THE SITUATION AT SYDNEY IS NOT CLEARING

The Miners Are to Authorize a General Strike of Protest Against Acts of the Dom. Gov't Which They Claim Are Detrimental to Them.

BLAME GOV'T FOR DEPRESSION

Argue They Should Not Have Permitted the C. N. R. to Purchase Its Coal in Virginia When Their Miners Were Idle.

Sydney, N. S., July 11.—A convention in the coal fields, in its failure to authorize a general strike of protest against the action of the Dominion Government in permitting the Canadian National Railways to buy coal in West Virginia, while a large percentage of the miners of Nova Scotia are walking the streets idle. This decision was reached at a mass meeting of unemployed at Sydney Mines yesterday.

Another matter, in which the Federal Government is held responsible for the present depression in the coal fields, is its failure to secure the return of the collier vessels necessary to the continuation of the St. Lawrence coal trade. Speaking of the statements made that much of the difficulty connected with the miners' problem is Nova Scotia was due to the fact that the men were presently working but half time, D. A. Cameron, M. P., stated that certain factors are responsible for the working hour shortage which, at present, prevails in Cape Breton colliers.

Other Factors. First, the commandeering of ships by the Imperial Government, which were formerly engaged in the St. Lawrence trade. Even if the ships are obtained for the St. Lawrence trade, he maintained, freight rates would be prohibitive, unless the pre-war charter was held to. Second, the increase of freight rates, which has been made by the Canadian National Railway.

Third factor, Mr. Cameron said, is that the cost of coal at the pit mouth in Nova Scotia, exceeds the cost of American coal delivered as far east as Montreal and probably Campbellton, N. B.

COLONEL PECK CHAMPIONS GEN'L CURRIE

Canadian Soldiers Also Praised in Speech Before Montreal Canadian Club.

P., addressing the Montreal Canadian Club tonight declared that General Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian corps in France and Belgium, was one of the greatest generals of the war and the statement made in some quarters that Currie did not exercise proper care for the safety of his soldiers' lives, was all rot. Col. Peck stated most emphatically that General Currie was most jealous of the lives of the men he commanded.

St. John Company Gets Contract For Work In Halifax

The City Votes An 800,000 Expenditure for Street Paving and the Local Company Receives a Large Award.

Special to The Standard. Halifax, N. S., July 11.—One of the contracts given by the City Council, on connection with the $800,000 expenditure, goes to a St. John company. Contracts for street paving, representing an outlay of $800,000, the largest on record for this city, were awarded to two firms at a meeting of the City Council. The Council debated the report of the engineer on the tenders all night, and the decision was reached this morning at 1.30. It was the longest session the Council ever held.

The engineer reported that the consideration as ever given to anything of the Canadian Bituminous Paving Corporation, of Toronto, and the Barrett Company, Ltd., of St. John, were the lowest. The price of $1.60 per lineal foot was bid for concrete curb and gutter in all cases, except one, the N. S. Construction Co., which was 15 cents higher. The St. John company was awarded a contract for work on Kempt road, part of Cunard street and North street.

Alderman Murphy opposed the contracts. He said that in forcing through a contract the Council was disposing of the most important matter which had come before the city for some years with a little knowledge and consideration as ever given to anything of its kind. Inasmuch as it involved an expenditure of nearly a million dollars, he did not feel justified in voting for it. His only suggestion was that any company could carry through the work within the time stated. His opinion was that money could be saved by a modification of the city's specifications of the work.

MANY SECTIONS OF STANDARD'S CONTEST TERRITORY NOT REPRESENTED YET

The Standard's $10,000.00 Automobile and Piano Prize Contest is Still Open for Candidates to Enter and Come in for Their Share of Prizes Such as Were Never Before Offered in This Section of Canada - Many People Will Say When the Contest is Over: "I Could Have Easily Won." Don't be One of These.

ENTER YOUR NAME TODAY AND SHOW YOUR FRIENDS THAT YOU ARE AGGRESSIVE.

It is just a week since the first announcement was made by the Standard of its intention to give away over $10,000 worth of Automobiles, Pianos, Phonographs and Cash Prizes an offer such as never before presented to the public by any newspaper in this section of Canada.

It costs nothing to investigate and learn about this big offer and it also costs nothing to win an automobile or any of the other prizes which The Standard is going to give away. A person who refuses to satisfy their own curiosity lacks energy and initiative and in this thriving and progressive country where everybody is aggressive and quick to seize an opportunity, it pays to be in the front ranks.

Can you think of an easier way to own an automobile than to tell your friends that you have entered The Standard's contest and ask them to support you as their candidate? Of course you cannot; so throw off your apathy and enter your name and address and spread yourself as a voter.

