WAR SUMMARY

THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

TWO attacks on islands in the Gulf of Riga, in the Baltic, by German aeroplanes, and a retaliatory attack by Russian airmen on the German naval installations at Windau, Courland, reported by Berlin yesterday, perhaps forecast a coming German offensive against Riga. It is here that, having failed at Verdun, the Germans are expected by Russian military men to make a bid for a decision. Hard fighting can scarcely begin for a week or so, for the ground is not yet believed suitable for manoeuvres of masses of men and guns. The Russians will probably attempt to push forward from the lake district south of Riga, while the Germans will probably, while directing an attack by land, attempt to secure control of the Gulf of Riga, for without gaining dominance in these waters, they cannot hope to advance further into Russia.

If a big fight develops for the Gulf of Riga, it will almost certainly bring large naval elements into play. The Germans cannot reckon on the obtaining of any great success without having to take into consideration the Russian Baltic fleet, which is said now to consist of eight or ten dreadnoughts. In order to fight a naval battle with good prospects of success the Germans would require to bring into the fight about twelve or fifteen of their own dreadnoughts. Sir John Jellicoe has intimated in an interview that the British fleet may take a hand in the Baltic operations. The passage of a large fleet into that inland sea may create difficulties for Denmark, for the Germans would probably send her an ultimatum and invade her territories at once in order to close the channel between the North Sea and the Baltic.

The only defensible ground in Denmark is said to be the district around Copenhagen. That can be flooded. In order for aid from Britain to be sent in time, it would have to arrive in the first four days. In other words, the troops would have to be loaded in transports and ready for transportation for Denmark before the enemy commenced hostilities. It is obvious that should the allied fleet gain full control of the Baltic Germany would be gravely imperiled.

BRITISH WIN VICTORY

Forces at Bushire, Persia, Defeat Force Entrenched Nearby.

LONDON, May 2, 6.47 p.m.—The British official press bureau announces that Lieut.-Gen. Lake, commander of the British forces in Mesopotamia, has reported as follows: "A small British force moved out of Bushire April 29 and attacked a hostile force which was strongly entrenched in the vicinity. The enemy was quickly driven off. We returned to Bushire unmolested. Our casualties were one British officer killed and one native Indian trooper wounded. "A letter dated May 1 has been received from the Turkish commander-in-chief, Khalil Pasha, in which he agrees to exchange Gen. Townshend's sick and wounded for an equivalent number of Mohammedan and Turkish prisoners. A hospital and other ships have been sent up to begin the evacuation."

LONDON, May 2, 8.01 p.m.—The British Government has bought the entire output of Norwegian animal and fish oils here. It will be recalled that according to a reliable report in a newspaper reported to have been obtained by American and English buyers of the Norwegian output.

QUELPH DOCTOR APPOINTED.

KINGSTON, May 2.—The board of governors of Kingston General Hospital have appointed Dr. J. A. Boyd, Quelp, as medical superintendent, to succeed Dr. M. F. Coglin.

TWO DEAD, MANY HURT IN PITTSBURG RIOTS

PITTSBURG, May 2.—Two men are known to have been killed and probably fatally wounded and a score of others hurt this afternoon when a mob acted by the authorities to have a riot in the face of a deadly fire from the riot guns and revolvers of deputy sheriffs and plant guards. The situation is quiet tonight, but 2000 citizens of the borough have been sworn in as deputies and are patrolling the streets.

LONDON, May 2, 2.55 p.m.—The British steamship City of Rochester was sunk. One fireman was lost. The remainder of the crew was saved. The Rio Branco, also sunk, was owned by the Amazon Steam Navigation Co. of Para. She was 200 feet in length, 60 tons gross, and was built at Port Glasgow in 1888.

The City of Rochester, 285 tons gross and 160 feet long, was built in 1901, and owned in Rochester, England.

for her coast on those waters is much more exposed for an attack than her coast on the North Sea.

In the only fighting by infantry north of Verdun chronicled yesterday, the French were the gainers to the extent of capturing 550 yards of German front at a point southeast of Fort Douaumont...

The French success north of Douaumont implies that the Germans are growing too feeble from their losses to hold all the ground that they have gained. It is not improbable that they will be further driven back and the first French defensive line restored.

The Germans made an attack on the Belgian positions immediately north of Dinant and at the Yser yesterday morning and gained a footing in three of the German advanced posts, whence they were immediately driven out.

With the exception of stray bodies of rebels and many rebel individuals, Ireland has been pacified by the police and soldiers. Save in some districts of Irishtown where the rebels are gradually being cleared out by a tightening cordon of troops and soldiers, conditions in Dublin have begun to assume their normal aspect.

