SERMON

In his sermon at the opening of the Catholic Missionary Congress in Boston, Cardinal O'Connell took for his text: "Lift up your eyes and see the countries, for they are white already to harvest."

"We open today a new chapter in the history of the expansion of the church."

"The congress which we here inaugurate will by God's grace set in motion influences which will not die with the passing week, but which will go on in ever-widening circles until they touch the farthest shore of missionary effort with blessed and copious results. Not a struggling little flock in the least populated district of this broad continent but will find new hope, not a lone missionary working in the most advanced outpost of the church's far-flung battle line but will take heart anew when our message shall go forth that the vigorous church in America is addressing herself to the problem of meeting the needs and opportunities of the vast mission field at home and abroad."

"Boston is proud of the privilege of being the meeting place of a congress so exalted in its purpose and so distinguished in its membership. A convention city whither men come for the discussion of every topic that can be of interest to man, she throws wide the gates of her hospitality to a gathering whose object is to spread to the ends of the earth the knowledge of Christ and the blessings of Christian civilization."

"Catholic Boston bids you a thousand welcomes. The church in Boston, which two years ago counted few that they could be shepherded by those two apostolic sons of France, Chenevis, and Mulgoin, both plendid types of the zealous missionary, now numbers 1,000,000 souls and in their name, as in my own, I welcome all who have come here to take part in the deliberations of the second Catholic Missionary Congress."

"In a very special way I salute and welcome him who is the personal representative of the Holy Father, the apostolic delegate to the church in the United States and the papal legate to this congress, his Excellency Monsignor Bonzano. My we not consider it a disposition of Divine Providence that the bearer of this exalted mission should himself be a missionary who has known the hardships and sacrifices of mission life in China, and who later has presided over the missionary college of missionaries that in every age has sent forth her victorious soldiers of the cross to the remotest corners of the globe from his own achievements in the cause of Christ and because he speaks the loving apostolic father of Christendom to whom our hearts are attracted with unwavering loyalty we shall draw from his presence in the congress both inspiration and guidance."

"We welcome to Boston the archbishops and bishops who, as much as monsignors to them, have, but aside the pressing calls of their respective sees and have travelled, many of them, very long distances to give to the Congress the help of their counsel and influence."

"I welcome the priests and the lay delegates and the heroes fresh from the mission fields, bearing the battle scars of long sustained conflict."

"Truly this is a Catholic Congress with no sectional lines or racial prejudices. With holy emulation the voice of Canada and Mexico, of Porto Rico and the far-away Philippines will join the voices from North, South, East and West of this mighty republic, in discussion of the means best adapted for the attainment of an eminently Catholic end."

"No narrow horizon hems in our outlook; it is as all-embracing as the commission given by Christ in the beginning of His church: 'Go; therefore, teach ye all nations; preach the gospel to every creature. The negro and the Indian at our own doors; the Catholic families in out-of-the-way communities, struggling against great odds to keep the light of faith burning; the Filipinos, to whom we owe a generous and watchful interest; the multitudinous Orient, the isles of the sea, the burning heart of Africa, the ice-ribbed circle of the North—there is no field, where the children of men sit in darkness and spiritual hunger, that is foreign to the deliberations and purposes of this Congress of men of God.'"

"On Tuesday afternoon Archbishop Bleck of New Orleans presided. In his address on 'Immigration and Immigrants in the United States,' Bishop Mulgoin referred to the great tide of humanity pouring into America from all lands and said: 'The Catholic Church, limited in means and ministers, is summoned to care for, not only the souls of at least fifty per cent of this mighty throng, but also to supply at times aid for their material wants. It may be well to keep in mind that the church must have her guiding and merciful hand upon the immigrant from the day of his arrival until he is placed in safe surroundings under the care of a priest of his own nationality, or be willing to face in the years to come an immense leakage either through indifference on the part of the immigrant or through the efforts of the non-Catholic biased social and religious workers, and the evilly disposed who make a business of antagonizing the church and inciting rebellion in the hearts of the naturally well-intended.'"

In order properly to do the work desired, Bishop Mulgoin recommended the establishment of a Catholic bureau for obtaining information in regard to Catholic immigration. He said: 'Without interfering in any way with any diocese or natural church organization, such a bureau would distribute literature through connections with Catholic societies in the old lands, explaining the dangers to be avoided by the immigrant on his arrival. Through this bureau also, the clergy of some of the European races could be better advised in regard to the necessity of a more careful religious instruction of their people.'"

Father Faber.