THE MYSTERIOUS WAYS OF

WANG PO

By SIDNEY C.
PARTRIDGE

THE SCROLL OF WOVEN SILVER

In the reception room of Dr. Roger Campbell, surgeon to the English Hospital at Ning Po, there lay the many scrolls and tablets which have been presented to him by grateful patients whom he has relieved of sickness and disease. The most highly prized of them all is the one which hangs directly over the mantel and bears the inscription in golden characters:

"He gives his skill and wisdom
To save the lives of men."

It is a painting on silk, by one of the famous old artists of the early days, and consists of a Chinese landscape, with a venerable white-bearded figure in the foreground and a waterfall and cloudy mountains in the background. Just how it came to be presented to the doctor and just how his skill once saved a human life, is one of the most curious and interesting of the many experiences he has had in his Eastern life.

The Hong Kong "Daily Press" of a date not so many years ago, contained the following item:

Regrettable Incident in the Colony.

"We are sorry to have to record the killing of a British seaman by some of the murderers in a funeral party yesterday. All the particulars are not yet at hand, but as far as can be ascertained at present, it seems that Hugh McLean, an able-bodied seaman of H. M. Collier 'Ben Lomond,' attempted to cross the funeral procession of our esteemed citizen, Mr. Tak Hoy (late proprietor of the Ning Po Rice Company) and stumbling against the carriers of one of the banners, was knocked down and beaten or choked to death before he could be rescued. The pinkish-silk coolie who was pulling him escaped and gave the alarm and all the parties concerned were apprehended by the police, who are giving the case their careful investigation. Such unfortunate occurrences were not unknown in the early days of the white man's residence here but it has been many years since anything so serious has happened to disturb our usual friendly relations with our Chinese citizens. We trust that on investigation it will be found that there was some misunderstanding on the part of the funeral party and that there was really no intention on their part of inflicting fatal injuries."

"Well, Brownlow," said Inspector Wallace to his assistant, the following evening, as they were going over the case at Headquarters, "what have we got so far? You say it's a little different from a merchant vessel; this was a naval cutter and so the officer stepped up about it and swear they'll have justice done and all that sort of thing."

"Yes, old Collins, the skipper, stopped me on Queen's Road this morning and said it was one of the most brutal murders he had ever heard of, and, in his opinion, they ought to hang 'em whole funeral gang, as he called them."

"What did you get out of the skipper?" I suppose, you mean, he was so scared he wouldn't say a word?"

"No, Sir, he calmed down all right after we assured him they weren't going to harm him and gave us the story all straight. It was just this way; you see, they were marching along with gonags and firecrackers and all that sort of thing, and about twenty coolies were carrying the big 'long life box' with old Tak Hoy in it, when they reached the cross-road beyond the Happy Valley. McLean had lifted the coolie to pull him all over the island on a kind of a spree and he turned up there just at the time they were carrying the banner, in front of the coffin got quick, John!" the coolie tried to pass in front of the coffin and then they bumped into each other and then the trouble began. The ricksha upset and the banner fell down and then the procession all stopped and they called the top of the sedan and beat him and yelled all sorts of curses at him—you know how superstitious they are about crossing a funeral—and then, not content with that, they rammed sand down his throat and choked him to death. Now that's the plain truth of it, Sir. I don't suppose they really intended to kill him, but when they got sand and excited like that, they're as bad as the Malays running amuck, and they don't stop to think of the consequences."

"Can you find out exactly who did the choking?"

"You see, Sir, we've questioned closely the box-bearers and they all agree—and this is the strangest part of it all, Sir—that it was old Tak Hoy's own son. It seems he's a kind of half-witted chap, that's only been down here from the Ning Po colony a short time."

"I suppose he felt it his duty to avenge the insult to his dead father, didn't he? That seems to be the Chinese idea."

"That's what they all think, Sir."

"Have the natives been able to get him yet?"

"They're out after him now, Sir. It seems the old women of the family will have him surely before morning."

"So that he's closely locked up, but any of his family or friends see him on any account?"

"Right you are, Sir," answered the faithful Brownlow.

The Scroll of Woven Silver which had been carried at the funeral of Tak Hoy, the Commodore, was from a Chinese manuscript, a curio of surpassing value. It was not only an original handwriting on silk by the brush of Wang Chee, the Chinese, who they called killed McLean by filling his mouth with sand and clay, thus choking him to death. The coolies had no interest in the matter beyond standing by and seeing the white man worsted.

