Brace UP! Brush Up! Think Up!

And You Will Be Cleaned Up!
I wasn't born in a dye vat but I saw others pass away when I still kept on dyeing. If you have a hat to be cleaned and re-blocked, who have you to bring it to? I think the Clothes Hospital is a gift to the town. You can have your hat fixed up, your clothes dyed, pressed, washed, repaired or cleaned, your Trench Coat or Raglan cleaned and pressed, and soon we will have a Shoe Shine Parlor for you to have your shoes dyed or cleaned. Now is your chance to meet the old reliable,

CHAPTER XIX.

Ether unconsciously put out her hand and grasped June's arm; she would have given anything had it been possible to run away. She saw Mrs. Ashton turn and look towards where they were standing, and in another moment she had crossed the lounge and was shaking hands with June.

"I was just inviting Mr. Mellows to come and dine with us," she said. "But he tells me he already has an engagement." Her eyes smiled at June. "I suppose you are the engagement?" she submitted.

June laughed. "No, I am not. A string band was playing a rag-time tune when they entered the restaurant. To Esther's unaccustomed eyes the room with its flowers and many lights was the most wonderful place she had ever seen. She kept close to Micky as he threaded his way through the small tables till he found their own, rather at the end of the room and away from the noisy band.

He put Esther into a comfortable chair, and himself took her cloak. "You don't mind being left while I go back for June?" he asked hurriedly. "She seems to have got lost."

Ether looked after him as he went quickly back down the length of the room. She liked him in evening dress. If only it had been Raymond instead! "It's all right," he said. "She's upstairs in the gallery."

When Choosing the Material for a washable Frock for the growing child—

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silk thread, it cleans rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

She smiled. She thought he was very quick to understand her. Raymond had never seemed to understand things without an explanation. She wished he had been rather more like Micky in some ways; she wished—she looked up at Micky guiltily; how could she compare the two men?—the one whom she loved, and the other whom she did not even like!

They were late, and the curtain had risen when they were shown into their seats. The theatre was dark, and Esther could hardly see her way. She put out her hand with a smothered laugh and felt for Micky's. "I can't see," she said.

His fingers closed about hers; such a little hand it felt. He wondered why she was being so kind to him to-night. He did not realize that she was enjoying herself so much that she was enjoying herself with the whole world.

Ether sat between him and June, and Micky hardly looked at the stage at all. His eyes turned again and again to her rap face and the eagerness of her eyes.

She had been to theatres lots of times, so she told him in a whisper, but never in the stalls before. She asked him if he didn't like some of the frocks worn by the people close by.

Micky's eyes flashed. "Not so well as yours," he said. "She drew away from him a little, and he wished he had not said it. In that one moment he felt that he had broken down all the friendliness she had shown him that evening. She did not speak again for some time.

In the interval June leaned over to him. "Are you bored, Micky? You look bored to death."

Micky stifled a sigh. "No," he said rather wearily. "His eyes wandered round the crowded house. There were several people in the stalls whom he knew. He noticed that people were looking at Esther, and he felt a little thrill of pride.

They were wondering who she was, of course. He wished with all his heart that he could stand up in his seat and announce to an interested world that she was the woman he intended to marry.

When the light went down again Esther leaned a little closer to him. "Mr. Mellows—" she said.

"Yes," Micky bent his head towards her eagerly. He could hear her agitated breathing, hear too the little quiver in her voice when she spoke.

"Did you see who was in that box on the right?—the lower box. . . . I thought it was Mrs. Ashton."

Micky answered casually that very likely it was.

"Oh, oh," he said, "that we should dine at the same place and have tickets for the same show?"

Ether said "Yes—yes" twice in nervous hurry.

There was something strained and unnatural about her, and though Micky could not see her face clearly he knew that something had happened to distress her.

"What is it?" he asked anxiously. "Is anything the matter?"

She shook her head. "No. . . . No."

She sat very still till the curtain fell again, but Micky had the feeling that she was not paying the least attention to what was going on on the stage, and he knew that her eyes turned again and again to the stage box. What was she afraid of, he asked himself in perplexity, even if Mrs. Ashton did see her and recognise her, surely—then in a flash he knew. . . .

