Divorced Life

By Helen Heston Fucate

Mr. Wiley and His Body

The Mr. Wiley who ate at Marian's table at Pinedale Inn was in love, deeply and supremely in love—with his body. He looked young, for his fifty-five or sixty years, because of the infinitesimal precision with which his fed, cared for, and pampered himself. This quiet-mannered, genteel, widely-traveled man laid strong hold on Marian's interest. He knew food values, and Fletcherized. He ate qualitatively and quantitatively. He was a mathematician of mastication. He struck the proper balance with the nicety of science. He ate neither too much nor too little. He took a bit of claret with his dinner. One cigar a day he smoked, never more.

Once at dinner, observing that he ate not meat, Marian made a remark about the matter. Mr. Wiley smiled in a kindly, superior sort of way. "I am eating no meat because I am unusually fond of spinach, asparagus, and parsnips, all three of which are on the menu this evening. If I ate these, and meat besides, I would overload my stomach. That is a thing I never do."

After dinner, on the veranda, when Mr. Wiley had finished his cigar, one of the men offered him another. He refused, explaining that it was his rule never to smoke more than one cigar a day. "That's all," he said. "I enjoy one. The second would not give me as much pleasure. Therefore my enjoyment of it would be impaired."

"Mr. Wiley is a refined and perfect sensualist," said Mrs. McCarrons to Marian a little later. "His ability to take the proper care of himself amounts to genius. He never crosses the line of differentiation between enough and too much. He is an apostle of superlatively correct diet. He is a perennal wonder in an age of fatness, gout, and acute indigestion," she laughed. "Really, he's an uncanny sort of creature. You must become better acquainted with him. He's interesting to study—like an odd, sleek bug of some sort."

"What is he—a widower?" inquired Marian.

"Oh, my no! He's never been married," said he. "If he got married, he'd have someone to worry about. That's out of his line. His own scheme of life is perfectly solved. His income is nicely adjusted to his needs. He travels north and south with the sun. Get him to tell you about himself sometime. He has conquered all the pit-falls of callow youth. He is a superb materialist."

The more Marian saw of Mr. Wiley, the more she began feeling a mischievous obsession to upset his selfish, schedule of life, by making the curious old fellow fall head-over-heels in love with her. The supreme and ever-apparent selfishness of the man seemed to mock at all the world which was playing such havoc with the lives of others. His cold, uncanny immunity from everything that savored of impulse or the impetuous, made Marian eager to try her hand at upsetting his reckonings. She longed to try the experiment. She was curious as to where it would lead.

She felt certain of one thing. No repetition of the fiery experiences with Colhoun, the southerner, lay ahead of her should she venture on this particular experimental undertaking. She was sure that under the cold, almost fishy, exterior of Mr. Wiley, no emotional embers burned. That was utterly beyond belief.

New Singer Coming to the Crescent.

The management of the popular "Crescent" takes great pleasure in announcing to the music loving public of St. John's, that they have secured for a limited engagement, the services of Mr. Frederick Knights, the well known Boston tenor, to sing at the "Crescent Picture Palace," Monday, Sept. 28. Mr. Knights has been associated as leading tenor with many of America's leading operatic and musical comedy organizations, having supported such famous artists as Mme. Marguerite Sylva, DE Walt Hopper, Frank Daniels, the late Thomas Seabrook and many others; he also acted as leading tenor with the famous all star combination "The Bostonians," a company of great artists never before or since equalled. Mr. Knights is possessed of a pleasing and genial personality and will certainly find many warm and ardent admirers in St. John's.

Football League Meets.

The Football League met last night to discuss the play-off for the season's championship upon which the Star, C. E. I. and Calligans have equal claims. Owing to a number of the players having enlisted as Volunteers, it was unanimously decided to hold no further games for the cup this season. The three teams will receive gold medals from the League. The season's wins will not count for the Championship, and the Stars will hold the trophy until the determination of the result of the 1915 series. This arrangement was approved of by the representatives of the clubs who attended the meeting. It was also decided that the League will donate the sum of two hundred dollars towards the Patriotic Fund.

Fish Coming Slowly.

Very little codfish has been brought here from the outports to date, due principally to the backward weather of late. After a few fine days, such as we are now having, "coasters" will begin loading and shipments will arrive daily. In many of the outports a quantity has already been shipped to Halifax and the foreign markets.

