MONEY TO LEND. ON IMPROVED FARMS,

Mn. Carlyle's "Francence ine Great."

—The concluding volume of the "History of Frederick the Great," by Mr. Thomas Carlyle, have been issued. The work closes with the following paragraph:—'I define him to myself as hitherto the Last of the Kings; when the next will be is a very long question. But it seems to me as if Nations, probably all Nations, by and by, in their despair—blinded, awallowed like Jonah, in such a whale's belly of things brutish, waste, abominable for is not Anarchy, as the Rule of what is Saser over what is Nobler, the one life's mystery worth complaining o', and, in fact, the abomination of abominations, springing from and producing all others whatsoever? assift the nations universally, and England too if it hold on, may more and more bethink themselves of such a Man and his Function and Perforbance, with feelings far other than are possible at present. Meanwhile, all I had to may of him is finished; that too, it seems, was a bit of work appointed to be done.—

MONEY TO LEND EIGHT PERFCENT,

One Hundred Dollars and upwards.

A New Kixd of Silver Ware.—Amid the rage for novelty in New York, they have gotten mp a very pretty device, which is designed as a substitute for silver ware. It is a "Boston noption," and is said to look-very fine. It is described as follows: "The article is silvered glassware. The is made double, and the interstice between is filled up with a silver-like prejaration, which when it cools, adheres closely to the glass, making the inside and outside wonderfully resemble polished silver. As washing the glass only makes the "silver" look brighter, without of course removing any of it from the ware, this glass silver is a desideratum. There are vases, goblets, punch howls, teasets, sulvers, fruit dishes, lamps, etc., all fashioned in this way, and they glitter like the real thing, though they are no more costly then ordinary glass. So everybody can have pretended silver if they cannot afford real plate. The case with which the "chasing" can be executed on glass enables them to ornament these articles most elaborately, and eight casies, eard receivers, boquet holders, etc., are hence rendered very hand some. What shall we come to next? When shall we be able to discriminate between the real and unreal?"
