To Discuss the Embarge.

London, May 4—(C. A. P.)—The Glasgow Telegram says that as a result of interviews with Sir Campbell-Bannerman and the president of the Board of Agriculture, a conference will be held in London on Thursday of next week, composed of representatives of English and Scottish agriculturat associations, municipal and harbor boards and chambers of commerce, at which a resolution calling for the removal of the restrictions on the importation of Canadian cattle will be presented.

But Premier Whitney Premptly Euchred It in the House.

Sir Oliver Mowat Once Said That Only Officers in Sympathy With the Government Could Carry Out Its Laws, and This Incident In the House Proves Him a Far-Seeing Statesman.

Toronto, May 4.—In the Legislature yesterday afternoon, D. Reed of Wentworth read what purported to be a newspaper summary of a circular sent out by the Fisheries Department to their overseers, informing them that it would be necessary for applications for dicenses to be endorsed by the Conservative member of the riding or the Conservative defeated candidate. After he had read the article the After he had read the article the Premier asked who signed the circular, and was told that it was signed by the Deputy Commissioner of Fish

This explanation did not satisfy Mr. McDougall, the impulsive Ottawa mem-ber, who said the Minister had not touched the point—had these men been instructed to receive the endorsement of the Conservative member or the de-feated Conservative candidate?

see the Conservative candidate?
Several members attempted to speak at once, and there was uproar on both sides, the Opposition professing to see an attempt at evasion. Meanwhile the Premier consulted with Dr. Reaume.
Hon. W. J. Hanna asked if the Deputy Minister had simply continued the practice of sending out these circulars, a practice inaugurated by the culars, a practice inaugurated by the late Government, because he had knowledge that similar circulars had moviedge that similar circulars had been sent out by other departments.

Premier Courts Publicity.

The Premier, however, wanted the matter cleared up. There was nothing like publicity. He understood that the Minister never gave any instructions to the Deputy to send out such a circular, and he would make it his busito the Deputy to send out such a circular, and he would make it his business to find out if there were officers in the employ of the Government who would endeavor to make political capital against the Government that keeps them in office.

made goods was up for second reading. He explained his bill, after which the Provincial Secretary said the bill went too far in providing that prison-made goods manufactured outside the Pro-vince be labeled. This was outside the jurisdiction of the Legislature, but he assured Mr. Preston that the Government was giving the question of prison-made goods its earnest consideration. In 1904 the total value of eration. In 1904 the total value of brooms manufactured at the Central Prison was $5,732, and the cost out-side of the free labor was $4,084. Mr. Han-na asked that the bill be withdrawn, as the Government was seeking a way to meet the objections to the present act.

Mr. Preston complied.
Another Bill Withdrawn. After a short discussion, Mr. Craw-ford's bill to compel the dehorning of cattle in their first year was with-

Evening Session.

At the evening session Mr. Downey's bill for the development of wood lots by exempting them from taxation was read a second time. He moved the second reading of his Assessment Act amendments, but Hon Mr. Hanna, in view of last, year's work, said it would be unwise to change the law without very careful consideration. Mr. Thompson's bill for the reduction of sheriff's fees was sent to the committee. Dr. Nesbitt's bill to amend the High Schools Act was read a second time, and his other bills, re. Assessment, stand for further consideration. Mr. Crawford withdrew his License Act amendments in view of the Hon. Four days passed, then signals of distress were flown, and inquiry revealed the fact that the crew had taken but one day's provisions with them. Volunteer crews started with relief and provisions, but found it impossible to reach the boat. The Dominion Fish Co's tug, McIntosh, with a volunteer crew, made a final and successful effort to reach the tuff. The famished crew was supplied with sufficient provisions to last for some days yet. A stiff gale is blowing still, and there is no hope that the ice-bound boat may reach port for a few days.

Body Found in Barn After Two Weeks

Cornwall, May 4.—Quite a sensation was caused by the discovery of the somewhat decomposed body of a man in a barn near Summerstown station, ewned by D. D. McDonald. The body was identified as that of John McGahey, who had been an invalid in the Hotel Dieu, Cornwall, for some time, and who left for home two weeks ago. He left the train at Summerstown and, it is supposed, was walking to his brother's home when he was taken ill and sought refuge in the barn.

DICKENS THE REFORMER.

The "Boz" Club of London th Greater recently celebrated the birthday of Charles Dickens, points out the London Advertiser. Judges, statesmen and diplomats of the first rank, as well as literary men, were present, and discussed Dickens' in-fluence on social reform. Lord James, of Heresford, seems to have voiced the general view of the meeting when he attributed to Dickens' writings the credit for many important reforms. Amongst them were the following:

1. Reformation of the poor laws and their administration. The needy who find a refuge in the free homes provided by the county or parish may even now not live exactly in luxury, but they are not likely to be hauled before the board, because, like poor little Oliver Twist, they timidly ask a little more skilly. The food is better and more abundant and the general treatment of these unfortunates is more bumane and sympathetic,

2. Proceedings at law have been simplified and made less tedious and expensive. The law's delay, which, according to Hamlet, was one of the ills of life in early Denmark as well as in modern England, no doubt is still noticeable, but no case of Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce now appears to support successive practitioners of the law and to drive successive generations of litigants to the insane asylum or the workhouse,