"WE'RE A' YIN NOO!"

Down in Ayrshire there is a policeman poet named Mat Anderson. He has in his time strung many good rhymes together, and his latest effusion is worthy of a little more notice than it has received in the midst of a wealth of war poetry. Here are two of his verses:—
Hey, Wilhelm, w! the velvet glove
That hides the iron hand,
Whose talk is eye o' peace and love,
W! pistols up your sleeve,
Ye tried to buy our honor, and
When that ye failed to do,
Ye rushed at Belgium like a bull,
But that ye'll sairly rue.

For we're a' yin noo, Wilhelm,
We're a' yin noo,
The Brions, Belgians, French and Rus,
Are a' yin noo.

Oor noble sons across the seas,
Wha colonies hae made,
The toiler and the man o' ease
Are rushing to oor aid;
Each bosom 'neath the British Flag
To Mitherland is true;
The Mither's plight her sons will fight,
We're a' yin noo.

We're a' yin noo, Wilhelm,
The ties o' love the heart can move,
We're a' yin noo.

Boy's Close Call From Drowning.

A number of boys were romping about Marshall's wharf on Sunday afternoon when one of them named Luby, aged seven years, fell overboard. He was unable to swim and was sinking gradually beneath the surface. His companions were powerless to give assistance but had the presence of mind to cry out to two men who rushed to the scene and rescued the drowning lad who when taken ashore on the wharf was in a critical state. He had to be given stimulants and wrapped up and did not come to properly for several hours. The youngster had a close call.

ANTI-SKIDDING
The "buttoned" tires having failed to deliver, the big corrugation tire is selected. The series of "V's" grip the road like a traction engine, each "V" clearing the road for the next "V" to work upon.

NO PUNCTURES
The "buttoned" tires having failed to prevent punctures, the big corrugation tire is selected. The inch high anti-skid tread keeps nails, etc., away from the "puncturable" tread proper of a tire.

The "buttoned" tires having failed to keep up continuously, the big corrugation tire is selected. It set the record in 1912 of making the first and only Canadian Transcontinental trip.

A Thought for the Times

THE WAR—CHAPTER X.
I. C. MORRIS.

Twelve million men in arms, and sixteen hundred million people looking on. Twelve million men equipped to kill each other, and nobody has the power to call halt. Fifty days of war. Fifty days of slaughter. Fifty days of strain upon an already over-taxed, and heart-broken humanity. Fifty days of war, and what is the result? The world's trade half paralyzed, the streams of traffic cut short, the wheels of progress clogged, and the heart of humanity pained and sickened. The tenderness of women outraged, the confidence of children disappointed, and the sanctity of home shadowed. Such are some of the effects of this war, such is part of the price which sixteen hundred million people must pay, while twelve million of their sons kill each other. But what further is the result? What of the war itself, and what of its present progress? The tide turned in favour of the world's welfare? Yes! The power of those who are stronger than ever before? Yes! Great results these we say. Great victories these, and great the men who won them. The men who won them? But who are these? Where are they? Whose sons were they? Grave questions these, and in our endeavour to answer them we feel that the task cannot be accomplished by words only; but that deep within the heart the real answer to these facts must be found. Who are they? Whose sons were they? These questions imply a peat as well as a present, and tell us that some of them are not, for they have fallen in the fight. Sons of our Empire they were and sons of our Empire they still remain, for the memory will long live, and their sacrifice will not soon be forgotten. Unknown may be their graves, and unmarked the mound, or the spot where they lie, but within the heart they still live. They cannot be forgotten while England stands, and while British hearts throb. Within the sanctity of the home they will be remembered, and deep down within the unseen chamber of the heart's affection their memory will be treasured.

Rabbits Plentiful.
Parties who came in on last night's train, having spent the day shooting, report game plentiful, and that they had excellent sport. There was a good sign of partridge and rabbits were numerous. Even on our nearby country harems rabbits were plentiful and large quantities were taken by guns and snares. A goodly supply of rabbits were brought to town last evening by country people who quickly disposed of their stocks at 50 cents a brace.

Ordered Back Again.
Constable Tulk, who left here on the S. S. Kyle on Saturday morning last en route to Ungava where he was despatched to do special duty, came to the city on yesterday's train, having been ordered back from Harbour Grace. This decision was come to fearing that the officer, owing to weather conditions, would be compelled to remain at the Hudson Bay post all the winter.

