; if his soil needs more moisture he cultivates or irrigates or mulches; if there is danger from mice he puts wire guards on his trees; and so on, with most of his troubles. He can fight them and to a large extent he can prevent injury.

But with the windfall problem as ordinarily managed he is largely at the mercy of the elements. If the wind blows—and it almost always does blow at the wrong time—then the apples drop from the trees and thereby, in most cases, they automatically lose from 50 to 90 per cent of their value.

If the orchardist is to reduce this loss from windfall apples to a minimum he ought to proceed along three different lines. In the first place, he ought to do everything possible to prevent his having windfalls; or more properly speaking, to reduce the number of windfalls to a minimum.

In the second place, he ought to do everything he can to keep the quality of his windfalls as high as possible, to prevent this automatic reduction of value going any farther than is absolutely necessary.

And in the third place, he ought to be prepared to handle the windfalls which he does get in such a way as to make the utmost possible out of them.

First of all, then, let us see what can be done to prevent apples from falling before we are ready to pick them, because that is the most satisfactory solution of the question.

It may be worth while to state in the beginning that varieties differ widely in their tendency to drop from the trees. Some varieties, like Wealthy and McIntosh, are naturally prone to drop and will do so in spite of everything that can be done to prevent it; others, like Ontario and Delicious, tend to hold on to the tree even after their regular picking date.

Now, though the propensity to drop may not be sufficient reason for discarding a variety, yet it is a fairly serious handicap.

Turning now to specific methods of reducing the percentage of windfalls, we have the following, which are all worthy of consideration and some of which will have a very decided influence on the output of windfalls from any orchard.

Naturally our first line of attack against winds in the orchard is the use of good windbreaks and the planting of our orchards on slopes which are away from prevailing and destructive winds. Both are very effective. A well-placed windbreak of pine or spruce or maple—which are the leading trees for windbreaks here in Western Massachusetts—will do wonders in checking the loss from winds. And land that slopes in some other direction than the northwest—from which direction our most serious autumn winds come—is much to be preferred, other things being equal.

Speedier Coloring a Help.
Our second line of attack ought to be in the direction of getting good color on our apples in time, so that they may be picked before they begin to drop seriously. There is no doubt that one of the prime reasons our growers get so many windfalls is because they delay picking in order to obtain better color. If we can expedite the coloring process we ought to reduce the danger from this particular direction. This matter of coloring is an extremely complicated and as yet little understood process.

The writer paid his respects to it in THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN of July twenty-ninth of last year. But we may suggest here that more open pruning to let in the sunlight, wider spacing of the trees in the orchard to give them more light, the more careful use of nitrogenous fertilizers in order that the trees may not grow too late in the season, and the choice of soils which are adapted to the particular variety grown, are all methods worthy of careful attention by the grower who wants the best color and wants it early.

A third line of attack is, of course, early picking of the crop. If this line is pushed hard enough it will do away with the windfall completely, but it does this at too great an expense in other directions—color and quality and size. So that our problem here is to decide how far this line of attack shall be carried and when we ought to begin to pick. And it is a mighty serious problem too! And different growers in different sections will answer it very differently, and ought to. If a grower is trying for a special market for fancy stuff, and if he can get a fair price for his windfalls, then he can afford to take far more chances in order to obtain extra color than can the man who is growing for the general market and whose windfalls are worth a few cents a hundred, to make up into vinegar.

This question of when to begin picking being such an important one and such a difficult one to decide, the grower ought to obtain every possible assistance in order that he may decide it rightly. He ought to keep records from year to year so that he will know just when he has been in the habit of starting to pick his Baldwins or his Staymans or his Jonathans. And each year, as the time for beginning to pick approaches, he ought to study carefully the condition of his orchard to see whether his trees are coming along about normally, or whether they are ahead of or behind the average condition.

He ought also to know pretty accurately how long it will take to get the crop off the trees with the available force of pickers, and if the force is so small or the crop so large that it will take a longer time than usual to get the apples off the trees, then he is justified in beginning work correspondingly earlier. It is certainly no fool's job to decide when the work shall be started on each variety. And when the job is done most of us can look back over the season and see where we might have done better.

We ought not to close this list of preventive measures without mentioning spraying, since a thorough control of diseases and insects is a very important influence in reducing the tendency of the apples to drop.

We might add also, that certain lines of treatment for disease and insects seem to cause a difference in the number of drops quite aside from their effect in controlling pests; that is, certain spray materials, though they may be quite effective in themselves cause the dropping of the fruit. Every fruit grower is familiar with cases of this kind and, so far as possible, the materials which cause such dropping ought not to be used.

Perhaps we may rest our case here so far as preventing windfalls is concerned. There are doubtless other things that might be added to the list here given, but it contains the most important ones.

