Sir Blundell Maple Charges That the Government Was Bled in Buying Horses.

Broken-Down Animals Bought at Extravagant Prices for Use in South Africa --- The Commons Voted $78,-895,000 for Remounts and Transports.

London, June 7 .- After a long and ining to think the same as poor old somewhat embittered discussion of the the war office in buying \ horses for use in South Africa, the house of commons last night by a vote 779,000 for transports and remounts.

Sir Blundell Maple, Conservative, asserted that British officers who had been sent to Hungary and Austria, had purchased broken-down animals at extravagant prices and divided with the sellers the price charged the British Government above the actual cost. He demanded the appointment of a committee of inquiry. Lord Stanley, financial secretary of war office, said an inquiry would be made into the mater, and he believed that the accusations of corruption brought against British officers would be disproved.

BIG PRICES PAID. Mr. Brodrick, the war secretary, said the war office paid for horses in England £42, in Canada £30, and in Australia, the United States and Hungram had just reached him from Lord mounted. The war secretary defended the good quality of the horses bought abroad. It is understood that the charges made by Sir Blundell Maple are of a very serious character. It is asserted that in one case an officer netted £50,-000 in the purchases of horses in Hun-

Dissatisfaction is said to have existed in the colonies because the government has been buying horses on the continent when colonial animals were available.

NEEDS NO MORE. Much surprise is expressed among Anglo-Canadians at an announcement of which the war office today gives official confirmation, viz., that the Imperial Government declined with thanks an offer from the Dominion Government to furnish another cavalry corps for service in South Africa. holding that, at the present stage of the war, and with the large number of troops now in the field, it was not necessary for Canada to furnish another contingent. Only Wednesday night Hon. Brodrick, secretary for war, said that Lord Kitchener had asked last January that if possible the colonies should be induced to supply more contingents, because the colonies had done such excellent service. The general feeling is that there is a want of new troops to replace those which have become stale, owing to the length of the conflict. It is con-sidered that this is the chief cause of the prolongation of the war. Regarding Hamilton Merritt's offer of a corps, the war office refused this also, unless the campaign should take Ottawa, June 7 .- Mrs. A. M. Larson, 82 Earnscliffe avenue, received a letter yesterday from her brother, Sergeant-Major E. Lane, of the Canadian Scouts, South Africa, dated Pretoria, April 29. Major Howard was among the killed. In fact, he and his orderly were murdered. They surrendered after being badly wounded. The Boers then finished their job, and riddled them with bullets. British War Office Advised to Cut Out Irritating Regulations-Anti-Clerical Demonstration in Barcelona.

Berlin, June 7. - The Tageblatt prints special correspondence from New Guinea containing a full account of the massacre of the members of the first German South Sea expedition on the cannibal islands of St. Matthias. They were all killed and eaten save a Dr. Heinroth.

The Colonial Zeitung, the official organ of the German Colonial Society, furnishes details of the massacre. It seems that the vessel which carried the expedition to the Island of St. Matthias left, after a few days, for Herfresh supplies. During its absence, the savages, who had hitherto appeared friendly, although known to be rabid cannibals, planned to kill and rob the diminished party.

The plot was carried out one morning while the members of the expedi-tion, who had a bodyguard of forty drilled Papuans, were cleaning their rifles, which they had taken apart. Suddenly eighty of the islanders broke from the bushes, raising fierce war-cries and brandishing spears, with which they stabbed to death the leader of the party, Dr. Mencken, his secretary, Herr Caro, and a white sailor, who was asleep under a tent.

Dr. Heinroth emptied his revolver into his assailants, while the bodyguard, in the meantime, retired to the heats with the wounded, and Dr. Heinroth, leaving twelve dead. The boats put off to an island not far distant, where the expeditionary vessel rescued them. Subsequently the survivors returned to the Island of St. Matthias, where they found that the bodies had been devour-ed and the camp absolutely looted.

EIGHT FIREMEN INJURED. Three of the four wings of the Royal Entrop at Antwerp, stored with wool, jute and lard, and the custom house adjoining, were burned. Eight firemen were hurt.

IRRITATING REGULATIONS. Simplification and decentralization are the keynotes of the report issued by the committees under manship of Clinton E. Dawkins, ap-

The committee considers the war office ought to be relieved by the decentralization of a mass of routine work now absorbing the energies of the high officials and preventing proper attention to important military questions. Further de centralization should be secured by an enlargement of the powers and responsibilities of the officers commanding districts, and, finally, a permanent war office board ought to be estabished, which, under the authority of the secretary of state, should control the business of the war office as a whole without detracting from the individual responsibilities of the commander-in-chief and heads of depart-

County Tax Rate Fixed for the Coming Year.

