CHAPTER I. The Soldiers of Fortune.

The front door of No. 9 Mortimer Terrace, Regent's Park, shut with a bang that was muffled in the fog which had descended upon the metropolis in the early morning of November 14, 1907, and two dejected-looking men made their way down the little box-bordered path and beneath the dripping branches to the garden gate. Their coats were buttoned tightly up over their evening dress, for the early air of a November morning is apt to strike chill to those whose night hours have been spent in the heated atmosphere of the card room. At the end of the terrace, where it joins the outer circle of the Park, the men stopped.

"I believe he's playing the same game as we are," one of them said sourly as he puffed angrily at his cigar, which had gone out.

The other gave a little laugh. "Looks like it. A hundred and ten fifty last night, a hundred and ten Thursday and eighty-four to-night. If I hadn't had that 'flush' at the end it would have been a good deal more. I can't say, Eddie, that I congratulate you on your 'pigeon.' You used to be able to pick 'em out better than this."

"There's nothing like feeding your bird up before you pluck him, Vivian, and it's best to—"

"Make sure that he isn't a crow, eh?"

The elder man shivered slightly, and having relit his cigar, held out his hand.

"Well—it's the fortune of war, anyway. I leave you here, don't I? I'll pick up a stray cab at the bend. Good night."

The younger man stood where Eddie Haverton had left him. The acute depression which he had kept in check was now settling down upon him like a black mantle, and he cursed the luck which had tempted him to take a hand in Eddie's little game. The fair-haired young fellow, who was now counting his gains in the Mortimer Terrace house, had seemed such an easy prey when Eddie had introduced them in the West End bar, so willing to be fleeced. It wasn't often that Haverton made a mistake.

For all it seemed so easy, the sharpers had spread their net no less carefully than usual. In turn they had brought into play each trick or ruse of which they had knowledge, but all to no purpose—the small, mild-faced youth always held the cards, and after each night of play the dawn had found him with a goodly little pile of notes and gold on the green-topped table before him. The hitters had not only been bit, they had been masticated.

As Vivian Renton stood there in the damp fog an idea entered into his active brain, a suggestion that he should return to the room he had just left and by some plausible tale work upon the feelings of the man whom they had been playing with. Hubert Baxenter had seemed a decent sort of fellow, and he knew him to be in no need of money. Perhaps he might consent to lend a little of the gold he had won. To Eddie Haverton, perhaps, the loss of a few hundreds meant very little, with Vivian it was everything.

No one, save himself and his creditors, knew how hard pressed he was, and that the few coins which he fingered in his pocket as he stood in indecision were all that lay between him and a debt-encumbered destitution—and Vivian Renton was not the man to be in that condition long.

The fog, moving in slow wreaths, hung round him in a heavy stillness, broken only by the sound of some cab bearing a belated reveller homewards, or the peevish chatter of an animal in the Zoological Gardens near by.

Another and more sinister idea crept into the evil brain of Vivian Renton. Why should he not return to No. 9 and tap the little fair-haired man on the head? He knew him to be alone in the house that night, and he could bind and gag him without seriously injuring him. The fog was all in his favor, and he would be out of the country before any hue and cry could be raised. He turned on his heel and, with his chin buried in his muffler, slowly retraced his steps.

The man who had shut the door upon Eddie and Vivian returned to the Hubert took up the notes, changing the gold into other notes to make up the amount, enclosing them in the envelope, and sealed it. The odd fifteen shillings he put aside to give to the crossing-sweeper at the corner in the morning. Personally he did not intend to benefit by so much as a penny piece. "Out of evil," he quoted, "cometh why, what's that?"

The young solicitor wheeled round in his chair as he heard the front gate open and the crunching of steps on the gravel. Then he

The Boy Scouts Association.
 Boy Scouts are organizations of boys and youths between the ages of twelve and eighteen years and upwards, which aim to develop character, to aid in furnishing equipment for a career, and to train in service for others, physical health, and efficient citizenship, by utilizing the natural activities and interests of the adolescent period.

The development of the Boy Scout movement in England is due to Lt. General Sir Robert Baden Powell, Bt., who during the siege of Mafeking, in 1899, had seen the boys, under Lord Edward Cecil's command, organized and drilled into an efficient messenger service. When Baden-Powell returned to England, in 1902, the idea was fostered and received popular support, and a general plan of organization was adopted. The first Boy Scouts organization was formed in 1908, and a royal charter of incorporation was granted in 1912, the organization being recognized as a "non-military, public service body."

The Boy Scouts Association in Canada is non-military and non-sectarian in character, the movement being supported by Roman Catholics, Protestants and Jews alike. Of late it has also been given consideration as an educational adjunct by well-known educators, some schools adopting the Scout programme in part or as a whole, while some of the universities and leading technical schools conduct special courses for Scoutmasters and other Scout officers.

Local Associations or Troop Committees are organized to supervise and extend the movement in communities upon application by representative citizens to provincial headquarters, Dominion Bank Chambers, Bloor and Sherbourne Streets, Toronto. Such Associations and Committees become responsible both to their communities and to headquarters for the leadership of Scout troops in their area and for their encouragement and support.