Turning now to the measures that may be adopted to improve the quality of our windfalls, or to lessen the injury to them from falling, the list is by no means so impressive or so effective as that for preventing them, but still there are some things which may be done.

The most important one is to have some sort of covering on the ground that will act as a cushion and thus prevent the apple from being bruised by its fall. Of course, the urgency of this will depend a good deal on the type of soil in one's orchard. If it is a rocky or gravelly soil, then an apple may be very seriously injured by falling, whereas if it is a fine, loamy soil, then this in itself is a pretty good cushion and may not be in serious need of a covering.

In general there are three methods by which we may attempt to provide an extra pad or cushion on which our apples may fall. We may, first of all, keep our orchard in sod or under sod culture; and it will be remembered that one of the chief arguments in favor of that method of handling the soil of an orchard is that it does improve the windfalls. Then for those who don't like the sod method but who prefer to practice cultivation in their orchards, we have the use of a cover crop in the orchard following the season of cultivation. If one chooses the right cover crop and if the conditions in that orchard are such that it does well, then it may provide a pretty good substitute for the sod-mulch cushion mentioned. This function of providing a pad for the windfalls is one of the important ones in a cover crop, and such crops as crimson clover or vetch are admirable for the purpose in sections where they succeed.

Lastly we may supplement the sod cushion or the cover-crop pad with a special mulch of straw or hay placed under the trees. Or it may be used by itself in case we have neither sod mulch nor cover crop to rely upon.

Another thing that may be done to improve the grade of our windfalls is to pick them up frequently. The longer they lie on the ground the poorer they become. And then, of course, the more of them there are on the ground the greater is the chance that an apple in falling will strike one already on the ground. So a fairly frequent gathering of drops is desirable.

Low trees also help somewhat in this respect, though it takes a considerable difference in height to make any appreciable difference in the damage to the apple. Still there doubtless is a difference in this matter between a modern lowheaded tree and the old-time skyscraper type.

The Windfall's Place in Markets.
SO MUCH for preventive measures and palliative endeavors. They are good as far as such ought to be kept off the market as far as possible. It will never be possible to keep them off entirely and perhaps it isn't desirable to do so. But there isn't any doubt that they demoralize and depress the market for good, hand-picked apples. The man who wishes to study the effect of these low-grade windfall apples on the market and on prices should go into Boston or New York or any other of our large markets in the height of the picking season and after there has been a severe windstorm. It will be a revelation to him if he has never been there before.

If we admit the desirability of reducing the number of windfall apples which are put on the market in a fresh condition, we have open to us the following outlets for our apples. In the first place, they may be made up into various apple products, and in the opinion of an ever-increasing number of fruit growers this is the best way in which to handle them. These products would include such things as apple butter, apple jelly and canned apples.

A second way in which these drop apples may be marketed is in the form of cider and vinegar. Usually these two lines go together, especially if they are handled by the farmer. He sells what he can as fresh, unfermented cider and puts the balance into vinegar. The combination makes an excellent and profitable for a large quantity of these apples. A few men have gone into pasteurized cider, and while this is a new venture it has great possibilities.

Then a third method, and one which has long in use, is to put such apples through the evaporator. There is an extensive market for dried apples and in some sections it is an industry by itself. Lastly, as has already been suggested, a large percentage of these windfall apples will continue to be marketed, as at present, in a fresh condition. Let us however make this percentage as low as possible; let us market them promptly, while they are yet in a good condition; let us sell them for what they really are—drops, not extra fancy, hand-picked apples.

In all this discussion I have been trying only to mitigate the situation. It cannot be cured entirely. The windfall apple, like the poor, will always be with us. But we can vastly improve the present situation if we will.

The present attitude to "treat 'em rough and let the consumer do the worrying" is poor business.

CANADA CONTROLS THE WHEAT MARKET

Europe's Imports May Be Reduced But Large Export Already to Orient.

Canada is in practical control of the world's wheat market for the next five months, according to a statement issued here today by T. K. Doherty, Canadian Commissioner in the International Institute of Agriculture.

This statement is based upon the assumption that all optimistic news is exhausted, various adverse factors are to develop, the world's old stock of wheat is well cleaned up and that only eleven million bushels is left from last year's Canadian crop.

"The persistent increase in North America's trade with Europe," says the statement, "indicates the latter's increased purchasing power, improved credit through better crops and more promising political conditions. Although Europe's imports for the current grain year may be reduced to 538,000,000 bushels, there is already an exceptionally large export to the Orient, which forecasts an ex-European total import of approximately 120,000,000. These quantities with a shortage in ocean supply on August 1 of over 10,000,000 will bring the world's requirements to approximately 668,000,000, against about 700,000,000 taken last year. These requirements could be met through the following probable shipments of bushels:

Canada 300; United States 150; Argentina 110; Australasia 50; India 30; Balkans 10; Russia 15; North Africa 10, aggregating 675,000,000 bushels.

