CHAPTER XX.
HIS CONFESSION.

"Doctor, that is why I wished to speak with you, to ask for the plain truth, is Royall Sherwood going to live or die?"

"The issues of life and death are in God's hands alone," answered the doctor.

"But you are skilled in reading the signs, and you told Mrs. Fleming that he had one chance of life."

"Yes, I told her so; but it is so very slight, and life hangs on a thread. The operation to remove the bullet was very exhausting, but successful. He lies now in a comatose condition, from which he may rally to make a struggle for renewed existence, or he may sink soon into the sleep of death."

"Death! What an awfully solemn word it was! How it shook her nerves! She burst into hysterical sobs, and Doctor Burns hastily prepared a sedative, and forced her to swallow it. "You need it. It will give you sleep," he said gently.

"You have promised to be my friend, so tell me what to do. You understand, I mean to be free of this marriage, whether Mr. Sherwood lives or dies? Then what must I do? Leave the house to-day?"

"Most certainly not! To do so would destroy his one chance of life," he exclaimed, with the anxiety of a physician.

"But, doctor, he need not know," she cried piteously.

"It would be impossible to keep him from it. It would be harsh and cruel to destroy his one chance to live by the shock of such a desertion." Doctor Burns replied, telling her the truth without disguise, in his anxiety over his patient.

He thought she was going to faint, she turned so white as she clasped her hands on her heart, where pity for Royall Sherwood struggled with passion for her absent lover.

His dark, tender eyes, his noble face, rose before her mind's eye, and she sobbed:

"Oh, that I might see Dallas! He would tell me what to do."

"Shall I bring him here to see you?" he asked quickly.

"Oh, if you only would!"

"Then I will do so this morning, and if he is the noble man I take him for he will bid you stay and save his rival's life, even though you desert him afterwards—although, if my advice were asked, I should say make the best of a bargain, and keep the husband you have already won, since, after all, it's not a bad match. Sherwood has loads of money, and he's not at all a bad fellow."

"I know—I know; but Love goes where it is sent, and I could never care for him as he deserved. Oh, Doctor Burns, don't you turn against me, too, for all are in league to break my heart!" wildly.

"Poor girl—poor girl! Then I'll take your part by going at once to bring Mr. Bain to consult with you. Where shall I find him?"

"At the hotel, I suppose," she returned, adding: "May God bless you for your kindness to a poor, friendless girl!"

"Thank you, I have need of His blessing. And now go, like a good girl, and take a nap until I return with Dallas Bain."

She returned to her room to follow his advice, thinking that, indeed, she would like to look a little fresher when Dallas came.

But in a few minutes Mrs. Fleming entered, saying:

"Royall is awake and asking for you. Will you come?"

Annette, who was dozing on the bed, looked up wearily, and exclaimed:

"Be kind to him, Daisie, so that he may get well. I will help to nurse him; indeed, I will."

Daisie arose and followed Mrs. Fleming to the sick room.

The nurse who was watching by the patient quickly left the room at a gesture from the mistress of the house.

Royall, whose ghastly pallor made him look as if death had already claimed him for its own, smiled feebly on the visitors, and murmured:

"Little, you may go into the next room while I speak to Daisie."

They were alone—the beautiful, wretched girl and the husband who loved her so vainly and was slipping away from her so fast into the darkness of death.

He gazed at her with adoration in his dim blue eyes, and faltered:

"You did not leave me, Daisie. I am so glad, for I do not expect to live long, and I will die happy if you stay by me to the last."

Her heart was touched by his fervent love, and impulsively she smoothed his cold hand caressingly.

But he sighed, and continued:

"I do not deserve your kindness, and I would not dare to accept it—only that I believe I am—slipping away from life."

"Oh, no, no—there is a chance!" she said gently.

"Would you wish me to live, Daisie?"

"Yes—oh, yes!"

"For you, dear?" wistfully.

"Do not let us speak of that now. I am too nervous," she murmured.

"I understand, and I will not tease you by begging for your love—for I have a confession to make to you—my dying confession—and when you have heard it I cannot blame you if you hate me."

How she pitied him now—she who had hated him only last night. But death cancels all resentments.

She wiped the dew from his cold brow with her soft and gentle hand. She stroked his fair curls softly, thinking how handsome he was in his fair style—only no one could approach her splendid lover, Dallas.

"I shall pray God to let you live," she whispered; and a sudden hatred came to her for the fiend whose cowardly bullet had laid low this promising life.

"Wait till I tell you all," he sighed remorsefully. "Ah, Daisie, I have done you a cruel wrong, but I cannot go down to death without confessing it, and then you will hate my very memory."

"No, no—I will forgive you!" she murmured, out of her womanly sympathy.

"Ah, you don't know it yet," Royall Sherwood cried, half accusingly, and added: "I told you last night that I did not know what Little had done, but it was false. I was in the plot to deceive you. I went to her with my troubles, and my fear of losing you, since you were going away, and she suggested the plan to get you to help us last night, and make the wedding a real one. I agreed to it, and won you for my bride by a friend, a hideous lie."

Started beyond the power of speech, she gazed at him in dumb horror.

"Ah, I knew you would hate me! But I could not die without making my peace with God," he moaned faintly.

"I told the preacher about it last night, and he prayed for me, and said I must tell you all, so as to win God's forgiveness and yours. You can forgive me, can't you, since I was so soon cut down in my wickedness, and forced to repent? And, Daisie, I have sent for my lawyer. I shall leave you my whole fortune in atonement, so that you may one day be happy with Dallas Bain."

"I will not accept it—I do not want it!" she cried hastily, adding: "Take my forgiveness freely. You sinned against me through your great love, so I cannot hate you."

A glad smile irradiated his features, and he was about to thank her for her goodness when Doctor Burns entered softly, having returned from his mission into the town.

He expressed his pleasure at seeing Royall "getting on so nicely," as he expressed it. Then he called in the nurse, and beckoned Daisie from the room.

Her heart gave a wild throb of joy, and she followed him eagerly, expecting to behold Dallas the very next moment.

Doctor Burns held open the door, and she stepped eagerly across the threshold, flushing her eyes brightly around in search of Dallas Bain.

But the room was unattended by the splendid form she had expected to see, and the old doctor said gently: "I did not find Mr. Bain. He had gone away."

"Gone away?" And her face paled with astonishment.

"Yes; he left the hotel a little before daylight this morning, telling the clerk he was returning to New York. But sit down, my dear young lady, and call up all your fortitude, for I fear I have most unpleasant news for you," exclaimed Doctor Burns solicitously, and as she sank nervously into the nearest seat he continued: "I almost fear that this Dallas Bain is unworthy of your regard. Has there not always been something mysterious about the young man?"

"Oh, Doctor Burns, do not you also join the ranks of his traducers!" Daisie faltered, clasping her little hands together, tears welling into her beautiful eyes.

Then she looked up into his benevolent old face, and was startled at the fatherly pity that beamed from his kind gray eyes.

Drawing his chair close to hers, he regarded her kindly, saying:

"I have something very strange to tell you, but perhaps you will be able to explain the mystery of it, since you know Mr. Bain so well."

His voice was so grave that he felt an icy chill run over her frame, and her lips refused to utter a word, so he continued:

"About two hours after midnight a young woman dressed in black, and so heavily veiled as to be unrecognizable, called at the hotel, and insisted on having Dallas Bain called up, as she had very important news for him."

"The clerk sent the porter upstairs for Mr. Bain, and he was found up and dressed, not having retired yet. He came down quickly, and the young woman insisted on having a private interview with him. He yielded, and they were alone some moments in the clerk's private office. They came out, and the woman hurried away, and the man, looking as though he had seen a ghost, went quickly upstairs to his room again. In half an hour he came down, paid his bill, and said he was returning to New York by the first train. He had no baggage, having only arrived the evening before, and said he would walk to the train."

"Well, the curious part of the story is, the hotel porter, prompted by curiosity, followed the veiled lady in black. She went directly to the station, and the porter, remaining to watch her, saw her finally board the train for New York. Directly Dallas Bain came hurrying up, and leaped on the train as it was pulling out of the station. (To be Continued.)"

CHAPTER XXI.
SHE LONGED FOR DEATH.

Daisie Bell followed the kindly old physician back to the little room where they had spoken together a while ago, her heart throbbing wildly, her eyes gleaming brightly, her color coming and going with the delightful anticipation of soon meeting her darling.

Doctor Burns held open the door, and she stepped eagerly across the threshold, flushing her eyes brightly around in search of Dallas Bain.