Catholic England is now commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of Father Faber. In a recent article Mr. Wilfred Meynell, editor of the London 'Tablet,' wrote as follows about the great oratorian:

There are two tributes—no, there are three—to Father Faber, which many of those who love him must have pigeon-holed. 'Father Faber was a great loss to the whole Church, but he is still doing a great work by his writings.' That tribute from Pius IX carries with it a man unthinkingly dead, Great men, the greatest, may have lived so long that their passing cannot be considered a great loss—they have said their say, they have done their deeds, their night had already come before they descended to the tomb. Faber, dying at not much more than half the age of some of his contemporaries, might still, had he lived, have lived to great purpose. But of him it might truly be said that into a short time he crowded the emotion, the industry, the love of a far longer span of life. Hour for hour, nobody perhaps did quite so much—certainly nobody did more."

For his was pre-eminently the gift of facility. It is Newman said that 'he never knew anything off.' Faber might have made a very different boast, and with no disparagement to the use of his amazing powers. Had he begun to erase, he would have left a blank—with 'him' mending would have meant an ending. That the result was of form here, or failure of exact taste there, has not lessened the right understanding of him, that the pinch of salt with which we occasionally have to take the obiter dicta of 'Father Faber,' as he once slyly called himself, is proved by his mind for quotation 'I know no man who has done more to make the men of his day love God and aspire to a higher path of the interior life.' That is the testimony of Cardinal Manning, who knew of what he spoke. Praise from him may rank to a Catholic Englishman as the most precious that could come from any of his fellows. Lastly, the very informal tribute of Mother Margaret Mary O'Halloran cries out to us with a note of human sympathy. 'What a man you are! And it is as a man no less than as an author that we hold Frederick William Faber in memory. He was so great and so catholic a man that we hardly class him by his country as we do almost all others. There is something almost incongruous in calling this familiar of the Heavens a Yorkshireman. It was the Civitas Catholicas that once noted 'the ease in which he moves in the terrible world of grace, as if it was the tangible world of Nature.' His Huguenot descent, like that of Newman, and many more of the Victorian converts, is noteworthy enough; but we cease to think of Faber as the habilitant of a personage—the son of an Anglican minister himself. He stands for something so much less local. He stands for a Alliance over the French and resplendent in the emancipation of Germany. One of the most striking features of the day's exercises was the arrival of the last runners in a series of relays bearing banners and greetings from every quarter of the German Empire, and also from Washington and from Brazil, which they presented to the King of Saxony, who dedicated the monument. The banner of the United States passed through the hands of many thousands of athletes before it reached those of His Majesty, and altogether in all the relays no fewer than 43,000 runners were engaged.

little like Faber, but so characteristic of himself, conditioned his praise when he spoke of Faber as 'floating the men of his day.' The men of the day after having followed their fathers to the feet of Faber; and, gratuitous form of human error as prophecy has been declared to be, we are surely not too bold in picturing a great future multitude of readers for Faber's spiritual works. His hymns, whatever their defects, will be sung and said as long as the firm of literature prevails, and we cannot imagine a nursery of the future in which they will not sit feelings as keen and as aspiring as those with which they were written. The political outlook of Faber, which was that of the Young England Party, has been justified by all recent legislation. Of his poems, apart from his hymns, it was interesting to note when, not long ago, Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff made an anthology, that Faber was a full presentation. We do not cite his place in the Oxford Book of Victorian Verse, for the simple reason that the inclusion of utterly worthless pieces in that collection robs of any significance a position, however important, in its pages."

The fiftieth anniversary of Faber's death has just been kept, and in June next the centenary of his birth offers an opportunity, which is to be taken, for making some visible memorial in association with his name. We do not think that to this country will be confined all those who wish to take a part in the celebration, in the United States many a man, out of his own experience, re-echoes the words of Father Becker. 'Not for several ages' declared the illustrations founder of the Eclectic in New York, 'has God given to His Church a teacher whose thoughts of love and light will fall, like Heaven's dew, on a wider extent of that field in which the Son of God Himself labored.' And though the Catholic ardors of Faber took him out of the environment in which he was born, making him as much a denizen of the skies as the prophet who was charioted thither, we shall not lack the sympathy of many an outsider in any effort to honor his memory. Dogmatic Dan Stanley it was who said of him (ridiculously) that he was the only one of the Oxford converts who gained in force and character by his conversation. Even Bishop Samuel Wilberforce in a frivolous setting out to curse stayed to bless: 'The greatest liar that ever lived—but a perfect saint,' they who speak the language of exaltation will ever speak to incredulous ears because 'clay-battered.' In the houses of Nonconformists' snub hymns as 'O Paradise' and 'Angels of Jesus' are daily and not vainly sung. All sorts of popular hymn books contain these and other specimens of Faber's religious muse and the publishers, who have encouraged by free permissions this ungodly circulation, have also tried, and with large success, to see that their text has been kept intact. Father Faber's treatises bear multitudes as ill as his hymns. He has a right to be listened to till the end of his sentence—to be read with his full context. That is surely the least return we can make to an author who has taken pains never to weary us. He never fails in his ungodly word in which Iesso D'Irsell-tweeted the 'Romantics' as a preservation of their own. And it is quick from on high, it is the need of the time, and the sure foe to formalism. Because Faber stands for the law, you know that the law kills unless the Spirit make it alive, he too lives. That is the secret of his abiding strength and his abiding charm. He lets out the secret himself when he says of the readers of that most alluring of all spiritual treatises. 'All for Jesus'—'I am putting before them things which tend to raise their fervour, and to increase their sensible sweetness in practical religion and its duties. I want to make pleasurable and happy to those who need such helps as I do myself.'"

