MANY VESSELS ASHORE AND IN DISTRESS ALONG NOVA SCOTIA SHORE AS RESULT OF BIG GALE

Special to The Standard.
Halifax, N. S., May 24.—A terrific wind and rain storm, the severity of which is unprecedented for this season has swept the Nova Scotia coast for the past thirty-eight hours, carrying devastation in its path. Early Sunday morning rain began to fall and with daylight rose a wind which has since blown unceasingly at the rate of forty miles an hour. The telegraph lines are deranged and it is impossible to estimate the damage but from all points where the wires are intact, come messages of loss.

Many Casualties.
On the coastline the storm wrought the greatest havoc and from North Sydney on the east to Liverpool on the west, comes news of marine casualties, while every harbor and inlet with craft of all descriptions, seeking shelter from the terrific wind and mountainous seas. At Liverpool two vessels were driven ashore and are likely to become a total loss. They are the Gloucester fishing schooner Judique and the Lena Mand.

Skipper Watched All Night.
Capt. Saul Jacobs, the famous Gloucester skipper, brought his schooner Benjamin Smith into Liverpool Saturday, and anticipating a hurricane, made fast to the wharf. The veteran fisherman spent the night with his crew patrolling the coast at Liverpool hoping to render assistance to vessels that might be driven on the rocks. Of the twenty vessels in Liverpool harbor, only one escaped unharmed.

The schooner Talmouth, of Sherbrook, bound for Louisburg, is ashore on White's Point at the entrance of Canso.

The Grand Bank Newfoundland fishing schooner Blanche M. Rose, ran ashore on Cranberry Head, at nine o'clock Sunday morning when entering North Sydney and remained aground till 6:30 o'clock last evening, when she was towed off by tug Iona and brought up the harbor. Bottom is damaged considerably and she is leaking badly.

There are forty-five schooners in North Sydney for shelter.

Thirty Hours Overdue.
The Line steamer A. W. Perry arrived in port at midnight having been forced to lay to for twelve hours Sunday night in the teeth of a howling gale which blew at the rate of sixty miles an hour and kicked up great seas that swept the staunch craft from stern to stern. The Perry sailed from Boston at three o'clock Saturday afternoon and five hours later was up against a wind that blew with a velocity of sixty miles an hour. Capt. Haas fought the gale until Sunday night when he decided to lay to and for thirteen hours the engines were stopped.

The crew of the schooner Roanoke, which was lost off Fayal, were passengers on the Perry.

NOTWITHSTANDING HIGH WIND HOLIDAY WAS ENTHUSIASTICALLY OBSERVED IN THE MARITIME PROVINCES; SPORTING RESULTS FROM ALL OVER

Victoria Day, 1909, was blessed with royal weather. The only objection which St. John could have to the weather was that the wind was a trifle strong, with the result that the air felt chilly. Otherwise the day was charming and the people thoroughly enjoyed the holiday in the various ways which pleased them best.

This was true not only of St. John but of the majority of places in the Maritime Provinces. In some localities rain threatened in the morning but it soon cleared and the weather was fine throughout the day. Halifax was an exception! The memory of Victoria the Good was observed in practically every place of importance throughout Canada. In the Maritime Provinces the day was observed by holding sporting events of various kinds. St. John, Fredericton, Milltown, St. Stephen, Moncton, Amherst, Parrsboro, Truro, Sydney and other places were the scenes of baseball games, horse-racing, road races, track and field sports and other athletic gatherings.

On next Saturday afternoon the City Club will hold a spoon match, shooting to begin at 1.30. I. F. Archibald will be range officer.

3rd Regt. C. A.

The 3rd Artillery also held a spoon match yesterday. The scoring of the winners was as follows: Sgt. F. Archibald, 77. Class B—Bomb. Osceola Dick, 63.

There was no prize awarded in Class C, as the competitors did not shoot the complete score.

