HINARD'S LIMEWATER CURES GALT IN COWS.

Phyllis Dearborn
OR, THE
Countess of Basingwell

CHAPTER XXIV.

If he had only known he would have time to look into a great many books before the return of Lord Basingwell, for Lionel was enjoying himself too much to hurry back. Since that night when he had met Lord Gree Flora had felt easier. Each day had given her an added sense of security, until now she was almost free of any dread at all. She was finding it easy, too, to be in truth what she had only been in deception before.

Perhaps she respected Lionel more than she loved him, but she was fast learning to love him and to depend upon his welcoming smile when he approached her. It was of her own volition now that she was with him most of the time, and it was seldom that they were apart.

She was not yet so chastened by her experiences that she could throw aside all thought of the money aspect of her position, but at least she no longer looked to that as to the only thing that reconciled her to her situation, and above all, she would rather have foregone her settlement entirely than to have let Lionel know that it was for that alone that she had married him.

She was looking forward with a sense of peacefulness and joy to the time when all that belonged to the old life and time should be lost in the past. For that reason she was rejoiced on their return from their drive that morning to hear the lackey say to Lionel that Mr. Simmons was waiting in the library.

Lionel looked angrily at the lackey for his indiscretion in speaking so that Flora could hear, but she smiled at him and whispered:

"It does not matter, dear, I am not troubled about it. I only feared for your feelings."

He smiled, and kissed her hand as he left her.

"Good-morning, your lordship," said Mr. Simmons, coming to his feet and smiting with a doubtful air.

A Most Extraordinary Cure of Epileptic Fits

Mother Had Appealed to Three Doctors in Vain—Cured Four Months Ago by Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This letter from Mrs. Noxell is endorsed by Mr. H. J. Mahaffy, druggist, Port Colborne, Ont., as being true and correct. While it reports a most remarkable cure of epileptic fits by use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, it only goes to corroborate similar cures reported by others.

Mrs. Henrietta M. Noxell, R. R. No. 1, Humberstone, Ont., writes: "I cannot help writing to you, as I want you to know what a blessing Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills have been to my boy. He was taken with very violent fits, would twitch all over, his eyes would turn towards his nose, his jaws set and his lips turn almost purple. He would clench his fists tightly, become unconscious and then go into a long sleep. After several hours he would wake up sighing and so weak he could not stand. I was afraid he would die and took him to the doctor, who pronounced his case epilepsy. As his medicine was not effective and the fits continued, I took him to another doctor at Pontchartraine, but his medicine seemed to make him worse.

"As the boy's nerves were in such a state that he could not sit down or lie down, and the fits continued, I took him to a third doctor, who said

"Sit down," said Lionel, shortly. "Have you the papers with you?"

"Yes, your lordship; here they are, all in order. They could be handed right over to your attorney and put on record."

Lionel took them and looked them over carefully.

"Very well; take them to my lawyers and I will have a check for the full amount awaiting you there. Now about those notes you hold."

"Vich notes, your lordship?"

"The ones given to you by Lady Dareleigh—indorsed by her and signed by Lady Flora Vanemore. Don't pretend ignorance."

Mr. Simmons, satisfied that he certainly did know about the notes, drew them forth with a deprecatory smile, and handed them to him. Lionel took them and turned them over.

"One of them," he said, "is indorsed by you to Lord Gree."

"And indorsed back to me again, your lordship."

"So I see. I merely mention it, Mr. Simmons, because I wish to draw your attention to the fact. I say nothing of the rascally baseness of having done as you did, because I don't think you would comprehend anything that did not appeal directly to your pocket; but I will say that if I hear of your betraying to anybody else the fact of the existence of these notes I will take measures to make you regret having done so. I think you know me to be a man of my word."

"Yes, your lordship," said Mr. Simmons.

Lionel sat down and drew up a check for the amount of the two notes and gave it to Mr. Simmons.

"I think that will end our business relations, Mr. Simmons," he said. "If there is any more to be said between us, say it now."

"That is all, your lordship. Everything else can be done at your attorney's. I am much obliged, your lordship."

Lionel did not answer, but reached over and tapped his bell, and when a lackey answered the summons said to him:

"Show this man out. If he wishes to, have him taken to the station. If he wishes anything to eat, let him have it at the Basingwell Arms, at my charge."