A stirring note of patriotism was sounded at Leipzig, Germany, recently when thousands of people from all parts of Germany, Austria, Russia, Sweden and many foreign countries, gathered for the dedication of the memorial of the Battle of the Nations, which ended just one hundred years ago in a victory for the Allies over the French and resulted in the emancipation of Germany. One of the most striking features of the day's exercises was the arrival of the last runners in a series of relays bearing banners and greetings from every quarter of the German Empire, and also from Washington and from Brazil, which they presented to the King of Saxony, who dedicated the monument. The banner of the United States passed through the hands of many thousands of athletes before it reached those of His Majesty, and altogether in all the relays no fewer than 43,000 runners were engaged.

The Ottawa Conference.

The Conference of Provincial Premiers held at Ottawa, concluded its deliberations last Wednesday afternoon and presented to the Federal Government the resolutions arrived at. These resolutions embraced the following: That the Provincial subsidies be increased by an amount equal to ten per cent of the combined customs and excise revenues of the Dominion.

That the salaries of lieutenant-governors be increased.

That the executive heads of the Provinces be known as "governors" instead of as "lieutenant-governors."

That the stock and debentures of Provincial corporations be added to the British Trustee list.

That the postal regulations of the Dominion be amended to provide for the free carriage of Provincial government documents.

Premier Borden visited the Conference Wednesday afternoon and the above enumerated resolutions were submitted to him with supporting addresses from Sir James Whitney and Sir Lomer Gouin. Premier Borden expressed his appreciation of the work of the conference and stated that he saw no occasion why the question of subsidies should not be taken up in the same way at stated intervals, say every ten years. He promised consideration of the proposals.

The question of representation in the House of Commons evoked a large amount of discussion. Premier Fleming, of New Brunswick, filed a memorandum containing the grounds on which the Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick based their claim for special treatment in regard to representation in the House of Commons. He was followed by Premier Mathieson of Prince Edward Island, who filed a memorandum in regard to P. E. Island's special claim. A debate on the question was continued all an afternoon sitting. As it soon became apparent that there was going to be no unanimity on this motion, Hon. Mr. Fleming withdrew it in favor of another which was seconded by Premier Mathieson and was as follows: "This conference would request that an amendment be sought to the British North America Act providing an irreducible minimum of representation in the Maritime Provinces and that this irreducible number of members be as follows: Nova Scotia 18, New Brunswick 13, P. E. I. 6." This motion, however, was also withdrawn after debate and it was then moved by Premier Fleming: "That this conference having heard the special claim of Prince Edward Island for the restoration to that Province of the original six members in the House of Commons as the minimum, deems it should receive favorable consideration from the government and parliament of Canada." This provoked more discussion and it was finally resolved, "That this conference, not representing the provinces for the purpose of these matters of representation, do take no action regarding them."

It will thus be seen that the question has been removed from the conference and so broadened out as to be dealt with by the Government and Parliament of Canada. What the outcome may be, so far as our Province is concerned, no one can tell. In any case there can be no doubt that the question of representation adjustment for the Maritime Provinces was admirably presented by Premier Mathieson and Premier Flemming of New Brunswick. This is especially true so far as the Province of P. E. Island is concerned. Our case was as strongly and forcibly presented as it possibly could be. It is now advanced as far as possible for the present and there is good ground for hope that a solution favorable to us may yet be reached.

Dealing with this question of representation, the Halifax Herald in an editorial says: "We do not propose, at the present writing, to enter upon any general consideration of the justice of the request of the Maritime Provinces, which are losing their representation in the House of Commons because of their large contributions in men and women to build up the new provinces of the west."

"We wish, however, to note that Prince Edward Island has a specially strong case in asking to be allowed the original representation of six members."

