THE WIFE'S BECAUSE.

It is not because your heart is mine—mine only—Mine alone—
It is not because your eyes are mine—mine only—
For your own—
Not because the earth is mine—mine only—Spread above you—
Are more fondling for the shining of your eyes Than I love you.

It is not because the world's perplexed meaning And the parables of heaven, with angels' teaching, Sings more sweet—
And nature sings of praise with all her voices Sings with my slight heart that now rejoices To love you.

Nay, not even because your hand holds heart
A sweet—
At your will,
Soothing aching in the discord, making strife Chime and still—Teaching me to love wings, nor ever roam
From her nest—
Falling Love the nearest, safest home.
Must be rest.

Because this human love, though pure and More divine—
Yours and mine—
Has been blessed, love more tender, more complete,
More divine,
That it leads our heart at last to rest in heaven.
Do I take the gift that God has given—That I love you.

ANCIENT ACCEPTED RITE.

AS IT WAS A SCORE OF YEARS AGO.

In the spring of 1853, a large concourse collected in front of a prominent warehouse in Baltimore, denoting some unusual excitement. A gentleman who had succeeded in reaching the doorway, giving one look at the object before him, turned deadly pale, and exclaimed:
"Great heavens! It is Charles Elkins!"

A surgeon kneeling by the body said:
"If you know this man, communicate immediately with his family, for he is dead."

In the meantime the coroner arrived, whose jury rendered a verdict of "accidental death." James Burton, 92 of the gentleman before mentioned, obtained permission to take charge of the remains.

Charles Elkins had been a prosperous merchant, but, unfortunately, the demon speculation caused him to lose all he possessed as he was ill fortune, and with a wife and three children dependent on him, it was necessary to commence anew.

He obtained employment in a manufacturing establishment, and was sent to superintend the removal of goods from the warehouse. As the case developed the highway, he attempted to cut the fall rope, which he fell, and was killed.

In prosperous days, Elkins connected himself with the Masonic Fraternity, attained the Grade of Rose Croix, 18th, and became Worshipful Master of his symbolic Lodge, which office he continued to hold until secular misfortune assailed him, when he declined a re-election, and was subsequently stricken from the roll of membership for non payment of dues.

Warden of his Lodge, went in quest of the Master, William Hope, 82nd. Bro.
Burton met that gentleman this last starting from their residence for the city. The Senior Warden related what had happened, and the Master, who had been present at the funeral, had been had broken the painful news to Mrs.
Elkins, and she had been in the city gentleman would accompany her, she would undertake the delicate mission.
Notwithstanding the late hour, the which lady executed her trust, the truth dawned upon the bereaved wife; she anticipated all, and exclaimed:
"No say to the raging sea, be still!
Did the will, I wish was obey thy will,
But not mine's child this work is fair!"

After the strictest one revised the gentlemen left her to the tender care of Mrs.
Hope, who remained with her during the night, and in the next watches ascertained the condition of the widow's pecuniary affairs, and discovered that she was in fact penniless.

The Lodge made immediate arrangements for the obsequies, and the same in accordance with ancient usage.

The next day a Committee was formed the widow, who would not permit her to be alone to think of her desolation, while the bereaved children were never returned empty handed.

After a short time the widow received a note from Mrs. Hope, in which she and herself would call that evening, and desiring that Mrs. Elkins and the children should accompany them on a visit to some friends. All being in readiness at the designated time, they were soon on their way, and after a short time the party halted in front of a large mansion, brilliantly lighted. They passed up the steps, through the broad hall, to an extensive room in the rear, and Mrs. Elkins was seated, and Mrs. Hope excused themselves and retired.

During all this time no one was visible to the widow.

Brother Burton entered the extension-room, and stated in brief terms that the members of the Lodge desired to be presented, if it was pleasing to her to receive them. She assented, he took her hand, and that of the elder boy, and placing the other children in front, proceeded to the doors leading from the extension-room, and gave three raps. A voice from within demanded:
"Who are you, and what is your desire?"

"I, James Burton, Senior Warden of this Lodge, desire to enter, having in my possession important information to communicate."

The sliding doors were thrown back the dazzling blaze emitted from numerable gas-jets, for the moment behind the spectators, but, recovering, a magnificent tableau was presented to their view.

