CHAPTER XXXVIII FOUND AT LAST.

"DON'T let me give you a shock, good people; but is there any one present who believes in ghosts?"

My husband propounds this rather startling question over the breakfast-table at Deerpene one morning during our stay, with a face of such preternatural gravity that we all burst into a laugh.

"Lesley does—firmly, truly, implicitly!" replies Len. "Declares she saw one once—a veritable specter, whose appearance couldn't be accounted for by any of the known laws of nature. So, if you have had a scare, old-fellow, turn to the wife of your bosom; she'll sympathize with you."

"Why, Charley!" I gasp, almost dropping my cup in my amazement, "you don't mean to say that you have seen anything?"

"Well, I don't know," is the rather hesitating reply. "The fact is, one of the queerest things I ever heard of has happened to me; but whether it was a dream or what—I suppose it must have been a dream, but—well, all I can say about it is, I never felt more wide awake in my life! But there, I'll tell you all about it, and then you can form your own opinion."

"As you know, we sat up rather late last night—we three"—by we three Charley means himself, Len, and Ernest Warden—"the ladies must have been in bed some time before we got through that last chat and pipe; for, when I went upstairs, Lesley was fast asleep. I did not want to wake her, she might have inquired the time, and given me a homily on the late hours, you know," he supplements, with a comical glance at me. "So I just crept into bed as quietly as possible; and there I lay, for goodness knows how long, striving in vain to go to sleep, and thinking, I verily believe, of more rubbish than ever before filled the mind of mortal man!"

"All the trash I had ever heard in the whole course of my life seemed to come trooping through my brain. But the subject that bothered me most was the one at which we had been talking just before we came upstairs, you remember."

"Do you mean the mystery of Squire Rutherford's lost will!" asks Len.

"That and Mrs. Erroll's mysterious death in this old house so many years ago," my husband returns. "Somehow the subject seemed to have got itself so mixed up in my thoughts that I couldn't, for the life of me, get rid of it."

"Over and over again the tragic story of Mrs. Erroll's strange death in that moldy, shut-up room upstairs kept rehearsing itself in my mind with such vivid distinctness that the more I tried to go to sleep, the more I couldn't, as the children say."

"For hours, as it seemed to me, I lay there, tossing and tumbling; and nothing but the fear of disturbing the house prevented me from getting up and going for a walk to soothe my nerves."

"Sleep I could not, though by slow degrees I became aware of a most singular sensation that was creeping over me—a sensation that, while seeming to paralyze my limbs to a helpless extent—left my senses abnormally clear and acute. It was the strangest feeling I ever experienced in my life. I was as wide awake as I am now, and yet I could not move."

"Humph!" interrupts practical Len, "a clear case of indigestion and defective circulation—in short, nightmare."

"As you know, it was a moonlight night," Charley proceeds, superbly indifferent to Len's interruption, "and a faint reflection of the ghostly radiance crept in through the partially curtained window. It was not very clear, but it was just sufficient to reveal an indistinct outline of some of the objects in the room."

"All at once, as I lay there in that strange condition, a cold breath, like a draft from a suddenly opened door, struck on my face, and at the same moment I became aware that some one or something had entered the room."

"At first I could see nothing, though I was as certain of that mysterious presence as I was of my own existence. But at last, as I lay there straining my eyes in the dull light, I clearly discerned the outlines of a shadowy figure, that, gliding across the floor, came and stood by the side of the bed, looking down at me."

"It was a woman with a face I should have recognized among a thousand—a face I have seen in a picture many years ago. Some day I will tell you where that picture hangs, and of whom it is a portrait."

"Curiously enough, it did not strike me as in any way strange that this woman, who has been in her grave for years, should be standing at that strange hour by my bedside; and when, turning away, she glided to the door and beckoned me to follow, I obeyed as readily as if under the influence of a spell."

"How I got out of bed and into some clothes I don't very clearly remember; I only know that I was following my ghostly guide down the passage that leads to that wing of the house which is never used, and finally into that particular room in which it is said Mrs. Erroll was found lying dead so many years ago with her half-written communication in her hand."

"Here my shadowy conductress came to a pause, and turning toward me with a pleading look in her mournful eyes, pointed to one of the carved panels over the queer, old-fashioned, mantelshelf, and in some mysterious, voiceless way, seemed to command me to move it.

"With the same dreary, automatic feeling with which I had followed her hither, I made some effort to obey. But before I could do so, with a loud crash like the report of a gun or the banging of a door, the specter or dream, whichever it was, vanished into thin air; and there I was, standing in the middle of the moldy, dusty old room, quite alone, startled, chilled, but preternaturally wide awake now at all events."

The Lost Will;

LOVE TRIUMPHS AT LAST!

CHAPTER I.

"How should I know?" retorted Jiggles. "You can easily find out."

"How?" demanded Jack.

"By calling on him, as he asks you!" snapped Jiggles. "I'm sorry I can't stay any longer; I'm hard at work on a difficult brief."

"Off you go, old mug-worm!" said Jack; and before he had finished the exhortation, Jiggles had disappeared.

"Well, it's good advice," said Jack. Jim wagged his tail in assent, and half an hour afterwards—it was nearly twelve o'clock—Jack, beautifully dressed with that careless care which distinguishes the class of Mr. John Vandeleur Desborough Chalfont and is the despair of the ambitious class below it, sauntered down to the City—sauntered in scarcely the word; for there was the self-possessed bearing, the easy, graceful gait of the athlete in his movements, and that peculiar air about him which conveys to the observer the idea that the young man did not buy Fleet Street, Cheapside, and the Mansion House because, he didn't want them."

In his pleasant, free-and-easy way he inquired of a rushing passer-by the whereabouts of 203, Cophthall Buildings; and, having arrived there, was led to a luxurious and richly appointed waiting-room, whence, ten minutes afterwards, he was escorted, by an individual who looked like something between a porter and a footman, to another room, by no means so luxuriously furnished as that which he had left, where, at a desk, sat a man who raised his head and regarded Jack fixedly.

