A Happy New Year

TOWN TOPICS.

Was Christmas Day well spent? BELOW ZERO.—On Wednesday morning the thermometer marked five degrees below zero.

Mr. J. C. Dettlor, came up from St. Thomas on Christmas Day to spend a pleasant time in the bosom of his family.

WATCH NIGHT.—Watch night services will be held in the Methodist Church, North St., this (Friday) evening, commencing at 9:30.

Mr. Thos. Robertson, M. P. for Shelburne, N. S., spent Christmas in town, as the guest of Mr. M. C. Cameron, M. P. for South Huron.

CORRECTION.—In our school report last week it was stated that 18 scholars were promoted in Miss Harris' department. It should have read 23.

FREE LUNCH.—Callers at the Albion Hotel on Christmas Day were entertained at a free lunch tendered by the proprietors, McWilliams & Peatman.

GAVE PRESENTS.—At the close of the examination in St. David's Ward School each of the pupils received a present from Mr. C. Crabb, Chairman of the School Board.

The genial countenance of Mr. D. H. Allan, of Toronto, who has been paying a Christmas visit to the "old folks" on Raglan Street, illumined our sanctum on Christmas Eve.

The Lucknow stage, which left here on Tuesday evening at 5 p. m., did not arrive at Smith's Hill until next morning, owing to the storm, and reached Lucknow in the afternoon.

Mr. Ira Lewis, the genial County Attorney is now the happy possessor of a large glass "schooner." We mention this fact so that New Year's callers will govern themselves accordingly.

PROMOTED.—We learn that Mr. Vesey Ellwood, of the Inland Revenue Department, Stratford, son of Ven. Archdeacon Ellwood of this town, has been promoted to a position in Sarina.

LOAD PROVER USE, brother of Rev. Dr. Ure, of Goderich, was on the 7th inst. entertained to dinner by the members of the grain trade in Glasgow. Mr. George Lowe presided, and the company numbered about 120.

STAGE STRUCK.—Mr. Charles Dedrickson, at one time editor of the Goderich Star, has entered into engagement with the Drew Opera Co., and proceeded west with the company to-day.

IN TOWN.—Mr. J. T. Duncan, who practiced as a Veterinary Surgeon in Goderich for a number of years, and who now occupies a responsible position in Toronto Veterinary College, was in town visiting friends during the week.

A PADDED GOOSE.—Mr. Steve Andrews, one of our popular butchers, last week purchased what appeared to be a fine plump goose. Upon a close examination it was found that the bird's apparent rotundity was caused by three goodly-sized newspapers which had been stuffed into it. Mr. Andrews thinks the trick occurred too far from the 1st of April to be intended for a joke.

A. O. U. W.—Maple Leaf Lodge, No. 27, Goderich, held their regular meeting on the evenings of the 2nd and 4th Mondays of each month. The officers elected for the year 1881 are: M. W., Bro. W. R. Miller; For., Bro. T. N. Dansey; O. J. McNair; Rdr., W. R. Robertson; Fin., Bro. J. Thomson; Rtr., Bro. E. Graham; G. Bro. C. E. Straubel; I. W. Bro. A. Morton; O. W., Bro. H. Bell.

DON'T GET THERE.—Judge Toms, accompanied by Mr. E. Campion, left for Bunnangon on Wednesday morning to hold a court there. When a mile or two out the drifts were found impassable. One of the horses fell down, and the legal gentlemen had a decidedly unpleasant time of it, with the thermometer below zero. They were forced to return home, and the court was consequently not held.

INSTALLATION.—The following officers were installed at Goderich Lodge, No. 33, A. F. & A. M., on Monday, December 27th, St. John's day:—H. Cooke, I. P. M.; Harry Bolton, W. M.; E. Downing, S. W.; Alex. McD. Allan, J. W.; S. Yates, Chaplain; S. Sloane, Treasurer; J. Robertson, Secretary; J. Inkster, S. D.; John Craigie, J. D.; Jas. Craigie, I. G.; M. McPhail, Tyler; H. Martin, I. G.; C. F. Straubel, Steward; H. H. Smith, Organist; H. Cooke, M. C. After Lodge meeting, a supper was partaken of in the Albion Hotel.

GODERICH BOYS TO THE FRONT.—Mr. A. B. ROSS, son of Col. Ross, M. P. P., has just passed successfully through his four years' course in the Royal Military College, taking a first-class certificate, coming out third in the order of merit in the graduating class. He is entitled to, and has been offered, a commission in the Regular Service, which he has declined. He is the recipient of several first and second prizes for different branches of study, and better than all, brings home with him a handsome sword, first prize for exemplary good conduct during his college course. For the last six months of his term, he filled the position of Battalion Sergeant-Major of the Cadets, the highest rank allowed in the college.

Mr. Troy W. Savage, of Buffalo, is visiting friends in town during the holidays.

CURLING.—A game was played on the Goderich rink on Tuesday of last week between two local teams, the losing skip paying for a bag of flour for the poor of the town. The following is the score:—Thos. Hood, C. R. Dunsford, Henry Horton, H. H. Smith, skip—19. Capt. McGregor, Arch. Dickson, Jas. Thomson, E. Martin, skip—8.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.—The Sunday School entertainment under the auspices of St. George's Church was held in Crabb's Hall on Tuesday evening. The programme consisting of a magic lantern exhibition by Rev. G. Hill of Seaford, vocal and instrumental music and refreshments. A pleasant time was spent.

SNOW-BOUND MAILS.—No mails were received here since Wednesday. All along the G. T. R. heavy snow blockades have prevailed. The noon train which left here on Wednesday got stuck at Seaford, and Crawford's train was held over at Dublin night. It arrived here at 1 o'clock on Thursday. At the time of writing the storm bears every evidence of having subsided.

ACCIDENT.—Our friend Mitchell of the Star determined to have a little relaxation from toil on Christmas, and in company with friends indulged in "coasting" down the Harbor Hill. While guiding the sleigh, he lost control of it for a moment, and ran into a post, bruising his face, and giving him for a few days the appearance of an ex-pugilist. Even editors can furnish an occasional "local" for the press when news is scarce.

ACCIDENT.—On Christmas day while Jas. Bailey was giving D. McDonald and a friend a brush with his little trotting mare, the animal broke and bolted down Montreal street. In turning the corner, Mr. Bailey swung out, falling on his back, but holding on to one of the lines. The cutter was broken before the mare was stopped. Mr. Bailey was not injured, but the animal was cut about the fetlock, and scratched on the hip.

OYSTER SUPPER.—On Christmas evening an oyster supper was given in the "Albion" by Mr. E. R. Palmer, the well known proprietor of the mare "Lucy," to a number of the friends of sport in Goderich. There was a good attendance and after the wants of the inner man had been supplied, song and sentiment prevailed for a couple of hours. These presents unanimously endorsed the universal opinion expressed with regard to Mr. Palmer, that "he is a jolly good fellow, which nobody can deny."

PRESENTATION ADDRESS.—On Tuesday evening, at the close of the teacher's meeting, Miss Aikenhead, who for some time past has had the infant class of Knox Church in charge, was presented with a handsome copy of "The Teacher's Bible," and a neatly bound volume of "Land and the Book." The presentation was made by the superintendent, Mr. T. McGillivray, on behalf of the S. S. teachers, and in the course of his remarks he alluded to the esteem in which they all held Miss Aikenhead, and the success which had attended the infant class under her teaching. Miss Aikenhead briefly replied, thanking the teachers for the kindness shown her. She said she had thought when she first came to Goderich that the people here were cold and distant, but she had found in the teachers of Knox Church S. S. very kind and warm friends.