The light had been turned up suddenly, and in that moment he saw the figure of a man move quickly from the front of the box to the screen of the curtains.

Micky gripped the arms of his seat; for the moment he could not move.

It was Raymond—he knew it as certainly as if he had been told.

No doubt he had seen Esther, whilst she . . . poor child! Had she seen him too?

He looked down at her; she was sitting up stiffly, her hands clasped in the lap of the new frock of which she had been so innocently proud; her face was as white as the soft tulle of her sleeves, and her eyes were fixed on the box with its velvet curtains where Mrs. Ashton sat laughing and chatting with a girl in a pink frock.

They both turned from time to time to some one who stood behind them in the shadows; once the curtains moved a little and a man's hand and arm showed distinctly.

Micky could bear it no longer; he touched Esther's clasped hands.

"Are you ill?—would you like me to take you out?"

But she shook her head. "No, no. . . . please leave me alone."

June had discovered a friend in a seat a row or two ahead with whom she was trying to carry on a conversation; she had no eyes for Micky or Esther. Micky gave a sigh of relief when the lights were lowered again; he could feel all that Esther was suffering, he could put himself in her place so thoroughly.

If he went round to the box and made sure if it were Ashton, perhaps that would be the best way; he could manage to give him the tip then to keep out of the way. He half rose in his seat, but Esther moved at once, laying her fingers on his arm.

"Oh, don't go—don't leave me here," she said tremulously.

It was not the man himself she wanted, but his presence somehow gave her a feeling of confidence; if,

IT WAS A COUGH THAT CARRIED HER OFF.

True to name—its tasteless. That's one reason why people stick to Brick's.

Before Brick's Tasteless Extract of Cod Liver was perfected, people took cod liver oil under strong protest. Lemon juice, coffee, vinegar, wine—all were powerless to eliminate that nauseating oily taste. But now even the children do not know they are taking cod liver oil when they are given a dose of

BRICK'S TASTELESS EXTRACT OF COD LIVER.

Right now, with the streets piled high with snow and deep slush under foot, people need Brick's Extract of Cod Liver to build up the system and strengthen the natural powers of resistance against attacks of Coughs, Colds, Grippe, Influenza, Pneumonia, etc.

Tell your friends and customers that, if they want to know the luxury of real, robust health this spring, they should take Brick's Extract of Cod Liver regularly.

Brick's Tasteless Extract of Cod Liver is sold by Indeed, it was Raymond up there in the box. She tried to argue herself out of the fancy; he would have let her know if he had come to London—surely she would have been the first to whom he would have come; she was mad to ever think the man up there in the background could be Raymond.

But the conviction was there in her mind.

"It is he—I know it's he," something in her heart was saying over and over again obstinately.

The rest of the play seemed endless; she rose with a quick breath of thankfulness when it was over.

"You are in a hurry," June said. "Haven't you enjoyed it?"

"Yes, oh yes, but it's hot—I want to get out."

Micky was deliberately being as slow as he could—he blocked the way out obstinately; the stalls were almost empty when at last they left them.

June touched his arm. "Micky—is Esther ill? Look how white she is."

Ether was some little way ahead of them; she seemed to be trying to get out as quickly as possible.

"It's too hot for her, poor darling!" June said. "Micky—"

Micky laughed savagely. "It's not that," he said, "but Ashton was up in the box with his mother, and she saw him."

"Micky—" He glanced her with a frown. He followed Esther as quickly as he could, but she was outside in the cold night air before he overtook her. There was a crowd here too—rows of cars and carriages outside, and women in thin evening frocks and furs shivering in the cold wind.

Micky drew Esther's hand through his arm.

"We shall find our cab this way, I think," he said evenly.

He had seen Mrs. Ashton only a few yards away, and he dreaded every moment that Esther would see her, and see, too, who was with her.

A sudden block in the crowd momentarily hindered them, and in that second a man's light laugh rang out above the noise and chatter of voices.

Micky felt the girl beside him give a convulsive start. She tried to drag her fingers from his, but he held them fast.