But the room was unattended by the splendid form she had expected to see, and the old doctor said gently: "I did not find Mr. Bain. He had gone away."

Lloyd George At Home Again.

Earthquake in Tuscany--Fatal Fire in Kalmath Falls--Military Lorry Attacked--Two Civilians Killed--Immigration Scheme Not Popular in Australia.

LLOYD GEORGE IN LONDON. LONDON, Sept. 7. Premier Lloyd George reached London unexpectedly to-night from Lucerne. He travelled direct, instead of through Paris, as planned.

AUSTRALIAN TROUBLES. LONDON, Sept. 7. A Sydney cable to the Evening News says that Premier Hughes is attending the Geneva Financial Conference between the Allies, the political situation at home being too delicate, the government having had two narrow escapes within a fortnight. Other Sydney advices report considerable discussion concerning the reduction of Australian naval expenditure, and the whole defence scheme is in the melting pot until the ministry makes up its mind that the country can afford it.

CANADIAN RATES INCREASED. OTTAWA, Sept. 7. By virtue of a judgment, which will be issued from the office of the Board of Railway Commissioners, probably tomorrow, railway companies in Canada are granted an increase of forty per cent, on eastern Canadian freight rates and thirty-five per cent, on western freight rates, effective on Monday next and to continue in force until December 31st. Thereafter the increase in freight and passenger rates all over country will be advanced twenty per cent, so long as they don't exceed four cents a mile. This increase is effective only after December 31st.

NARROW ESCAPE OF T. R. JOPLIN, Mo., Sept. 7. Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt had a narrow escape from death here today while preparing for an airplane flight to Vinco, Okla., to fill speaking dates. The plane ran away with Col. Roosevelt before the pilot had boarded it. Col. Roosevelt managed to jump from the fuselage and land free of the rollers.

THE TIMES AND HUNGER STRIKING. LONDON, Sept. 7. Guarantees that attacks upon police in Ireland must cease are necessary before the government can consider the liberation of MacSweeney and other hunger strikers, says the London Times this morning, in discussing Lloyd George's views on the subject. It says "the policy of leniency has been tried three times already. After the Easter rebellion of 1916 a large number of prisoners were unconditionally released, and twice since then the same thing has been done. The very men let out of prison at once engaged in fresh conspiracies and started murdering police in Ireland all over again." The newspaper declares that the government must either protect the forces in Ireland or withdraw them altogether.

IMMIGRATION SCHEME FAILS. LONDON, Sept. 7. A Mail story from Christchurch, N. Z., to the Daily News indicates that the government's scheme to help immigrants from the mother country finds no enthusiasm except among politicians. One New Zealand paper asserts that a large proportion of immigrants whose passages were partly paid, are already indigent, and that they are only the vanguard of thirteen thousand whom it is proposed to ship out in the next eighteen months.

BOLOS RETAKE OMSK. HARBIN, Sept. 7. Russian Soviet forces, aided by German and Hungarian war prisoners have recaptured Omsk, where, as in other towns of western Siberia, peasants recently overthrew the Soviet. Bolsheviks also are in possession of the northern portion of railway along which fighting has been proceeding, but they are isolated and without food.

EARTHQUAKE IN TUSCANY. ROME, Sept. 7. Very marked earthquake shocks were reported this morning from points in Tuscany. Casualties had resulted, the report stated, and the authorities have sent aid.

ARMED OUTBREAKS PLANNED. LONDON, Sept. 7. The Daily Mail says it learns new activity has been noted among certain well organized units of the Sinn Fein Republican Army. It is believed in official circles, the newspaper adds, that a new series of armed outbreaks have been planned, and that it is considered likely these will begin on or about September twenty-fifth. The same paper asserts that following the Government's definite refusal to liberate MacSweeney on Saturday, the Mayor's friends sent an urgent petition to the "Republican Government" in Ireland asking that he be released from oath and permitted to take food.

TWO KILLED IN ATTACK ON MOTOR LORRY. BELFAST, Sept. 7. When a military lorry containing an armed escort broke down in County Cork yesterday, it was attacked by a large body of civilians, two of whom were killed and three injured. The military suffered no casualties.

FATAL FIRE. KALMATH FALLS, Oregon, Sept. 7. Nine bodies had been recovered yesterday from the ruins of the fire which destroyed the Houton Hotel and Opera House and burned two blocks of dwellings and business houses.

WIDOW OF FAMOUS STATESMAN DEAD. LONDON, Sept. 7. Baroness MacDonald of Earncliffe, widow of Sir John MacDonald, former Premier of Canada, died on Sunday.

FOOD TRAIN BLOWN UP BY GERMAN. BERLIN, Sept. 7. A train loaded with food and munitions for inter-Allied occupation troops in Upper Silesia was stopped and blown up yesterday at Erfurt by railroad workers. The Minister of Transport discharged the guilty persons.

POLAND AND LITHUANIA. LONDON, Sept. 7. The Polish Government has addressed an appeal to the League of Nations requesting mediation in the Lithuanian dispute.

TIDAL WAVE DISASTER. TOKIO, Sept. 7. Two hundred men were drowned in a tidal wave which swept over buildings and barracks on the island of Saghalien, according to reports received here.

COAL DISPUTE SITUATION UNCHANGED. LONDON, Sept. 7. No change is reported to-day in the coal dispute situation.

In Piazza San Marco. With thousands of persons, to think of St. Mark's Square by day is chiefly to think of pigeons. Many a visitor to Venice who cannot remember the details of a single painting there can show you a photograph of herself with pigeons on her shoulders and arms. Photographers and dealers in maize are here all day to effect these pretty conjunctions; but the kodak has seriously impaired their profits. The birds are smaller than our London monsters, and not quite so brilliantly burnished. How many there are, I have no idea; but since they are sacred, their numbers must be ever-increasing. Why they are sacred is something of a mystery. One story states that the great Enrico Dandolo had carrier-pigeons with him in the East which conveyed the grand tidings of victories to Venice; another says that the same heroic old man was put in possession of valuable strategic information by means of a carrier-pigeon, and on returning to Venice proclaimed it a bird to be revered.

At night no doubt the pigeons roost among St. Mark's statuary and on convenient ledges in the neighborhood; by day, when not on the pavement of the Piazza, the bulk of the flock are dotted about among the relics of the Atrio, facing St. Mark's.

They have no timidity, but by a kind of honorable understanding they all affect to be startled by the bells at certain hours, and by the midday gun, and ascend in a grey cloud for a few seconds.

They are never so engaging as when flying double, bird and shadow against the Campanile.

Their collective cooing fills the air and makes the Piazza's day music.

Venetians crossing the Piazza walk straight on, through the birds, like Moses crossing the Red Sea; the foreigners pick their way.—From "Variety Lane," by E. V. Lucas.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE GRIEVANCE HUGGER.

RUTH CAMERON

A letter friend who said amen to my remarks on the pettiness of the general loathsomeness of the habit of self pity wants me to say an extra word for one of the most exasperating manifestations of self pity—the grievance hugging habit.

"I know people," he says, "who enjoy nothing in the world so much as to get hold of a grievance and hug it to their hearts and go round with a long face and the air of being a martyr. I wonder if this type is a familiar type or not. Do you know anyone like that?"

Oh! Oh, do! Who doesn't? And who doesn't long to take them and—yes, spank them back to a little common sense and decency.

The Worst Grievance Hancer I Ever Knew Was a Man.

and his sister-in-law to cheer him up. I suppose that is what makes people enjoy grievances because it gives them a chance to hold the centre of the stage and to be apologized to and smothered over and handled with gloves and all that sort of thing.

The Let-Him-Along Cure.

And doesn't that condition also suggest a line of treatment for the grievance habit?

You have guessed it of course—the let-him-strictly-alone cure.

If a mistake like that occurs, explain it simply and pleasantly and without undue emphasis or apology and then when he insists that you really meant to leave him out, just let the matter drop. Don't pay any further attention to sulks or long faces and see if they don't get better of themselves much more quickly than if you encourage them by paying attention to them.

Of course there are people who have the grievance habit so badly that they can enjoy a grievance if they just gloat over it in their own minds. But people who are that far gone are beyond cure, that is by any doctor but one. If they themselves can get different ideals, bigger aims in life and can want to crowd pettiness out of their natures, they may be cured. But in no other way.

Wit and Wisdom.

Already in the pages of the more human dailies, the jester to the Press is becoming a power in the land—E. B. Osborn.