"Nobody who makes due inquiry into all the proceedings leading up to the entry of the Island into the Canadian Union in 1873, can come to any other conclusion than that the intention of all the parties to the agreement was that the Island should have six members, and never any less, just as had been provided in the case of British Columbia, and that an unnoticed mistake was made in drafting the act for the admission of the Island in a form different in an important word or two from the British Columbia Act."

"It is utterly incredible that the Island, after fighting against Confederation for seven years or more, on this very point of having a representation of six members, the very same fight that had been previously waged and won by British Columbia, should, after all and after winning their fight for six members, go into an agreement by which, at any time they might, lose all they had fought for and won."

"The intention certainly was that, contrary to the principle of 'rep. by pop.', the Island should have at least six members, just as in the case of British Columbia."

"All the trouble has arisen through a mistake in drafting the Act for the admission of the Island, and what is needed is that the Dominion Parliament should amend that Act so as to be of the same legal effect as the British Columbia Act."

In reference to the question the Toronto News says: "The general impression prevailing was that the Maritime Provinces had lost their fight for an irreducible minimum representation. The Ontario, Quebec and Western representatives are inclined to lend a willing ear to the protestations of Prince Edward Island, but absolutely refuse to agree to the proposals of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick upon the ground that they are an infringement upon the principal of representation by population."

From these expressions of opinion by newspapers in other provinces, it will be seen that the justice of Prince Edward Island's cause is eliciting public sympathy in different sections of the Dominion.

From figures recently given by the Inland Revenue Commissioners, it is shown that the wealth of Britain is as great now as ever it was, and that millionaires in the Old Country are far more plentiful than Canadians have any idea of. According to these figures there are in Britain 214 persons who have an income of more than £55,000 per year, which, at a four per cent capitalization, gives them each at least £2,375,000 or about $6,875,000. Out of the 214 there are 65 with an income of more than £100,000 per year. While the United States during the past quarter century has probably produced more millionaires than any other nation, still it is refreshing to learn that Britain has a few to whom fortune is kind.—St. John Standard.

Nothing To Retract.

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—"I have nothing to apologize for and certainly nothing to deny," stated Sir Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, today when asked his opinion about the attacks made upon him by certain Liberal newspapers on account of his speech made last Monday before the Ottawa Canadian Club, when he discussed the naval question. "I made a speech Sir Richard McBride said, in exactly the same tone during my recent visit to England before the London Carlton Club, and I stated there what I am not afraid of stating here right now, and before my audience in Canada, that I was ashamed of my country, Canada, in its action in refusing to vote a sum for the assistance of England."

"I dealt with a subject which I believe is in the forefront of imperial politics. I discussed it purposely, because I had there before me representatives of the business, professional and political elements of the capital of the Dominion. I wished to impress these men with the urgency of taking up the question and it was in no controversial spirit that I did so."

"I discussed the same question, in the same manner, before five hundred business men of the city of London."

Sir Richard seemed in no wise disturbed by the comments made upon him since he made his now famous speech. "I want," he said, "to say that it is understood that there is no doubt about my candid views. I feel that I am as good a Canadian as any other man, and I have as good a right as any other man to express them, when I think they are for the good of the Dominion."

World Peace.

Washington, Oct. 31.—A discussion of International disarmament was brought up in the House today by representative Hensley of Missouri, a Democrat, who ineffectually sought action on a resolution expressing the sentiment of the House for co-operation with the naval holiday proposed by the British Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill. Representative Slayden of Texas said he understood President Wilson and Secretary Bryan were in accord with the idea and Representative Mann of Illinois, the Republican leader, while objecting to a vote until more members were present, said he favored it as a means of saving millions of dollars. Speaker Clark declared that when the entire House membership got back to Washington he wanted to see the resolution passed and gave notice that he would deliver later a speech going over the armament situation the world over. He declared that Germany had been used as a raw-head and bloody bone and as a great terror to Americans in the past during naval debates. Action on the resolution was deferred indefinitely.

Call For Contracts.

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—The department of railways and canals is calling for tenders for section five of the new Welland canal, the tenders to be in by November 18. This will make the fourth section to be placed under contract for sections one, two and three having been already let.

Section five is a three mile division extending from a point in Port Robinson to a point in about the center of Allenburg. There is comparatively little rock cutting to be done on this section and the cost is not likely to exceed three millions. The contract for section two, awarded to the London and St. Catharines firm of Baldry Yerburg & Hutchinson, at $5,377,185, was formally confirmed by the cabinet today.