The man in the chair, before the large table covered with important-looking documents, was of rather more than middle age and middle height; he was sturdy and heavy of figure; his features were roughly hewn, and the iron-grey hair over his massive brow was coarse and somewhat tousled, as if he had juggled the time spent in brushing it. Jack, careless observer as he was, could not help noting, and was somewhat impressed by the expression in the man's eyes. They were searching and in a heavy way, piercing; but mixed with the intensity of the scrutiny was a kind of furtiveness—a hint, just a hint, of uncertainty and doubt. This curious expression was transient, scarcely more than momentary; but Jack had seen it, and it was stamped on his mind.

"So you've come, Mr. John Chalfont!" said Mr. Chalfont without the least hesitation to the man; "I'm much obliged to you." The voice had a note of roughness, like the appearance of the man; but it was low and slow, and impressed the listener with a sense of strength and self-reliance.

"Yes, I've come, sir," said Jack, in his pleasant voice, and with the well-bred, easy air which distinguished him, "though I can't think why on earth you wanted to see me," he added, with a smile.

"I'll explain," said Mr. Chalfont; and he pointed a thick finger to a chair. "Sit down, will you? Half a moment!" He touched a bell; a clerk came in and stood deferentially. "Tell Mr. Jones to buy thirty thousand Polychromes at fifty shillings and a third."

As the clerk bowed and withdrew as deferentially, Mr. Chalfont swung round in his chair, gripped his knees with his thick hands, and bending his brows on Jack, said:

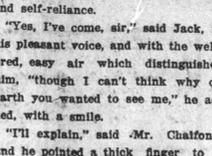

"I saw your name in one of the sporting papers—account of an amateur boxing match. Of course, I was attracted by the fact that your name resembled mine. But we're no relations," he went on, a little more quickly; "I've found that out. I made inquiries."

Without turning, he stretched out his great hand and took up a sheet of paper from the table. "You belong to the old Chalfonts; I don't; my family don't amount to anything; in fact, I don't know anything about it. I'm what is called a 'self-made man,' Mr. Chalfont. Come to that, we are all self-made men; we start as babies, and I reckon we, more than other persons, have the making of ourselves. I can remember running about barefoot, with nothing on my head and precious little in my stomach. Like a good many others, I left the Old Country and went to one of the new ones—Australia, as a matter of fact. I roughed it there for a good many years, and then I struck oil—or rather, gold."

Fashion Plates

A Dainty and becoming negligee.

2388—Figured crepe, dotted Swiss, lawn, batiste, organdy, Chims silk, washable satin, albatross and cashmere are all nice for this model. The sleeve and waist are cut in one, and gathered to the shaped skirt portions. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 32-34; Medium, 36-38; Large, 40-42; Extra Large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size Medium will require 5 1/2 yards of 36-inch material. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

"So I've heard, sir," said Jack, who was much interested not only in Mr. Chalfont's sketchy account of his past, but in the man himself.

"Yes, my story's pretty well known," said the elder man, with just a touch of complacency. "You see, the start's the thing. Once you've struck oil in one place it 'pears to spring up all round you. I've got interests in ever so many parts of the world; mines in Australia, Mexico, America; concessions in civilized and uncivilized countries; grants—ah, well, I needn't swagger about it; and I'd better come to business at once. Mr. Chalfont, I've made my pile, I've got my place here in the Old Country, in the great City of London, and it's a pretty high place, so I'm given to understand; but I've got no wife, no chick nor child, no one belonging to me, and I'm what you might call a lonely man. Friends—oh, yes, any number of friends." He smiled grimly. "A rich man is never wanting them. But most of my friends are ladies and gentlemen who like to eat my dinners, and always with their tongues lolling out for Stock Exchange tips. They say that a man will do anything to get an order for a theatre; but I reckon there's nothing he won't do to get a tip on the Exchange."

"I suppose it's human nature, sir," remarked Jack, consolingly.

"Yes, I suppose so; but I don't set much store by such friends; and I want one, a real one."

"If you're meaning me," said Jack, with his sometimes disconcerting frankness, "I'm a poor man, and may be just as keen on a dinner at the Carlton and a good tip as any of the others."

Reading History Aright.

(From the New York Outlook.) In order to understand the British we must understand some of the reasons why we have not fully understood them. One of these reasons is to be found in our history. We think of George III., against whom we revolted, as an English King, whereas in fact he was a German. We think of our revolution as a struggle with the English people, whereas it was a struggle of the English people against an un-English Government. One reason why we have misunderstood the English is that we have misread our own history.

THE POLAND QUESTION.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 12. No solution of the Polish question has yet been found, according to the Berlin Voestische Zeitung, and the whole matter will be taken up at the Berlin conference between Admiral Paul von Hintze, the German Foreign Secretary, and Baron Burián, the Austrian Foreign Minister. Representatives of Poland will not be called in to the conference until an agreement is reached as to the terms of a proposed Austro-Polish solution of the question which the Voestische Zeitung says is in favour of Germany. There is no reason to expect Baron Burián's resignation, says the newspaper, until the Austro-Polish solution is finally rejected, if it is to be rejected.

PASSPORTS GRANTED TO RUSSIAN SOCIALISTS.

LONDON, Sept. 10. Passports have been granted to the Russian social revolutionaries to delegates to the Inter-Allied Labor Conference, which will begin its session in London next Tuesday. The delegates have been at Stockholm for weeks, awaiting a permit to proceed to England, where they are expected next week.

GIVING SECRETS TO GERMANY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. Information has been obtained that Miss Wanda Kretzinger, a Postal Telegraph Company operator who was taken into custody here to-day has transmitted directly to the German Government important information regarding munition shipments through her cables, according to a statement tonight by Federal officials.

GERMANY'S MAN POWER.

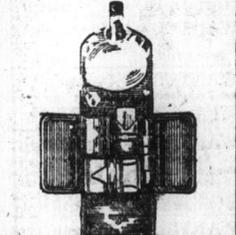

WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN FRANCE, Sept. 11. (By the A.P.)—In their frantic efforts to stem the tide of the Entente Allied advance, the German high command has been taking divisions out of quiet sectors around Verdun and in the Woerwe and Lorraine, where they had been sent to recuperate, and is putting them into the line after short rests and recuperation. The Entente Allied military authorities have compiled some interesting information regarding the present strain on the German man-power. In this connection the following schedule of work thrown upon the German troops speaks for itself: In a certain sector four German divisions were withdrawn. After five weeks they went to a reserve area. After two weeks of rest and training, and then returned to the big battle. In July another four divisions were withdrawn. After being in a quiet sector for five weeks and a half, they were allowed to train only two weeks before being engaged again. In August 42 divisions were withdrawn from a quiet sector, but it was not until they had consumed several weeks that they were reconstituted.

