Sum To Be Paid For the Land Is $35,000-Every Site Balloted For Until Choice Was Reached-Selection Appears To Be Popular.

After a two-hours' debate, the special committee of the city counell at noon today decided to purchase the Eccles property at the northeast corner of Queen's avenue and Wellington street, as a site for the new city hall.

The cost will be $35,000. At the next regular meeting of the council, the deal will be ratified. While all the members of the council were present today, the meeting was not technically a council session, so the matter will come up at the next regular meeting.

The six sites previously mentioned, the "V," Richmond and Maple streets, the McCormick property, the Spencer Block, Waterloo and Dundas streets, and the Eccles property were presented.

Votes Were Taken. Each in turn were balloted for. The Waterloo and Dundas streets location was the first to fall by the wayside. Then followed the Spencer Block. Still later the McCormick Block was rejected. The fourth to be passed up was the property at the corner of Maple and Richmond streets, leaving the "V" and the Eccles property to be

Some comment has been created by one to motorists, and the stiffness of the the act of Magistrate Kingsford, of To-I fine was a surprise. The police officials ronto, who in yesterday afternoon's gravated one, as he had imitated the court fined R. E. McDonagh $50 and costs for using a license number on his automobile which had not been supplied by the provincial department. The fact that the law is comparatively new makes this the first conviction. London motorists will do well to take warning. The bylaw under which the conviction was made states that "Every motor vehicle while being driven on a highway shall have attached to and exposed on the front and back thereof, in a conspicuous position, a marker furnished by to improper purposes. The magistrate the provincial secretary, showing in plain figures not less than five inches previously, he found that under the law height the number of the permit, and for any violation shall be liable for the first offence to a penalty of $50 or one week's imprisonment, or both; for the Government number so nearly that it could only be detected at close range. The defence was that It was made owing to the original being lost, and what had been used was a last year's painted over with this year's number on it. The contention of the authorities is that while this number was apparently being used for legitimate purposes only, there might be cases where fake num bers could be used by people who desired o disguise the number of their machines from the police, and who would put them.

there was only one thing he could co, and that was to impose a fine. "The defendant did not say anything o us about merely using this until he could get another," the police stated. on account of its catchy music was presented before a good audience at the Grand last evening and the various numbers were well received. The strongest part of the play is its staging the costumes being of more than usual beauty. The music proved a disappointment to many, probably besause they expected so much more. Miss Valeska Suratt, the leading ady, did some clever dancing, but her work in this line was rather offset by the coarseness of some of her alleged comedy. Her singing was only fair, although the support she received from George Baldwin, a young man with a rich voice, was good. Misses Louie Richmond and Miss Hattie Burks were a decidedly dainty pair of singers, and their work was much more pleasing to the audience than that of the leading lady. Miss Burks was particularly attractively gowned. The cleverest part of the show was the comedy work of Harry McDonough and Miss Henry, who take the roles of a coachman and his wife, who through a legacy left by prince for whom the coachman works, become suddenly wealthy and start out to capture a rich husband their daughter. Edward Lorraine, a baronet stutters, played the role well.

Every Liberal French-Canadian memher of the House of Commons cheerfully and readily faces the naval issue, the obligation of Canada to do some-Empire

Not a single French-Canadian Conservative member of Parliament is in to go to his constituents to plead for aganda the staple of his election camthe ground that it involved the participation of Canada in the wars of Great Britain.

Take another contrast. A section of the Conservative press in Ontario has begun an agitation for an increase of the tariff upon American manufactured goods. It is supported by some Parliament, including the member for London, But not a single Conservative member from the four western provinces dares to join in the demand, or would dare to vote for such a proposal. With few exceptions they advocate the removal of the tariff on agricultural implements from the United

The Liberals speak with one voice on the tariff as on the naval question. On both they have the same policy for Quebec as for Ontario, for the East as for the West.

THE AIRSHIP AS A PEACE FACTOR.

The International Parliamentary Union, which is essentially peaceful in tone, has rejected a resolution demanding the prohibition of airships in war.