PRESENTATION ADDRESS.—Miss Jennie Strang, upon leaving the position of teacher in Exeter Public School, was presented by her pupils with two flower vases, a card receiver, and an autograph album, accompanied by the following address:—

DEAR TEACHER, It is with feelings of deep love and heartfelt gratitude to you for the unceasing kindness and interest you have ever taken in us as your pupils, that we now come before you. It was with deep regret we learn we were about to lose you, and we feel we cannot let this opportunity pass without expressing our appreciation of your earnest efforts in our behalf. Not only do we thank you for the unwearied toil and zeal which you have displayed in endeavoring to store our minds with useful knowledge thus training us for useful careers in future life, when we shall have said farewell to thoughtless childhood and cloudless school days, but we must acknowledge your noble efforts to instill into our minds truth and honor. If at any time you have pained you by our seeming inattention to your instructions and worth counsel, we ask your forgiveness and hope that now as the inexpressible dear tie which binds teacher and pupils together is about to be severed, that in recalling the past you will cancel all feeling of unkindness on our parts. We feel that the golden fingers of love have struck chords in our hearts which will ever vibrate pleasantly even until we meet in God's great school above. And now before separating we beg of you to accept these slight tokens of our love and remembrance, asking you to value them not for their intrinsic worth, but for the kindly feelings which prompted the simple offerings. We shall ever strive to be worthy of such a faithful instructor as you have been to us, and trust we shall go forth to meet our future with well disciplined minds which will lead us to occupy positions such as you may not be ashamed to see us occupy. Now, dear teacher, farewell. May Heaven's choicest blessings strewn your pathway up to the grand reunion above. Signed in behalf of Department No. 3, Wm. Balkwell, Jennie McDonell, Mellissa Spicker.

SERMON TO CHILDREN.—Rev. Dr. Ure preached to the children attending Knox Church S. S. on Sunday afternoon. His text was "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth." The little ones gave very good attention to the discourse.

CHRISTMAS SERVICE.—On Christmas Day a special service was held in the North Street Methodist Church. The attendance was very good. Rev. Dr. Williams, the pastor, preached from Isaiah 55, 1—"Witness to the people." The choir discoursed excellent music, specially selected for the occasion.

UNIVERSITY HONORS.—In the list of students who competed successfully for honors at the recent Michela's terminal examinations in University College and the School of Practical Science, which are Provincial non-denominational and cognate institutions, we observe the names of three Goderich boys. In the Third Year Latin and Greek, Mr. D. McGillivray, son of Rev. D. McGillivray came out first, beating his old opponent Dunn, by a good percentage. Out of a possible 600, the marks stood: McGillivray 475, or 94.6 per cent.; Dunn 418, or 83.3 per cent. In Second Year Latin and Greek, Mr. J. C. Robertson, son of Mr. W. R. Robertson, was a good second getting 82.24 per cent. Mr. R. McNair represented Goderich in the first year list, getting second honors in Class II, Hebrew.

Christmas Tree. (Communicated)

The entertainment with a Christmas tree for the Sabbath School in the Methodist Episcopal Church, was held Christmas day at an early hour the children found their way to the church, and at the appointed time there was an appreciative audience of fair size. When nicely seated, prayer was offered by the pastor, who was then appointed chairman. The programme was commenced by a recitation from Miss Jane Hale, which was well given. This was followed with a reading by Bertie Johnston. M. Sturdy and G. Martin next gave a Song. A recitation was then given by Maggie Kirkpatrick, which was followed by a song from Miss Papet, the organist. Theo. Hale then gave a recitation the brevity of which caused quite a laugh. M. Sturdy gave another song very nicely. We then had a very appropriate address from Mr. T. McGillivray, of THE SIGNAL. This gentleman is a great help to entertainments of this kind, and his address was much appreciated by the audience. A song was then given by G. Martin, followed by a distich from Messrs. Hale and Munroe, which was very interesting. Music by Miss Lettie Papet. This was succeeded by a tableau which ended this part of the programme. The company then repaired to the audience room, where a beautiful tree stood burdened with fruit of nearly all kinds, and a great deal of the heavier apparatus had fallen down. The only way of accounting for this diversity of fruit on one tree without a graft, is that Santa Claus must have gone up the back way and tied it on. The fruit was picked by Messrs. McGillivray, of THE SIGNAL, and Miss Lettie Papet, and the latter of whom sent us a box of nice presents, Mr. Parker, Superintendent, and the writer. We were glad to have the editors with us, and to know that in them we have men of sobriety and business habits. The company dispersed highly pleased.

Christmas Carling.

On Christmas morning the Knights of the "beson and stanes" had a grand day. Two rinks were playing at the same time, and the rafters of the drill shed rang for hours with the sound of the skip's commands, and the admiring shouts and merry yells of the victorious curlers. The games were each for a bag of flour for the poor of the town. Some fine shots were made on both rinks, and the joints of some of the "auld laddies" appeared to be unusually supple. The sides were:

ERIZOOTIC.—The epizootic has played its worst with the horses here.

CHRISTMAS TREES.—Five or six Christmas tree entertainments have been held, and we understand all were successful.

Mr. Jas. A. Gledhill is about to build a neat dwelling house when spring opens.

COTTON MILL.—The cotton mill 'boom' has fallen flat. Our citizens should get up a syndicate to interview Mr. Crabb, and get at the bottom of this great matter.

The special Presbyterian congregational meeting at Whitechurch, on the 7th inst., unanimously agreed to purchase a glebe of 5 acres from Mr. Thos. Dunn, and to build thereon in the coming season a brick manse and outbuildings. The following building committee was duly appointed: Messrs. Jas. Hamilton, James Martin, John Inglis, H. D. Henderson, James Ross and John Gillespie.

SUPPER.—The annual supper in connection with Turabury Agricultural Society will be held at the Royal Hotel, Wingham, on Thursday, 18th January next. Tickets can be obtained from the proprietor of the Royal and from the Directors.

Last week Mr. Samuel Gilmore, of the Royal Canadian hotel, Gorrie, shot a very large wild-cat in the swamps back of Mr. Jas. Ross' farms, on the 2nd con. of Howick. The animal measured three feet three inches from the tip of his nose to the root of his tail.

From Macedonia the most heart-rending accounts of the condition of the people continue to be received, and the Turks there are carrying on a system of extermination differing only in degree from the havoc they wrought in Batak four years ago.

A Belleville fisherman, who lost his nets in the November gales, has recovered two of them full of fish.

THE NOMINATIONS.

Municipal Affairs Over the County.

How Monday's Nominations Went Off.

The nomination of candidates for the position of Mayor, Reeve, Deputy Reeve, and Councilors took place on Monday last.

For the Mayor and Reeves the place of nomination was the Council Chamber, and Mr. James Thompson, the Town Clerk, was the Returning Officer.

The following is a list of the gentlemen proposed for candidacy, with their movers and seconders:

FOR MAYOR.
Christopher Crabb was nominated by Hezekiah Hale, seconded by John Russell.

Horace Horton, nominated by R. W. McKenney, seconded by John Acheson.

FOR REEVE.
F. W. Johnston, nominated by J. T. Garrow, seconded by B. L. Doyle.

James Small, nominated by Robt. Gordon, seconded by John Russell.

FOR FIRST DEPUTY.
William Campbell, nominated by Alex. Megaw, seconded by B. Campion.

Alex. Watson, nominated by John Acheson, seconded by John Wilson.

FOR SECOND DEPUTY.
Matthew Hutchison, nominated by J. H. Colborne, seconded by T. E. Van Every.

At the close of the nominations Mr. J. Mosely, in a powerful speech, set before the ratepayers the necessity of putting in office, the best men available. Loud cries of "Hear, hear," and hearty responses from the audience, showed conclusively that the speaker had struck a popular chord.

Mr. F. W. Johnston suggested the advisability of adjourning the meeting until Wednesday, so that full time would be given the candidates to communicate their views on the issues at present before the people.

