Now the Prices you've been waiting for are here

The old year took away, for ever, we hope, the old burden of war prices. For months conditions have been working toward the great climax that brought the remarkable merchandise that is here assembled for this our greatest January Carnival of Economy.

The results came in two ways: 1st. The drastic lowering of prices on our own stocks, down to the new low basis, and often far below it—to double your interest in January buying in our store.

2nd. We have combed the markets—taking utmost advantage of the opportunities created by far sighted manufacturers who were ready to co-operate with us in presenting to you now the lowest prices that will be possible, for the next six months, at least.

We can just see the delight of our Customers when they see the splendid assortment of goods, in every department of our store, and then realize that prices are way down to the bottom, where it is a pleasure to buy things.

Many Manufacturers have ACCEPTED LARGE LOSSES.

We shall forgo a large part of our profits on the new goods and accept large losses on our own mark downs—to inaugurate this first New Year under the New Management and

THE MOST STIRRING PRICE-UPSET THAT THIS COMMUNITY HAS EVER KNOWN.

No matter what you need or desire, now is the best time for months to come to buy it. Some of the reasons are told on this page; but scores of others are here that can get no mention today, even in this broad space.

Ferdinand Foch

In honoring Marshal Foch, who is visiting this country, the American people will be paying homage not only to a great general, but also to an exemplary Catholic.

Those who have studied the career of Marshal Foch since he has come to be ranked with the great military geniuses of history, are brought to marvel quite as much at the simplicity and strength of his Catholic faith as at the quality of his martial achievements. Marshal Foch's special devotion to the Blessed Sacrament is regarded as perhaps the outstanding characteristic of his piety.

An incident which showed how completely the great Frenchman could turn his thoughts to God in the midst of a conflict that filled the minds and hearts of all mankind is related by one of his reporting officers. It was at the very crisis of the war, when Germany's power seemed irresistible. Foch gave his final commands for the meeting of the foe, and then asked that he might be left to himself for an hour. The officers of his staff thought he needed rest and were quick to leave him alone.

An imperative telegram came from the front. It demanded a reply. The aides hurried to the general's quarters. He was not there. Then an officer who knew Foch's faith sought him in the chapel. There he was—before the Blessed Sacrament. Having done all that human power could do for his armies—Foch had gone to speak to his God. He was doing as a general what he had done so often as a boy in his little native village of Tarbes.

In times of peace and prosperity anti-clericalism, agnosticism, atheism had had ruled France and driven God, so far as they could, from a part in her government. This hostility to God and religion had pursued Foch and deprived him for a long time of promotion and recognition. By 1907 Foch had made his genius felt. This genius was the fruit of study and faith. In that year a new director was to be appointed for the famous Ecole de Guerre. Clemenceau was Premier. He invited Foch to luncheon and without preliminaries said:

'I have some news for you, general. You are appointed director of the Ecole de Guerre.'

Foch said he was not a candidate. That made no difference, Clemenceau replied, and predicted for Foch a successful administration of the school. Foch suggested a difficulty.

'Probably you are not aware that one of my brothers is a Jesuit,' he said.

To the anti-clericals, of whom Clemenceau was and remains a violent type, that was a difficulty, a disqualification. But Clemenceau this time only laughed.

'I know all about it and I don't care a rap,' said the Premier. 'You are appointed, and all the Jesuits cannot alter it. You will make good officers for us, and that's all that matters.'

Friends of the anti-clericals got the preference in the first days of the war. They were in the cabinet, in control everywhere. History will record that some of them were traitors to France as to God. Some of these favorites of anti-clericalism failed on the field in the most critical hours. Then once more Foch was remembered and recognized for what he was. In the darkest days of the titanic struggle when the French armies and the French people envisaged defeat and degradation, Foch was called. The sequel is of the imperishable history of France.

Ferdinand Foch was born in the village of Tarbes, in the Upper Pyrenees, in 1851. He chose the army for his profession and had begun his studies when the Franco-Prussian war began. He enlisted as a private, but the war ended before he had any part in the fighting. He went back to his studies in 1891; he was attached to the general staff. He had the rank of major. In 1895 he became assistant professor, and five years later professor of military history and strategy in the Ecole de Guerre. It was during his service as professor that he delivered the lectures that were published to make plain his theory of war. Returning to the artillery in 1901, Foch continued in that branch until 1907, when he was made brigadier general and selected for the general staff, but he retained this post for only a few weeks. It was at this juncture that he succeeded Gen. Bonnal as head of the Ecole de Guerre.