Mr. Simmons started to speak.

"You need say nothing," said Lionel, haughtily, "the servant has his instructions."

For some reason Mr. Simmons had always been more affected by the frank dislike felt by Lionel than by any abuse leveled at him by anybody else, and yet, with all the power which he felt he had over the fortunes of the imperious nobleman, he did not dare to say openly what was in his mind. But what he confined in his heart grew bitterer for not having an outlet.

It made him eager to strike the blow he contemplated, and to see Lord Gree strike the one it would soon be in his power to deal. For that reason he hastened to Lord Basingwell's attorney with the papers, feeling certain that as soon as the estates were clear the settlement would be executed. It was then that he proposed to deal his blow. A cunningly devised one it was, too, which should yield him revenge incidentally, and, above all, profit primarily.

Mr. Simmons never made the foolish mistake of letting his feelings conquer his judgment.

Matters progressed precisely as he had supposed they would, and not more than a week passed before Lady Basingwell was the fortunate possessor of an income of twenty-five thousand pounds, besides the unincumbered estates of Warne, which gave her an additional income of ten thousand pounds. It was almost fabulous wealth to her, but it did not elate her as she had expected it to. She was rejoiced to have it, but she had found it easy to trust to the generosity of Lionel, and now that she had learned to love him she could have been satisfied without the settlement.

So that she had the luxuries and the standing which wealth gave her, it mattered very little whether the wealth was hers or Lionel's. Indeed, when he gave her the papers the day they were in order for transference, she asked what they were, and when he told her she said:

"Was it necessary?"

"It is usual," he answered, with a smile.

"I suppose we may not break a law," said she, with a smile; "but I think I could have been happier had you kept all this," and she pushed the papers aside unopened.

It pleased him to have her so indifferent; but he wished her to know that he had given her the Warne estates.

"Oh, what a shocking lack of that womanly quality—curiosity!" he said. "You must look at them."

So she looked, and when she realized how much he had given to her she cried out:

"Oh, Lionel!" and burst into tears.

But she appreciated what he had done as he had hoped she would, seeing the sentiment involved in the presentation of the property he had wasted. Her first words after she had recovered her equanimity proved it.

"Let us make a visit to the estates, as part of our honeymoon," she said.

Nothing could have pleased Lionel more. He was not so blind to his worldly interests that he could scorn the enormous revenues of Basingwell; but there would always be the warmest corner of his heart reserved for the home of his illustrious ancestors—the Warnes.

"When shall we go?" he asked.

"Next week, if we can," she answered readily, seeing how the proposition pleased him.

And so it happened that he ran down to London one day to make arrangements for their visit to Warne, having made an appointment with the steward of the estate to meet him there. The environs of the castle were no longer filled with phantoms for her ladyship, and it pleased her on the day she was left alone to go

15 YEARS SUFFERING FROM PILES

Mr. J. McEwen of Dundas, Ont., writes:—"For fifteen years I suffered with Piles and could get no permanent cure until I tried Zam-Buk. Perseverance with this herbal balm resulted in a complete cure, and I have not been troubled with the painful ailment since."

Mr. Henry Fougere of Poulmond, N.S., says:—"I suffered terribly with Piles and could find nothing to give me relief until I tried Zam-Buk. This cured me. I consider Zam-Buk the finest ointment on the market."

The above are specimens of the many letters we are constantly receiving from men and women who have ended their suffering by using Zam-Buk. Why not do likewise?

Zam-Buk is best for eczema, blood poisoning, ulcers, sores, cuts, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Send this advertisement with name of paper and one cent stamp for free trial box.

And so it happened that he ran down to London one day to make arrangements for their visit to Warne, having made an appointment with the steward of the estate to meet him there. The environs of the castle were no longer filled with phantoms for her ladyship, and it pleased her on the day she was left alone to go wandering through the woods, down by the little brook that ran through it.

She was glad to be alone, too, in order to arrange in her own mind the thoughts that had come into it—to bring herself face to face with the novelty of honest love for an honest man.

"What a fortunate meeting, my lady," said a voice that thrilled her with unpleasant recollections.

