Card of Thanks
Mrs. George Reinhart and family wish to thank their many friends and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy extended to them in their recent sad bereavement in the loss of a loving husband and father, also to those who so kindly lent cars for the funeral.

Sunday School Convention
A religious educational rally of the Hanover district, will be held in the Evangelical Church on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 11th and 12th. The convention will begin on Tuesday afternoon at 2.15. A splendid program has been arranged for the occasion. A cordial invitation is extended to attend these sessions.

June Wedding
A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized in the Sacred Heart Church here on Tuesday morning of this week, when Miss Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Herman of Carrick, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. George Ruland, son of Mrs. B. Ruland of Deemerton.

Rev. A. C. Montag performed the ceremony. The bride was prettily attired in Beige Crepe with hat and shoes to match, and carrying a bouquet of carnations. She was assisted by Miss Antoinette Huber, who wore a gown of Rose Crepe. Mr. Gerard Herman, brother of the bride, acted as best man. After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a wedding dinner was served. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly gifts. The groom has a good position with L. H. Koenig & Co.

Death of John S. Lints
It is our sad duty this week to record the death of Mr. John S. Lints, who passed away about three o'clock on Tuesday morning of this week at the age of 54 years. Deceased had been suffering for about a year with high blood pressure, but had been able to be about as usual until a week ago when he was stricken with pluro-pneumonia, and despite the best medical attention he sank rapidly until the end came on Tuesday morning. The late Mr. Lints spent all his life, with the exception of a few years, on the farm on which he died. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lints, of Clifford, formerly of Carrick. About three years ago he was married to Miss Ella Darling, who with one small son survive. To them is extended the sincere sympathy of the entire community in the loss of a kind and loving husband and father. He was an honest and upright man and beloved by all who knew him. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon to the Clifford cemetery.

Shot Large Hawk
Sovereign picked off a fine specimen of red-tailed hawk with his 22 rifle. The big bird was soaring slowly over Vellick's bush on the 7th concession when Herb shot it through the head. It was a magnificent shot. The hawk measured nearly 3 feet between the wing tips.

Football Season Opened
Holstein and Chesley played a tie game at the latter town on Friday evening, both teams scoring a goal. This was the opening game in this group of the W. F. A., and was reported by C. E. Wendt, the referee, to be a real good exhibition. Mildmay Stars go to Chesley on Wednesday evening of this week for a league fixture.

Death of Former Miller
The death of Mr. Jacob Steinmiller took place at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Chas. Lembke, at Kitchener, on Sunday. Deceased was about eighty-five years of age. He was a former proprietor of the Otter Creek Flour Mills, and was an honest, upright business man. He won several gold medals at world fairs for his famous "Cyclone" Flour. In 1910 he disposed of his business to his son-in-law, Mr. Chas. Lembke, and his son, Justus Steinmiller, who continued the business under the firm name of Lembke & Steinmiller. He is survived by one son and one daughter, Justus Steinmiller in the West, and Mrs. Chas. Lembke of Kitchener. His wife predeceased him about six years ago. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon to the Walkerton cemetery.

A Royal Sand-Off
Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Pletsch, who have been life-long residents of the 12th concession of Carrick, received a pleasant surprise last week on Monday evening, when over one hundred of their friends and neighbors assembled at their home to bid them farewell before their departure for Teeswater, where they will make their future home. Mrs. Pletsch was the recipient of a handsome Electric reading lamp, an Electric stove and an Electric iron, while Mr. Pletsch was presented with a gold-headed cane. The presentation was made by Messrs. James Hickling and Daniel Russwurm, while an illuminating address was read by Mr. Harry Hickling of Walkerton. Mr. Pletsch, on behalf of Mrs. Pletsch and himself, made a very fitting reply, thanking their many friends for the bounteous gifts bestowed upon them, and extending a hearty invitation to all to visit them in their new home at Teeswater whenever the occasion arose. The balance of the evening was joyously spent in games, music and dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Pletsch moved their household effects to Teeswater on Thursday, and a host of friends wish them health and happiness in their new home.

For Sale—Ford Touring Car, 1923 model, in good condition. Apply to Wm. E. Macke.

Potatoes Wanted—Fifty bags of good cooking potatoes wanted. Highest price paid. Fred Weiler.

The Field Day of the Mildmay Public and Separate Schools was held in the park on Tuesday afternoon. The full report will be given in our next issue.

Auction Sale
Of Farm Stock and Implements at Lot 27, Con. 4, Carrick, on Thursday, June 20th, at 1 o'clock. At the same time the farm will be offered for sale. This farm is well cropped. Anthony Diemert, prop.; John Darroch, auctioneer.

Return Empties Promptly
Jacob J. Huber, the local milk vendor requests that all milk bottles be returned promptly. If not done so other drastic measures will have to be adopted. He reports that 806 bottles have either been broken or used for other purposes during the past year.

Bold Chicken Stealing
Early on Saturday evening a nerry thief entered the premises of Mr. John Stroeder and carried away two chickens and forty-two chickens. This robbery was boldly perpetrated, before the family had retired, and were missed shortly after. Strong suspicion points to the guilty party, and unless the poultry were returned within a week, action will be taken against the guilty party.

More Paving on Program
We learn on very reliable authority that the provincial highway between Mildmay and Clifford is to be paved this year, and that tenders for the contract will be advertised this week. Rumors have been current for the past six weeks concerning this section of the highway, and it is now an assured fact that before the snow flies next fall, the highway from Walkerton to Teviotdale will be entirely paved.

Good Citizen Passes
Mildmay lost a good citizen last week in the death of Mr. George Reinhart, who passed away early last Thursday morning. He had been in poor health for only a few weeks, and he sank rapidly until the end came, and he passed peacefully away into the great beyond. Mr. Reinhart was 72 years of age, and was born in the Township of Carrick. He farmed for many years on the 9th concession of Carrick, and retired to Mildmay, fifteen years ago. He was a very industrious man, managed his affairs very capably, and in all his dealings he made honesty his only policy. Mr. Reinhart was a man who lived his religion, and he found joy and satisfaction in all his church activities. On Oct. 17th, 1882, he was married to Miss Theresa Bauer, with whom he lived most happily, and he is survived by his widow, and four daughters: Mrs. Val. Berberich of Walkerton, Mrs. Anthony Berberich and Mrs. Ignatz Grub of Carrick, and Mrs. T. Gmelny of Windsor, to whom is extended the sincere sympathy of a host of warm friends. The funeral took place to the Mildmay R. C. Cemetery on Saturday morning. Relatives were present from Buffalo, Guelph, Walkerton, Formosa and Teeswater. The pallbearers were all grandchildren, viz: Fred, Clarence, Alphonse, Cyril and Leonard Berberich and Sylvester Grub. Edward Berberich was crossbearer.

British Boys For Canada Farms

Sir Arthur Yapp tells the story of a practical emigration experiment while Mr. Philip Snowden deals with the wider international aspect of the problem.

"On behalf of the young miners and sons of miners in the distressed coalfield areas, the Y.M.C.A. recently came to an agreement with the United Church of Canada enabling it to send out a hundred of these boys to farm work under carefully-selected farmers in that country. Where necessary, these boys were provided with complete kit, and with a little money to have in their pockets on landing. Y.M.C.A. welfare officers accompanied them on board the ships, and as far as the training hostel of the United Church of Canada at Norval, Ontario," writes Sir Arthur K. Yapp, National Secretary, Y.M.C.A., in the "Empire Review."

"Each boy receives a beginning wage of 10s. In addition to his board and lodging, an dis encouraged to save so that he may in time buy his own farm. If, by the time he reaches the age of twenty-one, he has managed to save at least £100 and has been able to convince the authorities of his capability for running a farm, he is eligible for a Government loan of £500 to enable him to acquire a farm. This loan may be paid back in small amounts over a period of twenty years. Every one of these boys has the opportunity—an opportunity—an opportunity he cannot always secure in the old country—of building up a happy and successful career. We hope to send out at least another six hundred boys under the same scheme within the next few months.

"The spirit of adventure is by no means dead in the young Britisher of 1929, and I am convinced that many thousands of our young fellows have a great future in one or other of the Dominions. There is far more room at the top of the ladder in Canada or Australia than there is in England. Even round the bottom there is more room. In both these countries, there are vast unoccupied spaces and enormous undeveloped resources. Both are lands of great hope for the young British emigrant—always provided he is of the right sort."