Liturgical Places

A liturgical place is a place blessed or consecrated or simply distinct for some function of worship. Such special liturgical places are four in number, viz: Churches, Crypts, Sacristies and Cemeteries.

Churches are divided into Basilicas, Stations, Cathedrals, Collegiate Churches, Parish Churches, Simple Churches, and Oratories or Chapels.

A Basilica, from the Greek basilikon (royal house) is the church which holds the first place in point of dignity. The Basilicas are of two classes, major and minor. There are five major Basilicas in Rome: St. Peter, St. Paul, St. John Lateran, St. Mary Major and St. Laurence beyond the wall. Outside of Rome there are only two, that of St. Francis Assisi and that of Anagni. The minor Basilicas differ from the major only in point of privilege and spiritual favors. There are some of these in Rome and a few in the rest of the Catholic world. Stations are churches possessing the tomb of some Apostle or Martyr, to which processions were made on certain fixed days for the celebration of Mass.

Cathedral, from the Latin cathedra (chair) is the church in a diocese of the titular bishop where his throne is set up and where he officiates. Cathedral are divided into simple and metropolitan, and the latter are called simple, primatial or patriarchal, according as they are occupied by a simple Archbishop, a Primate or a Patriarch.

A Collegiate Church is one served by specially appointed canons who celebrate the Divine Office in choir every day.

A Parish Church is a church to which a titular pastor or rector is appointed.

A Simple Church is a church possessed by members of a Religious Order, independent of the parish church.

Oratories are classed as public, semi-public and private.

Public Oratories are canonically erected by the bishop and perpetually dedicated to the divine service. They must have an entrance from the public road to offer access to the faithful. Semi-public Oratories are those

BAD HEADACHES FOR TWO YEARS

Mrs. Ernest Farquhar, Rose St., Dartmouth, N.S., writes:—'I have been troubled for two years with bad headaches and tried many different remedies, but found no relief. I was telling a friend of mine about the bad pains in my head and she told me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I had tried many pills and powders, but I thought I would give your pills a trial. I took one vial and was quite pleased with them so I took two more, and now I don't feel any headaches or dizziness. I am very thankful to Laxa-Liver Pills and I can recommend them to everyone.'

erected in a private building for the use of a community, such as seminaries, pious congregations, colleges, hospitals and prisons.

A private oratory is a domestic chapel erected in a private house, and entirely subject to its family. Such private oratories can be erected only by permission of the Pope.

A Crypt is a duplicate subterranean church situated under a chapel or choir, and has its own altars, relics and tombs. It must at least have an altar to be a Crypt. It is a memento of the Catacombs.

The Sacristy, from the Latin sacristium (holy places) is that place of the church where the holy vestments, sacred vessels and other treasures are kept, and where the clergy meet to vest for various ecclesiastical functions.

Spells Disunion

Mr. T. A. Crerar, dominated by Henry Wise Wood, apostle of class consciousness, is striving to stir up hard feeling between the people who live in the country and the people who live in the cities, towns and villages.

But the mothers and fathers who live on the farms of Canada are no doubt asking themselves these questions: "What about our children? Shall we cut up our hundred acre farms and give the pieces to our children when they marry? Or will some of our children have to seek their fortunes elsewhere?"

As a rule, in Eastern Canada or in British Columbia, a mixed farm of one hundred acres, or in Western Canada, a farm of one hundred and sixty acres, supports one family and descends to one son of that family. The remaining children must go out into the world to make a living. Some take up new land. But many have to go to the towns, cities and villages for work.

If this work is not procurable in Canada, they will go to the cities, towns and villages of the United States.

Most farmers in Canada have relatives living in the cities, towns and villages.

Why, then should there be diversion between town and country? Why should Canadian farmers want to destroy the urban settlements of their own country and thereby drive their sons and daughters to the cities of the United States?

ON FEET ALL DAY, BACK ACHED AT NIGHT

Women try to bear the daily burdens of the household, but being on their feet all day long with the continual stooping, bending and never-ending strain it is no wonder that, sooner or later, the back gives out.

All weak backed, suffering women should use Doan's Kidney Pills on the first sign of any back weakness and thereby prevent some serious kidney trouble liable to follow.