Manchester Collided.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—The Manchester Commerce struck an iceberg while passing through the Straits of Belleisle early on Saturday morning and sustained injuries which, though severe, did not incapacitate her entirely, for she was subsequently able to shape her course for St. John's Newfoundland, where she will be docked for over-hauling and repairs.

The weather report from Point Armour on Saturday morning as supplied by the signal station, was cloudy, no mention being made of fog; but fog sometimes falls quickly in the Straits, at this time of year, especially when ice is floating in the vicinity, so it may yet transpire that it was on account of sudden fog obscuring her course that the Manchester Commerce met with the accident, which compelled her to make for the nearest port. Meagre details of the accident reached here last night.

J.R. Binning, managing director of the Furness Withy interests in Montreal, stated that he had merely been informed that the Manchester Commerce had struck an iceberg. As to the extent of her injuries he had received no details. However, he was confident that she was in no immediate danger of sinking.

Icebergs are known to be adrift in the steamer-track in the Straits of Belle Isle, as the White Star liner Canada encountered four of them during her last trip to Liverpool. Captain Jones reported, upon arrival here, that the first of these bergs had been met with eighty miles to the east of Belle Isle; the second five miles to the east, the third, off Cape Norman, and the fourth thirteen miles west of that point, all four being directly in the track of steamers navigating the Straits.

The Manchester Commerce is commanded by Captain Couch and is an iron screw steamer built at West Hartlepool in 1889. She is of 5,353 tons gross register, 430 feet five inches long, 48 feet 2 inches beam and 20 feet 6 inches deep. Her officers and crew number about forty. She has few, if any, passengers aboard.

A hurricane, accompanied by a blinding snowstorm was reported from Matane on Saturday, while heavy falls of snow were reported from other points below Quebec, with a strong northwesterly gale blowing, at practically every point. Bad weather in the river and gulf was the report made by every incoming steamer today with snow that covered the decks to a considerable depth.

"You live in a quiet part of the town, do you not?" "Not now." "Then you've moved?" "No, our next-door neighbor has twins."

PATON'S BIG STORE

Beautiful And Bright Now Thoroughly Renovated

It is completely stocked with fresh new goods secured as soon after the fire as money and the telegraph wires could secure them.

Handsomely Renovated

The whole store, department after department, has been thoroughly renovated, painted, and tinted in a most artistic manner.

Bargains Still Giving

As the firm's buyers could not visit the different markets directly after the fire they immediately got in touch with the manufacturers who rushed forward to them samples in their different lines so that Paton's bought even more liberally than had they visited the market, with the advantage of being permitted to retain the samples, in many cases at a big discount. Customers will profit by this.

Winter Fur Fashions

All kinds and styles of fur goods are to be seen in Paton's great fur room. Here the most fastidious lady can be suited with anything she wants in the fur line.

Reasons Why The C. B. C. Is The Best

The Charlottetown Business College's claims of superiority are not based on hot air, bombast or broadside bragging.

The equipment of this college is complete in every respect. There are enough typewriters, forms, etc., for every student, and therefore none are kept back and none especially favored. The teachers are the best that can be secured and the location ideal—right in the heart of the business district—the courses plain, practical and full of "usable" knowledge.

Students who graduate from this institution are QUALIFIED to cope with any problem that is placed before them in actual practice. This institution is the only one in the Province to turn out successful verbatim reporters.

The courses cover bookkeeping, auditing, type writing, shorthand, brokerage, banking, business correspondence, navigation, engineering and Civil Service preparatory exams.

Next Session Promises Very Live Fighting

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—The certainty of no session until January has caused a complete lull in political matters in the capital. Speculation as to the legislative programme arouses little interest as the cabinet's proposals have been well concealed and the general public has little idea of what new matter will be brought before parliament. The opposition press is busy formulating a naval policy or, rather, series of naval policies for the government. So many schemes have been put forward by the opposition as the government's policy that they have probably guessed some features of the government's proposals.

For the government to introduce any scheme of naval defence that would be effective is to invite its destruction by the Senate as long as that body is controlled by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It appears that for yet another year this non-representative body will be in a position to defeat the will of the representatives of the majority of the people. The opposition are determined to block any measure of effective naval defence; also the attempt of the government to aid in highway construction.

For a year they have demanded a redistribution bill, and now announce that if one is introduced this session their hostile majority in the Senate will kill it. Representative government has become impossible under Laurier's control of the Senate, which he filled with useless hangers bound to him by ties of gratitude for participation in the division of the spoils so frequent and remunerative under the fifteen years of graft rule.

Some of the bills sure to come before parliament are naval defence, redistribution and highway. All these are likely to be rendered ineffective by the Senate. Any attempt to revise the tariff on the lines endorsed by the people in 1911—a tariff commission—will meet a similar fate.