Literature is not jewellery, it has quite other aims than perfection, and the more one thinks of "how it is done" the less one gets it done.—H. G. Wells.

The unity of the visible church cannot be conditioned by its acceptance of a single government—Papal, episcopal, or any other.—Bishop Hensley Henson.

You take a club and a snake, and it will vain contortions make, long after it is dead; the tall will itself in knots as in defiance of the w a t a that smashed the evil head. But when the sunset comes men say, the serpent quits its foolish play, and drops its bluff insane; and some one hangs it on a fence in the belief, devoid of sense, that such an act brings rain. And it is much the same with Boose; his sinful head we saw him lone and gloried in his fall; but still his body squirms and twists, what time the nation wots and wists that dead things shouldn't crawl. Still sinners brew their jugs of ale and we escort them to the jail and give them fifty years; and every time I walk the street some delegate I'm sure to meet whose breath suggests awel, beara, Bootleggers in the alleys thrive—and yet the serpent's not alive, our statutes to confound; like any broken snake is Boose; the reflex action of his thows just make him Bop ar, und.

How Famous Authors Work.

SOME CURIOUS AIDS TO INSPIRATION.

Various are the inspirations aids to inspiration of which the great novelist or poet avails himself. Not the least of them, perhaps, is tobacco. Tennyson and Charles Kingsley were prolific smokers, and Sir J. M. Barrie has confessed that when at work on a novel he smokes seven ounces during the course of a week.

Maeterlinck, too, always works with a pipe in his mouth, though he has long since given up the use of tobacco. According to his biographer, M. Gerard Harry, "in lieu of ordinary tobacco, he fills his bowl with a denicotinized preparation, tasteless indeed, but harmless. His pipe is still always alight when the pen is busy, but it is hardly more than an innocent subterfuge intended to cheat and so satisfy an irresistible mechanical craving."

D'Annunzio Retires At 9 a.m.

D'Annunzio is a night worker, and piles his pen when the rest of mankind are asleep. He works throughout the night, generally retiring to bed at about nine in the morning.

Disraeli always worked in evening dress—a habit that was not, perhaps, without influence on his elaborate and highly-artificial style. That industrious scribe, the late Dean Farrar, used to write his books standing. Maurice Joki always used violet ink, and when unable to obtain it he found the flow of thoughts considerably impeded.

Upon the writing-table of Henrik Ibsen there was a small tray containing a number of grotesque figures, among which were a diminutive devil, some cats, and some rabbits. "I never write a single line of any of my dramas," admitted Ibsen, "without having that tray and its occupants before me and my table. I could not write without them."

The elder Dumas was one of the most methodical of writers. He once gave a list of the things indispensable to him before he set pen to paper: "Paper (blue foolscap), pens, ink; a table neither too high nor too low. Sit down—reflect for half an hour—write your title—then chapitre premier."

Thomson's Humming Exercises.

Of James Thomson, the poet of "The Seasons," it was said that "he would often be heard walking in his library till near morning, humming over in his way what he was to correct and write out next day." Thomson was in the habit of seeking inspiration in long walks in the open air, during which his thought would arrange themselves in ordered sequence.

Browning, too, did much of his work in the open air, and it was while walking in Dulwich Wood that the thought occurred to him which was afterwards to find artistic expression in "Pippa Passes." The title of Thackeray's great novel, "Vanity Fair," on the other hand, suddenly flashed into its author's mind one night when he was lying in bed at the Old Ship at Brighton.—John O'London's Weekly.

Confidence As An Asset.

Newfoundland will have a fair fishery this year, probably one million and a quarter quintals of Shore, Straits, Bank and Labrador fish. The principal agricultural crop the potato, is remarkably good, and the products of the mines and the forests, viz., iron ore, pulp, paper and lumber, will be above the average. An impartial observer seeking statistics about the industrial status of this Dominion, would be apt to come to the conclusion on the reception of this information that Newfoundland was a very prosperous and happy country and one of the most fortunate amongst the British Dominions. Trade, commerce and local industry ought to be booming this second week of September, which the record shows was every recurrent year, the time of a pleasing and promising activity all over Newfoundland. The big wheel of commerce is stopped and all the little wheels must stop also. That there is something wrong, everyone will admit. The difference in the opinions exist only in discussing the question, what is the cause of the trouble? The answer that we think would best cover the situation and embrace all other causes is "want of confidence." This applies to every phase of the situation affecting our trade and industry at home and abroad, and until the old-time confidence is restored it is in vain to expect to enjoy the old-time secure prosperity. Trade is paralysed; the coastal boats are coming from and going to the outports all the summer next to empty. What is the reason? Want of confidence. The outport man will not send on his fish and oil, the merchant will send out no more goods. What's the trouble? Want of confidence. The Government are unable to keep up to an average collection of Customs revenue all the summer. What's the matter? Want of confidence. Want of confidence in the men who, in the inscrutable designs of Providence, happened to get charge of the destinies of the dominion at the general election last fall.

Their own former supporters are expressing their disgust at the middle they have made of public affairs all over the country, and if the verdict of the people of Newfoundland could be written on the sky-line all around the island to-day, it would appear in illuminating letters from Bell Island to Cabot Straits "WANT OF CONFIDENCE." There can be no hope for the future while they are there, and the spectacle of the Prime Minister, the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Mines absent from the Colony squandering more of the people's money and having a gay holiday, while all this burden of disaster is closing down upon the country, would be enough to set the public wild with indignation were not public spirit crushed out of a once independent and manly people. At least this is the way it appears to us. They are gone to settle the Labrador Boundary forsooth! Is it not more important that they should first settle the vital problem of ruin and starvation that now threatens the people they assume to represent? The country has the resources and the recuperative powers to yet emerge from this "slough of despond" into which it has fallen the past nine months, but it can never be accomplished by the party now in charge. We can see them going from bad to worse, and their own most ardent former supporters admit this, and some of them have become most clamorous for new leadership to save the country before it is too late. If Messrs. Squires and Coaker had deliberately plotted and planned to ruin the country, drive it into insolvency and bring the people to the brink of starvation, they could not possibly have made better progress during the past ten months. Who will arise to stop them from finishing the job? There ought to be ten just men in the land unawed and unafraid. Men in whom amongst our own people and those with whom we do business outside, there will be no want of confidence, for this is the asset required by Newfoundland to-day to set the wheels of prosperity going and restore "business as usual."

Consecration of R. C. Cathedral.

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES DYPHTHERIA.

The Screaming Farce of White-Naped Fish.

A French menu card supplied to a hungry man at a cheap but showy hotel, is always suggested to the mind when one reads Mr. Coaker's Fish Regulations headed off with "White-naped Fish." It is something for effect that means nothing in practical result. After going through the menu, longing for something substantial, you get up as hungry as when you sat down, and by the time the fishermen are through with the Coaker "White-naped" Menu you fear that a good many of them will have to arise from a hungry table. But Coaker is a pretty cute man. He knows the weak spots in human nature, and says to himself, here is something new; I will be regarded as the great discoverer of white-naped fish, and they will all say, "A great Prophet has arisen amongst us, and is taking us out of the darkness of ages in which we knew nothing about white-naped fish." Asking a fisherman to white-nape his fish in the fishing season would be like a fire chief telling the firemen to count the shingles on the roof of the house before proceeding to put out the fire, and therefore it is no wonder that the trapper only laugh at this proposition, and that there will be about one quintal in government of white-naped fish this season. He says the Spanish market wants the white-naped fish, and will give the highest price. Well Spain takes about 300,000 quintals of our fish, and there will be only ten to fifteen thousand quintals of white-naped fish for them in Newfoundland; but Spain, all the same, will not refuse to buy the usual quota of our fish, and will be glad to get the black-naped and pay a good price for it, very little less if any, than the white-nape. Still there is sought to be created an impression that Spain will take only white-naped fish, in order to afford a better excuse for putting the fishermen in a wrong position as regards getting a just price for all the other well made fish that will certainly be sent to Spain. If the fishermen grumble about price it is only necessary to say, "serves you right, why didn't you white-nape?" Before this farce is finished it looks to us that if there are any more new titles to come to this country, Mr. Coaker himself should institute the Order of the "White-nape." It is the first to receive it. He certainly deserves it.

No. 2 and "West India."