A SOMBRE LESSON.

The most appalling automobile accident of which we have any recollection hereabout, was that which resulted in the burning to death of two men and a woman on the Hingham-Weymouth road just before midnight on Thursday, says a Boston paper. Such a grim tragedy should be enough to make all users of the highways stop and think for a moment. It carries a lesson that is sadder than that of more than fleeting influence.

So far as appears by the circumstantial evidence and the testimony of a man who was careful enough to make observations within two hours of the accident, the truck, which had been left disabled, by the roadside some time earlier, was far enough to one side to allow any careful driver to pass it; its front lights were burning, and as the same acetylene gas tank supplied the tail light, it is reasonable to assume that that was also burning. The speed of the lighter car must have been terrific, for the heavy truck, loaded with crushed stone, was driven 30 feet ahead by the impact, even with its brakes set. The passenger car was smashed into a travesty of an automobile. The road is one of the best in the State, and the moon was brilliantly illuminating.

There is only one conclusion to draw, sad as it is to draw it, and that is that the automobile was proceeding at a reckless speed for night driving, and that the driver was not careful at that. No one lives to tell the story, but it seems probable that the man at the wheel was not giving strict attention to his duty. The wages of carelessness and high speed are all too often the loss of lives. It is a pity that such things have to happen to impress upon others that sorrowful truth.

How to make your skin fresh and clear

Every woman passes as pretty if only her skin is fresh, smooth and young. It is within the power of every woman to possess this attraction to make her complexion as beautiful as she longs for it to be.

The secret? Cleopatra knew and practiced it in the days of ancient Egypt. She observed a daily ceremonious cleansing. The cleansers she used were the same you may have today, Palm and Olive oils.

These beautifying oils are scientifically blended in famous Palmolive Soap. They give it mildness, wonderful soothing qualities, profuse, creamy and refreshing lather.

Cleansing with Palmolive is a beauty treatment in itself. No woman should say her skin is too sensitive to use soap until she has tried Palmolive.

The attractive green cake, the natural color of the oils, is within the reach of every one who appreciates that cleanliness is the greatest beautifier.

You can buy Palmolive Soap at all first class dealers.

THE STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX FIVE-PASSENGER TOURING CAR $1395

130,000 Owners Know the Value of this Studebaker

Every unit in the new 1924 Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car has proved its dependability in public use.

There are refinements and improvements, of course, but the underlying principles of design and construction which have made enthusiasts of 130,000 purchasers of this model in three years' time, are not radically changed.

The 1924 Light-Six is practically free from vibration. Studebaker accomplishes this largely by machining the crankshaft and connecting rods on all surfaces. This is an exclusive Studebaker practice on cars at this price—and is found only on a few other cars—and they're priced above $3,500.

Absence of vibration prolongs car life, causes slower depreciation, reduces the cost of operation and adds to the enjoyment of driving.

Aside from its mechanical excellence, the Light-Six is handsome in design, extremely comfortable, sturdy and economical to operate. It is powerful, speedy, has a pick-up range that is seldom taxed and never exhausted, is easy to handle and convenient to park.

Its enameled all-steel body, one-piece, rain-proof windshield, ten-inch cushions upholstered in genuine leather, and cowl lamps are among many features heretofore to be had only in higher priced cars.

For 71 years the name Studebaker has stood for unfailing integrity, quality and value.

Mrs. George W. Churchill has closed her residence on Acadia Street, and will spend the coming winter in Brookline, Mass., as she has done for a number of years past.

Miss Grace Robinson, of Annapolis, a former resident of Wolfville, was in town for a few days recently, en route to Parrsboro, where she is visiting her friend, Mrs. Hamon.

Mrs. H. E. Blakeney entertained at afternoon tea Friday, at her new home, complimentary to Mrs. Fred Churchill, who is moving to California this fall. The decorations were sweet peas and native streamers. Mrs. Roy Forbes poured tea, while Mrs. Guest and Mrs. Foshy assisted in serving.

Arthur Phelps, organist of St. Paul's cathedral, Boston and director of the Summer Music School at Harvard, spent the week end as a guest of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Eaton. While here he met a number of the musical fraternity and expressed himself as delighted with his first visit to the valley.

The departure from town of Miss Hilda Tufts, who has accepted a position in a private school for girls in Pasadena, California, is sincerely regretted. As secretary of the V. O. N. executive Miss Tufts has rendered splendid service, as well as in other community interests. Her many Wolfville friends will join THE ACADIAN in extending best wishes.

Thousands of young men who are ambitious and energetic, but who have their own way to make in the world, marry charming and educated girls, expecting to be happy ever after. And they would be if girls had only been taught how to cook and sew. But they haven't. They feed their husbands out of tin cans and paper bags. They waste their money in buying ready-made things, and when a tired man comes home to a wife who is hysterical because she has burnt the roast and scorched the soup and the burns in his socks hurt his feet, and he has to begin dodging the bill collector, it doesn't take long for love's young dream to get shattered to smithereens, and for him to decide that matrimony is a failure.

