It is up to every mother to send one of ther boys to the front. You have the opportunity to enlist to-ay. Your King and country need you.

JANE ADDAMS says that the war has one far enough. True, but the trouble is that the Germans have gone too far. WHEN is Watford's civic holiday to be held? If no organization wishes any particular date the Reeve should name an early day.

THE Northern Navigation Company southern terminal has been changed from Sarnia to Windsor and Detroit, thus making Sarnia just a port of call. A SARNIA policeman claims to have seen snow a few days ago. No wonder some of the residents of that city want the Canada Temperance Act submitted to the people. BECAUSE Kitchener has an army of four million men is no reason for relaxing our recruiting efforts. The more million men Kitchener has, the less fighting there will be.

MEN'S $2.50 sailors for $1.25, men's $1.50 sailors for 75c.—A. Brown & Co. EDWARD SCOTT, travelling salesman for the Andrews Wire Works, is on a holiday trip to Rockford, Ill., the firm paying all expenses in view of his splendid success during the past season.

THE Manitoba general elections for the Legislature will be held on Friday, August 6th. There will be three deferred elections—the Pas, Grand Rapids and Nelson-Churchill. This allows for 46

FRIENDS here of Lance-Corp. Sterling S. Tobias, Petrolea, who was injured at Langemarck and sufficiently recovered to return to the front, learned yesterday that he had been a second time wounded and is again in hospital in England.

THE first week of August will probably see the Provincial License Commission off on the first lap of their tour of the Province. The itinerary will include a wisit to every license district in the Province and to practically all of the larger municipalities where licenses are held. They will be in Sarnia on Thursday, August 10th. August 19th.

THERE has been inaugurated a grea Empire-wide movement to send razors to the soldiers at the front. A leading cut-lery firm at Sheffield, Eng., has volunteer ed to put in as good shape as new all old razors sent in, and they will then be distributed among the soldiers. Hard-ware dealers all over the empire have been asking to co-operate in the gathering in of old razors. If you have one around the place, hunt it up and hand to T. Dodds & Son.

THE Canadians have earned for themselves an undying name. The story told of one of the members of the seco contingent, conversing with an officer of the first unit back in England from St. Julian. "We are having a hell of a time Julian. "We are having a hell of a time living down the reputation you fellows made at Salisbury," said the second contingent man. "Yes," replied the veteran from the front, "and you will have another hell of a time living up to the reputation we made in France."

THE Post Office Department calls attention to the fact that letters addressed to soldiers at the front should be signed by the writer in full. Where letters are signed by Christian name only, cannot be delivered owing to addressee being missing, wounded or dead, it is impossable for the Canadian postal service to return them to the senders. In view of this, the public is urged to fully sign all letters addressed to soldiers at the front, and in addition to this to indicate the mame and address of the sender on the appear left hand corner. upper left hand corner.

Bic bysiness men compelled to sign a couple of hundred cheques for incidental expenses every month occationally realize what is meant by writer's cramp. The Pord Motor Co. is making preparations to attend to a little office detail of this kind in connection with the $15,000,000 bonus to be distributed among Ford bonus to be distributed among Ford owners in August. The company is about to write 300,000 checks for $50 each, to be mailed to owners throughout the world. formed in Forest to be known as The Forest Hotel Company, Limited. The object of the company is to furnish hotel accommodation for the town. Stock is placed at $10 a share. An option at $800, for sixty days, has been obtained

THE price of food has gone up 69 per cent, in Germany since a year ago, and at that is under Government restriction. Berlin authorities have fixed maximum prices high enough to make the population saving on food, but not high enough to prevent them from getting nough to live on. THERE are several dead beats in town nd also a number of people whom it is ard to beat, but the blood beets raised on Quality Hill can't be beat for size and quality. J. S. Williams, the Old Pioneer, laid on the editor's table last Friday four eets that together tipped the scales at ve pounds. These, like the Pioneer imself, would be hard to beat.

THE Public Library grounds present ery attractive appearance. Flower beds are been made in front and on the both side which add very much to the appearance of the premises. The bed on the south was planted by Mr. A. G. Brown, who is an expert in that line; ose on the east were arranged by Rev Robinson. The corner is now a eauty spot.

Some men seem to think if they get Some men seem to think if they get into a "scrape" and the editor mentions in his paper, that he does it out of nalice toward them. In nearly every ase of this kind nothing could be further tom the truth than such a belief. It is from the truth than such a belief. It is the editor's business to publish local happenings, good or bad, and if a man furnishes material for a bad item, he has no one to blame, should it appear.

The Masonic Grand Lodge of Canada was held in Hamilton last week with over 1,200 delegates present from all parts of the Dominion. The law says the issuer of a bank cheque must affix the war stamp, but despite this fact, there are many in this part of the country who are neglecting to perform this patriotic duty. In some cases it looks as if the omission was intentional as cheques have been seen without stamps issued by men who fully understand the law, even by bank managers. Some day one or two of these delinquents will get fined and thus be justly punished for persistent meanness. Anyone who intentionally tries to evade the war tax is certainly not a loyal citizens. the war tax is certainly not a loyal citizens.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. Frank Emsley, 903 Colsumbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Youth and the City

Canada displays symptoms of city madness: a Roman contempt for things provincial; undue respect for netropolitan traits and unfair disparagement of village ways. The youth freshly transplanted from the small town too often acquires quickly a contempt for the place of his upbringing and is free with his scorn against the hamlet that sent him forth. The native urbanite ignores the existence of settlements outside the big leagues. It is charged that small town folk are impertinently inquisitive as to the affairs of their neighbors. The accusation may be whether they fare ill or well. Small town folk are slow, it is said. Large ounter-insinuation of being too fast. Conscript and Volunteer

This war, incidentally, has turned attention to the reason of German trade and industry. That supremacy is due not to occidental causes but to the pursuance of a policy founded on realization that science is the intimate ally of industry. The German is not originative, but he has developed a peculiar faculty for exploiting new discoveries and to assist him in this he has had the cooperation of a paternal government Under the leadership of brainy men enlisted as servants of a government that is merely the agent of an autocrat, Germany has been organized Carry your head so that you can look everyone in the face. Breathe plenty of air. Drink cold water. These are nature's medicines.