Thus four important questions cannot be successfully dealt with because a body of men who represent nobody except a defeated political leader refuse to give their assent. Consolidation of the railway act, reports on ocean and railway rates will be before parliament. An expansion of the policy of aid to agriculture is certain. The estimates will include votes to continue the government's policy of development of our transportation system. There will probably be a measure increasing the jurisdiction of the Grain Commission over the eastern section.

What will be of great interest is the report on the construction of the National Transcontinental now in the hands of the government, and which illustrates the graft and waste of the Laurier regime. Reports on the alienation of the public domain under Laurier rule will also be brought down and the exposures will drive some men from public life.

Control of the Senate by Laurier will rob the coming session of much of its effectiveness but may evidently rid Canada of this useless legislative body. However, there will be many matters of interest and much fighting if Laurier continues his rule or woe country and his and his lieutenants' campaign in Chateaugay and Bruce indicates that such a policy will be continued.

Another Vessel Wrecked

Boston, Nov. 2.—The crew of the Nova Scotia schooner, Gypsum Emperor, which was dismasted in a storm wrecked by the Hamburg American liner Barcelona, according to a wireless received today. The Gypsum Emperor was bound for Halifax from New York with coal. She was built in Parrboro in 1892 and was owned by Captain Thos. Martin of Philadelphia. She was 630 tons, but carried a crew of six men. Except a message from the captain to his wife saying the vessel was lost and all hands saved, little is known of the wreck. A message from the steamer Berlin of the North German Lloyd's bound for the Mediterranean, reported the Gypsum Emperor a menace to navigation. The Berlin passed the abandoned schooner waterlogged.

Premier Mathison returned from Ottawa Saturday night. An unknown Spanish steamer has been sighted off the North of Spain and the crew of 21 are drowned.

In the Newfoundland general election the Morris Government was sustained with a good majority. Complete returns have not reached here yet.

Fresh tenders will be called for at Ottawa for the Halifax terminal contract, the figures submitted being regarded as excessive. The new tenders are to be in by November 20.

The transport steamer Alek, which left Halifax in August with a 4,000 ton cargo for the terminals of the Hudson Bay Railway, has been wrecked in these northern regions. Most of her valuable cargo of iron, hard pine and railway pontoons was unloaded at Port Nelson. The crew were saved.

A wireless telegram to New York from Captain Kier of the Imperator states the vessel made the best day's run since she has been in commission. "Peak" speed Sunday in Monday, the observed 251 miles, an average of 23.72 knots per hour.

The American schooner Theodore Roosevelt, Capt. Boyle, with a cargo of pickled fish for Gloucester, Mass., was wrecked Saturday at Trout Cove, about 10 miles west of Point Prince light. No life was sent from Digby to her assistance. The vessel registers 91 tons. It is probable that the vessel and cargo will be a total loss.

Port Arthur Oak, intelligence of Oct. 30th says: Grave fears are entertained for a party of hunters, W. Gray, of Cliftonville, Charles Woodard, of Molokai Bank, and W. Taylor, who left a week ago last Saturday, as were due to arrive back last Friday. No explanation can be given for their extra long stay near Black Bay. A tug will be sent to look for them.

The Cook Australian ministry was defeated in Melbourne on Oct. 25th in the house of representatives by 28 to 27 on an opposition motion to adjourn further discussion of Sir John Forrest's £3,000,000 loan bill. The prime minister immediately adjourned the house after one of the most angry scenes with the labor party.

The schooner Flor T. Capt. Biles from Tremholm, from Fogawash, arrived about noon Friday night. Only one of the crew was on board besides the Captain's young man named Arsenault from Summerside. Captain Curtis Tremholm, father of the late Captain, in command of the schooner Charles St. John, arrived here about noon Monday from Fogawash. He assisted the son in getting away Saturday morning and when he discovered on arrival here that the Flor T. had not reached this Port, he gave the alarm and this schooner, which has had already been reported here, The Tremhols belong to Port Egin, N.S.

Word comes from New York that Dr. John J. McPhee, formerly of St. Margaret's in this Province, has been elected a fellow of the Royal Medical Society of Great Britain. The honor comes all the more acceptable owing to the fact that the recipient is not acquainted with the members of the society. Dr. McPhee is one of the most distinguished physicians of New York city. He is a member of the Academy of Medicine, of New York city, professor of nervous and mental diseases of the New York Polytechnic medical school, neurologist of St. Francis hospital, New York, and St. John's hospital, Brooklyn, and Beth Israel hospital New York. Congratulations.