The Scouts themselves are organized into patrols of eight boys, two or three or four patrols to a troop under a Scoutmaster. Scouting is now recognized as the most natural and at once the most successful type of organization for boys. Nearly 9,000 Ontario boys are now members, and many thousands more have had the benefits of Scout training during the past twelve years.

Give a boy address and accomplishments and you give him the mastery of palaces and fortunes wherever he goes. He has not the trouble of earning or owning them, they solicit him to enter and possess.—Emerson.

Surnames and Their Origin

PIPER
 Variation—Pipard.
 Racial Origin—English.
 Source—An occupation.

The family name of Piper may come from either one of two sources, though that of Pipard is apparently traceable to only one.

Undoubtedly the name of Piper is for the most part of occupational origin, that occupation being the obvious one of the player of the bagpipes. This explanation has been objected to by many on the ground that the bagpipes is to be found only in Scotland or Ireland, whereas Piper is a name most frequently met with in England.

The fact is, however, that while the bagpipe to-day cannot be classed as an English instrument, it was once quite generally in use, particularly in Northumbria, during that period of the Middle Ages in which family names were first developed.

In some instances Piper is merely a changed spelling of the name Pipard. This name is of Norman-French origin, developed from a sobriquet of nickname signifying clever, or "foxy." There was a Ralph Pipard at the time of Henry III. of England who won great honors for his generalship in the Scottish and Welsh wars of that period.

Millions of War Medals.

It is understood that the distribution of the 1914-15 star, the British war medal, and the Victory Medal will probably occupy about four years. Already 3,000,000 medals have been distributed to individuals or sent to record offices at home and to the overseas dominions and colonies for distribution. This distribution includes 1,400,000 1914-15 stars, more than 900,000 British war medals and 80,000 Victory medals.

The approximate number of British war medals required is 2,000,000, and of Victory medals 5,500,000. After deducting the medals already distributed about 12,500,000 remain for distribution, and it is estimated that these will be distributed at the rate of 3,000,000 a year.

WHAT TO DO FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

Good Advice From One Who Had Suffered Much.

Nine-tenths of all forms of indigestion or so-called stomach trouble are not due to the condition of the stomach at all, but are caused by other influences. The great contributing cause of indigestion is thin blood. Good blood and plenty of it is required by the stomach to take care of the food. If the blood is thin the stomach functions sluggish, food lies undigested, gas forms and causes pains in various parts of the body. Instead of getting nourishment from the blood the system gets poison.

Relief from this condition can be obtained by the tonic treatment which Mr. D. Shaw, M.D., P.E.I., tried and now warmly recommends to others. Mr. Shaw says: "I suffered from indigestion for over four years, and have tried many of the well-known remedies for such troubles, but never obtained more than temporary relief. The trouble was aggravated by constipation setting in owing to the stomach failing to do its work, and laxatives only gave relief to the bowels and left the stomach in worse condition. The result was my blood was growing more and more anaemic, I did not sleep well at night and was growing despondent. I was in this wretched condition when a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I got three boxes and by the time they were finished there was some change for the better. This greatly encouraged me and I continued taking the pills for some three months, by which time my stomach was all right again, my blood good, nerves strong and life was again worth living. My advice to all who suffer from stomach trouble is to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained through any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

President's Wardrobe Cost 38 Cents.

Being President may pay the rent but it doesn't always provide the wardrobe—not in Armenia at any rate. A letter just received from Eriwan, the capital of that most unfortunate republic, tells how President Ohandjanian got his winter woollens, and it wasn't a case of political graft either.

It was in a Near East Relief old clothes warehouse and the charming young worker was dispensing second-hand clothing to a long line of ragged applicants who offered in exchange their thanks, or at most, a few cents. Bending over her bundle of "gents' furnishings," she was suddenly startled by the sound of a suave and unusually musical voice inquiring in English for a suit of underwear, of the largest size on hand. She looked up and beheld a very tall and very dignified gentleman arrayed in a greenish black, rather frayed Prince Albert. It was rather difficult to associate so unromantic a figure with anything so unromantic as a request for woollen underwear, but since such had unmistakably been what he asked for, she made all haste to supply him with the largest outfit in stock.

To her surprise, he offered her in payment the equivalent of thirty-eight cents in Canadian money. Involuntarily she protested but he reassured her in his gracious tones: "Really, madam, I have plenty, you know. You forget I receive the quite remarkable salary of twenty dollars a month."

Tractors in France Easily Become Tanks.

Every French farm will become a potential artillery depot, if the suggestion made by prominent farm tractor manufacturers to the Chamber of Deputies is carried out, as now seems possible, says a Paris despatch. The content that certain tractors constructed at moderate expense can be transformed without difficulty into powerful tanks with armor clad turrets to be constructed according to the Government design and supplied throughout the border areas to reliable owners of suitable machines.

The details of supplying these tanks with ammunition are still to be worked out by the military officials, who are showing such interest in the plan that special films are being prepared for presentation before the Chamber of Deputies. Prominent military officials are said to have urged the acceptance of the scheme, declaring that if eastern France had been equipped thus in 1914 the massed advance of the German army could have been stopped in the Vosges foothills.