To mend glassware that is not to be put in hot water, use a transparent cement made by dissolving an ounce of gun shellac in enough alcohol to form a thick paste about like honey: apply with a fine small brush, stick the pieces together and set away antil dry.

The water in which chicken or fresh meat had been washed was found by a housekeeper to be the best fertilizer she had tried for ferns and potted plants generally.

We have read somewhere that the cost of stopping a railroad train had been closely figured out, and that it was much greater than the expense of running a train several miles. We do not know which is harder to stop, a train or a habit, but we are inclined to think the latter. We have mever tried stopping a train. If trains are as hard to stop as some habits, few would ever be started! No one would dare ride on them. Never start a habit you think you may want to stop. It saves a great deal of trouble not to start it.

Sometimes clocks stop and no amount of coaxing will start them. A simple way to remedy this, is to soak a little piece of cotton cloth in coal oil, then open the door of the clock and place the cloth beneath the works. A little oiling is very often all that they need and this does it Leave the cloth in the clock until all the oil is absorbed. have even taken the works out of small bronze clocks and placed them in a cup with a coal oil cloth undermeath and left them over night or as long as necessary for the delicate mechanism to become oiled. If there is nothing broken in the clock this will start it off. In any event, all clocks require oiling at certain intervals.

In hot weather, as is well known, the color of clothes is important. Certain colors heighten discomfort, others greatly reduce it. Anyone freely exposed in very hot weather to the red rays is likely to suffer from over-excited nerves; in fact, to these rays most cases of sun-stroke may be attributed. Red clothing offers them free passage, and is therefore not desirable. Blue is also undesirable, for it offers no protection against the ultra-violet rays. Green is of all colors the coolest and most restful. The most comfortable rooms in very hot weather are those decorated in green. They have the further advantage of being for some reason especially unattractive to the house fiy.

Hard and soft corns both yield to Holloway's Corn Cure, which is enturely safe to use, and certain and satisfactory in its action.

VICTOR HUGO AT LIEGE.

His First Impression of the Busy City as Seen at Night.

Shortly after the Franco-Prussian war Victor Hugo, the French poet, visited Belgium and subsequently wrote of his journey:

"The shades of evening drew nearthe wind ceased blowing; lights burne dimly in neighboring houses; everything became half lost in the dusk. The passengers said, 'We shall be in Liego in an hour.' "At that moment, at the foot of the hills, which loomed dark and scarcely visible, two round balls of fire suddenly glared like the eyes of tigers. By the roadside rose a frightful dark slender tower, surmounted by a huge flame that cast a sinister reflection upon forest, rock and ravine. Beyond, hidden in the shadows, was a moutha mouth of live coal which suddenly opened and shut, and with hideous roarings spouted forth a tongue of fire. It was the lighting of the furnaces.

"After passing the spot called Flemalle the sight was inexpressibly magnificent. All the valley seemed to be in a state of conflagration, smoke issuing from this place and flames arising from that; in fact, we could imagine that a hostile army had ravaged the country, and that twenty districts presented in the night and darkness all the aspects and phases of devastating conflagration-some just catching fire, some shrouded in smoke, others swept or encircled by flames,

"This aspect of war is caused by peace—this terrifying similitude of destruction is the effect of industry."

ITALY'S NATIONAL GAME.

Morra Is Played With the Fingers and Is Older Than Chess.

We are apt to look on marbles as the ra" is perhaps the most economical game in the world, for it demands nothing but a pair of hands. The players each throw out the right hand, with a number of fingers extended. Then each has to call "five," "three," "eight," or any number that he considers equal to the number of fingers extended by himself and his opponent added together. In this lies the test, for an old hand can divine by the very turn of his opponent's fingers how many he is going to extend. Whenever a player guesses the right total in any throw he counts it on his left hand by folding in a finger of that hand. It takes nine such correct guesses by one player to make a game. This game is proscribed by law if practiced in public; hence the devotees betake themselves to alleys and byways. From the silence of these regions there comes the tell tale howling of the raucous players. As game sucseeds game, and the wine they play for is consumed, the play becomes more intense, the cries more hoarse and loud, so that one would imagine they were dogs barking.

No game is older than this even chess must yield the palm for antiquity-and yet it is as popular and as primitive today as when first played on the banks of the Nile.-Strand Magazine.