The Union was impressed by the contention of the great French pacifist, Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, that the world's peace would be better insured by the use of flying machine The same argument is bestowed as a blessing upon every new Dreadnought, but in this respect there is a real distinction between a warship and an airship The country with the longest purse can have the largest army and navy, but airships cost comparatively little, and the poorer states can put themselves on an almost equal footing with their richer neighbors in this field of warfare. The scouting efficiency of the airship is also in favor of defensive as against offensive operations on land and sea.

Military and naval strategy are built to a great extent upon the elements of secrecy and surprise. The airship is a deadly foe of both, and it looks as though all the tactical lore of military science had been turned upside down in consequence. This is a condition that ought to make for peace, because the immediate result will be to heavily discount the greatest battalions and the biggest navies, for aggressive pur-

Another factor is the ease with which the airship lends itself to irregular warfare. In a country beaten on land and sea, nothing could prevent desperate men from attempting to take appalling revenge upon the victor by raining explosives on crowded cities and otherwise spreading devastation over the enemy's country. This possibility may well be a restraining influence upon bellicose powers until the happy day when they consent to submit to the restraint of law, as men do in their relations with their fellow-citizens.

A NEEDED REFORM.

A very strong movement is developing in Great Britain and also in Canada for what is known as "proportional representation" in elections to Parliament. A bill supported by a considerable number of members of all parties in the British House of Commons is to be introduced in the forthcoming session of that body, to provide for electoral redistribution on proportional lines. The system is already working successfully in South Africa, part of Australia, Belgium and Sweden. Recently the French Legislative Chamber has adopted an electoral bill based on proportional principles.

The essence of proportional representation lies in (1) multi-member constituencies, (2) the single transferable vote. Each elector has only one vote, but on the ballot paper he can indicate by the figures 1, 2, 3, 4, etc., his various preferences among the candidates. The number of votes necessary in the multiple constituency to secure the return of one member is approximately the result of a division of all the votes cast by the number of seats to be filled, and is called the "quota." Provision is made in the new British bill for the transfer of votes in excess of the quota given to any one candidate, and also for the transfer of votes given to candidates whose supporters are less in number than the quota. Such votes are transferred to the candidate whom the voters mark on their ballot as next in order of their preference.

What will be the effects of substiuting this proportional method for the existing majority election? In the first place minorities will be fairly represented, not to the full percentage, but sufficiently to overcome the glaring anomalies attendant on the majority system. In the British election of 1910, or example, the five constituencies of Sheffield gave over 2,500 net majority to the Liberals, who nevertheless got only two of the five seats. In Canada under proportional representation, Toronto Liberals would not be permanently disfranchised, and Ontario Liberals nearly so at Ottawa. In British Columbia the Liberals would be represented, and in Alberta and Saskatchewan the Conservatives would have more seats than at pres-

Secondly, the friction of Liberal vs. Labor and the winning of three-cornered fights by Unionists against the and impresses upon his constituents general sense of the electorate will be done away with. Each party in the and his influence will act upon his chilthing for the defence of the British larger constituency will gets its due proportion of members.

It is clear also that in general there will be less chance in elections, inthis position. Not one of them dares dependents will have a more favorable field and gerrymander in redistribuany form of naval expenditure. Every tion of seats will be impossible. Reone of them made the anti-navy prop- distribution will be a matter not of changing constituency boundaries, but paign a year ago. Every one of them merely of readjusting of representadenounced the Laurier naval law on tion, as in the case of Canadian provinces. The British bill as foreshadowed will suggest a division of England, Wales and Scotland by no arbitrary lines, but (1) by counties and (2) by large subdivisions of them according to old administrative machinery. It is to the credit of the Laurier Govern-Eastern Conservative members of ment that in the last redistribution of Canada the natural lines of the county divisions were similarly respected

> COLONEL SAM'S LATEST ANTICS. Colonel Sam Hughes is now performing in Europe. At a banquet following the launching of the British warship Audacious a few days ago, he

"I experienced today a great re gret. A splendid vessel has just been launched, but the British taxpayer is alone in paying the cost. My regret is that the Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders, and South Africans are not helping to foot the bill."