Mrs. Julia MacInnon, North Sydney, N.S., writes:—'I was so troubled with pain in my back I did not know what to do.'

I was on my feet all day and my back ached so at night I could scarcely walk up one flight of stairs. A friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after taking three boxes I am as well as ever, and can work from morning till night. I am always telling my friends of what "Doan's" have done for me.'

See that our trade mark "Maple Leaf" appears on the oblong grey box. None genuine without it. Price 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Trend Of Tariffs Are Upwards

In support of our repeated statements that recently all countries in the world were increasing their customs tariff, we quote the following from a recent report of the Director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at Washington.

A survey of tariff legislation in the principal foreign countries since the armistice reveals an unmistakable trend toward increases in duty, largely for protective purposes, but in some cases, particularly in Latin America for fiscal reasons; in a few cases increases in duty were justified by government officials as a means of discouraging the importation of non-essential articles.

While it would be difficult to determine the degree of responsibility for the upward movement that should be assigned to each separate factor, it may be well to enumerate the principal factors in the situation.

Doubtless the most influential factor is the general economic dislocation and interruption of normal economic life by the World War. During the war the economic activities of nearly every country in the world were influenced to a very large extent, directly or indirectly, by the military situation. The diversion of essential industries to production of war supplies; the Government control of supplies of raw material, labor, prices, and transportation; the abnormal shipping situation and credit conditions; the high margin of profit; and many other factors, too numerous to mention in a brief memorandum, all combined to bring about toward the end of the war an extremely artificial situation in practically every phase of economic life. A sudden restoration of competitive conditions, after the long period of trade restrictions, was obviously out of the question. While the reaction from government control was quite pronounced after the armistice, especially among commercial interests, it was generally recognized that the process of abolishing war restrictions and restoring more or less normal conditions would have to be gradual in order to avoid utter chaos. The industrial interests, in the principal belligerent countries, as well as in those neutral countries where war demand had created new industries or brought about an expansion of existing industries, were particularly anxious to secure additional protection during the reconstruction period, and governments, in many instances, resorted to upward tariff revision in efforts to solve this problem.

The following may be mentioned among the secondary factors responsible for increases in tariffs: 1. Depreciation of exchange, resulting in intensified competition from certain countries and also in a decrease of revenue derived from customs duties. 2. Abrogation of commercial treaties, by the war and the consequent withdrawal of reduced rates included in such treaties. 3. Tendency toward economic self-sufficiency and resulting demand for protection of essential industries for national reasons.

4. Unfavorable trade balance and consequent desire to discourage imports. 5. Desire to increase revenue from customs. 6. Retaliation for trade restrictions and tariff increases on the part of other countries; also desire to induce movements for the conclusion of new commercial treaties. 7. General movement for tariff revision in order to meet new economic conditions.

How Does Gouin Stand On National Railways?

(Special to The Mail and Empire)

Montreal, Nov. 6.—Sir Lomer Gouin's position in Quebec and in the Liberal party, and his entrance into Federal politics merges the very existences of the National Railways. He personifies the Corporation sentiment and ambition of Quebec and dominates the Liberal party. Mr. King may orate; Mr. Crerar protest; but Sir Lomer Gouin prevails. His avowed determination is the revision of the National Railways to corporation control, or, if this is impossible the burdening of the National system with the other railways of Canada stripped of their assets and the scrap remaining mortgaged by perpetuity guaranteed dividend charges. It is a bold scheme—all Montreal corporation schemes are bold—and its accomplishment is expected through a solid Quebec controlling the Liberal-Farmer entities. This is the sole object of Sir Lomer's reappearance in the political field.

His visit to Ontario is to lull the friends of nationalization into security; in Quebec he does not cloak his ambition. There he represents the ring that is fighting nationalization of public utilities and the unionization of Labor. Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux is even more frank than his leader. Other Liberal leaders have joined enthusiastically in the conspiracy.

Fernand Roufret, late member for St. James, the editor of Le Canada, the chief Liberal organ in Quebec, has declared himself as opposed to public ownership, saying: "The first duty of the new Liberal administration will be to dispose of the Government Railways, not by creating a monopoly, but by giving them over to private owners. A solid Quebec will control the Liberal party, and if that party wins it must accept the Quebec policy."