3. Improvements in education. Private boarding schools there are still, some doing good work, some not so good, but seldom a Dotheboys' Hall is found since the moral of Nicholas Nickelby souked into the British understanding. By the way, did you ever notice that the name of that school should be pronounced as four words, DO-THE-BOYS HALL ! No name in Dickens but conveys a meaning. Unhappily we have to admit that the system of education favored by Mr. Gradgrind, the hero of "Hard Times," still has its exponents, who think it the right thing to wear the nerves of little children in the Clifford's superb sensational scenic study of matters too advanced for melo-drama, plays the Grand totheir development. night at special prices of 25, 35 and

4. Imprisonment for debt has been abolished. In this matter, as well as in that of private boarding schools, Dickens drew from the deep well of his personal experience. Not that he personally saffered imprisonment, but for a considerable time, perhaps two years, when Charles was ten to twelve years old, his father, John Dickens, lived as debtor in the Marshalsea Prison, and part of that time his family lived there with him. The inimitable descriptions of prison life found in David Copperfield, Litrit, Pickwick Papers, etc., were not imagination nor caricature, and were, without doubt, largely to be esting and exciting story of the age. thanked for the abolition of this penalty for poverty. 5. Trained nurses have superseded the old-time abominations, of which Sairy Gamp and Betsy Prig were types. Martin Chuzzlewitt was written in 1843-44. It needed only the work of Florence Nightingale and her corps of helpers in the Crimean war, ten years later, to show the world a more excellent way to make the profession fashionable. Now every nice young lady of a philanthropic spirit and with naught else pressing takes to the business of trained nurse, and it is a real pleasare to be sick when one can afford it. Some might even consider it a pluty to once in a while furnish in propria persona an interesting and instructive "case" for young and good-looking students of the art. Seriously, nursing has been rescued from quackery and made a noble profession, adorned by many fine minds and many loving and sympathetic hearts.

. 6. Regulation of child labor. During his father's imprisonment little Charles worked in Lamert's blacking factory. This establishment appears in David Copperfield, which in spirit, if not in detail, is an autobiography, as that of Murdstone & Gribby, wine merchants. The heartbreaking picture of David's state of mind while working in this place is less pathetic than the true story of Charels Dickens' own childish w at this period. Yet the novel excited that just sympathy which produced the legislation against child

7. The girls now have a fair chance. A London paper suggests that Mr. Weller's advice to his son Sam, "Bevare of vidders," has notably reduced the number of re-marriages of women, the percentage of such re-marriages having fallen off one-fourth in the last 25 years. Whether or not this is in the nature of true reform might be left for decision to a jury of bachelor girls,

To put the braxe on the wagon going down the hill is a help to the horse, when the wagon is heavily loaded. But what driver would think of applying the brake to a loaded wagon going up hill? If he did, his sensible horses would probably balk. Many a man is in the condition of pulling a load-up hill with the brake set against him. When his stomach is cut of order, and the allied organs of digestion and nutrition impaired in their functions, a friction is set up which has to be overcome in addition to the performance of daily duties. A foul stomach makes a foggy brain, and the man with a disordered stomach has often to grope his way through the day's business like a man in a fog. He forgets appointments. Problems seem presented to his mind "wrong end to." This condition is entirely remedied by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It puts the stomach and digestive and putritive system into a condition of perfect health, and gives a clear brain, a steady hand and a light step for the day's duties. When constipation clogs the channels of that disastrous disease.

Marconi Talks of Wireless Message Around the World—Absolute Cer-tainty of Ocean Wireless.

William Marconi's head offices the Royal Exchange and around the corner from the Bank of England, are a busy place, and any sight-seer who strayed in just to see what the head-busy place, and any sight-seer who strayed in just to see what the head-quæters of wireless telegraphy looked like would find himself much in the way of messenger boys, clerks, mechanical experts and administrative officials, all moving about as if electricity were in the air. The guiding spirit of the establishment has a plain, dingy little room which tells the story that its occupant is too busy with one of the biggest ideas of the century to bother himself about appearance.

Chevalier Marconi is rarely interviewed, partly because he is always desperately busy, and doesn't care to talk, and partly because, whenever you go to see him, the chances are ten to one that he is somewhere else. I caught him by appointment just as he was preparing to dash off for his native Italy for a few days. Then he will turn up at his station away down in Cornwall, and then, it seems, he is to make another flying trip to the United States to take another big step—per, haps almost the last—toward the complete establishment of wireless telegraphy across the Atlantic. He has never been willing to set any date for this feat, and I wanted to see if I could not pin him down to one, writes C. B. to the Toronto Globe.

"Is it absolutely certain," I asked, "that we are about to have wireless telegraphy across the ocean established on a commercial basis?"

"Absolutely certain," said Mr. Marconi, chopping his words off as if there were no more to be said on the subject.

"Aren't you prepared now to say exactly when?"

"Probably this year; maybe in a month. "You see, there are fourteen cable lines, and if one of them breaks down there are the others to fall back on. With us there is only one system, and if there is any breakdown people will say they always knew the plan was not practicable. I can send a message clear across the Atlantic now, but I want to effect certain improvements and alterations to insure success. actly when?

the Atlantic at ten cents a word in-stead of twenty-five, and press mes-sages at five cents instead of ten, and we shall probably get faster transmiswe shall probably get faster transmission than at present."

"Then what?"
"I want to see what the Pacific will do, and to experiment with currents around the earth. There are many new conditions that would have to be made and many obstacles removed before we can send a message clear around the earth."

earth." earth."

"And are you going to enable us to talk back and forth across the Atlantic without wires? What is the prospects for ocean telephones?"