General Lake, commander of the British forces in Mesopotamia, reports that he has received a letter from Khalil Pasha, Turkish commander-in-chief, agreeing to exchange the sick and wounded of General Townshend for an equivalent number of Mohammedan and Turkish prisoners.

A small British force which is holding Bushire, Persia, attacked and drove off a hostile force which was strongly entrenched in the vicinity of that city and returned to Bushire unmolested.

The fourth contingent of Russian troops arrived at Marseilles and disembarked yesterday. At the rate the Muscovite troops are being forwarded, there will soon be a large army of them in France.

A British submarine has just sunk a Turkish submarine in the Sea of Marmora, showing that these waters are still by no means immune from the activities of these craft.

Universal compulsion without delay has been decided on by the British Cabinet. Two hundred thousand men were needed to bring up the ranks of the army to the full establishment, and the country having already been stripped pretty bare of troops, it was inevitable that conscription should be adopted.

Altho the Germans prepared to attack the British positions east of Ypres last night by bombarding these for an hour, they were swept off their feet by the British fire when they left their trenches, and their offensive broke down completely.

Automobile prices are being raised—but the Ford price has been reduced $120 since war began falling to put out all our power. The compulsion bill to be introduced today is the most hopeful sign of an awakening in England since the war began. It heralds the conclusion of the struggle within the next year or two.

Is Our Charity Wisely Managed?

A statement has been issued by the bureau of municipal research giving the amounts of grants made to hospitals and other charitable institutions in the past ten years.

Two of these causes should be noted. One is that which is to be met in many other departments, of city life—the utter refusal to undertake the needs of the city in past years, and the compulsory catching up on past liabilities.

Conscription at Last

Premier Asquith expects to introduce a bill today in the imperial house of commons which will impose a measure of conscription upon the British people.

It was said that Mr. Asquith objected to conscription, and that the cabinet would have split over the issue.

It is not that we spend too much, but that we do not spend our money wisely. It is possible that we do not yet spend enough, but we shall not be induced to spend more nor even what we do, with cheerfulness, until we know that it is effecting the best possible results.

The Base Hospital

There are two points about the opposition to the granting of the old general hospital for the purposes of a base hospital for the soldiers that might be noted.

The people who object to the hospital being in Toronto must indubitably entertain the view that Hamilton or some other place should have the hospital.

The city council generally saw the points involved and came to a sensible decision. It will be of material advantage as well as of sentimental com- fort here.

It is true that the government does not fulfil all its duties, but that is no reason why the city should not shame the government into doing its duty.

NOT JUST WHAT HE ORDERED

Position to the base hospital being located in the city that it should desire to unload a burden on someone else.

Details of Fuse Contracts "Nobody's Business," He Boldly Declares.

Chief Features. The salient features of the day may thus be summarized: The contract by which the Edwards Valve and Manufacturing Co. was to deliver 600,000 cartridge cases by Nov. 25, 1915, was not carried out because German spies are alleged to have burned out the factory, assassinated the manager and shipped away the remainder.

4.—The price of $4 per fuse for the grazee fuses was fixed by the shell committee without inquiring into the prices being paid for grazee fuses in the United States.

5.—Col. Carnegie declared that so long as the shell committee furnished the 6,000,000 shells by means of a British war office at the price named it was nobody's business where they obtained the fuses or what they paid for them.

6.—Col. Carnegie excused his failure to inquire into the proper prices for the grazee fuses by means of business and the urgent need of haste. "Had you been in my place," he said to Mr. Johnston, "you would have been in a frightful stew of all your legality."

7.—The afternoon session Mr. Johnston presided over the meeting of the two American companies. Witnesses at the first meeting were Allison on May 1, 1915, and J. P. Morgan & Co. in a few minutes introduced him to some American manufacturers.

Chicagoan "Heart Melter"

Further correspondence filed by Mr. Hellmuth showed that the order to the Edwards Valve Co. was received by the munitions board, which received by the order for all cases delivered between Jan. 1 and Jan. 15, 1915.

Mr. Hellmuth asked why the figure of $2.43 was still retained and Col. Carnegie said Mr. Wright, a Chicago lawyer, appeared to have been quite a "heart melter."

Col. Carnegie began a statement about the effect of the German element in Chicago, but was halted by Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., representing Sir Sam Hughes, who pointed out the confidential nature of this information.

Pease, a British ammunition expert, investigated, they decided that it was doubtful if the valve company could live up to merely agreeing to take all cases up to 15 weeks was given by them. The original contract price for the order was to have been $2.39 a case, and a cash advance, but when the Edwards concern pointed out that without a cash advance it would have difficulty in financing the deal, it was agreed to raise the price per case to $2.43. entirely in default on its contract in November, 1915?" Col. Carnegie: I don't quite understand.