FRIDAY, September 13, 1918.

The Hindenburg Line

It is probably at least half accidental that the present breathing space (for that is what it literally is) on the Western front has occurred just as the German retreat has reached the now famous Hindenburg line; but the coincidence will undoubtedly add undesired prestige to that system of defences. Not only the break in the weather but the very speed of the pursuit has temporarily halted the Allies, and to these facts, which were only to be expected, quite as much as to any inherent strength of the line or any massing of enemy reserves, the present lull is to be attributed. There is, indeed, nothing magical about the Hindenburg line, unless it be its name, and that carries somewhat less terror than formerly. It has never been really tested. It was merely the line selected, for its natural advantages, by the Germans early last year, when their Somme positions had become untenable. After their prepared retreat the line withstood the Allies' attacks simply because the requisite superior forces were wanting to make them successful, a truth clearly demonstrated by the comeback of the Germans after Byng's surprise attack before Cambrai had, in fact, smashed the line in convincing fashion. Even then Germany was beginning to reap the benefits of the Russian debacle, the full fruits of which were so nearly disastrous to the Allies this year.

This time—and it will be very soon—Byng's feat is likely to be duplicated several times and in many places, and we do not anticipate many "comebacks." The question is now less whether the Allies have the strength to break the Hindenburg line than whether the Germans have the strength to defend it. It is hardly worth while speculating upon an event which must so soon declare itself, but it is heartening to note a few of the factors in the situation which point to an answer favourable to the Allies.

In the first place, they are tactically much better placed than at any time last summer to initiate the great attack. Some critics, notably Frank Simonds, consider that the advance of the British beyond the Scarpe and across the Brocourt-Queant switch-line has already placed the issue beyond doubt, and the report, though it is nothing more, that the Germans are evacuating Douai lends colour to that optimistic opinion. Further, at the other end of the line St. Quentin is practically inviolate and La Fere threatened—both points of supreme importance. And it must be remembered that the enemy must hold every part of this line or retire the whole of it. There is no need to dilate upon the certain effect of such a retirement; it would hardly pause until the Rhine was reached.

Again the Allies not only retain the initiative—Foch, not Ludendorff, will deal the next blow—but have an increasing numerical superiority to count on. The levies, on the one hand, which Germany is making on man-power that is only less essential than the firing-line, and on the other the fact that of an army of a million and a half only a relatively small number of Americans have yet participated in the active operations, are sufficient proof of this. Finally, there is the factor which, though only to be depended upon as a hypothesis, can, and the end probably will, be the most important of all, the increasing demoralization spreading through the enemy ranks. The sense of recent defeat and a hopeless outlook, the knowledge that to fight on is not to win victory but to avert defeat, are impressing themselves with growing effect upon the German armies. The courage of despair is a formidable thing when the fight is to the death, but when people and safety can be found in surrender the German soldier is not of the stuff which will hold out to the last. It is a bad thing for an army when the habit of surrendering becomes as frequent as it has lately been among the enemy and infers even tried and seasoned troops.

Any or all of these factors can easily be exaggerated but they form a hopeful sum. In any case it is certain that the swiftly approaching battle will prove, when it breaks, the greatest in extent and effect of the whole war.

Oporto Fish Prices

The accompanying letter, dated August 10th, has been received by the Board of Trade from Lind Couta, of Oporto: "The market is dull owing to abundant supplies of fresh sardines. Sales to the northern provinces have been affected by railway strikes and food riots in the country towns, which resulted in many orders being cancelled. The first arrivals of winter and spring fish have not aroused much enthusiasm owing to heavy arrivals of old cure, prices for which must decline considerably. The rate of exchange is 90/104."

WAR REVIEW.

The American First Army, under command of General Pershing, is in motion against the Germans on a twenty mile front on the famous St. Mihiel salient in Lorraine, which has stood as a sharp wedge in the French line southeast of Verdun since the commencement of the war. In the preliminary thrust ground was gained on both sides of the triangle and also at its apex at St. Mihiel, and at last accounts the Americans, with which some French troops are brigaded, were fast sweeping across the salient in an effort to close the mouth of the big pocket before the Germans can extricate themselves from the perilous position they are in, as a result of the suddenness of the blow and the element of surprise it carried with it. Although the advance of the Americans was swift and sure and gains in excess of four miles on the southern side of the battle area were made, the cavalry far outstripped the tanks and footmen and was last reported operating along the railroad near Vigneulles, almost in the centre of the salient and some ten miles northeast of St. Mihiel and also northward of Pont a Mousson, through the forests and along the railway line running northward to Metz, the great German fortress, the southern outposts of which are less than two miles distant. Thiaucourt, Bouillonville, Pannes and several other towns in the south were captured in the initial dash, while on the west to the northern edge of the pocket the village of Combres was captured, and its environs, Dommartin and Le Montagne, were reached. To the south everywhere the Americans penetrated into the heights of the Meuse, and the French fought their way into the outskirts of St. Mihiel. Unofficial reports are that the town has been captured by the French. The fighting front at the commencement of the battle aggregated twenty miles, eight miles on the western side and twelve miles on the southern side. The fighting was preceded by an extremely heavy artillery bombardment, and the troops and tanks advanced under barrage, which was carried out with mathematical precision. From the war maps it would seem almost impossible for the Germans to evacuate the salient, as they apparently are trying to do, although they are offering resistance with machine guns and artillery, with huge losses in men and material. The first reports show that the Americans took seven hundred prisoners in the first stages of the battle, and had suffered remarkably small casualties. The strategy of Marshal Foch in the present manoeuvre cannot be foreseen, except that it has as the first objective the leveling of the St. Mihiel sector and the straightening of the Allied line from the region of Verdun eastward. The obliteration of the salient would be necessary before a direct thrust toward German territory from this region would be possible. Whether Marshal Foch has in view a campaign up the Meuse Valley, or Metz and the Moselle Valley in mind, it remains to be seen. In the north, Field Marshal Haig is still hard after the Germans in the region of Cambrai. Here he again has advanced his front toward the much desired German base, penetrated into the old British defensive line, crossed the Canal Du Nord north of Havrincourt, took Havrincourt and another section of the Hindenburg line, and sent a thousand Germans into the British prisoner cages in the rear. The Germans fought hard at Havrincourt to stay the British, but all their counter attacks were beaten off. Further advances for the British also are reported in the region south of LaBassee Canal and northwest of Armentieres.