The crowd was moving again now; a second, and Raymond and his mother were lost to sight.

Micky had slipped an arm round Esther; he was white to the lips. He knew now how near he had been to discovery and the wreck of all his hopes. He tried to pretend that he did not understand the cause of her agitation. He looked down at her.

"Better now you're in the air?" he asked. "It was hot in the theatre. I— Esther—"

She had swung heavily against him, and looking down in sudden alarm. Micky saw that she had fainted.

Launching of Canadia.

ANOTHER CUP CONTENDER.

Shelburne, N.S., April 5—"There the moves," she's off," "was that real champion?" "what a snip!" "what a winner!" "what a beauty?" "she's winner"—all spoken as one of the best, if not the finest schooner ever built in Shelburne, and therefore in Nova Scotia, made her initial plunge into the waters of the celebrated and beautiful Shelburne Harbor. With both harbor and vessel unrivalled, why would not Shelburne people be proud?
At 6.45 this evening, christened in approved and orthodox form by the Rev. Mr. Hackenley, the close friend of the plucky and energetic Captain Joseph Conrad, the Cup defender Canadia gracefully slid down the launch-ramps of the shipyard of the Joseph McGill Shipbuilding and Transportation Company, at Commissary Island, Shelburne. The entire population of the town and vicinity seemed to be here, whilst many autos brought their quota of visitors.

As the "Queen of the Seas" began to move, the inspiring strains "O Canadia" rendered by the Shelburne Band were gratefully welcomed by soft sighs to the receptive ears of the concourse of delighted spectators.

Designed by Nova Scotia's foremost master builder and constructed of material of local production, Captain Conrad possesses in the Canadia a vessel which even a yacht, such as the Mayflower is said to be, will discover to be a hard nut to crack, and the good wishes and hopes of all Shelburne will be ever with him, in his gallant and chivalrous effort to bring to his native Province, the premier trophy of Old Neptune's domain, so next autumn of Halifax Harbor, we all expect to see her bring home the Cup.

The Vessel's Dimensions.

The dimensions of the Canadia are:
Length over all, 133 feet, 6 inches.
Whole depth keel, 2 feet, 6 inches.
Beam, 25 feet, 2 inches.
Depth, 12 feet.
Bowsprit, 13 feet, 6 inches.
Mainmast, 93 feet.
Mainmast above deck, 81 feet.
Foremast, 71 feet, 6 inches.
Mainmast, 62 feet.
Foretopmast, 43 feet.
Main boom, 84 feet.
Foreboom, 32 feet.
Foregaff, 50 feet.
Total sail spread, 10,300 feet.

The keel of the vessel was laid at the yards of the Joseph McGill Shipbuilding and Transportation Company, Shelburne, on January 1st, several weeks after construction of the schooner Bluenose commenced at Lunenburg.

Captain Joseph Conrad, formerly of LaHave, but now of Annapolis County, who will command the Canadia, has a splendid record as fishing skipper and it is expected that he will make his vessel a success on the Banks this year, and also sail her for all she is worth in the schooner races. A year or so ago Captain Conrad, whose home was at LaHave, from which port he was wont to sail for the fishing grounds, decided to retire from the life of the sea, and having sold his tres afterwards. I was terribly nauseated at times, and my heart palpitated dreadfully. My liver was out of order, and I had such fearful headaches and dizzy spells that many times I could hardly stay on my feet. I was so restless I never knew what it was to get a good night's sleep. I felt weary and worn out all the time, and every now and then such sinking sensations came over me that I thought my time had come. In fact, I was almost a confirmed invalid,

and I never expected to be well again.

Interests at LaHave, proceeded to An- napolis, where he has since made his home. But the call of the sea was too much for him, and he ordered this schooner to be built for him at Shel- burne.

Designed by Ames Pentz.