On either side of a table extending the entire length of an extensive and gorgeously furnished room, were groups of beautiful, elegantly dressed ladies, while the members of the Lodge, slightly retired, formed a picturesque background.
The Worshipful Master, seated at the head, and at the foot of the table and at the doorway, stood Brother Burton with the widow and children, their sombre garments in strange contrast with the gayly-dressed ladies and brilliant surroundings.

FOR A MOMENT THE SILENCE WAS PAULINE

In the extreme, then the Worshipful Master, the most composed of all, said:
"Brother Senior Warden, having announced that you have an important communication to make to this assembly, proceed with your relation."

S. W.: "A Brother now in holy communion within the precincts of the Perfect Lodge above, before his departure bequeathed all the treasures of which he was possessed as a legacy to this Lodge."

W. M.: "Where are these treasures?
Present them, that we may be enabled to judge of their value."

S. W.: "Behold them! These are our jewels; they are his treasures!"

Here Brother Burton whose eyes had been suffused in tears, could say no more; he was entirely broken down. The long rehearsed programme was at an end, and for some time might could be heard but sympathetic sobs from the ladies, who were entirely carried away by the affecting scene, while strong men bowed their heads under the weight of their own grief.

Whatever may have been the occasion, the ladies who remain with you will be glad to assist in any way until you are capable of taking entire charge. And that that may not misconceive you, let me say from time to time of charity, and that you may be entirely relieved from any embarrassment in this regard, it has been arranged that, out of the profits realized from your business, you may pay from time to time such sums as may be convenient toward liquidating the outlay incurred by the Lodge, and that the whole, which is published was an imperative duty, but in no sense charity."

The company were now invited to partake of refreshment, and the kind and gentlemanly conduct of the company separated with light hearts.

When all had departed, the widow gathered her children around her, and poured out her soul in thanksgiving and praise to Him who "tempers the wind to the shaven lamb," and then drying her tears she retired to that rest which for so many weeks had been denied her.

Mrs. Elkins was highly successful in her new business, and in three years she had accumulated some fifty thousand dollars, and had, through the influence of an eminent member of the bar, while the two girls, Laura and Ella, remained at home, and the elder one three years passed; Brother Hope had retired from the East, and the gavel was assumed by the late Mr. Burton, and the firm was now approaching the age of maturity, and was not only a successful and profitable business, but a bachelor, and not unfair. It had been observed for a year past that Bro. Burton had a solemn and earnest expression on his face, spending most of his evenings at home. It was also noticed that those gentlemen who usually spent with the widow, and many little courtesies were becoming manifest. The widow, in her hunger for news, had seen one of the gentlemen, and at thirty-five her married charms were very attractive to our narrator. Suffice it to say that Mrs. Elkins became Mrs. Burton. Bro.
Burton, who had retired from business, purchased an estate in the suburbs, the boarding-house was relinquished, and they determined to pass their days in peace and contentment.

Years passed; the daughters of Elkins had married, and the son, who had been admitted to the bar, and on attaining his majority, became a member of the old Lodge, when last heard from, he was the Worshipful Master, and had attained the Grade of Perfection in the Ancient Accepted Rite. Mr. and Mrs. Burton are still living, with two young sons (brother and sister) to cheer their pathway, and remind them of the romantic past.

This beautiful and touching narrative (the facts of which are within our personal knowledge) points a most instructive moral which will be readily appreciated, especially at this time, when (in the State of New York) the heaven-born charities of the fraternity are forbidden (by statute) to all save those whose fiscal responses assume the shape of business, and whose Masonic conduct is regulated by dollars and cents.

May we not hope for a speedy return to the good old customs of by-gone days, when the obligation made the Mason, and after which there could be no unmaking; no ex post facto decree, whereby the solemn relation assumed before God and man could be impaired?

God speed our righteous cause, and lend his kindly influence with the magnates of the Order, to the end that its constitutions, statutes and regulations shall not retard the execution of its noble mission of "Peace on earth, good will toward men."—New York Dispatch.

BUNYAN'S STATURE.