The Mayor, on being appealed to, took the sense of the meeting on the matter, when it was decided not to adjourn.

The chairman then called upon the first speaker.

Mr. Garrow, who took advantage of the opportunity thus afforded to bid the electors farewell for the present. For seven years he had served them at the Council Board, and his reminiscences of public life were pleasant. During that period he had assisted in moulding the destinies of the town. If the acts of the Council had not been very good, we might reflect that they could have been worse. He could not think of any egregious error committed by the Council during the years he had been associated with it. The desire of the Council had been to work in the best interests of the town, and if they had not succeeded as well as people wished they had certainly done their best. It was not always the fussy and talkative man who worked best for the good of the town. He voluntarily relinquished his position in the public service not because he disliked that position, but because the requirements of his business at present demanded his undivided attention.

He had nothing to say against the candidature of Mr. Small, but he had something to say in favor of Mr. Crabb and Mr. Johnston. The latter was an ardent public servant and a good worker. He had gone through the initiatory terms, and had now "learnt the ropes," and it would not be wise on the part of the ratepayers to change their representatives too often. When a townsman first went to the County Council, he was looked upon with suspicion, and it was only after he had overcome the distrust of the rural members of the Board that he was able to effect any good. Mr. Johnston was now happily in the latter position, being personally popular with the outside Reeves, and being also possessed of experience, although a young man in years. Nevertheless the ratepayers were asked to displace him so that room might be made for a man of no experience. He believed Mr. Johnston would make the best representative, and would like to see him elected.

Mr. Doyle appeared before them as a retiring member of the Council of 1880. He thanked the people for the courtesy and good will extended to him in the past, and believed they knew well how to respect those who held official position. The feeling between himself and the old Council had been most cordial, and the members of the Board over which he presided had always acted in a most creditable manner. In regard to the candidature of Mr. Johnston and Mr. Small he was actuated by no motives other than what he considered to be the interests of the town. In fact, on a previous occasion Mr. Small had been an ardent supporter of his, and friendly relations had existed between them. But he had watched the course of Mr. Johnston at the Council Board and could endorse what had been said by Mr. Garrow, so far as faithful and efficient service was concerned. It took a man fully a year to become conversant with public matters, and it was not wise of the electors to thrust the man aside after he had become acquainted with the details of office. He always held the opinion that Council members should be elected for at least three years, and this would give the Councillor one year to learn and two years to work in the interest of the town. Mr. Johnston, because of services in the past, he believed to be the better man for the position in 1881.

Mr. Robt. Gordon did not come to the meeting to make a speech, like the learned gentlemen who had preceded him. If we had the power to place men in position, we had also the privilege of criticizing their actions. Mr. Small had proved himself in times past an upright and efficient public servant. When we sent a representative from Goderich, we expected him to be faithful to Goderich interests, and did not want him to play into the hands of the township of Morris, or any other township. He hoped to see a good vote for Mr. Small, and felt assured if that gentleman was elected he would make a good representative.

Mr. Megaw had proposed Mr. Campbell because he believed he would make a good man for the position. He had had experience in the past and he (Mr. Megaw) hoped to see him elected on Monday next.

Mr. John Acheson proposed Mr. Watson, because he knew him to be a competent man for the position. He had sat in the Council with Mr. Watson and the longer he had known him the more convinced was he that a man better qualified to hold a seat at a Council Board, or possessor of judgment more sound on public matters, could not be found in the town of Goderich. Mr. Watson as a public servant was head and shoulders over any other man known to him, and his absence from the Council during the past year had been a loss to the town. He would vote for the best man for the position. He hoped to see Watson returned by a large majority.

Mr. Crabb was a candidate for the highest office in the gift of the ratepayers, that of Mayor of Goderich. He had been a member of the first Council ever elected in Goderich. He had always and the honor of being placed at the head of the poll. He had had the honor of sitting in the Mayor's chair before, and if good service was a criterion to go by, he believed he was sure of election. Mr. Horton had also been Mayor before. When he (Mr. Crabb) first took the Mayor's Chair the finances of the town were not "ship-shape," to use a seaman's expression, but when he retired from the position taxes were lower and a surplus was left in the municipal treasury. If elected, he would devote his full attention to the interests of the town, and if elected he would stay at home and attend to his private affairs.

A voice—What about the Market Fees?

Mr. Crabb—We ought to have fees to a certain extent. But something should be given the farming community in exchange for them. If fees were changed suitable accommodation and shelter should be provided for the farmers. Failing this, a free market was required by all means, wishing the ratepayers the compliments of the season, he hoped to be elected on Monday.

Mr. Horton claimed the suffrages of the ratepayers for services in years past. He had occupied a seat in the Council for twenty-four consecutive years, and in that time had been three years in the County Council and three in the Mayor's chair. Such being the case, it certainly looked as if his services had been appreciated. He had left the Mayor's chair voluntarily, feeling he had received his full share of municipal honors, but at the request of a large number of the ratepayers he had been induced to come forward this year. He believed for some years past a mistaken policy had been pursued by the Council, and he was desirous with the intention of benefiting the town in regard to bonuses. Advertisements had been inserted in the daily newspapers, offering inducements to manufacturing enterprises to start in Goderich. We ought to be careful in this matter when we looked at the will effects which had passed in similar cases in places around us. He instanced the collapse of the Brussels foundry, the Mitchell saw works, the Stratford machine shops and the Seaford foundry. Besides, coming nearer home the vote of $6,000 to our own public Park was virtually a bonus to the Park House, and owing to unfortunate circumstances we were at present reaping no benefit from the outlay. If all the towns and villages in Canada became manufacturing centres there would be no market for the manufactured goods. There was one way of advancing the interests of the town, and that was by getting increased railroad facilities, but just at present we were not positive that such could be obtained. In 1874, when Mr. Fowler was up here in the interest of the Ontario and Quebec line, we thought we would be favored, but since that time the scheme had been allowed to drop. Now, however, indications pointed to the road reaching Toronto, and if it did that, we ought to endeavor to get it to Goderich, as was at first contemplated. Failing this an effort should be made to bring in the Great Western from the South. We were to succeed in getting into our town better facilities for transit it would be the means of having manufacturing and other industries voluntarily started, and thus the progress of the town would be assured. With regard to the market fees, he was opposed to them. London and Stratford were trying to get them off, because the little town of St. Mary's, with its free market, was sapping their trade. There was no doubt in his mind that the fee system had demoralized the market, and thus injured the town. While speaking on this question, he might say that some time since the Town Council had sent a deputation to Ottawa, to agitate for the repeal of the harbor tolls because our marine trade was thereby handicapped in its competition with Kincairdine, Collingwood and other free ports. The case of the market

A LIFE FOR A LIFE.

BY MISS MULLOCK.

CHAPTER VIII.

HER STORY.

Walking from church, I saw Urquhart...

"Why?" "Through the abrupt question surprised me..."

"Do I tease you? I was not aware of it."

"Very likely not, and I am a great simpleton for allowing myself to be teased..."

"Tell me, then," he continued, in that kind tone which always makes me feel something like a little net of donkey I once had..."

"I hate to have to entertain strangers?" "Then you do not consider me a stranger?"

"No; a friend." "I may say that, for, short as our acquaintance dates, I have seen more of Dr. Urquhart..."

"You are very kind, and I thank you." "Presently I recurred to the subject of discussion..."

"He paused a moment and then said decisively: 'That is right. I knew we can always depend on Dr. Urquhart's promises.'"

"Was my gladness overtold? Would he misconstrue it? No; he is too clear-sighted, too humble-minded, so wise. With him I have always the feeling that I need take no trouble over what I do or say..."

"Yes, I should care. I like him—I like him very much. It would be a comfort to me to have him for a friend. One of my very own. In some degree he treats me as such; to-day, for instance, he told me more about himself than he ever did to any one of us. It came out accidentally. I cannot endure a man who, at first acquaintance, indulges you with autobiography in full. Such a man must be either a puppy or an idiot."