AMERICAN OFFENSIVE.

PARIS, Sept. 12.
The first American offensive which began at daybreak to-day between the Meuse and Moselle Rivers was conducted under General Pershing's personal supervision and was executed under orders of American officers and American soldiers. This was the first distinctly American operation of a minor character launched on the Western front.

AMERICANS TAKE TOWNS.

LONDON, Sept. 12.
American troops on the Lorraine front, have captured the towns of Thiaucourt, Pannes and Nousard. North of St. Mihiel, General Pershing's forces have captured Combres. They are reported to have reached the western outskirts of Dommartin Lamontagne. French troops co-operating with the Americans in their drive on the St. Mihiel salient have reached the western outskirts of St. Mihiel. The Americans attacked on an eleven-mile front from Fay End to Taty Givray, and made an advance at its most to a depth of five miles. Thiaucourt was captured early in the drive. From that town the battle line runs a little to the south of Bouillonville, then to Pannes and Nousard, which were captured, to Bois Degare and north of Montauban. American cavalry patrols are moving in the direction of Vigneulles, ten miles northeast of St. Mihiel.

My Dream Community.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Some original friends of ours were telling us how they amused themselves during a tedious wait in a railroad station by playing desert island. The game consists of having each person choose what five books he would like to take with him if he were cast on a desert island, also what five people he would like to hear from, etc.

This very original game reminded me of a favorite little day dream of my own. Sometimes when I want something amusing to think about I plan a dream community—that is an idealized neighbourhood, in which I live with the people whom I would enjoy having about me (and none of those whom I do not enjoy).

Unsatisfactory Friendships. As one passes through life one makes at each stage more or less friendships. Some of these one happens by accident of propinquity to certain. Other friends, none the less precious (and often more so) one loses sight of. Even those with whom one keeps in touch seldom live within easy dropping-in distance. An evening with them is something that has to be formally arranged for. And when that evening comes one is as likely as not to be completely out of the mood for doing the thing one has planned. One is tired and would like to go to bed and read. Or one is restless and dreads the thought of an evening at cards.

People With The Pick Of Ones Friends. Now my ideal neighbourhood is peopled with the pick of all the friends whom I have made from childhood. They are all to live within easy walking distance of each other, and social intercourse, instead of being a formal, planned-for thing, will be a pleasant informal, happy fellowship. We are all to have about the same incomes so that no one will be pushed into extravagances by the attempt to keep up with the others.

We will do all sorts of simple middle class jolly things and enjoy them, not only because we will have in congenial companionship the same sort of relish for pleasure which hunger is to food. Although I naturally enjoy journalistic and literary people I am not planning to have my community made up wholly of such. It is to represent various professions and interests. There are to be two business men in it, one musician, one lawyer, one college professor, etc., so we will have many points of view.

The Way It Is To Look. My vision of the physical aspects of this community is a pleasant middle class neighbourhood of vari-sized middle class houses, with broad verandas, and, of course, open fire-places, lawns and shrubs and war gardens, watered at night by the men of the house, perambulators on the paths and flyovers and next-to-flyovers standing out in front.

Did you ever people a neighborhood of this sort? Try it sometimes if you haven't. Rather amusing and (chief to be considered in these days) an awfully inexpensive amusement.

Household Notes. Corn pudding made of corn scraped out of the kernels is both delicious and digestible. Eggplant can be stewed just as squash is, only remember that it needs high seasoning. Scalloped macaroni and cysters may well make the main dishes of an autumn dinner.

A salad of onions, sardines, tomatoes and peppers is properly served with brown bread. A delicious war candy for the children is made of popcorn and honey rolled into balls. Yellow will light up the gloomiest of rooms just as green will cool and soften the most garish. Never heard old clothing or household articles—give them to somebody who can use them. Every kitchen should have among its supplies a saw for trimming meat and some larding needles. Whenever possible, have a little pool in your garden—it adds greatly to the charm of the flowers. To freeze cream more quickly, pack the freezer for a few minutes before you put the mixture in.

The Comic Court of William the Worst.

(By Richard Fletcher.)

The Kaiser, the Junkers and the ferocious army were only too eager to keep women in complete subjugation, lest their natural feelings of tenderness would interfere with the elaborate and indubitable war plans. Nor did the Empress play any but the smallest part in the political proglogue of the world tragedy. She would meddle in minor matters, especially when she could appear as censorious of an individual's morals, but so far as any understanding of the intricate problems of race or frontier or nationality was concerned, she had neither the wish nor the capacity to interest herself in subjects which she imagined concerned only the men. It was the Kaiser's parvenu idea to make the court of Berlin a brilliant and fascinating assemblage which would rival the lost glories of Versailles and surpass anything his forefathers had evolved. This last ambition was not difficult of realization. But there was neither enough money nor was Augusta Victoria the ornamental type of woman calculated to be a point of orientation for the splendor and brilliancy which the young husband's animus had prescribed. All the pearls of the Indies and the brocades of Lyons and the sables of Siberia could not transform this plain and ill-poised princess into an ideal Empress-Queen. The Kaiseress was often wont to contrast the Empress with the contemporary occupants of thrones—the mystic and ill-fated Alix of Russia, the young and vivacious Queen of Spain, the beautiful and gracious royal women of Italy who have recently reigned in Rome. But the most envy and invidious comparison were called forth when the imperial eyes scanned the suave and smart court life of London, where King Edward and Queen Alexandra, the idols of their people, continued their peaceful ways. Who knows but that the Kaiser's fancy was not drawn to the ways of democracy of the last two English sovereigns struck the Kaiser as an opportunity to monarchism and that a certain social jealousy weighed heavily with

The Americans and the Truth.

(By the Lord Sydenham of Combe.)

There are two great questions which it is most important that Americans should understand and desperate efforts are made to induce them to believe glaring falsehoods about both. I refer to Ireland and India, which have curious points of resemblance. The more one lives, the more one feels the vast importance of knowledge and truth and the paucity of both. I fear that the conditions of our modern life favor the dissemination of falsehood on a large scale. Has Germany not taught us that lesson? We must be more careful in Ireland to ask ourselves if our impressions have not been "made in Germany?"