"I do not see anything in it at present. You will be able to telegraph faster than you can talk, so it would laster than you can talk, so it would not pay, apparently, to work at the changes necessary to effect long-distance telephoning without wires."

"Do you mean you have given up long-distance wireless telephoning as a bad job?"

"No, no; I may take it up again if it becomes amparent that there are pos-

No, no; I may take it up again It it becomes apparent that there are possibilities in it. At present I have my hands full with experiments at the station in Cornwall and with administrative work here. Our greatest distance so far is 3,000 miles, from Cape Cod to Cornwall, and 3,200 from shore to vessel."

"Have you anything up your sleeve?"

"Have you anything up your sleeve?"
At this point Mr. Marconi's somewhat stern face was permitted to relax a little, and he smiled.
"I always have something up my sleeve, he said. "I had up my sleeve for six months the agreement we have just made with the British Government for the sending of mesages to ships anywhere on the Atlantic from any post-office in England. We have such an agreement with the Western Union in the United States, but the facilities there seem to be hardly as good as they are in England."

The honors showered upon him by the nations of the earth do not appear to have turned Marconi's head in the

The honors showered upon him by the nations of the earth do not appear to have turned Marcon's head in the least. He is simple, direct and straightforward, and gives one the impression that he is too much occupied with important matters to concern himself about trying to make an impression. Hard work, however, is beginning to tell on him, and, although he will be only 26 on the 25th of next April, he looks near 35. His marriage to the Hon. Beatiste O'Brien wil probably bring about a considerable change in his work. Last year he traveled nearly 49.000 miles—mostly back and forth between England and America—but he can be expected to be a bit more stationary hereafter.

Mr. Marconi is as little given to writing about his discoveries as he is to talking of them, and has repeatedly refused glittering offers from editors and publishers. He says writing is a slow and difficult business for him. An invitation from the Royal Society, however, is not to be overlooked, and consequently the inventor has been devoting a good deal of his time of late to a paper containing his first complete and careful account of his work, which he is to read before some of the chief British scientists at the request of the Royal Society.

The British Bathing Fallacy.

The British Bathing Fallacy.
One of the earliest impressions of an American in London is that Englishmen regard a bath as a luxury, and not as a matter of course—a luxury to be paid for. At the hotel he has landed in he must pay two shillings for a warm bath. And his conclusion is that the Englishmen, in spite of his traditional tub, is not a clean man. He cannot afford to be clean in a London hotel. Two warm baths a day. That is the American's average. Four shillings. He has a wife and a son and daughter. Sixteen shillings a day. Reckon out the expense and you will find that this man must pay about $300 a year to keep himself and his family clean. The American visitor has figured out that at least twelve calls on that bath are made every day. Nine hundred a year profit from a bathroom that certainly did not cost £900 in the building,—London Chronicle.

JAPANESE ART.

ne Japanese are a wonderful people, if arts and crafts have long been the iration of the world. Not only do produce the most exquisite creations lets. and in metal and porcelain, but they even take living animals and plants and by sheer persistence cause them to alter their natural ahape and growth. Any effort to paint the petals of the lily or add fragrance to the rose can only be as futile as are the attempts so often rose can only be as futile as are the attempts so often made to imitate the glow of health on the human skin by the use of paints and cosmetics. The color of the complexion is due to a pigment on the inside of the skin and its glow of bloom are due to the pure red blood which fills its vessels. Any attempt to imitate this color by applications on the outside simply give a dull dead surface, and their continued use produces a thickening of the outer layer causing the complexion to assume that "muddy" look which is so disfiguring.

Nature never intended that women should suffer from physical disabilities at certain periods, and too often women feel that the great distress they suffer at these periods is only natural. The fact is the women who live in the open air and do physical labor are little troubled by the pains and ills that our delicate, house-born women suffer. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a womanly tonic that has sold more largely in the United States than any other compound prescribed only for the diseases of women. Dr. E. V. Pierce, the well-known specialist, is chief of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. This wonderful remedy therefore stands absolutely alone as the only one possessed of such remarkable curative properties.

It is a medicine which has stood the test of a third of a century, and numbers its cures by the thousands. It is a perfectly safe tonic in any condition of the system, being entirely vegetable.

A Cavalry Reform.

Gen. Baden-Powell, the inspectorgeneral of cavalry of the British army, has just inaugurated a reform which is so sensible that it deserves attention.
Until now cavalry recruits on joining have been put through a course of rough riding in the riding schools, which has not only done much to dishearten them, and thereby retarded their training, but which has quite often broken their spirit. Baden-Powell has abolished this method. He has arranged that the recruit is to be introduced to his horse under comfortable conditions, calculated to inspire confidence, and that his powers as a rider should be developed gradually. Under the new plan the recruit is sent out into the field on a quiet mount, and rides about as he pleases, with and without a saddle. He is allowed to familiarize himself with the animal before any serious riding takes place, and thus acquires, not only confidence, but also a liking and interest for his work. Afterwards the pollshing werk Gen. Baden-Powell, the inspector but also a liking and interest for his work. Afterwards the polishing werk takes place in the riding school, but it has been shorn of most of the bru-tality and roughness by which it was formerly characterized, and which was foolishly regarded by the old-fashion-ed riding masters as indispensable to proper instruction proper instruction.

The Greatest Doctor.