Smothering Of Asthma Stops Quick—Thousands Cured By "Catarrhazone"

Pouch Cove Lost Heavily.

As stated in the Telegram last week Pouch Cove was smitten the hardest by the ravages of the storm of Thursday night last. Every stage in the place was swept away including 180 quintals of fish all told and a considerable amount of lines and riggers. Over fifty motor boats and skiffs which were moored on the "collar" were destroyed, either dashed to pieces on the rocks, filled with water and sunk or driven off to sea. Next day when the storm subsided there was scarcely a stick left standing at the waterfront. It would take thousands of dollars to replace the damage done.

Among the heaviest sufferers are two men named Gould and Bragg, who lost almost everything they had in the way of boats and fishing gear generally. The loss will be doubly hard on the fishermen of Pouch Cove by the fact that they cannot start rebuilding now and will have to wait till next spring to do so. In consequence a good fall's fishing will be lost.

Torbay and Logy Bay did not escape the storm either and some heavy losses were sustained.

Four British Belles Great Success.

Packed to the doors last night at Rossley's to see the four British Belles. These four clever young English girls are giving the same performance as they gave in London at the Hippodrome theatre where they were well liked for their beautiful singing and splendid dancing. They are so different to anything ever seen here before. They are engaged for the great Exposition in California; they change their songs and dances very often; their Scotch songs and dances are dainty and delightful while their military act brought down the house. Miss Webster, the ballad soloist is a big favorite, her beautiful voice captivated the audience from the start. The strikingly beautiful costumes for every number are much admired. These young ladies are all English, and two of their fathers are in the front, and five brothers also. On Thursday the British Belles will sing Mr. James Murphy's two great new songs "When we Marched Away" and "The Land we Leave Behind." Both those stirring songs are composed by our own local poet. Dainty in fine style on the bridge, the Miss Keen is making all new costumes for this occasion. Rossley's pictures are splendid and quite out of the ordinary. The finest show ever seen at the price.

Concert at Camp.

A large number of citizens visited Pleasantville last night where an enjoyable concert was given by the C.C.C. band. The programme was an excellent one, and as the band played the "Pink Lady" waltz, several of the soldiers paired off and waltzed. During the intervals the girls wore their military great coats and as they moved to the strains of the waltz, the sight was a novel and attractive one. During the intervals a band of boys with the mouth organ entertained a number of lads and lasses to a programme of quadrilles, which were danced in fine style on the bridge. The scene at the camp was military in every particular, and amid the joviality that prevailed, the guards slowly paced their rounds apparently unconscious of aught but duty. Patriotism was everywhere resplendent amongst those who visited the scene, and the beautiful blending of duty and pleasure in the soldier's life was manifested in a marked degree.

Fishery Reports.

Sept. 19. From R. Brown (Upper Amherst Cove to Cape L'Argent).—The total catch is 6300 qtls. and for last week 300. About 300 dories and skiffs are fishing with 9 large boats. There is a good sign of cod on the grounds when the weather is favorable, but there is no squid to be had. The fishery is practically over and many of the small boats have been put ashore. Nearly all the stages have been taken down for the season.

A Summer Tale.

"You look irritated this evening."
"I am—on warm days like this I always suffer from heat rash."
"I am liable to heat rash, too, but it never irritates me; it never has since I began to use Zyllex, which at once allays the irritation, physical and mental. And I had Zyllex Soap with the Ointment go far to prevent heat rash altogether."
Zyllex sells at 50 cents a box; Zyllex Soap at 25 cents a cake, at your Druggists.

Lost Savings of a Life Time.