A splendid assortment of Birthday Cards, including some very pretty booklets, just received at THE ACADIAN store

THE ACADIAN has been asked to enquire how long that leaky hydrant on Summer street is to be allowed to remain in its present condition.

At a special meeting of the Sir Robert Borden Chapter of the I. O. D. E. on Monday afternoon $100 was donated to the Japan Relief Fund.

The Royal Bank of Canada will be pleased to receive and transfer free of charge, to the honorary treasurer at Halifax, any subscriptions to the Japanese Disaster Fund.

Mrs. Creighton, the Convenor of the Apron Committee for the I. O. D. E. Grand Fair wishes all aprons sent in to the Solicitors or to Mrs. Aubrey Rand before Tuesday next.

The final estimate of Canada's wheat crop is 450,000,000 bushels. That of the United States is now placed at 789,000,000 bushels. That is to say, with only one-twelfth the population of the United States, the Dominion has more than one-half the wheat yield.

The band has secured a new leader in the person of Mr. Fred Beare, Sr., the well known clarinet and saxophone soloist, formerly of the Casino Theatre of Halifax, and the Halifax Concert Orchestras. Mr. Beare has taken a position in Wolfville in Mr. J. D. Harris' grocery establishment.

Are the grocers in different sections of Nova Scotia who handle no other tea than MORSE'S making a mistake in confining themselves to one brand? The blenders of MORSE'S Tea say no. They say that MORSE'S Tea is so delicious, so satisfying to those who use it, that it fulfills all the requirements of the most exacting customer.

A former resident, Rev. G. T. Bryant, now living at Avondale, was in Wolfville on Wednesday. He came to visit Mrs. Bryant, who is spending a few weeks here at the home of Mrs. Dawson, Prospect street. Many old friends were very glad to welcome them again to our town where they anticipate at some time again making their home.

Mr. Stairs, the Town Manager, has recently prepared a very complete map of Wolfville, based from former survey. This is something that has been greatly needed for some time back. The ACADIAN has been favored by Mr. Stairs with a duplicate copy, which will be of great assistance to us in our work and for which we desire to return thanks.

The proposed site for the new College Building is a scene of much activity just now. More than fifty men have been employed, most of whom are residents of this vicinity. The weekly pay-roll is now in the vicinity of eleven hundred dollars, which ought to make money more plentiful in town. It is the intention to push on the work as rapidly as possible.

Attention is directed to the adv. of the Valley Laundry Co. which appears elsewhere in this issue. Everything is now in readiness for the opening which takes place on Monday of next week. The management has left nothing undone which would ensure satisfactory service. They have received very much public encouragement and anticipate a big rush on opening day.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Davison, of Seattle, Wash., were visitors this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Eagles, at Gaspereau. Mr. Davison is a native of Caning and a cousin of Mrs. Eagles. Forty years ago he left his birthplace and went west and this was his first visit home. In the home of his adoption he has won prosperity and he has amassed considerable wealth.

Frequent complaint has been made respecting the entrance doors at the Wolfville Post Office. A change is now being made by which a pair of smaller and lighter doors are to replace the outside doors. This work is being done by Mr. F. W. Woodman. It is to be hoped that the change will include the replacing of the inner swinging doors which are a menace to public safety at present and the real cause of complaint.

The well known grocery concern of Caldwell-Yerxa, Limited, with branch stores at Yarmouth, Digby, Kentville, Caning and Bridgewater, has made arrangements to begin business in Wolfville. The store formerly conducted by F. W. Barteaux has been engaged and is re-opened today with a new stock of goods. Mr. Barteaux will continue in charge. This firm has a reputation for fair dealing that will warrant them a welcome to our town. Watch for their adv. next week.

The building owned by Mr. A. V. Rand, and used by him as a hockey-stick factory, was insured by the Fidelity Fire Underwriters of New York, of which Mr. W. C. Bleakney, of Wolfville, is the local representative. It was destroyed by fire on Sept. 13th the loss was reported on the following day. On the 17th the loss was fully adjusted and the treasurer of the company was instructed to pay Mr. Rand in full for the amount of his claim. This is a fine record for prompt settlement which should stimulate public confidence.

MARRIED

DUNCANSON-MINER.—At the home of the bride's parents, on September 12th, by the Rev. E. S. Mason, of Wolfville, Henry Hilton Duncanson to Abbie Ethel, daughter of Moody J. and Mrs. Miner, all of Gaspereau.