The Piano's Seven Octaves. Pianos of standard size have a keyboard of seven octaves and three notes -fifty-two white keys. There is a reason for this limit. As it is, the keys at either end of the keyboard are rarely used, and the tones that can now be produced, from the lowest to the highest, include all that have any definite musical value to the human ear. If the compass of the keyboard were extended the added keys would produce sounds or noises without any musical significance. It is possible for the human ear to perceive sounds over a range of about eleven octaves, but the production of musical sounds is confined to the seven and one-third oc-

The Beef Cattle Trade in Canada

Large numbers of 5. beef cattle, many of them in comparatively poor condition, are finding their way from all parts of Ontario into the United States. In the case of most of these animals it would pay the sellers well to feed them for some time before disposing of their stock, for a fat animal is profitable in two ways: it is heavier, and it brings a better price per pound. It seems strange that Ontario farmers have been so slow to perceive how much they are throwing away by this form of shiftlessness. It is depressing for a thoughtful student of the beef cattle question to see the large number of heifers consigned to the butcher's block. They are capable of bearing good grade stock, which would help to increase the number of beef animals in Can-Generally speaking, says one who has given thought to the question, the farmer should never kill a heifer or a calf, for to cause either of them to disappear from the whole number of Canadian cattle is to create a vacancy that must be filled up with something else.

One great drawback to the beef cattle trade in this country is the poor condition of pastures in July and August. Generally there is a good deal of drought during these two months, and it is quite impossible for cattle to find nourishing food in dried up grass pastures. The way to tide over this interval is to cultivate pasture for the cattle. Sown at different times, the fodder can be at different times, the fodder can be cut at its very best, the last cut being blown into the silo for winter use. It happens that the same crop that serves usefully for summer feeding serves just as well for ensilage. serves just as well for ensilage alfalfa, sweet clouer, fodder corn and so on. Farmers may as well make up their minds, advises the Guelph Mercury, that after this season beef cattle will be very high in price, and that it is not too soon to begin preparations to take advantage of what is likely to be comparatively a paramount condition.—Journal.

The Quality of Modern Courage

(Collier's Weekly)

The great war has proved one thing at least; the enduring bravery of mankind. Military writers of few years ago were skeptical about the soldierly qualities of modern city dwellers, believing that our urban civilizations must necessarily sap the fighting spirit and perhaps overcome it entirely. The present struggle has ended all that sort of comment. Whether Belgian, English, French or German, these clerks and factory hands can hold their souls in strength, and on the given word can charge and die as valiantly as any Spartan. The appalling noise and carnage wrought by modern artillery results in some cases of nervous breakdown, but very few in comparison with the numbers engaged, and by no means producing effect enough to insure the success of the assault following the cannonade. The modern soldier simply digs his trench the deeper and holds on to meet the at-The big guns are called tack. opprobrious and contemptuous nicknames. Such as "Black Marias," 'soup steamers," and the like. Napoleon said that the rarest sort of courage is four-o'clock-in-the-morning courage, but there is lots of that in the trench along the French border. The Germans have systematically made many of their most determined assaults in the small hours following midnight, but these have been met as calmly and effectively as if under the noonday sun. It will be interesting to see how the psychologists will account for this, whether it may be ascribed to the very deadliness of modern weapons, or to the decay of superstition, or to more occult causes.

The Supermen

The names of the prominent German generals are becoming more and more an amusing factor of the situation. The German army operating in East Prussia is under control of a man named General Francois. That is hardly a good Teuton cognomen. The German army operating in Central Poland is under the command of General Mackensen, whose daughter was named Flora and educated at Edinburgh University, and whose grandfather was probably a Mackenzie. The German general who has taken charge of the Turkish army is General Von Saunders, and there is very little doubt but that his ances tors came from Scotland. If Germany continues to appoint such men, we will begin to doubt the tremendous superman quality of the German breed.

Soldiers' Offences

There are more than a dozen different offences for which a soldier may be sentenced to death while on active ser-vice.

sentenced to death, or for assaulting any one bringing up provisions for the troops. Soldiers are expressly forbidden while on active service to commit any offence against a resident of the country in which he is fighting under pain of death, nor may he break into any house in search of plunder, or discharge his rifle intentionally to create a false alarm on the march.

A soldier while acting as sentry who is A soluter while acting as sently who is found sleeping at his post may be shot. Any man causing or joining in a mutiny is liable to be shot. Desertion or attempt at desertion while on active service is naturally a death offence.

Society is Not Life

While its narrow round is sounding its brass and twinkling its cymbal, life is going fiercely on, down in the narrow street where we struggle for bread, out in the barnyard where the feathered folk are stirring to spring industries and the patient beasts are awaiting our demands. Life is here, in the kitchen, where the woman must, with consummate elever-ness never to be excelled by any art or accomplishment, minister to the bodily wants of her fellow-creatures.

It is the woman who has walked across

It is the woman who has walked across the fields on a wild winter night to help a sister woman in her hour of trial, the woman who has dressed the new-born baby, and composed the limbs of the dead, learned the rude surgery of the farm, harnessed horses, milked cows, carried young lambs into the kitchen to save them from perishing in the rough save them from perishing in the rough March weather—it is she who has seen

Laurier's Appeal

To Young Men.

At a mass meeting in the Arena at Ottawa, Sir Wiltrid Laurier, closed a strring speech on the duty of Canadians in connection with the war with a pointed appeal to the young men of Canada to enlist in the service of their country and of empire. "The privilege is yours, young men," he said "the privilege of risking your lives that your country may live and that freedom may not disappear from the earth." It is not to the women that I would appeal to send the men to from the earth." It is not to the women that I would appeal to send the men to the front. It is to you, young men, who must remember that none but the brave-deserve the fair." The call of the Liberal leader was backed by the appeals of Hon. Martin Burrill, Minister of Agriculture, Col. J. A. Currie, M. P., who is home on sick leave and Capt. Stethan, of the R. C. R., Kingston. C. R., Kingston.