Visiting this appalling war, I am not sure that the pen has not been quite as powerful as the sword, and that Germany owes more to the former than to the latter. Some Americans are now learning by personal observation the truth about Ireland. Is it carelessness and irresponsibility of a great part of the press in all countries that tend to make us all inclined to disregard the search for truth? Or is it the ease with which news is obtained that makes us too lazy to check its quality?

I do not know, but the world suffers terribly from insidious propaganda, as Americans must now know.—The Chronicle.

Milard's Liniment Co. Limited. Dear Sirs,—I had, a Bleeding Tumor on my face for a long time and tried a number of remedies without any good results. I was advised to try MILARD'S LINIMENT, and after using several bottles it made a complete cure and it healed all up and disappeared altogether. DAVID HENDERSON. Belleisle Station, King's Co., N. B., Sept. 17, 1914.

HE GUESSED WRONG.

I wonder how the Kaiser feels when he recalls the foolish spells he made a year ago? He laughed to scorn this country's might he wouldn't walk the floor at night for such a phantom foe. We had no perfect war machine; our boys would all be raw and green, too awkward for a scrap; his well drilled men would even think it fun to chivy them with sword and un, and push them off the map. And even if we formed a host, according to our title boast, how would we cross the sea? His submarines would lie in wait and send us diving to our fate, down where the mermaids be. "My aunt," the Kaiser cried, "my worst Americans are too cowardly! I cannot help but see! Just let them butt into the fray, and I will show them, right away, just where they will get off!" Our soldier boys are over there, they wave Old Glory in the air, they cannot be dented; and every time they see a Hun they make him drop his tools and run and hunt a place to hide. I wonder what the Kaiser thinks when he beholds his well drilled, dinky Detachment of the Yanks? I wonder how the Kaiser feels when his brave soldiers show their heels and hike for Amber

THE BRAVE LITTLE MOTHER AT HOME.

Brave little mother at home, Take the word of your lad; His cheeks as an apple are bronzed And the heart of him's glad, And something has come to his soul That peace couldn't give— The joy of a hard-won goal, And a flag that shall live.

Brave little mother at home, The long battles through, The boy that you nursed and you loved— Is thinking of you, With the prayer that you taught, on his lips, He is serving life's needs, And the lesson he learned at your knee Are engraved in his deeds.

Brave little mother at home, Cease to fret and to sigh; I have learned the big lesson of life And it's happy and true, There's a thrill in just being worth while.

And joy in the difficult task, And this mighty adventure for truth Is the one that I'd ask.

Brave little mother at home, Be happy as I am, Keep the smile on your face as you go, And the light in your eye; For whatever the fates have in store, And whatever to-morrow may hold, I want you to think of your boy Not in sorrow, but pride.

HOW A YOUNG GIRL SUFFERED

And Was Restored to Health By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Told By Her Mother.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for my daughter. She was 15 years of age, very sickly and pale and she had to stay home from school most of the time. She suffered a great deal from backache and dizziness and was without appetite. For three months she was under the doctor's care and got no better, always complaining about her back and side aching so I didn't know what to do. I read in the papers about your wonderful medicine so I made up my mind to try it. She has taken five bottles and doesn't complain any more with her back and side aching. She has gained in weight and feels much better. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers and daughters."—Mrs. M. THOMAS, 516 Marcy Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Day by Day Warner's Rustproof Corsets

are winning friends for our Corset department. Are you one of them, or have you got to wear one of those famous Corsets to realize the comfort, style and service that they give? What a satisfaction to know when you purchase your Corset that it will wear out only with time—not because it is faulty in fabric or bone, or off in cut. Of this you are confident when you buy a Warner's. The shaping and comfortable fitting are assured through your selection of the right style for you,—and there is one. $2.00 per pair up.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

AMERICAN TROOPS TAKE PRISONERS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12. American troops operating in the Rhine sector made considerable gains to-day, General Pershing reports in his communique to the War Department late to-night. Already eight thousand prisoners have been counted and the movement still is in progress.

AMERICAN ATTACK LAUNCHED THIS MORNING.

PARIS, Sept. 12. An announcement that the American attack was launched this morning was made by Lord Derby, British Ambassador to France, at a luncheon to-day, given by the British press representatives of Paris to a number of Australian, New Zealand and South African officers, now making an official visit to France, and according to news reaching me since this lunch began, Lord Derby added, the attack is proceeding most satisfactorily. We can hope that the news will continue better and better and in the future years we will be able to recall this lunch as the date of the commencement of the end.

"ON TO BERLIN"

NEW YORK, Sept. 12. New York's new army, nearly a million strong, marched to registration centers to-day, voicing in all the fifty long tongues of the Polygon city, their willingness to join General Pershing's men overseas, as news of the first great American offensive was spread through the long lines of waiting registrants throughout the city went up, "On to Berlin!"

BRITISH TROOPS STORM HAVRIN-COULT.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 12. (By the A.P.)—British troops stormed their way to-day into the shell shattered town of Havrincourt, which lies on a dominating ridge within the forward defenses of the Hindenburg line, and at least reports were maintaining their hold on this highly important place. A little to the south they also carried Trucsessult by assault, thereby gaining a still firmer grip on the high ground dominating these regions.

HAN AND NOTON DESTROYED BY FIRE.

FRENCH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 12. (Reuter's.)—Han, the largest town in the devastated country since the Germans were driven westward yesterday, was visited with destruction even more complete and more sudden, than Noton, which they had previously destroyed by fire, when the inhabitants were placed in the houses and fires started by pressing bottom mines away, for the blowing up of the bridges, and foresting the roads against pursuit is invalid. The destruction of the bridges alone made it impossible for the French to enter the town until they had been restored.

NEW GOVERNOR FOR COLOMBO.

LONDON, Sept. 12. (Reuter's.)—Reuter's correspondent at Colombo, Ceylon, cables that the new Governor, Sir W. H. Manning has arrived. The Ceylon Times says he is expected to exercise greater responsibility within limits, representing the natural ambitions of an educated and loyal people. The late Governor held definite views and everyone is anxious to see whether he placed at the disposal of the Colonial Office sufficient data to cause the Imperial Government to entrust to Governor Manning a definite policy, or whether investigations are to be made anew.