ADVERTISING FOR TOURISTS

There is perhaps no more profitable industry in Canada than the tourist industry. Like any other industry it shows returns for good sound business backing. It pays for investment in good roads, it pays dividends on capital invested in hotels which give satisfactory service and it pays in profits to dealers and to merchants who sell wanted goods at fair prices. And over all, like any other well conducted business, it shows satisfactory returns for money well expended in advertising when the governments, the hotel-keepers and the merchants are prepared to live up to the advertising and send back to their homes satisfied tourists who will multiply the benefits of the benefits of the original expenditure.

Advertising for tourists cannot generally be conducted by individual business houses. Governments or transportation companies may be able to make an appropriation which will be effective, but results for any city or town can best be obtained out of a general fund to which those who benefit should contribute. On the Pacific coast, Vancouver has been conducting such an advertising campaign for several years and has been able to show direct results to the business community in dollars and cents. A recent visitor to the continent describes how French merchants are reaping a harvest of millions from the American tourists. Canada, of course, has not the style centres like Paris, where large sums are spent for things to wear, but there are many things for which the tourist is seeking. The tourist is not hard to satisfy; he is willing to pay any price within reason—but he does not want to be fooled by misrepresentation or charged highway prices for service not rendered.

Merchants, manufacturers and others, who stand to benefit from the tourist traffic, should be willing to contribute within reason to well organized advertising campaigns such as have proven successful in the case of Vancouver. Institutions like the banks, which may not benefit directly, should also consider the advantages which may accrue from a donation to a fund which will benefit the whole community. A well organized, properly conducted campaign of this kind should be regarded as a good business proposition. It should not be classed with the many local campaigns for poorly organized charities, undeserving reform movements, and social fads; National banks have no right to contribute to other than purely business schemes.—Financial Post.

KINGS COUNTY CONVENTION

Of the W. C. T. U. Held at Canning

The Kings Co. W. C. T. U. Convention held their annual meeting in the Methodist church, Canning, on Sept. 13. President Mrs. Morton presided and a large number of delegates were present from each branch of the society in Kings Co.

The morning and afternoon sessions were strictly business meetings. Dinner and tea were served by the ladies to the delegates, and friends, in the large vestry of the church, bringing all together in a most gratifying way to the efficient committees.

The evening session was open to the public, Pres. Mrs. Morton presiding, Rev. Thomas Hodgson opened the service in prayer. Miss Archibald, returned missionary from India, attired in the costume of an Indian Princess, gave a very instructive and interesting address on her work in the W. C. T. U. in India and the wonderful progress made in temperance work there in the last twenty-five years.

Rev. Mr. Wilson, of Middleton, N. S., formerly of N. B. where he filled the place in Temperance Work in that province that the Rev. H. R. Grant does in N. S. and with whom he is affiliated in the work here, gave an address on Law Enforcements, and Government Control, which was very enlightening, explaining what the country is up against if the people do not see to it that law is enforced and respected.

A vocal trio, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Avery and Mrs. Brown, was then enjoyed.

Mr. Hodgson gave a short but helpful talk on prayer and unity, its efficacy in the work.

A vocal solo by Miss Josephine Harris.

A quartette by Rev. Mr. Hodgson, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Avery and Mr. Scott Blankhorn.

Mr. N. W. Eaton spoke of the good work the W. C. T. U. has done in the past years, and is still continuing. He also spoke on values, what they are, and should mean to us.

The next W. C. T. U. Convention will be held in South Berwick, the Victory South Branch, South Berwick, entertaining the first week in Sept. 1924. A vote of thanks was tendered to the ladies and committees, who assisted in entertaining the delegates. The Convention closed by Prayer offered by Rev. Mr. Hodgson.

A Kentville girl was taking her first ride on the train to Halifax. The conductor came through and said "Tickets please," and after much embarrassment she gave it to him. Soon after the train boy entered her car and said, "Chewing gum" and she said, "Oh, goodness, do I have to give that up, too?"

WHY BIRDS SING.

Is it to please human beings? Hardly! They sometimes sing because they are full of the joy of life and of happiness. At other times it is because they wish to out-rival the songs of their neighbors.

So great is this rivalry that birds have been known to drop dead through the bursting of a blood-vessel, owing to their efforts to out-sing other birds.

Birds will also sing when they are angry. A bird does not sing with its bill, as many people imagine. At the point where its windpipe branches into the bronchial tubes is fixed a delicate little membrane which produces its song notes, writes Mr. Richard Kearton in "Our Bird Friends."

When a thrush sings, for instance, its neck works up and down just like the sliding tube of a trombone.

How do young birds learn to sing? Have they to be taught or does the song come to them naturally?

A few species of birds inherit the gift, but most youngsters of the feathered world have to be taught by their parents.

The Birds' Baby Language.

An interesting fact about most of our birds (says Mr. Kearton) is that the mother-birds have a baby-language, in which they talk to their children, just as our mothers do.

Young birds spend a great deal of time practising their songs. Skylarks are especially hard-working and will sing for a hundred and thirty seconds without a rest.