The Panama Canal, the American government's $375,000,000 enterprise to unite the Atlantic and Pacific oceans was strongly condemned as a "second or third-class piece of work" by Philippe Bessaville, the famous French engineer, who has just returned from an inspection of the work. "There was a lack of foresight in constructing the Panama Canal," said "it will not accommodate the big waterways of the future. The weakness of Gatun Dam renders the waterway liable to complete destruction by earthquakes. It is a second, yes a third-class piece of work."

On Tuesday of last week, a thirteen-year-old lad named Galuska, son of Joseph J. Gallant of Abram's Village, went to the woods with a gun to shoot partridge. As he was about to enter some rabbit holes he had seen and found in one of them a live rabbit. This he undertook to kill with the end of the gun. This discharged the gun and the shot entered the lad's eye just above the nose cap. As he did not return at noon his parents became anxious and his father started in search. He found the lad in a pool of water near the "muzzles" in a semiconscious condition from loss of blood and exposure. When taken home medical aid was summoned and then he was removed to the hospital at Summerside, thinking an operation might save him. He was in a serious condition when he arrived and gradually grew worse until he died the following morning about 9 o'clock.

A very sad and fatal accident occurred in this city Monday night by which James Mahar, baggage master on the P. E. I. Railway lost his life. He came on the train from the west that night and left the railway station for his home about 11 o'clock. He went along the track as it runs on by the breastwork, as was his usual custom. This was the last seen of him alive. Tuesday morning his body was found lying on the west side of the breastwork. The track ran close to the edge of the breastwork at the place his body was found; the night was very dark and he had no lantern. The tide was high about midnight and in some way he must have stumbled and fallen over. He may have struck against something. A coroner's inquest was held last night and a verdict of accidental death was returned. Doolan was in the 34th year of his age and left a widow and two small children.

A letter from Bucharest, of the 3rd inst. says: Five are reported from one old well to another in the Mural Pot Lem district. Twenty-five are slight. Loss for is five millions.

The change in the time table of the S.S. Northumberland has some late effect. The steamer now leaves the wharf at Charlottetown at 7.30 a. m., and leaves Platon on return between two and three in the afternoon. Thus she will arrive here on her return trip between 5.30 and 6.30 p. m.

At Summerside on Thursday afternoon last a horse belonging to Archibald LeClerc was electrocuted on the street. As Mr. LeClerc was driving his team a tree fell on the street. Attached to the tree was a part of an electric pole wire. One wire fell on the horse's back and the other struck the ground thus forming a circuit and a current and killing the horse instantly. LeClerc himself was shocked but not seriously.

On Saturday, Feast of All Saints Masses in the pro-Cathedral were at the same hour as on Sundays, with the addition of a Mass at 5.30 a. m. All Souls' falling on Sunday was observed on Monday. On Sunday evening after Vespers the body of a man was found near the shore of the harbor. It was identified as the body of a man named LeClerc, who had been reported missing. The body was buried in the pro-Cathedral.

The election for the Dominion House of Commons held in South Bruce, Ontario Thursday last, went in favor of the Liberals by 221 majority. This coalition vote was created by the Liberals from portions of other ridings, after the redistribution following the census of 1911. It was carried by the Liberals at the last election and continued Liberal 111 9.8 when Donnelly, Conservative, was elected. He was elected in 1911 by 103 majority. He is appointed to the Senate and the by-election brought on. Cases are said to be about 8,000. German in the riding and the Liberal made an appeal to them to vote against the Borden Government on the ground that his usual proposition was directed against Germany. A most extraordinary appeal to say the least.

Zero Weather in Canadian West

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 28.—Zero weather last night visited some parts of the Canadian prairie west, for the first time this season; Swift Current records two degrees below, and other Saskatchewan points a few degrees above zero. It was a good deal milder in Alberta.

A cold snap visited this city last night, accompanied by a driving snowstorm, which began in the afternoon with rain and sleet and turned to snow with a bitter north wind over October, however, has been a new record for mild weather, and most people are well prepared.

The harder weather will facilitate the uncompleted threshing operations particularly in parts of Saskatchewan, where little progress has been made, during the past fortnight, owing to wet.

Tremendous Tides

Windsor, N. S., Oct. 29.—Coast-guarders at this point on account of the excessive high tides of last night and today, which swept away miles of logs along the Avon river, between here and Grandpre. The fishermen owners are also in despair. Reports from Matilda tell the same dismal story of broken dykes and washed out highways. In some places windmills have had a full of old and highway rendered almost impassable. Not since the famous Sixty gale has the tide in the Avon or Bay of Fundy outlets rendered such damage to the country. It will be a problem for the owners to get all their valuable property restored.