"Ah! there I am again at my harsh judgments, which Dr. Urquhart has so factly repudiated. This good man, who has seen more of the world and its wickedness than I am ever likely to see, is yet the most charitable man I ever knew. To return."

"Before we reached Rockmount the sky had clouded over, and in an hour it was a thoroughly wet afternoon. Penelope went upstairs to write her Sunday letter, and Augustus and Lisabel gave broad hints that they wished the drawing-room all to themselves. Perforce, Dr. Urquhart and I had to entertain ourselves."

"I took him into the green house, where he lectured me on the orchidacea and vegetation of the tropics generally, to his own content, doubtless, and partially to mine. I like to hear his talking, so wise, yet so simple; a freshness almost boyish, so me to linger in his nature still, and he has the thoroughly boyish peculiarity of taking pleasure in little things. He spent half an hour in reviving a big brown bee which had grown torpid with cold, and there was in his eyes a kindness, as ever a human creature, when he gave into my charge his 'little patient,' whom I promised to befriend. (There he is, poor old fellow, fast asleep on a flower-pot, till the first bright morning I can turn him out.)"

"I am afraid, though, he will soon get into trouble again, and not find so kind a friend," said I to Dr. Urquhart. He will intoxicate himself in the nearest flower-cup, and seek repentance and restoration too late."

"I hope not," said the doctor, sadly and gravely. "I said I was sorry for having made a jest upon his favorite doctrine, of repentance and restoration of sinners; which he seemed always both to preach and to practice."

"Do! Perhaps. Do you not think it's very much needed in this world?" "I said I had not lived long enough in this world to find out."

"I forgot how young you were." "He had once, in his direct way, asked my age, and I had told him, much displeas'd likewise to return the question, but was afraid. Sometimes I feel quite at home with him, as if I could say anything to him, and then again he makes me, not actually afraid—thank goodness I never was afraid of any man yet, and hope I never shall be—but shy and quiet. I suppose it is because he is so very good; because in his presence my follies and wickedness hide their heads. I cease perplexing myself about them, or about myself at all, and only think—not of him so much as of something higher and better than either him or me. Surely this cannot be wrong."

"The bee question settled, we sat down, silent, listening to the rain pattering on the glass roof of the green-house. It was rather a dreary day. I began thinking of Lisabel's leaving more than was good for me; and with that genetrative kindness, which I have often noticed in him, Dr. Urquhart turned my sad thoughts away by various inquiries about 'Fres-hams Court, and the new relations of our Lisa—not many. I said, 'happily, she would have neither brother nor sister-in-law.'"

"Happily! You cannot be in earnest?" "I had wished I had not been, and yet I could not but speak my mind—that brothers or sisters, in law or in blood, were often anything but a blessing."

"I must emphatically differ from you there. I think it is, with few exceptions, the greatest misfortune to be an only child. Few are so naturally good, nor reared under such favorable circumstances, that such a position does not do them harm. A lonely childhood and youth may make a great man, a good man, but it rarely makes a happy man. Better all the troubles and troubles of family life, where the angles of character are rubbed off, and its inclinations to morbidity, sensitiveness, and egotism knocked down. I think it is a great wonder to see Treherne such a good fellow as he is, considering he has been an only child."

"You speak as if you know what that was yourself." "No; we were orphans, but I had one brother."

"This was the first time Dr. Urquhart had reverted to any of his relatives, or to his early life. My curiosity was strong. I risked a question: was this brother-elder or younger than he?" "Older." "And his name?" "Dallas."

"Dallas Urquhart—what a nice name." "It is common in the family. There was a Dallas Urquhart, younger brother to a Sir John Urquhart, who, in the religious troubles succeeded to Episcopacy. He was in love with a minister's sister—a Presbyterian. She died broken-hearted, and in despair at her reproaches, Dallas threw himself down a precipice, where his whitened bones were not found till many years after. Is not that a romantic history?"

"I said romantic and painful histories were common enough; there had been some even in our matter-of-fact family. But he was not so inquisitive as I; nor should I have told him farther; we never speak on this subject if we can help it. Even the Grants—our intimate friends ever since we came to live at Rockmount—have never been made acquainted with it. And Penelope said there was no need to tell Augustus as it could not affect him, or any person now living, and, for the sake of the family, the sad story was better forgotten. I think so too."

"With a sigh, I could not help observing to Dr. Urquhart that it must be a very happy thing to have a brother—a good brother." "Yes. Mine was the best that any one ever had. He was a minister of the Kirk—that is, he would have been but he died."

"In Scotland?" "No; at Pau, in the Pyrenees." "Were you with him?" "I was not."

"This seemed a remembrance so acutely painful, that shortly afterwards I tried to change the subject, by asking a question or two about himself—and especially what I had long wanted to find out—how he came by that eccentric Christian name."

"Is it eccentric? I really never knew or thought after whom I was called." "I suggested Max Piccolomini."

"Who is he, pray? My unprofessional reading has been small. I am ashamed to say I never heard of Max Piccolomini."

"Amused by this naive confession of ignorance, I offered jestingly to give him a course of polite literature, and began with that grandest of German dramas, Schiller's Wallenstein."

"Not in German, if you please; I don't know a dozen words of the language."

"Why, Dr. Urquhart, I must be a great deal cleverer than you." "I had said this out of utter incredulity at the ludicrous idea; but, to my surprise, he took it seriously."

"You are right. I know I am a coarse, uneducated person; the life of an army surgeon allows few opportunities of refinement, and, like many another boy, I threw away my chances when I had them."

"At school?" "College, rather." "Where did you go to college?" "St. Andrews."

"The interrogative mood being on me I thought I would venture a question which had been often on my mind to ask—namely, what made him choose to be a doctor, which always seemed to me the most painful and arduous of professions."

"He was so slow in answering, that I began to fear it was one of my too blunt queries, and apologized."

"I will tell you, if you desire it. My motive was not unlike one you once suggested—to save life instead of destroying it; also, because I wished to have my own life always in my hand. I cannot justly consider it mine. It is owed."

"To heaven, I conclude he meant, by the solemnity of his manner. Yet, are not all lives owed? And, if so, my early dream of perfect bliss, namely for two people to spend their lives together in a sort of domestic Pizarra's Island, cradled in a spiritual Pacific Ocean, with nothing to do but to love one another—must be a delusion, or worse. I am beginning to be glad I never found it. We are not the birds and butterflies, but the laborers of the earthly vineyard. To discover one's right work, and do it, must be the grand secret of life. With or without love, I wonder? With it, I should imagine. But Dr. Urquhart, in his plan of existence, never seems to think of such an insignificant necessity."

"Yet let me not speak lightly. I like him—I honor him. Had I been his dead brother, or a sister—which he never had—I would have helped rather than have hindered him, in his self-sacrificing career. I would have scorned to put in my poor claim over him or his existence. It would have seemed like taking for daily use the gold of the sanctuary."

"And here, pondering over all I have heard of him, and seen in him, the self-denial, the heroism, the religious purity of his daily life—which has roused in even the light heart of Augustus Treherne an attachment approaching to positive devotion, that all the jesting of Lisabel is powerless to shake, I call to mind one incident of this day which started, shocked me; concerning which even now I can scarcely credit the evidence of my own ears."

"We had all gathered round the fire waiting papa's return from the second service: Penelope, Lisabel, Augustus, Dr. Urquhart, and I; the rain had cleared off, and there was only a soft drip, drip, on the glass of the greenhouse outside. We were very peaceful and comfortable; it felt almost like a family circle—which indeed it was with one exception. The new member of our party seemed to make himself at ease—sat beside his Lisa, and held her hand under cover of her apron—at which I thought I saw Dr. Urquhart smile. Why should he? It was quite natural."