"Smith," asked the court, "did you

The Prusso-American war corres pondence goes gaily on. Germany in the latest rejoinder on the subject of the Lusitania says-nothing. All the United States firmness of attitude and "holding to strict accountability" has been useless. So far as an outsider can judge these interchanges of notes are likely to continue after the war has ended.

Every child should be taught to save money without being avaricious or niggardly. We need more thrift. The average Canadian wage earner wasted enough in his youth to make him comfortable in his old age. We should take a lesson from France in this respect. They know how to enjoy life and at the same time work hard and save money. They suffer less from panics and depressed times than any other people because nearly every person saves something against a rainy day. The French schools teach the children to save money and the most frequent prize given in the schools is a savings bank book with a small sum to the credit of the

PLANNING THE MEAL

Balanced Rations an Important Factor
In Home Economics. "Oh, dear! This eternal planning and contriving, from meal to meal, over what to serve next." A common enough exclamation, surely, and one familiar to the family man, who too often considers wife's work more or less of a sinecure and wonders why she frets so easily over trifles. Just throwing things together in bulk, regardless of the food's effect on the general health and efficiency of those who must eat it, is a wasteful and even a dangerous process Nowadays the thoughtful housewife "balances rations" as skillfully and carefully as does the careful stock feeder. She feels that what is good for beasts of the field is surely worth applying to man.

A few hints on balancing rations from the home economics department, College of Agriculture. University of Wisconsin, follow:

Fat, protein and carbohydrates should be distributed through the day so that no meal will contain an excessive amount of any one foodstuff. Don't serve two or more foods rich in the same foodstuff at one meal. For example, macaroni and cheese with meat, rice and potatoes. Don't serve the same food in the same form twice in the same day except with such staples as bread, butter and milk. Never serve such a combination as tomato soun and tomato salad, or creamed peas and cream of pea soup in the same meal.

Work for flavor contrasts between different courses of a meal. Seek to have pleasing combinations of flavor, color and form in each course.

Plan to serve a fruit or vegetable at ach meal. A mixed diet of vegetable and animal food is safest and best.

PARIS AND BERLIN.

Both Know What It Is to See Foreign Armies Within Their Gates.

Paris has had severe experiences in the way of surrenders to invading armies. On March 31, 1814, the allied armies that had hemmed in Napoleon entered the French capital and ocupied it with a force of 230,000 troops After Napoleon's escape from Elba and his defeat at Waterloo the armies of the allies again entered Paris July 7, 1815. Thus the great city had to sur-render to its enemies twice within sixteen months. Fifty-five years later -Jan. 28, 1871-the city surrendered again, this time to the victors in the Franco-German war, after a brisk bom-

Berlin has seen foreign troops enter its gates no fewer than three times in the last 200 years. The first time, curiously enough, the conquerors were Austrian troops under General Had-dick, who entered Berlin in 1757, when Frederick the Great was engaged in fighting the French on the Rhine. During their stay the Austrians imposed a fine of £30,000 on the city, as well as commandeering a huge quantity of provisions and equipment for their troops. It was only just over three years later when both the Russian and Austrian troops, then allies of one another, entered Berlin. This time the city was fined £300,000. The time that will be best remembered, however, was the entry of Na-poleon into Berlin after the victory of Jena. Napoleon inflicted a very heavy fine on the Germans and forced them to feed his troops.-London Tit-Bits.

Saved His Dog. Lord Rosebery is a great lover of an-imals, and on one occasion he actually went so far as to risk his life for a favorite dog. His lordship was on board a steamer when suddenly his dog fell overboard. Much distressed, Lord Rosebery asked the captain to stop the ship-a request which was re-

"If it were a man overboard," said the captain, "why, then, of course"—
"Oh," said Lord Rosebery, "that can be easily managed," and, to the captain's astonishment, he leapt overboard after the dog himself.

Naturally, the steamer was promptly stopped, a boat was lowered with all speed, and both dog and master were rescued, none the worse for their experience.-London Tit-Bits.

It has never been clearly understood why severe cold causes death, but a variety of reasons have been assumed -the accumulation of carbonic acid, paralysis of the vasomotor centers, loss of heat, accumulation of blood in the heart owing to stagnant circulation, anemia of the brain and destruc tion of the red blood corpuscles .- Phil-

In Defence of a Berry

(By Peter McArthur)

There is an old saying, "Give a dog a bad name, and kill him," which applies everywhere in life. No matter how good a thing may be, if you give it a bad name you may as well do away with it. It is all very well for Shakespeare to say that "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet," but if you called a new variety of rose "The Skunk Cabbage Rose" it would take a long while winning favor. I am moved to make these reflections because one of the best of our tender fruits suffers from a bad name, and I wish (By Peter McArthur) fruits suffers from a bad name, and I wish to proclaim the fact that its bad name is due to a strange mistake. The very name gooseberry suggests something about which one could not hope to be enthus-astic in spite of the fact that gooseberry wine figures in the Vicar of Wakefield, that literary masterpiece in which everything is dainty. And the children who have not yet learned the disfavor that goes with the name "goose" will reach for gooseberry tart before any other, but the name "goose" puts all grown ups on their guard. And now comes a great philogist who proves the name is a vulgar and ignorant mistake. The berry is one that should be known as the Saintsberry—and the berry of the most beloved fruits suffers from a bad name, and I wish one that should be known as the Saintsberry—and the berry of the most beloved of saints at that.