"Cascarets" To-night For Constipation

Just think! A pleasant, harmless Cascaret works while you sleep and has your liver active, head clear, stomach sweet and bowels moving as regular as a clock by morning. No griping or inconvenience. 10, 25 or 50 cent boxes. Children love this candy cathartic too.

A Pessimist.

Jim Brown says, says he to me, Life ain't what it used to be. Everything is money mad. Things are going to the bad. Politics is shameful now. Preachers ain't as good somehow. As they were when he was young. Even Gospel hymns ain't sung. As they used to be, says Jim—Least that's how it seems to him.

Jim Brown says, says he, that men All were honest back then, Merchants all were kinder too. Trusted more than what they do. Women didn't nag the way Most of 'em take on to-day. Everything's worse, says he. Than it was in ninety-three.

Homeland.

There are worlds, I'm told, 'mid the silent stars,
 There are lands far across the sea;
 But where'er I roam comes the dream of home,
 With the faces so dear to me.
 When the shadows fall loving voices call,
 While the red sun sinks in the west;
 Then big tears rise to my longing eyes
 For the land that I love the best.

When the night winds sigh, and the seabirds fly
 Far away o'er the trackless foam,
 Then my heart flies, too, o'er the ocean blue;
 Love has wings that can bear me home.
 Other worlds are fair, but they'll ne'er compare,
 Though you search 'mid the stars above,
 To the world I know, where the blue-bells grow—
 My dear homeland of peace and love.

A GENTLE LAXATIVE FOR THE CHILDREN

Mothers—the surest way of keeping your little ones well and happy; whether it is the new-born babe or the growing child, is to keep their bowels regular and their stomach sweet. Nine-tenths of all childhood ailments are the result of clogged bowels and sour stomach. The most necessary and the best medicine for little ones is a gentle laxative—something that will relieve constipation; sweeten the stomach and promote rest and natural sleep. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. They are a gentle but efficient laxative; are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates or other injurious drugs and may be given to the youngest infant with perfect safety. They banish constipation and indigestion; break up colic and simple fevers and give the baby that health and happiness which all children should have. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Food for Explorers.

Men experienced in Arctic exploration are of opinion that, if the frozen wilds of the north are to be invaded by balloons—and airplanes—Alaska being particularly in mind where the use of the latter is concerned—they should take with them supplies of food in the form of pemmican.

Pemmican is concentrated nourishment, of small bulk and light weight relatively to its food value, and especially adapted for the support of life in cold latitudes by reason of the fat it contains. In old times it was prepared from buffalo meat, but some Indian tribes to-day make it with beef or the flesh of other animals.

The original process of making pemmican began with slicing buffalo meat into slabs an inch or less in thickness and hanging these over frames to dry in the sun. Files were kept off by building a small fire beneath. When thoroughly dried the meat had shrunk more than two-thirds in bulk. Then it was roasted slightly to make it brittle and was reduced to a fine powder by pounding it with flails.

Then the hide of a buffalo was cut and sewn into a sack, which was filled with as much of the minced meat as it could hold, fat being finally poured in scalding hot so as to fill every crevice. Bags of pemmican thus prepared were so solid that at one time a quantity of them were used to build a redoubt which the Hudson Bay fur traders used during their conflicts with the Northwest Co.

The pemmican manufactured in this way could be converted into shape for eating by simply chopping it up with a hatchet. However, it was better in soup, called "rub-a-boo," or fried in its own fat. Cooked in the latter fashion, it was said to taste remarkably like a superior quality of tallow candles.

A notable advantage of pemmican is that it will keep good and wholesome for years.

Unappreciated Help.
 A Philadelphia physician had been called in to treat the spotted child of a certain family. After his departure the mother returned to the room and told the youngster that the doctor had complained that the child had been very rude to him.
 "Why, mother," replied the kiddie, "he's just an old fogey, that's all! He got mad just because I put out my tongue before he told me to."

Had High Authority.
 The young man who had been calling so frequently on Helen at last came to see Helen's father. Finally, the suitor made this announcement: "It's a mere formality, I know, sir, this asking for your daughter's hand, but we thought it would be pleasing to you if it were observed."
 Helen's father stiffened. "And may I inquire," he said, "who suggested that asking my consent to Helen's marriage was a mere formality?"
 "Yes, sir," replied the young man. "It was Helen's mother."

Happiness like health is man's divine heritage. Don't be cheated of your birthright. The idea that sorrow is the normal condition sprang from the same mind which imagined that if a man were not sick occasionally there was something the matter with him.

Britain like Atlas literally carries the world on her shoulders and if the exchange rate of prosperous countries is against her is it any wonder? She owes the United States 1,000,000,000 pounds of sterling and is paying the debt without murmur or complaint. On the other hand the Allies owe her over 1,900,000,000 pounds of which she is never likely to receive one brown farthing. It is this stability and integrity that gives her pre-eminence in the world affairs.

An Irish witness was called to give his testimony. "Did you see the shot fired?" was the first question asked. "No sir, but I heard it." "That is not satisfactory," remarked the judge. "You may step down." As the Irishman turned to go he laughed out loud, whereupon he was rebuked by the court and told he was in contempt. "Did your honor see me laugh?" inquired the witness respectfully. "No, but I heard you." "Excuse me your honor, but that isn't satisfactory." Then the court saw the point and joined in the laughter.