She looked up and saw, as she had expected to see, Mr. Simmons, smiling and bowing in his unutterably offensive way. A shudder of revulsion passed over her, and then she drew herself up haughtily and said:

"Begone, sir! Leave this place instantly, or I will call the servants to eject you."

"Just run word, my lady," said Mr. Simmons, preparing to leap over the brook.

"Not a word, Begone!"

"You'll be sorry, my lady," said he, carelessly.

"If you do not go at once I shall call the servants," said she again, and it was so evident that she was on the point of executing her threat that Mr. Simmons shrugged his shoulders and turned away, saying aloud, however:

"Oh, well, I s'pose I can talk to the real Lady Basingwell."

She heard his words, and believed them meaningless, but something unformed in her mind sent a chill over her, and she looked after the slowly retreating man.

He looked back over his shoulder and noted her expression. He stopped and called out, though making quite sure that he would not be overheard:

"You heard not I said about the real Lady Basingwell. You have no right here."

She had not intended to say a word to him, but the question seemed to be forced from her lips.

"What do you mean? Are you mad?"

He came back with a disagreeable leer on his face.

"I am not mad," he said, "and what I tell you is true. You are Lady Warne, and that is all; and you ain't worth a penny the minute I open my lips to tell the truth."

CHAPTER XXV.

Lady Basingwell stood on one side of the brook, and Mr. Simmons stood on the other. He was watching the changes in her countenance, and she was trying to comprehend what he said to her. Suddenly she looked at him.

"I think," she said, "that this is only one of your base lies—a little more vile and audacious than any other I have heard."

"I don't say a word I can't prove, my Lady Warne," he answered.

"I have a mind to call the servants," she said.

"Just as you please," said he, indifferently.

"Prove to me that you have any grounds for saying what you do," she said next.

Mr. Simmons never made the foolish mistake of letting his feelings conquer his judgment.

Matters progressed precisely as he had supposed they would, and not more than a week passed before Lady Basingwell was the fortunate possessor of an income of twenty-five thousand pounds, besides the unincumbered estates of Warne, which gave her an additional income of ten thousand pounds. It was almost fabulous wealth to her, but it did not elate her as she had expected it to. She was rejoiced to have it, but she had found it easy to trust to the generosity of Lionel, and now that she had learned to love him she could have been satisfied without the settlement.

So that she had the luxuries and the standing which wealth gave her, it mattered very little whether the wealth was hers or Lionel's. Indeed, when he gave her the papers the day they were in order for transference, she asked what they were, and when he told her she said:

"Was it necessary?"

"It is usual," he answered, with a smile.

"I suppose we may not break a law," said she, with a smile; "but I think I could have been happier had you kept all this," and she pushed the papers aside unopened.

It pleased him to have her so indifferent; but he wished her to know that he had given her the Warne estates.

"Oh, what a shocking lack of that womanly quality—curiosity!" he said. "You must look at them."

So she looked, and when she realized how much he had given to her she cried out:

"Oh, Lionel!" and burst into tears.

But she appreciated what he had done as he had hoped she would, seeing the sentiment involved in the presentation of the property he had wasted. Her first words after she had recovered her equanimity proved it.

"Let us make a visit to the estates, as part of our honeymoon," she said.

Nothing could have pleased Lionel more. He was not so blind to his worldly interests that he could scorn the enormous revenues of Basingwell; but there would always be the warmest corner of his heart reserved for the home of his illustrious ancestors—the Warnes.

"When shall we go?" he asked.

"Next week, if we can," she answered readily, seeing how the proposition pleased him.

And so it happened that he ran down to London one day to make arrangements for their visit to Warne, having made an appointment with the steward of the estate to meet him there. The environs of the castle were no longer filled with phantoms for her ladyship, and it pleased her on the day she was left alone to go

Was on H.M.S. Arethusia

With reference to the famous British cruiser Arethusia, which is reported to have struck a mine off the east coast of England yesterday and sunk, we are informed that Paymaster Badoock, R. N., who was married last month in England to Miss Frances Pilsent, of this city, daughter of Mrs. and the late C. S. Pilsent and brother of Earl E. Pilsent, of the law firm of Clift and Pilsent, was attached to the ill-fated warship a short time ago when she was in the North Sea.