Ekfrid School Question Referred to Arbitration-Other County Council

Happenings.

The important features of yesterday afternoon's session of the county council were the fixing of the county tax rate and the discussion of the building of the Caradoc bridge. The rate was fixed at 94-100 of a mill on Middlesex proper and 1 3-10 mills on the whole of Middlesex. The issue in the bridge discussion was between the laying over of the matter till the December session or the immediate commensement of the work. The matter was not settled when the council adjourned for the night. THE BRIDGE. The Caradoc bridge question was opened by Councilor Elson, who moved that the matter of a bridge on the Muncey site be laid over until the December session, and that the en-gineer report upon the cost of a bridge there and at the Burwell site. Councilor Grigg moved in amend ment that the county pay 70 per cent of the cost of a bridge on the Muncey site, and proceed to make the necessary arrangements for the erection of the bridge. In this connection Mr. Grigg made the interesting statement that he knew the Indians in that part of the county were moving with a view of locating in another part of the country. Councilor Elson wished to know where the other 30 per cent was to come from, and Councilor Grigg replied that he was counting on the 25 per cent offered by Elgin county, and offers from the Chippewa Indians of $1,000 and $500 respectively, as well as their offer of land for the road and approaches to the bridge. The discussion which followed was participated in by Councilors Elson, Hodgins, Neeley, Grigg, Gray and Campbell. The three former wished to see the matter laid over till next session, while the others favored immediate action. Engineer Talbot was of the opinion that it would be bad policy to build the bridge this summer, as it would probably cost several thousand dollars more than if delayed next year. Warden Pollock and the Elgin county council, who were in the city on business affecting the two counties, were introduced and asked to lay their views before the Middlesex councillors. Warden Pollock said that 25 per cent of the cost of the bridge, irrespective of the approaches, which they understood would be built by the Indian department, was the farthest extent to which Elgin would go desires the strictest supervision of all in aiding the construction of the lists of Americans on file at the embassy for presentation at the first bridge was something Elgin could not drawing-room of his reign. The first report of the educational committee recommended that no action be taken in the matter of the petition from the ratepayers of school section No. 4, Ekfrid, praying for the creation of a new school sec The report excited considerable discussion, as it was shown in the petition, which was largely signed, that many children have to walk two miles or more to the present school. Messrs. Elson, Neely and Bradford spoke in opposition to the adoption of the re-port, and an amendment that the question be submitted to a board of arbitrators was carried. The special committee on Buttery's Flats bridge recommended that a new bridge be built and that the present easterly bridge be done away with.

The report was adopted.

and a half last night in the transaction of business and the discussison of various matters over which the department has control. The usual batch of petitions for public works were received and dealt with as the exigencies of the case demanded. The most im-portant matters discussed were a new St. Patrick street, London West, bepolice station and a new pavement of tween Wharncliffe road and St. Antar macadam on King street. Discussion of them was the farthest stage reached, however. The committee also had to reconsider three clauses of their last report, which were referred back by the council. The members were of opinion that they knew what they were doing when they reported as they did, and one clause will go back to the council unchanged, while another was modified. The third was held over for closer investigation.

The members in attendance were: Ald. Winnett (in the chair), Mayor Rumball, Ald. Campbell, Olmsted and Parnell, Engineer Graydon and Sec-

Engineer Graydon will bring in a report at next meeting as to the merits of tar macadam as a pavement for residential streets. The committee expect a petition to be submitted from residents of King street asking for tar macadam from Wellington to Adelaide. Several members of the committee expressed their satisfaction with the tar macadam laid on Queen's avenue, and the engineer said he considered it the best pavement for residential sections, but not for the business streets. He would recommend asphalt for paving King street from Ridout to Welling.

In answer to a question as to what was to be done in regard to a new police station, the mayor reported that interviewed the county council with reference to securing a site on the county property, as he himself was not in favor of that location. The committee decided to lay the matter over for the year. The drainage, ventilation and heating of the station will be improved so as to render it fit for present requirements.

The question of cement curbing, reopened by the council's action in referring back the committee's recommendation, evoked considerable discussion. The majority of the members favored it, however, and the council will again be recommended to adopt the principle of constructing cement curbs as permanent improvements, the city to pay one-half the cost and all the cost of intersections. The money, however, will come out of the general rate instead of the sidecommended. No more than $1,500 will be expended on cement curbs in a

BELMONT.