The above despatch speaks for itself, and as a result of it the question the people are asking is exactly where Sir Lomer stands. It is not enough for him to say "Trust me and my fellow Liberals of Quebec." It is squarely up to him to explain his position. So far he has declared himself against national ownership. What then? Private ownership is the only alternative. Who are to be the private owners? What scheme, if any, has Sir Lomer? Has he studied the question except in an abstract way? He does not tell us anything new when he says the railways are a great pressing burden. We all realize that. What is the particular remedy Sir Lomer would advise? Has he thought the subject out at all or is he merely using it as an election cry? He cannot surely believe that the people will be satisfied with his statement that "something has to be done or the country will go bankrupt." Mr. Crerar said exactly the same thing, and there is no merit in it—it gets us nowhere. Perhaps Sir Lomer has an idea that because he says he will find the remedy people will fold their hands and rest content that the remedy is as good as found. If that be his point of view he might as well disabuse his mind of the fallacy. He has chosen to put the railway question in the limelight and it is his duty to declare definitely where he stands.

Why Labour Must Support Protection

Every member of a Labour Union must be a believer in a Protective Tariff from the very fact of his membership in a Labour Union. A Protective Tariff is enacted to protect Canadian labour and Canadian manufacturers against unfair and unequal competition from abroad. Labour Unions even go further than this, because they aim to protect against possible unfair competition by workmen of their own country, in fact, against workmen living in the same city, possibly in the same street.

Canadian industry requires protection against foreign competitors, but will take its chances against home competitors. Theorists, like Mr. Crerar, often make the academic charge that a Protective Tariff is immoral and selfish and solely for the benefit of the manufacturer, and is not reflected in the wage earner's pay envelope. We have heard such men say that if some other country can produce goods cheaper than we can, then it is an imposition on those not engaged in that particular industry in this country not to be permitted to buy the foreign goods. What those engaged in the home industry will do when driven out by foreign competition is a subject carefully ignored by these academic critics. Industries to which Protective Tariffs apply have some measure of protection against foreign competition, but Labor Unions have protection against both foreign and home competition, and, consequently, Labor Unionists should be the strongest supporters of the principle of a Protective Tariff for Canadian industries.

Kensington Mission Honors Mgr. D. J. Gillis

An event of unusual significance transpired in St. Mary's Chapel, Kensington, on Sunday last, in which Mgr. D. J. Gillis, the venerable and most faithful parish priest, was the central personality. The people of this section of the parish who have been strengthened and edified spiritually and corporally by the institution of Catholic worship here in Kensington, seized upon this occasion, the 80th birthday of the venerable parish priest, and at once emphasized it as an epoch marking event in the history of Christian work in this community. Coincident with this event is also the anniversary of the first Mass celebrated in Kensington. Properly to commemorate the occasion, the good people, with that unanimity so beneficial to Christian effort, took the necessary initiatory action and presented Mgr. Gillis with a set of most beautiful driving furs.

The address, read by Mrs. Parnell McMahon, was as follows: Rev. Mgr. D. J. Gillis, P.P., Kensington Mission, Indian River Parish.

Reverend and Dear Father:

We, the Catholic members of this parish who enjoy and are strengthened by the grace imparted by means of St. Mary's Chapel, Kensington, wish to approach you and to show even in an imperfect manner, our appreciation of your noble work. Though bound by no obligation, theological or civil, thus to minister unto the spiritual needs of the people here in Kensington as you now do, yet you have spared no efforts, missed no opportunity, to discharge the duties that you have thus voluntarily assumed. Neither lassitude from already strenuous work, nor almost impassable roads nor forbidding weather, could deter you from attending to the needs of your spiritual charge. Nor has lack of appreciation defeated your noble purpose. You have persevered under conditions actually contrary; and the vast amount of good that you have performed has shown that your noble purpose has been emphatically accomplished. But the good that you have done does not manifest itself adequately in this world; the number of souls that you have saved and the number that you are guiding to salvation are the best evidence of the results of your boundless labors. How many today would be willing to return to conditions that attained before the institution of St. Mary's Chapel? Were we today deprived of the conveniences, advantages and graces imparted through your ministrations in St. Mary's Chapel we would realize the bounteous treasure that it affords.

May long years yet be spared you to perpetuate this noble work, and may the reward thus such a noble life merits be benignly showered upon you. Accept the accompanying gift which, we trust, will express the warmth of our gratitude.

Signed by the members of St. Mary's Chapel, Kensington. Mrs. John T. Mullin made the presentation in the name of the donors.