Mr. Fox Talbot gives the following remarkable account of the origin of the name "gooseberry". Gooseberries are called in German, Johannis-beeren, that is, "John's berries," because they ripen about the feast of St. John. St. John is called in Holland, St. Jan, and the fruit is there called "Jansbeeren." Now this word has been—centuries ago—corrupted into "Gansbeeren," of which our English word Gooseberries is a literal translation; Gans in German signifying a goose. So you see that the only thing the matter with the delicately flavored St. John's berry is that it has suffered from a touch of German Kultur and has been called out of its name. Give it its right hame and saintly character and you will never be without jam from it for your tarts.

Fake Subscription Canvassers

The circulation crook is still at large taking advantage of a gullible public and hampering honest, upright canvassers doing business for publications of standing and integrity, and offering value not worthless premiums for subscription money. There are many good men doing circulation work, but their efforts are seriously trammeled by the few 'slick' gentlemen who crop up here and there giving away fountain pens which write once and scratch ever afterwards, razors which never cut and are worthless, cheap books of no real value, and other little traps to catch the unwary. These premiums, to induce people who do not want a paper to subscribe, cost next to nothing and are worth nothing, as the new subscriber soon finds out. Generally the paper is on a par with the premium itself. Do you ever get something for nothing from a stranger in business? Stop and think! Can you expect it? Is a paper worth reading which does not sell on its own merits, but is taken because a pen or razor is used as a bribe to get the subscriber? If it is junk that is wanted get the paper with the valueless premiums.—Farmer's Advocate.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

And How the Deficiency Was Made Good.

By EUGENE A. VOGT Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Don't fool yourself! Not every man who is broke is unworthy of his man-

It's just the other way with the chan worth while, and Jack Ruford was almost as good, decent and clean a fellow as his sweetheart thought he

Mabel Ainsworth-that's the girl with the unerring judgment-had a father when Jack failed in business. Mr. Ainsworth instituted proceedings with his daughter, Mabel, who loved Jack, broke or whole, and for reasons known only to the feminine mind did not hesitate to say so. Mr. Ainsworth tried to reason. He was a lawyer in good practice, and his logic was excellent. Mabel remarked that she loved Jack. Her father began to intimate something heavy about filial love, duty, obedience, and so forth. Mabel repeated that she loved Jack.

The father sought Jack and talked to the young man in a manner for which Jack would have knocked the talk out of him had he not been Mabel's father. "Look at this!" commanded Ruford and thrust an open letter under the proboscis of his reluctant father-in-law

"Well, what is it all about?" asked Ainsworth after he had read the typewritten lines. "It's this," replied Jack, more in pity than in ire. "The Wetmore Drug com pany of New York offers me the sole agency for Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and lowa""Yes, yes," interrupted Mabel's father, with offensive impatience. "Yes, yes-sir-when you talk to me, Mr. Ainsworth!" corrected Jack stern-"Yes, yes!" repeated Ainsworth without affirming anything in particuar.

"There you go again!" snapped the octential conqueror of the drug trade of four progressive states. "How many times shall I have to tell you that it's 'yes, sir,' to me from you? Please do not forget that again, my dear Mr. Ainsworth. By the way, how much money will it take to buy your daugh ter from you, with your aboriginal ideas of paternal ownership?" "Not an infernal red cent!" roared Ainsworth, "Nor a yellow million nor a stack of greenbacks as high as this postoffice-from you, sir! I'll sir you! Even if you had the ability to make any appreciable part of it, you couldn't have my daughter now for all the money in the world, sir!" "Are you through?" asked Ruford calmly. The lawyer nodded violently. "All right, then," proceeded the young man. "I'm really surprised at you, Mr. Ainsworth. And with your legal attainments too. Mabel is of age. You know that, I know it and she knows it. Listen to me! I can walk down this Main street three blocks, turn into Locust and walk four and a half more, stop at 416, enter, wait four minutes for a certain young lady to put on her hat and coat, walk out, up Locust one and a half blocks, ring a bell, enter house, emerge married. And you know it!"

"I know it!" gasped the hapless fa-

"A man who can do that, Mr. Ainsworth," proceeded Jack unfeelingly, "must be handled with care. Let us, then, try kindness."

"I always thought, Jack," said the lawyer in his best appealing voice, "that at heart you were a very decent young fellow."
"I am," agreed Jack modestly. "My purpose being to get down to a calm discussion of the differences between us, I shall not refer to your wonderful restraint of expression of your good ppinion of me."

Both men laughed at this sally.

"Now, Mr. Ainsworth," proceeded the young man pleasantly, "you are mostly right about me and would be all right if you weren't so infernally vigorous in expressing yourself. I have no right to marry Mabel in my present circumstances, until I have snown-mostly for my own satisfac-tion-that I can make money enough to support her. Now, I shall be gone a year. When I come back, if I can show you $5,000 will that soften your heart?"

"Jack," replied Mabel's father with deep feeling, "if you ever show me $5,000 of your own money, honestly earned, and if I don't drop dead at sight of it I'll consent."

"Mind you," said Jack as they shook hands on it, "I am doing this thing out of pure magnanimity of soul. You understand that, don't you?"
"Fully," acknowledged Mr. Ains-

It was on the three hundred and fiftieth night of his quest that Jack arrived at his hotel in St. Louis, bubbling over with enthusiasm. He joked with the clerk as he registered with a flourish and staggered the bellboy who escorted him to his room with a fifty cent tip. After the minion had bowed himself out Jack threw himself on a chair and exultantly opened his suit case.