Belmont, June 6.-The home of Mr. John R. Taylor, of Yarmouth, was the scene on Saturday. June 1, of a barnraising, when a hundred sturdy men, and thirty blithesome belles were present. The structure was fifty-two feet long, and thirty feet in width, stalwarts rallied under Mr. Walter Goodwin, and a like number under Mr. William Taylor, brother of the proprietor. The honors in the contest for superiority were equally divided. At the conclusion of the work excellent sports followed and were carried on with spirit. The work of framing was of done by Moore Bros., and the masonary by Mr. John Chivers. A baseball team from Dorchester Station paid a visit to Belmont on Saturday to try conclusions with the team here. After a keenly contest the match ended in a score of ten to four in favor of Belmont.

Overworked Wage-Earners

What hosts of pale, weak and debilitated men and women are sapping the vitality from their bodies by plodding long neurs in poorly ventilated shops and factories! The blood gets thin and vitiated, digestion is bad, the nerves become Shattered and exhausted, there are headaches, backaches and weariness that is not overcome by the night's rest. Despondent and despairing of having strength and vigor restored, life becomes a burden to the wage-earner who cannot afford the process practically left Harry Varrest he so much needs.

The system demands unusual assistance. It requires just such aid as is best afforded by the regular use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great tissue builder and nerve restorative. Thousands of weak and exhausted men and women have gon to work with new strength and a current of fresh new life flowing through their veins after using this treatment. Their minds act more clearly, their nerves are more reposeful, their digestion is better, and their work more easily accomplished.

HON. J. R. STRATTON. Hon. Mr. Stratton was the last speaker, and for nearly two hours he held the interested audience in a general discussion of provincial matters. He commenced by referring to the county of Lambton being fortunate in its Liberal representatives. Forty years ago next month honest and stur-dy Alexander Mackenzie had been first ected as representative for Lambton, the county being named after George Lambton, who had been governor-genceeded by the late Mr. Pardee, who was commissioner of crown lands in Sir Oliver Mowat's Government until his decease in 1889. Mr. Charles Mackenzie had succeeded Mr. Pardee, but in 1894 the constieuency fell from grace; but in 1899 the "king returned to his own," and the present popular representative was elected by over 500 ma-jority—(applause)—and the speaker had no doubt he would be elected by even a larger majority in the coming elec-

ICY. Mr. Stratton then dealt with Mr. Whitney's lack of policy as compared with the forward and progressive policy of the Ross Government. said the ninth parliament of Ontario was near an end. The government would be upon its trial at the hands of the provincial jurors, and they entered upon this trial with confidence. Provincial affairs had been managed with prudence, with wisdom and with moderation, with enterprise in action, with large and abiding faith in the future of Ontario. This province needs inore than perfunctory routine administration. Proud as is its position, that position is nothing to what it can be made by the effective development of its great resources. To this the gov-ernment was committed with all the energy at its command. It had made a most gratifying advance. He tlen gave a detailed description of the work and programme of the government, which had not been supported by the opposition. He referred to the Conservative leader's meetings in Toronto and London. He had pected Mr. Whitney would have had something to say, some declaration of policy to make on the eve of an appeal to the people, but his speeches give. POLITICAL CORRUPTION. Mr. Whitney posed as a specialist on the subject of political corruption. He should be an expert, for he is the leader of a party with a long, black record of corruption to its credit, or rather discredit. He never failed to denounce Pritchett, but he never denounced "Billy" Smith, the Conservative ex-M. P., in South Ontario, who on oath in court swore that he had been guilty of "the most brazen piece of corruption" they had ever heard of. He would grow red in the face with righteous indignation denouncing Pritchett, an obscure individual, but the perpetrator of the most brazen corruption ever heard of by a judge was left severely and considerately alone. While Liberals condemned corruption in any form, the Conservatives specially honored their boodlers by publicly and shamelessly them, afterwards nominat ing preparations, he said, for the coming struggle, which would come on by the honest electors. He asked the within twelve months. It was the audience if a public man's honesty was first time that Premier Ross, who had not questionable who demand the pun-

> MR. WHITNEY'S TACTICS. Mr. Whitney's policy was to blacken his opponents and pose as a political purist with pharasaic unction. He was willing to overlook the corruption of his own party and enjoy the fruits of their corruption. Mr. Whitney's statesmanship seemed to be narrowed down to a policy of this kind. He seemed to be able to indulge in no wider outlook, to take no broader view. seems to have no sympathy with the policy of advance and development. He not only failed to support antagonized every effort made in that direction. He called the land grant to the Algoma Central Railway colossal robbery in one session, supported a large grant in another session to the Manitoulin and North Shore when forced to do so by his followers, who privately denounced his course on the Algoma Central. Mr. Whitney sneeringly remarks of the government plan to establish abattoirs, and calls the abattoirs in contempt "butcher shops." His petty sarcasm no doubt drew the applause of his audience, while an abattoir, employing capital and labor, was being established in the very city in which he was speaking for the benefit of the farmers.