The world has never seen such a glut of wool as exists at the present time. What to do with it is a great economic problem. There is enough on hand to meet all possible need for two years. Great Britain holds 2,000,000 bales of the volume she accumulated between 1915 and 1918. Australia still has nearly all the lip of two seasons. South Africa has an enormous store; so has Argentina. American producers have not been able to sell more than a quarter of their output since 1919. Meanwhile, to make matters worse from the standpoint of the wool growers, many mills are shut down because of lack of orders. They are selling their cloth by auction. This will inevitably mean cheaper clothing but it must be remembered that no more than five pounds of wool enter into a suit of clothes.—Ottawa Journal.

TO ALL Whom It May Concern

THE Parliament of Canada has recently passed a bill regulating the taking of the vote on the Referendum in Ontario on April 18. The points to remember are as follows:

1. Every British subject by birth or naturalization, man or woman, resident in the Dominion of Canada one year previous to February 1, 1921, and resident in the Province of Ontario for two months previous to same date, is entitled to vote, unless otherwise disqualified.
2. Voters' Lists used in the last provincial referendum are the lists to be used in this Referendum, subject to revision. Every voter in an urban polling division must be on the list, and will presumably be on the list only in the division in which he resides.
3. In incorporated cities and towns of 1,000 population or over, arrangements will be made for receiving applications from any who are not now on the list on March 29 to April 4 inclusive—except Sunday—when for six clear days officers will sit to receive such applications.
4. In rural polling divisions the voter must be either on the list or be put upon it as a resident and be vouched for as such by another resident.
5. Both affirmative and negative sides have the right to select scrutineers.
6. Women have the right to vote.

SOCIAL DIPLOMACY.

Mrs. Charmer and Miss Blunt met at the parsonage as both were paying calls. Tea was served, and as Mrs. Charmer nibbled at her cake, she murmured: "I must say, my dear Mrs. Pastor, this cake is delicious." The pastor's wife beamed. Then the two ladies left, and as they walked home, Miss Blunt burst out: "Really, Mrs. Charmer, how could you say that appalling home made cake was delicious." "I didn't say it was," cooed Mrs. Charmer, with a twinkle, "I only said 'I must say so.' And one must, you know."

A CHANGE IN NAME.

It is reported that the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company will, in a few days, go out of existence, so far as the name is concerned. The service is being taken over by the Dominion Government and the completion of the arrangements is expected in a day or two in which the name will be changed to "Canadian National Telegraphs." The Great Northwestern Telegraphs Co. has been known as such for about 30 years. It was organized upon the amalgamation of the Montreal Telegraph Company and the Dominion Telegraph Company up to that time. The Canadian Telegraphs now represent a national service in fact as well as in name.

TO BE RELIEVED OF LIABILITY.

Legislation of unusual interest to Municipal Councils, particularly those of rural localities, is foreshadowed in a bill to amend the Municipal Act, which received second reading in the Legislature. The Bill which was introduced by Hon. F. C. Biggs, will remove from municipalities any ordinary measure of liability for damages for accident or injury sustained by any horse, vehicle or owner thereof on highways a certain portion of which is in a reasonable and ordinary state of repair, even though such injury result from an accident occurring on a portion of the road not prepared for vehicular traffic. In a few words, municipalities are freed from liabilities for accidents occurring "on the roadside" or on or in any roadside ditch, drain or

AUCTIONEER'S HORSE FOUND.

The whereabouts of Auctioneer John Purvis' driver which ran away on Monday of last week, was not discovered until Sunday morning when its dead body was found by some boys near the claybanks. It appears that the horse made a bee line in the direction of the river from the Grand Trunk Station and with the broken shafts and harness banging against it, the animal was in such a frenzy when it got to the river and plunged right into the water and was drowned. The animal was a fine stepper and will be quite a loss to Mr. Purvis.

SEARCHING FOR IT.

Little Jeanie gazed long and thoughtfully at the young man who was calling on her grownup sister, Maude. "May I climb up on your knee, Mr. Greene?" she inquired at last. "Yes, of course, dear," smiled the young man, who wanted to make a hit with the family. "Want to pull my hair, eh?" "No, I want to see if I can find that word," replied the little girl. "What word?" asked the visitor in bewilderment. "I heard Maude say this morning that if a man ever had the word 'idiot' written all over his face that man was you."

ENUMERATORS APPOINTED.

Chief Enumerators have been appointed for the 234 constituencies in Canada for taking charge of the census in each riding this year. Under the evhief enumerators there will be sub enumerators for municipalities or polling subdivisions. These enumerators will visit every home and place of business and collect such data as population, area, manufactures, forest and fisheries, statistics, origin and religion of the people. This is according to the British North America Act of 1867 which stipulates that a census shall be taken every ten years and as the last one was taken in 1911 another is due now. The chief enumerator for this riding is Oscar Schwindt, nephew of Jake Schwindt of Brant and son of the foreman of one of the Walkerton factories. The young man is a returned soldier having been overseas with the R.A.F. The appointment is a good one. For North Bruce, Herbert Harmer of Southampton has been appointed. He is a returned soldier too and comes from a town which suffered worse in fatalities in the great according to percentage of those who went to the front than any other town or village in Bruce.