The insult to the Australians, New Zealanders and South Africans was in characteristic bad taste, but there is more serious implication. Here is Canadian cabinet minister advocating the policy of contribution which his own leader has expressly repudiated in Parliament. Is this violation of the principle of cabinet solidarity to go unreproved by the Prime Minister? Probably so. Colonel Sam is a law unto himself, and the cabinet is composed of such heterogeneous and disordant elements that Mr. Borden ould not hold it together if he were particular about British precedent and Poor old Ireland! Life there is just one fit of Ulsteria after another.

The Hansard staff has no sinecure in the Hungarian Diet, which is debating with motor horns and cow-bells.

Col. Sam Hughes tells a Parisian journalist that his maternal grandfather came from Orleans. The Montreal La Presse slyly suggests that it may have been Gascony.

At the last Dominion election, Reciprocity and Disloyalty had a popular majority of 30,000 outside the cities. Those farmers are an unpatriotic lot.

Mr. Lemieux's eloquent pro-British speech to a French-Canadian audience at Ville Marie puts to shame the politicians who climbed into office at Ottawa on an anti-British propaganda. Mr. Neely having refused to take his election charges into court, the London Free Press calls upon Mr. Rowell to do it for him. This seems to be an attempt to inject a little humor into the situation.

Mr. F. E. Smith, M. P., the Unionist ieutenant, has returned to England from Canada "more convinced than ever of the necessity of tariff reform." It would be interesting to have a list of the Canadian manufacturers who told Mr. Smith they wanted to share the Canadian market more liberally with British competitors.

The Toronto News continues to repeat the statement-which any authority it may consult will disprove -that the United States has more wheat for export than Canada. Once for all it may be said the statement is not true, and never will be again.

-Toronto Globe. The News is mild compared with the London Free Press, which asserts that the United States in a lean year has more wheat for export than Canada actually produces.

MAY BUY AIRSHIPS FOR THE MILITIA

Col. Sam Hughes Favors Them for Canadian Army.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Toronto, Sept. 20 .- A local military man, who is known to be closely in touch with Hon. Sam Hughes, minister of militia, is authority for the statement today that while in England on his present visit the Canadian minister of militia will arrange for the purchase of a number of tested and worth-proven airships for Canadian troops. In his correspondence, Colonel Hughes has intimated that it is his opinion that the aerial branch of the European army service is a feature that is developing rapidly, and Canada must have a properly-organized aerial corps to be effi cient in military defence.

A ROMANCE OF OLD QUEBEC

IBy Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram.]

The very name Diana, whether Diana of the Ephesians, Diana of the Crossways, or Diana of Quebec, always calls up before us a certain type of woman The ancient huntress, the lady of the silver bow, was really not ancient, but modern, the chaste and self-dependent and vengeful forerunner of the new woman. Meredith's Diana of the Crossways is of the same order as her earlier sister, only more mature, more fascinating, but still pretty much of an enigma. And now we have a Diana of Quebec, who lends her name to a novel by Miss Jean N. McIlwraith, formerly of Hamilton, now of New York. In Miss McIlwraith's story, the heroine, Diana, figures in the intrigues which agitated the military authorities at Quebec during the later years of the American War of Independence. Diana, like others of the name, is fond of riding, of fishing, of intriguing, and is a very resourceful and opinionated young lady. Of course, she is beautiful, and, as she is able to unbend herself enough to indulge in a little flirting, she gives Miss McIlwraith a chance to introduce into her vivacious pages no less a person than Horatio Nelson.