NEW ONTARIO. He sneers at New Ontario "as discovered by Hon. Mr. Ross," but he came nearer the truth than he meant. as the true wealth and importance of new Ontario had been discovered by Mr. Ross, through the exploring parties

He asked if Mr. Whitney's political friends at Ottawa did not think it the land of the "stunted poplar," when a score or two of political heelers had given to them by the Conservative Conservation 1500 by the Conservative Government 1,500 or more square miles, nearly a million acres of valuable timber lands at less than a cent per acre, among the boodle beneficiaries being Mr. Whitney's bosom friend and political chum in Morris-

Mr. Straton did not think Mr. Whitney appreciated the importance of eral of Canada from 1830 to 1840, a new Ontario, where millions of laborers Whig. He then dealt with the bold, energetic, progressive and patriotic policy of the government, giving the details of the various pulp concessions and showing by a map the new lines of railway that were being built with the assistance of the province. He dealt exhaustively with the financial position of the province with the position which the province had taken, and concluded what was generally referred to by the vast audience as one of the most ex-haustive and complete expositions of the affairs of the province ever listened to in this banner Liberal county.

At the conclusion of Mr. Stratton's address cheers were given for the provincial secretary, the local members, and the King.

SILENCE, THE NEW LAW.

Barkers in the Bowery, Hucksters and Howlers Must Subside in Specified Hours.

New York, June 6.—Street noises are receiving official attention from New York's board of aldermen, and a crusade is planned which will affect the old clo' man, the 'all hot" newsboys and hucksters. Attention will also be paid to street musicians, and Pittsburg's famous ruling against organs bids fair to be duplicated by the city fathers of this municipality. Of course, a measure of liberty must be allowed the street merchants, hideous though their cries are. It is proposed, however, to make their efforts unlawful before 9 a.m and after 5 p.m.. The first step is a showed he apparently had no policy to bill introduced the other day by Pre sident Guggenheimer of the borough of Manhattan providing severe penalties for the infraction of the 5 p.m. to 9 a.m. law. During that period vendors, peddlers and criers are forbidden to shout their wares, or to make noises of any sort to attract attention to themselves and their goods in the public streets. This will include the famous Bowery "barkers," who have enjoyed the privilege of rending the night air with their peculiar and distressing cries from time immemorial. The newsboys view the proposed or-dinance with alarm. Many of them do a lively business after 5 o'clock in the evening, and the prospects of depending in signs to sell "night extras" is not very encouraging. It's the voice that counts. The present crusade had its origin away up town. Complaint was made in the exclusive residential section of the annoyance experienced by the cries of early morning hucksters and the din of street pianos late at night. Nervousness and Nerve The more nervous a man is the less nerve he has. That sounds paradoxical but it isn't; for nerve is stamina. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives nerve. It tones the whole system, perfects diges-tion and assimilation, and is therefore the best medicine a nervous person can If you get tired easily, mentally or physically, take it—it will do you good.

Mr. Justice Robertson.

The London Free Press, in opposition to the general opinion of the legal prolession, advises Mr. Justice Robertson to refuse to retire, no matter what his Incapacitating infirmities, such as great deafness. His retiring allowance would be $4,000 a year for the rest of his life; not niggardly, one would say. Our contemporary's tone indicates willingness to introduce partisan feeling. But in this it will not succeed., as the Toronto World, just as good an Opposition authority as the London Free Press, speaks strongly in favor of Mr. Justice Robertson's retirement being insisted on by the crown. To the view of the Free Press we oppose that of a better authority on such a matter, namely, the Canadian Law Times. That legal publication says:

"A painful matter, but one of great moment in the Province of Ontario, was brought before the House of Com-mons on the 20th ult. Mr. Stephens asked: 'Has any information been given to the Government that one of the judges of the High Court of Justice in Ontario is unfortunately physically incapable of properly hearing the evidence adduced in cases tried before him? In consequence of such physical infirmity, do some barristers arrange to have cases tried by some other

"The Premier, in reply, said: 'Representations have been made to the Minister of Justice from various counsel practicing at the bar of Ontario on Robertson's physical infirmity, and some counsel of eminence have refused to take cases before him on account of his very great deafness. The truth is Mr. Justice Robertson is in the opinion of the bar, no longer fit for his duties, but up to the present time he does not seem to realize what is apparent to the profession and

"This was very plain speaking, but we believe, under the circumstances, unavoidable. We have no doubt that Mr. Justice Robertson's resignation will be sent in at once, if it is not already in the hands of the Government. We have the greatest sympathy for the learned judge, who has earned for himself an enviable reputation for indusand thoroughness on the bench, but who has been manifestly handicapped for several years by his deafness. His health being otherwise good, in some such work as the consolidation of the Dominion statutes.