"The world is not over-populated. The Malthusian doctrine that the population of the world is increasing more rapidly than human capacity to feed and clothe the race is discredited by actual facts," writes the Right Hon. Philip Snowden in the "Windsor Magazine."

"The world could never be over-populated unless the resources of nature when fully exploited by scientific knowledge and human labour were inadequate to provide all the people with a reasonable standard of life.

"Since the beginning of the industrial revolution the power to produce wealth has advanced more rapidly than the increase of the world population. That is likely to continue, and so long as it does there can be no problem of world over-population in the aggregate.

"But there is a problem of geographical congestion of population. In a relative sense, some countries are over-populated and others are sparsely populated. The under-population of countries which have great natural resources, which are lying undeveloped for the lack of population, is a great loss to the wealth of the world, and is at the same time an aggravation of the economic difficulties of the more densely populated countries.

"There is no more important question demanding international co-operation and organization than that of spreading the population more evenly over the face of the earth."

The subject bristles with difficulties, as the ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer frankly admits, but while recognizing the standpoints of the three great countries (Australia, Canada and the United States) which 'have erected notices forbidding the yellow man to enter their territories,' Mr. Snowden declares himself in this matter an internationalist. He adds:

"The problem is really one of nationalism versus internationalism. It will only be solved by recognizing that the whole earth is the common heritage of the whole population of the world, and that its resources should be regarded as a common heritage, available for every race and nation.

Breakfast Battles

"Stick to Ham and Eggs" is an Insurance Company's Slogan

What sort of breakfast do you eat? There is a discussion going on just now as to what is the best breakfast.

French workmen who breakfast on coffee and rolls, and then have two hours off for lunch, are being asked to eat a heartier breakfast and cut down the lunch interval.

At the same time, quite a number of people in this country are advocating a light breakfast, or no breakfast at all.

"Stiant the day empty" isn't a very inspiring slogan. And a South African life insurance company seems to think it isn't wise, either. "Stick to the good old English breakfast," it advises its clients among the Rand miners in a recent booklet on health.

"Coffee-and-roll business may be all right for some, but the man with a hard day's work ahead of him is a lot better off for a ballast of ham and eggs inside his belt-line."

Porridge Problems

All very well, but recently a number of people have been looking for a substitute for bacon, owing to its high price. Sausages make quite a good one—and another interesting variation is fried bananas instead of eggs. But bananas want bacon as a table companion.

The biggest breakfasts of all are eaten by Americans, in whose morning meal ham and eggs is only one dish among many. But the Americans overdo it, and a good few of them suffer severely from indigestion.

In one respect, however, the American breakfast is better than the average British one. Raw fruit usually figures on the bill of fare.

Porridge is another breakfast item which many people swear by. But porridge is really a meal in itself, and may produce a certain amount of discomfort. On the other hand, the man who makes porridge alpha do duty as a morning meal is apt to feel very hungry by eleven o'clock.

London To Radiocast Nightingale's Song

London—The radiocasting of the nightingale's song is to be resumed next week in a necessarily secret spot on the upper reaches of the Thames. Radio engineers of the British Broadcasting Corporation will stand by an evening except on May 26 and on polling day, May 30, from May to June 1, inclusive, and transmit the song of birds to three British stations, 2LO, 5XX and 5GB.

On the nights when the rest of the stations are taking a London program they will be included in the relay. The attempts to radiocast will generally be made between 10.30 o'clock and midnight.

She: May's one of the most popular girls at college.

He: Yes? I never knew she necked.

Garden Service

Handling Gladioli

It will now be safe to put in the first of the gladioli. This popular flower will come into bloom in from fifty to ninety days, depending on variety and, hence if a long season of flowering is desired, planting of the quicker blooming sorts should be spread over a month. The gladioli will grow in almost any soil, but does best in a rich open loam, properly drained. Plenty of moisture and sunshine is necessary though it is best to plant in a position where the bed will be shaded a little by light tree growth during the middle of the day.

The slight of the gladioli bed should be changed from season to season to avoid injury from fungus diseases. In sandy soil plant four inches deep, but only half this depth in heavy clay. When planted in clumps for decorative effect, space about eight inches apart, but where grown for cut flowers one may plant about four inches apart in rows in the vegetable garden. If the tiny bulbs which will be found clinging to the main bulbs or corms, when dug in the fall, are to be utilized, these may be planted about an inch apart in a row like onions. They will attain full size in a year or two. Dig the soil to a good depth, plant the bulbs, and cultivate frequently until the plants make this impossible. When the gladioli spikes begin to appear, sprinkle nitrate of soda at the rate of about one ounce per square yard every two or three weeks. In very hot weather water well at night or early morning, but late in the day during cool spells.

Dahlia Culture

The best time to plant dahlias in most of Eastern Canada is from the last week in May until the middle of June. The most suitable soil is sandy, well drained, deeply tilled and generously fertilized loam. If the soil is heavy clay, loosen up by digging in well rotted humus, or even a little coal ashes. Dahlias will grow to a height of three to six feet, and on this account it is necessary to space them about the same distance apart. The tubers should be placed on their sides with the buds pointing upwards in holes six inches deep. Close to this drive a stout stake to which the main stem of the plant is tied loosely at intervals of about one foot. Nip off all but one or two side shoots and at least two-thirds of the buds where large flowers are desired. Upright bulbs early, as the choicest varieties are soon cleaned out.

Prolonging Vegetable Season

A continuous supply of vegetables can be secured if the earlier sorts such as carrots, beets, onions, lettuce and spinach are planted at intervals of a week or ten days until the end of June. One must cultivate frequently, thin out well, and fertilize heavily with some quickly available material like nitrate of soda every ten days, if the plants are to be kept going and the resulting crop made tender. Where possible, soak well with water every three or four days, if the weather is very dry. It is well to remember that one thorough soaking a week is worth a dozen daily sprinkles. After watering, get out the hoe or scuffler and loosen up the top growth so that moisture may be preserved. Follow the early crops of spinach, lettuce, radish, and onions, with later maturing sorts such as tomatoes, beets, carrots, beans, and corn. These can be interplanted with the early vegetables and will not need full room until the first named are taken out and consumed.

Handling Tomatoes

The many planting of tomatoes may be risked now in most sections of Eastern Canada. This plant prefers warm open soil and must be grown quickly. Wherever possible, it should be staked to encourage early fruiting. Nip off all side branches and train main stem to a central stake about five feet high. Tie loosely at intervals of a foot with soft twine or raffa. When the stem reaches the top of the stake, pinch off to hurry ripening of the later formed fruit. When staked, tomatoes may be grown about two feet apart. In rows three feet apart.

"Death" as a surname is so unpopular that many holders of it make a change by pronouncing it "Deeth" or "De-ath."

Highest Note in Organs

Wires from this console in the Auditorium of the Royal York Hotel at Toronto, lead to a chamber behind the stage where the largest and finest organ in Canada, and one of the finest in the world has been installed.

This is the crowning achievement of Casavant Freres whose plant is at St. Hyacinthe, Quebec. The only organ in Canada equipped with five manuals, it consists of six organ-units: Great, Swell, Choir, Orchestral, Bombarde and Pedal. A list of its parts reads like a catalogue of the most complete organs, which in truth it is. The Great Organ contains 20 stops and 1761 pipes; the Swell Organ contains 19 stops and 1761 pipes; the Choir Organ contains 17 stops and 1346 pipes; the Orchestral Organ contains 13 stops, 1088 pipes, 61 harp bars, 25 tubular chimes, 37 xylophone bars and castanets; the Bombarde Organ contains 8 stops and 952 pipes; and the Pedal Organ contains 26 stops, 296 pipes, drums, tympani, etc.

The Tonal Lay-out of the stops is arranged thus: 17 Diapason Stops, 18 Flute Stops, 12 String Stops, 14 Mixture and Mutation Stops (41 ranks), 23 Reed Stops, 8 Percussion Stops, 16 Extended Borrowed Stops, 23 Pedal. An electric blower, operated by a motor of 20 H.P., will furnish the wind same motor will also drive a generator that will supply low voltage current for the working of the mechanism of the organ. The ingenuity connected with the construction of this motor is apparent when it is learned that the Chorus Reeds of the Great Swell organ-units operate on heavy wind-pressure, and the stops of the Bombarde unit on extra-heavy wind-pressure.