Leon Bradlaw at the inquest that McLean was evidently thrown into an epileptic fit by the overturning of his ricksha; and, third, the shrieking cry of the word, "Yang! Yang!" ("O sea! Ocean!") by the murderer as he forged the clay down his victim's throat—while the coffin-bearers at once interpreted to mean, "Throw him into the sea!" what was the strange and mysterious connection between epilepsy, broken glass and the ocean? This was the problem that presented itself to the mind of Wang as he lay thinking on his bamboo couch and to help solve it, he sent Old Chang for the Abbot.

"Venerable Father," he said, as the old priest from the Temple of the Queen of Heaven entered, "my humble cottage is much honored by your presence. I pray you take the seat of dignity."

"For a long time I have not had the pleasure of your gracious smile; may all the blessings of the Buddhas Three English Hospital. He was most graciously received and ere long had deeply interested the surgeon in the mysterious Hong Kong murder. What he ascertained from him and what they planned together to save the life of Fung Chee belongs to a latter day in the story. Suffice it to say that Dr. Campbell promised to give up his practice for a week and to be on hand in the Colony at the time set for the preliminary hearing, while Wang Po returned on the steamer a few days ahead.

The company had assembled at Government House, Sir Arthur was in the Judge's chair; on his right sat Rear Admiral O'Connor of His Majesty's Navy, and on his left Colonel The Hon. Lloyd Chatham, in command of the Lancashire Regiment, now garrisoning the Colony. The lawyers occupied seats at the great table in front of them and places of honor were reserved for the Chinese Consul and his suite.

Sir William Beaumont, the Crown Advocate, opened the case and described all that took place on the fatal day. He read the testimony of the various witnesses taken under oath, and concluded with an appeal for the full penalty of the law, "which, unless duly administered would endanger the life of every European in His Majesty's Colony."

Mr. John Crowder arose to open for the defense. There was an impressive silence as all eyes turned towards him. Your Excellency and gentlemen, he began, "I am proud beyond words to stand here today and plead for the release of an entirely innocent person."

"That remains yet to be proven," interrupted the Governor.

"It shall be proven, Sir, beyond the shadow of a doubt," he continued. "I am not dealing today with the assassin upon sailor McLean by the bearers of the banner. That was a small matter, readily dealt with by the law. I am dealing with the man who was actually tried and found guilty at the very moment that he is accused of having tried to destroy it."

Dr. Bradlaw of the Hong Kong Mission Hospital will be my first witness and will testify that McLean was suffering from an epileptic fit at the time of the accident." (Dr. Bradlaw being unable to be present at the moment, Mr. Crowder read his testimony to the above effect.)

"We have with us today, Dr. Campbell of the Ning Po Hospital, who has come all this way out of interest in the case and who will now explain the circumstances to you."

Dr. Campbell arose and addressed the Governor and gentlemen.

"Your Excellency and gentlemen," he said, "I have often been called upon to explain to my European friends the various ways of the people, which often involve them in serious difficulties with the white man. We have a very interesting instance of this before us today. It is the firm belief of the country people in our Province that when a man falls in an epileptic fit, his soul has temporarily departed from his body and the soul of the sheep has come in for the while to take its place. In order to preserve the patient's life, it is absolutely necessary that the sheep be fed on grass or hay until the soul returns. This explains why they instantly pluck up the first bunch of grass they can find and force it into the victim's mouth."

"Fortunately, I happen to remember the prisoner. My hospital books show that when McLean was a young man, he very much resembles you."

"You are quite positive about the record?" inquired the Admiral.

"Perfectly positive, Sir."

"Having been a victim of it himself, and having had the sheep and grass treatment applied to himself, he naturally vividly remembered it. Poor, half-witted creature that he is, he saw the sheep fall in the fit and the excitement brought back to him his own experience. He naturally rushed for the first grass or hay he could find and pushed a handful of it into the patient's mouth. Now comes the sad and unfortunate sequel—being winter time, the grass was withered and in his anxiety to sustain the quivering life, he unconsciously pulled up a quantity of gravel and clay with the roots, and it was this that choked the patient to death." Of course, if a European medical man had been close at hand we could have prevented this in time, but you see it was a long distance outside the Settlement and he expired before any help could reach him."

The effect of the doctor's testimony, given slowly and consistently, was like magic. The Governor conferred for a moment with his colleagues and then arose and addressed the assembly:

"This is a glorious day of triumph, not only for British justice, but equally for British skill and mercy. The life of a native subject has been hanging in the balance and we have come dangerously near to convicting of a capital crime an apparently perfectly innocent person. Dr. Campbell, this entire community, both foreign and native, owes you a debt which it is hard to estimate, and which only goes to show how careful we must be in procedures of this kind and how dependent we are upon the intimate knowledge of the Chinese ways which your learned profession and your devoted work have brought you. Inspector Wallace, you will at once receive the prisoner and restore him to his family."