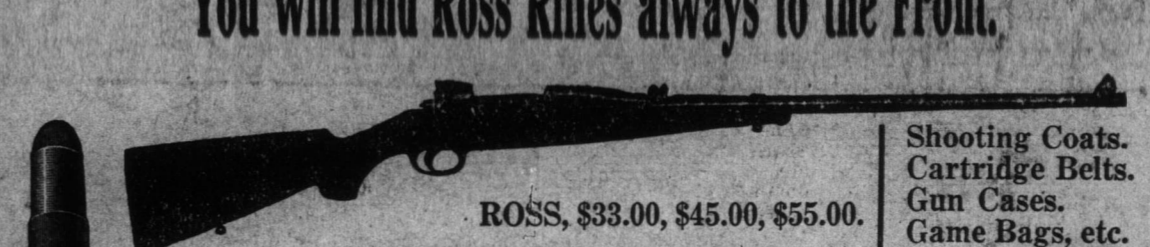

The fire which destroyed the property of Mr. Richard Druken, on the Torbay Road, as referred to in yesterday's Telegram, started in the hay barn, though its exact origin is unknown. Fanned by a strong breeze the blaze quickly spread and before long the entire premises was wiped out, including Mr. Druken's dwelling house, only a few pieces of furniture being saved. The damage done represented the savings of a life time and the loss to the owner is exceedingly heavy. Mr. Druken has a large family.

Messages Received During the Night.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN—ALLIES STILL PROGRESSING.

Special Evening Telegram.
PARIS, Sept. 21. (Official.) At our left wing on the right of the River Aisne we have progressed as far as the heights of Lassigny west of Noyon. At the west of the Oise and at the north of the Aisne the Germans have manifested a recrudescence of activity in violent attacks, going as far as charging with bayonet. In the Craonne region the enemy has been repulsed everywhere with considerable loss. Around Rheims the enemy has not tried any infantry attack, satisfying itself with firing at our front with heavy artillery. On the centre in the Champagne region and west part of the Argonne, besides Souain, we have taken Mesnil-Sturessis and Messiges. At Woivre the enemy still holds the region of Thiaucourt and is attacking Hassorschatel. At the right wing in Lorraine and the Vosges there is no change. The Germans are fortifying themselves near Delme and south of Chateau Salins. The French Government has protested to neutral powers respecting the systematic destruction and without military necessity, of the Rheims Cathedral.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED.

LONDON, Sept. 21. The Official Press Bureau announced at 7.45 this evening that since the last report was received from General French, further counter attacks have been made by the Germans and repulsed.

GERMAN NIGHT FORCED BACK.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 21. A detailed account of the German bombardment of Rheims has become available here. It relates that the cannonading of the French city lasted for a fortnight. The Germans are said to have used petroleum shells and the city was set on fire. Whole blocks of houses were reduced to smoking ruins. That part of the population which was unable or unwilling to leave the city was without food for several days. The people took shelter in cellars and a number were injured, but little or no loss of life has been reported. On the battle front the western wing of the German line has been pushed back about seven miles during the last forty-eight hours, as a sequel to continuous fighting night and day. Both armies, despite almost superhuman fatigues, show determination not to yield an inch of ground without a terrible struggle, but the fresher troops at the disposal of the allied commanders, have gradually forced the Germans to recede.

ALLIES HOLD FAVORABLE POSITION.

BORDEAUX, Sept. 21. Sixteen words constituted the official statement issued here today: "We are confident the Allies hold a favorable position in great battle which is now proceeding."

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS WILL SUPPLY HOSPITAL SHIP.

LONDON, Sept. 21. "All my troops and resources," is the latest offer of the Government of Madras to the British Government, as announced by the Secretary of State for India. All the Indian Potentates have expressed a desire for personal service in the field and many have offered the British Government all they possess. The Government of Madras will supply a fully equipped hospital ship of three hundred beds for the use of the Indian Expeditionary force.

DISABLED CRUISER BEACHED.

GIBRALTAR, Sept. 21. It is officially announced from Zanzibar, that the British cruiser, which was recently attacked and disabled by the German cruiser Koenigsberg has been beached.

JAPANESE DESTROYER SUNK.

PEKIN, Sept. 21. Mail advices from Taino, state that the Japanese lost a second torpedo boat outside of Kiao Chou. The vessel was sunk by a German cruiser.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.

COLOMBO, Sept. 21. A German warship is reported to have sunk the British steamer Diploma, near Ceylon, an dto have captured another vessel.

WOUNDED AND TAKEN PRISONER.

RELFAST, Sept. 21. Information received here states that Lord John Hamilton has been wounded and taken prisoner by the Germans.

THE JEWISH NEW YEAR.