"Cascarets" Best If Headachy, Bilious Sick, Constipated

Best for liver and bowels, had breath, had colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to clogged liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach. Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

THE WEATHER AND TRAIN HANDS.—The past week or two has been the hardest the train hands have experienced for a long time, and from Bishop's Falls to Basque the weather has been particularly severe. Last Sunday brakeman Foley of the cross country service had one of his hands badly frostbitten, and had to seek medical aid at Channel.

THIRTY-THREE BELOW ZERO.

Last night and this morning there was no "let up" in the cold spurt along the railway. At the Quarry the glass showed 29 below, at Bishop's Falls 32, and at Clarendville and Humberstone the temperature was 5 below, whilst the zero mark was reached at Port aux Basques.

LIGHT, HEAT

The proprietor of one of the systems is credited with saying, "I old street, and I'll guarantee to most, widely known and best. He was asked to explain. He believe in the trinity of LIGHT, radiance, and the rest is—"

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but than imagine the kind of shop that open, for we pass it in almost to the street. No one falls to the side of welcome and invitation to the pathway and lets one's eyes restful lighting effect that is the outrightness, the absence of anything that if one would step into the scene—all these are part of the individuality.

The Coal Committee.

We hope that the Committee will consent to a continuation of their labours. There is no doubt that the coal situation which however may not be so arduous under the changed circumstances. These gentlemen have done excellent work from the beginning of the year. An uncontrolled sale of coal would have led to a coal famine before the Alconda could have arrived and many poor people would have suffered severely during the hard and inclement days and nights which we have met with recently. A fine spirit was however displayed by many of our citizens who could afford to do it. The need of making this cheaper coal last out until the Alconda arrived had been represented to them in the press, which had asked them to exercise restraint, and they did so, and aided the Committee very materially. Some of them preferred to pay $10.00 a ton and go to coal merchants who had uncommodated coal for sale, rather than exhaust the $8.00 coal, which they preferred to leave for purchase by the less-well-to-do. This consideration for the weal of others speaks well for those who exercised it and it is a spirit which is well worthy of commendation. We remarked, however, that there is work for the committee to do. We believe there is. The shipping situation is a serious one. There is little chance of getting another charter at $10 a ton with heavy demurrage for delay. No outside steamers are offering which will bring coal here at less than five dollars a ton. Indeed, some shipping companies ask rates which would mean seven or eight dollar freight. The English papers are full of letters on tonnage and freight and the British Government is handling a serious situation. It is desirable that the Alconda be made to last as long as possible for factories and households, especially the poorer households and that none of this coal be used for bunkering, except on an agreement to replace it in kind and ton for ton. The committee should be empowered to control this coal, adopting their means, according to present circumstances.

Tragic Death of James Connolly

James Connolly of Hr. Grace, who was killed at the D. I. and S. Co.'s Works in Sydney, as already reported in the Telegram, met a very tragic end. He had been confined to his boarding house at Whitney Pier for some days previous and contrary to the wishes of the doctor went to his work unloading ore from the Company's cars, on last Tuesday morning. Those cars are suspended high above the ground, and have trap doors which when shot back allow the contents to go into the "pile yard." In some unknown way one of those doors became unfastened, and poor Connolly stepped into the opening and was precipitated head foremost some fifty feet, striking the many tons of ore beneath and was instantly killed.

Icebreaker Florizel Jammed in the Floe

OFF FLINT ISLAND.
 Mr. J. S. Munn, Manager of Messrs. Bowring Bros., Ltd., received a message last night informing him that the S.S. Florizel, which left here Saturday last for a cargo of coal, was jammed in the ice a few miles off Flint Island. Since the advent of zero weather the approach to Sydney Harbour is filled with heavy Gulf ice, making it almost impossible for steamers to enter or leave there. As soon as she frees herself the Florizel will abandon the idea of going to Sydney and proceed to Louisburg to load coal.

Supreme Court.

Court met at 11 a.m. Present: the Chief Justice.
 The Grand Jury after being addressed by His Lordship on the bills of indictment for arson against Archibald Thompson and Francis Piercey, retired to consider the bills. Recess was taken at 1 p.m. and at 3.30 p.m. the sitting will be continued.

The "Novelty" Was The Schooner.