Some birds are wonderful imitators of other birds, and the starling will often deceive even the most experienced bird lover.

Birds notes are also used as warnings to their mates. In the Island of St. Kittia many sea-fowl come to breed—gannets being the most numerous. It is very difficult to approach these birds, as they always have sentries out, both by day and night. As soon as a sentry hears any unfamiliar or alarming sound, it cries out "Beero." If by any chance, it has given a false alarm, it gives another cry, "Gorrok! Gorrok!"

Many birds' songs have been translated, by their sound, into our language; this is Mr. Kearton's rendering of what a thrush's song (the Canadian robin is really a thrush) sounds like:

Hear, hear, hear,
Wicked Mick, wicked Mick,
Pay thy debt, pay thy debt,
Quite right, quite right,
Pay, pay, pay,
Yes, I do, yes, I do,
Feet, feet, fiddlestick,
Tit tit titty tit,
Quartet, quartet.

While standing on the deck of the Schooner "Fieldwood," Miss Meisner was struck by a chisel falling 70 feet from the top of a mast on which the carpenters were putting a new ring. Miss Meisner is improving.

Mr. Arthur Chute and Mrs. Crute, Wolfville, are spending a vacation in Kingsport.

YOUR HEALTH.

Another Word About Constipation.

This condition is so widespread and its effects so harmful that no apology is necessary for discussing it further.

As you know there are hundreds of drugs in use at the present time and there will be cases where their use is indicated, but for the majority of people all that is necessary is just a little quiet thinking.

If you are affected with constipation make up your mind to correct it in a rational way. First in the matter of food.

Do you know that in generally speaking you can put foods into two classes; those which have a tendency to produce constipation, and those which have the opposite effect and tend to move the bowels. Roughly meat and eggs are constipating, and fruit and vegetables have a laxative effect.

Concentrated foods like meat and cheese milk, cocoa and chocolate are so well absorbed by the digestion that the little waste matter that is left in the large intestine does not irritate the sides of the intestine and it is not stimulated to move.

Thus by just choosing your food or rather taking a well mixed diet you should be able to overcome the tendency to constipation.

You will soon learn the best combinations for your particular body.

Just keep trying. If you add to this the simple bending and twisting exercises, keeping the knees straight always whilst doing same, your emancipation should be complete.

One of the treats in store for the sportsman in Rod and Gun in Canada in the October issue is a story by H. C. Duffus on "Bear Hunting up Bute Inlet, B. C.," which is written in a particularly readable manner. Bonny-castle Dale has a good article on the "Virginian Deer of Nova Scotia," while an interesting account of a ten day 'strip in a canoe is contributed by A. David Fraser. E. F. Ward has a story of a fishing trip in the Rockies while F. V. Williams and Martin Hunter have two good stories in this issue. Guns and Ammunition is particularly well filled with articles by men such as A. A. Haines, E. T. D. Francis, and R. Leckie-Ewing, all well known to Rod and Gun readers. Robert Page Lincoln, J. W. Winslow, and F. H. Walker have good departments, while "Along the Trapline," edited by M. U. Bates opens again in the October issue. Particular attention has been paid to the several important trap shoots of the Dominion, and accounts of the B. C. R. A., the Baisley Team in England, a write up of which is given by Manjer Crowe, the Martime Trap shoot, and the O. R. A. are all contained in the October issue.

REFUSING TO LEARN FROM EXPERIENCE.

(By Dorothy Dix.)
There is an old proverb which says: Experience is a hard school, but fools will learn in no school. This is a mistake. Fools never learn anything in the schools of experience. It is only the wise who profit by the education they acquired in the University of Hard Knocks.

The most amazing thing in the world is that one, with intelligence above that of a congenial idiot, will keep on making the same mistakes and getting the same results in trouble and suffering. Even a dog has sense enough not to make a second meal of laundry soap or stick his paw in the fire again. But we humans, who esteem ourselves so clever, let our past mistakes erect no warning against the future.

We know that certain dishes will make us sick if we eat them, but because we like the taste we gorge ourselves on strawberries or lobster and pay for it, as we have done a dozen times before, with indigestion and a doctor's bill. We know that if we overwork and overplay and do not get enough rest and sleep we will have another breakdown. But because we get a lot of tempting invitations to go night and day until the crash comes and we are invalided for months.

By the time we are grown we have all found out from experience the things that will make us ill if we do them and we could keep ourselves fit and well if we would profit by what we have learned about the idiosyncrasies of our bodies but we don't. We die twenty-five years before our time because we refuse to take care of ourselves.

Our inability to learn from experience is at the bottom of the divorce question. Young couples have many clashes and disagreements; if they had sense enough to learn from experience they would never have a disagreement on any subject but once.