M. D. Conway writes to the Cincinnati Commonwealth further interesting particulars of the recent unveiling of the great bronze statue of John Bunyan in the town of Bedford, England. The statue is made of about two tons of bronze and was a gift to the town from the Duke of Bedford. The likeness is taken from a portrait by Sadler. Bunyan is represented as in the act of preaching. He holds the Bible in his left hand, and with the fingers of his right hand resting

UPON IT, WHILE THE PRISON CHAINS ARE AT HIS feet. The figure is nine feet high and on the pedestal are bronze reliefs, representing incidents in the career of Christian. On the back of the pedestal is the inscription: "It had eyes lifted up to Heaven, the best of books in his hand, the law of truth was written upon his lips. It stood as if it pleaded with men."

It was in Bedford Road where Bunyan was confined for 12 years, and it was in prison that he wrote "The Pilgrim's Progress." Bunyan's name is therefore eternally associated with Bedford, and he stands in much the same position to the town as Shakespeare to Stratford-on-Avon or Rubens to An-werp. The people for hundreds of miles made it a festival, and came in holi-day attire; three thousand children marched to the statue; and in the evening there were fireworks, one of which displayed 11 letters of flame the name of John Bunyan."

MONDAY EVENING, JULY 20.

Unanimous Condemnation.
The proposition made by the Government of Canada to the United States to buy certain reciprocal trade facilities at a certain price, which proposition was coolly submitted to the United States Senate without even a recommendation to mercy, has been discussed in the Dominion Board of Trade and unanimously condemned. It found not one advocate among the representatives of commercial Canada. Those who spoke most warmly in favor of reciprocity did not say a word in favor of the terms offered to the Dominion Government by the Ottawa Cabinet. No scheme was ever more thoroughly unacceptable to the people who are to be affected by it. It has absolutely no friends. Protectionists, Free Traders, Canada Firsts, and Empire Firsts are all against it. They condemn it for what it contains and for what it omits. It is justly regarded as destruction of our manufactures, the three years' clause being most unfair to us, and as opening up no new channel of trade. A great many of the arguments were sectional, and some of them selfish, many of them unbecomingly were all hostile. Nothing was said in favor of protection for our manufactures, for instance, that might not have been more logically and forcibly said in favor of prohibition of foreign manufactures. But then the most remarkable Free Trader must admit that if our ships are not to be free to carry our produce from port to port, and secure return cargoes by calling at two or more ports if they wish, there can be no such fair competition as would test the ability of our manufactures to hold their own against their neighbors.
It is now certain that should Alex.
Mackenzie force his proposition through Parliament by the aid of his "servile majority," he will do so in opposition to the entire commercial and manufacturing interests of the country. Some hope that the Ministry will leave it as an open question, when the rejection of the Brown proposal is certain, but it is hardly possible that it should be left open.
The Government of Canada committed itself irrevocably to the offer made by Geo. Brown, while the Government of the United States could not do so.
Nothing at all for the same time make some amendment of the terms the Ottawa Government would be free to withdraw, but should the Senate vote to accept what is offered the narrow-minded ring of unprincipled politicians in power at Ottawa must be made his coat, shoulder the document and walk the plank.

The Halifax Citizen says that Miss Armstrong "is one of the few who can present that most abused question, Temperance, in a lecture which is highly instructive without pedantic, entertaining but not sensational, and the same time winning with her sympathies and convincing of the audience." Let us get her to come to St. John. We have had lady lecturers from the States, and should have this representative of the female orators of Great Britain.

DOMINION BOARD OF TRADE.
The Reciprocity Treaty Condemned—International Newspaper—Insurance—Steam Lanes.
The session was opened, Saturday afternoon, by Mr. Hersey, of Portland, Me., who expressed the hope that a broad and liberal view of the treaty would be taken.
Mr. Joseph (Quebec) believed that the principle of reciprocity, and not the treaty, was before the Board, and he would vote accordingly.
Mr. Watts (Branford) did not want the mere shadow of reciprocity. The treaty would kill our manufactures.
Sheriff Harding pointed out the injustice of the provisions of the treaty.
That we should be compelled to build the canals before 1880 he thought was very unjust for at the time if we did not build the work completed we would be at the mercy of our American neighbors, and yet the building of these canals is like opening a market for the Americans.
New Brunswick feels that she should have been consulted in the matter of the proposed treaty. He hoped that the men from the West would not by their vote kill our struggling industries.
Mr. Robertson (Montreal) argued that the Treaty would destroy several important branches of industry.
Mr. Larke (Oshawa) did not believe in sacrificing one Province to another.
The destruction of our manufacturing and fishing interests would injure the agricultural interests more than they would be benefited by the removal of the United States duties. He hoped the day was not far distant when St.
John, N. B., besides being able to build the best wooden ships, would be in a position to construct some of the finest ocean steamers afloat. If the Treaty be accepted goods from England must be allowed into Canada, for it would never do to charge the Mother Country for what we give the United States for nothing.
He concluded by reminding the Board that even if the Canadian manufacturers were able to compete with the Americans in our own market, they could do no trade in the States, as every article there is patented.