"Penelope was less restless than usual, owing, maybe, to her long letter and the prospect of seeing Francis in a week; he comes to the marriage, of course. Poor fellow! what a pity cannot have two weddings instead of one; it is rather hard for him to be only a wedding guest, and Penelope only a bridesmaid. But I am ceasing to laugh at even Francis and Penelope."

"I myself, in my own little low chair in its angle on the hearth-rug, felt perfectly happy. Is it the contrast between I and the life of solitude of which I have only lately had any knowledge, that makes my own home life so much sweeter than it used to be?"

"The gentlemen began talking together about the difference between the quiet scene and that of November last year, Sebastopol taken, the army was making up its mind to winter in idleness, as merrily as it could. And then Dr. Urquhart reverted to the former winter, the terrible time, until his miseries reached the zenith. He touched the English and the French, and Dr. Urquhart said, such misery seems often to evoke the noblest half of man's nature. Many an anecdote proving this, he told about 'his poor fellows,' as he called them; tales of heroism, patient endurance, unselfishness, and generosity—such as, in the mysterious agency at Providence, are always developed by that great purifier as well as avenger, war."

"Listening, my cheek burned to think I had ever said I hated soldiers. It is a solemn question, too momentous for human wisdom to decide upon, and, I think, never to be decided in this world—the justice of carnage, the necessity of war. But thus far I am convinced—and intend, the first opportunity to express my thanks to Dr. Urquhart for having taught me the lesson—that to set one's self in fierce aversion against any class, as a class, is both foolish and wrong. We should 'hate' nobody. The Christian warfare is never against sinners but against sin."

"Speaking of the statistics of mortality in the army, Dr. Urquhart surprised us by stating how small a percentage—bless me! I am beginning to talk like a blue-book—results from death in battle and wounds. And, strange as it may appear, the mortality in a campaign, with all its fatal chances, is less than in barracks at home. He has long suspected this, from the accounts of the men, and having lately, from clear data, ascertained its accuracy, instead of being at the house, or failing there, in the public press, that the causes may be inquired into and remedied. It will be at some personal risk—Government never likes being meddled with; but he seems the sort of man who, having once got an idea into his head would pursue it to the end. I wonder his friend stands his nonsense so good-humoredly."

"All this while I have never told—that thing. It came out, as well as I can remember, thus: Dr. Urquhart was saying that the average number of deaths in the barracks was higher than that of any corresponding class of working men. He attributes this to want of space, cleanliness, fresh air, and good food."

"Also to another cause, which you always find flourishing under such circumstances—drink. It is in a barracks just as in a country house, if I have a large party—wherever you find people huddled together in foul air, ill smells, and general wretchedness—they drink. They cannot help it, it seems a natural necessity."

"There, we have the doctor on his hobby. Gee-up, doctor," cried Augustus. "I wonder his friend stands his nonsense so good-humoredly."

"You know it is true, though, Treherne," and he went on speaking to me. "In the Crimea, the great curse of our army was drink. Drink killed more of us than the Russians did. You should have seen what I have seen—the officer maddening himself with champagne at the mess-table—the private stealing out to a rum store to buy secretly over his grog. The thing was obliged to be winked at, it was so common."

"In hospital, too," observed Captain Treherne, gradually listening. "Don't you remember telling me there was not a week passed that you had not cases of death solely from drinking?" "And, even then, I could not stop it, nor keep the liquor outside the wards. I have come in and found drunken orderlies carousing with drunken patients; nay, more than once I have taken the bottle from under a dead man's pillow."

"Ay, I remember," said Augustus, looking grave. "Lisabel, who never likes his attention diverted from her charming self, cried satirically: 'All very fine talking, Doctor, but you shall not make me a teetotaler, nor Augustus neither, I hope.'"

"I have not the slightest intention of the kind, I assure you; nor does there seem any necessity. Though, for those who have not the power to resist intoxication, it is much safer never to touch stimulants."

"Do you not touch them?" "I have not done so for many years."

"Because you are afraid? Well, I dare say you were no better once than your neighbors."

"Lisabel?" I whispered, for I saw Dr. Urquhart wince under her rude words; but there is no stopping that girl's tongue."

"Now confess, Doctor, just for fun. Papa is not here, and we'll tell no tales out of school—were you ever in your life, to use your own ugly word, drunk?" "Once."

"Writing this, I can hardly believe he said it, and yet he did, in a quiet, low voice, as if the confession were forced from him as a sort of voluntary expiation."

"Dr. Urquhart drank! What a frightful idea! Under what circumstances could it possibly have happened? One thing I would stake my life upon—it never happened but that once."

"I have been thinking, how horrible it must be to see anybody one cared for drunk; the honest eyes dull and meaningless; the wise lips jabbering foolishness; the whole face and figure, instead of being what one likes to look at, takes pleasure to see in the same room, even—growing ugly, irrational, disgusting—more like a beast than a man."

"Yet some women have to bear it, have to speak kindly to their husbands, hide their brutishness, and keep them from making worse fools of themselves than they can help. I have seen it done, not merely by working-men's wives, but lady-wives in drawing-rooms. I think, if I were married, and I saw my husband the least overcome by wine, not drunk, may be, but just excited, silly, otherwise than his natural self, it would nearly drive me wild. Less on my own account than his. To see him sink—not for a great crime, the height where my love had placed him; to have to take care of him, to pity him; ay, and I might pity him, but I think the full glory and passion of my love would die out, then and there, forever."

"Let me not think of this, but go on relating what occurred to-day."

"Dr. Urquhart's abrupt confession, which seemed to surprise Augustus as much as anybody, threw an awkwardness over us all; we slipped out of the subject, and plunged into the never-ending theme—the wedding and its arrangements. Here I found out that Dr. Urquhart had, at first refused, point-blank, his friend's request that he would be best man, but, on my entreating him this morning, had changed his mind. I was glad, and expressed my gladness warmly. I would not like Dr. Urquhart to suppose we thought the worse of him for what he had so modestly been forced into confessing. It was very wrong of Lisabel. But she really seemed sorry, and paid him special attention in consultations about what she thinks the important affairs of Monday week. I was almost cross at the exemplary patience with which he examined the orange-tree, and pronounced that the buds would open in time, he thought; that if not, he would try, as in duty bound, to procure some. He also heroically consented to his other duty, of returning thanks for 'the bridesmaids, for we are to have health, dress, speech, me, and all the rest of it. Mercy on us! how will papa ever stand it!'"

"These family events have always their painful side. I am sure papa will feel it. I only trust that no chance observations will strike home, and hurt him. This fear haunted me so much, that I took an opportunity of suggesting to Dr. Urquhart that all the speeches had better be as short as possible."

"Mine shall be, I promise. Were you afraid of it?" asked he, smiling; it was just before the horses were brought up, and we were all standing out in the moon-light—for shame, leading us to catch cold just before our wedding, and very thoughtless of the doctor to allow it, too. I could see by his smile that he was now quite himself again—which was a relief."

"Oh, nonsense! I shall expect you to make the grand speech, and I have heard. But, seriously, these sort of speeches are always trying, and will be so especially to papa."

"I understand. We must take care: you are a thoughtful little lady." He sometimes has called me "Little Lady," instead of "Miss Theodora." "Yes, your father will feel acutely this first break in the family."

"I said I did not mean that exactly, as it was not the case. And, for the first time, it struck me as sad, that one I never knew, whom I scarcely ever think of, should be lost from among us, so lost as not to be even named so much as I took an opportunity of suggesting to Dr. Urquhart: that all the speeches had better be as short as possible."

"I had not time to say any more, for they were just starting, nor am I satisfied that I was right in saying so much. But the confidence is safe with him, and he will never refer to it; he will feel as we do, that a subject so painful is best avoided, even among ourselves—on the whole I am glad he knows."