LONDON, Sept. 21. The Jewish New Year was celebrated with more than usual solemnity. Probably never since the nation was scattered have so many Israelites been engaged in war. In the Russian army alone there are two hundred thousand men, while many British Jews have already fallen for the flag. Many large stores and offices were closed today.

A LULL IN THE FIGHTING.

PARIS, Sept. 22. An official communication issued last night says: "Engagements yesterday have been less violent. We have made appreciable progress notably between Rheims and Argonne."

BRITISH OFFICERS PAY HEAVILY.

LONDON, Sept. 22. The patience with which the British people await news from their Army is as remarkable as it is unexpected. They know that the British troops have been engaged for a week in a terrible battle, which is the culmination of all the fighting which has gone on, with two or three brief respites, since August 23rd. They know the little British Army held their post in the hardest fighting throughout, and that the next roll of casualties will be heavy. Yet they appear to recognize an inexorable military necessity imposes upon them these days of suspense, and from the newspapers and the public.

Little Complaint is Heard.

The Government made the country understand that the requirements of secrecy overshadowed all other considerations, and that officers and staff have no time to spare for writing descriptions of engagements. Correspondents hovering in the wake of the armies send descriptions of fragments of battles they have been able to see, and stories from wounded. The sum of their impressions is that the past week's battle exceeded in violence and stubbornness anything in modern history, since the struggle at Fort Arthur. These stories and charges are unequalled in the annals of the British arms since Salcbava. The casualties lists which filter through slowly day by day confirm reports which otherwise might be taken as exaggeration of the excited reporters getting their first glimpse of war. The part British officers are playing is illustrated by the bare testimony of the casualty list.

Seven Hundred and Ninety-Seven Officers.

are among the killed, wounded and missing, which is a percentage out of all proportion to the losses in the ranks. One hundred and thirty officers have been killed, 388 have been wounded, and 279 are missing. Many of the missing probably must later be recorded as killed or wounded. The Coldstream Guards regiment holds the place of honor, with thirty-one casualties among its officers and corps. The King's Royal Rifles and Suffolk Regiment have each had 25 officers killed or wounded. The Gordon Highlanders have twenty-three, and the Munster Rifles, twenty-one. The Cameron Highlanders and Cheshire Regiment each nineteen. The Field Artillery has lost 16, and the Medical Corps 52 officers. Listed by ranks are the names of Colonels and Lieut.-Colonels, numbering 32, Majors 85, Captains 246, and the homes of many of the best known families in the Kingdom are in mourning. Lieut. Wyndham, of the Coldstream Guards, who was killed in action, is the only son of the Late Rt. Hon. Geo. Wyndham.

one-time Chief Secretary for Ireland. Lieut. Lockwood of the same regiment, is a nephew of Lieut.-Colonel Right Hon. A. R. M. Lockwood, one of the most popular members of the Commons. Saturday's lists announce the death of Lord Guernsey, heir of the Earl of Aylesford and Lord Arthur Vincent Fitzwilliam, Marquis of Tweeddale. The Official Press Bureau has issued the following announcement: "It may be of some interest and comfort to the relatives of officers whose names appear as missing or wounded in the casualty lists, issued by the War Office after the termination of the retreat from Mons, to know that letters have begun to arrive at London from German hospitals in which some of them have been found to be living. Several of them appear to be at Paderborn, Westphalia. A letter from the Chief Surgeon in a hospital there, to the wife of a wounded officer, is given. It says: "Dear Madam, your husband is staying in hospital at Paderborn. His health is well; his wound is also getting on well. As he is a prisoner, he is not allowed to write himself."

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is reported at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modernly and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKS CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Pointless Remarks.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"What have you been doing all this morning?" the Author-man asked the Cynic.
"Studying various forms of mental weakness exhibited by people usually classed as well-meaning," answered the Cynic.
"Why," expostulated Molly, the little-stenographer-lady, "you've been working on the engine in your motor boat."
"Oh that was merely incidental," answered the Cynic. "For instance, you saw me take the engine out of the boat. That involved a lot of work and took a lot of skin off my fingers. You may have thought that I was doing that in order to learn just where the trouble lay. But in reality I was simply giving a well-groomed, genial old gentleman an opportunity to give himself away. One might have thought, if he opened his mouth, he would say something worth while. What he actually did say, as he stood by, watching me tugging away, covered with grime and perspiration, was "Taking your engine out." Wonderful brain! remarkable perspicacity that man has!"