The Break in Wheat

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix (Lib.):

Coming at this season of the year it is possible that the recent drastic break in wheat prices will not have so serious an effect on the products of this country as would have been the case had it happened in the fall. It is, however, serious enough, as there appears to be quite a large percentage of the 1928 crop still in the country in various positions, much of which no doubt is still on farmers' account. At this time last year it was estimated that the central selling agency controlled practically all the floating supply left in Canada. If this is the case at the moment the collapse in the grain exchange prices may not prove to be an accurate reflection of the final price, which the Pools will receive for the balance of the crop.

Shakespeare and Art

Shakespeare had not art? He was bad by art; compelled and-held by it. And by that holding and compulsion we get a vision of what art is: not a system, not a set of rules which perchance Aristotle might teach us, or another Greek, but a changing, growing form-compelling power that is individual, but at its greatest expresses an age. This was the great age of English, never repeated in its aggregate of color, wealth, diction and power of words.—Henry Chester Tracy, in "English as Experience."

Shade Needed In Cultivating Wild Flowers

Dutchman's Breeches, Hepatica and Trillium Among Those Adapted to Garden

Soil Selection Important for Principal Varieties

The Dutchman's breeches inhabits rich woods, forming masses of delicate, ferny foliage, with hundreds of odd white flowers in graceful sprays in April and May. It has small yellow bulb-like roots, which furnish a ready means of propagation, and is adapted especially to a shallow basin-like depression in garden shade or in leaf soil in the shade of a robust hedge or garden wall.

Another wilding which is very successfully cultivated in the shade is the bloodroot. It comes from rich woods, spreads by a strong rootstock just under the ground, sends up broad, crisp, green leaves and dainty, clear white flowers in April and May, which are nearly two inches across.

By planting pieces of the rootstock even in ordinary garden soil one can have a worth-while white flower in the shady spot. It is desirable to cover them with leaves over winter and leave a few of these to mix with the soil in the spring.

Hepatica, the blue, pink or white spring wild flower familiar to most of us, has also leaves which last over winter. Hepaticas will even grow in a sunny border, but as they prefer shade we may count on them for ordinary garden flowers. It is possible to help them along by giving them a good rich loam to grow in. By dividing the roots new plants are obtained.

WILD GINGER SPREADS FAST

Allegheny mass of rich foliage for the shade is the wild ginger. Its leaves are heart-shaped and its flowers are rich brown purple cups, hidden under the leaves. The wild ginger spreads rapidly by ginger-scented, creeping rootstocks, a few pieces of which, planted in ordinary soil, will soon cover broad spaces. Indeed, it is specifically recommended by horticulturists for carpeting under trees.

The trillium, or wake robins, other wild friends of childhood days, are showy flowers in white, pink or deep red. They come from a moist rich leaf soil for them, and as the narrow bulb-like roots are naturally deeply sunk they should be so planted. They can be so planted in midsummer or later.

Other flowers are adder's tongue, cranesbill, bellwort, sweet pepperbush and viburnum.

Naval Agreement

Truth (London): You cannot get it into the French mind that security does not depend on armaments. But whatever the French and the Italians may go, we ought to seize this opportunity of sealing a lasting pact of friendship with the United States. Good will will not be enough. Before deadlock of the armed peace, to which Ambassador Gibson referred, can be broken, before the unhappy taxpayer can hope for relief, the air will be filled with the clamour of Jingoism on both sides of the water. These gentlemen have got to be faced and told plainly that now that the German navy is at the bottom of the sea, and no other navy is threatening our interests, there is no earthly reason why a common-sense agreement for relative reductions in naval strength should not be made between Great Britain and the United States.

After the birth of my baby

To gain thirty pounds in three months, and win back health and strength was the happy experience of Mrs. Margaret Brethour of Cornwall, Ont., who gives all the credit for it to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"After the birth of my baby, I was in the hospital four months," she wrote, "and came home weighing only sixty-five pounds. I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and it wasn't long until I weighed ninety-five pounds and was the best health I've had since then. I take the pills as a tonic, and wouldn't be without them, no matter what they cost; I strongly recommend them to all mothers."

British Motor Exports

London Times Trade Supplement: American manufacturers have a huge outlet at home for standardized products that are as suitable for the conditions in most export markets as for those in the United States. They begin, therefore, with the initial advantage of an assured protected home market which justifies mass production quite apart from export requirements. This production in volume has enabled certain American firms to extend costs on each unit to an extent impossible for smaller makers to emulate. American firms have also had a great advantage in being able to develop the comparatively new manufacturing and exporting business while other industrial nations were at war. They made the most of their opportunity and established their service agencies and advertised their cars aggressively all over the world. That is the position which the British manufacturer and exporter have to face. After the War they had a great deal of leeway to make up, and naturally concentrated attention on the relatively small British market. In luxury cars and in commercial vehicles the British have nothing to fear anywhere in the world, but their small light car has been made to suit British conditions, including the British system of taxation. No motor engine in the world is as efficient as the British high-compression engine, which gives a much better mileage per gallon of spirits than the American; but the car is built for good roads, and to get the best results fairly frequent gear change is necessary on hills.

Two Languages

Winnipeg Liberté (Ind.): It is all very well being bilingual but we should not be so to our own cost. We should know enough to speak out loudly and clearly in French when occasion demands it. This is not merely a question of our pride of race, but even more so of our own very best interests.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention. One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

Reformers Get Scant Following In South Seas

Natives of the South Sea Islands Hard to Move from Old Customs

CLOTHES? RIDICULOUS!

Wear such ugly clothes? Go to all that bother? Not on our lives, said the South Sea Islanders. And the chief who had been struck with reforming zeal almost lost his leadership in the same way that King Amullah found trouble in Afghanistan when he tried to modernize his people. The chief had come back from a mission station with a stock of European clothes, Jack McLaren tells us in an article in the New York World Magazine on the South Sea Islanders lack of desire to change their ways. The chief intimated "that henceforth the people were not to run around more or less nude, as they had always done, but were to wear clothes 'all-same white men,' including boots and hats." At first all seemed to go well, but finally, we read:

The people declared against the scheme, giving as their reasons that washing the clothes would be more laborious than washing the body; that boots merely impeded the action of the feet; that a man did not need the protection of a hat when he had a great thick head of hair, as all the natives had; and that, altogether, European clothes were strikingly ugly, especially the trousers, which looked ridiculous besides.

Hinting that they doubted whether a chief who sought to inflict such things on his people really had their interests at heart, they threw away most of the hats and boots and ripped the other garments into ribbons wherewith to decorate themselves at the tribal feasts and dances. And the chief was wise enough to drop his reforms and let matters go as they had done before.

Another reaction against ill-timed progress took place in one of the Torres Strait islands, off the New Guinea coast, and the disturbance was caused by the Australian administration nominating native councillors to manage the island—a plan to teach the islanders self-government. Many of the islanders objected to certain of their fellows being raised above them by an outside authority, and there were violent quarrels, often ending in bloodshed. In fact, a blood-feud arose and became so acute that half of the villagers shifted their belongings and started a village on a different part of the island. Peace was restored in the end, however, and the scheme of self-government was eventually accepted. The native councillors nowadays are respected and rather pompous persons who seem nothing ridiculous in the fact that usually their sole costume consists of a red guernsey bearing across the chest in large white letters the word "Councillor."

Then there is the case of a New Guinea chief I knew who after a trip to civilization, which taught him much about vermin and their relation to personal cleanliness, ordered the people of the village to cut short their hair. Now, New Guinea natives, particularly the young men, are intensely proud of their hair, which in many cases makes a mop two feet or more across, and the chief's order caused a great uproar. The people threatened him with all kinds of violence, from sudden death to slow torture, and the village sorcerer was employed to threaten him with various mysterious ills. They even set fire to his house. His pet pig was found one morning mysteriously slain, and two of his dogs were poisoned.

At another island I stepped right into the middle of a revolt caused by a native missionary having insisted that the people sleep in beds instead of on the floor or on the ground, as was their custom. They were gathered about the missionary, telling him angrily that, being accustomed to rolling freely about the floor, they continually fell off the beds and hurt themselves. They declared emphatically they would not sleep on such dangerous scaffoldings any more. I suggested they put sides to the beds like those of a ship's bunk, and in the end they agreed to do it.