The Monroe Doctrine Again.

There are two rumors affoat, one that Germany intends to make a colony out of a section of Brazil, which is at present thickly settled by German emigrants; the other is that Germany is bargaining with Venezuela for the lease or purchase of a small, barren island in the Caribbean Sea for use as a coaling station. The latter rumor has been semi-officially denied, but there seems to be enough suspicion attached to stir up United States newspapers to a discussion as to the feasibility of the Monroe doc-This political doctrine which has in recent years become so prominent, forms no part of international law. However necessary it may have been in the time of James Munroe to take such a stand regarding the acquisition of new world territory by old world powers, it is evident that the concensus of press opinion in the United States at the present day favors the relaxation of this political doc- pay water taxes on the property. Victoria, Hospital, the Public Home of the Sick.

Victoria Hospital, London, is very creditable to the City of London, It is far in advance of the requirements of the law; a monument to the goodheartedness of the people. It is socialistic in the best sense in its tendencies, and leads in the right direction. It tends to make the whole community a family. It has as chairman of its managing board in Mr. Thomas McCormick one of the most representative philanthropists in Western Ontario.

Some one has said:

One day, one day, our lives shall seem Thin as a brief forgotten dream; One day our souls, by life oppressed, Shall ask no other boon than rest.

And surely in the new Victoria Hospital, and in the old hospital before it, many a sick one, fallen by the wayside, found that rest so ardently craved. There has never been, there is not now, any barrier; to be sick, and to require hospital treatment, is the only requirement; those of any country, any religion, any race, are received and cared for.

If in the old hospital the nurses and doctors did splendid work, they can do much better in the new. Here, surely, the sick will have every chance to recover; and if there are any, and it is certain there will be, who only come for rest, feeling already "the sough of Jordan's waves," for them, too, all that can will be done.

INSANITY CAN BE CURED

W. Ford Robertson, British Alienist, Describes Insanity and Prescribes Curative Treatment.

FINE ADDRESS BY LABORI,

The Famous French Lawver. in London.

Entertained by Members of the British Bench and Bar.

London, June, 6, 1 a.m.-The English bench and bar rallied in force in King's Hall, Holborn Restaurant, last night, to pay a splendid tribute to Maitre Labori. Over 500 judges, barristers and solicitors were present at the Hardwicke dinner, and with the race. exception of the lord chief justice no prominent jurist or lawyer was absent. The regular order of proceedings was followed until after 11 o'clock, with a series of perfunctory speeches by Justice Hodges, Lord Hardwicke, Sir Edward Carson, Lord Halsbury, Sir Robert Findlay, Sir Francis Jeune and others. Nearly every speaker referred pany of the 33rd Regiment, served through the Boer campaign. The same regiment boasts of Lieut. McVicar, of A MAGNIFICENT SPEECH. At last, after the King, parliament, the bench and the bar had been duly applause. AN ELOQUENT PLEA. He had merely done his professional duty, and the English bar was recognizing the truth that the right of dewas naturally a right which it was the common aim and solemn obligation of lawyers of all nations to protect. He reduced the legal practice of the civilized world to the simple syllogism, "Without the right of defense there could be no bar, and without the bar there could be no independence. The effect of this eloquent plea, livered with strong gestures, vibrating voice and flashing eyes, was fairly electric. There was a tumult of applause when this champion of the bar of all countries took his seat, and the Hardwicke Society was conscious that it had dignified the legal profession in honoring the man who defended Drey-

THE TIE

Nearness of Britain and the United States

Emphasized at the Commercial Banquet Held in Old London.

London. June 5.-The banquet endered by the London Chamber of Commerce to the delegates of the New York chamber at Grocers' Hall tonight was one of the handsomest affairs of the kind ever given. Referring to the debt Great Britain owed the New York Chamber of Commerce at the time the Venezuelan difficulty arose, Lord Brassey said he desired to mark Great Britain's deep sense of the service rendered.