Ames Pentz, Mayor of Shelburne, a noted designer of fishing vessels, blueprints, as followed by the Mc-Gill yard shipwrights, have resulted in a very smart vessel. The Canadia, like the Bluenose, has been designed as a real fishing vessel, to catch a big fare of fish, pack it and bring it home to market, so that the schooner may pay her way. Mayor Pentz admits, of course, that he has drawn the lines of this vessel, which, by the way, is the 159th craft that he has designed, slightly finer than the average fishing vessel in the hope that she will show more speed than is usual with bankers. But that, as he said to-day, remains to be seen.

Town Backs Canadia.

The opinion in Shelburne is that the Canadia will furnish excellent racing in the Nova Scotia elimination races, and the town backs her to win the right to represent Canada in the International races of Halifax next autumn. But Shelburne says the Canadia cannot be expected to compete with a yacht, such as the "fishing schooner" Mayflower appears to be.

"It's not fair to put an out-and-out fishing schooner up against a boat like that, especially in smooth water," said one old salt to-day.

And in this connection the story is told of an American skipper who was in town the other day. The Yankee fisherman was asked how much fish he thought the Canadia would carry.
"Oh, about 400,000 pounds, I guess,"
was the reply.

"What do you think the Mayflower will pack," was the next question.
"Waal, I don't know," said the American, seemingly pondering. "Perhaps 60 pounds."

It was an obvious under-estimation, but the Yankee's statement gives an idea of New England opinion as to the Mayflower.—Halifax Morning Chroni-

Thought That Let Her Out.

It was perfectly plain that she felt that that fact let her out of making any effort to take the advice.

And yet, as a third party, I should say that the advice was wonderfully sound, and that if she could let even a little of it soak in, could let its influence her conduct even in a small degree, she would probably be much healthier and happier.

It's funny, isn't it, the way we seek to justify our own conduct by depreciating anyone who tries to criticize it?

I believe I have quoted here the old story of the critic who was raked over the coals by an author because he had criticized his book when (so the author claimed) he could not write one any better if he could.

No Tinkering With Tariff.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I notice in Saturday's newspaper that the Manufacturers' Association intend to ask the Government to increase the import duty on certain classes of goods, now manufactured in the country with the view of protecting home industries and preventing the dumping of cheap foreign goods on the local market.

The alteration in the present Tariff to any extent is a very serious matter and should not at this particular time be entertained without the public consent. The people of this country in common with the people of the world over, are expecting lower priced goods of all kinds. Until this happens there will be no end of labor disputes and industrial unrest.

The present Tariff, known as the Bond-Jackman Tariff, is protective enough. God knows, so far as local industries are concerned, and this is proven by the huge dividends paid to would have closed down during the war. If there were any real patriotism in St. John's the factories would not have closed down during the winter, thus depriving many of the people of employment. The shareholders made big profits during the war and it was only fair to expect them to "carry on" during the period of reconstruction.

It may not be amiss to call attention to the present rates of duty on the principal articles of merchandise manufactured in the Colony:

Ready-made—ad. val. 45% and 10%
Surtax.
Boots and Shoes—ad. val. 40% and 10% Surtax.
Oil Clothes—ad. val. 30% and 10%
Surtax.
Candy—ad. val. 40% plus 6% per pound and 10% Surtax.
Butter—ad. val. 3% per pound and
10% Surtax.
Jams and Preserves—ad. val. 35%
plus 6% per pound and 10% Surtax.
Tobacco—ad. val. 40% and 10%
Surtax.

If the above Tariff rates are not protective enough then it were better for the country if such factories ceased operations altogether.

It should not be forgotten that flour, molasses, sugar, salt, and kero oil were before the war admitted duty free.

There is also an export duty on the following:—
Dry Codfish30c. per quintal
Lobsters50c. " case
Salmon50c. " case
Pickled Salmon30c. " tierce
" Herring20c. " barrel
Codfish2c. " gallon
The people will expect the abolition of the export duties at any early date, and justly so.

I repeat Mr. Editor, the present Tariff was brought in by men of brains after careful thought and research and should not at this time be interfered with, especially by the men who form the present Government.

Yours truly,
TAXPAYER.

Prince Albert, ruler of the Princ- pality of Monaco, will visit the United States in April to receive the gold medal awarded him for his marine researches by the Oceanographic So- ciety of America.