INCREASED CRIME.

Crime among boys in Canada has increased 300 per cent. within the past few years and the reckless taking of human life by hold-up men in Canadian cities is appalling. Some writers attribute the increase in crime to the war. They hold that with those who have seen all the horrors of war that life will never be as sacred in their eyes again. Others attribute the crime wave to the business depression of the last six months in the larger cities and difficulty of men securing work. Of one thing we are certain, a crime wave is sweeping through Canadian as well as American cities. The murder of the Toronto druggist and Woodstock merchant for the trifling amounts of money taken shows that the gunmen took human life with a recklessness that is appalling. The Woodstock-murderer has been sentenced to the gallows and his brother who was accessory to the crime was let off with a twenty-year sentence because he had enlisted as a soldier at the age of fifteen. It is hardly safe to be out in a city after night. The policy of making those rolling firearms report is a good one and the public should consider it money well spent for an increase of the number of Provincial police to round up the thugs and suspicious characters. The public safety demands it.

Three men on skates had gone ahead of the sleigh, and it was due to their efforts that 15 of the 17 in the party were saved.

Incubator Turkeys.

I raised my first turkeys eight years ago. I had two hens and a tom. One hen did not hatch an egg, the other hatched 15 and that aroused my enthusiasm for turkeys. I kept these poults in a coop with runway for three weeks, feeding hard-boiled eggs, cornbread and cottage cheese. This is the critical age for poults and a lot of care given during this age is time well spent.

The next year I kept six hens and one tom. That year I marketed 20 hens at 12½ cents a pound and 11 cents for the tom and I considered these good prices then. That was in 1918. A few weighed 15 pounds and I thought they were exceptionally large.

Every year since I have been increasing my flock. The last two years I have had only 22 hens but I usually have only 20 when laying season comes. I keep two toms. I purchase a tom every year and keep each tom two years only. If I keep a tom longer than that my hens get weak, the stock weakens, and they do not grow to be large and strong. I am a thorough believer in purebred stock. It pays.

When I first commenced raising turkeys, I thought that toms weighing 15 pounds and hens 11 pounds were good sized. Now I consider a 13-pound hen a small-sized one. My toms weigh from 17 to 20 pounds. Does it pay to use purebred stock? Well, I know it does. I used to consider a tom weighing 10 pounds at five months of age a good-sized bird, but now, since I have a purebred tom, my young toms weigh ten pounds at three months. Last year I paid $20 for a tom. He then weighed 33 pounds with empty crop. Now he weighs 42 pounds. My young hens last year weighed 15 pounds.

The turkey hens do not want to set very early. Some turkey hens will not eat while they are setting and often they will die from starvation. After setting on the nest four weeks they are often very weak and make poor mothers to take care of their small poults. For this reason I use an incubator.

An incubator holding 160 chicken eggs will hold 120 turkey eggs. I leave the eggs in the incubator for two weeks or a few days more if necessary to find the hen that will set. As soon as I notice a hen that wants to set I place her on a nest with a few china eggs. When I see she is ready to set I take the eggs out of the incubator and place them under her and as many hens as are necessary. The hen has only to set two weeks or a few days less.

Here are three reasons why using an incubator is the best way:

1. The turkey hens will be in a better condition to care for their poults.
2. A larger flock coming out of the same age. They remain together and are therefore easier to gather in at night.
3. Eggs will hatch better because they are fresh. Fresher eggs hatch the best.

It is possible to move a hen for setting when one wants to. Others may object to that statement but I know it can be done because I have done it and have succeeded. Just keep the hens shut up for a few days. Teach the baby chicks to eat out of your hands. Teach them to hear a certain call and they will always come.

I had 80 poults last spring and when I would call "Peet! Peet!" in the evenings, if they were in hearing distance, the poults would leave their mothers and come flying toward me, because they knew that cottage cheese was in store for them. Then of course the mothers would follow and I had no trouble in gathering them in.

Turkeys have a roving disposition. When laying season commences, one should fix up nests for the turkeys in a dry place and have the opening to the nest partially hidden from view.

In dressing turkeys, they lose one-fourth of their weight. I dress my turkeys ready for the oven and charge 15 cents more a pound. I have sold as high as ten at Thanksgiving for 40 cents a pound dressed. Prices were even better last fall. It does not pay to dress a turkey weighing less than 18 pounds alive.

Bringing Capons to the Front. Caponing was formerly considered a difficult operation, but now with the improved instruments, which permit unobstructed vision, with good light and a steady hand, any one can perform the operation. The best time is whenever there is a surplus of cockerels two or three months old. At the age of four months the cockerel's muscles begin to toughen.

An old rooster does not bring a very high price in market, while a capon will bring the top price, and often will weigh, when full grown, from seven to twelve pounds, according to breed. The purer the breed the larger the capon. The old saying "the proof of the pudding is in the eating" is surely true of capons.