PERILOUS TRIP OF BALLOON THROUGH SPACE AT MILE MINUTE IN ADVANCE OF THUNDER STORM

Springfield, Mass., May 24.—Flying through space in advance of a thunderstorm, the balloon Massachusetts, with William J. Van Sleet as pilot, made a trip from Pittsfield to a field in Munson, three miles from the Palmers, in an exciting and at times perilous fashion, this afternoon. Once the balloon was caught in a swirl of air and seemed to spin around while the car swung from side to side at an angle of forty-five degrees. That was in East Hampton, less than half a mile from the hotel at the top of Mount Tom. As the balloon was released from this eddy it shot up higher and was caught by a swift wind current from the northwest, swept across the Connecticut river faster than a mile a minute, with an ominous looking storm cloud not far behind. One of the passengers who had his watch in his hand figured that the balloon traveled five miles in four minutes, passing over Holyoke.

It was shortly after leaving Pittsfield that the electrical storm was first noticed. The balloon was over South Worthington, ten miles from Pittsfield at a height of 3,000 feet. Clouds were seen gathering in the west and northwest. There appeared to be two separate storms or disturbance centres, that in the northwest being the most threatening. There were frequent lightning flashes and the roll of the thunder sounded almost continually. Pilot Van Sleet's first impulse was to descend immediately but as he figured that the wind of the storm would carry the balloon in front of it he decided to keep on. Shortly afterward, they ascended to 7,000 and for a time were well above the storm region. At this altitude, in fact, they found no breeze at all and the balloon was apparently motionless. Just before the descent near Palmer, the voyagers went up to their highest altitude, 8,000 feet, finding that the temperature there was decidedly cold in contrast with the summer-like air below.

MONCTON HAD MANY FIRES YESTERDAY

Moncton, May 24.—With the wind blowing a hurricane the Moncton fire department had a busy day. In the forenoon an alarm was rung in from a house at the head of Steadman street, owned by Stephen O. Humphrey and occupied by L. R. McLaren, a well known drug traveller. The fire originated in the attic from a defective chimney and had made considerable headway before the alarm was given. The building was badly gutted and the loss is about a thousand dollars, with insurance of eight hundred.

Another fire, supposed to have originated from fire crackers, was in tenement house on High street, occupied by two families. Loss about six hundred dollars. Covered by insurance. The occupants all lost considerable in furniture without insurance. Other fires were incept with no loss.

STRIKE OF COTTON MEN IS ENDED

Montreal, Que., May 24.—According to the officials of the Dominion Textile Company, the strike of the cotton workers of Magog is nearly ended. It was stated today that more than two-thirds of the strikers had returned to their work unconditionally, and it was announced that within the next forty-eight hours both mills would be running at full swing.

The Board of Conciliation, composed of Mr. Justice Fortin, chairman; A. Gibeault, representing the cotton workers; and Mr. J. Daniels, the Dominion Textile Company, appointed to investigate the demands made by the strikers, concluded their inquiry on Saturday. Judge Fortin decided to send his report to the Minister of Labor before making it public.

BRYCE SPEAKS AT VICTORIA DAY DINNER

New York, N. Y., May 24.—James Bryce, the British Ambassador, was the guest of honor and the principal speaker tonight at the Victoria Day dinner, commemorating Queen Victoria's birthday, given by the British Schools and Universities Club at Delmonico's. One hundred and fifty others were present, among them being Dr. John L. Patton, former president of Princeton University and J. M. Clark of Toronto. A toast was drunk to "the King" and "the President," and after some preliminary speeches, Mr. Bryce responded to the toast "The Empire." As he arose every diner sprang to his feet and the room echoed with cheers. The ambassador paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of Queen Victoria, and then said:

"I feel an interest in the prosperity of the United States, only second to my interest in Great Britain and I believe the citizens of the United States have an attachment to our Empire. This is a good thing for the peace of the world. The two nations are of one mind and have one heart; and I desire to promote peace among other nations. I see no reason in the world anywhere for war and I hope that such an occasion may never come.