At Cape York, in far-northern Australia, where, the only white, the writer spent eight years establishing a coconut plantation, he thought he would try his hand at improving the lot of the exceeding primitive blacks. He tried it in this way, we learn:

I decided I would cure them of their habit of living by the chase, change their nomadic ways in general and make agriculturists of them. To this end I gave them plots of land, and seeds and plants, and taught them tillage. I put a lot of time and effort into the undertaking, but it was a complete failure. After a very little while the people refused to go on, saying that hunting was a quicker means of obtaining food than waiting for it to grow, and that it was foolishness to take all this trouble to make things grow when the jungle was full of fruits and things which could be had for the picking, and that they were very angry with me for introducing such a scheme. And that was the end of that. In setting out to change the habits of such well-established nomads, I had attempted the impossible.

At times the would-be reformers when they were women. In the mountainous interior of New Guinea I came across one such. Her special brand of reform was the abolition of a new tribal dance which had been introduced from the coast and was rapidly becoming popular. When I first saw her she was standing on the high veranda of a thatched house in the center of a village, vigorously telling a mostly naked crowd of about 200 squatted on the ground below that the old dances were quite good enough for the proud people of the hills, and that there was something evil in this new dance, as it called for the women to be completely clothed, which was not the right way for women to dance! For hours she kept it up, stamping and gesticulating all the time, and when the attention of the crowd seemed to waver, she signalled to a number of grotesquely painted persons near her to beat loudly on the drums. She was definitely magnetic, and I learned later she was the daughter of a long line of fighting chiefs. Her efforts resulted in creating considerable disfavor for the new dance for a time. But after a while her influence waned and the dance was taken up again.

At a blacks' camp in a remote part of tropical Australia, an aboriginal girl who had been employed as a domestic servant at a distant town conceived the idea of teaching her brethren to live as she had seen white people live. The tribes took no heed at all of her advice.

In one of the lesser known of the Solomon Islands, "where sorcery is a highly lucrative form of blackmail, practiced exclusively by males," a native woman caused a tremendous sensation by announcing she had "discovered" a new and infinitely more powerful form of the art." Quoting further:

The other sorcerers denounced her as an impostor, and the villagers took sides. There were many fights. Finally a test of skill was arranged, the male sorcerers to use their charms and spells to destroy the woman, the woman to use her charms and spells to destroy the males. News of the contest spread widely, and crowds of natives from distant villages came to watch. But just when all was ready, a government patrol arrived and announced that a charge of murder would follow the mysterious death of any one on either side. That ended the contest, and the visitors went home with a distinct grievance against the patrol, who, they considered, had cheated them out of a legitimate entertainment and caused them to make a long journey for nothing.

The Individual

Democracy means nothing if it does not mean the realization by the individual of his responsibility. If the individual fails, the body of which he is part will become corrupt, and democracy will perish. In religion, if the individual fails the body will fail, because the individual in religion goes right back to the New Testament. He is the salt, he is the leaven; he is the grain of mustard seed. And it is only in so far as the individual, whether he be in religion or in politics, can live the life that is demanded of him for the health of the whole, that that whole can live at all.—Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, M.P.

Canada a British Country

Ottawa Journal (Cons.): (President Hoover complains of the record of crime in the United States.) In this Dominion we are still largely imbued with those high ideals of culture and civilization and civil and religious freedom for which Britain has always stood and from which the American Republic cut itself off over one hundred and fifty years ago. This is not to deny that the United States contains millions of as fine people as are to be found on the face of the earth. The trouble is that it also embraces so many of the other kind of which Mr. Hoover complains.

Looking Three Ways

A poor man who had achieved an enviable reputation among his neighbors for a happy, contented disposition, was asked for an explanation. "It consists in nothing more than making a right use of my eyes," was the reply. "In whatever state I am, I first of all look up to heaven, and remember that my principal business is to get there. Then I look down upon the earth and recall how small a place I shall occupy when I am done with life. Afterwards I look about me and observe how many there are who are in all respects more unhappy than I."

Unquestionably your eyes have much to do with the matter of our soul's contentment. If we used them as wisely as the poor man of this incident, contentment would cease to be with us less a matter of possession and more a matter of making the most of that which we already have.

The child in the home is a never-fading source of joy, but, at the same time a never-fading responsibility to the fond mother. It is not infrequently happens that minor ailments of the child distress and puzzle her. She does not know just what to do, yet feels them not serious enough to warrant calling in the doctor. At just such times as these it is found that the greatest help and friend is Baby's Own Tablets are the mothers

Most childhood ailments arise in the digestive tract—the bowels become clogged and the stomach sour. Baby's Own Tablets are a never-failing relief for this condition. They are a mild but thorough laxative and through their action on the stomach and bowels they banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fever; allay the pain accompanying the cutting of teeth and promote health-giving sleep. Concerning them Mrs. W. Jenning Mackay, Ont., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and think so highly of them that I would not be without them. Please send me your little booklet on the care of children."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Christianization of China

Stephen Gwynn in the Fortnightly Review (London): Europeanization has at least to some considerable degree meant Christianization among the leading Chinese. It is easy to be cynical about Kellogg Pacts and the rest; indeed, it is difficult not to be. But a China whose governing persons were even partly Christianized should find it easier to come to reasonable terms with a somewhat demilitarized Europe. In the old disputes between Imperial China and militarist Christian Powers it was very difficult for any man to establish a common ground of justice, mutually understood.

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. It restles, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other sufferings. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

Try borax water to remove shoe leather stains from light-colored stockings. Soak them, then wash as usual. If this is not effectual add half an ounce oxalic acid to two cups of water. Rinse in this solution and wash thoroughly afterward. Repeat until stain disappears.

For soot stains first brush the stain, then cover with a good absorbent powder as French chalk, fuller's earth or corn meal. Work the powder over the spot until it becomes soiled, then brush it off. If the fabric is washable, sponge or wash with soap and water. If unwashable, rub gently with chloroform or gasoline.

Do not attempt to sweep soot from a carpet until it is covered with dry salt. This should be done at once, then swept off carefully.

DIES AFTER AUTO UPSET

George Orval, the 20-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. George Atkinson, who reside in Glenelg township about a half-mile from Durham, was instantly killed on Friday afternoon in an automobile accident which occurred on provincial highway No. 8, two miles south of Fergus.

About noon, the motor car party composed of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Coultas and daughter, Jean, of Ben-tinck, and Mrs. George Atkinson and baby, started from Durham for a trip to Toronto in a new Durant car with Mr. Coultas driving. All went well until they reached a spot on the highway south of Fergus, when one of the tires blew out, and the car upset into the ditch.

At the time of the accident, the baby was in the arms of Mrs. Coultas and it is thought that it was a piece of broken glass in the window of the car which was the cause of the child's death, as there was just a slight mark on the forehead, indicating that the piece of glass might have penetrated the brain. The baby was dead when picked up.

With the exception of Mrs. Coultas, who was on the side of the car which went over, none of the other occupants were injured, and her injuries consisted entirely of a few flesh cuts which were treated at the Fergus hospital. Mrs. Atkinson, however, is suffering a great deal from the shock of the accident and the loss of her baby, but her condition is not serious.

The motor car was righted, repairs made, and the party were able to drive back to Durham.

Biggart, of Toronto. Rev. E. Burn, pastor of the Evangelical Church, officiated. The house was prettily decorated with spring flowers and fern, the color scheme of the rooms being carried out in pink and white. The young bride entered the room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Doris Burecaugh, of Toronto pianist, assisted on the violin by Mr. Fred Holliday, of Milverton, and looked charming in her wedding gown of pale pink crepe and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses, sweet peas and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid, Miss Anna Hoffman, was gowned in a pale green frock and carried sweet peas. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Arthur P. Biggart, of Toronto. After the ceremony a luncheon was served at which Miss Helen Guenther was the attendant. Among those present were Miss Laura Derbecker and Mr. Norman Woolner, of Stratford; Mr. G. Foster, of St. Thomas; Mrs. Burn and Miss Hilda Burn, of Milverton. Later the bride and groom left by motor for Quebec, Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland.—Milverton Sun.

TROUBLE WITH POLICE

Considerable stir was made in town last week over a row that took place on Thursday night.

For some time there has been more or less trouble in connection with the Chinese cafe, youths on men being apparently disposed to conduct themselves there in a disorderly manner, especially late at night.