Our Canadian novelist has certainly hit upon a new idea for a romance of old Quebec. In her studies connected with the writing of her life of Sir Frederick Haldimand, governor of Quebec, Miss McIlwraith secured some material relative to the meteoric visits of Nelson, then captain of the Albemarle, to Quebec, in the days of the Haldimand regime. She has now cleverly made use of this information by bringing the gallant Horatio into her romance. Nelson was smitten with the charms of Diana the first time he met her in the streets of Quebec She was too self-contained a lady, however, to fall in love with "the forlorn-looking little naval officer," who, when we first see him, is toiling up the slope steep enough to test stouter calves than his." But "that scrap of human-"Because when they meet he raised ity, whose clothes hung upon him like the ill-fitting garb of a larger person,' had a gay spirit, and was never happier than when making love to a beautiful woman. At this time he was three-and-twenty, and the pen-picture of him here is very attractive: "Nelson's laugh rang out like a schoolboy's. He had an absurdly sensitive mouth, a full under-lip, and a dimple in his chin. Thick, dark brows added strength to a pair of gray eyes, deepset, and rather soft for my taste-in a man-though I doubted not they could emit sparks on occasion." The conversations between Nelson and Diana of Quebec are very sprightly, and the accounts of fishing expeditions and picnics which he enjoyed with the saucy, red-cheeked intriguer, are written with that buoyancy of spirit which Miss McIlwraith describes as being Nelson's great attraction. Nelson forgot the belle of Quebec in later years and she never really cared for him, so STORM SEWERS ARE there is nothing to cloud our pleasure as we read this story.

> In contrast to the gay Horatio, we have a Captain Mathews, private secretary to General Haldimand, a sober, inimaginative Scot, with no sense of numor, and a dogged devotion to duty. Nothing is better illustrative of female perversity than the fact that the briliant, independent Diana falls in love with this military ramrod near the beginning of the story, even when the warm-hearted, impulsive Nelson is giving her every attention. If any man ever tried hard to spoil his chances of winning Diana that stupid gentleman was Mathews. He suspected the fair Diana of being a spy; he searched her mother's house for a cane in which was concealed a letter from Vermont intriguers, he even went so far as to prefer charges against the lady to General Haldimand and to have her arrested. In spite of all these painful performances of duty, however, she continued to love this martinet and overlooked the most heinous fault of all, that he did not have courage to propose to her after he had gone after her in a leaky canoe, when she had attempted to cross the St Lawrence on the ice in springtime. For years he had known Ald. Bennett at a previous meeting of that he loved her to distraction, but the committee to the effect that steam even when they were drifting down roads found it an easy matter to arthe river on ice-floe, Mathews did not range their schedules to meet such pop the question. She gave him several encouraging leads, but he was so steam roads operated over stupid that he persisted in talking on stretches astronomical subjects. Eventually Mathews saw light and was so encouraged by a friend that he sought and won the hand of Diana, who has been waiting for years. But does Miss McIlwraith imagine that any man would be so slow, such a dolt as Mathews? And does she think that any Diana would keep on loving such an gestion, a conference would be arunenterprising son of Adam? The lat- King. ter might be possible, for wonderful is the love of woman; but no man could go through that ice-floe experience without turning his soul inside out.

I expected him to say the "beautiful" girl, or the "intellectual" girl. He did not take a moment's thought, but quickly answered, "The smily kind." Isn't that the kind you like best? The girl who smiles makes life sweeter for everyone about her and whether she has regular features or not, whether she is blessed with a good complexion or not, yes, even if she be cross-eved, she will have a certain fascination when she smiles.

Did you ever notice a small baby crying, with its face puckered into the shape of a wrinkled nut? It is an ugly little animal, notwithstanding its roseleaf skin, its silky hair and its beautiful eyes. TOMMY FORD, CHICAGO PUG, IS TRAINING IN LONDON

Clever Little Lightweight Pays a Visit to Friends in This City-Holds Championship of Montana and Is Well Known on Pacific Coast.

"Smiling Tommy" Ford, a real live pugilist from the real live burg of Chicago, is making London his head-quarters for a few days, and incidentally doing a little training for a bout with Dick Nelson, "The Fighting Dane," who is a lightweight terror of New York. The bout will be staged before the National Sporting Club, of Toronto, Saturday, Sept. 28, and that accounts in a measure for Tommy Ford's presence in London. He is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Weinstein, 536 Phillip street. He knew Mrs. Weinstein before she was married, and it was she who named him Tommy Ford, his real name being Sam him Tommy Ford, his real name being Sam Fortisch. He will likely spend the remainder of the week in the city. CHAMPION OF MONTANA.

Tommy Ford has considerable of a record, and he is beginning to attract attention as a lightweight of some merit. He holds the championship of the State of Montana, and is known all over the Pacific coast, where he has earned quite a reputation as a clever and spunky lightweight. He has a kick in either mitt, and the great majority of his opponents take the count by the knock-Tommy's trainer, Jack Ford, his cousin, is also in town, and he is keeping the clever lightweight in shape. lightweight in shape. BEAT "KID" BRUCE.