A story is told of an Englishman who had occasion for a doctor while staying in Pekin, says the Birmingham, England, Post. "Sing Loo, gleatest doctor," said his servant; "he saves my lifee once." "Really?" queried the Englishman. "Yes, me tellible awful," was the reply; "me callee in another doctor. He givee me medicine; me velly, velly bad. Me callee in another doctor. He came, and give me more medicine, make me velly, velly badder. Me callee in Sing Loo. He no some. He savee my lifee." some. He savee my lifee."

which has been closed to the public for many years, is to be reopened on April 1—most appropriate of days! The supposed ghost is that of Queen Catherine, who was confined in an ad-joining chamber prior to her removal to Sion House and afterwards to the Tower and the scaffold. After the charges against her honor had been de-clared proved. Henry VII. repaired to charges against her honor had been de-clared proved, Henry VII. repaired to the chapel before making his departure from the palace. When he was engag-ed in his devotions, so the story runs, Queen Oatherine escaped from her apartments, and rushed along the Haunted Gallery to seek an interview with the King. Before she reached the door leading into the chapel, however, the guards seized her and conveyed her back to her apartments, screaming and back to her apartments, screaming and back to her apartments, screaming and struggling.

On several occasions since then, it is stated, a female form, dressed in white, has been seen after nightfall coming along the Haunted Gallery towards the door leading to the Royal pew, and just as it reached the door it has been observed to rush back.

pew, and just as it reached the door it has been observed to rush back again, uttering piercing shrieks, until it passed through a door at the end of the gallery.

Circumstantial stories of uncanny disturbances have been related. Mrs. Cavendish Boyle, a lady who lived it apartments at Hampton Court Palace adjoining the Haunted Gallery some time ago, records that once in the midapartments at Hampton Court Palace adjoining the Haunted Gallery some time ago, records that once in the middle of the night she was suddenly startled out of her sleep by loud shrieking proceeding from the direction of the gallery. Nothing was said about the matter at the time, but the story subsequently received strong confirmation when Lady Eastlake, who had stayed with Mrs. Boyle several times, mentioned that she also had heard piercing tioned that she also had heard piercing shrieks coming from the same direction in the dead of the night.

Mrs. Barclay, who occupied apartments over the Haunted Gallery, also was once awakened in the middle of the night by a domestic, who declared that a screaming apparition had snatched the pillow from under her head, and then disappeared. In consequence of this and other disturbances, the lady had to leave the apartments, and later residents in the neighborhood of the Haunted Gallery gave up their apartments for the same reason.

HONORED

On Tuesday evening, May 2nd, ery pleasant event took place at St. Joseph's Hospital, when an informal reception was held in honor of Dr. J. L. Bray, who recently received from the Queen's University, Kingston, the honorary title of Doctor of

The Nurses' Lecture Room was handsomely decorated for the occasion, with the university colors, together with a profusion of carnations, palms and lilies. A delightful little program of high class music, vocal and instrumental, was rendered by young ladies of the Ursuline Academy, at the termination of which one of the nuns came forward and read an address, to which the Doctor feelingly replied. After the singing of God Save the King, all repaired to the dining hall, which was also tastefully decorated with flowers and bunting, red, yellow and blue, and where a sumptuous banquet was prepared.

NEW CHURCH

The corner stone of the new Methodist church at the corner of the 7th concession and the Bearline, Dover Township, was laid yesterday afteracon. There were three stones laid. Chas. Austin laid one, Mrs. Parish another, and Miss Dr. Agar the third. Afterwards those present adjourned to the Foresters Hall, where they were addressed by ministers and laymen until supper was announced, and a concert in the same hall wound up the proceedings. This was one of the most successful and fraternal functions ever enjoyed in this section, both the Methodist and the Presbyterian ministers fraternized on the platform and at the supper table.

The church is situated in the Hind settlement. It will be a handsome brick structure. About two-thirds of the required amount is already secured. The church will cost about $2,500.

CLANCY MISSED

In the Toronto Globe of yesterday there was a pen picture of the fighting forces of the opposition in the Dominion Parliament, and considerable regret was expressed over the absence of Mr. Clancy. Speaking of Mr. Foster, it was said:

"And his readiness leaves little of the transient criticism to be done by Mr. Ingram, Mr. Blain or Mr. George Taylor, while the House is the more enabled to do without Mr. Clancy. Mr. Foster never fails to rise to an occasion when little evidence leaves room for inhuendo and the smarting arrows of his sareasm."

We, the undersigned, have known for J. Chency for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

And later in the same article this is stated:

"The defeat of Mr. Clancy, the death of Mr. E. F. Clarke, and the comparative silence of Mr. David Henderson, Mr. R. Blain and Mr. Samuel Barker, make a noticeable change in the opposition debating forces."

A GOOD DITIZEN

Dr. William H. Tye, one of Chatham's brightest young sons, who has been practicing medicine in the Maple City for some years, left Tuesday evening for Kansas City, Mo, where he will in future reside, having secured a lucrative practice.

Dr. Tye was born in Chatham, and during his residence here he has met with a good measure of success. He has been a valuable citizen, taking an interest in everything that would benefit the city. He served a term at the City Council Board and conducted himself at the meetings in a creditable manner. He was an ardent supporter of all athletic sports and was always ready and willing to assist in advancing the name of Chatham in this respect.

Dr. Tye has been a successful and popular practitioner in Chatham. He first started as a member of the firm of Hall & Tye, and later on conducted a practice of his own. He was the physician of the local lodge of Maccabees, who expressed their regret at his leaving Chatham and also presented him with a goldmounted fountain pen.