There are such a variety of ways in which the fishermen are likely to be soaked in the working out of Mr. Coaker's Fish Regulations, that a new one develops every other day. In the first place it now turns out that the advice to be sure and "wash the fish from the knife" is responsible for an abnormal quantity of spoiled fish amongst those who were so fatuous as to follow it. Next there is the culling which throws the bulk of the small, unmarketable fish into the Brazil market, into the West India pile, and at one stroke reducing it from $9.00 down to $4.00 as far as the fishermen is concerned. As for the export, he will take only without reservation, that he will write himself down an ass if he does not send that firm, small, unbroken fish to the Brazil market where he can get at least double the price that he can get in the West Indies. He always did get it, and because, as Mr. Coaker's regulations and cull say, that such fish should be thrown into the West India pile, is no reason why he should not get double the price as compared with West India to-day. This fish cost the planters who bought it, $10.00 to $10.50 a quintal. It takes three quintals green from the knife to make one quintal dry. They paid $2.25 a quintal (green) which is $6.75 dry; waxes to men $7.00 to $8.00 a quintal. The price of a quintal up to $10.50. The cull, under the fishery rules, reduces this fish to $4.00. And still we expect that men who have money invested in the fishery are going to carry on next year. They certainly will not, and to-day the young men are going away in hundreds, and next spring more will go away, and in the words of one young planter who invested all he had in the fishery the past summer, "I will get away from this country next spring, when I sell my fishery gear for as good a price as I can get." If they had been given timely notification that Mr. Coaker intended to disrate the bulk of small Brazil fish into West India, they would have given $2.25 a quintal (green) for it. Whatever else may be said of these regulations, there is one thing that is clearly certain, in their perfection for opportunities to be taken by the fishermen, they could not be excelled.

Bishop Spencer College and Speneer Lodge!

The Directors of the Church of England College desire to announce that they have been able to make very satisfactory arrangements for the management of Bishop Spencer College and Speneer Lodge during the coming year. It is with the greatest regret that the Board has received the resignation of Miss E. G. Stirling, who after conducting Bp. Spencer College for many years with the greatest success and bringing it to the highest point of efficiency in its history, has, acting under medical advice, decided to retire. The Board has, however, been fortunate in obtaining the services as Headmistress of Miss A. M. Richards, who is expected to arrive from England by an early steamer. Miss Richards was educated at St. Leonard's College, St. Hilda's College, Oxford, and at Trinity College, London, where she obtained the degree of B.A. She has also received training at the Cambridge Training College, and holds the Cambridge Teachers' Diploma. She has had extensive teaching experience in England and has taught for a short time in Canada, besides serving in the Q. M. A. C. in France during part of the war period. The Directors expect, from personal and other recommendations, that she will be found a most capable Headmistress for Bishop Spencer College. Speneer Lodge, the College Boarding House for girls, will be in charge of Miss Sargent, who has just arrived from England. Miss Sargent has had extensive experience of administrative work in schools in the Bournemouth, Dorset, and Devon, and elsewhere, and during the war was employed in organizing work for the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. The Board feel that under her management Speneer Lodge will be so conducted as to give the utmost satisfaction to parents of boarders.

Farce or Tragedy?

This talk of a State Bank here is all farce or all tragedy. The Union and Commercial Banks failed because their directors had more interest in borrowing than in preserving the Bank's funds for the shareholders. A State Bank run by politicians would be an orgy of dishonesty and incompetency. No bank can be established here in any way with capital enough or scope enough for operations to be successful. All small Canadian banks have failed or been absorbed. The Bank of Nova Scotia and the Royal Bank started in Halifax many years ago, but have absorbed many other banks have now immense capital and do a world-wide business. The Bank of Commerce and Bank of Montreal are great institutions with the world for their field. The great Canadian banks are safe and prosperous because their business is world-wide. A loss in one section is off set by a gain elsewhere. Depression in one branch of trade is equalized by prosperity in another. But a bank founded here, doing a local business, and with all its resources invested in the fish business, would therefore be doomed to failure, and would bring disaster on the Colony, while a State Bank would be a disaster from the outset. The tragedy of the more proposals is this—Mr. Coaker is the proposer; he is in government on Sunday next, and the Measures Act he wields limitless power; his colleagues are men of straw—at any moment a regulation under the Measures Act may be fasten upon the money of the people for the establishment of a State Bank, and "then the deluge."—Nothing is impossible at this juncture.

Jewish Rabbi Remains For Special Services.

The Rev. Jacobson, resident Rabbi at Sydney, who reached the city some time ago to perform religious ceremonies at the home of Mr. Levitz, will remain in the city to preside over several Jewish festivals which occur within the next couple of weeks. The first and most important, which begins at sunset on Sunday next, and ends at sunrise on Tuesday morning. During the services Rabbi Jacobson will deliver a special lecture for the benefit of the orphans who are sufferers from the world war, and the General Jewish Relief Fund, at which it is hoped the whole Jewish community will attend and offer contributions. On Wednesday, Sept. 22nd, the Feast of the Atonement will begin at sunset and a black fast for 24 hours will follow. The services will be held in the Lyon Building, Water Street.

Destructive Fire.

A fire which started at 2:15 p.m. on Tuesday destroyed practically all the contents of the home of Mrs. Thos. Murphy, a widow residing on Hayward Avenue. The house, a three story building, was badly gutted. The blaze started from an oil cooker which Mrs. Walsh left alight in the kitchen while she went upstairs to attend her daughter, Mrs. Cantwell, who was indisposed. Sergeant Keefe, who lives opposite was seen on the scene and by his timely presence averted a tragedy. He assisted Mrs. Cantwell and her baby to safety. The Central and East End fire companies responded to the call in quick time, but nevertheless the fire had gained considerable headway before they arrived. Both the house and furniture were insured, but probably not to half the amount of damage done.

The Furness liner "Digby" has had a continuation of quick trips since being built, specially for the Liverpool-Newfoundland trade. The greatest benefit is felt in getting freight so quickly. This last trip BISHOPS (who are continually importing the newest that London has to offer) received a huge shipment of Men's and Boys' London Caps, and have them displayed in their windows just as soon as the best London shops are showing these same new Fall 1920 models. See the windows. Note the prices. Reckon how much you save on your last year's cap bill.

National Anthems and Their Origin.

How various national anthems originated is told in an article on the music page of the Fort Worth Record by H. W. Hamilton, composer and pianist, who is passing the summer in Fort Worth. Mr. Hamilton's article follows:

"Many are the political vicissitudes and technical mutations which a national anthem undergoes before it arrives at that state of perfection which endures forever and causes the patriot's heart to beat with a pride that defies the name of its author to a place among the immortals.

"And many are the famous names associated with the national hymns known in their accepted versions all over the world.

"Several bars of the Marseillaise one of the most stirring of all, would not be recognized by Rouget de Lisle if he heard it as it is sung to-day.

"On the other hand no improvement could be made in the Austrian hymn which was not the only immortal creation of so accomplished a musician as Hayden. The fate of the Napoleonic hymn 'Partant pour la Syrie,' is now probably sealed forever and there are few people who can hum the forgotten melody to-day. It was written by Queen Hortense, daughter of Empress Josephine by her first husband, General Beauharnais and the wife of Napoleon's brother, Louis.

ECZEMA You are not the only one who has this skin trouble. It is a common ailment and is cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is a simple, safe, and effective remedy for all cases of Eczema, Itch, and Skin Irritation. Sample box free. Write for it to Dr. Chase's Ointment, 100 N. 3rd St., St. Paul, Minn. Paper and send 5c. stamp for postage. 50c a box; all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

She, however, has a place in history which the faithlessness of man to her effort will not erase.

"So trivial is the Italian hymn that it is as well not to inquire the composer's name, and it is to be regretted that Verdi perhaps the most prolific melodic composer the world has ever known, when asked by Victor Emmanuel II. to write one, was so modest as to declare that he did not feel equal to the task.

"The British National Anthem is probably the oldest unless some Oriental nations can give theirs that distinction. The earliest version dates further than the twelfth century, when it was exhumed in a coffin in Yorkshire, and bears little resemblance to the well known version of to-day.

"Its authorship is lost in the mist of ages and the many changes run in on the original tune are signed by many composers. In simpler harmonic form and in common instead of triple time, it was also the Saxon hymn before the war.

"A unique interest that is not generally known is attached to the Venezuelan hymn, which has habitually been attributed in musical dictionaries, books of reference and personal obituary notices to the famous pianist, the late Madam Teresa Carreno born in Carracas. In the presence of the writer of this article, however, she once declared, 'I've been told so often I wrote the Venezuelan National anthem that I'm beginning to think I did.'