"To no other nation," he continued, "are we drawn as we are to our kins-men across the Atlantic. The wiselydirected friendship of our two peo ples—not as yet, and perhaps never to be, cemented by formal alliance should be a potent influence. Working together for the common good of mankind, we may keep open the door for trade, we may spread civilization, we may protect the oppressed, and we may establish peace among the nations.' There was a murmur of expectancy as Lord Lansdowne, foreign secretary, rose to toast President Mc-Kinley:

"I imagine," he said, "that this honorable duty has been assigned to me because I am connected with the department of foreign affairs and be cause it may be that a toast coming from my line may seem to denote something more than a mere private expression of admiration and good-will. I think I may say that to all the subjects of his majesty it requires an effort to think of our relations with the United States as foreign relations. (Prolonged cheers.)

A VIEW OF THE PRESIDENT. "All those who, like myself, are servants of the public, feel that they hold an unwritten commission that no pains shall be spared to maintain the most friendly relations. With regard to President McKinley we think of the great office he fills and, in addition to his public cares, we remember the burden of private anxiety he has to bear, and it is the prayer of our whole country that his wife may be restored to health and that he may continue to be to the whole world a potent influence for the good of the human Jesup, president of the New Mr. York Chamber of Commerce, replied to the address of welcome. Mr. Jesup was followed by Lord Avebury, A. Foster Higgins, and A. Barton Hepburn. Mr. Hepburn aroused interest by an intimation that the United States were entering upon the stage of tariff relaxation.

"Over two years ago," observed Mr. Hepburn, "President McKinley, in a speech in Boston, said: 'We are not talking about tariff now,' and, in his recent trip across the continent he made no allusion to the tariff, but greatly emphasized the necessity of cultivating outside markets; and the chairman of the Republican campaign committee has announced that tariff will be taken off from all so-called trusts, and our ability to produce has so largely outgrown our capacity to consume that the 'open door' is rapidly becoming the shibboleth of Am-

Mr. Carnegie, who had the best reception of the evening, dwelt upon the importance of the growing friendly relations between the two countries, and continued as follows:

The horoscope of the future shows that common dangers are likely to draw us closer and closer; and if ever the banners here entwined together have to be unfurled side by side in self-defense against any foe, or combination of foes who may attack and disturb the peace, I pity that enemy. "The chambers of commerce of world carry for their motto, 'Peace and good-will among men.' If cabinets should ever fail to preserve between us 'peace and honor,' I suggest as a tribunal of last resort the chambers commerce in London and New York; and not until we fail should our peoples despair of a settlement creditable to both disputants." Mr. Griscom, whose arrival in time for the banquet created much interest, dwelt upon the expansion of American shipping. "With the co-operation of our government," he said, "we trust that on the great ocean trade routes the flag of the United States will soon fly side by side with the flags of Great Britain and continental powers. CABLE NOTES.

MOUTH OF THE ELEPHANT. The elephant's mouth is one of the queerest sights in the whole of the animal kingdom, says Pets and Ani-mals. Its size alone makes it sufficiently remarkable, but its construction is remarkable even than its size. It has no front teeth, for elephants never eat flesh nor any other food which requires tearing apart. They have only eight teeth altogether, four huge yellow molars on each side, two above and two below. These teeth are about two inches thick and the width of a man's hand.

Queer Location of Famous Hotels.

Western Thibet asserts that it has the highest hotel in the world-not in stories, but in situation. It is called the Hotel Saval, and is over 16,000 feet above the level of the sea. The building stands in the Chang-la pass through the Himalayas. It is a square structure, built around a central courtyard. The walls are of great thickness, and are of rough hewn black stone quarried in the mountains near by. This hotel is not intended as a pleasure resort, but for the accommodation of the caravans which use the pass in going between Kashmír and Thibet. The hotel stands far above the timber line in a region of eternal snow, biting winds and icy barrenness.

Another hotel in an unusual position is that situated in the Paris sewers, almost directly beneath the Church of the Madeline. Entrance to it dryshod can be had only at certain hours. At all other times a boat has to be used. The interior is singularly neat and clean, despite the noisomeness of the surround-Saval, and is over 16,000 feet above the tains near by. At all other times a boat has to be used. The interior is singularly neat and clean, despite the noisomeness of the surroundings, and between sixty and seventy breakfasts and dinners are served therein daily. There are also provided three beds for the use of the night watchmen who patrol the great main drain which runs tunnel-wise beneath the city. The hotel constitutes a sort of annex to this monster drain pipe, and has been excavated at infinite labor out of the solid limestone rock which here constitutes the foundations of Paris.

In Belize, British Honduras, a hotel stands in a graveyard. It is one of the largest hotels in Central America. The old graveyard is in the middle of the city and is an excellent site for a hotel except for the grewsomeness of the situation. The graveyard had not been used for a long time, and finally the authorities gave permission for the building of the hotel in a portion of it. So the building stands surrounded with tombstones.