After being caponized the "combs and wattles stop growing. Capons seldom crow, are gentle and peaceful, can be kept with other chickens, or in a separate flock if more convenient. They need no fattening ration until a few weeks before marketing them. When raised on farms, they can pick their feed almost until the snow flies. If a cockerel is caponized at four months of age or older, there is danger of death from internal bleeding, due to separating the testicle from a close lying artery. But if this should happen there need be no loss, as he is bled to death and ready for the frying pan or for canning. If he lives he may develop into a "slip," which makes him useless as a breeder and not much better eating than an ordinary rooster. "Slips" are unsuccessfully caponized cockerels, as the testicles continue to grow again. At some markets they are quoted at five cents a pound less than capons.

When capons are sold for the Christmas trade they are not full grown, and are called "soft roasters." At ten months old they are sold generally between New Year and Easter. Their flesh remains sweet and tender. Another excellent use that may be made of capons is to have them take care of little chickens. This they do as carefully and tenderly as any hen, or even better; they may be given chickens from several broods and do not object to any of them, which is not always true with the hen. As a capon is larger and heavier than a hen, and as it might unintentionally step on a day-old chick, I have found it best to let the hen take care of the young chicks until they are about two weeks old. They can then safely be turned over to the capon, and the hen is free to go about her business of laying eggs.

It is claimed that on farms where capons are used as foster-mothers, hawks will never have a chance of stealing the chicks.

Any large city is a good capon market. I have had White Leghorns capons that weighed six and one-half pounds each; Rhode Island Reds, eight and one-half pounds; Wyandottes and Plymouth Rocks, nine and one-half pounds. All were less than one year old, and from ordinary stock.

What Fertilizers Are.

Fertilizers are prepared plant foods, just like malted milk is prepared human food.

Fertilizers are made from blood, tankage, nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia, cyanamid, bone, acidulated ground phosphate rock and salts of potash.

They are scientifically prepared under chemical control, and the percentage of plant food they carry is guaranteed under the Dominion fertilizer law.

The analysis of the fertilizer refers to the amount of the plant food constituents that are found in the fertilizers. These constituents are ammonia (nitrogen)—the stalk grower; phosphoric acid—the plant ripener, and potash—the plant strengthener and starch former. For average gardens it is well to use fertilizers carrying 3 to 6 per cent. ammonia, 8 to 12 per cent. phosphoric acid and 3 to 6 per cent. potash.

You can buy fertilizers from fertilizer manufacturers, seed houses, department stores, florists, hardware stores, general stores, etc.

After the seed bed is well prepared, scatter one-half the amount of fertilizer over the ground before planting. Rake it well into the soil. When ready to plant, make your furrows and scatter the remainder of the fertilizer lightly in the furrow. Rake a light covering of fine soil over the fertilizer before dropping the seeds, or setting bulbs, or plants.

Vines That Will Beautify Your Home Grounds

BY ANNE ROBINSON

I have found that for the home gardener, whether it be to supply beauty or to furnish a crop, for practical worth and ease of culture, the many varieties of vines cannot be excelled and are too little appreciated.

Vines are divided into fruit, shade, and flowering varieties. The popular grape and the universally grown hop are perhaps the most useful of all vines. But for landscape gardening a shade or flowering vine is more desirable.

The Virginia creeper, a hardy, easily-grown perennial, is the favorite for shading. I have seen this vine trained along chicken wire, stretched the length of a porch, where it gave a dense shade from early spring until autumn.

For graceful beauty, what can compare with the Boston ivy, as it clings to a brick or stone surface, sending its tender new shoots ever upward?

Children love a gourd vine with its fantastic fruit, and a package of mixed seed planted along the back fence will furnish safe entertainment on Mother's busy mornings. The dainty clematis, wistaria, cinnamon vine, and honeysuckle are perennials possessing a sweet fragrance and charm which defies description.

For neatness, though, the annuals are best, as they can be taken down when dead, and variety can be had by using different kinds each season. Most people think of morning glories when a back porch screen is mentioned. And morning glories are well worth thinking of, with their different shades of pale pink or deep rose and the deep clear blue which resembles a bluebird's wing. The moon-flower belongs to this family, although it is like the new baby who gets his days and nights turned about. These magnificent flowers do not open until sundown, and by the time day morning glories are opening they are closing. They are larger than the conventional day bloomers, and more fragrant.

Poultry

Diarrhoea kills more chicks than anything else. I give black pepper ground fine and mixed with mash food. I continue its use for several days.

Feeding flavor into eggs may seem a foolish thing to talk about, but nothing is more sure than that eggs may be spoiled or made delicious by quality of food given.

Hens cannot lay in the winter unless their ration contains animal protein needed to make the whites of eggs. To supply this, give hens all the milk they can drink daily or feed them meat scrap or tankage as a part of their regular ration.

Early feathering and early crowing mean early maturity. Early maturity means early profits. Always select the cockerels that feather first and then select from them the one that crows first.

The duck intended for market should be fed on fat-forming food during the last three weeks of her life. A good ration for this is meat scrap, one part; wheat bran, one part; wheat middlings, two parts; cornmeal, three parts—all by weight. A small percentage of grit and one part green feed should be added.

A simple brooder is thus made and used by a neighbor: A wooden box about four feet square and a foot high is used. A few holes are bored in one side to provide air, and then a blanket is stretched over the top. An earthen jug filled with hot water is placed inside to provide heat. It is sometimes necessary to refill the jug twice a day to keep up the proper temperature.