"It's all over, Mabelita!" he cried, addressing that young lady's photograph. which he had pinned on his suit case's inner lid. "We've got it! We've got it! The Wetmore Drug company owes me $5,140.50. Those last seven orders in Decatur give me $147.30 and make us cross the line, darling. Now for a run home to dear old Pillingsby to see you and get you to name the day."

The bellboy entered and obsequiously tendered a telegram on a near silver salver. Jack looked uneasily first at the bearer, then at the message. He tore open the yellow envelope. He stared at the slip of paper he extracted from it, his eyes wide and incredulous. At last he roused himself, smoothed out the sheet and stared at it as though he hoped the very fixity of his gaze would change its tenor.

"No," he mumbled hopelessly. "It's no use—it's there, it's there! 'Wetmore Drug company asking compromise with creditors. Offer 20 cents on dollar. He repeated it stupidly and with inane comments. His head sank down on the table, and he was lost in utter dejection.

Jack Ruford arrived in New York on the second night after the receipt of the crushing telegram. He entered a modest hotel on a side street near Broadway and scowled at the attentive bellboy who relieved him of his suit case.

There was nothing for him to do but to think—until the morrow, when, Jack hoped, the offices of the Wetmore Drug company would be open. He ordered the beliboy to escort him and his baggage to the room assigned to him.
"What kind of a joint is this, anyway?" snarled the distracted young man as the bellboy set the wrong suit case on the table of the room. "This isn't my suit case."

"Oh, beg pardon, sir!" apologized the bewildered boy. "Isn't it?"
"No, it isn't, isn't it," mocked Jack "Take the thing away and angrily. fetch mine. Marked J. R.'

The bellboy hastened away with the offending portmanteau, but soon returned, saying: "Sorry, mister. I brung it to the wrong room. It looked so much like yours." "Well, then, why the dickens don't

"That's the trouble," stammered the bellboy. "The lady says for you to come and get it yourself. She won't give it to me, sir."

"Won't, hey? She won't, won't she?" demanded Jack furiously. "Take me to it, kid. I'll set her straight in two seconds-just exactly two seconds." The dazed boy led the irate guest down one corridor and up another and stopped before a door marked 216. Jack knocked authoritatively, and a feminine voice called "Come in." The young man flung open the door.

"Madam," he began, icily stern. "Mad-I-I"-

And then this prince of glib talkers uddenly lost the power of articulation, for Mabel Ainsworth slowly turned to face him, confirming the first wild guess, fear and hope which the sight of her figure had inspired.

"I think it very careless of you, Jack," began Mabel reproachfully, "to keep your suit case unlocked."
"I-I"-

"Oh, it's all right this time," she reassured him. "Thinking it was mine, and as I never lock mine either, I opened it and saw—this."

She waved her hand toward her photograph resting in its conspicuous place against the inner lid of the suit case. "I suppose," he said gloomily, "that all is over, Mabel. I shall have to give you up, darling. Billy Wetmore" "What!" she cried indignantly. "Give me up on account of $6.80?"

"Six dollars and eighty cents! I don't understand!" gasped Jack.
"Of course you don't. But that is all we are short on our five thou-sand."

"I-I"- stammered her lover. Then with infinite gentleness: "It's 20 per cent. dear. one-fifth he offers. Understand? One-fifth of our five thousand -just one thousand, dear, just one"-'Oh, no, it isn't," she interposed impatiently. "You see, papa"-

"What has he been doing now?" sked Jack doubtfully. "He saved the situation for you and himself," she assured him. "You see, I told papa very flatly that at the end of the year I would marry you anyway, money or no money"—

"Mabel, darling, I can't do it!" "Because you do not love me any nore, Jack?" she asked cruelly. "You know better than that, Mabel," he replied reproachfully.

"Forgive me, dearest," she said contritely. "I do know it." She tenderly placed one of her pink fingers on her conspicuous photograph, "As I was saying-and, please, let us talk business, dear—papa, being assured that I would marry you anyway, proceeded, lawyer-like, to save his face. When he learned that you-poor, overtrustful boy-were letting your monthly earnings stand with Mr. Wetmore he wrote that gentleman—whom, in the first place, he had induced to offer you this place-all about why you were working so hard and induced him to send your monthly earnings to the Pillingsby National bank, where the money is now deposited in your name. But there is only $4,993.20, and papa's strong point as a lawyer always has been technicalities. So I came to New York-in some way-to get that $6.80. And, oh, Jack-my own dear, splendid, faithful Jack-we have to get it honestly or at least legally."

One hour later (western time) Mr. William Ainsworth sat in the morris chair in his library, chuckling over the following telegram:

following telegram:

Dear Papa—Jack is here at hotel. He just sold me his supply of drug samples at sacrifice. Six dollars and eighty cents!
Please deposit that amount to his credit for home on midnight train.

Tell Mary Smith she will be bridesmaid.
Jack sends his love. He is looking well.
Lovingly,

A Shortened Visit "Did the little girl from next door have a good time?" inquired the fond mother.

"I'm not sure, mamma," said the wise child. "Her nurse said she could stay two hours, but I gave her some lessons on how to behave when on a visit, and I read to her several chapters from that dear little book you gave me called 'Punctilious Points For Polite People,' and she went home an hour earlier."-Clevland Plain Dealer.

