THROUGH EXTREME UNCTION

It happened that a Sister of St. Joseph came to me and told me she was interested in a poor girl who was in the hospital's pest house down with smallpox, and given up for death by the doctors. Of course I went and read the fifth chapter of St. James Epistle for the poor girl adding of course the recital of acts of contrition in different forms as well as of faith, hope and love, this was the best I could do.

Well, I lingered a bit after I had got through the prayers, and was regretfully going away, when the dying girl called me in and in quavering tones said: "Dear kind sir, will you be so good as to read that passage of the Epistle of St. James over again to me?" How glad I was to do so, and how slowly and as impressively as I knew how, did I not recite those beautiful words: "Is any man sick amongst you, let him call in the priests of the Church and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil," etc.

Again I reluctantly started to go away, but she reached out her wasted hand and caught my coat. "A last, a dying request; anoint me with oil according to the word of God." I had to pause a moment to choke down a sob that rose from my heart. I answered, "My poor child, nothing would give me greater joy; but the difficulty is that the Apostle St. James is speaking of a Christian man, and the Sister who nurses you tells me you are not even baptized in any form of religion."

How strange a smile lit up her pallid face, a smile so bright and yet so exceedingly sad. She said, "Dear kind sir, if the Bible says anoint the dying with oil, then I do not wish to die without it." I quickly beckoned to the Sister and a chair was brought me. Never will I forget the simple fervor of that poor girl receiving my instructions and then receiving the sacrament of holy baptism, then the holy Victim, and finally her immense and radiant joy as she received the last anointing. Presently she breathed out her guileless and spotless spirit into the bosom of God.

Little Courtesies

Do not forget to teach the children to say goodnight to each other, as well as to older members of the family when they go to bed. It is seldom they will do it of their own accord, because comradeship and equality render them thoughtless of little courtesies. Familiar use has robbed the phrase of its significance, but every child should know that God and good spring from the same root, and the same meaning. "Goodbyes" is "God be with you," and the old fashioned phrase "Good night to you," is "God guard the night to you." It may perhaps have a different meaning for the children if they know this, and perhaps the homely phrase will come more readily for each other.

An Ancient Tale Of Imola

It was the year of our Lord 1483. The snow lay on the ground, the sky was grey and stormy. The pilgrim stood before a wayside shrine, a statue of the Mother and Child. There it stood in the open, sheltered by a little pear tree. He knelt to say a prayer and then placed a lighted candle before the Virgin Mother. The light flickered, went out, and he half doubtfully asked why the wind did not respect an offering to the Mother of God. The statue smiled and suddenly he was aware that two fair Angels upheld the candle and had relighted it. A voice that came with sweetness to his ears now bade him go to the Governor of Imola and tell what he had seen, and that the Madonna was neglected, bare to the wind and rain.

The pilgrim exclaimed: "Indeed thou art blessed." And the Madonna continued: "If they do not believe, you have a sign: In your cloak you will find a rose."

Through the snow he made his way to the Governor, delivered his message, but who believed? No one. He remembered the sign, opened his cloak, and to his astonished eyes was revealed

Great Secret Lost

At Delhi, in India, stands an ancient iron monument which, though exposed to all weathers, never rusts or decays. Yet it has no protective covering. Here is a secret which would be simply invaluable to the world, which has been discovered by some Indian artificer of old and most unfortunately lost.

At a meeting of steel and iron men in London, the chairman said that they could face the future with complacency if they could discover the secret. To shipowners alone it would mean a yearly saving of millions.

Rust is the great enemy of the steel ship and she has constantly to go into dock to have her hull coated with an anticorrosive solution.

The True Charm Of Woman

Woman has played twofold role in history. She has tempted to evil or prompted to good. She can lift up man with her to heights of purity, nobility and worthy achievement, or she can drag him down into the depths to which she herself has fallen. She is Eve or Mary for the world in which she moves.

First and most obvious, as an index of the influence that she can hope to exercise, is the dress she wears.