As soon as the husband found out what his wife's little peculiarities were he would sidestep them. As soon as the wife discovered the subjects upon which her husband and she differed, she would avoid them as she would the plague. And the dove of peace would hover over that domestic.

It is impossible for any two people to live together, day after day, without each knowing just the things that most irritate the other; just what topics are as good for a scrap as a nickel is for a ginger cake. Yet in spite of this knowledge, in spite of a thousand experiences that all turned out the same way, husbands and wives deliberately say to each other the fighting word.

There are millions of households that are places of torment and strife instead of havens of love and peace, because people will not let each other's religion alone, or their politics alone, or they will harp on some old mistake, or will try to dominate over independent souls who will not stand for it.

This famous household cleaner and disinfectant is now made in Crystal Flakes instead of powder. It is the best household lye on the market. Use it for cleaning and disinfecting sinks, closets, drains, etc.; destroying vermin; softening water; making soap; cleaning floors, greasy pots and pans, etc.; removing paint, etc.

Avoid inferior and dangerous substitutes. Get the genuine article in cans as reproduced below.

from their pockets, by some glibtongued talker, would be forever wary of anything but the most gilt edge investment. Not at all. Not only is a sucker born every minute but the suckers come back again and again swallow the same bait. It's the same class of people who buy fake stocks and get caught in crooked bucket shops and invest in boom town real estate.

Among the most pathetic people in the world are those who have inherited money; who have always been used, to luxuries of life who have extravagant tastes and who spend or lose their money and come to poverty. They do not know how to be poor, and every detail of the life of the poor is a crucifixion to them.

Sometimes these people come into money again, and you think that their bitter experience would have taught them thrift and economy and the desire to grip every nickel until the buffalo howled with agony, but it seldom does. Nearly always they go back blithely to spending and come again to poverty because they have learned nothing from experience.

It is inevitable that we should all commit a thousand follies and make a thousand blunders. Happy those of us who can learn from experience, and who never make the same mistake a second time.

WHEN THE PAPER DOESN'T COME
My father says the paper that he reads ain't put up right. He finds a lot of fault, he does, persuin it at night. He says there ain't a single thing in it worth while to read. And that it doesn't print the kind of stuff the people need. He tosses it aside and says, it's strictly on the bum— But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come!

THE PATRONAGE SYSTEM

Dr. J. G. Shearer
One of the worst enemies of the true and honest functioning of democracy is the patronage system and its consequences. To the victors belong the spoils, and only loyal party friends can be appointed to office or be given contracts, are its principles.

The mere statement of the practice is sufficient to condemn it as unworthy of any intelligent nation or party. According to it if a contract is to be let only partisans of the Government need apply. A tenderer of another stripe may put in a lower tender, may be thoroughly trustworthy in character and financial standing but his tender will not be accepted. Contracts are let in the interests of the party in power not of the people.

This indefensible patronage system was the subject of hot debate for many years. The opposition party was filled with righteous indignation at the patronage of the Government, of the day warrant or occasion for a Governor has refused to sanction appointments of this kind.

There is no better method of overcoming noxious weeds. A harrowing or two some time after the sod is turned down will destroy multitudes of seedling weeds. The best practice is to plow about four inches deep, turning the furrow over as flatly as possible. Rolling or harrowing fills the spaces between the furrows and hastens rotting of the sod, by excluding light and air.

FALL PLOWING.

Early fall plowing is on the increase in Nova Scotia. There are many arguments for early plowing and one is that early plowing will always tend to increase the really cultivated area and prepare the way for crop rotations which in turn will result in both better crops and better land condition. The average Nova Scotian farmer depends too much on his hay harvest for the feeding of his live stock. As compared with Ontario, for example, Nova Scotia has usually more than double the proportion of cultivated land under hay than Ontario has, and yet in years of hay shortage in this province we frequently turn to Ontario for our supply.

Another argument for early plowing is that the sod is much more thoroughly rotted if turned down before the warm weather is past. There is no better manure than a well rotted soil. It contributes vastly to the supply of vegetable matter or humus in the soil. The tougher the sod the more urgent the early plowing. Yet another argument is that a few days of plowing scattered over the late summer means that the burden of work is well in hand and the risk of being caught unprepared by unfavorable conditions is greatly lessened. It is generally a very unfortunate thing for a farmer to be compelled to leave over the bulk of his plowing until spring. After an early plowing and one or two harrowings even tough sod land may be put in good condition for the growing of potatoes or other hood crops.

There is no good long step towards better farming conditions next season. No one knows what another year may bring forth, but the chances for a successful year, even if weather conditions should prove unfavorable, are greatly increased by early plowing.

PUNISHMENT.