The incubator cellar must have thick walls, a double roof and good ventilation, in order to keep up the proper temperature, and not to be affected by sudden changes of weather. The roof part is all that is above ground. No special design is needed so long as the principles mentioned above are complied with.

The Experimental Farms System.

Remark has several times been made in Parliament and elsewhere that the splendid work performed by the Experimental Farms System of Canada is not nearly so widely known and appreciated as it should be. In The Agricultural Gazette of Canada there appears an outline of the system and the tasks in which it is engaged. The Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa is the headquarters of the twenty branch or auxiliary farms and stations. It is stated that there is one farm in each of the provinces of Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Ontario, two in Nova Scotia, four in Quebec, two in Manitoba, three in Saskatchewan, two in Alberta and four in British Columbia. There are also two substations in Alberta, two in the Yukon and one in British Columbia. In addition, working with the system are tobacco stations at Farnham, Que., and Harrow, Ont. At all of these experimental and research work of national importance is carried on. Enghly illustration or demonstration stations have also been established in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Alberta, and Saskatchewan. Each branch of agriculture is dealt with in actual experiment, and the results are made public through the press and by means of addresses, demonstrations, and exhibits. In short every effort is made to encourage, advance and benefit agriculture, the basic industry of the country.

Early Ripening of Oats Valuable.

The ripening season of oats is very important. Certain varieties ripen from one to two weeks earlier than others, hence there are special uses for each class of oats. As a rule, early oats are somewhat smaller in size than later ones and finer in straw. They show more rapid growth throughout the entire season and are ready to harvest, as we have already said, fully half a month earlier than the later oats. This is a great advantage when you plan to have fall wheat follow early oats. The early ripened oats may be harvested and the ground plowed immediately and prepared for the seeding of the fall wheat.

You can hasten ripening of oats from a week to 10 days by fertilizing. This means a uniform product which can be harvested early. Early harvesting is especially valuable where you plan fall wheat to follow early oats.

If you have been able to afford a silo for your farm, you are ready, now, to afford a bathroom and a septic-tank-sewage-disposal system.

The Sunday School Lesson

EASTER SUNDAY

The Living Christ, St. Matthew 28: 1-10, 16-20. Golden Text—St. Matthew 28: 20.

Connecting links: The dead Christ was carried by reverent hands to the tomb of a loving friend, Joseph of Arimathea. He is described as "a rich man," and "a councillor of honorable estate, who also himself was looking for the Kingdom of God." John says that Nicodemus (see John 3: 1 and 19: 39) also came bringing a great quantity of spices to embalm the body, which was wrapped in linen clothes and laid in the rock-hewn sepulchre, "a new tomb, wherein was never man yet laid." Matthew tells us also that the chief priests and Pharisees, who had plotted His death, persuaded Pilate to let them set a guard at the tomb lest the disciples of Jesus should come and steal Him away and pretend He had risen from the dead. The theory still held by some Bible readers that the body was really stolen away, and that other theory that He had merely swooned and afterward revived and went away, have really no ground to rest upon.

The Risen Lord. V. 1. In the end of the Sabbath, Jesus was crucified on Friday, was buried on the afternoon of the same day, and lay in the tomb all day Saturday, which was the Jewish sabbath. According to the Jewish way of reckoning the sabbath ended at sunset, but there seems to have been a popular way of speaking which included the night following. At any rate, the time here indicated was the early morning of the next day, that is, of Sunday.

Mary Magdalene, that is "Mary of Magdala," was one of the faithful friends of Jesus. She had been healed by Him of a terrible affliction of insanity (Mark 16: 9). There is no proof whatever of the common notion that she was the penitent sinner who wept at the Lord's feet and anointed them in the house of Simon the Pharisee (Luke 7: 36-49).

The other Mary is called by Mark "Mary the mother of James the less and of Joses." John seems to identify her with "Mary the wife of Clopas," the sister of Jesus' mother, but this is not quite certain (John 19: 25). These two women had been at the cross and at the burial, and now first at the tomb in the early morning.

Vv. 2-8. A great earthquake. Matthew speaks also of an earthquake at the tomb of the crucifixion (27: 51). The shock which opened the tomb must be regarded as occurring before the women came, otherwise they would have seen Jesus come forth. The angel, whom they saw, is described by Mark as "a young man," sitting in the tomb on the right side, arrayed in a white robe. Luke says that they saw two men standing by them "in dazzling apparel," and John that Mary Magdalene saw in the tomb "two angels in white sitting, one at the head and one at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain."

It is impossible to explain all this as mere fancy, the result of an excited imagination. Something must certainly have happened, here and afterwards, which made these women believe beyond the shadow of a doubt that the unexpected and seemingly impossible thing had happened, and that their Lord was risen. The apostles and a multitude of others believed and went forth preaching a risen Christ. They were ready to risk their lives on the truth of the resurrection. Paul heard the evidence and believed, Pharisee and persecutor though he had been.

