Woolf Is Supreme

Elected in Cardston District
by 136 Majority

It was Woolf and the figures tell the story.

The provincial elections in Cardston, Monday, passed off without any remarkable incidents.
During the day rigs were dashing hither and thither, rounding up voters. No accident of any kind marred the proceedings, and the best of good fellowship prevailed.
A few bets were made, but the amounts let out for speculation were of a small character.

There was a big crowd upon the streets to hear the results. The first return to come in was from Cardston which placed Mr. Woolf 73 in the lead, and as the race horse editor says, he never was headed. After the results were declared a large fire was made in front of the Implement Co's. buildings. Mr. Pelsom's lumber wagon was brought into service (so was his lumber yard) and an improvised railway was thus made to haul timber to the conflagration.
It was also used to give Mr. Woolf
a free ride, which ended in him being taken to the stores where he treated the boys to peanuts and candy.

Everything was orderly and the fun kept up till mid-night, after which the crowd went home.

The details of the vote were:—

	Woolf	Harker
Cardston	166	93
Magrath	77	85
Milk River	10	3
Conits	13	2
Warner	19	0

By-law Quashed

The case of L. B. Young v
Town of Cardston re Pool License By-Law, came in Calgary a week ago Tuesday, before Chas.
A. Stuart, J. S. C. W. C. Ives appeared for the Plaintiffs and R. B.
Bennett for the Defendants. The Judges decision was as follows:—
"Upon consideration I have concluded that the By-law in question here is prohibitive and was intended to be so. So sudden and enormous a jump from $50 to $300
is to my mind extremely significant.
The former sum seems, from the evidence, to be about the average fee charged in the southern part of the province with the exception of one or two towns where, it may be, the same intention prevailed. As to the case of Neely v The Town of Owen Sound to which it was referred, I cannot treat it as an authority in point of law. I have to come to my own conclusion upon what are rather questions of fact, viz: Is the By-law before me prohibitive and was it intended to be so? In a town such as Cardston I think it is in fact prohibitive whatever it may have been in the Owen Sound case, as to the preliminary objection, I dealt with that in Loisel v Town of Red Deer 7w.
L.R. 42 to which case I refer.
The By-Law will be quashed
without costs."

Bout Was a Good One

Fifteen Round Contest Ends In Draw

The boxing fans who witnessed the bout Monday evening between Joe Reid and Clark are loud in their praises of the good scrap these two men put up. The battle was a draw. Reid was taller and heavier than his opponent, but notwithstanding this he had his hands full to hold his own with Clark who, considering that he is only 21 years of age, is a wonder.
The local preliminary men were good in their bout.

The referee was Mr. Blair, of the Cocksbutt Plow Co. while the time keeping was in the hands of Mr. Alf Talbot. The Rink was crowded and everything passed off in an orderly manner. It is expected that another match between the same parties will be pulled off
in about a month.

Wedding Bells

The marriage of Miss Hazel
Pitcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Edward Pitcher, to Mr. David H.
Holland, was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother on Monday, the 22nd, at 7.30 o'clock,
Pres. E. J. Wood and Thos. Duce officiating.

Invitations were issued to the many relatives of the bride and groom.

After the ceremony guests to the number of forty sat down to a repast carefully prepared and deftly served.

Pres. E. J. Wood
To Be Honored

Resolution:

In consideration of the faithful and untiring labors of President Edward J. Wood in behalf of the Saints of the Alberta Stake of Zion in general, and in common with the other auxiliary organizations, for the Sabbath Schools of our Stake, and as an expression of our confidence in the wisdom of his councils and a token of our appreciation of his worthiness as a servant of the Lord, be it resolved by the Stake Sunday School Board and the Officers and teachers of the Alberta Stake of Zion
in Union meeting assembled—

That we tender to President
Wood a reception on the evening of Tuesday March 30, 1909.

That all Sabbath School workers throughout the Stake are expected to attend.

That the members of the District of each ward, with their wives are requested to participate
That the other members of the Stake Presidency, the members of the High Council, the presiding officers of all Stake organizations of the Priesthood, with their wives, and the Stake Superintendents of all auxiliary organizations, be cordially invited to be present.