Dr. Tye's departure from Chatham is very much regretted by his large circle of Chatham friends, but they all predict for him a happy and prosperous future in his new home. Dr. Tye's practice has been purchased by Drs. Agar & Agar, formerly of Dover.

New York could tell how this cannot be done now.

A SUGGESTION.

The Letter-Box

Mr. Peate, C. P. R. night operator, had a narrow escape from drowning, it is reported. Tuesday he went fishing with a companion and fell off a log. The water was wet and deep, and he was so long in coming up that his companion jumped in after him. Peate came up and his friend was gone. He went down and after some difficulty located the friend and brought him back to terra firms and the sunshine. Editor Planet: Sir,—Would it not be a good plan instead of buying bricks for market purposes during the erection of our new market to reut the curling rink from the curling club for this purpose.

The members of this club are all business men and I think would be glad to rent this building to the city providing it was kept clean and not destroyed.

The building is idle and is conveniently located.

Yours truly,

CITIZEN.

Note—This matter was taken up one big fellow that weighed 40 lbs. by the Property committee, but as The carp are put in ponds and sold the creek bridge on William street and the street will be closed while a new pavement is being laid, the Council thought that the renting of the rink was not advisable.-Editor,

HERO OF RORKE'S DRIFT.

How Sergeant Henry Hook Won the Victoria Cross-Decorated on Field of Action.

The Lendon Daily Graphic publishes

The Lendon Daily Graphic publishes the following:

The death is announced of Sergeant Henry Hook, V. C., one of the few survivors of Rorke's Drift, who was recently compelled by ill-health to retire from his position as an attendant at the British Museum. Here he had been for twenty years an unobrusive but familiar figure to every frequenter of the reading room. A Daily Graphic representative once had an interesting chat with him there about that memorable day at Rorke's Drift in 1879. He said that the most important particular in connection with the thing was that he was the only man who got the V. C. on the spot where it had been won.

"Lord Wolseley gave it me," he said, "on August 3rd, within seven or eight hundred yards of the hospital."

The Zulus had got close up to the hospital, and the defenders had to get through one partition after another, breaking holes through.

through one partition after another, breaking holes through.
"In the second room," said Hook, "there were several patients; and for a few minutes I was the only fighting man there. A man of the 24th came to me from another room with a wound in his arm. I tied it up. Then John Williams came in from another room and made a hole in the partition, and we got the sick through that. While he iwas doing it the Zulus smashed the door open and tried to get in. So I stood at the side of it, and shot at them and bayoneted them as they tried to get in. But they could only get in one at a time, and I killed them as they came in. One Zulu got hold of my rifle and tried to drag it away. But I slipped in a cartridge—the muzzle was against his breast—and so he fell dead. When all the sick were out but one, who couldn't move, having a broken leg. I went through the hole, too, dragging him after me. I broke his leg again doing that. Then I stood at the other side of that hole, as before, while Williams made another hole into the next room. And so at last Williams and I get them all through, one hole after another, and ther the window into the outer defences. And there we stopped with the rest during the Zulu attack."

Trouble is about the only thing some people can borrow without security. Don't get blue over small matters: the large ones take care of themselves. Poor relations never look so poor as they do when they ride in a carriage

Old Trees.

An old yew tree stands in the church-yard at Forlangal, in Perthshire, which De Candolle, nearly a century ago, proved to the satisfaction of botanists to be twenty-five centuries old, and another is still standing at Hedsor, in Buclas, which is 3,240 years old. How De Candolle arrived at an apparently correct estimate of the enormous age of these living trees is a simple thing, and the principle is doubtless well known theday to all. The yew, like, most other trees, adds one line about the tenth of an inch to its circumference each year. But the oldest living thing in the world to-day, so far as known, is a cypress tree in Chapultepec, Mexico, that is, seen well as the same of the a cypress tree in Chapultepec, Mexico, that is 6,260 years old—New York Tribune.

Flag Commander at the Nore.

Commander W. Lumsden, who has just taken up his appointment as Flag Commander to the Commander-In-Chief at the Nore. Sir Hugo Pearson, says The London Star, is a promising officer in the navy. He was present at the bombardment of Alexandría, where he was slightly wounded, and took part in the Egyptian war. He is the eldest surviving son of Mr. Henry Lumsden of Pitcaple Castle, Aberdeen. Like so many naval officers, he is married to an Australian, whom he met when he was in command of the Royal Arthur, the flagship of the Australian Squadron. She is a Melbourne girl, daughter of Sir Thomas Fitzgerald, the most famous surgeons under the Southern Cross Flag Commander at the Nore.

ATTRACTS SCIENTISTS

THE "RADIUM BABY," DAUGHTER OF M. AND MME. CURIE.

First Child That Has Book Knows of Scientific Parentage Who Has Been Born Under Conditions Entirely Favorable to Transmitting and Increasing That Which Is By Divine Right Her Heritage.

The growth and development of a little girl in Paris is attracting the attention of the scientists of all Europe. It is the "radium baby" the daughter of M. and Mme. Curle.

The "radium baby" has now grown into a grave faced and quite awkward child of 7. Now, all of a sudden, she is remembered as to the possibilities which may be held for her, in environment and heredity.

It is pointed out that she is the first child that has been known of scientific parentage who has been born under conditions entirely favorable to transmitting and increasing that which is by divine right her heritage. Other children have had scientists for fathers, but a scientific mother, at least one who is truly trained and devoted to her profession, has been considered a wild improbability, the idea of which was smile provoking.