WEATHER RETARD PROGRESS.

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 12. (Reuter's.)—Continued rain has retarded progress and has resulted in much close fighting. Things are clearer towards Wednesday evening when the weather temporarily

AMERICAN TROOPS TAKE PRISONERS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—American troops operating in the Meuse valley sector made considerable gains to-day, General Pershing reports. In his communique to the War Department late to-night. Already eight hundred prisoners have been counted and the movement still is in progress.

HAM AND NOYON DESTROYED BY FIRE.

FRENCH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 12. (Reuter's.)—Ham, the largest town in the devastated country which the Germans spared in their retreat yesterday, was "visited" with destruction even more complete and more final, than Noyon, which they systematically destroyed by fire, when the inhabitants were placed in the bomb zone and fired started by pressing tanks miles away, for the blowing up of the bridges. Ham has not suffered previous by shell, they neither are being interested in bombarding the place. The only excuse the Germans could make, that it blocked the roads against pursuit is invalid. The destruction of the bridges alone made it impossible for the French to enter the town until they had been restored.

NEW GOVERNOR FOR COLOMBO.

LONDON, Sept. 12. (Reuter's.)—Reuter's correspondent at Colombo, Ceylon, cables: The new Governor, Sir W. H. Manning has arrived. The Ceylon Times says he is loved by the people of Ceylon and is expected to bring about a more liberal and more progressive administration, within limits, representing the national ambitions of an educated and well people. The late Governor held similar views and everyone is anxious to see whether he placed at the disposal of the Colonial Office sufficient data to cause the Imperial Government to entrust to Governor Manning a definite policy, or whether investigations are to be made anew.

The proper care of wet shoes

The high cost of shoes makes it imperative to use every means to make them last as long as possible. Moisture is their worst enemy. It dries and cracks the leather, ruins their shape and shortens their life of wear.

You can save yourself many a dollar by using "Fittall" Shoe Trees in your shoes. They not only immediately restore them to their original shape, but make your shoes wear longer and give you infinitely greater comfort.

improved. The enemy was evidently uneasy regarding our intentions in the sector between Goussaucourt and Eperhey. He shelled Gausche Wood and vicinity persistently with gas and also trained machine gun fire against our front. Between Hill 63 and Roost-west fighting was still proceeding this afternoon, and about three (?) German prisoners have been sent back to the cages. The attack was begun this morning in the midst of rain, which has been falling for several days, but because of the elevation of this ridge, however, the ground was not in a particularly bad condition.

THE FIRST BLOW.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The assault on the St. Mihiel salient is dominating the news columns of the papers to-day which feature it with the biggest headlines. The opening blow in Marshal Foch's great offensive scheme claims attention, in any case, but this one has a special attraction, as the first stroke of the independent American army under direct American command, and as such is hailed as one of the milestones of the war.

AUSTRIANS PREPARING TO ATTACK.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—A despatch to the Daily News from Rome says the impression prevails there that the Austrians are preparing an attack in force on the Italian front and there is reason to believe they will begin their offensive before the summer is over.

HUNS DESTROY EVERYTHING.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—President Poincare has paid a visit to the front to observe the condition of the troops in the zone newly liberated, and to describe the regions where the enemy carried out systematized destruction before retiring. Accompanied by Generals Foch and Humbert he inspected Chanay, Noyon, Pesle, Guiscard and Ham. The country roads were found littered with war material left behind by the enemy in his hurried retreat; all the trees bordering these roads and the fruit orchards had been cut down;

WINS "WORLD RACE" IN LONDON SPORTS.

By the last English mail a lady in the city received an interesting account of the annual London sports held a few weeks ago in which special mention is made of a race for women from different countries. In the line up were representatives of England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Newfoundland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, America and France. The distance to be covered was a quarter of a mile and at the time of starting the excitement amongst the thousands of spectators had reached its highest pitch. Newfoundland was ably represented by Miss Jean Coultas, V.A.D., who at the crack of the starter's pistol sprang for the tape line four hundred and forty yards distant, which she reached far in advance of her competitors, thus bringing Newfoundland again to the fore. Miss Coultas is a daughter of Mrs. E. Coultas, York Street, and was now engaged as a V. A. D. at Wandsworth Hospital. In several other events Miss Coultas was also successful in carrying off the prizes.

Blame the Nerves

When you cannot sleep and are easily irritated and worried you have reason to suspect that the nerves are below normal. They are not getting proper nourishment from the food you eat and need a little special help. A few weeks' treatment with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will do wonders for anyone in this condition. Note your increase in weight while using this food cure.

Along the Waterfront.

Yesterday, Job's new vessel, the James G. Joy, arrived in port, and she now lies alongside their wharf. The J. G. Joy is a three-master, was built by the Nova Scotia Shipbuilding and Transportation Co., Liverpool, N.S., and was launched in July. She is 365 tons gross, 347 net, and has an auxiliary Morse Parbanks engine. Capt. Tuff is in command. This morning a diver was down examining her bottom. She will be used in the fish trade.

There was another new vessel at Job's wharf this morning, the Ronald B. from Green's Harbor, T.B. She was built by Mr. James Green of that place, who launched her three weeks ago. She is a handsome little schooner of 40 tons gross, has hard pine deck, plank and ceiling, and was built for the bounty. Her owner is Mr. Geo. McWilliam. Mr. Green is now ready for building another and we feel sure that the buyer will be well pleased with his purchase.

The s.s. Portia, Capt. Parsons, arrived from western ports last evening after a quick round trip. In the first part of the voyage fine weather was experienced, but on the return trip was met with and but little headway could be made. The Portia brought a large quantity of freight and the following passengers: E. Crossman, J. Brett, C. Stanford, G. Keating, C. Stone, L. Burdick, J. Chubb, R. Barnes, J. Matthews, Sergt. L. Spenser, Master Daley, Master Haines (U), W. O'Neil, G. Harvey, W. Boland, Const. Peddie, G. Gault, Mann, Keefe, Halleran, Madames Lasser, Collins, Tule, Pike, Mayo, Daley, Misses Lasser, Bennett, Fritman, Connolly in saloon and 21 second class. The Portia will sail on Tuesday.

Obituary.