Horse Show

The annual Spring Horse Show
to be held in Cardston, Saturday, April 3rd, promises to be a grand success. The show will be in charge of the Fair Association, and will be held either in the
O. K. Stables, or at the Fair Grounds. The entry this year will be a large one, and a good showing will be made.

Farmers and ranchers who have horses to sell would do well
to see Pres. Hansen or Sec. S. M.
Woolf, as outside buyers as well
as local, will be present.

Provincial Elections

Rutherford Government Heartily Endorsed

The Provincial elections in Alberta are happily over and the expected has happened. Eight seats by acclamation to the Rutherford government supporters had given the country a cue to what was about to take place. It is evident that the satisfaction of the electors in the eight constituencies that went by acclamation has been general throughout the province.
In many instances the opposition candidates have forfeited their deposits and in very few instances have been elected.

Premier Rutherford is to be congratulated upon the very complete endorsement which his administration has received at the hands of the electors and especially because of the almost unanimous support that has been accorded to him by the electors of his home constituency. No provincial government has ever been returned to power with such hearty endorsement by the people of all shades of political belief. It is remarkable that many of the independent candidates running outside the party conventions appealed to the ratepayers on the ground that they were supporters of the Rutherford government and in some cases won out against the regular convention candidates.

Following is a list of the elected candidates throughout the province.

ACCLAMATIONS

- Lacombe—W. F. Puffer.
- Leo Sta Ann—Peter Gunn.
- Leduc—R. T. Telford.
- Pakan—P. E. Lessard.
- Pembina—H. W. McKenney.
- Sodgowliek—Chas. Sturat.
- Sturgeon—J. R. Boyle.

OPPOSITION

- Calgary—R. B. Bennett.
- Okotoks—Geo. Hoadley.
- Socialist
- Rocky Mountain—C. O'Brien.
- Deferred Elections.
- Athabasca.
- Peace River.

The result in Calgary was about what was expected. Having the opportunity to elect two members the electors divided their favours re-electing Mr. Cushing, the efficient Minister of Public Works, and giving the second seat to Mr. Bennett, whom Mr.
Cushing defeated three years ago.

Seeking Gautama's Favor

AND here, little one, are the durlans I promised thee." The young smiled broadly, as he saw the rapture with which little Nika accepted the capacious bag filled to its brim with the luscious durlans. "I thank thee, sir, for the fruit," he said, and Nika, flattered, because, good friends though the two were, she could not entirely forget that he was no less a personage than chief of police, and that meant he had chief authority in the Burmese town of Moulmein. But the young's smile grew broader, and he tweaked her chin encouragingly. "What is it, little daughter?" he asked.

He moved his sturdy little legs with a vigor wonderful to behold. Up, up the hill they went, until, when they paused an instant for breath, they could see below them the town of Moulmein, stretching along the great Salween river, where the crests of many descriptions lay at anchor. Across the river, a little to the north, lay the town of Martaban, and the gulf of Martaban itself could be seen plainly in the distance. Nika drank in the beauty of it all as she took a firmer clutch on Little Brother's arm before continuing the ascent. Soon they found themselves among

"THE GREAT CAVE, WITH ITS IDOLS OF BUDDHA"

"I—I was about to say, sir," began Nika, "that Little Brother and I were just going for a picnic up in the hills yonder, and that they present will be very useful."
"Useful, eh?" laughed the young. "Yes, I imagine you will find it useful." He nodded again in his friendly fashion as he turned away.
Grasping the bag of fruit in one hand and with the other taking firm hold of Little Brother's arm, Nika turned from the main street, which ran all of four miles parallel with the river, and plodded up a byway leading to the hills beyond.
Very pleasant it was this morning. The odor of fruit and flower came to her from the gardens placed before the palm-thatched houses of bamboo, which seemed possessed of great stillness, as they stood upon piles that raised them at least ten feet from the ground. In front of these cottages grew coconuts and betel palms, the giant bamboo, tamarind, mango and jack trees. Nor did Little Brother complain this morning that Big Sister walked too fast. You see, he was anxious to reach the hills, where he could taste of the durlans, and so no pace was too swift for him.