Booth Tarkington, long before he realized that he could write books, wanted to be an illustrator. One of his ambitious drawings was a cari- cature of himself "looking like some high and curious bird out of the Broadway Zoo."

King Victor Emmanuel declares that Dr. Kennard, an American writ- er, who has long been a resident of Italy, "has done more perhaps than any other man to make known to English speaking people the impor- tance of modern Italy as a literary nation."

On her arrival in America on May 18, Mme. Marie Curie will be pre- sented with a gram of radium cost- ing $100,000 that she may continue her experimentation in the hope of eradicating cancer. This money is being raised by American women, and about $45,000 has now been sub- scribed.

The caring for a multitude of children is an inheritance of Herbert Hoover. His paternal great-grand mother, Rebecca Grant, bore and reared nine children and she adopted, and mothered 19 more.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge was a teach- er in a school for mutes at North- ampton, Mass., when she met and married the struggling young lawyer who is now vice-president of the United States.

Despite her age, Miss Ellen Terry still has her wonderful voice. Re- cently the great English actress read the prologue of an old English society play. She had to be assisted on the stage, but for more than a quarter of an hour she read with a great deal of the dramatic power of former days.

John P. Stanchfield, noted lawyer, was the son of a country doctor of Elmira, N.Y. He tried eleven kinds of work and gave up each. Inspired by a sermon, the text of which was "Failure," he left home, went to Cam- bridge, worked his way through Har- vard law school, and was admitted to the New York bar. He is now called the greatest trial lawyer in the United States. "In the final analy- sis," he says, "the man who finds out what he wants to do and then does it, even if he starves, is the man who will win."

Rev. Peter's "Slip."

Rev. Peter Bryce, of the Ontario
Referendum Committee, is a Scot, and when he makes his appearance before a gathering of Presbyterians he seldom fails to let it be known that he came from the "land of the heather." But this almost led to his undoing while speaking before the men's club of a Presbyterian church in Toronto, the other evening. Announcing that he contemplated next summer visiting the land of his birth, where his grandmother, mother and two brothers still live, he exclaimed: "I'm going there just as soon as we make Ontario 'dry'."

The audience instantly observed the wrong construction that could be placed on Mr. Bryce's remark, and the gathering was convulsed with laughter. For a moment Rev. Peter appeared perplexed, but he soon discovered the cause of the merriment, and no one laughed more heartily than himself.

sound because I find when there is an overwhelming noise I cannot do it."
Mr. Donohoo walks fearlessly about

ENCOURAGEMENT.

The man who holds exalted place sees grief around, kneels deep, and would trickle down his face if he had time to weep. Because he is a shining mark the knockers seek his trail; from early morn till after dark they roar and kick and wall. And so the great man's heart is sore, and life seems gray and flat, and oft at night he walks the floor and wonders where he's at. We choose a skipper for our ship, a skipper brave and strong, but ere he's had a chance to skip we show him where he's wrong. We say he's steering for the rocks before he's under way, and criticisms, sneers and knocks confound him day by day. Encouragement the skipper courts, and all he gets is blame; and yet we think we're dead game sports, who play a decent game. The man who has a station high is much like Richard Roe; if he is praised he'll strive and try to make the business go. He's just as human as he was when he was pounding sand; his nature doesn't change because he's foremost in the land. With honest pride, emotions high, he feels his bosom swell, when people rear on end and cry, "Good boy! You're doing well!"

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, March 16, 1921. PRINCESS MARY AND SCOTLAND.

For some time past Princess Mary has been anxious to see something of the beauty spots of Scotland, and she now hopes to do this during the time that the Court is staying at Balmoral in the early autumn. Nothing in the nature of a formal programme has been drawn up, since Her Royal Highness will probably make her arrangements only a few days ahead, and as opportunity serves. The study of Scottish history is a favorite pastime with Princess Mary, and she is anxious to see some of the places of which she has read so much. Last summer, when the Court was at Holyrood, Her Royal Highness devoted some time to an exploration of the old Palace.

THE NEW FLYING BOATS.