Does she clothe her person in a manner befitting her dignity, as the sanctuary of the Holy Ghost, the abode of purest thoughts and chaste desires showing regard for herself and reverence for her Maker?

We are living in the midst of a civilization which in its amusements, its social events, its literature, its daily press, its theatres and its licentious moving pictures cast upon the screen and flashed inward upon the susceptible imagination of young and old, has frankly returned to the morality of pagan times. Catholics have not escaped the taint, and Catholic women have not seldom lost that delicacy of Christian perception which should distinguish them.

Even at the very altar rail, while the priest holds in his consecrated fingers the Sacred Body of the All Pure and Holy, he is painfully shocked to see the sense of womanly modesty violated without reflection or a thought of remorse. Such, thank God, is not the rule; but it is too frequently the sad exception.

The choice lies open for Catholic woman. It is between Eve and Mary: to be a temptress of evil or a blessing of God wherever she goes. She cannot follow the ways of the world and the path of Christ. They lead in opposite directions.

What then is she to do? Is she sincere in her desire to know God's will? Then let her kneel at the feet of Mary and there see if her appearance indeed becomes a daughter of the Queen Immaculate. From the decent drapery about her neck, more precious than any chain of gold can be, even to her garment's hem, let her breathe purity and sweetness of the grace of God in all her comings and her goings.

Whatever may be woman's outward grace, her greatest beauty must be within, in the splendor of her soul's perfection before God, as the tents of Cedar, as the curtains of Solomon." This is woman's greatest charm in the sight of men as well as of the holy angels. So will chivalry return to earth and respect for womanhood.

—Rev. J. Husselsin, in "America."

Form of Poverty

We are quite apt to limit the term "poverty" to a condition arising from a lack of dollars and cents and the necessities of daily life; but its meaning covers far more than that. It is possible for a millionaire to suffer poverty in some form or other. Poverty is usually the result of an unwise or too lavish expenditure of what which we afterward discover came to us from a limited source; sometimes it is money, but very often it is health, brain power, time, friendship—everything desirable and needful in life, if abused or used too freely will inevitably result in poverty of that wherein was waste.

Perhaps there is no earthly possession of which we are more thoughtless or lavish in expenditure than in that of time; and there is nothing in which we feel the sting of poverty more often or keenly than in the poverty of time. Just as the strength we so often expend needlessly upon indifferent things inevitably results in a lack of sufficient power when some really worth-while issue is at stake so does the time frittered away with no accomplishment of either true pleasure, profit or rest, surely result in a lack of time when something of real importance is at stake. We seldom count and value the minutes and hours as we do our dollars and cents; if we did we should be richer by far than the hoarding of dollars can ever make us—rich in health and vitality because we should have time always to do what is needful for us to do, without the nervous strain of hurry and anxiety; rich in peace of mind, the result of good works, because we should have time for the many little acts of love and kindness which we so often must forego for lack of time.

Very few of us have all the time we want no matter how much money we may have, yet we do not seem to realize that every hour we lack is but the result of an hour previously wasted.

Ruined French Churches

A work that daily gains in importance in France is the Society for the Help of Devastated Churches. Its object, as its name implies, is to assist the churches that have been ruined by the war. It is known that over 2,000 churches are partially or wholly ruined in the dioceses of Arras, Amiens, Beauvais, Soissons, Châlons, St. Die, Nancy, Verdun, Meaux, and Rheims and we may believe that their number will be found to have greatly increased when the dioceses of Lille and Cambrai are freed from the presence of the invaders.

Throughout the length and breadth of France, busy workers have industriously plied their needles on behalf of these stricken churches; and give sacred vessels and church furniture that will be duly distributed when the territory is restored to France. Only then will the Society have free play. For the present, the intelligent and zealous directors are content to make ample provisions of vestments and church linen, and to provide for divine worship in the ruined villages that are out of reach of the enemy's artillery. There can be no question as yet of rebuilding the churches, but for the sake of the people who cling to what was their home, it is important that some kind of oratory should be planted in their midst to keep alive habits of prayer among those much tried peasants.