One of Ford's most recent bouts was with "Kid" Bruce, a Colorado colored fighter, who had a reputation a mile long in the southwest. Ford met him in Trinidad, Col., and put him to sleep in the early spasms of the strife. The police stopped the affair just when Bruce was being helped out of the ring. MET LEACH CROSS.

Ford has met Leach Cross and One-Round Hogan, and made a splendid showing against both of them. He fought two ten-round draws against Hogan, and was outpointing Leach Cross in his bout with him when he was disqualified in the fourth round on a kidney punch He also fought a twenty-round draw with Jack Welch the English champion.

Smiling Tommy" Ford. HIS RECORD.

Part of Ford's record is as follows:
July 29, 1910—Six-round draw with One-Round Hogan.
Aug. 10, 1910—Ten-round draw with One-Round Hogan.
July 25, 1911—Knocked out Maurice Thompson in sixth round of twenty-round bout for championship of Montana.

In 1307 he met Kid Herman and Benny Yenger, beating both these fighters.

He met Phil Brock in 1909, and after losing the first bout defeated Brock in the other two. He also fought draws with Willie Beecher, Joe Bedell and Frank

Last April, Ford and a New York lightweight named Goldberg, staged a pre-liminary bout before one of the Gotham sporting clubs. The bout was just get-ting lively when Ford knocked Goldberg down. The blow was a hard one, and Goldberg was taken to the hospital, where he died next day. Ford was arrested but later released as it was shown that it was purely an accident and he was in no way to blame. The affair, however, shattered Ford for a time, and it was some months before he recovered from the shock. Since then he has always been careful and has tried to outpoint a man, rather than knock him out.

World Series Will Begin Monday, Oct. 7

[Canadian Press.]

New York. Sept. 20.—The world's series baseball games are to begin on Monday, Oct. 7. This date is said to have been tentatively agreed upon by the national commission, which meets here next Wednesday to draft the plans for the games. The Boston club has already won the pennant, and Giants expect to win within the next ten days. The playing season of the Boston Red Sox and the New York Giants closes Oct. 5, and one day's rest before the big games is deemed suf-An early start of the series is desired, as the commission desires to take advantage of good weather. PEACHES

PRESERVED PEACHES.

Peel, stone and weigh firm, white peaches, allowing to each pound of fruit a pound of white sugar. Arrange fruit and sugar in alternate layers in a broad preserving kettle. Set the kettle at the side of the stove where the contents will heat slowly. Stew for about half an hour after the preserves come to a boil, or until the peaches are tender when pierced by a fork. With a perforated skimmer take the peaches from the syrup until clear and thick, skimming often. Pack the fruit in jars. Fill to overflowing with the boiling liquid. Seal immediately; stand the jars in a pan of hot water while Illing them.

PEACH SOUP NO. 1 (HOT).

Remove skins and pits from twelve ripe peaches and stew the fruit with two or three of the cracked kernels, a cup of sugar, and two teaspoons of sago till tender and the sago is clear. Rub through a sieve, then put into the saucepan again. Any seasoning desired may be added before serving.

FROZEN PEACHES.

For one can or one dozen large ripe peaches, use two coffee cups of sugar and a pint of water. Break the peaches slightly. Mix with the water and sugar and let stand half an hour. Stir once in a while to dissolve the sugar. Then add the whipped whites of three eggs. Place in mold and pack in salt and ice for six hours.

PEACH SOUP NO. 2 (COLD).

Pare, stone and chop peaches. Sprinkle over them sugar in quantity desired and let stand an hour. To a pint of juice add one-third pint of grape juice. Place in a jug and cover with ice one hour. Serve with shaved ice in glasses.

ALL INTERESTED IN HIGH PRICE OF MEAT

Germany Sees Not Only Pork, But Other Kinds Go Up.