Chief Muir on Thursday night, as reported, tried to stop a member of the Brennan paving force from entering at a late hour, and was assaulted and rather badly beaten by the man and his brother, who was in the restaurant. Reinforcements were sent for to Guelph and Constable Mennie and Officer Zinkann drove up and later the situation proved so formidable that reinforcements had to be secured from Kitchener, when the arrest of the two brothers, Robert and Frank Hale, was effected and they were taken to Guelph. On Saturday morning they appeared before Police Magistrate Watt facing charges of assault, of assaulting a police officer in the execution of his duty, and of being intoxicated in a public place. They secured a remand for one week, and bail was fixed at $1000 each, and two securities of $500.

Chief Muir's injuries were so serious that he has been unable to be on duty and Mr. A. R. Agar is taking his place for the time.—Mount Forest Confederate.

To This Famous Vacation Land

You make a good choice when you select the Kawartha Lakes for your holiday this year.

The Kawartha chain is comparatively near Toronto, and easy to reach, without wasting valuable vacation time. Reasonably priced hotels abound throughout this balsam-laden lakeland. Plenty of excellent fishing and aquatic sports and pleasures. Ask any Canadian National Railways Agent for descriptive booklet and complete information.

DRILLING STOPS

Drilling for oil at the old Canadian Oil fields property west of town, which had been going on steadily for several months past, has again stopped and some of the drilling equipment has been moved away. It is understood that there were fairly good indications of oil at one stage of the operations, but that these signs grew less as the drill went deeper. Those who were behind the operations appeared to have quite a strong belief in the existence of what they were drilling for, and they must have spent quite a bit of money on the project before they decided to give up the fight.—Shelburne Press.

FOUND BEER IN CAR

In searching a Paisley gent's car parked at the lake here on Saturday night last, Constable Travis was rewarded by finding a case containing half a dozen bottles of beer, a case of empties and one full bottle and a case of twelve empties. A charge of having in an illegal place was later preferred against the Paisleyite who, we understand, has arranged to appear before Magistrate Walker, in Walkerton, in an attempt to have the case settled out of court.—Port Elgin Times.

PARENTS FOUND GUILTY

Mr. and Mrs. A. Wilson of Wallace Township were found guilty on Wednesday afternoon by Judge Killoran of failing to provide the necessities of life for their daughter, Alma Olive Wilson, who died on April 10 of this year, such failure resulting in her death. The couple were remanded for sentence for one week. Bail of $2000 each was allowed.

The judge declared that for 12 months back, the father had an opportunity to have a doctor treat the child and yet, in the last dying moments he called a doctor. "It is a ghastly thing, I must find both parties guilty," declared the judge.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were charged jointly and were tried before county Judge James L. Killoran, without a jury.

FORD CAR HOUDAILLE HYDRAULIC SHOCK ABSORBERS

Positive—Smooth—Double Acting—

HOU DAILLE Hydraulic Shock Absorbers, four to every Ford car, are entirely defensive in their action since they remain inactive and in neutral position on smooth roads. Let a wheel encounter the slightest depression or bump, however, and they respond with the velvet precision of a cat's paw.

Houdaille Shock Absorbers were not adapted to the Ford car after it was built, but were part of the specifications laid down by the Ford engineers as they planned the car. Therefore, Houdailles, their powerful operation coordinated, became integral parts of the complete chassis. It is for this reason that they function with such perfect efficiency on the Ford car.

Houdailles absorb both the upward and downward thrust of the shock through slowing the spring action by means of a heavy glycerine solution, which is forced through a small valve from one compartment to another. They check the rebound of the car softly, exert no tension on the springs and are always ready to offer resistance to the blow when and as required. In fact, the more severe the shock, the more effectively Houdailles operate.

Different from any other shock absorber, the Houdaille connecting link between the frame and the axle of the car is a steel arm, not just a fabric strip to wear out and be replaced. Adjustable to suit differing road conditions and various loads, the Houdaille is more than a shock absorber and more than a snubber.

Inspect the Ford car carefully part by part. Then know the thrill of driving it. By its performance you will realize the easy riding comfort of an Houdaille equipped Ford.

"I could not stop Mark drinking," Cayley's letter went on, "but I kept him within certain bounds. Yes, I kept him outwardly decent; and perhaps now I was becoming like the cannibal who keeps his victim in good condition for his own ends. I used to gloat over Mark, thinking how utterly he was mine to ruin as I pleased, financially, morally, whatever way would give me most satisfaction. I had but to take my hand away from him and he sank. But again I was in no hurry.

"Then he killed himself. That futile little drunkard, eaten up with his own selfishness and vanity, offered his beastliness to the truest and purest woman on this earth. You have seen her, Mr. Gillingham, but you never knew Mark Ablett. Even if he had not been a drunkard, there was no chance for her of happiness with him.

"I had known him for many years, but never once had I seen him moved by any generous emotion. To have lived with that shriveled little soul would have been hell for her; and a thousand times worse hell when he began to drink.

"So he had to be killed. I was the only one left to protect her, for her mother was in league with Mark to bring about her ruin. I would have shot him openly for her sake, and with what gladness, but I had no mind to sacrifice myself needlessly. He was in my power; I could persuade him to almost anything by flattery; surely it would not be difficult to give his death the appearance of an accident.

"I need not take up your time by telling you of the many plans I made and rejected. For some days I inclined toward an unfortunate boating accident in the pond—Mark, a very indifferent swimmer, myself almost exhausted in a gallant attempt to hold him up.

"And then he himself gave me the idea, he and Miss Norris between them, and so put himself in my hands; without risk of discovery, I should have said, had you not discovered me.

"We were talking about ghosts. Mark had been even more vain, pompous and absurd than usual, and I could see that Miss Norris was irritated by it. After dinner she suggested dressing up as a ghost and frightening him. I thought it my duty to warn her that Mark took any joke against himself badly, but she was determined to do it. I gave way reluctantly. Reluctantly, also, I told her the secret of the passage.

"There is an underground passage from the library to the bowling green. You should exercise your ingenuity, Mr. Gillingham, in trying to discover it. Mark came upon it by accident a year ago. It was a godsend to him; he could drink there in greater secrecy. But he had to tell me about it. He wanted an audience even for his vices.

"I told Miss Norris, then, because it was necessary for my plan that Mark should be thoroughly frightened. Without the passage she could never have got close enough to the bowling green to alarm him properly, but as I arranged it with her she made the most effective appearance, and Mark was in just the state of rage and vindictiveness which I required. Miss Norris, you understand, is a professional actress. I need not say that her I appeared to be animated by no other feeling than a boyish desire to bring off a good joke—a joke directed as much against the others as against Mark.

"He came to me that night, as I expected, still quivering with indignation. Miss Norris must never be asked to the house again; I was to make a special note of it; never again. It was outrageous. Had he not a reputation as a host to keep up, he would pack her off next morning.

"I comforted him, I smoothed down his ruffled feathers. She had behaved very badly, but he was quite right; he must try not to show how much he disapproved of her. And of course she would never come again—that was obvious. And then suddenly I began to laugh. He looked up at me indignantly.

"Is there a joke?" he asked coldly.

"Is there a joke?" he said coldly. I laughed gently again.

"I was just thinking," I said, "that it would be rather amusing if you—well, had your revenge."

"My revenge. How do you mean?"

"Well, paid her back in her own coin."

"Do you mean to try and frighten her?"

"No, no; but dressed up and pulled her leg a bit. Made her look a fool in front of the others." I laughed to myself again. "Serve her jolly well right."

"He jumped up excitedly.

"By jove, Cay!" he cried. "If I could! How? You must think of a way."

"I don't know if Beverley has told you about Mark's acting. He was an amateur of all the arts, and in view of his little talents, but as an actor he seemed to himself most wonderful. Certainly he had some ability for the stage, so long as he had the stage to himself and was playing to an admiring audience. As a professional actor in a small part he would have been hopeless; as an amateur playing the leading part, he deserved all that the local papers had ever said about him.

"And so the idea of giving us a private performance, directed against a professional actress who had made fun of him, appealed equally to his vanity and his desire for retaliation. If he, Mark Ablett, by his wonderful acting could make Ruth Norris look a fool in front of the others, could take her in, and then join in the laugh at her afterward, he would indeed have had a worthy revenge!

"How, Cay, how?" he said eagerly.

"Well, I haven't really thought it out," I protested. "It was just an idea."

"He began to think it out for himself.

"I might pretend to be a manager, come down to see her—but I suppose she knows them all. What about an interviewer?"