Mr. Darling (Montreal) thought the United States coasting trade should have been given us in exchange for our fisheries.
Canada should not be bound to complete the canals within a fixed time.
Hon. Mr. Skead (Ottawa) said that so far as lumber is concerned, he thought that Canadians have done much better since the old treaty ceased to exist. We are doing well enough and are not suing for this treaty. Free trade reciprocity—based on equal terms—is very desirable, but the present draft is unjust to us, if for no other reason than that it obliges us to build a canal within a certain period, and we are called upon to find 12 feet of water at a place where it is doubtful if 8 feet of water can be found.

Mr. Spratt (Montreal) was surprised to find so many of our manufacturers opposed to reciprocity. The manufacturers of the United States are petitioning the United States Senate against the adoption of the Treaty, fearing that their interests would suffer by having to compete with the Canadians, and yet among the most greatest cry against the adoption of the Treaty is that its becoming law will kill our manufacturing interests. He was opposed to the provisions obliging us to build canals within a certain period.
The amendment proposed in amendment to the amendment, moved that the first paragraph of Mr. Elder's resolution be adopted and the second be amended so as to refer the whole question to a committee to report upon at the next meeting of the Dominion Board in January next.
Mr. Trout gravely declared that his motion could not be killed by the adoption of either of the amendments, without nullifying the reciprocity treaty.

Armstrong "is one of the few who can
present that most abused question, Temper-
ance, in a lecture which is highly instruc-
winning with her sympathies and convincing of the audience." Let us get
have this representative of the female
orators of Great Britain.

The statement, published two successive days in the Telegraph, that the Thompson and Robert Book, Jr., of Halifax, were among the delegates present at the Dominion Board of Trade, is incorrect, as no Halifax delegate presented himself.

Mr. C. G. Lawrence, May Queen wharf, Indiantown, keeps a general assortment of groceries and provisions. His stand is very convenient for shipment of goods on board sea river boats, and customers will find him always liberal in his dealings and prompt in business. Give him a call. See advt.

Mrs. Lanergan's benefit was well attended. Mr. Robinson's Othello and Mr.
Lanergan's Iago were much admired and applauded. Many good Baptists and Methodists set their brethren a good example by attending, and seemed to enjoy the performance immensely.
Mr. C. Armstrong and Mr. Jas. Mc-Connell returned on Saturday from the Tablantine, where they had been on a very successful trouting expedition. The flies, however, made sad havoc with their faces, and their seats in church were doubtless vacant yesterday.

Baldy Barned.
In Mr. Savage's millinery store, Saturday afternoon, a lighted match was carelessly dropped on the dress of Miss Annie Bastin, one of the employees, and the dress was soon in flames. Breaking away from Mr. Savage and others who tried to smother the flames, the frightened and suffering girl ran shrieking into the street. Mr. Saffron seized her, carried her into his shop, and smothered the flames by wrapping her up in his coat, burning his hands and arms severely.
Miss Bastin was dangerously burned.
Several of Mr. Savage's employees were slightly burned in attempting to aid the sufferer. The injured girl is not so easy to get up as she rests, and is considered to be in great danger.

Mr. Notman tells us that the present mode of photographing private residences, is not too thick. He has an out-door staff to attend to work of this kind, and any order may be favored with will have careful attention.

The W. G. Lodge British Templars.

C. Conroy, L. F. Lewis, J. E.
Flewelling, Jas. Watta, Geo. A. Inch, and John McLaughlin took passage this morning in the steamer New York for Eastport, whence they proceeded to Lord's Cove, Deer Island, to attend the session of the W. G. Lodge of British Templars which commences to-day. Their number will doubtless be greatly augmented by arrivals from St. George, St. Andrews and St. Stephen.