the groves of teak and bamboo and oil trees. Immediately they began to search for a place in which to hold their picnic.
All at once Nika paused. "It's too early to lunch," said she. "Suppose we visit the Pangoon Caves and look upon the divine Buddha."
Little Brother protested, as he gazed longingly upon the bag of tempting fruit, but Nika was determined, and they entered the great cave, with its idols of Buddha, or Gautama, as he is known in Burma.
Formerly the cave was used as a temple of worship. Even now the Burmese (especially women) visit it to worship the idols of Buddha. So Nika knelt before Gautama and besought his favor.
As she was about to leave, she murmured to Little Brother:
"I do wish I had a present for the great Gautama."
And then she thought of the durlans. It was the work of an instant to place the fruit at the feet of an idol.
Afterward she led away the sorrowful Little Brother, who was disappointed now that he could not lunch off the fruit. You see, he was much too small to understand why sacrifices should be made in order to merit a god's favor.

LASSEING A PONY AT THE ROUND-UP

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALMENTS
HOWARD RUTHERFORD is visiting his Cousin Jim, who lives at Pleasant Point, on the coast of Nova Scotia. He is about to write a letter to his father, asking permission to buy a pony, such as his cousin owns, when Jim induces him to go for a sail with Captain Barnaby in the fishing smack Saucy Minerva. The boys, together with Sim, a sailor, are out in a small boat traveling over the water. Here they are discovered by a mounted patrolman, who leads them to the home for shipwrecked sailors. Later they pay a visit to the superintendent of the life-saving station, George Freeman, a patrolman, takes the boys with him when he rides on a circuit about the island next morning. They observe the seals along the beach, inspect an outlook station, and then continue their ride.

The winds blew so furiously that frequently the sides of hills facing the sea were worn into tall cliffs, sand would be scooped up also and thrown into hills, 110 feet above high-water mark.
Now they left the seashore and rode toward the interior. The coarse grass which their ponies trampled rose to a height of two feet. Four or five different kinds of edible berries and flowers and shrubs grew in abundance.
"The groves of trees you see," George explained, "were planted by the Canadian government in 1901, both to bind the soil more firmly and for the purpose of making the island more easily seen from the ocean. We have a grant of $400 a year, you know. But we make some slight return by the sale of cranberries and wild ponies, of which, no doubt, you'll see a herd before very long; and by salvage from wrecked vessels."
Howard and Jim were very eager to learn more about the ponies, but by this time they had reached Lake Wallace, extending east from the shore ten miles, and measuring twelve feet in depth at low tide. And they immediately became quarters, listening to a round of tales. "The packet boat arrives tomorrow, by the way, and we'll have to rope some of the ponies."

Again Howard and Jim were going to ask about the wild ponies. As George had told them that they would learn everything on the morrow, however, they decided to postpone their questions, especially as it was bedtime.
CHAPTER IV
HOWARD BECOMES OWNER OF "SABLE"
BRIGHT and early next morning preparations were made to surround the wild ponies. Howard and Jim were attached to George's party, which had to go to the south of Lake Wallace.
"There are only about 200 ponies now," commented George as they rode along. "At one time I believe the herds numbered as many as 600. But each winter some of them die, and the frightful hurricanes cause a further decrease."
"How did the ponies get upon the island in the first place?" asked Howard.
"Probably from some Spanish wreck early in the sixteenth century," replied George; "although it is possible that when the French tried to colonize the island in 1618 and 1617 they may have left the ancestors of the ponies."
"There are five troops of them now, named after the localities of the island in which they feed. Funny thing about it, too, is that even after a round-up those left always return to their own grounds. Nor will they ever come to seek shelter in the sheds we built for them—they're so wild. Tough little fellows they are! When a storm comes on, the stallion leads the herd among the sandhills, where they're more or less protected; then he puts the colts in the center and the older ponies around them, while he takes the most exposed position of all."
After a time the party came in sight of a herd of ponies cropping the coarse grass around a fresh-water pond. As they approached nearer, the animals gathered the herd together. Placing himself in the rear, he directed the retreat, which began at a trot and soon became a swift gallop.
As the lads dashed after the herd, they observed the ponies closely. Great shaggy manes covered their big heads, an immense bushy tail waved behind. Strong limbed, with large shoulders, they indeed looked the sturdy animals George declared them to be. Most were of chestnut color, although there seemed to be many bays and browns.