"It's going to be difficult," I said thoughtfully. "You've got rather a characteristic face, you know. And your beard—"

"I'd shave it off," he snapped.

"My dear Mark!"

"He looked away, and mumbled, 'I've been thinking of taking it off, anyhow. And besides, if I'm going to do the thing, I'm going to do it properly.'"

"Yes, you always were an artist," I said, looking at him admiringly.

"He purred. To be called an artist was what he longed for most. Now I knew that I had him.

"All the same," I went on, "even without your beard and mustache you might be recognizable. Unless, of course—I broke off.

"Unless what?"

"You pretend to be Robert." I began to laugh to myself again. "By jove," I said, "that's not a bad idea. Pretend to be Robert, the wastrel brother, and make yourself objectionable to Miss Norris. Borrow money from her, and that sort of thing."

"Robert," he said. "Yes. How shall we work it?"

"There was really a Robert, Mr. Gillingham, as I have no doubt you and the Inspector both discovered. And he was a wastrel and he went to Australia. But he never came to the Red House on Tuesday afternoon. He couldn't have, because he died unannounced three years ago. But there was nobody who knew this, save Mark and myself, for Mark was the only one of the family left, his sister having died last year. Though I doubt, anyhow, if she knew whether Robert was alive or dead. He was not talked about.

For the next two days Mark and I worked out our plans. You understand by now that our aims were not identical. Mark's endeavor was that his deception should last for, say, a couple of hours; mine that he should go to the grave with him. He had only to deceive Miss Norris and the other guests; I had to deceive the world.

"When he was dressed up as Robert, I was going to kill him. Robert would then be dead, Mark (of course) missing. What could anybody think but that Mark had killed Robert? But you see how important it was for Mark to enter fully into his latest (and last) impersonation. Half measures would be fatal.

"You will say that it was impossible to do the thing thoroughly enough. I answer again that you never knew Mark. He was being what he wished most to be—an artist. No Othello ever blacked himself all over with such enthusiasm as did Mark. His beard was going anyhow—possibly a chance remark of Miss Norbury's helped here. She did not like beards. But it was important for me that the dead man's hands should not be the hands of a mannequin. Five minutes playing upon the vanity of the artist settled his hands. He let the nails grow and then cut them raggedly. 'Miss Norris would notice your hands at once,' I had said. 'Besides, as an artist—'

"So with his underclothes. It was hardly necessary to warn him that his pants might show above the edge of his socks; as an artist he had already decided upon Robertson's pants. I bought them, and other things, in London for him. Even if I had not cut out all trace of the maker's name, he would have instinctively have done it. As an Australian and an artist, he could not have an East London address on his underclothes. Yes, we were doing the thing thoroughly, both of us; he as an artist, I as a—well, you may say murderer, if you like. I shall not mind now.

"Our plans were settled. I went to London on the Monday and wrote him a letter from Robert. (The artistic touch again.) I also bought a revolver. On the Tuesday morning he announced the arrival of Robert at the breakfast table. Robert was now alive—we had six witnesses to prove it; six witnesses who knew that he was coming that afternoon. Our private plan was that Robert should present himself at three o'clock, in readiness for the return of the golfing party shortly afterward.

"The maid would go to look for Mark, and having failed to find him, come back to the office to find me entertaining Robert in Mark's absence. I would explain that Mark must have gone out somewhere, and would myself introduce the wastrel brother to the tea-table. Mark's absence would not excite any comment, for it would be generally felt—indeed Robert would suggest it—that he had been afraid of meeting his brother. Then Robert would make himself amusingly offensive to the guests, particularly, of course, Miss Norris, until he thought that the joke had gone far enough.

"That was our private plan. Perhaps I should say that it was Mark's private plan. My own was different. (To be continued.)

Stefansson Says Island Important

Norway Prepares to Annex Jan Mayen in the Arctic AS BASE FOR PLANES Territory Will Be Boon for Whalers Declares Polar Explorer

London.—Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, predicted the rapid development of airways in the Arctic while discussing Norway's proposed annexation of Jan Mayen Island, in an exclusive interview with the United Press recently.

Stefansson said he did not see the value of the island in its present barren condition, but added that it could be made most important as a base for airplane and airship activities, and as a station for meteorological observations.

"It is quite true that, at present, the island is barren except for an Austrian log house," Stefansson said, "but I believe it can be advantageously used as a meteorological station and also for an airplane and ship base."

The explorer emphasized that air routes were most valuable in Arctic regions in view of the slowness of dog sled transportation.

"In more temperate regions," the explorer said, "airships must compete with railways, automobiles and ships. On the other hand, in the Arctic, the airplane and airship compete only with the most primitive modes of transportation, like in Alaska the dog teams and sleds, since there are often no railways and ships.

"In mid-winter it takes nine days for a dogteam to go from Fort Yukon to Fairbanks and it costs $150, but an airplane can go 100 miles an hour at a cost of only $125."

Inter-Empire Trade

Victoria Times (Lib.): This question of more inter-Empire trade is one for serious examination by competent authorities in the various Dominions and in Great Britain. We refuse to believe that, with adequate marketing facilities, reasonable shipping rates, and the removal of most of the existing artificial barriers to trade, our present purchases from Great Britain could not be vastly increased in a very short time and our imports from the United States proportionately decreased, which would mean, of course, that we also would be selling more to the United Kingdom.

JAMAICA AND CANADA

Kingston Jamaica Mail: Jamaica must not lose sight of what is an elementary truth, viz., that the future of the British West Indies is from the viewpoint of trade bound up with the Dominion of Canada. Jamaica can deliver the goods.

Poetry

"Poetry is the power of concentrating all the far-reaching resources of language at one point so that a single and apparently effortless expression rejoices the aesthetic imagination at the moment when it is most expectant and exacting, and the same time astonishes the intellect by a new aspect of the truth."—Dr. Bridges, the Poet-Laureate.

WHALING BASE

Oslo.—Jan Mayen Island, the barren spot in the Arctic Ocean, which Norway has announced she will annex, will prove of great importance to Norwegian fishing and whaling, in the opinion of Adolf Hoel, Polar explorer.

Commenting on the proposed annexation, Hoel said he believed the Government intended to create a harbor on the southern side of the island and establish an airplane base there from which to dispatch airplanes reconnoitering parties to search for seals, schools of herring and other fishes.

CANADA DISINTERESTED

Ottawa.—Jan Mayen Island in the Arctic, which Norway announces it will annex is not one of the worries of Canada, according to official information here. It is north of Iceland and east of Greenland and thus beyond any area over which Canada asserts a territorial jurisdiction.

Any disputed ownership is between Norway and Denmark, with the former seemingly having the stronger claim.

The U.S. Tariff Bill

Ottawa Journal (Cons): What is the answer? There can be but one. This country must recognize the right of the United States to make fiscal and other laws for the benefit of its own citizens. The matter is not debatable. But, on the other hand, it would be sheer recreancy to Canada, sheer economic and political madness, for the Government of this country not to meet what Washington has done with action prompt and suitable. There is no question of relation, no question of bad feeling, no question of an economic war. It is simply and solely a matter of Canada doing for her own citizens what the United States has done for her citizens. A question of putting Canada first.

Stefansson Says Island Important

Norway Prepares to Annex Jan Mayen in the Arctic AS BASE FOR PLANES Territory Will Be Boon for Whalers Declares Polar Explorer

London.—Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, predicted the rapid development of airways in the Arctic while discussing Norway's proposed annexation of Jan Mayen Island, in an exclusive interview with the United Press recently.

Stefansson said he did not see the value of the island in its present barren condition, but added that it could be made most important as a base for airplane and airship activities, and as a station for meteorological observations.

"It is quite true that, at present, the island is barren except for an Austrian log house," Stefansson said, "but I believe it can be advantageously used as a meteorological station and also for an airplane and ship base."

The explorer emphasized that air routes were most valuable in Arctic regions in view of the slowness of dog sled transportation.

"In more temperate regions," the explorer said, "airships must compete with railways, automobiles and ships. On the other hand, in the Arctic, the airplane and airship compete only with the most primitive modes of transportation, like in Alaska the dog teams and sleds, since there are often no railways and ships.

"In mid-winter it takes nine days for a dogteam to go from Fort Yukon to Fairbanks and it costs $150, but an airplane can go 100 miles an hour at a cost of only $125."