Sailor Severely Injured by Auto.

AT PIER SUBWAY.
A serious accident, which may have fatal results, occurred on Victoria Road on Wednesday night, when James Morgan, a sailor, was struck and ran over by an auto, driven by Harper Travis.

When the accident happened, Morgan was walking in the street just north of the subway and Travis was driving south. The fender of the car struck Morgan on the hip and knocked him under the wheels, rendering him unconscious. He was rushed to the city hospital and at noon to-day was reported to be still unconscious. The hospital also reports that it is not known just what is wrong with Morgan. It is possible that he sus-

The Exporters' Conference.

THE CHAIRMAN—I found when in Portugal quite a strong feeling against Grand Bank fish. That is why I spoke like I did in the House of Assembly about the matter. But there was a firm at the Oporto meeting who enquired "Can we buy from Patten and Forsay if we buy outright?" I said there would be no objection to that. They had been getting good fish from Mr. Patten's firm. Another firm stated they had been buying from Goodridges and found relations very satisfactory. But there was a strong feeling against Grand Bank shippers, except Messrs. Patten and Forsay, and my resolve was that we had to help Grand Bank and not injure it, and in the bottom of my heart some of the regulations were framed to assist Grand Bank men. In London firms acting as brokers there for West Coast fish, begged me to take cargoes off their hands, because they knew it would be impossible to sell Grand Bank fish. By standardization Grand Bank fish will be placed on the same level as the northern fish, because Grand Bank No. 1 will be northern No. 1, and when Grand Bank firms sell their fish they will be able to dispose of it on the same terms as other people and get the same treatment. Mr. Barr emphasized the very thing I am contending against. I must see all treated alike. If fishermen find that No. 1 will bring then $2 a qt. more than other grades, they will make all No. 1 possible. We must make fish as good as our competitors in Norway and Iceland. What is our trouble in Italy? It is because they absolutely refused to touch West Coast fish. They were offered a load of fish from Trinity Bay for Mr. Harris last February. I said it was as good as Port Union fish. We waited four or five days for a reply, and when it did come it stated that "we absolutely refuse to have anything to do with any fish belonging to Grand Bank or West Coast. The quality of the treatment we received in connection with cargoes last spring." I understand a lot of fish from Fortune Bay is acceptable but the buyers won't handle Grand Bank fish. Belleoram has a good reputation for fish. I would like to see the Grand Bank shippers improve the cure there. Only about 80,000 or 90,000 qts. are produced by bankers. That could be cured to sell in Cuba or Portorico against Lunenburg fish.

MR. LONG—Regarding Portugal. I must admit I am a strong advocate of outright sales. The difficulty I was up against last year was consigning fish to Lind and Co. The people I sold to could not expect them to place large amounts in sterling in my credit in London when they could purchase from Lind & Co.'s stores. I quite believe that West Coast fish should be under a different heading. I also believe with Mr. Hepburn that these cargoes should not be held back if some arrangement can be made with the Advisory Board; or, if possible, have them sent to the Trade Commissioner under his care; or get an advance of 30% as a minimum price. The suggestion regarding the sending of cargoes to the Trade Commissioner, and an arrangement with the banks for an advance, is a good one. I believe these cargoes should not be kept back. Sir Joseph Outerbridge referred to large cargoes of five and six thousand qts. While these are on the way they might be sold; 80% might be paid down and the balance in a few months. I am a strong advocate of outright sales, and have always got them. I never sold a cargo of fish for Portugal on consignment. Neither have I sold under No. 1 or No. 2. We ship very good fish. Hedge has fixed a very good standard at Pogo and we follow in his tracks. Every fish that goes over our wharf is number 1, because we pay for good quality and the men cull it well.

MR. J. T. CHESEMAN, M.H.A.—I came to this meeting to look for advice. I did not intend to do very much but I cannot sit silent and agree with a line being drawn between St. John's and the West Coast. How much fish do you catch here? Very little. Here you get fish from all parts of the Island. The West Coast is a large stretch and a great number of fish are caught all along it and the south west coast. Your references to bank fish apply to only a very small percentage of West Coast fish, and when you come to shore fish, you will compare with similar fish caught in any part of the Island. We have shipped it to the city and abroad, and I know for a fact. I have seen of various fish in the city that ours will compare favorably with any. Our own firm shipped a cargo of fish in December. It was discharged on Oporto on January 8th. Final sales was made 16th June of this year and when we got our account sales the other day, we did not have a cent in the bank. The cargo fetched us 73 1/2. The June sale brought us a much higher price than the previous one. I have had considerable experience in the market here, and in that Bay there are many places noted for the excellent quality of the fish. At Flat Islands there is no better fish in the country. I object to a line being drawn between St. John's and the West Coast. It is unfair and I enter a strong protest against it.

From what I have seen of it, the fish this year is a decided improvement in quality. It is much better than last year. The people have taken much more care with it, and the fishermen are not complaining of the cull. Some fishermen called on me a few days ago. They had no complaint with the cull, but they were dissatisfied with the prices. They were being offered $9 and $8 and did not think it was enough. They want $8 and $10.

HON. P. TEMPLEMAN — A great deal of stress has been laid upon Grand Bank fish and its quality. The explanation is very simple. How can you expect men to make good fish on boughs or longers or rocks as can be cured on flakes, where the sun dries it and the air circulate around it? The people on the other side of the water know the difference. Bank fish cannot be compared with shore fish at any time. There is no fish in the country better than that produced at Pogo. Bonavista comes second. No bank fish can compare with shore fish no matter how it may be cured. Persons who talk about understanding how West Coast people have made sales at all. Everybody is interested in making good fish, because bank fish does not sell in the foreign markets. I consider the whole fishery of Newfoundland is badly handled, and the fish is cured worse than in any other part of the world. People are getting away from the good standard of curing fish. The old fashioned people worked on the fish themselves from sunrise to sunset. They made good money because they made good fish. Take codtrap fish; that is never as good as fish caught on the line. There has been a lot of talk about washing in the knife. It all depends on the man who does the work. I prefer to salt fish without washing. It is all a matter of cleanliness. Many people wash all their fish in the water, without changing it. Some of my West Coast friends have gone over to Oporto and could have got twice as much for their fish as they are getting here. The quality of the difference in quality. From my own observation I would say there is a great deal of room for improvement in the curing of fish. It is not to be compared with northern fish.

MR. JOB—Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen—I have been requested by exporters to make a few remarks regarding the Spanish market. I have been twice in Spain, and I have seen of various fish in the city that ours will compare favorably with any. Our own firm shipped a cargo of fish in December. It was discharged on Oporto on January 8th. Final sales was made 16th June of this year and when we got our account sales the other day, we did not have a cent in the bank. The cargo fetched us 73 1/2. The June sale brought us a much higher price than the previous one. I have had considerable experience in the market here, and in that Bay there are many places noted for the excellent quality of the fish. At Flat Islands there is no better fish in the country. I object to a line being drawn between St. John's and the West Coast. It is unfair and I enter a strong protest against it.

The Wrong Door.

A good-hearted temperance worker was walking down a side street when he saw a huddled figure lying on the pavement. "Where do you live, my good fellow?" he asked, kindly. "First floor!"

He led the unfortunate man up to the first floor and seeing an open door he helped him into the room and left him there.

When he returned to the street he found a still more helpless figure on the pavement. Again he proffered help; again the reply was: "First floor!"

He led the second figure into the same open door, thinking awhile what a reprobate family must live in the apartment.

To his amazement, when he reached the street again, he discovered the third figure lying helpless and pathetic on the pavement.

He walked towards the man, who, seeing him approach, staggered to his feet and clutched a policeman who happened to be passing.

"For Heaven's sake, arrest me," said. "This fellow keeps on taking me upstairs and dropping me down the lift shaft!"

SAVE THE BABIES!

During these hot days when infants are suffering and dying from Summer Diarrhoea, it might be interesting to quote from a report read by Dr. Alan Brown, Child Specialist of Toronto, who says:—

"In severe cases of Diarrhoea which do not respond to the elimination of carbohydrate in the usual milk mixtures, PROTEIN MILK is indicated, as in practically all cases of intoxication and infectious diarrhoea, and many cases of dyspepsia in breast-fed infants."

The process of making LIQUID PROTEIN MILK is a long and difficult one. After four years of careful experimentation a PROTEIN MILK has been manufactured in powder form,—conforming exactly to the analysis of the Liquid preparation.