The promoters of this work which is approved by the Holy Father, whose name lends the list of subscribers, and by the French

Politics First

Notwithstanding the appeal that politics be subordinated to the successful conduct of the present great war, a large number of Western Liberals have shown clearly that the party interests still predominate. Actuated solely with a desire to create political capital, the convention of the majority of the representatives of the opposition party from the four western provinces passed a resolution at their convention strongly condemning the Borden administration for its management of the affairs of the country since the commencement of the war. Not one cogent reason is given by the convention to warrant the conclusion that the Government is inefficient or incompetent. But wild assertions, which utterly lack the force of reason, are given as proof positive that Sir Robert and his associates are insincere and unworthy of the confidence of the people of the Dominion.

Let us consider for a moment the main charges of the Western gentlemen who comprise the Liberal party. The Government is condemned by the "party-first" politicians on three grounds: That it has exhibited gross incompetence and inefficiency in the face of national peril; that it has substituted selfish partisanship for honor and fair dealing, and that disension has overcome leadership in its councils and disaffection has taken the place of firmness, resolution, courage and efficiency in execution.

The above grounds are so obviously unwarranted by the facts that they will not seriously impress any of the fair-minded electors of Canada. Instead of being incompetent or inefficient, the members of the Borden Government have risen to the occasion, and from the commencement of the war have worked indefatigably for its happy termination. The splendid army of Canada's fighting men, which is bringing glory to the Dominion in the great welter of bloodshed on the battlefields of France and Flanders, is indicative of industry, ability and energy on the part of those who administer the affairs of the Dominion. Where also is there any evidence of selfish partisanship? Both the military and civilian forces of the Dominion have been accorded the same treatment, and there can be no substantial argument put forward that a man's politics has interfered in any way directly or indirectly with his treatment by the Government. The Government is further charged with the lack of firmness, resolution and courage. The Western Liberals seem to forget that Sir Robert and his colleagues did not lack courage in promulgating the conscription measure, when it became apparent that it was the system which the country must of necessity adopt if she was to continue wholeheartedly in the struggle for civilization.

Western Liberals at their convention say that the war is the business of the whole country. No one will attempt to deny that fact. Sir Robert Borden has always voiced that sentiment. He has shown such evidence of his sincerity in that connection that he invited his Liberal friends to join with him in a "win-the-war" cabinet. Could any man have done more?

The resolution of the Western Liberals, when closely scrutinized is nothing more or less than a party move, and will not be taken seriously by those who have watched with admiration the earnest efforts of the Premier and his associates to advance Canada's efforts in the present gigantic war.

That Political Truce

Since an election on the conscription issue became certain Liberal newspapers have had more or less to say concerning the truce that was supposed to have been in effect between the political parties since the outbreak of the war. Those papers deal with the subject in such a fashion, as to lead their readers to believe that the truce had always been respected by the Liberals but flagrantly violated by the Government.

The Toronto Telegram, however, hits the nail squarely on the head when it characterizes it thus: THE TRUCE was offered to the Borden Government by the Laurier opposition in 1914. Patriotic motives may have inspired the offer. Partisan efforts followed the acceptance of the offer. A war-time election in 1914 meant the annihilation of the Laurier opposition. THE TRUCE meant that the Borden Government could be sent to the country at the time of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's choosing. A war-time election meant that the Laurier opposition would be taken at its word and sent to face the people on the Laurier policy of sneers at the German peril and refusal to build dreadnaughts. THE TRUCE was represented as a magnificent act of condescension on the part of a Laurier opposition that "graciously" permitted the Borden Government TO STAY IN OFFICE. THE TRUCE was perhaps offered by the Laurier opposition for the country's sake rather than for the party's sake. THE TRUCE was utilized by the Laurier opposition for the party's sake rather than for the country's sake. THE TRUCE was not a favor granted to Sir Robert Borden by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. THE TRUCE was offered by Sir Wilfrid Laurier as Sir Wilfrid's ideal of a lesser evil than the war-time election when a war-time election in 1914 would not have permitted the Laurier opposition to STAY IN EXISTENCE.