The Queen and Her Dogs.

The Queen raised the Scotch collie to its proud position of the most popular dog in England-it having no mean reputation in Scotland, says "Our Animal riends." She owned and loved two collies, "Sharp" and "Noble," which accompanied her daily on her rides about the country. When children came to Queen Victoria and Prince Albert they, too, had their pet dogs. Perhaps the setters and the spaniels were their best-known playfellows. Those dogs are painted the oftenest with the princes and princesses. As house dogs, the Queen found the Dandie Dinmonts unmatched for faithfulness. The Skyes were also pets, both at Windsor and at Balmoral Castle.

"Madame Marton was obliged to come to New York, Clif," Shirley replied; "she has lost all her property."

"Can that be possible?" exclaimed the young man. "How did it happen?"

"I do not understand it, but I believe that it was either through the carelessness or the knavery of her attorney." Shirley replied. "And, Clif," she went on, eagerly, "I think it has been a good thing for her in one way, for she is very different from what she used to be, while of late I feel sure that she has been growing very fond of me."

"Really!" said the young man, with a roguish twinkle in his eyes. "Is that a matter of surprise to you? I only wonder how she could help becoming very fond of you at the outset."

"Ah! but you have been blinded by Eros, who, you know, is apt to make people imagine virtues where they do not exist." Shirley retorted, with a bright, saucy glance. "But," she resumed, "Madame Marton is really very gentle and agreeable, although she has been dangerously ill during most of the winter; and she has been almost my only friend. I have been quite happy with her."

her."
"But if she has lost her money, what supports her?" Clifton inquired.
"Well, she has a little left," Shirley returned, flushing, for she knew that there must be very little, since the doctor and nurse were paid. "She expected to go to the Norwoods, and make her home with them, and in that case she would not have needed much; but they would not have her, and so we are boarding on Ninth street."
"The Norwoods would not have her!" repeated Clifton, indignantly. "Well, I cannot say that I am surprised, although I know that Mrs. Norwood wears elegant diamonds which Madame Marton gave her. They are about as cold and selfish a family as it was my lot to meet. Now I am going to make a proposition to you, dear," he added, bending a look straight into Shirley's eyes; "suppose that you and I make a nice little home for Madame Marton during the remainder of her life? Would you like it, Shirley?"

The rich blood mounted to the girl's white brow at this unexpected suggestion.
"I am sure that there can be no reason white brow at this unexpected suggestion.

"I am sure that there can be no reason why we should not," Clifton continued, with grave earnestness, "and I feel that there are several reasons why we should do so; for even though you are looking very lovely at this moment, with the renewed light of hope and love in your dear eyes, yet I can see that you have been working beyond your strength this winter. These cheeks are not as round and full as when I went, and these small hands are so thin that your rings are very loose. Shirley—"

He broke off suddenly with a start, as he lifted her left hand and observed that

"Ah, Clif," she returned, deprecatingly,

Again Shirley flushed, while she involmaterily lifted her hand to her white throat, which Clifton noticed was encircled with a tiny black cord.
He guessed the truth, and smiled fondly down upon her glowing face.
"You will think me very foolish," she breathed, as she broke the silken thread and slipped the ring into his hand, "but, even though I could not wear it, it was still very dear to me."

Clifton bent and touched her lips with a fond caress, deeply touched by this evidence of her devotion to him. Then, as he slipped the ring back to its place upon her finger, he said, with smiling tenderness:

"Now tell me, dear Shirley, shall we make a home for Madame Marton?"

"I do wish," he returned, firmly. "I have a good salary now. I forgot to mention that, upon my return, my father took me into his office. I have saved a fair amount besides, and I cannot see my promised wife toiling, as your face tells me you have been doing during the last six months. Shirley, your school closes about the middle of June, does it not?"

"Yes."
"Then, as Madame Marton appears to be the only guardian you have, I shall call on you tonight and ask her if I may have you on the twentieth," Clifton remarked, with smiling determination.
"Oh, Clift! so soon!" Shirley exclaimed, sephest.

Shirley was a little troubled by Clifton's proposition that they should be married on the twentieth of June.

dollar visits from a physician, who had often come twice a day. All this, with medicine and numerous other incidentals, had made a frightful aggregate.
Shirley, out of pity for Madame Martob, had again used a little kindly deception when settling these bills. She had asked both the physician and nurse to make them out and receipt them at far less figures than those representing the actual amount; while she made up the actual amount; while she made up the difference from her own hoarded funds.

doctor had made some discount on The doctor had made some discount on his bill, when she explained to him why she desired this; but the nurse would not abate a dollar of her stipulated price, claiming that she was not allowed to do so by the authorities at the hospital which she represented; and thus there was but a pairry sum remaining in the bank with which to provide a wedding outfit.