Upon presentation of a prescription from your doctor it can be obtained at any of the three Child Welfare Milk Stations where it is sold at cost of importation.

LONDON, Sept. 8.

The Russian delegation in London, headed by M. Kameneff, has published a reply to M. Tchitcherin, Bolshevik Foreign Minister, to the last note of Arthur Balfour, Lord President of the Council. It is a long and argumentative document in justification of Soviet administration. It declares that in face of Allied blockade of Russia, Balfour is hardly in a position to demand that the Soviet Government has been unable to secure more for wellbeing of Russian people. The note reiterates that peace in order to develop her economic possibilities is Russia's fundamental aim and declares that war with Poland is only an episode in the struggle for peace.

EARTHQUAKE DISASTER IN ITALY.
ROME, Sept. 8.

Italy is again suffering from an earthquake disaster, the extent of which has not yet been measured. It is known, however, that hundreds of people have been killed and thousands injured. Many small towns and villages have been wrecked and although assistance is being hurried from all parts of the country to the afflicted area, there is much suffering for want of food, medicines and shelter for the people. It is not yet possible to calculate how many hundreds are dead, the list up to this evening reached close to four hundred already reported. There are many bodies under ruins and there are wounded also under ruins who have not yet been reached by rescuers. There are believed to be many thousands of injured. Hospitals at Spezia have already received about five hundred and three hundred have been taken to other hospitals nearby. Improvised hospitals composed of tents are caring for many others. Injured and homeless are thankful as long as weather keeps fair, but at night it is very cold, especially on mountain slopes. All classes are combining in their efforts to render aid. Monarchists as well as republicans, socialists and clericals and even anarchists are flocking to the scene of the earthquake from the bigger cities of Spezia, Florence, Luca and Modena. Survivors describe spectacle as terrifying; the air was filled with choking blinding dust, so black that the sun was lost to view. It seemed like the end of the world, terrified peasants say. Great towers of medieval castles were shaken, partially destroyed or seem tottering to fall. The Ducal Palace at Massacrara which was the summer residence of Napoleon's sister, was seriously damaged.

DESTROYED BY QUAKE.
ROME, Sept. 9.

Barce, a town of nine thousand inhabitants, was virtually destroyed by earthquake on Tuesday, as was also Pernaed nearby. Sixty-five dead have already been identified. Groans and cries were heard on all sides as rescuers worked feverishly to extricate injured and bodies of the dead.

LONDON, Sept. 8.

Mrs. MacSwiney on leaving Brixton Prison to-night, after visiting her husband, Lord Mayor of Cork, said she twice in the afternoon the attending physician had warned her not to speak to her husband as he was "living on vitality." She added that the Mayor suffered from giddiness this afternoon. Ex-Premier Asquith, answering an appeal from John Howard Whitehouse, former Liberal member of House of Commons for his intervention in behalf of Lord Mayor MacSwiney said, "I think the decision to allow Lord Mayor of Cork to die in prison is a political blunder of the first magnitude. I would gladly intervene if any appeal of mine could lead now to wiser counsels prevailing, but a fear that latest declaration of minister precludes any such move."

The Turk and the Champagne.

Here is a diverting account of the Turkish Ambassador in Paris, taken from "A Young Lady's Letters": "In dining out yesterday, I was much diverted at a little accident that happened to the Turkish Ambassador by whom I was sitting at dinner. He was in the act of explaining to me some customs in Constantinople, when a bottle of Champagne burst with so much violence that some heretical drops of wine sprinkled his Mahometan ermine sleeve. Really, I never saw anything so unreadful as a Turk in a passion! His eyes flashed forth fire, and I thought he would have been tempted to draw his diamond dagger upon the unlucky offender. After deprecating the Prophet's wrath, by mumbled expiations, he strode into the drawing-room, with his robes flying wide behind him, like a tragic King, and seated himself cross-legged upon the sofa, after having flung his yellow slippers on the floor. There he held himself in deepest meditation for an hour, and on seeing us amusing ourselves by quaffing liqueurs and coffee, to my amazement he started up and drank down without stopping six glasses of the strongest Liqueurs upon the board. He then walked with measured pace about the room, call'd all his merry muselimen about him, and departed to offer to Mahomed the contaminated robe as a sacrifice to appease his vengeance. This is a literal fact, for I heard him say so myself with my own ears."

Mendelssohn And His Conquest of Hearts.

(John o'London Weekly.)
 "He was always falling in love," Stratton, one of Mendelssohn's biographers, tells us; "but no breath of scandal bedimed the shining brightness of his character."
 And few men have been better equipped for the conquest of hearts. Handsome and courtly, bubbling over with the joy of life, full to the last of boyish, generous impulses, he was, as his adoring sister Fanny says, "the darling in every house, the centre of every circle." And to this equipment of charm he added a rare versatility of accomplishments. He was a clever artist, an adept at chess and billiards, at riding and swimming, and athletics in general—an "Admirable Crichton," in fact, of gifts and graces; while in his own particular art he was so gifted and precocious that at seventeen he wrote his Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream"—"a wonderful fabric of harmony and instrumentation."

Peeps Into Palaces.
 The other day, an eager public was informed the ex-Kaiser had discovered his true vocation as a tailor's cutter, and the fierce light that beats upon a throne has just illumined a matrimonial adventure of His Majesty of Greece. Popular taste in literature is fickle, but a volume purporting to disclose the personal history of monarchs is always assured of readers.

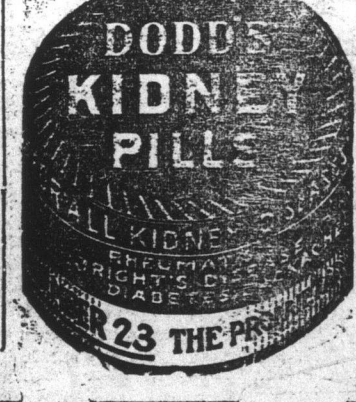

One is mildly interested to learn that Julius Caesar loved to oil his hair; later, he became bald, and the man of to-day whose locks are scanty perceives that a considerate Roman Senate allowed the conqueror of Gaul to wear a laurel wreath to cover the deficiency. Napoleon had a weakness for dress, simple but tasteful, and we are informed that his familiar grey coat was of excellent cut and texture. Out of the £800 a year he set apart on his wardrobe, a generous proportion was spent on white breeches, one spot on which meant rejection.

In direct contrast to the many infirmities possessed by the ex-Kaiser, Frederick the Great had one for state occasions, and it lasted him all his life. Ordinarily he was shabby, and had a curious habit of carrying snuff loose in his waistcoat pockets. Royal gluttons are by no means uncommon. William of Orange was an excellent trencherman, and would sit five to six hours at table. Napoleon paralyzed his faculties by failing to digest a shoulder of mutton stuffed with onions, and, in consequence, lost the battle of Leipzig. Frederick ate enormously, and, in keeping with his snuff-taking, was passionately fond of pepper. Every dish came to the royal table as hot as possible, a circumstance which led a guest to remark that a certain pie looked and tasted "as if it had been baked in hell."

An orgy of ripe peaches and new ale proved fatal to King John, of Magna Charta fame, and the invincible Armada was dispatched by a Spanish monarch whose digestion had been ruined by over-indulgence in pastry.

Lord Robert's antipathy to cats is well remembered, but, centuries before, Henry III, of France had a similar dislike, and could not remain in a room with the domestic tabby. The sight of an apple made Ladislaus, King of Poland, tremble violently, while Ivan II, Czar of Moscow, must perform have led the life of a recluse, for he fainted regularly at the appearance of a woman.—"Tit Bits."

It is impossible to imagine anything more charming than the glimpses we get of their wedded life—the simple, almost childish delights of the honeymoon, as recorded in their journal, "in which they both sketched and wrote humorous nothings"; the idyllic life in their "private paradise"—"eating and sleeping," as he tells us, "without dress-clothes, without visiting-cards, without carriage and horses, but with donkeys, with wild flowers, with music-paper and sketch-book, with Cecile and the children."

Mayor Gives His Life for Boy.

Helpless Cadets Watch a Seashore Drama—Unavailing Heroism.

In a vain but splendidly heroic effort to save the life of one of the boys in his charge, a brevet major of the Church Lads' Brigade was drowned off the coast near Chistchurch. Boys of the 8th Battalion of the London Division, C.L.B., were in camp at Mudeford, for their annual training, and a party proceeded to the shore for a bath, wres a Daily Chronicle correspondent. They were accompanied by Cadet Major Charles Gardner, of Harrow, a partner in the well-known London Stock Exchange firm of Laurence, Sons and Gardner. They originally intended to take their dip in the River Stour at a spot where only a long spit of land divides river from sea. On account of the lowness of the tide in the river the party crossed over and began to bathe from the seashore.