MASTER JACK WALSH.
At the early age of 11 years, Master Jack Walsh, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Walsh, Gower Street, peacefully last night to his eternal reward. During an illness of more than three months, he bore his sufferings with exemplary courage and fortitude, and whilst the end was not altogether unexpected, he will be sorely missed by his devoted parents and family. He was a promising pupil of St. Rose's College and was held in the highest esteem by his teachers, whilst among his classmates he was a prime favorite, and the early death of this gentle, lovable boy will be sincerely regretted by all who knew him. The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock on Tuesday at the residence of his parents, on the sad loss they have sustained.

THE PRINCE'S POST-WAR TOUR.

When the Prince of Wales sets out on his post-war tour of the Empire His Royal Highness will be following in the footsteps of his father, but at a much greater distance of time. The Prince of Wales, well on in his twenties, has found his travels confined to the continent of Europe and Egypt, and owing to the war it is doubtful if he has seen anything of these countries in their natural habit. But while still in his teens King George had toured the world in the Bacchante, the tour including South Africa, Australia, China, Japan, Fiji, Egypt, and the Holy Land. It was after visiting the Pool of Siloam that the King—Prince George as he then was—submitted to the operations of a Japanese tattooer, who decorated him with the five crosses and three crowns of Jerusalem.

THE RAILWAY STATION.

If the great railway stations for the south and west of England do not show the frenzied holiday scenes that certain reports lead one to expect, they are at least far more crowded with long-distance passengers and more heaped with unnecessary luggage than seems quite decent in wartime. The rush begins with the day, and at Victoria Station mothers with crowds of children are lined up waiting in the dawn long before the 6.15 sets out. As usual, most of the holiday-makers are women and children with a fair sprinkling of schoolboys and girls in uniforms. They pack the trains for Brighton, the Isle of Wight, and the far west, and steam away to a holiday expensive in every way, followed by resentful eyes. At the end of this week the munition workers' holidays have begun, and the trains to-day will be rushed by thousands of Londoners, some of whom, until last year, never saw the country or a cow. It is quite likely that many of them will take care not to have undulated country this year. A very few days of fields and trees and calm were enough to convince them last summer that there was nothing in the world like London, and this year they will only go to places where they can find some civilised joys.

THE TAX ON LUXURIES.

After many months of arduous work the committee appointed to determine what are luxuries, and therefore things to be taxed, has finished its labors and the remainder of the matter now lies with the House of Commons. The taxation will not be introduced, it is expected, until the New Year and it will then be at the rate of twopence in the shilling. Although the full report is not yet published I learn that the list of luxuries includes a great many very interesting things. For example, men's boots when they cost more than £2 per pair are taxable. Above £1.15s women's hats become luxuries, as do cradles if they exceed £2 and perambulators if they exceed £10. Furniture figures prominently. A pair of £10 is fixed for dining, drawing and bedroom suites. Higher prices for these will be taxed. Motor bicycles above £50, horse-drawn vehicles above £40, bicycles above £15, dogs above £5 and cameras above 15s. become automatically luxuries. So also do cigars if more than 9d. each, tobaccos at more than 1s. per ounce, and cigarettes at more than 1s.11d. per ounce. Wines and spirits also figure and books, silks, furs, perfumes, fans, precious stones, jewelry (except wedding rings) liveries, yachts, works of art, pianos, billiard tables, houses and stockings and other garments which need not be specified here. The limit for a dinner at a restaurant or hotel is 6s. and at a club 4s. whilst for tea, if more than 1s. is paid, a luxury tax will be imposed.

KAISER'S BAD TEMPER.

From communications which have reached a well-informed quarter here it is apparent beyond doubt that the conduct of the Kaiser has recently become so unbecomingly towards Ministers, members of his suite, and staff alike, that it is with the greatest difficulty that they can work with him. Early in July, it is said the whole staff of the Palace in Berlin resigned, from the Ober-Marshall downwards, and they withdrew their resignations, it is reported, only on the earnest entreaty of the Emperor. Three members at least of the Kaiser's suite have however, left him and sought shelter in Switzerland, and while it is easy to suppose that the distressing and disappointing nature of the war, and especially those of most recent date, may have affected the Imperial temper there is evidence that the Emperor's old ear trouble has lately become more virulent in form.

THE HUN AND BRITISH PRISONERS.

It is in the highest degree gratifying to learn that there is no longer any official objection to the publication of the statements of returned prisoners of war regarding their treatment in Germany. According to Earl Stanhope, speaking on behalf of the Government, the War Office feels that the more publicity is given to these stories the better. They were just the things the country ought to know, because any idea of an unsatisfactory peace is far less likely to be accepted in this country if the truth as to the treatment of our prisoners in Germany is understood. I do not know when the Government came round to this position, nor do I think it was known that the official view was as stated by Lord Stanhope. Publication of the experiences of our men in Germany was, so we understood, discouraged, because it was thought the Germans would make things worse for those left in captivity. Evidently the Government now believe that nothing the Huns could do to our men would be worse than they have done, and has accordingly withdrawn the embargo. That is a right decision. To guard against the danger of a premature peace the country ought to be kept constantly and fully informed of the brutalities inflicted by a dishonorable and dishonored enemy, with whom the pacifists ask us to effect an "honorable compromise."

THE GENERAL ELECTION.

It is believed that the predictions of a General Election in November actually represent Lloyd George's intentions and that the Prime Minister desires to consult the country then and obtain a mandate for carrying the war to a successful conclusion. If the successful resistance of the French is followed by a German peace move this autumn, the British Government will be able to await the opening of negotiations conscious that it has behind it a newly-elected Parliament representing the views of the nation and of the army on the terms to be allowed to the enemy. The Government is also to set before the country at the General Election extensive proposals against German trade, and for social reform after the war. Its labor supporters are confident that Lloyd George will advocate a continuance of State control over mines, railways and shipping. At a November election the British troops in France and Italy would be able to vote. On the other hand, the arrangements for recording the opinions of those in the East would be incomplete.

GERMAN USE OF TEXTILE SUBSTITUTES.