Meatless Days

It has been said that the only way to reach some men is through their stomachs. If that be true then the decision of Food Controller Hanna that Canada is to have two meatless days in each week may succeed in convincing some citizens of this great country that a war in which we are all vitally interested is being fought out on the other side of the world. Aside from those Canadians who have relatives facing death at the front many of the residents of this part of the American continent have not yet fully grasped the fact that we are engaged in a struggle the issue of which will mean life or death to the British Empire and to British institutions. Early in the war it was felt that the proper slogan for Canada was "business as usual," that affairs here should go on undisturbed while alterations were being made to the map of Europe. The day for that sort of thing has long passed. Every Canadian now must realize the magnitude of the struggle in which Canada is engaged and be willing to do his share to bring that struggle to a victorious conclusion. The elimination of waste and extravagance is absolutely necessary. Luxuries, and some staples, must be given up if by that means the effectiveness of our war effort can be increased. Britain has known meatless days and stringent food regulations for a long time. Canada is to enter upon her first experience of them. The new order of things will be of assistance to the Empire and, perhaps, of value to Canadians, inasmuch as it will teach that it is neither an impossibility nor a hardship to reduce our consumption of meats. In this matter as in others the Canadian Food Controller merely requests, but if the request does not win speedy compliance he can easily secure the authority to enforce obedience. The best, the easiest and the patriotic course for Canadians is to obey the request with the full knowledge that it would not be made if it was not deemed necessary.

The Liberals who met in the "win-the-war" convention in Winnipeg claimed to favor conscription. Yet the amendment of Mr. Turriff mentioning conscription was voted down by a large majority. The Liberals who met in the "win-the-war" convention in Winnipeg claimed to be opposed to government by a political party. Yet they passed a resolution endorsing Sir Wilfrid Laurier, whose sole idea is to get an opportunity to give Canada that sort of government. The Liberals who met in the "win-the-war" convention in Winnipeg claimed that the Borden Government had sought to make Canada's war effort a matter to be handled by one political party alone. Yet the politician that the convention endorsed refused the opportunity to share in that war effort, or to allow representatives of his political party to take any part in it. And there are many other points on which that "win-the-war" convention was equally inconsistent.

Dominion Parliament.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—A striking illustration of the patriotism of some of our Canadian public men was given in the House during the discussion upon the resolution moved by Sir Robert Borden to provide for the creation of the portfolio of minister of militia overseas and the offices of parliamentary secretary for the militia department and the department of external affairs. It developed that while there is to be the usual ministerial emolument of $7,500 for the overseas militia portfolio Sir George Perley had written to the prime minister that he would not accept it. It also transpired that for all the onerous ministerial duties that have fallen to the lot of Sir George Perley since the general election of 1911 he has not received one single cent. Frequently he has been the acting prime minister and for months at a time he has administered departments while the regular ministers were away.

But since the war began he has been constantly in harness, and the expense to which he has been put has been enormous, and so his decision to accept nothing for his services as minister of overseas shines forth as a fine testimony to the character of the man. There is another example. Attached to the office of parliamentary secretary for the militia department is the salary $5,000, but the premier made the statement that when Mr. F. B. McCurdy was appointed he would not accept the office unless it was understood that he would accept no money for his services. The work that Mr. McCurdy has done has been enormous. He has given his whole time to assisting Sir Edward Kemp, and morning, noon and night he has been constantly at duty. It is also a tribute to the spirit of Sir George Perley and Mr. McCurdy that it had not been known before that they had been giving their valuable services without momentary compensation. One has only to consider the great expense they have to bear in keeping up establishments in London and Ottawa which Sir George and Mr. McCurdy have to do, to realize the financial loss their services have occasioned to them.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—(Canadian Press)—Definite regulations, to come into effect at once for restricting the use of beef, bacon and white bread in public eating places and for prohibiting the use of wheat in the distillation or manufacture of alcohol have been promulgated by order-in-council, at the instance of the food controller. The serving of beef and bacon is prohibited on Tuesday's and Fridays, and at more than one meal on any other day. Substitutes, such as corn bread, oat cakes, potatoes, etc., must be provided at every meal at which white bread is not served. Under the order, the expression "bacon" includes cured (either pickled or smoked) sides, backs, hams or any portion of what is termed in the trade "Wilshire sides." The term "public eating places" includes any hotel, restaurant, cafe, club or other place, where meals to the number of twenty-five per day are served to persons other than members of the family or household of the proprietor. In all such public eating places there must be prominently displayed a printed notice to the effect that all persons in ordering their food, ought to consider the needs of Great Britain and her allies and their armies for wheat, beef and bacon, and that the food controller requires the public to do everything in its power to make these commodities available for export by eating as little as possible of them and by making use of substitutes and avoiding waste.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Sir Robert Borden has had many letters and communications threatening death to him if the conscription bill goes into effect. When The Standard made enquiry at the Premier's office on 9th, after the attempted murder of Lord Athlstan was reported, this was the statement made: "These letters have mostly come to him from the province of Quebec. Some declare that he will be shot others threaten that he will be lynched at the first convenient opportunity, and one avow-buckling anti-conscriptionist notified the Prime Minister that he is going to cut his head off."