Mgr. Gillis, in language simple and chaste, and in accents that showed how deeply he was moved, acknowledged the address and gifts with genuine appreciation. He noted the reference made in the address to the extra labor to be performed in order thus to minister to the needs of his charge in Kensington, but by comparison showed how insignificant that he had to accomplish in his early days. He once had to serve an expansion of country reaching from Vernon River to East Edul, a distance of forty miles, while relieving for Angus McDonald. The young people of today cannot realize the hardships that had to be endured while performing work that could not be done with ease and comfort. He recalled that he had now been in Indian River for thirty-one years, and during that long time has never missed Mass once. Again he expressed his feeling terms his gratitude for the beautiful gift. It is pleasant to know that you are remembered and that your work is appreciated, he said sincerely.

Mgr. Gillis in his address recalled another event marking the Catholic history of Kensington, which was the celebration of the first Mass, offered up in Mr. Donohoe's parlor just sixteen years ago.

It is a signal honor thus to be able to celebrate one's 80th birthday. Mgr. Gillis has lived the ideal life of the priest. His great work will live. He was always at home and prepared to administer to the needs of his people and the wish he expressed that he should have the pleasure of celebrating his Diamond Jubilee will be shared wholeheartedly by his countless friends throughout the community and province.

Some further congratulatory remarks were added by Messrs. P.S. McIntyre, James Pendergast, Dr. Gillis, T. N. Donohoe, T. A. Driscoll, and J. A. Ready. Mgr. Gillis fittingly replied and concluded the memorable event with the evening service.

ADVERTISE IN THE Charlotteetown Herald

The Proposed New Catholic Hospital

CIRCULAR FROM BISHOP. A circular from Bishop O'Leary was read in the various Churches of the diocese on Sunday in connection with the proposed erection of a new Catholic Hospital. The circular read in part as follows:

Divine Providence has seen fit to try the Diocese of Charlottetown very severely in the disastrous fire which occurred in the City Hospital on Tuesday, Nov. 22nd. The building, which heretofore has served efficiently as a hospital, has been so badly destroyed that it is the unanimous verdict of the Medical Staff that it can be used no longer, even when repaired, as a permanent hospital. It has therefore, been decided to devote the present Hospital Building to a Home for the Poor and Aged, and to build a new modern and up-to-date Hospital.

The necessity of such a work is evident to all who consider, for a moment, the wonderful amount of good that the Hospital has done in the Diocese since its inception. For many years it alone has supplied the needs of the entire Province, independent of class or creed, and even to the present it gives of its best to the patients from every part of the Island and of the Magdalen Islands.

It would simply be a calamity should the work so efficiently carried on in the past and so productive of good in saving life and in curing the sick have to be abandoned, or even to be so utterly handicapped as it would be in the present building repaired. In fact it is something that no person in the Diocese would think of. The only alternative, however, is the erection of a new Hospital, and this decision we have been forced to take in the circumstances.

On the other hand the crying need for a home for the poor and aged has called forth longings and desires on the part of many of the Clergy and of the people. We have no such place. The charity of the Diocese, so great in caring for the sick and orphans, has not extended itself to the poor and aged, who, nevertheless, by their desolation or poverty, appeal sympathetically to all Christian hearts. The Provincial Home is found absolutely incapable of meeting this need, and it seems that the spirit of Christian charity impels us to give of what God has given to us, that we may help to shelter His homeless ones. Those who in God's mercy have their comfortable homes and happy themselves should thank God for what He has given them, but should also remember those who are not so blessed, and should reflect that the day may come for them also, as it has come for others as well to do as they are now, when they will search for a place of comfort to lay their old and weary limbs. A Home for the Aged, therefore, is a necessity as well as a new Hospital.

It is proposed to meet both these needs at once by repairing the old Hospital, which is to be converted into a Home and building a new Hospital for the sick and the dying. The repairs to the old Hospital can be made with the Insurance, so that the Home will be provided without calling on the Diocese but the means to erect the New Hospital must be gathered from the Diocese in general. Hence it has been decided to put on a Drive for One Hundred Thousand Dollars payable in instalments. The Drive is to commence in Charlottetown on Monday, Dec. 5th, and to continue until the night of Saturday, Dec. 17th, and in the Parishes it will commence on Monday, Dec. 12th, and continue until the night of Saturday, Dec. 24th. The objective set for the City is $17,000.00, and the objective of the different parishes will be forwarded to each Pastor within a few days.