In conclusion he spoke of the responsibility of Great Britain for the people under her control not ready for autonomy, saying that the colonies were accepting their part of the burden.

Wald is suffering from a severe cold with gripe symptoms, and while the illness is not serious it will probably keep him out of the boat for a week at least. In his seat at No. 7, two candidates were tried in today's practice, W. R. Severance, former captain of the crew, and P. Withington.

PHONOGRAPH WAS PUT TO QUEER USE

New York, N. Y., May 24.—A phonograph helped the Jersey City Club of the Eastern League to win a victory for Sunday baseball in the Chancery Court here today. A resident near the ball ground sought to have Sunday games prohibited as a nuisance, but a phonograph operator testified that he tried at the plaintiff's house to make a record of the noise alleged to have accompanied the game and that the machine failed to record any noise whatever. Vice Chancery Judge Stevenson held that Sunday ball playing was illegal but that his suppression lay with the police rather than with the Chancery Court.

"Voted to continue the present scale of wages, waiving the right to reduce" was the concise statement handed to newspaper men by the secretary when the conference, which was very brief, was ended. AMERICAN WOMAN GOT 13 MONTHS. Paris, May 24.—On the charge of having maltreated young children confined to their care, Cecile H. JACOBINISM SWEEPED OVER U. S. Paris, May 24.—Continuing his analysis of conditions in the United States, in letters to the Figaro, Guglielmo Ferrero, the Italian historian finds that the moral revolution, which was produced by recent revelations, was quickly transformed into a movement not only to impose a severer system of ethics upon high finance, but to curb the wealth power as well.

SAINT JOHN, TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 25, 1909.

HISTORY AND THE LOYALISTS.

There is sound teaching in Mr. McCaskill's sermon on the spirit of the Loyalists, setting forth that the man who dares all and gives all for what he believes to be right is the true man, even though he may be mistaken in his judgment. From this point of view the Loyalists were worthy, and not less so if they were "mistaken enthusiasts" as Mr. McCaskill's rather dogmatic interpretation of the verdict of history represents them.

We do not find that history gives such a verdict. The preacher refers to British public men of the time as commencing the cause of the revolutionists, and mentions Goldwin Smith and Sir George Trevelyan as teaching that the colonists "fought the battle of English liberty." Goldwin Smith may have said this much, but he is certainly unsparing in his discussion of the motives of some of the Fathers of their Country, Trevelyan, usually an interesting writer, but seldom authoritative, in his history of the American revolution comes near to dullness, and throws little new light on the revolution controversies.

It can hardly be said that history has delivered a verdict on the conduct of the Loyalists, but there is at least as much authority for as against the doctrine that the declaration and war of independence were unnecessary to right any wrong done or meditated. If a large party in England, led by the greatest statesmen of the time were in sympathy with the demands of the Colonists that would support the Loyalist opinion that all wrongs could be righted within the Empire.

We must not confuse the merits of the colonial grievances with the merits of the revolt and declaration of independence. Thousands of Loyalists were opposed to the Stamp Act and the other taxes. They were with the revolutionists in demands, some of them successful, for reforms. They accepted in good faith, so long as they could, the solemn declarations of revolutionary leaders. But they refused to make their quarrel with a British administration a cause of war and separation. They were to the end what Franklin and other leaders declared themselves to be at the beginning.

If we say that they were "mistaken enthusiasts" then we say that all the rest of British America ought to have gone with the revolting colonies, driving the British flag from this continent. History is not in the habit of delivering her verdicts in such terms that all understand them alike, but to us it seems to say that the colonies which remain British have fought the battle of British freedom with as much success as those which went out. With this record not only the motives, but also the wisdom of the Loyalists appeal to the judgment of history.

THE ENGLISH PANIC.

At the Mohonk Peace Conference the delegates have been rebuking England for her war scare, and the frenzied fear of Germany. University President Butler condemns the two-power standard policy of Britain, and observes that aerial navigation abolishes islands. This shows that Dr. Butler is quite up to date. If airships are to be taken into account the whole war programme must be revised.