"Hold On! I'm Done!"
One of the boys, William Tidder, aged 12, of 83, Graham-road, Wealdstone, Harrow, ventured a little further than his companions, and suddenly found himself being carried away by a strong current.

Major Gardner, a good swimmer, promptly went to the rescue, seized Tidder and began a hard struggle back to the land. He succeeded in bringing the boy within the grasp of Sergeant F. W. Lawford, a 16-year-old cadet who caught Tidder's feet, but at that moment the exhausted major released his hold.

Shouting "Hold on! I'm done!" Major Gardner, who had entirely spent his energy in a long battle against the current, drifted away. Lawford is able to swim a few strokes only, and he found himself and Tidder being swept from the shore.

Beaten by the Current.
Assistance came in the person of Mr. Fred Tyrie, formerly a lieutenant in the Army, who was helping to look after the lads at the camp. As Lawford struggled back to the beach, Tyrie grasped Tidder, the boy by this time having lost consciousness.

Handicapped by old wounds to both knees, Mr. Tyrie found the current too much for him, and began to lose consciousness also. He just managed to scramble ashore, but Tidder disappeared.

Major Gardner was then also missing. It had been thought he was floating to recover strength before swimming ashore, but later his body was discovered, together with that of the boy he had given his life to try and save, drifting out to sea.

Both bodies were recovered just off Highcliffe. At an inquest the coroner warmly commended Mr. Tyrie and Lawford for their gallant attempts at rescue. Major Gardner was 41 years of age.

Monarchs as Tradesmen

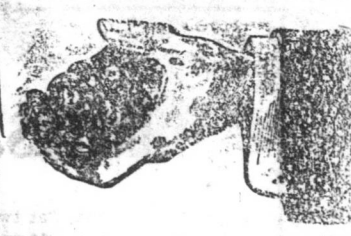

When Charles V. abdicated his throne and retired to the monastery of St. Juste, he amused himself by trying to learn watch-making.

After some time, he remarked one day: "What an egregious fool must I have been to have squandered so much blood and treasure in an absurd attempt to make men think alike, when I cannot even make a few watches keep time together."

The tale seems singularly to the point, in view of the ex-Kaiser's reported attempt to master the art of the tailor, for it is unlikely that he will establish fame in that sphere.

Other princes have made or played with similar amusements. King Edward used to say that if he were dethroned he could still make a living as a cobbler. His brother, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, aimed a little higher, for he could have obtained a position in a theatre orchestra among at least the second violins. Louis XVI, like Charles V., spent much time over the mysteries of watch-making.

Queen Victoria could have designed Christmas cards. Frederick, Prince of Wales, would have been in great request for cracker mottoes. George IV. would have been one of the greatest of milliners. Charles II. might have made a competence in a chemical laboratory, and Peter the Great in a carpenter's shop. Napoleon would have been an accomplished leader-writer of the "big drum" type; Frederick the Great an admirable stock-keeper to a penurious firm. Prince Henry of Prussia might have flourished as a commercial traveller, and George III. as a farmer. James I. was another journalist—and so on.

"Martha, dost thou love me?" asked a Quaker youth of one at whose shrine his heart's holiest feelings had been offered up. "Why, Seth," she answered, "we are commended to love one another, are we not?" "Ay, Martha, but dost thee regard me with the feeling the world calls love?" "I hardly know what to tell thee, Seth, I have greatly feared that my heart was an erring one. I have tried to bestow my love on all, but I have sometimes thought, perhaps, that thee was getting rather more than thy share."

1. The Master or owner of every ship, vessel, schooner, craft or boat which shall arrive at any port in Newfoundland from fishing in any of the places following, that is to say, on the Banks, on the Coast of Labrador, in the Straits of Belle Isle, or elsewhere out of Newfoundland, and on the coast of Newfoundland in the District of St. Barbe, shall within 48 hours after arrival at his destination report by telegraph at the expense of the Department from the nearest telegraph station to the Department of Marine and Fisheries at St. John's and the nearest Customs Officer, stating the quantity in quintals of fish on board such vessel.
2. As a part of said report the said Master or owner shall state whether the number of quintals reported is reckoned as of dry fish, Labrador fish, salt bulk or green fish, or otherwise as such master or owner to cure such fish (if the same be not cured) as soft Labrador, dry Labrador, or dry Shore.
3. If any such Master or owner shall fail to report as aforesaid or shall willfully report incorrectly, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $100.00 or more than $100.00, to be recovered in a summary manner before any Stipendiary Magistrate; or in default of payment, to imprisonment not exceeding one month.
4. In publishing information or statistics of the fisheries, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries shall not be bound to make public the name or catch of any specific fish, vessel, craft or boat.
5. Every licensed exporter of codfish shall report to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries on the last day of every month, or within seven days thereafter, stating the quantity and quality of all fish then held in store by such exporter. The said report shall be verified by affidavit, and the said Minister shall not publish or allow any person whatsoever (except in pursuance of legal process) to have access to any such report; but the sum total of the quantities and qualities so reported shall be intimated by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to the President of the Newfoundland Board of Trade for the information and use of the Trade generally.
6. If any such exporter shall fail to report as hereinbefore provided or shall knowingly make any false or incorrect report, he shall be liable to a penalty of not exceeding $1,000.00, which may be recovered in a summary manner before any Stipendiary Magistrate, or in default of payment, to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months.
7. If any person publishes, writes or disseminates any false information or statistics respecting the quantity of codfish caught or held in store, or otherwise in Newfoundland or exported, he shall upon conviction be liable to a penalty not exceeding One Hundred Dollars or imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month for each offence.
8. All penalties recovered under this Chapter shall be paid to the Minister of Finance and Customs for the use of the Colony.
9. Any person aggrieved by any conviction under this Act may appeal to the next Session of the Supreme Court in St. John's or on Circuit upon giving notice within fourteen days of his intention so to appeal.
10. This Act may be cited for all purposes as "The Codfish Report Act, 1920."

Prince Clockmaker.

As a small boy, the greatest ambition of Prince Arthur of Connaught, the new Governor of South Africa, was to become a clockmaker.

"Very well," said his father, and he took him to a clockmaker who attended the Ducal residence to wind up the clocks.

"My son has decided to be a clockmaker when he grows up," said the Duke. "Will you take him as an apprentice?"

"Delighted!" stammered the astonished man.

"Very well; that's settled. Now, Arthur, you can take your first lesson by helping Mr. Blank wind up the clocks."

For a long time Prince Arthur made the rounds regularly with Mr. Blank, but after a while he came to the conclusion that he had chosen a somewhat tame profession, and took to the Army as a substitute.

DIAMOND DUST

ST. JOHN'S WIN FOURTH GAME WITH THRILLING FINISH.

Fight hard, my boy, and never heed the breaks;
When they're against you then the harders try
The sun must break some time through darkest sky.
And victory is hollow till it wakes
Within the soul a sense of ne'er-say-die!

The All Stars, my boy, had plumbed the depths; yet see
When in the heart of hearts they'd ne'er say die.
But stood at bay with heads erect and high.
They turned defeat to dazzling victory;
The sun burst through a saturnine dark sky.

Truly a ball game is never won, or lost, until the last man is out; and never was this more forcibly brought to notice than in the fourth game of the series on Tuesday night when, in the last inning with Grand Falls leading by 3 runs, the All Stars started a batting feat and brought in 4 runs, thus winning the game. To say the game was a thriller would be but putting it mildly, and never was such wild enthusiasm displayed as in the ninth when Robertson smote out a beauty and promptly stole second. McCrindle choked up his bat and got a snorter. Crawley fielded it well, but could not make up his mind whether to stave off Robbie's steal for the third sack or retire William at first. His indecision was costly, as before Joe Murphy could gather in his throw, Mac was safely over the bag. DeMers faced Foran with Robbie on third and McCrindle anchored on the keystone. He let two strikes get past him, but copped the third right on the nose for a Texas leaguer scoring both. Harvey Thomas coaching on first, then got the grandstand on its feet and the din was deafening. It was a riot when Quick connected for two bags scoring DeMers and tying the score. Cap lost no time in stealing second, and Fortier's fumble of Clouston's hot one let him in—thus permitting an unexpected victory perch on the shoulders of John B. Orr and his pet. Never was there such applause, and the crowd broke loose from the rails as each City player came across the plate.