Inter-Empire Trade

Victoria Times (Lib.): This question of more inter-Empire trade is one for serious examination by competent authorities in the various Dominions and in Great Britain. We refuse to believe that, with adequate marketing facilities, reasonable shipping rates, and the removal of most of the existing artificial barriers to trade, our present purchases from Great Britain could not be vastly increased in a very short time and our imports from the United States proportionately decreased, which would mean, of course, that we also would be selling more to the United Kingdom.

WHALING BASE

Oslo.—Jan Mayen Island, the barren spot in the Arctic Ocean, which Norway has announced she will annex, will prove of great importance to Norwegian fishing and whaling, in the opinion of Adolf Hoel, Polar explorer.

Commenting on the proposed annexation, Hoel said he believed the Government intended to create a harbor on the southern side of the island and establish an airplane base there from which to dispatch airplanes reconnoitering parties to search for seals, schools of herring and other fishes.

Scottish Church Union Imminent

General Assemblies of Two Branches to Meet Last Time

Edinburgh, Scotland.—The General Assemblies of the two great Presbyterian churches will meet for the last time as separate bodies near the close of this month in Edinburgh, when the eyes of Scotsmen and Scotswomen the world over will be turned towards the city. During their sittings the assemblies will come to a decision of momentous import to the Scottish people; after 20 years of negotiation union is at last to be an accomplished fact. The final steps which constitutional procedure requires will be taken in the autumn. Many questions concerning church life and work at home and abroad will be discussed but the subject of union will overshadow all others.

The Church of Scotland membership is practically unanimous for union. At the last assembly an amendment for the rejection of the scheme received only seven votes. In the United Free Church, however, although an overwhelming majority are keen to go forward into the larger union, there is a minority led by Rev. James Barr, with a vote at the last assembly of 48 ministers and elders, which is determined to prosecute with all energy the arrangements for a continuing church.

FREE FROM STATE.

The majority maintain that by the acts of 1921 and 1925 the Church of Scotland freed herself of state control and interference and that the financial bond between church and state was broken. The minority believe the action proposed is against the principle of religious equality which they count as sacred a principle as spiritual freedom itself, and to the principle of voluntary support of religious ordinances.

In the debates which have taken place in the United Free Church Assembly in recent years there has been an absence of rancor in the speeches, the majority having always admitted that those who have consistently identified themselves with the minority have taken the stand in response to the dictates of conscience. There is no suggestion that the parting when it comes will be bitter.

The General Assembly of the United Free Church, having in November last voted by an overwhelming majority in favor of the union, the Presbyteries, Kirk sessions and congregations were asked to express their opinion. The great majority in each case was in support of the scheme. The figures now made public are: Presbyteries, 63 for and none against; Kirk sessions, 1,302 for, 91 against; congregations, 1,320 for, 104 against.

DUKE'S APPOINTMENT.

The appointment of the Duke of York as Lord High Commissioner of the Church of Scotland has given great joy to the Scottish people. It is regarded as a signal act of Royal favor. At the close of the assembly last year it was tentatively agreed that in the event of union taking place Their Majesties the King and Queen should attend the service in St. Giles' Cathedral at which the uniting covenant would be signed. The King's illness, however, made that impossible and it is considered a graceful act on His Majesty's part to send his son. The Duke will be the first member of the Royal family to attend the assembly since James VI. did more than 300 years ago.

His Royal Highness and the Duchess will take up residence at the Palace of Holyrood for 10 days and carry through a busy program of visits to the General Assembly and the numerous charitable and philanthropic institutions in the city.

Members of the Church of Scotland have chosen as their moderator the Rev. Dr. Joseph Mitchell, Mauchline, who has been a warm supporter of the union movement and a valuable servant on committees of the church. The United Free Church moderator is Rev. Dr. Alexander Martin, principal of New College, Edinburgh, who was moderator also in 1920. He has given years of labor to the cause of union. The moderator of the Free Church is Prof. J. R. Mackay, a distinguished theologian and scholar.

W. M. Birks Finds Britain Improved

Head of Chamber of Commerce Returns After Long Visit

W. M. Birks, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, accompanied by Mrs. Birks and Miss Lois Birks arrived in Montreal in the special train from the Empress of Canada which docked at Quebec. They spent some time in Europe, in the course of which Mr. Birks motor-travelled through five countries besides Britain.

"The progress of Canadian industry and commerce is greatly appreciated in Great Britain," he said. "A proof of this is the fact that the Chambers of Commerce in London, Birmingham and Manchester were sending delegates to the Alberta convention in September. Trade is improving in England. I thought the improvement might be largely fictitious and the leaders of industry might be waltzing to keep their country."

Wet Weather Halts Farming Operations

Grain Growing Districts of Ontario Are Most Seriously Affected

The wet weather that has prevailed this spring in York and adjacent counties has had a somewhat adverse effect on farm conditions. Seeding is reported two weeks to a month late in some localities. Grain growing sections are affected most, but gardening conditions are reported as less serious. A late season for the gardener, however, may mean the loss of the early market.

Farmers of Scarborough are anxious to see a few days of dry weather, said W. D. Annis, clerk of the township. He stated that many of the prominent farmers had reported that their farming operations were retarded a full month.

Market gardeners and vegetable producers in East York Township report fairly good conditions prevalent. James Muirhead, of Agincourt, states that crops, such as oats and barley are coming along nicely in most cases. Fall wheat, on the other hand, requires dry ground, and the general effect of the recent storms has been to rot a good deal of it. In my estimation this is going to be an off year, though an immediate drying up of the weather may yet allow a fair crop," Mr. Muirhead considers that the hay crop is the most promising at present.

The Donalds Farm in York Township, the property of Mrs. D. A. Dunlap, is very well advanced in seeding, according to the superintendent, Dr. R. M. Jenkins. "We are fortunate in being on fairly high ground. Some others have their fields so wet that they have done very little seeding." "In Markham Township the fall wheat came along very well in the early spring," said Norman Porter. "The cold wet weather that followed held it back considerably, and a week ago it seemed pretty bad," he went on. "The last few days of warmth, however, have improved it fifty per cent."

Jess Baker, of Vaughan, who farms 250 acres, said that he had let the cattle out to grass on Friday, which is rather late.

Continued rains in Ontario County have greatly retarded the seeding and planting operations, according to W. M. Crokery, district representative for the department of agriculture. The grain-producing lands of Peel County are still half unseeded, according to G. R. Patterson, of the Department of Agriculture. He said that the northern section of the county in the vicinity of Caledon was in much better shape than the central and southern sections. The season opened earlier in the north on the sloping land and the few days of dry weather had given the section an early start. Spring wheat will be short, hay crops good and alfalfa, except in the low-lying parts, exceptionally good.

"The season is much delayed," said A. P. McVannell, of Milton. "There has been a heavy rain each week and that has held back operations, especially on the heavier land. The seeding around Georgetown and Acton is well on, but other places are not so fortunate."

Vehicles

Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph (Ind.): The opposition of the farming class to a general provincial law is part prejudice, part obstinacy and part laziness, but if the driver of a horse-drawn vehicle were risking only his own life the Government might well take the stand, under the circumstances, that his blood is on his own head. In point of fact, however, he is as much a potential menace to all other traffic upon the road as speeding motorists can possibly be to him.

Flashing Signs Barred by Edict of Regent Street

London's Rue de la Paix and Fifth Avenue Combined Sets High Standard

London.—The merchants whose shops and stores have turned the rebuilt Regent Street into an English Rue de la Paix and Fifth Avenue combined are strongly in favor of newspaper advertising and just as strongly opposed to garish electric signs and other objectionable means of attracting attention.

This attitude received pronounced expression at the first annual dinner of the Regent Street Association, at which the Lord Mayor of London and many other distinguished guests were present.

A great deal of Regent Street is the property of the Crown, and one of the speakers at the dinner was A. S. Gaye, Commissioner for Crown Lands.

"Regent Street is not going to shrink from advertisement," he declared. "For advertisement is the sort of stimulant without which no trade in these days can enjoy health and vitality. But there are many ways of advertising. Within 100 yards of this room we can see a form of advertising by electric signs."

"We shall fight against anything of that sort being introduced on any large scale in Regent Street. There are plenty of other ways of advertising, particularly by our shop windows and in the press. In relying on newspaper advertising we should intrust the work to men and women with a fine sense of language and for our pictorial art we should employ the finest talent available."