These letters have been reaching the Premier ever since the political campaign against conscription was started in the province of Quebec a month or two ago. "Have very many been received?" The Standard asked. "Quite a lot," was the reply. "Some come to this office, the Premier's office in east block (meant) some to the House of Commons and some even to his home." The Premier's residence is on Wertheimberg street. "What does he do about them?" Oh, he doesn't pay "any attention to that kind of thing. He just throws the letters aside." "Have any special arrangements been taken to protect him?" "Not that I know of." The Premier hasn't done anything about it. He is not worrying over threatening letters.

The Standard learns, however, that long ago Sir Percy Sherwood, head of the Dominion police and of the Dominion secret service, took special precaution to prevent any attack upon the life of the Premier. His plan of protection is of the most thorough description. Night and day the greatest care and watchfulness is observed by the efficient body of men under Sir Percy's control.

Wherever Sir Robert goes he is efficiently guarded, although he is seldom aware of it himself. No one can enter the east block unless he is identified and can give a thorough account of himself. He is not known to the police. Nor can anyone enter the temporary parliament building at the Victoria Museum unless under the same conditions. Every point along the routes which the Premier traverses has been scrutinized and wherever there might be any possibility of an attack upon Sir Robert Borden being organized the most thorough investigation has been made and the most complete precautions taken.

Other cabinet ministers have received similar notices that their lives will be taken if conscription goes into effect in the province of Quebec, notably Hon. C. J. Doherty, the Minister of Justice, Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Solicitor General, Col. the Hon. P. B. Blondin, the Postmaster General and Hon. Albert Sevigny, the Secretary of State. Probably the largest number of communications of this character have been received by Col. Blondin and Hon. Mr. Sevigny. One attack which was designed to Lynch Hon. Mr. Sevigny, a week ago, missed fire. The wrong man was seized on the arrival of the Ottawa train bearing the minister to his summer home near Montreal.

Progress of the War

Canadian Headquarters in France, via London, Aug. 7.—(By Stewart Lyon, Special Correspondent Canadian Press)—The Canadian outposts around Lens have established a new line in a group of houses which is within a few yards of the enemy front line at that point. The Lens-Bethune road is now safely within our lines almost up to the city of Lens. The enemy does not intend to submit to the loss of Lens a little bit at a time, as in recent advances, without making a fight for it. While our outposts were establishing new posts this morning the Germans turned loose a heavy artillery and machine gun barrage upon the crater recently captured and buildings nearby. Sheltered by this barrage his infantry advanced upon the crater with deadly accuracy without suffering any casualties and the Germans re-occupied it. Destructive artillery shooting was continued yesterday by our artillery at an accelerated rate because of the better light, but dull weather has again come and the gunners are disconsolate.

British Report. London, Aug. 7.—The official report tonight reads: "Beyond artillery activity on both sides there is nothing to report."