It was the schr. Novelty, Capt. Benson, which the Dutch steamer Alkaid sighted 20 miles off St. John's, and not the long overdue Thomas, as the latter put into Fayal, Azores, in a damaged condition 10 days ago, all well on board. The Novelty did not fly distress signals, as the Dutchman reported, but just signalled to be reported as well, and the steamer hoisted an answering pendant.

One of our R. N. R. men, John Clarke, son of Mr. Jacob Clarke of Dunfield, returned home a few days ago owing to ill health. John was one of the first R. N. R. men who responded to the call when war was first declared with Germany. He spent last winter on H. M. S. Niobe, but when he returned to St. John's last fall, John was found to be physically unfit for active service, owing to an accident which he met with during his boyhood days, and was sent to Mount Pearl Wireless Station, where he was doing duty up to a few days ago, when he was obliged to resign and was sent home as an invalid.—Enterprise.

The Man Who Looks Ahead

Most persons have some goal to which they steer their hopes, but many thoughtlessly unnerve the hand, and dull the brain by faulty living, then wonder why success is not achieved.

Among the everyday habits of life that often upset health are tea and coffee drinking—ancient and respectable customs, but harmful to many.

The average cup of tea or coffee contains from 1 1/2 to 3 grains of caffeine, which, gradually accumulating in the system, often causes nervous prostration, heart trouble, mental depression, etc.

There's an easy way out of tea and coffee troubles—quit both tea and coffee and use

POSTUM

This pure food-drink is a simple combination of whole wheat roasted with a little wholesome molasses—nothing else. It has a snappy, aromatic flavour but is entirely free from the drug, caffeine, or any other injurious substance.

There are two forms of Postum. The original Postum Cereal must be boiled, 15c and 25c packages; Instant Postum, soluble in a cup of hot water, 30c and 50c tins. Both, however, equal flavour, and cost about the same.

Foreign Office.

January 10, 1916.
 Your Excellency.
 I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's Note of the 3rd instant transmitting a Note Verbal of the 7th December, 1915, from the Austro-Hungarian Government. With the Note is enclosed a petition from an Austro-Hungarian subject now on his way as prisoner of war from India to the country in the S. S. GOLCONDA due here in a few days time. Some of the requests in the Petition would have received favourable consideration had it reached His Majesty's Government in time. Some of them have no doubt been conceded as a matter of course.

Coldest Night For Twelve Years.

Last night was the coldest in the city for twelve years, the thermometer registering sixteen degrees below zero. Fortunately there was no wind, though the frost was intensely keen. Country the frost was even more severe. The glass dropped to 35 below zero and 25 below at the Quarry.

With regard to that portion of the petition which asks the special precautions may be taken to prevent danger to the lives of the GOLCONDA passengers by submarine attack, I feel bound to express my astonishment that the Austro-Hungarian Government themselves one of the authors of the danger, should have thought it seemly to endorse this request. Not content, however, with doing this, the Austro-Hungarian Government further state that they will hold His Majesty's Government responsible for the lives and well-being of those who are being repatriated from India on the S.S. GOLCONDA.

Vienna, Dec. 7, 1915.
 With reference to the esteemed Note Verbal No. 3973 dated 27th ultimo and in continuation of the Note Verbal No. 113613 of the same date, in regard to the position made at the Rev. O. R. Handman on behalf of the married men of B. Camp at Ahmednagar, relative to the repatriation of their wives and children, the I. and R. Ministry of Foreign Affairs would feel much obliged if the American Embassy in London could be requested to transmit the enclosed copy of the aforesaid petition to the British Government and to inform them that the I. and R. Government will hold them responsible for the lives and well-being of these passengers, the majority of whom are better class people—who are being forcibly repatriated in war time and against the will of their husbands and fathers.

British Theatre.