In the meantime other parties of guardsmen had been rounding up the rest of the ponies, until all the animals were surrounded in one big pond.
Now began the most thrilling part of the performance. Into the kicking snorting mass of terrified horses a guardsman would ride. When he had selected his victim, a lasso would drift uncoil itself from his hand. In almost every case the horse would be roped. Afterward it would be thrown, bound, laid upon a handbarrow and trundled down to the shore, where it was placed in the surf boat and rowed off to the packet, now lying at a certain distance from shore.
Howard was admiring a handsome white pony, which had been thrown after a hard fight, when the superintendent approached.
"White ponies are mighty uncommon," said he, "and that's a fine fellow."
"How would you like to own him?" asked he suddenly.
"How would I?" exclaimed Howard. "Best thing in the world!" returned the superintendent with a smile.
"Then he's yours," returned the superintendent with a smile. Recovering from his astonishment, he thanked the superintendent again and again. Here was just such a pony as he had been longing for—seven times as good as any other he had seen! Indeed, it was too good to be true. But it WAS true, and he was the owner. He was to own the white pony with the boys, who were wretchedly anxious relatives as those returned from the dead.
People wondered at the name "Sable," which Howard gave to his pony. He thought a pony should be named after a color, and his pony was just as white as snow could be. But after Howard told the story of how he came to own "Sable"—and he never tired of relating it—they all agreed that the name was appropriate.
THE END.

The Awkward Boy who became Famous

TURNING his head neither to right nor left, the roughly clad boy made his way up the path leading to the house of Wyllam's schoolmaster. Wyllam at this time was a little village near Newcastle, in Northumberland, England. And the home at which the lad of 13 knocked was a very simple one.
"Well, what do you want?" asked the schoolmaster, as he shaded his eyes from the light carried in his hand. He did not altogether like having his studies interrupted in such fashion.

lad called on the schoolmaster he was plugman of a pumping engine, every detail of which he had studied so carefully that he could with ease have taken it apart and put it together again.
With eagerness the boy plunged into his studies. Acting as fireman and brakeman at the colliery during the day, he attended school in the evening, and even found time to earn money by repairing clocks. So diligently did he apply himself to learning, that in two years he knew all the schoolmaster fourteen miles an hour. People marveled; they laughed no longer. And when, in 1829, he so improved the "Rocket," that on a trial run over the Liverpool and Manchester Railway, it had a view from every side, they said, "that man had done it!"

But he still was simple in his manner. In spite of the honors heaped upon him, his king wished to make him a knight, but he insisted upon remaining plain George Stephenson.

"WHAT DO YOU WANT?"

"I want to learn to read and write," the boy replied.
For a moment the schoolmaster looked scornfully upon the homely face and poor clothing of the lad. Then he said scornfully:
"Very well, you may attend; but an awkward, bare-legged laddie like you had better be doing something else than learning his letters." Thereupon he slammed the door in the boy's face.
But the lad was not discouraged. At last he saw a chance for the fulfillment of his ambition. While the years were passing, his desire for learning had been growing. Up until now his father had been too poor to send him to school. Born in 1781 in a very hovel, with a clay floor, mud walls and bare rafters, at the age of 8 he began to work for his living, herding cows in the daytime and barring up the gates at night. Later he picked stones from coal, and afterward drove a horse which drew coal from the pit. He was it when he became assistant to his father, the foreman of a colliery in Wyllam. When the could teach him.