"I thank your Excellency for these gracious words," replied the doctor, "but the credit for the saving of this man's life belongs not to me, but entirely to your honored fellow-citizens, Mr. Fung Po, whose untiring devotion to the cause of right and truth, and whose trip to Ning Po, were the means of bringing this release about. Give honor to whom, honor is due!"

"Mr. Wang," added his Excellency, "it is not the first time that this Colony has profited by your skill and unselfish labors in the cause of justice. We are all deeply grateful to you and I express the feelings of all my colleagues present when I say that we are justly proud of numbering you among our fellow-citizens. You have helped us in this and many ways to bring about peace and harmony between foreigner and native and your own work today will insure even a better relationship between us than we have ever known before."

The Chinese detective, who had been modestly occupying a seat in the rear of the room, arose and bowed his acknowledgments.

"I have merely tried, your Excellency, to do my duty in the teachings of our Master, who taught the people in days of old to 'Search out the root and find the way to harmony.'"

The family of Tak Hoy, the Commodore, insisted on presenting the famous Scroll of Woven Silver to the detective.

"No, not to me, but to the foreign doctor," he replied, as with rapid and energetic the procession of grateful Chinese bore it to the residence. "You owe this life to him!"

And this is why the scroll now hangs above the doctor's mantel.

WEAK MOTHERS REGAIN HEALTH

Through the New Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

No mother should allow nervous weakness to get the upper hand of her. If she does worry will mar her work in the home and torment her in body and mind. Day after day spend amid the same surroundings is enough to cause fretfulness and depression. But there are other causes as every mother knows that tend to make her nerves run down. A change would benefit her jaded system, and rest might improve her blood so as to give her increased energy. But rest and change are often impossible, and it is then that all work out women should take a short treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which make new blood, rich with the elements on which the nerves thrive. In this way these pills restore regular health, increased energy, new ambition and steady nerve. There is a lesson for other women in the case of Mrs. Harry P. Snider, Wilton, Conn. "Five years ago my twin babies were born, and I was left very weak and very miserable, hardly able to do anything. The doctor gave me medicine, but it did not help me. Then he tried another doctor, but with no better results. One day I went home to my mother, telling her how miserable I felt, and that the doctor's medicine had not done me any good. Mother asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as I was glad to try anything that might help me, I got three boxes when I went back home. By the time these were used there was no doubt they were helping me, and I got three more boxes. But I did not need them all; for by the time the fifth box was used, I was entirely cured, and now I feel better in my life. Now when I hear people talk about feeling weak or miserable I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and tell what they did for me, and in similar cases I shall continue to recommend them."

At the first sign that the blood is out of order take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and note the speedy improvement they make in the appetite, health and spirits. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How to Look and Feel Bright in Hot Weather

When depressed by the heat and you want to freshen up for the afternoon or evening, just bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered sassafras in a half pint of witch hazel. You will find this much refreshing than an hour's rest.

As a wrinkle-remover the sassafras lotion is remarkably successful. Its action is almost magical. The deepest furrows, as well as the finest lines—whether due to age, illness, weather or worry—are immediately affected. Enlarged pores are reduced, flabby skin is "drawn in," facial contour is improved wonderfully. The simple ingredients of course can be had at any drugstore, and you need not hesitate to try the lotion, as it will not harm any skin in the least.

Weekly Chat

Dear Boys and Girls— I expect a good many of you had the good fortune to see the circus during the week, I hope many of you did, for all little folks and indeed nearly all the grown-ups enjoy a circus.

Of course the animals' vocal utterances, hidden most of all and especially the ones we do not see very often. The elephants are such big chance fellows and yet it is wonderful to see how well they can be trained. At a great signal by their attendants they seem to bow, lie down and get in position as requested, just as promptly and correctly as human beings could. Of course our good friends—the horses—did many more wonderful things, but knowing their ability to learn we are not so surprised at the intelligence which they show at a circus. However, it was surprising to see the horses leap, jump and gallop through the music when dancing. Then the monkeys are always amusing and to see them riding bicycles and ponies and going through so many stunts it was hard to realize that they were not little boys and girls dressed up. These were probably the most important trained animals, but of course there were many more of the wild species and they did look vicious, especially the lions—how they growled and snarled as they looked through the iron bars. The bears did not make so much noise, but they were so restless walking around and around their cages as if they longed to find an opening somewhere. You know little boys and girls always make me feel sorry for the poor animals when I go to a circus, because I know their lives are just spent in these animal cages and they just long for freedom like me and you would if we were locked in one room all the time. Circuses of people looking at them each day must be very aggravating, for all appear free while they are prisoners.

But must tell you of the very interesting circus I saw at the circus in St. John. To begin with there were two sides to the circus, but it was held in one arena all the time.