Experiments will shortly be carried out in the Thames with a new type of flying boat for use in patrol work with the fleet which marks an important development on the Felixstowe-Pury type. The first boat of the new kind has been constructed by the Fairway Aviation Company, and two others are understood to be in course of erection. The chief point about these craft is that they will be capable of maintaining themselves at sea without the need of a parent ship. They will be, in fact, small ships that can also fly, which is a very different thing from an aeroplane that can at need ride on the water. When not in the air the craft will be able to taxi along the water, driven by their propellers, for long distances. They will operate from a sea base like the submarines, and, with a range of about 1,500 miles, are designed to be able to live an independent existence at sea for fairly long periods. The weight is about 15 tons and the span of the wings 140 feet. The cruising speed is 110 miles an hour. They are provided with a hull of great strength and resistance, and it is claimed that they will be able to ride out rough seas like any other ship. There are four Rolls-Royce engines giving a total horse power of 2,400. A crew of about seven will be carried. The flying boats will go out with the fleet and remain out on manoeuvres, and when not scouting the air will keep with the big ships like the destroyers. If all that is claimed for them proves to be sound it is expected that these boats will become the standard type for patrol work with the fleet. They are, of course, very much cheaper than airships, which are now apparently obsolete for this purpose, and they will also make obsolete the carrying of seaplanes on specially-constructed mother ships. The new craft will carry five machine guns, so distributed that there will be no "blind spot." The first boat is expected to be ready for launching in May. It is the outcome of about two years' research, chiefly in the direction of producing a type of hull which is at once extremely light and strong enough to stand the strain of life on the water.

THE IRON DUKE.

The battleship Iron Duke is to be commissioned at Portsmouth for further duty as flagship of the Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean. Admiral Sir John M. de Robeck. It is exactly seven years since this vessel, Lord Jellicoe's flagship in the Grand Fleet, was first commissioned in 1914. Since the Grand Fleet broke up, she has done important work in the Eastern Mediterranean and Black Sea. Her midshipmen now include among them Prince George, the King's youngest son, who, however, has not come home in the ship, but has been transferred to the Ajax for the cruise which that vessel is making to the Levant and Constantinople.

THE "HOMELESS" LONDONER.

The Londoner, if he troubles to think about it, must wonder sometimes what has happened to the poor, derelicts who nightly used to sleep on the seats of the Embankment. The police of the neighborhood are now provided with tickets, which they give to any unfortunate they find sleeping out, with directions to report himself at the tiny hut of the Metropolitan Asylums Board under the shadow of Hungerford Bridge. Here the homeless are interviewed by an official of the Board, and according to their circumstances and possibilities, passed on to one or other of the voluntary agencies—the Salvation Army, the Church Army, the Young Men's Christian Association, or the Oliver Borthwick Home—where they are given food and a night's rest. In the morning they are interviewed and helped in their difficulties, and as far as possible provided with employment. The more hopeless cases are sent to the casual ward. But the fact is that there need be no such person at present as a homeless Londoner. Representatives of the agencies engaged in the work state that now that a great disgrace has been removed from our riverside and there is no constant reminder to the benevolence of the hapless condition of many of their fellow-countrymen, it has become increasingly difficult to obtain funds to carry on the work of rescue. The principle underlying the work is that of uplifting the victim of circumstances to a position in which he can again become a responsible citizen.

SERUM TREATMENT FOR CONSUMPTION.

Dr. Spahlinger, the Swiss inventor of a method of serum treatment for consumption, which many very promising results have been stated, is just now on a visit to Paris, and I believe he may be expected shortly to spend a few days in London. A certain amount of semi-official negotiation is understood to have taken place between him and the Ministry of Health with a view to this country securing a supply of the serum, and the most exhaustive tests of its curative powers to be promptly undertaken, but as yet such negotiation has led to no definite result. Dr. Spahlinger has shown himself loth up to now to part with a secret which he considers of inestimable value to himself as well as to the world, and the British Government, of necessity, could not pledge itself to a special form of consumption treatment without the fullest knowledge of what was involved in it, though that knowledge could be held in strict confidence. The serum, in any event, has not yet gone beyond the experimental stage, and has not yet been manufactured in sufficient quantities to furnish anything like the supply which would be demanded if this country, when satisfied of its curative value, were to adopt its use through the Ministry of Health.