The Culture Of Black And Silver Foxes

A timely publication, THE CULTURE OF BLACK AND SILVER FOXES, has recently been issued by the ROD AND GUN PRESS, Woodstock, Ont. This book is a series of articles written by Dr. L. V. Craft, who in addition to being a successful breeder of foxes in captivity, is a specialist in practical fox breeding. The book contains these articles in that of a scientific manner. To those breeders of far bearing animals who have no knowledge of veterinary science—and comparatively few of those who are engaged in this industry—Dr. Craft's book will be of inestimable value. The book contains chapters on Heredity, Origin Breeding, Mating and Gestation, Pups and Dens, Food and Feeding, Hygiene and Care, etc. It is well illustrated, neatly bound in paper covers, and can be produced from W. J. Taylor, Limited, Publisher, Woodstock, Ont. for the remarkable low price of sixty cents. Oct. 29, 1913.—21.

One Of These Days.

Say Let's forget it! Let's put it aside! Life is so large and the world is so wide. Days are so short and there's so much to do. What if it was false—there's so much to be done!

Itching Skin

Distress by day and night. That's the complaint of those who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with Eczema or Salt Rheum—and outward applications do not cure them.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Her attitude at any rate outwardly was less humble than on the previous Sunday; she knelt upright with her little hands—such pretty hands, John thought—clasped and held out towards the statue, her eyes were raised and once or twice that smile of hers played around her moving lips.

And thus these two young people found that prayer is answered in more ways than one; that He Who is Infinite Wisdom takes our poor, paltry, foolish wishes as we lay them at His feet, and burn them in the crucible of His Love, and give them back to us so enriched that we hardly recognize them, but increased in value a thousandfold.

And perhaps this is not such a very serious story after all.

—Darleg Dale, in the English Messenger.

STAGE CENSORSHIP.

One of the most famous Shakespearean actors, who is at the same time the director of the Shakespearean Memorial Theatre at Stratford, Mr. F. R. Benson, has told the world at large that the theatrical taste of New York is so degraded that he could not think of appearing before any of its auditors.

Will the people of New York, respectable or otherwise, feel the rebuke? They cannot do otherwise for Mr. Benson is not a man to be lightly waded aside.

At the time of the day he left London he was given a luncheon by the leading English men of letters and of the stage and other professions. Sir Sidney Lee, the eminent Shakespearean scholar, presided and toasted Mr. Benson as 'The Ambassador of the Shakespearean lovers of the Old World to those of Canada and the United States.'

In Canada he was treated with similar honor. In Montreal, at the end of one of his plays, the audience rose to its feet and cheered the company to the echo.

Possibly it was under a sense of this disgrace that an appeal was made to some distinguished men to find out if the appointment of an official censor would remedy the evil.

As if to confirm this view, an indecent force called 'The Censor and the Dramatists,' by Sir James M. Barrie, was immediately presented at the Globe Theatre for the purpose of throwing ridicule upon any such attempt at stage control.

And to come back to the play, 'The Black Mask,' from the press accounts furnished an example, if one were needed, of this blood relationship.

Meanwhile new depths of depravity are being sounded. Last is now presented as allied to brutality, 'The Black Mask,' from the press accounts furnished an example, if one were needed, of this blood relationship.

John, she said, 'my prayer, too is granted, but I will never, never tell you what it was.'

How Their Prayers Were Answered.

He knew intuitively that the sermon had moved her as it had moved him to ask some g. a. favor; he wondered if a her request had been; he longed to know not only what it was, but if it would be granted.

She started as she recognized him, thinking he had left the church. During the week she had pondered over their last meeting and wondered what he could have meant. What was the thing worth more than a fortune that he had recently found?

'The prayer you were making to the Sacred Heart this morning,' Mary hung her head.

'It was a foolish prayer, because only by a miracle could it be granted, and we ought not to expect miracles.'

'Perhaps not, but I am quite sure it was a better prayer than mine. But anyhow, will you tell me when it is granted, if it ever is?'

'Yes, I promise I will,' said Mary, smiling, and her smile was very sweet, so sweet in John's opinion, that he began to think there were other things in the world better worth desiring than financial success.

'Well, I prayed for something, too, this morning, something I want desperately; I will tell you what it was,' said John; and he told her just as they reached the house of her employer.

Some days later John Murray heard that his speculation had failed, and he had lost every penny he had invested. He raged and stormed, blamed himself for his folly in risking so much on an uncertainty, made things decidedly hot for himself, then ate clerks, and then remembered that he would probably see Mary Luttrell the next day, which was Sunday, at Mass. He would certainly tell her that his prayer had been refused, and somehow he derived great consolation in his loss in anticipating her sympathy.