Clifton paid his visit to Madame Marton that evening, as he had arranged to do, and was received with evident pleasure by her.

Shirley had related to her the events of the afternoon, explaining the misunderstanding which had been caused by Blanche Norwood's willful deception, and madame was so overjoyed to learn how that crafty young woman had been defeated and exposed in her maneuvers, that she was prepared to meet him with more cordiality than she was in the habit of expressing toward any one. more cordiality than she was in the habit of expressing toward any one.

The trio had a long and pleasant interview, and when Clifton broached the subject of his early marriage with Shirley, madame at once expressed herself as favorable to it, and betrayed almost as much interest in discussing their prospects as if she had herself been young, and was arranging for her own bridal.

She was deeply touched when they told her that they wanted her to share their home.

"I don't know about that," she observed, with a thoughtful shake of her head. "I don't believe in mixing up too much. I am afraid it would not be a good plan for you young folks to burden yourselves with a cross, crabbed old maid, who does not always know how to behave herself properly. I'm sure I don't want to spoil your lives, if I have spoiled my own."

"Now, dear Madame Marton, you shall not go back to that old morbid way of talking," Shirley interposed, with affectionate authority. "You know that you could not get along without me, and I am sure I should be alone all day long while Clif was away attending to his business, and too forlorn for anything." "It's very good of you. Shirley, to put it that way, and I am free to confess that my life would not be worth much to me if you were taken out of it," the woman replied, with a suspicious trembling of her lips. "I'll try," she added, after a moment, "not to be a very heavy burden upon you."

moment, "not to be a very field speech, "You will have to weigh more than you do now to be much of a burden upon any one," she said lightly, as she leaned forward to adjust the dainty little lace to conceal how thin her hair had become during her recent illness, and completed her sentence with a tender little pat upon the fast whitening head.

It was finally decided that the wedding should be a very quite affair, and occur in the little chapel connected with the church which Shirley attended; and it was set for the last day of June, instead of the twentieth, as it was decided a little more time would be necessary to prepare for it.

With the single exception of the year | Summary: 1899, commercial defaults in May were much smaller than in the corresponding month of any year since these returns were first compiled, with the comparison especially favorable in manufacturing and trading. CANADIAN FAILURES.

Canadian failures during May, according to reports to R. G. Dun & Co., numbered 104, with liabilities of $810,-350, an increase of 18 over the preceding month in number, and $412,228 in amount, but January was the only other month of the preceding eight when insolvencies were smaller than in May. Last month there were 26 manufacturing defaults for $275,870, and 72 trading failures for $430,930, while in other commercial lines there were 6 bankrupts owing $103,550. Another month has passed without a single banking disaster in the Dominion, making eight consecutive months with this most enviable record. Considering the phenomenally good showing in April, it is not remarkable that May should report somewhat heavier insolvencies, and the statement is most favorable when considered in detail. There was not a single failure with liabilities exceeding $100,000, and the average was exceptionally light in the trading class. Five manufacturing divisions were without any defaults, and two others had but one each. As usual nearly two-thirds of the trading disasters occurred in general stores and groceries.

THE NEW PERSIDENT. THE NEW PRESIDENT.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

Rev. James Livingstone, of Windsor, the new president of the London Conference, is one of the finest looking men physically in the conference. He is tall and of proportionate breadth and his clean shaven face and long curly locks make him a figure to be noticed, even on the floor of the conference. He was born at Birch Hill, county of Simcoe, in 1850, and received his education at the public schools, Wesleyan Theological College and McGill University, Montreal. When he was 16 years old he left the public school and turned his attention to farming. His conversion occurred in his 19th year, and, shortly after, he decided to become a candidate for the ministry. About this time an uncle offered him a position in San Francisco at $20 per month, but he refused the offer. He was ordained in 1877 at Guelph and has since been stationed at Kippen, Bayfield, Florence, Blenheim, Clinton, Listowel, Kincardine, Aylmer and Windsor. He is a popular preacher and lecturer, possessing a considerable fund of humor. He also sings and recites acceptably. NOTES.

The election of Mr. Livingstone to the chief office is a popular one.

This was a day of introductions—Revs.
Dr. Young, D. N. McCamus, Rev. R. McIntyre; also of farewells, Revs. Dr. Smith and Philp saying good-bye before leaving for the east.

After the grip, or other serious illness, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine to take to restore the appetite and strength. It is estimated that an electric pneumatic tube for transmitting packages eight inches in diameter would cost $8,000 a mlie.