The programme of photo-plays at the British last night was of a high standard and was greatly enjoyed by patrons who attended. The Animated Weekly News contained some very interesting items, some of which were connected with the great war. One scene shows the Sikhs and Gurkhas at play before going into battle; another, Queen Alexandra, visiting the Marquis of Zetland's Hospital Yacht, whilst several views of interest ships are also included. The two-part drama in which Francis Ford and Grace O'Connell are featured was certainly a lively production, the acting and scenes being very realistic, especially the "sacred" during the raid, on the dance hall. This scene shows a typical "mix-up" that generally goes hand in hand with a raid on such places. Rosemary, Theby and Harry Mayers were seen to advantage in "A Romance of the Backwoods" and the humorous film "Around the World in ten minutes" was very clever and amusing. To-morrow the usual holiday matinee will be given with the "Black Box" as the head-line. On Monday next "Court Martialled" the big 4-reel Military Drama, will be shown, and patrons should make an effort to see this splendid production.

Another Entry for Horse Race.

Interest and enthusiasm are vying with each other in to-morrow's horse race. Mr. M. A. Duffy has entered in addition to the list we published yesterday. He has an Irish bred animal known as "Chip," and will be driven by cabman Joseph Judge and is said to be able to hold its own.

Tragic Death of James Connolly

James Connolly of Hr. Grace, who was killed at the D. I. and S. Co.'s Works in Sydney, as already reported in the Telegram, met a very tragic end. He had been confined to his boarding house at Whitney Pier for some days previous and contrary to the wishes of the doctor went to his work unloading ore from the Company's cars, on last Tuesday morning. Those cars are suspended high above the ground, and have trap doors which when shot back allow the contents to go into the "pile yard." In some unknown way one of those doors became unfastened, and poor Connolly stepped into the opening and was precipitated head foremost some fifty feet, striking the many tons of ore beneath and was instantly killed.

Icebreaker Florizel Jammed in the Floe

OFF FLINT ISLAND.
 Mr. J. S. Munn, Manager of Messrs. Bowring Bros., Ltd., received a message last night informing him that the S.S. Florizel, which left here Saturday last for a cargo of coal, was jammed in the ice a few miles off Flint Island. Since the advent of zero weather the approach to Sydney Harbour is filled with heavy Gulf ice, making it almost impossible for steamers to enter or leave there. As soon as she frees herself the Florizel will abandon the idea of going to Sydney and proceed to Louisburg to load coal.

10.15 A.M. ALL APPEALS FOR BELGIANS MUST BE OFFICIAL.

LONDON, To-day. It is officially announced that in order to obtain better co-ordination in appeals on behalf of Belgians and to prevent waste of public generosity and effort, and the misapplication of funds obtained in response to such appeals, the Belgian and British Governments have decided to make arrangements for giving official recognition only to appeals approved by the two Governments. Official recognition is to be given in the form of a certificate issued by the Local Government Board. This certificate will be issued only after the Belgian Government has been consulted. The public, therefore, are advised not to subscribe to appeals on behalf of Belgians, not bearing the official certificate.

SITUATION ON TIGRIS UNCHANGED. LONDON, To-day. According to a British official statement issued last night, late advice have been received from the Commander of the troops in Mesopotamia, Lieut. General Lake, to the effect that the weather has cleared and that he has reports, dated Sunday, from General Asim, the commander of the relieving forces and General Townshend, whose troops are beleaguered at Kut el Amara. General Asim reports the situation unchanged. General Townshend reports a flight over Kut el Amara of an aeroplane which dropped two bombs without damage.

TRENCH FIGHTING. LONDON, To-day. The British official statement issued last night says: German wireless reports that 40 British prisoners were captured in fighting near Pilkahn. We have eleven men missing from this fighting of whom eight are believed to have been killed. These men were lost pursuing the Germans back into their trenches. Yesterday there were 17 lights in the air and as a result of one of them, a large hostile machine engine was driven down in the enemy's lines. The enemy has been very active mining south of La Bassée Canal. Several mines were exploded by him in the past 24 hours in South Fosse. The mine explosions were preceded by a heavy bombardment and followed by a small infantry attack. A few men got into our front trench, but were immediately driven out by hand grenades.

A proposed armistice will be issued to women willing to undertake farm work, and they also will be entitled to wear a special uniform. Every village in the country will be canvassed by committees of women. It is hoped by the canvass to raise a body of 400,000 women who are ready to engage in agricultural work.

AIR DEFENCE UNDER FRENCH. LONDON, To-day. ITALY EXPECTED TO DECLARE WAR ON GERMANY. PARIS, To-day. Aristide Briand, the French Premier, arrived at Paris last night from a visit to Italy. Later he received a number of political leaders and told them how deeply he had been touched by the reception accorded him by King Victor Emmanuel and the Italian Government and people.