Now that Mme. Curie has changed the smile to the world's gaze of astonishment and admiration, the wise ones are pointing to the great achievements which may reasonably be expected of this little girl se doubly favored by heredity.

this little girl se doubly favored by heredity.

Mme. Curle herself had a scientist for a father. She also had the advantage of environment. The father, who was professor of physics in the University of Warsaw, was too poor to keep an assistant, and, being fathfully devoted to science and devotedly attached to his little girl, kept her with him by teaching her how to clean bottless and tubes after each experiment. She soon acquired a knowledge of the uses of the various chemicals and utensils needed for different experiments, and could describe the processes utensils needed for different ments, and could describe the processes ments, and could describe the processes pupils.

Fond as he was of her, her father never dreamed of her future solentific career. It was not long, however, before the students who saw the little girl with her enormous apron wrapped about her, and who handled the delicate apparatus with the touch of a lover, recognized the fact that she was saturated with science to her finger tips.

They began to call her "little pro-fesserovna."

To-day the "professerovna's" bally doubles, or triples, her mother's gifts, both of heredity and association. She inherits the scientific mind of three both of heredity and association. She inherits the scientific mind of three ancestors. She has had her tendencies strengthened by the most wonderful of prenatal influences. As to associations, she sleeps, and wakes, and plays, and studies in a world of science. She is never away from her father and mother. Her baby ears and her keem little mind already follow the most intricately scientific discussion of the composite rays emitted from radium. In the little home in the suburbs of Paris in which the family lives the quietest of lives, there is no greater or more wild dissipation than a romp with the little daughter, or a bicycle ride in which she is the principal participant. There comes no greater delight to the father through the day of scientific experiments which he loves than that early hour before 7 in the morning when the "baby" wakes to receive from him her arithmetic lesson. That it is one which would give a dizzy feeling to the most advanced high That it is one which would give a dizzy feeling to the most advanced high school boy there is no question. Already the little maid can tell most men more than they will ever know about practical chemistry. Already test tubes and retorts have become her playthings.

Diaythings.

To be sure the "radium baby" has a doll, which is noted for a forlorn something which she wished to know all about.

Before the child's birth the mother was in the midst of the long series of experiment which led to the radium discovery. Most of her time was spent in the laboratory in the Rue Lhomond, where all of their important discoveries have been made. At the same time, to help in the struggle with expense which was all the time besetting the young couple, she was lecturing and giving experiments at a young women's college. It is probable that in the history of the world there was never an influence of prenatal character that was of a more profound and absorbing quality.

Is it any wonder that the great scientists who are nearing, and yet never quite reaching, the goal of some of the world's greatest problems, look upon this baby as the one of the next generation who may some day hold the coveted key in her hand?

APPRECIATION OF THE GREAT CRAFTSMAN AND SOCIALIST.

His Fame in Literature Will Be Aristecratic in Two Distinct Respects-An Anomalous Fact When the Demecratic Nature of His Literary Ideals is Considered-His Work in Making Common Things Beautiful.

Nine years have passed since Wilham Morris' death, and it is not per-haps overbold to predict the way in which he will come to be regarded by the new generations which must pass judgment on the old reputations. It is already sufficiently evident that his fame in literature will be aristocratic both as regards the restricted limits of its scope and as regards the refine-ment of taste which the appreciation ment of taste which the appreciation of his prose and verse demands. This fact is in itself anomalous, when we consider the democratic nature of Morris' literary ideals. Then as regards art, we must recognize the fact that his significance lay chiefly in the impetus which he gave towards the creation of beautiful things, and towards a healthler conception of the part which heauty should play in the every a healthier conception of the part-which beauty should play in the every-day life of the people. He was not, apart from literature, in any high sense a creative artist, but an inspired and zealous craftsman, with strong and often sane convictions, which he had force enough to impress upon his gen-eration.

What interests one most deeply in Morris is the ease and mastery with which he passed continually from one absorbing occupation to another, and therewithal the unity of purpose and the rugged sincerity which underlay this apparent diversity. We know him first as a boy at Mariborough College whatting his curiestly on the Romer first as a boy at Mariborough College whetting his curiosity on the Roman and pre-Celtic remains of that district, and gathering those impressions of natural beauty which pass like a gleaming thread through the prose and verse of his maturer years. Oxford, about whose grey towers something still lingered of the enchantment of the middle ages, stimulated his love of architectural beauty, a love that was deepened until it became a passion by his journeys on foot among the Gothic cathedrals of northern France. Oxford gave him, too, the inspiration of a kindred spirit, his life-long friend and associate in all his labors, Burne-Jones. sociate in all his labors, Burne-Jones. Then followed the comparatively brief infatuation for Rossetti, who was old enough and emperious enough to become the master spirit of that early group. At Rossetti's instance and under his inspiring yet erratic guidance Morris for several years strove loyally to gain a mastery in painting. To this end he abandoned his chosen profession of architecture, but for the first and last time in his life he was forced to acknowledge himself beaten. However, with Morris every experience was turned to ultimate advantage, and even this painting venture can scarcely be considered as a false start, for it gave him a securer mastery of detail and a surer Then followed the comparatively brief securer mastery of detail and a surer sense of color in the decorative work of sense of color in the decorative work of later years. Already he had given evidence of original power and exceptional facility in both prose and verse, and it must certainly have puzzled his friends to know the precise direction that his creative energy would take. The furnishing of the Red House at Upton at a time when the art of decoration had sunk to its lowest ebb of cheap or pretentious yulgarity presented proportions.