The British scare is taken more seriously outside of Britain than at home. It has been the fashion for two generations in England to explain how easily the country could be conquered. The Battle of Dorking is one of the old stories, and there were others before it. So that "An Englishman's Home" is no novelty. These are parables to make the people of Britain consider questions of defence.

There are strange contradictions in the English disposition and mood. They are not the stolid people which the French and Americans sometimes represent them. They get up wonderful demonstrations at Hyde Park and in the streets. They achieve more noise and spectacles than any other country out of woman suffrage agitations. They work up more patriotic fervor in war time than even the French. They respond more quickly than other people to a religious revival.

The present scare, if such it may be called, was started by the Government itself. The first panic speech was made by Mr. McKenna, the second by the Secretary for Foreign Affairs. Their addresses, examined now, justify all the national concern that has followed them. These solemn declarations from the persons who would be expected to maintain the most serene, excuse all that has been said since.

In Canada we know a little about these political panic appeals. Not long since a premier, desiring to unload a railway scheme on the country, pretended to have discovered the prospect of trouble with the United States, and the cancellation of the bonding privileges on the railway through Maine, altogether regardless of the fact that we have two railways to the Atlantic on Canadian soil. Sir Wilfrid's "God grant that it may not be too late" is hysterical enough. But in his case it was absolute humbug.

THE MILITIA CANTEEN.

The strict prohibition of the sale of liquor in the militia camps is of course unsatisfactory to certain officers and men. There is a certain mystery about the canteen system, or whatever has taken its place in or about the Canadian camps. Year after year the Minister has informed Parliament that there is no canteen. It is like the Bar in the House of Commons which is always "abolished," while the regular sale of liquor for sale on the premises abides and flourishes. Now after repeated announcements that there is no militia canteen, we have a sort of peremptory order that liquor shall not be sold on the militia camp grounds. We may expect expressions of disapproval, because a certain proportion of the volunteer militiamen are fond of liquor and are in the habit of drinking. A still larger number, not particularly fond of liquor, and not in the habit of drinking, would join their friends in this indulgence for good fellowship sake when with them in camp. No doubt the canteen or the place where liquor is dispensed would be missed by some of the men in uniform.

But there must be a much larger number of volunteers who will be glad to get rid of it. Without doubt the great army of Canadian people will be better satisfied if the prohibition is established and rigidly enforced. In a large part of Canada the sale of liquor is legally prohibited. All the camps in the Maritime Provinces, and some of those in the Upper and Western Provinces, are held in these prohibition areas. If we grant that the sale of liquor to the militia ought to be authorized at any camp, it would certainly not be fitting to allow it in those parts of the country where the traffic is forbidden by Federal or Provincial statute. The Government ought above all things to be a respecter of law, and the Militia Department should be the first to stand up for order and obedience.

But even where there is no prohibition under the Scott Act or local option, there should be prohibition in the militia camps. The ranks are filled with young men, many of them just out of school. Thousands go into camp from country districts every year for the first time. They come from the temptation to drink, with habits not yet formed. With unusual freedom from restraint, and with the temptation presented in its most attractive form they are exposed to risks that should be avoided. Most fathers and mothers are glad to have their sons trained to defend their country, but they have a right to ask that the state which they desire to protect should protect the lads from influences which will injure them both as citizens and as soldiers.

The highest military authorities are in favor of temperance in the army. The teaching and example of Lord Roberts on this point are emphatic. The day of regular issues of grog to the army and navy is past. A sober army is now desired, and Canada wants a sober militia.

It is pleaded that liquor will be sold and used by the men in camp, and that if it is not sold under regulations in camp, it will be obtained without limit as to quantity, or guarantee as to quality outside in illegal places. The argument does not speak well for the condition and discipline of the militia. If the volunteers cannot be kept under this much restraint for two weeks in camp there is something wrong. The few who break rules and go to unauthorized resorts may well be retired from service. Whether a volunteer when off duty should be prevented from patronizing licensed saloons within his reach is a question not raised here. That is a matter of discipline. But if the prohibition of the canteen has the effect of sending the men to licensed saloons and causing them to drink more than they would in camp, there are further remedies. Many of the camps are so situated that this cannot happen, and for the rest it would be possible to meet the evil in another way than by the Government (taking the responsibility for the sale of liquor within the grounds).