A Strong Resemblance. "What a funny looking man that conductor is," said Mrs. Jiggles on the trolley.

"Yes," said Jiggles. "I've been trying to think who he looks like. His face is very familiar to me." "Oh, I know who it is," said Mrs.

Jiggles. "It's our goldfish."-Judge.

His Job.

"What is your occupation?" asked the judge of a witness. "Same ole thing, jedge-prayin' for rain or shine as they're needed an' pre-dictin' the end o' the world whenever the signs p'int thataway."-Atlanta

The Insanity. "How was be acquitted?" "Insanity." "He doesn't seem crazy." "He isn't. It was the jury that was off."-Kansas City Times.

Cull the Hog Herds. Now is the time for the breeder of pure bred hogs to commence culling the early pigs to be held for breeding stock. It is always well to remember that a pig that is a prospect for a sec-ond class boar will make a first class feeder and in the end the breeder will find that it does not pay to sacrifice a first class feeder for a second class boar. A good feeder is a source of profit, a poor boar a source of trouble. The breeder who makes it a rule to cull closely always has satisfied customers.-Kansas Farmer.

Give Swine Run of Pasture. Many farmers cannot think of hogs except in terms of corn.

Corn is a splendid food for swine but there are other valuable feeds, such as barley, Kaffir, milo, feterita and potatoes.

Something more than these grains are necessary for the most efficient production of body weight. To pro-duce the greatest gains at the least cost it is necessary to give swine the run of the pasture.

Worms sap the strength and undermine the vitality of children. Strengthen them by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator to drive out the parasites.

SPECTACLE

AT EXHIBITION

Grand Stand Show at Toronto of a Nature to Evoke Outbreak of Patriotic Fervor

The mammoth war spectacle, "The March of the Allies," and the "Review of the Fleet," will be the big scenic production in front of the grand stand at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, and will be one of the most elaborate ever staged and a fitting climax to each day's entertainment in this "Patriotic

The background is the ancient city of Calais, saved by the Canadians when they so gallantly stopped the German drive at St. Julien at such enormous cost. drive at St. Julien at such enormous cost. Its picturesque chateaus and historic environment adapt themselves admirably to reproduction. On either side beneath frowning cliffs are seen military eamps with the soldiers of the allied armies in the hustle, bustle and action of war time. The brilliant uniforms of the field marshals, generals, etc., add splendor to an impressive scepe.

shals, generals, etc., add splendor to an impressive scene.

Suddenly the fleet appears over the horizon under full steam with the Queen Bess leading the first battle line and the Lion in advance of the others. The Iron Duke majestically appears with Admiral Jellicoe aboard, and, as she passes between the watch dogs of the Empire lined up in battle array, the Admiral is greeted with salvoes of broadsides.

It will be a faithful portrayal of the scene just before war was declared last summer when the fleet had been mobilized, on the orders of Churchill, off the British coast.

The cannonading continues as the officers go ashore to review the troops, which swing past the grandstand in the final wonderful tableau. It will be a panorama of Empire greatness, a picture of such striking reality as to evoke a veritable hysteria of patriotic fervor among the thousands who will nightly crowd the grand stand.

Elizabeth and the "Shermans" Elizabeth lives in Scotland and takes a deep and abiding interest in the Euro-pean war.

"Did God make everythings?" she asked her fond mother lately.
"Yes," was the reply of the unsuspecting parent.

"Did he make make bugs?"

"Yes."
"And caterpillars?"

"And Shermans?"
"Yes -y-y-yes, of course, he made Germans, Elizabeth."

Germans, Elizabeth."
"Then what for did he do it?"
"What for? What for? Why, Elizabeth, dear, you are too little to understand. He made Germans just as he made English people. They are lets of made English people. There are lots of nice kind Germans." "Nice Shermans, muddy? Really

"Oh, yes, very nice. But, Elizabeth-" "Then what for do we shoot them?"
"Because—because some of them are aughty," said her mother, desperately, 'Oh, Elizabeth, do go and play!"
Does God like it when we shoot them?"

"I-I don't know."

Elizabeth ponders in silence.
"I fought you knew everyting," she announces reproachfully after deep meditation. "Does God like it?" "No, I'm sure God doesn't ilke it.
But you see the Germans began it."
"Began shooting at us?"

"Yes."
"Then what for did God make them?"
"Why—why, God made them nice and kind just as he made us, but naughty people have told them to shoot other people.''

"What did God make the naughty people for ?''
"I—I don't know.''

"The naughty people won't go to heaven, will they?" "N-n-no-naughty people never go to heaven."
"But will good Shermans go to heaven?"

"Yes—yes, of course they will."
"And will they meet good soldiers here?" (To Elizabeth all "soldiers" are khaki-clad Britons.) 'Yes. Yes. Certainly they will."

"Sure and certain?"

"Certain," responded her mother firmly, feeling sure of her ground at last. Elizabeth ponders. "I don't believe I ares much about going to heaven," she unnounces at last with a seraphic smile.
'Isn't there anywhere else you and I could go, Muddy, except Hell?''

When Incubator Heat Fails.

When Incubator Heat Fails.

If by some mischance the lamp of your incubator should go out and the eggs become quite cold to the touch do not throw them away, especially if the trouble comes in the second half of the incubation period. Start up the heat as soon as possible and keep the machine going. It is very probable that life was not destroyed, although it may take an extra day or more to finish the hatch. We have known eggs to be left out of the incubator by mis-take for twelve hours or more and still prove a good hatch. Give plenty of time at the last until you can assure yourself of the result.-Kansas Farmer.