"Now there are a lot of other people down here that took thoroughly intelligent. But they aren't. I have discovered them. They have brains as elementary as a child's. For instance, if you see a cow on the landscape, you do not say, 'See the cow?' The cow is obvious. The child says just that. That's a child's work. Now, one might know, with the dismembered engine scattered about me and tools everywhere, that I was fixing the engine. That was obvious. You might think that everybody who saw me would realize that it was obvious. But they didn't—they all had to ask me solemnly if I was fixing the engine!"
"They were simply trying to be nice and affable," protested Molly. "I don't think that is kind of you to take it that way."

"What you mean," answered the Cynic, "is that they meant well. That is an awful thing to say of anybody, but they deserve the worst. They may be indulgent husbands and kind fathers and good citizens, but I want nothing of them. What I am looking for is a man who, coming along and seeing me in the midst of a fight-to-the-finish-with-no-quarter-shown-on-either-side tussle with a marine engine, will overlook the obvious fact of my being so engaged and will project his processes of thinking a little further and come to the conclusion that not only am I fixing my engine but that, being so engaged, I am preoccupied, perspirationary and inclined to be irritable, and therefore the best thing he can do is to say nothing and move on."
"That's what I thought this morning when a chap came up to my room and saw me wrestling with my collar button and asked me if I wasn't ready for breakfast yet," said the Author-man.
The Cynic smiled self-consciously. "Peccavi," he admitted, "but if you will start a Society for the Suppression of the Obvious and Pointless Remark, I'll head the membership list with my name and hustle around and try to boost the membership for you."

Star's Correspondent Tells of Kitchener's Visit to France When Enemy Threatened Havre.

(This letter from Mr. Hill is marked "letter seven." As a matter of fact, it is only the second The Star has received. The others have been held up by the French censor. The contrast between the jubilant note of Mr. Hill's cable, printed above, after his personal view of the German rout, and this letter, written at the high tide of German invasion, is striking.)

Havre, France, September 1.—Despite the general falling back on the extreme left of the Allies, now at Beauvais, La Fere and Compiègne, the spirit of the British troops is good.

This is the news brought down from the firing line by the hundreds of wounded who arrive here daily, and are shipped back to England on the big white hospital ships.

The British resistance from the days of Mons until the present time, when they are holding a line from Beauvais to Compiègne, has been magnificent. So fierce was it that on Sunday and Monday the Germans fell back 15 miles with British cavalry closely in touch. But the French support was again missing, and on Tuesday, according to the wounded who have arrived here, had to take up another position far to the south to prevent outflanking.

Yesterday Lord Kitchener arrived at Havre on H. M. S. Sentinel. He went direct to Paris on a special train that took the most southerly route possible to avoid the parties of marauding Germans who have even reached the banks of the Seine.

Early this morning the British Minister of War arrived back, and, judging from the look on his face as he stood on the bridge of the returning cruiser, he obtained his own way while at the French capital.

"I don't think by the time this letter arrives at Montreal it will be giving away the plans of campaign to say that a tremendous outflanking movement, in which British, Russians and Belgians will take part, is to be started from the Belgian coast line, probably Ostend, against the extended, too sanguine and rapidly advancing Germans.

TALKS TO RUSSIANS.
I understand from Belgian and Russian staff officers who have been here, that fully a quarter of a million men, outside of those who are already taking the offensive with Antwerp as their base, will launch themselves on the rear of the German right and endeavour to cut off communication.

The main British base, so quickly removed from here when the first German hands appeared east of Rouen, has already been established east of St. Nazaire on the River Loire. This will allow the British army to retire via Orleans to the coast, until such time as the Germans are compelled to give up their forward movement by threatened flanking, and by the Russian advance to Berlin.

For several days we have been expecting the Germans to enter this great port, but, although they have been within a few miles, they have not attempted to capture the city. Five thousand British cavalry and several regiments of French territorials remain, but it is estimated that the German force rapidly making its way to the coast is quite 10,000 strong.