Trade of St. John.
The total customs duties collected at the port of St. John, during the three months ending June 30th, 1873, and the same period of 1874, were as follows: 1873—$317,778.41; 1874—$486,319.21; showing an increase of $168,540.80.

Portland Police Court.
Charles Lester and Daniel McDade, drunk, the latter fined $4 and the former $8.

postponed.
AYER'S AMERICAN ALMANAC has arrived, and is now ready for delivery, gratis, by our druggists, to all who call for it.
Our readers may be surprised to know that this little pamphlet, which has become so popular, is not only a source of quintessence of information, but has quite the largest circulation of any book in the world, except the Bible.
It is printed in many languages, and sold through many nations, as well as supplied to almost the entire population of our own vast domain. Every family should keep it, for it contains information which is all rare to require, when sickness overtakes them, and which may prove invaluable from being at hand in season. If you take our advice, you will call and get an AYER'S ALMANAC, and when got, keep it.

The pew was well filled with a hard-looking lot of prisoners this morning, and many hard looking subjects were gathered there to see judgment passed upon their friends.
James Gordon and James Gordon, Jr., father and son, $4 each for drunkenness.
Catharine Deynarr, drunk, paid $8; Eliza Donnelly, drunk, $8; John Ross, drunk, $8; Michael Cashman, drunk, $8; John Fitzgerald, only 16 years old, drunk, $8; Elizabeth Tower, drunk, $8; Patrick Clancy and John Sullivan, two drunken vagrants, two months P. P.; James Tension, drunk, $8; Henry Moulderous, drunk, $8.
"Wm. Welsh, drunk in Sheffield street.
Gully." "Yes, sir." "Same fine." "It is the first time I've been drunk in three years," sadly said William as he resumed his seat with the air of a man who had no money to pay his fine and expected to go to the penitentiary for two months.
"John Mallin, arrested in Carmarthen street, between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, and giving no satisfactory account of yourself. What do you say to it?" Before Mallin could respond a policeman accused him of having represented himself as from Halifax, and then from Fredericton, and with giving his name as Mitchell. "What do you say?" asked the Magistrate. "Gully," was his feeble response, although it was not very clear what he confessed to being guilty of. "Twenty shillings," said the Magistrate, who probably imposed the fine as a punishment for the man's attempt to bring Halifax into disrepute by sailing from that moral city.
"Christian Tension, drunk; fined $8."
"Hugh Breenin, drunk." "Gully."
"Same fine you."
"John McCallough, you are back here again drunk." "Same fine."
"John Connors, drunk on North Wharf.
Same fine."
"John Bridge and James Kelly, you are charged with being drunk and fighting in the street." "I want drunk, since asked me fighting," replied one.
"Policeman, take the stand." The officer swore that the men were drunk and fighting when arrested. "Any questions to ask?" "I was not drunk." "Were you fighting?" "I don't call it fighting."
"They were striking each other and the blood was running from their noses," said the officer. "Not call that fighting, eh! It seems you brought the claret," said the Magistrate. "What, sir?"
said the officer. "Not call that fighting,

said the officer. "Not call that fighting,

Academy of Music.
Nannary & McDowall's fine company returned from Halifax on Saturday evening, and re-open the Academy to-night, when no doubt they will attract a crowd of house.
In Halifax the company was very successful. The following notice from the Recorder speaks for itself: The season of Temperance Hall closes to-night when "The Homecoming" will be presented, with a splendid afterpiece, the performance being under the patronage of Captain Wells and assisted by H. M. S. Belleroophon. The season has now lasted nearly five weeks, and has been the most successful of any that Halifax has enjoyed. Perhaps the management have not netted much profit, owing to various causes; but they have the satisfaction of knowing that they have established the drama on a pedestal in Halifax at which those who formerly stood aloof throng to look and admire. Nothing but the very best of management, and the most strict propriety combined with undoubted histrionic ability in the company, could have achieved this result, and we believe there is now a feeling evoked which hitherto has never had an existence in Halifax—regret at the departure of a theatrical company. On the return of Messrs. Nannary & McDowall—a few weeks hence they may be assured of a warm welcome.