A report has been prepared by the Government for the information of the textile trades of a German technical account of the textile exhibition at Dusseldorf, in which substitutes for real textiles play a prominent part. From this it appears that whilst a number of manufacturers have been most successful in adapting paper substitutes for some articles others have turned out work which leaves much to be desired. For instance, it is recorded that the clothes question in paper substitutes still requires developing. No one, it is added, wants to wear the substitute Chevrolet made of paper, as the tissue is far too coarse and looks lumpy and rough. It is suggested that the paper tissues for paper clothing should be spun into

CARE FOR SUMMER FRECKLES.

If you are a blonde you are apt to freckle this summer, instead of burning, and I know just how much of a rage these same freckles can be in the feminine heart. Yet I know a girl whose freckles give her a quaint, tomboyish charm that is irresistible. However, the charm of freckles is rare and seldom found, and most of us wish to exercise them. I know of no better cream for the purpose than the one I give you here. Petroleum, one ounce; lanolin, one ounce; hydrogen, one fluid ounce; acetic acid, one fluid dram.

What About These Coal Shares?

The opportunity is a good one. $25,000,000 worth of stock has been placed on the market, and to the purchaser of each one of these shares three extra shares are given free of cost. This makes the purchaser of each one dollar share the owner of four fully paid up shares in the company. The company also guarantees that none of the above shares will be subject to any further call. The opportunity to invest is open to everybody. Get busy before it is too late; no bonus shares will be given after the present allotment is disposed of.

gen, one fluid ounce; acetic acid, one fluid dram.

When the face is given to becoming excessively oily in hot weather an application of toilet cologne after each washing will prove a great preventative of this unpleasantness. For excessive perspiration there is a pleasant orris powder that can be used on any part of the body. It is especially good for perspiring hands before donning gloves and for the armpits. It is made by combining three fluid drams of phenic starch and a little essence of violet. Dissolve the acid in the alcohol, add the violet essence, then the starch and orris root.

I have in mind an excellent cream which is used principally for sunburn and which may be applied before going into the sun or even after the face has become burned. White petroleum two and a half ounces; paraffin wax, one quarter ounce; lanolin, one ounce; water, one and a half ounces; oil of rose, three drops; alcohol, one half dram.

NEARING ST. MIHEL.

LONDON, Sept. 13.
At St. Miheil, where the French have reached the western outskirt, the Germans are making a strong resistance. The Germans still hold the Roman Fort which is now being attacked by the French. Northwest of Pont a Mousson American cavalry patrols are reported to be operating on the road to the Bois Communaux.

FURTHER BRITISH PROGRESS.

LONDON, Sept. 12.
The British have made further progress towards Cambrai, having captured the towns of Havrincourt, Trescault and Moeuvres, penetrated onto the old British defense line at several places and crossed the Canal Du Nord north of Havrincourt, according to Field Marshal Haig's communication issued to-night. Approximately a thousand Germans were made prisoners in the operations. The text of the statement follows: Our operations in the Havrincourt sector were continued with great success this morning in spite of unfavorable weather. English troops attacked and captured Trescault and the old British trench lines to the east and north of it. On the right New Zealand troops made progress east of Gouzeaucourt Wood, overcoming the obstinate resistance of a German Jaeger division. At Havrincourt the 62nd Yorkshire division, which carried the village on November 20th, 1917, attacked for a second time over the same ground and with like success.
Other English troops attacked across the Canal Du Nord, north of Havrin-court. After sharp fighting our troops captured the village, together with the section of the Hindenburg line between the village and the Canal.
North of the Bapaume-Cambrai road, Lancashire troops completed the capture of Moeuvres also, after sharp fighting. About one thousand prisoners have been taken by us in these operations.

STILL ADVANCING.

LONDON, Sept. 12.
British troops have captured the towns of Vermand, Attilly and Vendelles, all on a front northwest of St.
Quentin. Field Marshal Haig announced in his official statement today. In their advance toward St.
Quentin the British have progressed as far as the western outskirts of Holmes Wood, southeast of Attilly.
The Germans offered stiff opposition in the Havrincourt and Moeuvres sectors which the British overcame.

NEARING CAMBRAI.

LONDON, Sept. 13.
British forces have effected a crossing of the Canal Du Nord to the northwest of the town of Havrincourt, Field Marshal Haig announced in his official report to-day. The Canal line here forms the main defence of Cambrai on the southwest. A short distance to the north the British have pushed to the western bank of the Canal, east and north of Moeuvres and established themselves there.

WILL BE REJECTED.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 12.
Emperor William said at Essen, that it took two to make peace, that one could not do it unless he could overcome the other. Germany, he declared, was confronted with her enemies who wished to destroy her, and she must place against this her determination to preserve her existence.
After mentioning his offers of peace,
the Emperor said the German leaders had made it plain to everyone who wished to understand, that we are at all times ready to offer the hand of peace.

AMERICAN ATTACK.

AMERICAN FORCES ON THE LORRAINE FRONT, Sept. 12.—American forces this morning launched an attack on German positions. At nine o'clock they had progressed generally along the line. Some prisoners were taken at different parts of the sector. The first wave of Americans met with little resistance.

SIR GEORGE REID DEAD.

LONDON, Sept. 12.
Sir George Reid, former High Commissioner for Australia and Member of Parliament for St. George's, died in London to-day after a prolonged illness. Sir George Houston Reid was born in Scotland but lived for many years in Australia. He held the post of Premier of Australia and Prime Minister of New South Wales.

GOVERNMENT RESEATED.

ARCHANGEL, NORTHERN EU-ROPEAN RUSSIA, Sept. 12.—After a conference with the Entente Allied diplomatic and military chiefs, the Tschalkovsky Provisional Government, which recently was overthrown, was re-seated to-day, and will continue to direct the affairs in the region of the north with the advice of the Allies.

AGITATION IN CROATIA.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.
Agitation and revolutionary activity are so prevalent in Croatia that if the situation does not soon change, an astrope must be feared, according to the Vienna Reichspost.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

After 6 o'clock to-night we will only offer HALF the number of FREE shares with every Bond of the Spokane Valley Railway. The following table gives the present bonus, also the one in effect to-morrow morning.

Maturity	Bond Value	Present Bonus	After To-night
1919	$100	$50	$20
1920	$100	$50	$25
1921	$100	$50	$30
1922	$100	$50	$40

The Railroad is now on a firm basis with an established earning power, and the shares we have been giving away FREE are worth practically FACE VALUE. Clients can thus make big profit by investing in Railway Bonds before 6 o'clock to-night.