An example of how this force travelled was furnished last night, when a French sentry at Harfleur, but a few miles up the Seine, challenged an automobile with five occupants. The challenge was not heeded. Shots were exchanged, but the car dashed wildly on towards Havre. Two peaceful countrymen, bringing in vegetables, drove their heavy wagons side by side as they gossiped. Into this barricade, round a curve, dashed the car. It was completely smashed, but pursuing French soldiers found it well armed with a machine gun, while underneath the British uniforms of the injured occupants were the grey green colors of Prussian cavalry. All five are now in jail here, but report has it that there are scores more of these same cars especially built for raiding ahead of the main column.

SAW THE GERMAN.
Early yesterday morning several correspondents drove a car about 20 miles northwest of Havre towards Totes and Neufchatel. We wanted to see the Germans—and we did. In a long valley, miles away, we glimpsed a great cloud of dust, and through glasses we could see fifty or sixty motor cars and several squadrons of Uhlanes camping by the roadside inn, which generally supplies the needs of peaceful cyclists and motorists on the main road to Paris. To the right, about a mile away, ran the railway line, the Etat route from Havre to the French capital, but the policy of the Germans was not to touch this, as it is guarded by reserve regiments of French, and the whereabouts of the German force would become known.

You could see the various units of the enemy quite distinctly and now and again a rifle barrel would flash in the sunlight. They are moving forward very slowly now. We expected them at Havre at least by noonday, but it seems as if they thought they had got too far in their zeal, and were halting for further advice. There is no question but that they are getting orders either from their main body at most fifty miles away, or that someone in this cosmopolitan seaport is warning them that there will be British cavalry awaiting them until Saturday, when the last of our stores will be safely away.

It may be that they hesitate because there are thousands of United States refugees, the last out from Paris, in the town, and a grey—but grim—neutral cruiser, the Tennessee, is at the big dock flying the Stars and Stripes. Camped on the wharf are over a thousand men, women and children from New Jersey to California, many without means, most without any idea of self help. As each great transport is tugged out of dock they exclaim that the British are deserting them.

TAKEN TO ENGLAND.

A special steamer took about five hundred to Southampton to-day; to-night another boat will go, and tomorrow the cruiser will take off the remainder. The British are well cared for. Hundreds of them are going by every steamer to Southampton, packed on decks and even in lifeboats, but more of the dapper little channel packets keep arriving, and with the last train from Paris to-night all will be safely taken away.

As for the correspondents—there are twelve of us remaining—we have chartered a small tug and hope to make a dash down the coast to the new bast.

The Germans have not been kindly to those of us they have caught, and we will be glad when we are again taken under the protecting wing of the men in khaki.

Aviator Witnessed Fight of Germans

FROM HIS AEROPLANE.
Paris September 15.—The best view of the retreating German armies was obtained by a French military aviator, who descending from a point near Vitry-le-Francois, flew northward across the Marne and then eastward by way of Rheims, down to the region of Verdun and back again in zig-zag course to a spot near Soissons. He saw the German hosts not merely in retreat, but in flight and in some places in disorderly flight.

It was a wonderful sight to look down upon those tens and hundreds of thousands of moving men, the long gray columns of the Kaiser's picked troops, some marching in northerly, others in northeasterly directions, and all moving with a tremendous rapidity which was eloquent of their desire to place themselves beyond the reach of the Allied armies, who were harassing them every step of the way. The retreat was not confined to the highways but many German soldiers were running across fields, jumping over fences, crawling through woods without any semblance of order or discipline.

These men doubtless belonged to the regiment which, badly cut up in the fierce fighting which preceded the general retreat, was deprived of the majority of its officers. They were a mere rabble of fugitives, many without rifles, having abandoned their weapons in the mad haste to escape the vengeance of French and British pursuers.

Dear Sirs—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes, so badly that I thought I would be disabled for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected, a few applications completely curing the irritation, and preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINIMENT is also a good article to keep off the mosquitoes.

British Must Keep Up Strength.

London, Sept. 16.—Spencer Wilkinson, noted military expert and historian, writing in The Morning Post, says:—

"Up to the moment of writing, the signs are not those of a decisive victory. The German army has retired, keeping a broad front. The French army in its pursuit has to spread itself rather than concentrate. The effort to pursue is considerable and cannot be indefinitely prolonged.

"The Germans may shortly be able to make a stand and, if that should happen, there will be a fresh wrestle. Not until one side or the other is thrown and is down will the word 'victory' be quite in place. Until that moment, neither side can relax its exertions.