Paris, Aug. 8.—The official statement issued by the war office tonight reads: "The artillery activity was rather violent in the region of Pantheon and Laroye Farm, as well as on the right bank of the Meuse, in the region of the Couriers Wood and in the Donnant sector. "Belgian communication: During the night the enemy artillery shelled actively part of our communications, firing with the least intensity on our organizations in the first line. The morning was calm, except for some shelling before Dixmude. In the afternoon the firing was of little importance. "Army of the east, Aug. 7: The artillery activity was moderate on the whole of the front. On the Serbian front and in the Oerns, bond, the enemy attempted two surprise attacks which failed. "British aviators bombed enemy encampments south of Veles."

Aside from the Russian theatre the hostilities on the other fronts are virtually at a standstill. Bombardments at some points are attaining fairly violent proportions; and here and there small infantry manoeuvres have occurred on the front in Flanders, but as yet the operations have not taken the aspect of a contemplated assumption of the big allied drive which the bad weather of last week brought to an abrupt ending. The Canadians operating against the Germans have again made thrusts of a successful nature in the environment of the already impassable coal center which apparently can not long withstand capitulation. By the use of certain fires the Germans are endeavoring to keep back further encroachments into their terrain here, but even with the fire against them, the intrepid Canadians continue almost daily to extend their saps and now are firmly entrenched on the south and west outskirts of the town. The aspirations of the German Crown Prince to win territory against General Petain's forces on the southern front in France have not as yet been achieved. In the Champagne region the French have penetrated German lines at three places and on the famous Avocourt wood, Hill 804, sector of the Verdun front, have put down with losses an attempt at an attack.

London, Aug. 9.—Continuous rains and fogs have made the past week one of little activity on the western front, says Major General Frederick B. Maurice, chief director of military operations, at the war office, in his weekly talk to the Associated Press today. "The German communiques in their usual fashion," continued the general, "reported numerous British attacks repulsed with heavy loss. That shows the Germans are jumpy and nervous. As a matter of fact there has been only one British attack, that on St. Julien, which was an entire success." (Continued on page three.)

PROGRESS OF THE WAR

(Continued) cess. The German communique made a deal of an alleged British attack from Nieuport, which was, in fact, only a minor raid.

Summing up the situation on the Russian front, Gen. Maurice says: "The Russian retirement has been conspicuously less in the last week. Premier Kerensky and Gen. Kornileff, the Russian commander-in-chief, are making strenuous efforts, with considerable success, to re-establish discipline, but it would be premature even to regard the situation more satisfactory."

Gen. Maurice gave an interesting resume of the detailed reports which he had received on the air fighting situation in the Flanders battle of July 31, and the amazing superiority which the British airplanes had displayed on that day to the determination in the onslaught on Germany's air fighters during the preceding fortnight.

British Headquarters in France and Belgium, Aug. 10.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig's forces at daybreak this morning attacked and captured virtually all the German forward positions east of the Belgian town of Hooge on the battle front between Frezenburg and the Ypres-Menin road.

Paris, Aug. 10.—French forces last night made further progress against the German positions on the Belgian front. The Frenchmen broke into the German lines occupied several farms to the east of Bixchoote and west of Langehassek, and captured a number of machine guns, according to the official statement given out today by the French war department.

Following the usual tactics the Germans undoubtedly will counter-attack almost immediately, in an attempt to regain these important positions. The text of the statement reads: "In the course of a successful local attack delivered early this morning east of Ypres our troops completed the capture of the village of Westhoek and secured the remaining positions held by the enemy on the high ground known as Westhoek ridge. On the left flank of the battle front our allies continue to make progress east and north of Bixchoote."

Win-the-War Liberals and the Government

One of the peculiar features of the present political situation is the fact that many Liberals who favor conscription and who claim that they are genuinely desirous of supporting every movement that will tend to the winning of the war continue loud in their criticism of the Borden Government.

There are now three definite political parties in Canada, the Conservatives, the conscriptionist win-the-war Liberals, and the Laurierites who oppose conscription. At the last general election the Conservatives had the majority of the whole and there is no evidence to show that this condition does not still exist.