of JUSS acres. They are found in Abeau sand carbon counters and represent the beds of natural basins now nearly dry. The lakes containing so dium, sulphate have an area of 700 acres, with an average depth of about two feet, which means a holding of 400,000 tons of soda.

get really poor. It was to the peculiar union of the ideal and the practical in his nature that his success in the fields oh which he ventured is due." In the intervals of this exacting yet joyous labor at various handicrafts, which embraced, apart from the general management of the business, in-numerable experiments in dyeing, weav-ing, embroidery and stained glass, Mor-ris found time to produce poetry which in its extent and in its strikingly orig-inal quality takes high rank in a period when poetry was both abundant and powerful. These poems can never be in an age not wholly alive to poetry, pop-ular, nor in an age not wholly dead to poetry can they be neglected. Two things especially command attention in Morris' poetical work: first, the devout and racy mediaevalism of the early pieces, and, secondly, in his greater period, the story-telling quality. All modern attempts in the mediaeval maneral management of the business, inmodern attempts in the mediaeval manner must perforce be factitious, and in his poetry no more than in his decoration can it be said that Morris recapture ed quite the spirit of the middle ages. But the inspiration which he drew from the thirteenth century and from the art already tinged with self-consciousart already tinged with self-conscious-ness of Chaucer's century was more vital and unaffectedly genuine than in the case of any other author in a per-iod of mediaeval worship, both sham and sincere. His narrative poems, which contain almost all the really great stories of the world, were a re-action, and a timely one, against the modern habit of sentimental introspec-tion and soul forture which Morris se tion and soul torture, which Morris so heartily loathed. Prolix these poems doubtless are, and deficient in consequence in the intensity which strikes in tragic flashes from the pages of many a lesser poet. But Morris never wrought without a purpose, and the dearth in his poems of those splendidly isolated phrases which are dear to the quoter's heart was part of this conscious purpose. phrases which are dear to the quoter's heart was part of this conscious purpose. He felt that modern poetry had become too literary, and that the skill of the modern poet was devoted to the over-elaboration of individual passages, with a consequent loss of spontaneity, and with a frequent sacrifice of that unity of impression which a perfect poem, like a perfect picture, should convey. Morris is not, therefore, a poet vey. Morris is not, therefore, a poet of purple patches. Although never a careless artist I am convinced that he careless artist I am convinced that he would have preferred to lapse into occasional roughness and naive incoherence rather than produce a phrase so redolent of literature as, for example, Tennyson's "Laborious orient ivory sphere in sphere."

Discussion of Morris' poetry, to be wholly satisfactory, cannot fail to deal with some of the question that I have touched upon, and Miss Cary's treatment of Morris' poetry gladees off the surface of the subject. However, she never fails to interest us, and her estimate of Morris in his many capacities is far from superficial. In conclusion is far from superficial. In conclusion I may say that I do not know any book more likely to stimulate an inter est in Morris, or more reliable in the picture which it presents of this many-sided man.—Prof. Pelham Edgar, in To-ronto Globe.

MORE DEADLY THAN FAMINE.

Neglected catarrh sooner or later causes consumption, which destroys more human beings than famine and war combined. The way "Catarrhozone" cures catarrh is very simple; it first kills the germs that cause the irritation; then by soothing away the congestion and inflammation it cures the discharge, hawking and dropping in the throat. "I suffered so continually from masal catarrh," writes Ernest R. Dakin, of Rosemont, "that I scarcely knew what it was to be free from headache, and pain over the eyes. Catarrhozone relieved me at once and made a thorough cure." No other remedy ourses like "Catarrhozone"—try it for your next cold.

This better to be fearried away by MORE DEADLY THAN FAMINE.

It is better to be carried away by enthusiasm than by a patrol wagon.

Ottawa, May 3.—W. F. Maclean wanted the Telephone Committee to refer the evidence they had taken to the House and deal with the subject. It was, however, decided not to do so until the Bell people and the rallway companies had been heard.

Mr. Winnield, manager of the Nova Scotia Telephone Co, was examined at the Telephone Committee yesterday. He said that there was a telephone to every 74 persons in the Province. There were about 30-companies operating in the Province. The Nova Scotia Telephone Co, was about 18 years old. It had about 3,260 instruments, and its central was independent of the Bell company. It was paying six per cent, dividend and adding $10,000 to reserve fund. The farmers in Nova Scotia did not use telephones. The company tried the experiment at Pictou. Some twelve farmers joined together to pay for one telephone, and the company, finding it was giving a whole district telephone service for some $60, gave it up. The farmers could maintain their own service more cheaply. In reply to Johnston (Cape Breton), the witness said that the Bell could maintain their own service more cheapty. In reply to Johnston (Cape Breton), the witness said that the Bell company held 14 per cent. of the stock of the Nova Scotia Telephone Co., and had two directors on a board of seven. The Provincial Government controls the rates in Nova Scotia the rates in Nova Scotia.

A Pathetic Spectacle.

Ottawa, May 4.—Yesterday first came the routine of the House. Petitions were presented; a few prefunctory questions were answered in equally prefunctory manner, and a hush fell ever the crowded chamber as the Prime Minister rose before the orders of the day were called.

Sir Wilfrid stood with bent head for upwards of a minute. The little bit of paper bearing the news—news that he was to communicate to the House—trembled in shaking fingers. Emetion overcame him, and a stiffed sob from the Fremier sounded through the chamber. Then he overcame his feelings, and in a voice hardly audible, said a few werds regarding the dead Minister. It was a scene pathetic in its humanness—this strong man ef the Government weeping for his dead friend.

in New Brunswick.