"The British Government, therefore, must not for a moment suspend its efforts to strengthen and re-inforce Sir John French. The Government still has troops capable of being thrown now into the scale. There are enough regulars and Special Reserves at home to keep the expeditionary forces at full strength till Christmas.

"The Indian troops must shortly be expected. Then there is the Territorial force, which, if it has been practising with bullets and targets individually and in field firing since it was mobilized ought to shoot better than the German troops. A large part of it has volunteered for service abroad.

"If the Government counts the Territorials after instead of before the new regulars, it will be making two terrible mistakes—that of not appreciating its best men and that of not understanding the value of time in war."

Sulphate of Ammonia.

St. John's Gas Light Company.
Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works, and I found 20.5 per cent. of NITROGEN, Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manure. Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Yours truly,
D. JAMES DAVIES, B.S.C., F.C.S.,

"Never Before Never Again"

SAYS THIS GERMAN

A wounded German dragoon gave a picturesque description at the Waterloo Station in London the other day, of the British cavalry charge by which he was unhorsed, according to the London Daily Express. His language showed that he was still vividly impressed by what happened when the Scots Greys charged at Mons.

"Mein Gott, it is hell let loose when your English Lancers charge," he said, and I will never face them again, never again!

"We were outside Mons in open country with a clump of hills before us, and it was as we neared them that a troop of howling, yelling devils with lances, but no jackets or hats, came racing round a hill and then straight for us like what you call a blood typhoon!

"Never before have I seen anything like them in our army or in my sleep. Your artillery and your infantry, yes; they are like ourselves, and we can fight them; but these lancers—ach Himmel!

"We were four to one of them, but in a flash, puff, they were on us and through us. Every one of them speared a man—I got this in the shoulder—and some of our horses went over.

"Before we could reform or get ready they came dashing back, yelling like furles, and they were through us again. Ach; it was awful, horrible; and then, by Gott, they turn about and do it again. This time they stayed with us longer, and then indeed we thought that all the devils in hell were let loose. Every man of us was now unhorsed, and yet I doubt if these lancers lost more than ten. I will never meet them again, please you!"

People are doing more reading to-day than ever before, and it is very important to those who wear glasses that they should be properly fitted. If you have any trouble or are in doubt, go to TRAPNELL, the Eye-sight Specialist.—sept.12

Louvain.

(A crime for which there can be no atonement.)

Louvain has perished. Let her lie with green fields girdled round: Peace deep and sweet upon her breast. Unmoved by sight or sound. Let sun and rain and healing Time Build her eternal grave: In hearth and cloister, church and hall.

Trees root and grasses wave: Till, rising from that Plain of Tears, Death's image crouches vast. The Warden of the silent streets, The Keeper of the Past.

Louvain has fallen. Let her rest in Belgium's land of fame: To us a Shrine—to the Ostrogoth A monument of Shame. —D. P. S. in the London Chronicle.

Has Germany Made A Huge Blunder.

London, Sept. 17.—A Petrograd special despatch to the Times says:—"According to the latest information available here the Germans realizing the futility of the withdrawal of eight army corps from their Western front, are turning their first line troops from East Prussia westward.

"Military writers here are still puzzled over the problem why Germany should have made the blunder of sending such an enormous army to East Prussia, where it was bound to remain either inactive, or make an attempt to invade Russia with the almost complete certainty of sharing the fate of the Austrian forces in Galicia.

"The real explanation seems to be that when half the population of East Prussia stampeded before General Rennkamp, carrying the panic to Berlin, Germany felt compelled to tranquilize the population by sending a great army to the area occupied by the Russians."

German Warships FIRED UPON EACH OTHER IN THE BALTIC.

London, Sept. 18.—Telegraphing to the Times its Petrograd correspondent says:—"Reports of disaster to the German fleet in the Baltic have been confirmed by despatches received here which declare that German warships fired upon each other. All rumors of engagements with the Russian fleet in the Baltic, however, are untrue.

"The information reaching Petrograd is that a numerous flotilla, attended by cruisers, while engaged in hunting down passenger steamers, mistook their own for the enemy's ships and engaged in a lively battle. The number of vessels crippled is unknown, but several cruisers entered Kiel badly mauled and riddled and carrying many wounded."

Ammonia and warm water poured on a grease spot on a rug or carpet will remove the spot without changing the color.