London, Aug. 10.—The French forces on the left flank of the British lines in Belgium made further progress to the east and north of Bixchoote last night, according to the official report made to the war office today by Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig.

Petrograd, Aug. 9.—The Russian war office statement issued today reads as follows: "There were fusillades of greater intensity in the direction of Brody."

On the Roumanian front, south of Aeruth, as far as the village of Selka the enemy conducted a series of attacks of considerable intensity. All were repulsed. "In the region northwest of Sopot and Katargali, the enemy, after obstinate attacks, occupied a series of heights, forcing back our troops slightly eastward."

CORNER IN HOUSEHOLD GOODS

(Sarah Ruth Quigley, in New Idea Woman's Magazine.)

(Concluded.)

In the yard, Olivia, Addie and Cora were the centre of a group of excited women, Mrs. Dodds who always boarded the school teachers, darted through the crowd, with the information that there were moths in the carpets, while her brother-in-law's wife stood in an advantageous place and tried to bid them in. She raised the parlor carpet to eighty cents a yard. The auctioneer shouted: "Ninety! Ninety! Who'll give ninety?" He looked expectantly toward the edge of the circle and received a nod of assent. "Sold to Nathan Lewis!" he cried, with a thud of his hammer. Mrs. Dodds bristled and made a dive for the widow like a mother hen after an intruding cat. "I'll tell you, this is too one-sided, Mrs. Mead," she spluttered; then Lewis and Biggles are bidding in everything in this whole lot that's worth anything. It ain't fair to get all out here just to see the moneyed folks of the town buy them selves rich."

Pains in the Back

The symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning that it is extremely anxious to neglect, so important a healthy action of these organs. They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency. "I was taken ill with kidney trouble, and came so weak I could scarcely get around. I took medicine without benefit, and finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I felt so much better that I continued its use, and six bottles made me a new woman. When my little girl was a baby, she could not keep anything on the stomach, and we gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla which cured her." Mrs. THOMAS L. WALLACE, Wallaceton, Ont.

If they would only get through—sell it—and take it away.

The mother of the family announced at the supper table that she was about to make an experiment—that she meant to take up work outside of her home. There is no other kind of disease comes on one so quickly and with so little warning as an attack of cramps, colic or bowel complaint in one form or another. A person may retire at night in the best of health, and before morning be awakened by terrific cramps followed by diarrhoea or dysentery. At this season of the year when bowel troubles are so prevalent, it would be wise to take the precaution of having a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry in the house, ready for any emergency.

"Mother's Job"

The mother of the family announced at the supper table that she was about to make an experiment—that she meant to take up work outside of her home. "Just for a couple of weeks," she said, smiling at the consternation mirrored on the faces of her flock. "An old school friend of mine has opened a Red Cross station, and wants me to teach crocheting and sewing. That gives me the opportunity to have a salary all my own, and think of it!—office hours, too."

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST TO MAKE GOOD BREAD You must have Good Yeast

GOOD BREAD is, without question, the most important article of food in the catalog of man's diet; surely, it is the "staff of life." Good bread is obtainable only by using the Best Yeast, the best flour, and adopting the best method of combining the two. Compressed Yeast is in all respects the best commercial Yeast yet discovered, and Fleischmann's Yeast is indisputably the most successful and best leaven known to the world. It is uniform in quality and strength. It saves time and labor, and relieves the housewife of the vexation and worry which she necessarily suffers from the use of an inferior or unreliable leaven. It is, moreover, a fact that with the use of Fleischmann's Yeast, more loaves of bread of the same weight can be produced from a given quantity of flour than can be produced with the use of any other kind of Yeast. This is explained by the more thorough fermentation and expansion which the minute particles of flour undergo, thereby increasing the size of the mass and at the same time adding to the nutritive properties of the bread. This fact may be clearly and easily demonstrated by any who doubt that there is economy in using Fleischmann's Yeast. If you have never used this Yeast give it a trial. Ask your Grocer for a "Fleischmann" Recipe. Book.