"Coming indoors, the girls made me very angry by their jests, but the anger has somehow evaporated now. What does it matter? As I told Lisabel, friends do not grow on every hedge, though lovers may, and when one finds a good man one ought to value him, nor be ashamed of it either."

"No, no, my sweet moon, setting so quickly behind that belt of fire, I will like him if I choose, as I like everything true and noble wherever I find it in this world."

"Moon, it is a good world, a happy world, and grows happier the longer one lives in it. So I will just watch your silver ladyship—a nice 'little lady' you be too—slipping away from it with that satisfied farewell smile, and then—I shall go to bed."

"It always gives us pleasure to draw attention to articles which are deserving of public patronage. Probably no article ever offered to the public has met with the same success as GRAY'S SYRUP OF RED SERRAVALLE GUM. Thousands of families in the Dominion keep it in their homes as the standard Cough Remedy. The sale of this article has assumed enormous proportions. Our advice to the public at large is to try its virtues if they should at any time unfortunately contract either Coughs or Colds. It is sold by all chemists.—Adv't."

Sheppardton.

FRAMING.—On Christmas Day a successful meeting was held in the Methodist Church here. Tea was served in the old house adjoining, and the spread reflected great credit on the ladies of the district. The church was built last spring at a cost of nearly $700. The greater part of this sum has already been paid, and the object of the meeting was to assist in paying of the remaining debt. Mr. Eckles occupied the chair, and after a witty address, called upon Rev. R. Davey, who spoke in a very practical way on the relations of the people to the pastor. Rev. Mr. Cooke followed in an exceedingly humorous introduction, and closed in an eloquent description of the church's position in the world. Mr. T. McMillan, then addressed the meeting, in a plea for good-will and love amongst all believers, and trust in God as a source of peace. The result of the social was some $36.50; and this was supplemented by $10.50 in offerings at the close. The Nile choir sung some sweet anthems during the evening. Mr. Davey has evidently a warm place in the hearts of his people at Sheppardton, and the pretty little church will be a monument of his energy and devotedness in advancing the cause of God in this section. During the revival meetings held here recently, a number of persons were added to the church a profession of faith in Christ.

Colborne.

CORRECTION.—In the Treasurer's statement, Dec., 1880, of the township of Colborne, published last week, an item $462, to the City Treasurer, London, was inadvertently omitted. Hence the disparity between the amount on the list and the grand total to that amount. COUNCIL MEETING.—The Municipal Council of Colborne met in the Township Hall, on Wednesday, 15th December. Members all present, Reeve in the chair. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. John McQuarrie was refunded $1.17 taxes, his assessment ticket showing $200 and assessment roll $300. Mr. J. Robertson was refunded $3.58 taxes, being assessed in wrong S. Section. Mr. Fisher was similarly assessed and was refunded $4.56. Geo. Campbell received the sum $30 for rent on his house occupied by Mrs. C. Sinclair and family—Carried. Moved and seconded, that R. T. Haynes receive the sum of $55, payment in full for contract on Lake Shore Road—Carried. Moved and seconded, that the Reeve, Deputy Reeve and Councillors receive each the sum of $25, payment for services for the past year—Carried. Moved and seconded, that the nominations, be held in the Township Hall on the last Monday in December at the hour of 12 o'clock noon, and in case a poll be demanded that the election be held in the different subdivisions as follows, viz: Sub-division No. 1, Headly's shop, Bonmill, W. Robertson, D. R. officer; Sub-div. No. 2, Temperance Hall, Maitlandville, A. Sands, D. R. officer; No. 3, Township Hall, J. A. McDonagh, R. officer; No. 4, Temperance Hall, Leburn, Jas. O. Stewart, D. R. officer. A large number of accounts were presented and ordered to be paid. The Council then adjourned.

Port Albert.

The nomination in the township of Ashfield for Reeve, Deputy Reeve and Councillors came off to-day in Finlay's School House, in an orderly and business-like manner. The township clerk, Mr. John Cooke, acting as Returning officer. Mr. Webster, the old Reeve, being nominated; also, James Harlow, who afterwards elected to run for Councillor for which office he was also nominated. Mr. Webster was then declared elected by acclamation. Mr. Joseph Griffin was elected Deputy Reeve, there being no one with sufficient courage to meet our big Jo. For Councillors the following gentlemen were nominated: Messrs. Whitley, Clare, and McMurchie, the old Councillors, and James Harlow, and Thomas Findley, new aspirants for municipal honors. Mr. Harlow gave the meeting a brief specimen of his speaking qualities for which he is justly celebrated.

Great indignation was manifested at the action of the County Council, in equalizing Ashfield two dollars per acre higher than usual at its last June session; and it was proposed to instruct the Township representatives to resort to the means provided in the Statutes for such matters, in case the County Council should not do the township justice at its next June meeting. It is to be hoped some simple scheme may be devised for arriving at the true valuation of the property in each municipality, so as to avoid these annual wire pulling, log rolling, scheming transaction that take place in all our County Councils.

If we could get up a small syndicate to build a harbor here, I think the people would support it in preference to the larger one, that is at present about to become an important question, in the North-west. But the people of Ontario who pay the largest share of Federal taxation, may go on taxing themselves for local improvements, or go without improvement, while our legislators are discussing brilliant schemes for making everything comfortable for Europeans, Icelanders, Monnomies and foreign capitalists in our North-west territory. For want of a small harbor here we are suffering very much. We got the magnificent grant of $1,500 last session. Now, I think if we could get nine or ten thousand dollars judiciously expended here, we could ship our tan bark, cordwood, lumber, &c., on equal terms with other places.—ATROPA.

James Young, M. P. P., thinks that County Councils have of late years become unwieldy, and that their number might be reduced with advantage. A young man named Frank Demers, belonging to St. Johns, Quebec, has been for sometime past in love with a young lady who was employed as a music teacher in a convent in Montreal. His innamorata having left Montreal on a visit some of his acquaintances informed the love-sick youth that she was gone off to be married. He took the painful news to heart to such a degree that in a fit of depression he went into a stable and suspended himself by the neck from a beam. He was quite dead when discovered. It appears there was no truth in the rumor of the lady's intended marriage, and the statement was made only in the way of a joke.

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPO-PHOSPHITES

FOR THE RELIEF AND CURE OF ALL WASTING DISEASES.

Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, General Debility, Brain Exhaustion, Chronic Constipation, Chronic Diarrhoea, Dyspepsia, or Loss of Nervous Power. It is unequalled in the treatment of Palpitation of the Heart, Trembling of the Hands and Limbs, Loss of Appetite, Energy or Memory.

It acts with vigor, gentleness and subtlety, owing to the exquisite harmony of its ingredients, akin to pure blood itself. Its taste is pleasant, and its effects permanent.

Its first apparent effect is to increase the appetite. It assists digestion, and causes the food to assimilate properly—thus the system is nourished. It also, by its tonic action on the digestive organs, induces more copious and regular evacuations.

The rapidity with which patients take on flesh while under the influence of the Syrup, of itself indicates that no other preparation can be better adapted to help and nourish the constitution, and hence be more efficacious in all depression of spirits, shaking or trembling of the hands or body, cough, shortness of breath, or consumptive habit. The nerves and muscles become strengthened, and the blood purified.

READ WHAT THE INVENTOR, MR. FELLOWS, HAS TO SAY ABOUT HIS SYRUP OF THE HYPOPHOSPHITES.