A rumor is current in political circles here, a Morning Post despatch from Rome says, that the Italian Government will declare war upon Germany in March. The moral effect of such a declaration upon Greece and Rumania, it is believed, will be considerable and would finally clear up certain difficulties with Italy's Allies. According to the Telegraph's despatch from Bucharest, negotiations are under way between Germany and Rumania for the purchase of supplies of grain which Rumania still has left. Germany said she had been prompted by Bulgaria to ask assurances from Rumania, says the correspondent. The belief in both diplomatic circles is that Germany will adopt an aggressive attitude when she begins her attack on Salonika.

Belgium and Germans fight in East Africa. LONDON, To-day. Advice to Reuter's state that, according to a wireless despatch received at Elizabethville, an action between Belgians, who are invading German East Africa in the Lake Kivu district, and a German force which opposed them, resulted in heavy losses on both sides. Details are lacking, but it is said that the fighting still continues. The Belgians, the despatches say, attacked a German post situated well across the frontier and captured several trenches which the Germans had dug, and which the latter afterwards succeeded in re-occupying.

Closing of Archangel a Serious Matter.

New York, Feb. 7.—The warnings sent out with reference to vessels leaving Archangel before the end of the year appear to have been well justified, as it is understood that something like a hundred steamers have been caught in the ice through remaining at Archangel too long. It is reported that about 70 British steamers requisitioned by the Admiralty have been frozen in and will probably remain there until next May. Five or six vessels of the Russian Volunteer Fleet are also imprisoned. By the time the White Sea is open to shipping in the spring huge quantities of munitions which are piling up in New York will present a serious problem. Efforts are being made by the Russian transport agents to keep back goods at the place of their manufacture until trade is resumed in the spring, thus avoiding more congestion at the already crowded terminals.

Turks Slay 1700 Prisoners of War.

Lord Bryce Brings to Light Another Horrible Story of Moslem Atrocities. London, January 23.—Murad of Sivas, Armenian leader of the Province of Sivas, Asia Minor, in an interview just received here from Tiflis, gives an account of the treatment by the Turks of the Armenian population in Asia Minor, in which are many new details. Murad, who is a well known warrior, fought his way out of Sivas, reaching Tiflis in December. His story, which is made public by Viscount Bryce, who vouches for the reliability of the source, is in substance as follows: "Out of 160,000 Armenians inhabiting the province of Sivas there remained when Murad left only some 10,000 who had been spared either as useful artisans or because they were old. The remaining people, Murad declared, were either massacred directly or deported to the area between Euphrates River and Northern Mesopotamia. "For despoiling the Armenians, the Turks, according to Murad, employed various methods of torture. In Khourakhon, he declares, one man was actually shot like a horse and another killed by putting a red hot iron crown on his head. At Habesh, 3,500 Armenians were put to a pole-axe or stone, he asserts. At Herag the men were killed and the young women carried away, while 600 children were detained by the Walli. Murad adds, possibly to be converted to Islam. Many young women went mad and others committed suicide. One incident, according to the narrator, greatly embittered the relations between the Armenians and the Turks. Seventeen hundred Russian prisoners of war, captured by the Turks, were brought to Sivas in a deplorable condition. The Russian soldiers of Moslem origin had been released, most of those of Armenian nationality killed and the other Russians stripped of their clothing. The Armenians provided comforts for the prisoners which caused resentment among the Moslems, Murad states. Despite the Armenian efforts, he adds, only 700 survived out of the contingent of 1,700.

Family Vocabulary.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Did you ever realize that there is such a thing as a family vocabulary in almost every family? The other day I was listening to one of the members of the family who was talking over the telephone. By the way, when it is permissible, don't you love to do that? It is so interesting to reconstruct the other side of the conversation from what you hear and then find out afterwards if you were right. Quite like a game. To return to the main road, I heard her say, "Yes, I'd like to come, I don't see any reason why I can't, and I will unless—"

And quick as a flash, before she could finish, my mind supplied the rest of the phrase, "unless something unforeseen turns up." And that was just what she said.