He is not here, for He is risen. This was the testimony of the angel. They saw the place where He had lain and the empty tomb, and they believed. This testimony was repeated by the women and by the apostles, and by the lips of countless evangelists and confessors all down through the years. "This Jesus did God raise up, whereof we are all witnesses," said Peter at Pentecost. In the temple court Peter proclaimed Him "The Prince of life, whom God raised from the dead" before the great council and the high priest he declared that it was in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom they had crucified, "whom God raised from the dead," a lame man had been healed. Again before the council, and on trial, the apostles declared with His right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour." Peter, in the house of the Roman Cornelius, testified that "Him God raised up the third day, and gave Him to be made manifest, not to all the people, but unto witnesses that were chosen before of God, even to us, who did eat and drink with him after he rose from the dead."

Paul, in Pisidian Antioch, preached Christ, and said, "God raised him from the dead; and he was seen for many days of them that came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are now his witnesses unto the people." In Athens he declared of Jesus that God had "raised Him from the dead." Writing to the Christians of Corinth Paul recounts the evidence for the resurrection, and says, "Now hath Christ been raised from the dead, the first fruits of them that are asleep."

For he believes that all who follow Jesus shall be raised with Him into the glory and blessedness of an eternal life. He goeth before you into Galilee. It is remarkable that Matthew says nothing of Jesus' meeting with the disciples in Jerusalem and on the way to Emmaus (see Luke 24: 13-35, 36-43, and John 20: 19-29).

9-10. Jesus met them. In the supplement to Mark's Gospel (16: 9-11), and in John, He is said to have appeared to Mary Magdalene: 11-15. They gave large money. Matthew evidently knew that a story had gone abroad to the effect that the body of Jesus had been stolen by His disciples. He is careful here to show its falsehood, and charges it to the bribing of the guard by the Jewish authorities.

The Great Commission. 16-20. All power, or rather all authority, Jesus now claims to have received. Gladly and thankfully we yield Him His claim, and crown Him Lord of all. Together with this claim of supreme authority He issues to the disciples His commission: Go ye therefore. They are to make Him known to all nations, and to win them to faith in God through Him. But they will not go alone. He will be with them in reality of spiritual presence and power. Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.

Application. With the staggering challenge of the world's sin and need with which we are confronted it is not hard for us to understand the feeling of bewilderment and helplessness which such a tremendous command would create. But it had hardly time to form until it was dispelled by the simple, sublime assurance with which the commission closes. No matter what sort of days might come, days of sunshine or of shadow, days of success or of defeat, His word is literally, "I am with you, all the days." Days change, He is "the same, yesterday and to-day, and for ever." It was that this wonderful promise might be realized that He ascended. Let us remember that in the Kingdom of Heaven there is no up or down. The Ascension really meant the laying aside of earthly limitations and the resumption of divine glory with its omnipresence and eternity. There are some who look for the bodily return of our Lord. Let us not weaken our hearts by imagining that the words of His great promise have not been fulfilled, or that it will ever be possible for Jesus to be more truly present with us than it is now, provided we open our hearts to receive Him.

Girls that flirt often think they don't mean it and later find out that they meant it after all.

Mrs. S. A. Kunkel, after spending the winter here, left on Tuesday for her home at Neville, Sask.

During the electrical storm about seven o'clock Tuesday evening of last week, a lightning bolt entered the stable of Mr. John C. Leach of Maple Hill, underneath the bank barn killing the cow next the door, paralyzing the second row and badly frightening a third. The lightning left no further trace and there was no sign of fire. It is thought the flash came down a lightning rod which runs near the door. The lightning rod perhaps deserves the credit for saving the barn from destruction. Mr. Leach had been away to town and the milking was delayed, otherwise some members of the family would have been in the stable milking when the bolt struck.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS TORONTO

Yesterday's market was merely a clean-up for the week, less than 200 fresh cattle being on sale, and there were no price changes of note. The market continues to hold its ground and there is a good deal of optimism as to the future. Unless we have a very heavy run in Monday, which seems unlikely, we look for a good trade the early part of next week.

In the small stuff the calf market is stronger, veal selling up to $13.50 and $17.50, but they have to be negatively good to bring these prices. Medium veal is selling from $14 to $15 common veal, $10 to $12.50; and grassers $5 to $6 a cwt.

In the sheep and lambs, with nominal receipts, choice grain-fed lambs are selling from $13.50 to $14, with some selling a shade more money. Choice grain-fed sheep are selling at $8.50 to $9.50.

We would warn drovers to be very careful on the poor, thin sheep, as they are meeting a bad market. Although lambs are coming in they are selling at very high prices, $15 to $19 apiece.

The United Farmers sold two baby beeves weighing 920 and 830 lbs. apiece at $12 per cwt., the highest price for the day.

MOLTKE.

Last Wednesday evening the friend and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Rahn sprang a surprise on them by assembling at their residence and presenting them with two fine rockers before their departure for their new home in Neustadt. Mr. Rahn thanked the friends for their thoughtfulness and assured them that he would never forget the kindness of his friends in Carrick.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bieman attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Bieman in Elmwood.

Messrs. Edgar Fischer and Harry Baetz are spending the Easter holidays at their homes here.

Mrs. Wm. Weigel of Hanover is visiting friends here.

Confirmation will be held in St. Paul's church, Normanby, on Sunday, March 27th.

Mr. Ednor Wagner and Bob Schneider spent the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wagner are leaving for their homes in Alberta.

Mr. John S. Baetz is on the sick list at present.

Baseball news is still scarce here.