In the summer of 1864, I was suddenly effected by a copious expectoration of mucopurulent matter. I had been declining in health for some months, and, being exceedingly nervous, the symptoms caused alarm. As my business was that of a dispensing chemist, the shop was constantly visited by medical men, all of whom tendered their advice. During 1864 and 1865 my chest was examined by ten first class physicians, some of whom pronounced the case Bronchitis; some, not wishing to cause alarm, or unwilling to venture an opinion, gave no decision; some stated unequivocally that I had Tubercular Disease of the Lungs, and located the trouble where the pains were felt. By professional advice, I used, in turn, horse-rack, country life, eggs and ale in the morning, tonics, Bourbon whiskey, cod-liver oil, cod-liver, tar, and various inhalants, but the trouble increased. Expectoration became more profuse and offensive. Night-sweats set in. Cold chills, diarrhoea, dyspepsia, cough, blood-streaked expectorations, loss of sleep, loss of appetite, loss of memory, loss of ambition, accompanied by general prostration, showed themselves. Under the microscope the blood was found to contain but a small portion of vitalized corpuscles; the heart's action was feeble; the pulse intermittent; the stomach could not digest properly, so that flatulency and acidity was the result. Finding the symptoms indicated Consumption, I determined to use every effort to stay its progress, and, if possible, to cure it. I selected the most powerful tonics and moderators, and combined them with the vital constituents of the human body. For months I endeavored to amalgamate them before my efforts were crowned with success. I cannot speak too plainly or too strongly of the efforts produced, and the benefits I received from the composition.

At first my appetite increased; the expectoration became easy, digestion better; the feces became more copious and frequent; cold chills ceased; night-sweats lessened; I gained in weight; the hacking cough left me; refreshing sleep returned; my spirits became buoyant, the mind active and vigorous. I continued taking the Syrup month after month; but owing to the damp, foggy climate of St. John, my recovery was necessarily slow, although I could observe a gradual return of strength for three years, during which time I continued taking the remedy. My present weight is one hundred and eighty-eight, being thirty-eight above my usual. I have no symptoms left denoting disease. The only notable sign during twelve months was the expectation. Now that has stopped, and I consider myself well. The reader may ask, How do you know your difficulty to have proceeded from ulcerated or tuberculated lung? I answer, In the most certain of all modes for ascertaining. In March last I coughed from the right lung a piece of PHOSPHATE OF LIME, half the size of a pea, which could have come from no other place, and which the highest authority in Lung Diseases (Laennec) states is the result of tubercle, which has been cured. Added to this, I had the leaden-colored, purulent, blood-streaked expectoration, and the opinion of one of the best diagnosticians in the country. I believe I have experienced all the symptoms incident to the two first stages of Consumption, and have successfully combated them, so that I do not despair of any case where there is left sufficient lung tissue to build upon. I can only add that the mere monetary consideration of increased sales would never induce me to publish this report, but a sincere sympathy for the poor Consumptive, with whose misfortune I believe it villany to trifle.

Respectfully, JAMES I. FELLOWS, Inventor of Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

SUBSTITUTES!

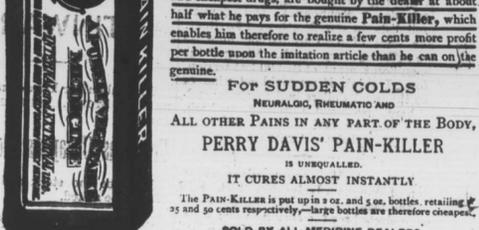

The public are cautioned against a custom which is growing quite common of late among a certain class of medicine dealers, and which is this: When asked for a bottle of Pain-Killer, they suddenly discover that they are "sold out," but have another article just as good, if not better, which they will supply at the same price. The object of this deception is transparent. These substitutes are made up to sell on the great reputation of the Pain-Killer; and being compounded of the vilest and cheapest drugs, are bought by the dealer at about half what he pays for the genuine Pain-Killer, which enables him therefore to realize a few cents more profit per bottle upon the imitation article than he can on the genuine.

FOR SUDDEN COLDS NEURALGIC, RHEUMATIC AND ALL OTHER PAINS IN ANY PART OF THE BODY, PERRY DAVIS' PAIN-KILLER IS UNQUALLED.

IT CURES ALMOST INSTANTLY.

The PAIN-KILLER is put up in 1 oz. and 5 oz. bottles, retailing 25 and 50 cents respectively—large bottles are therefore cheaper.

Words of Wisdom.

The essence of true nobility is neglect of self. Let the thought of self pass in, and the beauty of a great action is gone, like the bloom from a soiled flower.

When one sin is admitted, it is generally found that it has a companion waiting at the door; and the former will work hard to gain admission for the latter.

Murmuring puts gall and wormwood into every cup of mercy that God gives into our hands. As to the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet, so to the murmuring soul every sweet is bitter.

No man or woman of the humblest sort can really be strong, gentle, pure and good, without the world being better for it, without somebody being helped and comforted by the very existence of that goodness.

Observe a tree how it first tends downward, that it may shoot forth upward. Is it not from humanity that it endeavors to rise? There are those who grow up into the air, without at first growing at the root. This is not growth, but downfall.

It cannot be too often repeated that it is not the so-called blessings of life, its sunshine and calm and pleasant experiences, that strengthen and help us, but its storms, tempests, and trials. Early adversity, especially, is often a blessing in disguise.

Every real and searching effort at self-improvement is of itself a lesson of profound humility. For we cannot move a step without learning and feeling the waywardness, the weakness, the vacillation of our movements, or without desiring to be set upon the Rock that is higher than ourselves.

The lines of suffering on almost every human countenance have been deepened, if not traced there, by unfaithfulness of conscience, by departures from duty. To do wrong is the surest way to bring suffering; no wrong deed ever failed to bring it. Those sins which are followed by no palpable pain are yet terribly avenged in this life.

We all of us complain of the shortness of time, and yet have much more than we know what to do with. Our lives are passed either in doing nothing at all, or in doing nothing to the purpose, or in doing nothing that we ought to do. We are always complaining that our days are few, and acting as though there would be no end of them.

When death, the great reconciler, has come, it is never our tenderness that we repent of, but our severity. This we should bear in mind and by keeping bitter words from our lips, drive them from our hearts. Love we can never regret, but hate may fill all our lives with bitterness. Then let us cultivate love, which is the "charity" of Christian goodwill.

Habit is a cable. We have the thread of it every day, and at length we cannot break it. The chains of habit are generally too small to be felt, until they are too strong to be broken. To one who murmured because he rebuked him for a small matter, Plato replied: "Custom is no small matter. A custom or habit of life does frequently alter the natural inclination for good or evil."

The Syndicate Have the Best of the Bargain.

Referring to the distribution between the different sections, he estimated the total cost of constructing the eastern 900 miles of the central section at $10,800,000. The cash actually to be paid for this section was $9,000,000, leaving a sum to be provided otherwise than by the act of only $1,800,000 for the construction of that 900 miles. To meet that dreadful deficit the burden of compensation provided by the economical Government benefit of the public interest was 11,250,000 acres of choice land, which, at the estimate of $2 an acre, would make $22,500,000 in money, or an excess over the cost of upwards of $20,000,000 on this section alone. This section could be built out of the land it held, and through land which was sure to pay, and yet it was proposed to heap upon the back of this section the burden of building the two ends of the line. Taking the western part of this central section, comprising 450 miles, its estimated cost would be $18,200,000, cash to be provided, $6,000,000, leaving a deficiency to be met out of the lands of twelve millions. The land south of 7,500,000 acres would be worth fifteen millions, leaving a margin, thought not so large as in the eastern end of the section. He proceeded to deal in the same manner with the eastern section, making an elaborate calculation to compare the cost of the railway with the amount of subsidy granted, showing that under the arrangement proposed in the syndicate's bargain the surplus of the eastern section was diminished, while that of the central section was exhausted. Therefore, if the Lake Superior line were after a time abandoned the company would have made themselves millionaires out of large bonuses given for building the prairie section long before the time of abandonment. The practical result was that the prairie section, which could be built easily, was to be built at the public cost in cash. The Minister of Railways congratulated himself on this arrangement, because he wanted the road built quickly. As it would inconvenience his friends, the members of the Syndicate, to find the cash, he provided it for them, thus giving them every chance to build the road as fast as possible. "What thou doest, do quickly," (Cheers and laughter.) Could this action be defended like way to secure the construction of the whole road? Hon. gentleman opposite claimed that they had a full guarantee for the construction. They wanted to deny that the prairie line would be an enormously profitable line, but the aggregation of profit on lands would show the result to be dollars as the construction of this line. They were of course in a position to build it fast, for every twenty miles they built gave them a moderate fortune delivered into their hands. Seeing the millions they would be sure to get out of this section they could well afford to put one million into the hands of the Government.—Hon. Edward Blake's speech.