Berlin, Sept. 16. - The serious attention of all classes of the population is being directed to the rapid increase in the price of meat of all sorts. It is not only pork, the staple flesh food of the poor, that amounts in price, but yeal, mutton, and beef in all forms apparently are similarly affected. The general feeling is that the period of high prices has only begun, and that the coming autumn and winter will see prices which will make the consumption of the better kinds of flesh practically impossible for the families of the working classes.

According to statistics published at Stuttsgart from official sources, the increase in price during the last decade has been nearly 40 per cent. It is a poor comfort to a man with limited means to hear that this rapid rise is an international phenomenon and that in Vienna, Budapest, Paris and Rotterdam prices have risen correspondingly. From many parts of the country news comes of meetings passing energetic resolutions calling on the Government to open their frontiers, or at least to repeal some of the more drastic regulations dealing with the importation of meat and live stock.

It is not only the prices of meats which have risen so ominously. Similar complaints are heard about vegeables, especially potatoes, another staple dish of the poor. Milk is also rising in price. According to official he late Theophilus Poole, and had refigures which have appeared here the average weekly expenditure of a family of four persons of the middle classes on food has risen from 23.50 marks in January, 1911, to 26.10 marks in July of this year.

Owing to a small atendance, the meeting called by President Wakeling, of the East London Progressives, was postponed, and will be held on an advertised date next week. Little or no notice had been sent to the members of the association, which accounted for the small attendance.

In an informal manner the members present discussed several matters, the city hall sites especially being much in favor of the proposed site at the corner of Waterloo and Dundas streets, and the Eccles' property came in for second choice. The McCormick property was much too expensive, and other properties were out of the question altogether.

It seems that Horowitz, which is the man's correct name, came to London from Winnipeg, where he had been employed as a laborer. He left a wife and several children there. When he was arrested for assault Inspector Sanders received word that he had deserted his wife, and was looking him up.

Horowitz got wind of this, and left London, going to Windsor. A search there failed to reveal his whereabouts, and it is presumed that he has gone across the line.

Some money is due him from the Grand Trunk, where he was employed, and Inspector Sanders will endeavor to secure it for his wife in Winnipeg.

UNION-MADE CLOTHING

But Action Has Made Ours the Largest and Best Clothing Store in the City

IT IS EASY enough for any store to praise its own merchandise, and to judge by the printed utterances of some stores, one would imagine that theirs was the only clothing worth buying. It is not what a store says, however, but what it does that counts. You can't build a great business on a foundation of newspaper talk. YOU MUST PRODUCE THE GOODS.

For over fifty years we've produced the goods to back up every claim we ever made in our advertisements. We've produced the sort of clothing that has given thorough satisfaction, and because we make all of it ourselves we are able to sell it directly to the wearer without having to add the middleman's usual profit to our price, consequently, our prices are one-fourth to one-third less than those of any other store.

This is why our clothing business has become the greatest in Canada.

Our variety of new fall styles is immense, and we can please and fit any man's fancy and pocketbook.

Carbolic Acid. Dr. Drake submitted the report on the autopsy, which showed that death was due to carbolic acid poisoning The mouth, throat and stomach were badly burned. Mr. James McNaughton swore that while standing on the corner of Carling and Talbot streets he saw Schaefer reel and fall to the sidewalk. Naughton rushed up, and while Schaefer frothed at the mouth, it was thought that he was merely suffering from continuous intoxication. He was accordingly carried to the loft of the Walper House stables, the intention being to allow him to sleep off his con-dition. However, shortly afterward it was feared by Henry Hall and others that Schaefer would die, and the poognized that something was wrong, and drove directly to Victoria Hospital with Schaefer, who died shortly after being admitted. But the Water Coms. See No Good in Discussing Street Lighting Now.

TANGLE OVER WATER

Less Is Used for Street Watering Now That the Council Are Oiling the Streets of London.

The board of water commissioners, at a meeting held on Thursday afternoon, declined to meet the city council in a body to discuss the street lighting contract for 1912, but appointed Messrs. Pocock and Glaubitz a delegation to meet the conucil, if the gentlemen named so

It was the unanimous opinion of the board that discussion on their part on this subject was absolutely useless, as the decision of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission was final. The invitation had been received from the city council for the commissioners to attend the council session in a body. The invitation was indefinite as to time and place, Mr. J. H. Chapman pointed out, but for the sake of courtesy, more than to discuss business matters, Messrs. Pocock and Glaubitz were delegated with power to attend the session and deal with he situation as they saw fit.