How did I know? Well, I asked myself that question and answered—because that is part of our family vocabulary. Given these circumstances, that is what any member of our family would probably say.

A day or two later, I had another instance of family exclusiveness in the matter of vocabulary.

Did You Ever Hear The Word "Rambunctious?"

Some member of the family used the word "rambunctious." "Where did you get that word?" asked the visiting lady. "I never heard it before. Did you coin it for the occasion? It certainly was pat." (It had been used to describe the actions of my small nephew when put up in the house on a rainy day.)

"Never heard the word 'rambunctious'?"

"Rambunctious?" we exclaimed. "Why that's a common word!" And so it does seem to us, because it was a favorite word of my mother's. Doubtless, there are reader friends who will recognize it as a part of their family vocabulary, just as there will be others like the visiting lady, who never heard of it.

Words With a Flavor.

Certain words, like that one, are peculiarly part of the family atmosphere. The sound of them will bring back one's childhood, as poignantly as the most memory-freighted fragrance. Two other words which I can recall offhand are "spudge" in the phrase, "Now let's spudge round and get this done quickly" and "ride-out" in, "What have you children been doing? This room looks like ride-out."

The flow of family life grooves the mind into certain ruts as the flow of rain-water grooves the hillside.

The Family Menu Gets In A Rut

The family menu is one groove—too much of a groove in a good many families.

And the family vocabulary is another groove which also may become too deep.

Of course it is fine to have as a family possession words with a flavor like those I have quoted, but one can get into too much of a rut in the use of common words.

We ought not to be able to tell what another is going to say, because we ought to employ different words for the same sense from time to time, and keep ourselves from saying things in a routine way.

With My Letter Friends.

Question—Is a woman safe in the hands of a man bent on suicide? Should she marry such a one? Answer—If the man is otherwise perfectly sane and, this threat of suicide is the only sign of mental unbalance, she might risk it. But don't marry him because of the threat, if you don't want to anyway. Don't let him bully you into marrying him. That's a coward's trick.

Makes Hair Grow

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

It destroys the dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots. Large, generous bottle for 50 cents.

Ends Dry, Hoarse or Painful Coughs Quickly

A Simple, Home-Made Remedy, Inexpensive but Unquestionably Effective

The prompt and positive results given by this pleasant-tasting, home-made cough syrup has caused it to be used in more homes than any other remedy. It gives almost instantaneous relief and will usually overcome the average cough in 24 hours.

Get 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any drug store, pour it into a 10-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This makes 16 ounces of family supply—the most effective cough remedy at a cost of only 54 cents or less. You couldn't buy as much trade-made cough medicine for $2.50. Family prepared and never spoils. Full directions with Pinex.

The promptness, certainty and ease with which this Pinex Syrup overcomes a bad cough, chest or throat cold is truly remarkable. It quickly loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and leads and soothes a painful cough in a hurry. With a persistent, loose cough it stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the annoying hacking.

Girls! Have Wavy, Thick, Glossy Hair Free From Dandruff

Save your hair! Double its beauty in a few moments—try this!

If you care for heavy hair, that glitters with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scrub robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots flinch, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. It eventually—why not now?

American Women to Send Auto to Gen. Joffre.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 8.—General Joseph Joffre, Commander of the French army, soon will be presented with an American auto for his personal use, according to plans of Mrs. E. Bliss Thomson, widow of a Seymour, Indiana, man, who was lost when the Lusitania was torpedoed. Mrs. Thomson has brought the car to Indianapolis where it is being overhauled preparatory to shipping it to France. Mrs. Thomson says the car was a favorite of her husband's, and she thought General Joffre would "make the best possible use of it."

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Feb. 14 (Official). In Artois the day was marked by a number of German attacks from Hill 140 up to Neuville La Folle. During the morning the first attack failed west of Hill 140. In the evening, after a fierce bombardment, the enemy attacked our positions on two different points. Three of their attacks were shattered and broken up by our cross-fires. During the day the enemy managed to gain a foothold in our trench west of Hill 140, but was immediately thrown out by counter-attack, which inflicted heavy losses on the Germans in killed and wounded. A German plane shot down our batteries, grounded east of the city, a mass of flame. Elsewhere there was artillery activity, especially at Soissons and Chassigny districts.