Soon the world discovered in the lad a great inventor. In 1815 he invented a miner's safety lamp. For some years he had been experimenting with steam locomotives, believing it was possible to put them to practical use. He finally induced the Kailworth colliery to construct a locomotive under his directions. Much ridicule did he meet about his engines. One gentleman said to him:
"Suppose you invent an engine capable of running nine or ten miles an hour. And suppose while it is running a cow should stray upon the track. Would not that be a very awkward circumstance?"
"I should think it might be very awkward—for the cow," was the reply.
At length he made an engine, the "Rocket," which attained a speed of

He Dreamed, Too
TWO little youngsters shambled penitently into the classroom long after the school had opened for the morning session.
"Boys, come to my desk immediately," said the teacher. He looked at the two meek little lads walked to the teacher's desk and stood looking helplessly at their feet.
"Tommy, why are you late this morning?" asked the teacher.
"I overslept myself, ma'am," began Tommy. "You see, teacher, I dreamed I was going to take a railroad trip. I just got to the station when I woke up and found it was long past schooltime."
"Freddy, why are you late?" inquired the teacher, turning to the other boy.
"Please, ma'am," replied the trembling Freddy. "I went to the station to see Tommy off."
A MISTAKE.
Husband—"Only think, my colleague Cohen, whom we had to dinner last Sunday, has died suddenly."
Wife—"How I wish we had invited him for next Sunday!"
Somehow a girl never feels that she's really well dressed unless her shoes hurt her.
Much happiness is due to ability to forget unpleasant things.

More Wonderful Still

ONCE upon a time an inspector was examining a very youthful class of Scotch boys, and among other subjects he requested the teacher to ask her pupils a few questions in nature knowledge. Desiring her class to do her honor, she decided upon the simple subject, "Chickens."
"Now, children," she said, "I want you to tell me something very wonderful about chickens."
"How they get out of their shells," promptly responded one little fellow.
"Well," said the teacher, "that is, of course, wonderful; but I mean something more wonderful still."
There was a silence for a few seconds. Then up spoke little Johnny. "Please, ma'am, it's marvellous how they ever get inside their shells!"
A country schoolmaster was examining his class. "If a carpenter wants to cover a roof 20 feet by 40 feet with boards 1 foot broad and 10 feet long, how many will he want?" asked the schoolmaster. A new boy took up his hat and made for the door. "Where are you off to?" asked the master. "To find a carpenter," replied the boy. "He ought to know better than us!"

PLANT WITH A BRAIN.
Captain S. Musgrave, who was in charge of Lord Robert's armored train in South Africa during the Boer War, has returned to England after a twenty months' mile trip through Colombia. Besides numerous specimens of plants, insects, and skins of animals the captain brought home a live ant-eater, which during the voyage to England was fed on bananas, rice, and milk. Captain Musgrave says that he had been on a zoological expedition, and had been successful in getting several fine specimens. He had, he said, discovered a specimen of a carnivorous plant which had a brain, digestive organs, and a nervous system like a human being.
Husband—"What! Another new dress?" Wife—"Well, don't be so cross. I bought it with my own money!" Husband—"Your own? Where did you get it from?" Wife—"I sold your fur coat."
"Hateful thing," she cried in the midst of their little quarrel was a silly goose when I made you." "Perhaps so," replied great brute. "At any rate were no chicken."

MARCH 26, 1909.

John W. Woolf, M. P. P.

J. W. WOOLF, WINNER

The confidence which the electors of the Cardston Constituency have shown in J. W. Woolf as representative of their riding is quite what we expected. The only wonder has been that any one was found willing to challenge his hold upon the favour of the people.

All parties worked hard and the victory of Mr. Woolf in this constituency is in keeping with the general victory of the government all over the province.

Twenty-two Liberals of the last Legislative Assembly sought re-election. Of these twenty-one were returned triumphant, J. T. Moore, of Red Deer being the only victim. Both Conservatives and the Labor member all went down before the storm of ballots, two of them losing their deposits.

THE GENERAL RESULTS

The province of Alberta rose in its might Monday and gave a decisive answer to the appeal of the Rutherford Government. At the last provincial election Alberta made a record and the sweep was the greatest in the history of the Dominion. But the Province made another record yesterday. The Rutherford administration was sustained by the greatest vote on record.