THE QUEEN'S LETTERS.

While the 24th of May is called Empire Day, it is to most of us still the Queen's Birthday, and it will long be associated with the Empress Victoria. The history of that monarch and lady has been written in many books, but the best of all is the Queen's own letters. This remarkably fascinating book is not only a history of the public life of the Queen, but also of her prime ministers from her point of view and their own. Doubtless there were many letters left that are not published, but the reader is surprised and delighted to find how generous the royal censors were in allowing to be printed the candid and hasty expressions and impressions of the Queen in her young days. Her letters to Melbourne, when he was premier were often the most free and impetuous expressions of opinion, and those she wrote him when he was in opposition were such as no constitutional sovereign ought to write. But she was young, responsible administration was not then well defined, and Melbourne, with all his faults was a gentleman in these matters. But while then and afterward the Queen found many ways to express her personal preferences among statesmen, her letters reveal an astonishing grasp of complicated political questions, fine judgment, remarkable industry, and an extraordinary gift of definite and clear expression. Better than all, they exhibit her as an ideal wife and mother, a gracious and kindly lady, a just ruler and a humble and devout Christian. Between now and next Empire Day we commend to all the Queen's letters. They are more entrancing than a novel to any person in the least degree interested in history.

SLIGHTLY EXAGGERATED.

The Boston Transcript is an exceedingly well edited journal, but its sources of information are not always fully reliable. Speaking of Dreadnoughts, the Transcript says:—

"One of the interesting features in connection with this naval arms race is the readiness with which the colonies have come to the aid of the Motherland. Within forty-eight hours of Mr. McKenna's memorable speech in Parliament, Australia and Canada offered to build for England four first-class battleships. The offers were cordially refused by the admiralty, but Canada has now seen fit to give some help by organizing a naval service of her own."

It is not remembered here that Britain "cordially refused" any first class battleships from Canada. The privilege was denied the Mother Country.

ASSOCIATED CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE.

No doubt the Board of Trade will do as Mr. Potts suggests, by giving Mr. Hatheway authority to express the opinion of the Board on questions to be discussed. Mr. Hatheway will himself expect this as he has been an instructed delegate on other occasions. The delegate does not go to these conferences to express his own opinion alone, but to speak definitely for his constituency. The meeting is not a parliament, but a conference or convention, where the delegate casts the vote of his Board. It will be remembered that when Mr. Drummond received instructions from the Montreal Board to support a proposition for free trade within the Empire, he resigned his position as delegate. It turned out that the instructions did not represent the view of the Board, but only a small group in it, and a full meeting gave the delegate quite different instructions.

The Telegraph seems to be shocked with the discovery that Mr. Mayes has acquired shares in the Bank of New Brunswick. Apparently the proprietors of that paper are surprised and grieved at their own moderation in not taking more than $35,933 out of the dredging contract.

What's the matter with capturing St. John County for the Hazen Government? It is a good administration, and the electors of the parishes ought to support it.

The records yesterday, so far as revealed by newspapers, indicate that it was a day of sport.

WIND CAUSED BREAK IN FIRE ALARM WIRES

The fire alarm system went completely out of order for a time yesterday. The discovery was made today afternoon about 1:40 P. M., when an alarm was rung in fire 63. The private alarms rang, the large fire bells would not ring, the fire stations telephoned in, and the fire alarm system was out of order. The police had instructions to ring the bell by hand, as soon as they were word from one of the stations. The fire broke in the street, until 9:30 o'clock when the fire was discovered the break which was No. 4 Engine House, on City street. The system was put in working order, and the fire broke off duty after enjoying the holiday quietude.