Mr. Johnston: The question is plain, more definite? Sir William Meredith: Make it a little more particular?

Mr. Johnston: Had the valve company complied with the terms of its contract in any particular? Col. Carnegie: That is a legal question, but I don't see how they had.

Mr. Johnston: Now, I ask, was the company not entirely in default? Col. Carnegie: I don't know what is in the back of the mind.

Mr. Nesbitt: That is a tricky question. Mr. Johnston (to Mr. Nesbitt): Wait, Nesbitt's Warren Protest.

Sir William Meredith: Wait, Nesbitt has the right to lodge a protest, but making provocative statements.

Mr. Nesbitt: I shall not allow Mr. Johnston to act as a censor of my remarks. I want to explain now what the Edwards Valve Co. actually did towards producing the shell cases. It worked under tremendous difficulties.

Its engineer was assassinated, the factory in Chicago was blown up three times and Mr. Johnston's headquarters were damaged. The impression that was given by Mr. Johnston's question is that the company was simply a set of thieves.

Sir William Meredith: Ask if any case had been delivered. Col. Carnegie: Yes.

Mr. Johnston: Was there failure in these cases? Sir William Meredith: The company was not under contract.

Mr. Nesbitt: There was only an arrangement to supply cases.

Exchanges Grew Hotter. Mr. Johnston: If the witness has objection to my questions I hope he will name them.

Mr. Nesbitt: He has done that. Mr. Johnston: Rather than that I should be sandwiched between the two. Mr. Johnston then asked: Did you find the Canadian firms were better than?

Col. Carnegie: I presume we complained. Every firm failed to live up to its contracts in regard to delivery, due to delays from one cause and another.

Mr. Johnston then became involved with Mr. Nesbitt and Sir William Meredith in an argument over certain details of the contracts. Mr. Nesbitt: The Liberal committee is full of details of the contracts as far as the shell committee.

Not General Inquiry. Mr. Nesbitt pointed out that the point to be investigated were quite specific in the original contract. There was nothing to conceal but questions under investigation.

Sir Wm. Meredith: The shell committee when it turned over its affairs to the munitions board also handed over $420,000 balance.

Mr. Johnston: I wanted to see what led up to that. Sir William: We can't have a general inquiry.

Mr. Johnston: It could be assumed, and losses went to the contractors, individual conduct of the contractors was investigated.

Mr. Johnston: Only so far as it relates to the fuse inquiry. Sir William Meredith reserved judgement on Mr. Johnston's question about what contracts the manufacturers handled themselves and what was sub-

Mr. Johnston then asked Col. Carnegie how he decided the prices of the fuses, orders for which were let to the American Ammunition Company and the International Fuse Company. He the total of $450 by adding together the prices of component parts.

Col. Carnegie said he arrived at a price for the fuses as a whole. The most important point was prompt delivery, not the price.

Mr. Johnston: But did you compare your prices with others charged in the United States? Col. Carnegie: No. The $700,000 shell orders depended upon our getting fuses quickly and the committee decided it had the right to let the orders where and how it liked.

Mr. Johnston: How long would it have taken you to inquire? Col. Carnegie: Only a few minutes.

Mr. Johnston: And as a result of your not inquiring you paid a higher price in the United States than other concerns were getting? Col. Carnegie: The committee considered our prices fair.

Mr. Johnston: But since you have got more light? Col. Carnegie: I wonder if the British war office has got more light, see that it recently let a fuse contract for $300?

Mr. Johnston: I presume the British war office has not more light, seeing that you and Lord Kitchener are getting the same salary.

TRADING INACTIVE AND PRICES EASIER

Trading was dull on the Toronto Stock Exchange yesterday and prices showed little resiliency. The fluctuations were narrow and there was some tendency for the speculative issues to sag. Montreal has ceased some of the new operations, and, falling these, new items are less prolific than they were. Nova Scotia and Dominion in the steel stocks maintained a firm undertone and were practically unchanged from the previous session. The mining shares continued active on the exchange, with prices close to a parity with those on the standard market.

At the same time expected 75c silver practically arrived yesterday, the London quotation being 75c and the New York equivalent 74 3/4c an ounce. The rise in price has not cleared the situation and brokers here are generally subsiding, but the demand for metal currency will increase in leaps and bounds.

two states. Surrounding these refineries are the Uncle Sam marketing stations, where our own auto trucks and tank wagons can deliver ten thousand barrels per day direct to the people.

Even though the price of refined oils are from 15 to 25 cents cheaper to the people in the states where our marketing stations are located, we can secure, when refined at small expense at our refineries, about $2.45 to $2.65 per barrel.

On this basis our combined daily production of about 50,000 barrels of refined oil makes it possible to supply the entire market of the United States and to have a surplus of 10,000 barrels per day.