The opposition is numerically no stronger than in the last election, and comparatively weaker, in reality it is stronger, for of course Mr. Bennett is a much stronger man than either of the members of the opposition in the last election.

But if the opposition has gained, so has the government. The opposition has secured one strong man, but the government has gained half a dozen. Duncan Marshall of Olds, is, perhaps the most prominent of the new members elect. Geo. P. Smith of Camrose, and W. A. Buchanan are two other strong men, well known throughout the province. Louis Roberts of High River is another good man, in fact every addition to the house is worthy of keeping up the high standard of the provincial legislature.

This has been a disastrous season for opposition leaders. One was beheaded in Red Deer a couple of months ago. Another was beaten in Cochrane riding yesterday.

A bit of color will be added to the next house by the presence of a Socialist member.

The feature of the election was the remarkable, wonderful expression of confidence of the people in the Rutherford administration.

There were some very picturesque contests. The election in Calgary was probably the most interesting one. Next to that was the battle in Edmonton, which was won by Hon. C. W. Cross. He was opposed by a solid force of the corporation vote, which was thirsting for revenge. He defied them to do their worst, and they did. He placed the facts before the people of Edmonton and they rose to the occasion and gave a decisive answer to the men who tried to put him out of business.

The greatest surprise was in the election in Medicine Hat, which was looked upon as an even break, and was regarded as pretty even right to the end of the struggle.

At Nanton, Horatius went down with the bridge. The province has given its answer. No person can misunderstand it.

You can't keep a good man down.

The Magrath Pioneer is evidently sore over the results of the election in this constituency, as they have a two column editorial commenting upon the defeat of Levi Harker.

I can sniff the scent of spring coming softly on the wing. I can hear the zephyr's croon and the ice-freed river's tune. Spring is near! I can almost see the bee buzzing o'er with ecstasy, and beyond the ridge a calf makes me double up and laugh! Spring is near. There's a robin! Well, I guess I will have to phone The Press. That's the first one of the year. Yep, you bet you, spring is here, spring is here! Ah, my cool is gone, I see burned out slick as it can be. Spring is near! I have worn it up and down 'till my overcoat is brown and my wife says—think of that—she must have a new spring hat! Spring is near! There's my taxes too, to pay! I must meet that note to-day! Ah, I'll find that spring is here ere I'm quite prepared I fear! Spring is near.—Western Publisher,

The theatre-goers of Canada have come to look upon A. D. McPhee as a faithful caterer to the amusement loving public. In past years his now famous organization has won the confidence and approval of every town and city in Canada. This year he will present the old original and ever popular McPhee's Big company in an entirely new line of plays, an elegant band and orchestra, and the very latest of up-to-date novelty specialties between the acts. The company will number 32 people, and all special scenery will be carried for each play. This company has been touring the East for the last two years and will start for the West early in March.

Manager A. D. McPhee is now in New York City securing his people for the Western trip and the company will be under his personal management. They will appear here during the summer, presenting the beautiful Four Act Comedy Drama "The Girl I Love."

Two special Pulman Palace cars are required to transport the outfit.

J. W. Woolf, ex-M. P. P. has emerged victorious from the hardest campaign ever known in the Cardston district, having had to put up a big fight alike for the nomination and the election. His victory is a recognition by the electors of his excellent work as their representative and of his ability to serve them well. In Mr. Harker, he had a strong and popular contestant, one worthy of the steel of any foe. Mr. Woolf and the people of the Cardston district are to be congratulated on his signal victory.—Leth. Among the members of the new Alberta Legislature are two well known newspaper editors—Duncan Marshall of the Edmonton Bulletin, who has been elected in Olds, and W. A. Buchanan of the Lethbridge Herald, who headed the polls in Lethbridge.

A correspondent writes strongly on the evils of private gossip. It is perhaps not generally recognized that the libel which appears in a newspaper is the least dangerous of all attacks upon private character. The blow is delivered in the open; the person struck may strike back, may vindicate himself in the courts, but a story circulated through private gossip may travel and gather strength and venom for months or years without the victim being made aware of the mischief. He may find friends growing cold without suspecting the cause.—Toronto Star.