FARM LIVE STOCK.

The growing colt needs abundant exercise to go with liberal With the right care sheep are the most responsive of any of the farm animals.

It is the hog that is kept growing without being overtaxed that makes the best profit.

Training the colt to a prompt, rapid walk will add many dollars to its value. Remember that no breed of sheep will be satisfactory unless

SILAGE AS A FEED FOR BEEF CATTLE

The following method has proved very successful with me in feeding cat-tle, writes a correspondent of the Orange Judd Farmer: The calves are allowed to run with the cows during the summer and early fall, then weaned and put by themselves on pasture. Later they are allowed the run of a stalk field and put up at night and fed a ration of grain and silage. In this way they are kept in a thrifty condition during the winter.

In the early fall I put young stock in the feed lot and begin to feed for the market. If I have to buy a few calves I select those showing breeding and quality, even if they do cost more. In some cases when nothing but common and mean feeders could be bought they were obtained at a low price and turned on a short feed.

The average farmer should not select

The Aberdeen-Angus came to us from Scotland and has long since become a rival of the other beef breeds. His greatest popularity is found in the middle and western states, although many have gone to the south and southwest. These cattle are prized for their early maturing qualities. In the economic use of food the Angus is second to no other breed. In recent years it has carried away its share of prizes at fat stock shows and in block contests. The quality of meat is second to none. The bull shown is a typical Aberdeen-Angus.

My feeding plant is very simple in-In fact, any corn belt farmer could afford one like it. It consists of a shed like structure 66 by 36 feet, sixteen feet to the eaves, and covered with galvanized roofing; a silo 12 by 32 feet. The straw and clover hav are put in the shed so that the cattle have free access to both at all times.

My steers were given corn.fodder with the ears left on during September and the first haif of October while they were on pasture. On Oct. 25 they were put up in the feed lot and given a ration of corn, clover hay and straw. As they were already accustomed to ear corn, they were given a generous feeding twice daily. As they were to be fed but three months, their corn ration was increased daily. On Nov. 19 I commenced feeding silage. It took several days to get them accustomed to eating silage, and as the silage was quite rich in corn they were fed a little less ear corn. It was quite noticeable that they are less clover hay and straw after silage was added to their ration.

Advertisements Show Where We Are Welcome

AN advertisement is a beckoning hand, a token of invitation. a sign of welcome.

A business serving the public should most certainly advertisebeckon, welcome, and show an eagerness to serve.

The attitude of a business serving the public, yet which does not advertise, is not one of courtesy or appreciation.

A business which uses the expanding factor of advertising is on a fair way to reach its fullest possible potential development.

Fruit For Our Soldiers

Some five thousand Niagara Peninsula fruit growers are giving fruit at lowest cost, while Canadian womanhood is asked to prepare it. The Hamilton Canadian Club has started something; it is a movement which will spread throughout Canada. This great movement gives the sweet-hearts, wives and mothers of our boys at the front an opportunity to do an extra in the trenches. The kind that is wanted is the home-made—love made—product, dried on a screen in the sunlight.

Any home can provide a few pounds of dried fruit after the following manner:— After pitting or steming the fruit wash and place out in the direct sunlight. spread thinly on a cheese cloth screen, say two and a half by three feet—(a convenient size to handle in case of rain). Shake the screen a few times daily in order to turn the fruit.

Peaches, etc., should be pared and sliced and spread as above, but turned To keep flies off, simply spread a piece of mosquito netting over the screen, tying a washer at each corner to hold it down against any breeze.

When the fruit is perfectly dry make it up into packages of about seven (7) pounds weight in good stout paper or cotton and send it to the Red Cross section in your vicinity. They will undertake to forward it to the boys in the treuches.

Canned fruits are equally acceptable for the hospitals. Take it to the Red Cross headquarters in your town, they will do the rest.

Any club, society or organization which desires turther information regarding this movement should drop a line to the Canadian Club, Hamilton, Ont., who have things well under way.

These Pills make new, rich blood which stimulates and strengthens blood which stimulates and strengthens every organ and every part of the body. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made thousands of anaemic people bright, active and strong. The following is one of the many cures. Mrs. Philips, wife of Rev. W. E. Phillips, Princeton, Ont., says: "Some years ago, while living with my parents in England I fell a victim of anaemic. The next complexities of the part of the property of t anaemia. The usual complications set in and soon I became but a shadow of my former self. My mother, who had been a former nurse of many years experience tried all that her knowledge suggested; tonics of various kinds were tried, and three doctors did their best for me, but. without avail, and a continued gradual decline and death was looked tor.

"Later my parents decided to join my prothers in Canada, and it was confidently expected that the ocean voyage, new climate and new conditions would cure me. For a time I did experience temporary benefit, but was soon as ill again asever. I was literally bloodless, and the extreme pallor and generally hopeless appearance of my condition called forth many experiences of sympathy from friends whom we made in our new in Acton, Ont. Later a friend urged me-to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and al-though in a condition where life seemed to have little to hope for I decided to do so. After using three boxes I began to mend. Continuing I began to enjoy my food, slept almost normally, and began to have a fresh interest in life as I felt new blood once again running in my veins. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills brought about a complete cure and I am to-day in robust health. My husband is rector of this parish and I have recommended the use of the Pills to a great number of people with whom we have come into contact in the course of my husband's ministry, for we both know what Dra-Williams' Pink Pills can do."