Many are praying that the coming year may be a prosperous one, but their prayers will be much more acceptable in the sight of the Most High, if accompanied by the spirit of sacrifice and generous offering made to Him in Whose hands lies the prosperity or depression of the future. It is at the approach of the Holy Season of Christmas when hearts are open and giving is universal that we appeal to you to give your Christmas Gift to the Divine and helpless little personified in his poor and sick. "Whatsoever you do unto the least of these, you do unto Me." It is, in His name, therefore, that the drive shall be made in your midst. It is through His name that the reward of your generosity shall come. It is in His Name that we ask the Father in Heaven to bless all who contribute to the extension of God's charity in Our Diocese.

Now the Prices you've been waiting for are here

The old year took away, for ever, we hope, the old burden of war prices. For months conditions have been working toward the great climax that brought the remarkable merchandise that is here assembled for this our greatest January Carnival of Economy.

The results came in two ways: 1st. The drastic lowering of prices on our own stocks, down to the new low basis, and often far below it—to double your interest in January buying in our store.

2nd. We have combed the market—taking utmost advantage of the opportunities offered by far-sighted manufacturers who were ready to operate within in presenting to you now the lowest prices that will be possible, for the next six months, at least.

We can just see the delight of our Customers when they see the splendid assortment of goods, in our department of our store, and then realize that prices are away down to the bottom, where there is a pleasure to buy things.

Many Manufacturers have ACCEPTED LARGE LOSSES. We shall forego a large part of our profits on the new goods and accept large losses on our own mark-downs—to inaugurate this first New Year under the New Management and

THE MOST STIRRING PRICE-UPSET THAT THIS COMMUNITY HAS EVER KNOWN.

No matter what you need or desire, now is the best time for months to come to buy it. Some of the reasons are told on this page; but scores of others are here that can get no mention today, even in this broad space.

Jim's Thanksgiving

(Written for the Catholic Herald by Dr. James Healey)

(Apologie to Riley)

It's about a score Thanks' it's Since I've been in town before, But I'd like to come a-spendin' Just about a dozen more. An', the first one I remember When a fellow bout my size Filled his stummin' with th' goodies, Turkey, possum, pumpkin pie Then topped off on nuts and candies Till his father had 's'ay. "Jim ye've got a rubber stummin' By the stuff ye've stored away. And son, now let me tell ye There's a lot more comin' roun' For th' Lord don't spare Thanks-givin's. And ye may not be in town, But wherever ye are feastin' Let it be right here or there There will likely be a plenty. An' yer welcome to a share. Well, I'm gone 'nigh twenty summers But I'm back agin ye see And th' feastin' seems a plenty An' th' things look good t' me But, the faces I am missin', And the voice that used t' say "Thank th' Lord for all th' good things He's a sendin' us t' day" Is as silent ez th' shades— O Thanksgiving ain't th' same 'S when mother served th' table 'N' when father carved th' game! Yes, there's others too we're missin', So Thanksgiving ain't t' me Jes th' same old friendly dinner Az Thanksgiving' used t' be.

Bad's Opinion Of Boating

Dad smoked reflectively as Dusty and the neighbor boy gleefully busy transferred the garden hose from his own to the adjoining lawn. Presently came the shouts of happy boys. There was great joy in splashing about barefooted on the grass, a pleasant relief after a hot day. Well, this borrowing habit between neighbors is all right, Dad mused aloud. In some cases, I mean. Those folks are nice people, good neighbors. They take an interest in their place, keep it nice and clean. Maybe they're not well fixed so as to have all the things they need.

Mrs. Brown is real nice, his wife agreed. I don't mind their borrowing. They are so agreeable and willing to share anything they have. She's always careful about keeping her chickens in her own yard. She's never snooping around to find out what's going on over her. Doesn't seem to care. And I like that. The woman there ahead of her was always doing mean things. I do like a good neighbor.

Yes, his wife, to have regular folks near you. Dad continued. I must brown on the cat sometimes. He seems all right and their lad seems to be good company for ours. I never get used to that borrowing habit, though. I remember my mother was always handling out a pinch of salt or an egg or a cup of flour to a trifling neighbor, who just pestered her to death. Made up my mind I'd never do it.