Nothing grieves a boy as much as to be punished when he doesn't deserve it. The reason he grieves is because in his immaturity he lacks philosophy to cover the case. If he had sufficient philosophy of life he would take comfort from this remark by an English school master; "You may sometimes be punished when you do not deserve it, but think how many times you escape punishment when you do deserve it." That is a thought to which adults as well as boys and girls are welcome. Summarize your foolishness now and then and reflect with humility on the blows you have undeservedly escaped.

THE PRINTER'S DEVIL.

A printer's devil was the name formerly given to the boy who took the printed sheets from the tympan of the press. They got themselves so bedaubed with black that the workmen jokingly called them devils.

Printing used to be called the Black Art; and the boys who assisted the pressmen were called imps.

According to a legend, Aldus Manutius, a printer of Venice, had a little negro boy, who was left behind by a merchant vessel, to assist him in his business.

It soon got about that Manutius had a black imp to assist him, and to dispel the rumor he showed the boy to the assembled crowd, and said: "Be it known in Venice that I, Aldus Manutius, printer to the Holy Church and the doges, have this day made a public exposure of the printer's devil. All who think he is not flesh and blood may come and pinch him."

The people were satisfied, and no longer molested the negro lad.

FAMILIARITY'S BREED

At the grave of the departed the old darky pastor stood, hat in hand. Looking into the abyss, he delivered himself of the funeral oration.

"Samuel Johnson," he said sorrowfully, "you is gone. An' we hopes you is gone where we 'specks you aint."

MOTOR NOTES

Proper Use of Spotlight

When a spotlight is used on the windshield of a car, its rays should be focussed to strike the road immediately in front of the right-hand fender. In any other position, it fails to fulfil its purpose and tends only to confuse other drivers.

Don't Climb on High

Many drivers try to stay in high gear and keep their spark lever advanced as long as possible in climbing a hill. Under these conditions, when a change is finally to be made, it may be necessary to go down into low gear, because of the slow speed, whereas second would have sufficed with a little more momentum. Not only this, however, for, with the engine laboring, there is a great strain on all the parts, the bearings are undergoing great pressure, while only being poorly oiled, and with the spark too far advanced, the combustion of the gas is partially exerted in a reverse direction, actually slowing down the engine and subjecting the whole engine to a terrible shock at every explosion. Naturally, too, much fuel is being wasted in this destructive effort.

Most drivers who do this think they are economizing because they reason their engines are turning over less times per given distance of car travel, and hence less gas is being passed through the engine and burned. This is not so, for if a change were made to second speed, actually less fuel would be consumed.

Driving Without Fan Belt.

When the fan belt breaks at a time when another cannot be procured, it will be possible to run the engine with safety if the speed of the car is kept above 20 miles an hour. At this speed the movement of the car will usually insure sufficient air circulation to keep the temperature below the danger point.

HAS IT'S GOOD POINTS, TOO

Some one has expressed the opinion that the letter "E" is the most unfortunate letter in the English alphabet, because it is always out of cash, forever in debt, never out of danger, and in hell all the time. For some reason, he overlooked the good fortune of the letter, so we call his attention to the fact "E" is never in war, always in peace and never in prison. It is the beginning of existence, the commencement of ease and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no heaven, no sleep and no cats. It is the centre of honesty, makes love perfect, and without it there would be no League.

SEA JEWELS

Visitors can be seen roaming the English sea coast for valuable stones. The sea collects the jetsam of ages and specimens of every geological formation. Among others found are corneilians, chalcedonys, amethysts, agates, onyxes, and pieces of jasper. The "Elie ruby" is a garnet found to the eastward of Elie Harbor on the coast of Fife. Other parts of the coast have their special jewels. As for pearls, it has been stated that they have been found in cockles at Conway.

EATING AT NIGHT.

Many people eat a hearty meal at night before retiring and yet seem to enjoy good health.

Seeing this perhaps you have tried it and the results have been disastrous. You have awakened with a headache and bad taste in the mouth. Why?

Well, it's just this way. You have an occupation that does not entail much muscular work. Perhaps you have a light lunch at noon and then have a substantial meal in the evening. This meal includes meat, vegetables and dessert. The meat or eggs as you know repair the tissue you have worn out through the day, and the other foods supply the necessary heat for the body's activities.

If however you indulge in another heavy meal before retiring you can readily see that as all the body's functions are in a state of rest, this food, particularly the meats will not get used up, and will lie in the body as waste matter. Hence your headaches.

The person however who seems to "get by" and eat heavy meals at night is usually one who takes more active exercise than yourself, or perhaps spends more time outdoors, and thus has this excess matter burned up for him the next day.

Now eating at night can be made helpful, if a little thought is used. For instance in many hospitals it is customary to give all the patients a bowl of warm milk or broth about 9:30 in the evening. This draws the blood to the digestive apparatus, away from the brain and induces sleep. The warm milk or broth is no real tax on digestion, and often fulfills the desire for something to eat before retiring for the night. So perhaps a little milk, cocoa, or fruit will answer the purpose for you.