The first inning found the All Stars with 2 runs to their credit, and they duplicated the performance in the second and third, thus giving them a good start. The game looked easy at this juncture as in the first two innings the inlanders had only 1 run shoved across. But in the third, a flock of sharp crickets blew up the infield, and with two men down, the Grand Falls lads sneaked in 6 tallies. The next two innings found both teams scoreless, but in the 5th a costly error by Duggan let in another. The seventh was a blank for both, but in the eighth a wild peg to first from Robbie let in Ballony. When they stood up for the final stanza the papermen's lead of 3 looked pretty good and some of the fans left the field. Had they waited they would have seen the most exciting climax ever staged in a game in Newfoundland.

The series now stands two games in favor of each, so that the Reid trophy is still very much in the balance. Yesterday's downpour prevented any clash, so that in order to determine the contest, the Grand Falls' team instead of leaving for home to-day, will necessarily have to stay over until Sunday's express. To-night's game will start promptly at 5.30, but as the games are taking over an hour and a half, those going up to the field at 6 o'clock will witness at least six innings of the clash, and judging from the previous tussels will likely get very good value for their money. The sixth game will be played tomorrow night at the same hour, and if Fate should rule that each team cops a game, then the final will be played on Saturday evening at the same hour. Never was greater interest evinced as in this present series, and should the weather remain fine a record attendance is looked for to-night. We understand that Sharpe will pitch for the Falls, while John B. places his dependence on Frank Donnelly.

Forteau Cottage Hospital.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—I beg to enclose a report of the Cottage Hospital at Forteau, Labrador, for the winter of 1919-20 which will be of interest to many of your readers. I may say that Dr. Appleton and her assistant Miss Jackson, kindly undertook the work, under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association, while Sister Bailey, who has been at Forteau for some thirteen years, was on vacation in England.

Yours faithfully,
INTERNATIONAL GRENFELL ASSOCIATION,
Ada M. Belbin, Office Secretary.

THE INTERNATIONAL GRENFELL ASSOCIATION, Incorporated.

Forteau, Labrador, July 1, 1920.
Hon. Robert Watson, Managing Director, International Grenfell Association, St. John's, Newfoundland.
Dear Mr. Watson,—In closing my work here at Forteau, I wish to make a brief report to the Grenfell Association. My assistant, Miss Jackson, an experienced social worker and I, arrived at Forteau, October 18th, 1919. We closed the hospital to patients yesterday, June 30th, 1920. During the eight months and thirteen days that I have been here I have treated 618 out-patients and 11 in-patients, making 1189 visits for out-patients and 159 days of hospital care for in-patients, totaling 1348 visits on days of hospital treatment. From out-patients I have collected $211.72, and from in-patients $36.50, making a total of $248.22 collected.

Besides the usual medical service, my assistant and I have conducted a health and hygiene campaign in accordance with the program of the Social Morality Committee and Bureau of Social Education of the Young Women's Christian Association under which we are working. We have conducted recreation work for young people, developed play ground activities for children and installed play ground apparatus at Forteau as the gift of the Young Women's Christian Association. In view of the shocking high mortality at child-birth and the resulting attitude of both men and women toward a normal function, we have tried to raise the standard of midwives, both by aiding and instructing midwives and by creating a demand on the part of the public for better care. In answer to an obvious need we have created a Maternity Loan Outfit. In view of the nutritional conditions and resulting deficiency diseases and malnutrition we held a nutritional conference and have given definite instructions for the encouragement of gardening and dairying. We have emphasized the need of better dental care and the prevention of communicable diseases.

Respectfully yours,
(Sgd.) VIVIA B. APPLETON, M.D.

Miss Minnie Noseworthy is on a two weeks' holiday from St. John's to her mother and friends in town.

The schooner Laberge, E. Hillier, master, came off dock yesterday afternoon, and leaves for Domino, Labrador, to-day, to load for across.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Adams, Bear's Cove, on Monday last.

Miss Bessie Davis and Mr. Llewellyn Ash went out by Tuesday morning's train to Montreal.

There passed peacefully away to the Great Beyond, on Friday night last, Sipporah, wife of our respected townsman Thomas Fitzgerald, of Messrs. Archibald Bros., Ltd. Deceased had been an invalid for a number of years, yet bearing her sufferings at all times with true fortitude and resignation to the Divine Will of God, until the end came, which was not unexpected. She leaves to mourn, besides a mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Simmons, of Line Street, St. John's, a husband and two daughters, Winnie, at home, and Nellie, of Messrs. J. A. Whitman & Sons' tailoring establishment; also three brothers, James, Lorenzo and Robert, of St. John's, and one sister, Mrs. Cole, of Crocker's Cove, Carbonar, as well as a large circle of friends. The funeral, which was well attended, took place on Sunday last, when all that was mortal of a kind

THOUGHT FOR AUTUMN.
Autumn's comin' on again, summer's work is almost done,
Fruits an' trees an' fields o' grain have their richest garments on.
Now the humblest vine seems proud in a bit o' splendor dressed,
Sort o' satisfied to go, knowin' it has done its best.
Human like it seems to me are the things that bloom and grow,
Some are jus' the common run, some are raised for pomp an' show;
Jus' a few get special fame, few draw prizes in the fall,
But when autumn comes along, nature glorifies 'em all.
Gold an' red an' purple hues deck the commonest o' things,
An' the simplest sprig that grows wears a robe too rich for kings;
Nothin' stays neglected now, man may scorn or fall to find
Many a hidden plant or vine, but God has 'em all in mind.
Mebbe when our work is done and our autumn time draws near
We, too, like the growing things, in rich garments shall appear;
An' perhaps the humblest then, unto man's neglect resigned,
Shall discover all the time God was keeping him in mind.

A Clear Warning.

The Allies will read with pleasure and some amusement the clever piece of sophistry which M. Tchitcherin has forwarded to Britain. Italy and Britain jointly protested against the inclusion in the peace terms of a clause which provided for the arming of the proletariat. Their note of objection was strongly worded, and it was intimated that the admission of such a proviso was a gross breach of faith and that it was difficult if not impossible to continue negotiations with a nation that treated its pledged word so lightly.
M. Tchitcherin reads the handwriting on the wall, and must have watched with some chagrin the healing of the difference that two weeks ago threatened to estrange England and France. He climbs down from his high horse, but he makes his descent with the knowledge that his every word and move is being watched. As he reaches the ground he makes an appeal to the Labor gallery saying that in Soviet Russia the whole nation works for the whole nation's benefit, while elsewhere the immense majority toil for the privileged few.
Tchitcherin, faced with the alternative of breaking off negotiations with Britain for the resumption of trade or of modifying his plans for the extension of the Soviet system in Europe, chooses the latter course. Yet he makes it perfectly plain that he is only withdrawing the clause for expediency. His object and that of his colleagues is to spread Bolshevism in Great Britain, and in order that there be no mistake as to their object he sets it down in black and white:
"If the British Government thinks the workers by nature are animated with the doctrine of Bolshevism, such a point of view will undoubtedly be welcomed by those who look forward to spreading Bolshevism in England."
This is a clear warning that the whole world outside Russia cannot afford to ignore.—Montreal Daily Star.

King Hopes to Regain Throne.

Paris, Aug. 27.—(Associated Press).—Former King Constantine of Greece still hopes to regain his throne. "I await the day when by the will of my people and the force of traditions I will resume the throne which I undeservedly lost," he told a correspondent. "I never abdicated."
He denied having been in any way in the attempted assassination of the Greek Premier in this city on August 12, and hinted that should he regain his throne he would be willing to work in harmony with Venizelos.

2,500,000 Pounds' Loss on Concrete Ships.

$4,000,000 LOSS BUT FOR THE CANCELLING OF THE CONTRACTS.
The cost to complete the contracts placed under the original programme of concrete shipbuilding would have been at least $2,000,000 states Colonel Wilson in recent Parliamentary Debates.
It is difficult to estimate, he says, what the realisable value of the 209 vessels would have been, but it certainly would not have reached £3,000,000, and out of the 209 contracts 143 were cancelled.
The total expenditure to date, including outstanding liabilities, was about £3,850,000, and the net loss was likely to be between £2,500,000 and £3,000,000, as against a net loss of at least £5,000,000, and probably a good deal more, if all the contracts had been completed.