Taking their Pick of the Best Land.

The total value of the lands extending back from the Government railway in their different ranges at the price fixed by the Government last year would be $101,000,000. In the present case, seeing that the lands were to be taken in alternate blocks, and that certain sections were appropriated for the Hudson Bay Company and for school lands and so forth, there were not left 25,000,000 acres of land of the prime quality which alone this company would condense to take within the 24-mile belt. They might then, if they pleased, choose the best lands in the Northwest, within the limit prescribed on each side of a certain line. So it might not unfairly be said that the privilege given to these persons to choose the choicest spots in the territory would make the remainder of the 25,000,000 acres which they might select outside of the 24-mile belt equal in value to the land which might be found within that limit.—Hon. Edward Blake's speech.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Hudson, headmaster of Bayfield public school, and who was recently re-elected for next year, talks of leaving on account of the sickness of his friends. He lost a brother a short time ago, and another member of the family is seriously ill. Mr. Hudson is very highly thought of, and his removal would be much regretted.

The by-law granting $5,000 to the Grand Trunk Railroad for the purpose of bringing the Toronto, Grey and Bruce into Wingham, was voted on in the township of Turnberry, on Friday, and carried by a majority of 158.

National Treatment and Positive Cures are what the afflicted seek for, and those who resort to Dr. Pierce's family Medicines are not doomed to disappointments. For particulars see Pierce's Memorandum Book given away by druggists, or see the wrappers of the medicine. Sold by druggists.

WASECA, Minn., April 5th, 1879.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D.

DEAR SIR,—I feel that I should be neglecting my duty were I to fail in giving my testimony as to the value of your medicine. For years I have been a great sufferer from a complication of chronic diseases which our physicians treated in vain. I am now using your favorite Prescription and find myself almost well. Your medicines have done more good than anything I have ever used.

I remain, gracefully yours,
Mrs. E. B. FARMALÉE.

Such is the expression from all Druggists and dealers everywhere who are selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. No like preparation can begin to have such an extensive and rapid sale. It will positively cure and that where everything else has failed. Satisfy yourself as thousands have already done by getting of your Druggists, F. Jordan's, a trial bottle for ten cents, or a regular size bottle for $1. For sale by F. Jordan.

SPENCERVILLE, ONT., Feb. 26, 1880.

We have much pleasure in certifying that we have kept Perry Davis' Pain-Killer constantly in stock for upwards of twenty years, during which time it has taken the lead in most of our patent preparations, and has become an old, reliable family medicine. No effort is required now on our part to sell it, as it is as staple an article as flour in our trade.

Yours truly,
W. P. EMBRE & CO.

A Lady's Wish.

"Oh, how I wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily do so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters, that makes pure rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe."

Good for Babies.

We are pleased to say that our baby was permanently cured of a serious prostration of the bowels by the use of Hop Bitters by its mother, which at the same time restored her to perfect health and strength.—The Parents, University ave., Rochester, N. Y. See another column.

Cure of Draining.

"A young friend of mine was cured of an insupportable thirst for liquor, that had so prostrated his system that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It allayed all that burning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor; and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups, and I know of a number of others that have been cured of drinking by it."—From a leading R. R. Official, Chicago, Illinois.

New York Butter Market.

In reporting the market prices for butter, the New York Tribune, of May 20th, said, "Choice packages of the best cream reach 19 to 20 cents, but light colored goods are hard to dispose of, and several lots were thought well sold at 8 to 10 cents. This stern logic of dollars and cents is rapidly convincing dairymen that they should use the best colored butter. Color made by Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. It gives the perfect June color the year round and dairymen that use it never send light colored goods to market."

THE DAYS OF MISERY AND NIGHTS OF UNREST endured by the sufferer from a persistent cough soon sap the vitality of the system and wreck the constitution. Such a catastrophe can only be avoided by precautionary measures. Prevent the climax of a cough with Northrop & Lyman's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda—approved in professional quarters, and which is a combination of the purest and most salutary ingredients in perfect chemical harmony. Coughs, colds, aryanitis, incipient bronchitis, and other affections of the respiratory organs, are speedily relieved by it, and it has likewise proved to be a useful specific in all serofulous maladies. The loss of strength consequent upon being diseased is checked, and the flagging physical energies restored by its invigorating action. Phosphorus, the active principle of the hypophosphites, not only supplies the system with an important element of strength, but gives a healthful impetus to the circulation. The lime and soda also add to vigor of the frame. In wasting diseases of all kinds, this preparation can be depended upon to produce a beneficial effect. A fair persistent trial is all that is necessary to prove its potency, either as a pulmonary or general invigorant. For poverty of the blood, with which so many invalids are troubled, it is a sovereign remedy, promoting the acquisition of high strength and flesh. Prepared by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, and sold by all druggists.

AS SCRELY AS EFFECT FOLLOWS CAUSE so surely will disease eventually fasten itself upon a system deficient in vital energy, if tonic medication is not resorted to in time. The necessary tendency of a weak discharge of the functions of the body is to disorder its organs.—Invigoration, prompt and thorough, is the only safeguard. Norenavant of depleted physical energy, no restorative of lost flesh, nerve power and all ailments, has more clearly demonstrated its efficacy than Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine. In this preparation, associated with the salutary medicines which forms its basis, is pure sherry wine and certain aromatic constituents which impart an agreeable taste to the article, and gives additional emphasis to its effects. In cases of general debility and dyspepsia it is invaluable and the desired effect is, in the vast majority of cases, remarkably prompt as well as decisive. That good natural appetite, which gives a relish for the most delicate fare, is insured by the use of the Quinine Wine, which also confers brain soothing and body refreshing sleep. Fever and ague and bilious remittent fever, are diseases to the eradication of which it is especially adapted, but it should be used only in the intervals between the seizures. The far-reaching effects of a good tonic, in all complaints involving loss of physical energy, are well understood by physicians, and the comprehensive influence for good of this preparation upon the system goes far to bear out the professional belief in the value of invigorants as opponents of disease. Be sure to ask for the "Quinine Wine" prepared by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto. Sold by all druggists.

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT.—A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.—There are but few preparations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgment of the people for any great length of time. One of these is Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Read the following and be convinced:—Thomas Robinson, Farnham Centre P. O., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without any relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil and since then have had no attack of it. I would recommend it to all." J. H. Earl, Hotel Keeper, West Sheffield, P. O., writes, "I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in case of cuts, wounds, etc., and think it is equally as good for horse as man." A. Maybe, Merchant, Warkworth, writes, "I have sold some hundreds of bottles of Electric Oil and it is pronounced by the public, one of the best medicines they have ever used; it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence." Joseph Rusan, Township of Percy, writes, "I was persuaded to try Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for a lane knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness. It is a great public benefit."

Beware of Imitations.—Ask for Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. See that the signature of S. N. Thomas is on the wrapper, and the names of Northrop & Lyman are blown in the bottles, and take no other. Sold by all medicine dealers. Price 25 cents. NORTHROP & LYMAN, Toronto, Ont., Proprietors for the Dominion.