The many friends throughout the Province of Mr. E. N. Barker of Cardston, who recently accepted the post of associate editor of the Homestead and who will shortly remove to Edmonton to take up his duties, will keenly sympathize with him on learning of the death of his wife, which took place in New York on March 10, after an illness of some months. Mrs. Barker was an exceptional woman in a large variety of ways and made a deep impression upon all who came to know her. She had a mind of rare brightness, was a delightful companion and an ideal wife and helpmate. She married Mr. Barker twenty-seven years ago. The funeral took place on Friday last, the body being laid to rest in the cemetery at New Windsor on the banks of the Hudson river, her old home, besides that of her father and mother and her only child.—Saturday News Edmonton

The School Board of Magrath has taken steps to erect a fine new public school. It will be a brick building with ten classrooms, two of which can be made into an auditorium. It will have a full basement and will be fully modern in every way. F. B. Rolfsen is preparing the plans. It is estimated to cost between thirty and thirty-five thousand dollars.

We sympathize with the man who wrote the following. The editor of to-day has to get his nose down to the grindstone and keep there sixteen hours per day and 365 days in the year, or he falls by the wayside. There are men who quit work Saturday night and rest until Monday morning. They lay aside business cares at five or six o'clock every evening and do not resume them until seven or eight the next morning. Not so your editor. He has no elegant leisure. He knows no hours, no Sunday, no night. When he goes to a party, or to church, or on an alleged pleasure trip, it is all in the line of duty. Withal, your editor is a cheerful, long suffering soul, going about doing good in his humble way. He writes long puffs of church socials, and in return therefor accepts a chunk of cake that would sink a battleship. He notes the arrival of all the babies in the neighbourhood and eternally perjures his soul in telling how pretty they are. He rejoices with the gay and mourns with those who are sad. He booms every enterprise which makes his community rich and goes about himself clothed in shoddy coats and one suspender. He glories over the fortune of his neighbour, and meekly eats his own repast of boiled corn cobs and colored labels off tomato cans.

The Alberta Star

News From The Mission Field

Editor Cardston Star,

Will you kindly permit me a little space in your columns to give my friends and those I love my appreciation and thanks together with the love of the few Saints of the Swinton Branch of the Manchester Conference among whom I have been called to labor, for the kind token they have sent to aid us, in the grand work of the Lord; engaged in by his humble servants. Little do a great many of us at home know what a few pennies will do to spread truth in the world to mankind, and from the gratitude of my heart together with the saints here we thank you for your assistance given us and so promptly which shows a liberal feeling. Little, I say did some of my friends think they were aiding the work of God so much by giving their 50c to aid us in spreading truth as they were for tonight we will lead five honest souls down into the waters of Baptism as a result of our faithful labors.

I would like, if you can spare a little space Mr. Editor to give a brief history of our labors since I left home on the 23rd day of November. After bidding friends and loved ones good bye, we, (Elder John Layne and myself) started for the fountain head of the Church and on the 4th day of December (being my birthday) were set apart for a mission to Great Britain. Starting on our journey the same evening and in a few moments 26 embassadors of truth became as brothers, singing the songs of Zion as we passed from state to state finally landing in Navoo we sought the places and land marks made by many of our fathers visiting winter quarters now known as Florence, among them being the grave yard and tree planted therein by Brigham Young which was all in a dilapidated condition, from here we continued singing the songs of Zion and hearing the testimonies to each other as we continued our journey, and I thought how different it was with us than with our fathers 60 years ago, when they left their beautiful city at the point of Bayonet in the dead of winter fleeing to winter quarters (or Florence) thus accounting for the many graves there, Passing by Niagara with all of its beautiful scenery, we arrived in Portland Maine, when we set sail on the ship "Canada," on Dec 12th. What transpired after a few hours I will bury in the sea, as I buried all I had gained for days before, and those I do not want to resurrect as they were anything but pleasant. Two deaths occurred and I thought I would not object to three. Arriving in Liverpool Dec. 20th we met Elders Joseph Card and Scott Brown and experiencing a much pleasanter time than the eight previous days, I was appointed to labor in the Manchester Conference, assigned to labor with Elder Joseph F. Evans of Salt Lake to try and open up a branch of the Church in Swinton and surrounding cities. We went to work as assigned. The report was soon circulated that the Mormons had again landed and Ministers were warning their flock to beware of those horrible Mormons. Thus we soon became notable characters and the way we were stared at on the street you would have thought we were curious beings from some foreign land. We at once set to work to try and find a hall to preach in but no one desired to rent us a hall at any price so we were determined to open up a branch of the Church here, we rented an up stair room over an old bakery with the gable end out, bricked up the end ourselves, white-washed and scrubbed floor, etc., and went to work to procure a few benches, stove, table etc., and began to preach Mormonism in Swinton. So the small contribution of our friends there aided us in getting our benches and stove etc., and we appreciate it greatly with thankful hearts, and