Lights for School.

Manager Glaubitz had also a communication from the board of education, renuesting the water commissioners to install cluster lights in front of the Alex-andra school, to be lighted on the nights when the industrial classes are in ses

Mr. Glaubitz reported that the installation of two five-cluster lights would cost $160, and $60 for two of the two single lights. He was instructed to meet the poard of education and endeavor to have that body bear the cost of the posts and the installation, and half of the cost of power, as the public library and other institutions do.

Less Water Used.
City Clerk Baker sent a communication asking a reduction of $1,000 in the cost of water for street watering. This reduction had come about owing to the great area of streets which had been oiled during the year, but the commis-sion, through an oversight, had not been notified of the change, and were now asked to take some action in the mat-ter. The communication also stated that a greater decrease in the amount of water needed by the city may be looked for next year, in proportion to the num-ber of streets which will be oiled.

No Reduction Now.
Commissioner Chapman thought that oothing could be done at this season of the year. The letter relating to the re-duction, and which had not been received by the board, had been dated in March. and accordingly no allowance had been made for the reduction. Mr. Chapman was willing to recognize the change and take action from this time forward. After considerable discussion the mat-ter was left in Manager Glaubitz's hands, Industrial Education in London is Meeting With Great Success -Course Has Been Much Improved—A Small Increase in Fees Has Been Rendered Necessary.

At a special meeting of the board of education held yesterday afternoon the report of the industrial advisory committee was adopted as read by Chairman W. W. Gammage. In order to accommodate the number of pupils entered for the courses in the evening industrial classes, the committee decided to hold classes on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of each week. Last year there were classes on only three nights each week, but the addition of several other courses compelled the holding of classes on another night. The new courses added are building construction, shop mathematics, pattern making, millinery, and mathematics to prepare for the courses in mechanical and architectural drawing, which will be separ-

FEES INCREASED.

In view of the fact that the course has been enlarged the fees for the terms have been increased, and now are as follows: One night a week, 50 cents per month; $1.00 for three months fall term; $1.50 for four months spring term. Two or three nights a week, $1.00 per month; $2.50 for three months fall term; $3.00 for four months spring term. Four nights a week, $1.25 per month; $3.00 for three months fall term; $4.00 for four months spring term.

MORE TEACHERS NEEDED. Owing to the introduction of several new subjects, it will be necessary to employ additional teachers for the school, and also to install more equipment. A power wood-working plant will be added, as provided for in the original estimates, but the installation has been delayed on account of the lack of space. This difficulty has been removed by the renting of the old Colborne street school, the rental of which was fixed at $800 for the seven months' term, and the board of education will provide the lighting, heating and janitor. Miss Stewart, of Aurora, was appointed as director of household science in connection with the industrial classes, at a salary of $800 a year, and has commenced her duties. Part of Miss Stewart's salary will be paid by the Government in proportion to the time taken up with the evening classes. The salary of Principal Beal was increased $100 for the additional work done by him during the summer months preparing for the classes.

LITERATURE IS READY.

The literature for the evening classes has just been published, and will be distributed in all the factories of the city. Each firm has a supply of reply cards, and will give one to each employee. The registration for the night classes is now going on, and already a large number of last year's pupils have re-entered. The attendance at the day classes at present is 36.

A communication from the Deputy Minister of Education was read, stating that a grant from the Dominion Legislature to each province is expected soon for the support of the different industrial classes, and requesting that the estimates of the cost of the classes in London be sent to the department as early as possible, so that the proportions of the different schools may be allotted as soon as con-

Next year diplomas will be given to all the successful students so that they may be able to produce their qualifications when desired. Principal F. W. C. Inkster, that the grant of $125 per month towards the supervised playgrounds, be continued until the end of November, was adopted by the board. It is possible that the Y. M. C. A. will take over the supervision of the playgrounds for the balance of the season. Those present at yesterday's meeting were Chairman J. M. Gunn,