Well, give and take is necessary sometimes, his wife put in. We didn't have to do it when we lived in town. In fact it seemed better if we didn't even know our neighbors were there. They weren't a bit nice. But out here it's different. Seems to me a smaller place is the only living after all. It's nice to know your neighbors and to be neighborly with them. Why, on this street they're just the nicest people. I wouldn't want to move away from here now.

Well, they move a good deal, her husband reminded her. People come and go. You get along with all of them, seems to me.

Mother told me long ago that was the way to live, his wife said, softly, her eyes fixed on the sunset. I remember her words well. To live by the golden rule as closely as possible means that you can get along with anyone, even an old philosopher like you, she continued.

Sufferers stand to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

I suffered dreadfully from rheumatism, and have been completely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I am deeply grateful." Miss Frances Jones, Prescott, Ont.

'Well, I do my best to get along with all of them.' Dad said. 'But it sure got me going last year when that old woman who lived there before the Browns came, threatened to phone the police just because we had a party here for Dusty and his chums. They were raising a row all right but it was early in the evening and there wasn't anybody sick. Pretty tough if kids can't let out once in a while.'

'She was pretty mean, all right,' his wife agreed. 'I often wondered why she cut up so badly about that party. Why she never spoke to me after that night.'

'Well, maybe I said more than I ought, when she came around, the man of the house remarked. 'Shouldn't have done it. Can't keep my mouth shut sometimes.'

'I've noticed that,' smiled the lady. 'Sometimes for long periods of time too. You ought to make a good public speaker, if you can think as well on your feet as you do when you sit down and get that old pipe of yours going.'

'Perhaps, said Dad. 'But it's a good thing you women don't use pipes or I would have lost this long ago to some of our borrowing friends.'—New World.

The Case Of "Buddy"

He was only a wee little shaver, for you see, he wasn't as yet four years old. He is one of Ephpheta's babies and it will be sometime before he will graduate to the kindergarten class. Buddy, I believe they call him—and he is surely typical of his name, for his warm generous nature and the trusting look in his big brown eyes bespeak the depth of affection one would naturally expect from the intimate heart-companion on whom he had bestowed this name.

Buddy is a newcomer at Ephpheta, which is as you know a Catholic school for the deafmutes on North Crawford avenue. He arrived but a few weeks ago, and as yet the paths of oral training hold for him the strangeness of novelty. His father died some years ago, and his mother, even by working ceaselessly in the 'loop,' is not able to keep the other three little babies and Buddy too. So Buddy, because he is handicapped, has come to Ephpheta to dwell with the little children who have been denied the gift of hearing.

From the day of Buddy's arrival the folks at Ephpheta know he was 'different.' For instance, he was developed, at his tender age, a keen sense and appreciation of the beautiful. Beauty, in any shape or form, appeals to him deeply. Whether it be a wondrous painting, rich in harmonious coloring or insignificant of theme, or merely a pretty dress, Buddy enthuses visibly. His little hands work excitedly in a network of signs, attempting to convey to his audience the complexity of emotions he experiences, while the dark brown of his eyes lights up with vivid flashes of fire.

That is why, perhaps, when I appeared at Ephpheta the other day wearing a pair of simple white slippers Bobby fairly lost control of his ability to convey his ideas in signs. He was fascinated—quite visibly fascinated. He sat at my feet, examining and

Mr. John H. Root, 40 Maple Ave., Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with bronchitis and had a very bad cough. I had long been trying to get relief of other developments. I tried all kinds of cough remedies, but without relief. I was advised, by a friend, to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle. It convinced me to believe that I had, at last, gotten the right medicine. I used several bottles and am practically well. I have recommended it to others since, and good results followed. It is certainly a wonderful "Bronchial Cough Remedy." Price 35c. and 60c. a bottle.

re-examining them. He felt of the texture, examined the shape of the heel, and finally, greatly to my surprise, lay at full length on the floor and attempted to view the sole. Having satisfied himself fully in regard to all details, he finally arose, and drawing his pudgy little hands to a point, he gracefully sent it through the air in the direction of Miss Potts the principal, meanwhile looking into her face with the air of one who is much impressed.

Miss Potts turned to me in explanation. "That means beautiful," she said. "Buddy loves beautiful things."

Buddy will always love the beautiful. He will love it more as he grows older, for Ephpheta will train him to love and appreciate beautiful things, and to think beautiful thoughts.

The case of Buddy is but a single justification for Ephpheta—and through Ephpheta—for the Associated Catholic Charities.—New World.