Is Prohibition a Dismal Failure?

In order to test the truth of the statement made by friends to the effect that Prohibition is a failure Mr. I. B. Ball of this city wrote J. R. Mulvane, president of the Bank of Topeka, Topeka, Kans., last week. His answer has arrived and has been submitted to the Deseret News. The "News" in turn submits it to its readers:

Topeka, Kansas, Jan 15, 1909.
I. B. Ball, Esq., 219 South Main St., Salt Lake City, Utah,
Dear Sir—

It is with pleasure that I reply to your enquiry of 11th inst., relative to the effects of prohibition on the prosperity of this state.

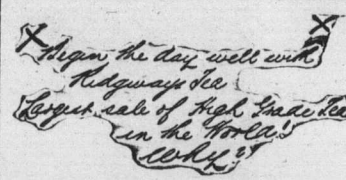

Kansas never was more prosperous than she is today. Conditions have constantly proved during the past 15 years. Ninety-five of our counties maintain poorhouses and in forty of these there are no inmates; in many counties there are no occupants in the county jails I am quite sure you cannot point to a liquor state where conditions approach this. In Shawnee county, our own county, we have less people in our poorhouse than we had when our population was only half as large as it is now. There have been a few towns where the prohibitory law was not enforced, until within a short time ago and in these towns conditions have not been so good as in the law abiding places; in fact they have had a decidedly decadent appearance.

As to the city of Topeka, I can assure you that we are in a very prosperous condition. Our bank clearings amount to about $67,000,000, annually and show a very favorable comparative increase. We are putting up fine new buildings. In the last two years several buildings have gone up which eclipse anything heretofore built here. Our leading daily paper has just moved into a magnificent new home costing upwards of $100,000, which is pronounced one of the finest newspaper buildings in the west. We have 20 or 25 splendid modern school houses and are still building them. Our streets are all paved in the central part of town and we have a total mileage of pavement of 38 miles. Contracts will be let for many additional blocks to be completed this year. The street railway system is excellent. A new company had sufficient faith in Topeka five years ago to buy the property and relay all tracks and replace all rolling stock, besides making large extensions. This alone would indicate a strong condition of prosperity.

I have not touched upon the immense benefits which have accrued to the families of the laboring people—those who are generally most directly affected by the presence of saloons. You have asked me to state the results of prohibition principally from a business point of view, and I have tried to give you a plain, honest answer. There is no longer any question in this community as to the benefits derived from the law, and no candidate for office now dares to advocate the repeal or even the reconsideration of the same.

If I can be of any further service to you let me know.
At our Sept. term of courts in over 30 counties, not a single criminal case on the docket.
Our population is about 42,000. Don't forget that over one-half of the dimes paid to saloons is kept out of till of the butcher, baker and merchant. In fact its a levy on all legitimate business. A financial as well as moral leper.
Yours truly,
J. R. MULVANE.

As I said tonight we will baptize five souls and have a goodly number investigating the truth, and God is blessing us greatly as His servants and we rejoice in his blessings and the message we have to bear.
Desiring to be remembered by all my friends,
Elder Wm. Duce.