British Officials In India Guarded

Serious Developments Among Natives, According to Reports

London.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Calcutta, India, reports that stringent precautions had been taken to guard high British officials because of "serious developments" among the natives.

The dispatch said reports filtering in from the hills showed that the Indian Government was facing difficulties, the nature of which have not been explained.

There were rumors current of secret movements of troops and military personnel and material throughout northern India, the correspondent said.

The Daily Mail dispatch said heavy guards had been placed around public buildings, and that Lord Irwin, the Viceroy, and various provincial governors and high civil and military officers were protected by guards.

Nearly thirty blind men are now practising with more or less success in the legal profession, three being recently called to the Bar.

Ferocious Beasts Affright Bathers

Shallower Beaches in Southern Pacific Dangerous For Summer

Sydney, N. S. W., May 18.—(A.P.)—Ferocious snakes, giant octopi, and salt water crocodiles have given a dangerous aspect recently to shallower sections of much of the Southern Pacific, which hitherto have been free from these menaces.

T. Vangioni while swimming in Akarga Harbor, New Zealand, endured terrific agony in the grip of tentacles of a giant octopus. A friend dived into the water and beat off the sea brute with a club, Vangioni being on the point of collapse when rescued.

He said he had dived into deep water when what he described as two devil's eyes, glowing and ferocious, seemed to dart down upon him, and even before the tentacles grasped him he felt utterly powerless. An uncanny fascination or paralyzing horror made him almost incapable of effort against the muscular and tenacious grip. Almost more terrifying than the amazing strength of the tentacles was an electric wire, which they seemed to impart, but whether this was real or due to terrified imagination he could not say.

People of North Queensland who have abandoned the practice almost everywhere of the distinct hot days have abandoned the practice almost altogether as consequence of invasion of salt water crocodiles.

At Carns three youths were bathing in an inclosure near the shore when one of them, Kevl Conlin, age 14, who was in water only 18 inches deep suddenly leaped into the air with a cry of agony. His companions were horrified to see pointing from the water the long jagged jaws of a crocodile wide open ready to snap again at the boy.

One happened to have with him a long pole, with which they had been engaged in some water sports, and with great presence of mind he raised this and brought it crashing down on the snout. Seizing their dazed and bleeding companion, they made for the shore, but the crocodile followed and made another vicious snap at Conlin, this time just missing his left leg, which, on account of a terrible gash in the hip, was trailing helplessly in the water.

After three human tragedies attributed to sharks at Bondi Beach, near the heart of Sidney, a commercial shark fishing company spread huge nets between two ships and secured 29 sharks, one of them a tiger shark, the most ferocious of the species, 20 feet in length and weighing between 800 and 900 pounds.

Several of the catch were "whaler" sharks, a kind which preys on whales. Some of these were found to have received amazing wounds, presumably in battles with the mammals, two being so maimed as to be half eaten away.

"The Raiding Chancellor"

Economic in the Review of Reviews (London): Mr. Churchill may go down to history as a bold but not as a successful Chancellor of the Exchequer. His first Budget was responsible for saddling the nation with a pension scheme which will not become self-supporting, even on his own calculations, until the year of grace 2005. In every other Budget he has raided one fund or resource after another, and has thus cleared out every nest-egg. He has the highly dubious record of having, by a species of financial legerdemain almost without parallel, imposed upon the super-taxpayer an extra year's tax. By the device of changing its name and calling it a surtax, he collects both super-tax and surtax on the same year's income.

Former Shah of Persia is Dying

Ahmed Kadjar, Dethroned and Forgotten, Nears Death in Exile

Paris.—Persia's king of kings, dethroned, forgotten, abandoned by almost all of his followers, is slowly nearing his death in exile, his doctors agreeing that there is little hope of his recovery and giving him but a few months longer to live.

The former shah recently underwent an operation at the American hospital at Neuilly, in the suburbs of Paris. The surgeons found that his condition was far more critical than the diagnosis had indicated. He is suffering from severe kidney trouble which has reached a stage where there is little that medical science can do. Since the king of kings has learned of the seriousness of his situation he had grown morbid, which is a handicap to his recovery. Since his dethronement, Ahmed Kadjar has been abandoned by almost his whole suite of followers. He receives very few visits at the hospital. Samad Khan, former Persian Minister to France, and Hassan Mohamed Mirza are about the only visitors the king receives, except a few members of his former household.

Before he became ill the former Shah was a popular figure in French society, in the theatres and in the restaurants of fashion, where he was always accompanied by strikingly beautiful women. His finances appeared sound, following his 1,000,000 franc coup on the Paris Bourse, although he did lose heavily in an industrial and oil slump.

He has engaged in politics but little. Even before he was dethroned he spent most of his time in Paris and very little in Persia. He often remarked that power was thrust upon him when his father abdicated the throne, before Ahmad Kadjar had a chance to play. He was only 11 at the time. He is but 31 now.

Even his death would cause almost no political concern in Persia, for he has no political followers. His brother, Hassan Mohamed, 30, has political ambitions, according to prominent Persians. If death overcomes the Shah his brother is expected to replace him as pretender to the throne. Hassan is ambitious to become the eighth Shan-in-Shah of the Kadjar dynasty. He insists that he alone is able to restore the dynasty.

Spain's King Opens Fair

Release of Thousands of White Pigeons Adds Brilliance to Scene as Alfonso XIII Declares Ibero-American Exposition Open—Dictator Attends Ceremony

SEVILLE EXHIBITION

Seville, Spain.—Despite all misgivings as to the success of the Ibero-American exhibition, Seville has suddenly become a city of crowded streets. The big fair was solemnly opened by King Alfonso in seven short words.

The ceremony took place in the Plaza de Espana in the centre of the exhibition grounds, the imposing spectacle being witnessed by a crowd estimated at 70,000 gathered under a serene blue and cloudless sky.

The arrival of the King, Queen and Infanta was announced by salvos of guns, the signal for a tremendous ovation, while thousands of white pigeons were liberated over the tribune amid the waving flags of Spain and Portugal and the purple standard of Castile. On each side of the semicircle were seen the diplomatic representatives of the American republics, resplendent in gold-braided uniforms. Opposite were the Cabinet ministers and Spanish grandees, and on the left the flower of Spain's aristocracy.

Gen. Primo de Rivera in the course of his speech said: "Our words vibrate across the world to tell it of the close embrace which unites brothers and sons and members of the same race."

Apart from its political significance the fair is regarded as an event of unusual importance. Only after the greatest difficulty did authorities succeed in completing their preparations. Even now some of the buildings are not ready for the inauguration, as, for instance, the Argentine pavilion.

The Government meanwhile is determined to end the harmful propaganda about conditions in Spain, and it is announced that a Madrid newspaper has been fined 50,000 pesetas for publishing an untrue item regarding an alleged brawl in Seville. This in fact was the only discordant note in the news of the inaugural ceremonies.

It is always risky to give a man who can not control his own manpower fifty or seventy-five horsepower to control.—Boston Herald.

"How can I tell if my daughter has the gift of painting?" asks a reader. "You can usually see it in her face!"—Glasgow Eastern Standard.

MODERN BUILDING—for permanence, low-upkeep and appearance—sounds the death-knell of wooden roofs. The dangers of fire to the building itself, to other buildings and to human life is rapidly being banished by metal roofs of high quality.

RE-ROOF WITH RIB ROLL
The appearance of this roofing alone has sold thousands. Whenever a roof of this material is laid in any district, it immediately secures a preference, and others who are roofing a kind of building, whether it be barn, house, garage, shed or warehouse insist on Rib Roll. It is made to famous "Council Standard" specifications.

EASY TO LAY ON NEW ROOFS OR OVER OLD ROOFS
The cost of laying Rib Roll is lower than that of nearly all other types of roofing. Any man who is handy with a hammer can put it on. Its handsome appearance adds many dollars to the value of your property. Send ridge and rafter measurements of roof or roofs in question, for free estimate of cost.

RIB-ROLL
A "close-up" of Rib-Roll and the Preston Led-Hed Nail. Note the tight fitting, overlapping weather-proof joint. It is invisible from even a short distance away. Illustration shows the neat pattern which has been widely but unsuccessfully copied.

PRESTON LED-HED NAILS
The new nail with the lead on the head. No loose "tubs" can be handled over with mite on. The lead on the head seals the nail-holes—makes it weather proof, watertight. Only per lb. Free samples on request.