Ottawa, May 4.—An extensive rural telephone system in New Brunswick was described before the Telephone Committee yesterday morning by Dr. Ross of Florenceville, N. S. It is called the Union Telephone Co., and is located in the counties of Victoria, Carleton and York, and comprises 360 miles of rural line and over 200 subscribers. It is worked on the party line system, a party line in one case comprising 26 telephones. He estimated the cost of such a rural line at $140, including instruments, and allowing ed the cost of such a rural line at $140, including instruments, and allowing two telephones per mile, and that could be worked to the extent of 26 lines by a signal system, without manual labor for exchange. Subscribers on once branch, largely patronized by business or lumber men, pay $25 a year, and for that have a right to use the whole line of sixty miles. Another branch of this system serves farmers, and they pay $15 for a line with a metallic circuit, or $12 fer a single wire. Subscribers have free use over the line they are on, and are very anxious to securiphones.

President Sise to Testify. President Sise to Testify.

It was decided to summon President C. F. Sise of the Bell Telephone Co. and General Manager C. M. Hays of the Grank Trunk and General Manager McNicoll of the C. P. R., to be examined on Tuesday next respecting the monopoly agreement between the railways and the Bell company.

The committee decided to visit Peterbore' in a body and inspect the new autematic telephone system there should the local company extend an invitation.

EMPLOYERS WANT TROOPS!

Violence Decreases in Chicago — Uni-formed Police Were Effective.

formed Police Were Effective.

Chicago, May 4.—With the employers demanding the protection of state troops to permit them to lawfully conduct their business, there was a marked decrease in the number of riots and acts of violence committed yesterday. No wagens guarded by uniformed policemen were interferred with and the number of those protected by private detectives and negroes which were attacked were small as compared with the previous day.

Mayor Dunne is strongly opposed to the idea of bringing troops to the city and says he has not yet exhausted all his resources.

T.C. Carlson, who has had charge of the auto trucks for Moatgomery, ward & Co., where the strike first started, was probably fatally injured in front of the Teamsters' Union headquarters yesterday by a brick thrown from a window.

The first rifle shot fired during the teamsters' strike went whizzing through a crowded thoroughfare yesterday. The shot was fired by a guard on'a wagon of the United Express Co. but no one was hit.

Wheat Shipments Heavy.

Montreal, May 4.—The season of inland navigation has opened with a very fair amount of Canadian grain on its way to tide-water. The first cargo, consisting of $1,000 bushels of wheat from Fort William, arrived in port yesterday. This will go out on the first steamships leaving for British ports. Grain men estimate that there is now affout some three-quarters of a million bushels of wheat between Fort William and Montreal.

GOOD RECORD

Roy C. Bensen, son of School Trusee W. H. Bensen, was highly sucpessful at the recent third year exminations in arts at McMaster University. The results were published yesterday in the Globe, Mr. Bensen carried off first class honors in four subjects and second class in three. This is a remarkably good showing. In both Latin and Greek Mr. Bensen was the only one to obtain first class honors.

RECTOR'S THANKS

Before commencing his sermon or Sunday morning, the Rev. Mr. Hodgns, rector of Holy Trinity Church, thanked the congregation for the kind manner in which he had been received in the parish, and also expressed his appreciation of the serpressed his appreciation of the services on Easter day, and the liberal response to the request of the church wardens, over $300 having been placed on the offertory plates. He announced that there would be two celebrations of the Holy Communion every month, on the first Sunday at 11 o'clock and on the third Sunday at 8 a.m. The sacrament of holy baptism will be administered on the last Sunday in the month at 4 p.m., and at other times when arranged for.

Mr. Hodgins also asked the congre-

Mr. Hodgins also asked the congregation to avoid having Sunday funerals as much as possible, and to be regular in their attendance on the Means of Grace.

The rector is very strong in his stand for a reverential service, wishing to eliminate anything of a "stagey" nature. He had made sixty parochial visits and would traverse the whole parish by the end of May. He had met a gentleman who told the speaker that he would go to hear him preach. The rector said the the speaker that he would go to hear him preach. The rector said the gentleman would be disappointed, but would hear the Word preached in its simplicity. There were many aids in parish work, and he would work where he could.

aids in parish work, and he would work where he could.

In regard to ministering to the sick, he hoped the members would give him notice of them, and he would minister to them night or day. All the pastor wanted was the people to be loyal to him and the church, in the several auxiliaries, and he would be responsible for the rest.

Learn Dressmaking in Two Weeks

Wanted! Liadies to learn dress and mantle cutting in two weeks. Why spend from 6 to 9 months learning dressmaking in a shop, and then not know anything about cutting, when I can teach you everything from measuring to finish in the making of ladies' and children's garments in two weeks? I have taught over 500 girls in this way, and offer $25 to any one who, after having taken a course with me, can show me an article in dressmaking they can't cut, fit and put togethe not only the lining, but all the outer goods in coats, skirts, waists, wrappers, sleeves, in fact everything in dressmaking, and you may kest assured it is reliable, for you don't pay unless you are perfectly satisfied you know all. Charge for full course is now only $10, including one of the most perfect fitting systems in use, which I give free.

I will teach in Chatham from May 16th to May 29th. Hours from 8.30 to 5.

All wishing to learn, or for full