ROBERT FILMED.

The idea of producing an official film, "Scotland Yard, 1921," showing the Metropolitan police in training and at work, was quite a good one. The audience for the private view at the Alhambra Theatre, Leicester Square, the other afternoon, largely composed of policemen and their wives, appreciated the kindly things said about them by the Home Secretary, a representative, and they liked the "close-ups" of the big officials in their offices issuing general orders. But the sight of a policeman on the screen is no novelty to them or to the general public. The Commissioner probably forgot this fact, and that the cinema policeman is often doing stunts. In the Colonies this will be popular because it shows so many fine views of London—public buildings, street corners, and market places, always as backgrounds to guardian policemen. But the picture is designed to make the London public realize "what the police stand for in their capacity as friend alike of the right-doer and of those who are prone to fall into bad ways." To make it really popular it needs to be made livelier. Instead of routine pictures of the Thames police going on duty and coming off, one wanted to see a furious motor boat chase after a barge thief, the flying squad tracking down a gang of warehouse breakers, and mounted men really in action. There was one scene of three policemen catching a tame burglar, and another of a policeman rescuing a pup from a taxi that would not

Importers' Association

DECIDE HOLIDAY SCHEDULE.

The annual meeting of the Importers' Association, held yesterday evening in the Board of Trade Rooms, was largely attended. After the reports for the year had been received and adopted, the schedule of holidays for the year was discussed. It was decided that the holidays for the coming year would be the same as last year, with the exception of an extra half holiday on September 14th. The Association has arranged a whole holiday on St. George's Day, April 23rd, which falls on Saturday this year, and in consequence the stores will remain open on Friday, April 22nd, till 9.30 p.m. The King's Birthday, which was formerly celebrated on June 3rd, has been cancelled, but will be kept on June 15th instead. The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows:—

President—Hon. Geo. Knowling.
Vice-President—J. S. Ayre.
Secretary—Treasurer—R. A. Templeton.
Committee—Hon. R. K. Bishop, J. C. Marshall and Hon. S. Milley.

Message From Viking.

C.L.B. DANCE.—The members of the C.L.B. are holding a dance in their armoury to-night, which promises to be an enjoyable affair. The Brigade Band will be in attendance, and judging by the advance sale of tickets, a large gathering will be present.

B. I. S.—There will be a meeting of the B. I. S. Ladies Auxiliary in the B. I. S. Club Rooms on Wednesday evening, April 13th, at 8.15 o'clock. ELIZABETH H. PEDIGREW, Sec'y.

LADIES' MEETING.—A meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary takes place in the B.I.S. Club Rooms this evening when matters in connection with their social activities will be discussed.

PAID WITH A SMILE.

A friend back from the South of France tells of a rumor that before long there may be a wrathful strike of the mannequins in the establishments of the fashionable modistes at Nice owing to the poaching on their preserves of the French and British aristocracy. It is becoming a more and more common practice for the exclusive houses to approach Lady So-and-So or the "beautiful Mrs. G." and to circulate to the illustrated papers photographs of one or other of these ladies "in the latest gown of the maison." Lady So-and-So chooses the dress which best suits her, smiles an aristocratic smile for perhaps ten seconds in front of the camera, and then walks away, the owner of the "very latest model." Mannequins, therefore, whose faces and figures appeared in the papers at one time almost every day, and who made some small additional income by so posing, are losing this source of revenue and are becoming irate about it.

Five Quick Effects

When you brush teeth in this way

This new way of tooth brushing brings five desired effects. Some are immediate, all are quick. A ten-day test, which costs you nothing, will clearly show you what they mean to you.

Leading dentists everywhere advise this new-day method. Millions now employ it. You see the results in glistening teeth wherever people gather. Now let your own teeth show them.

You must fight film

Brushing does not save the teeth if you leave the film. That's why well-brushed teeth so often discolor and decay.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. The ordinary tooth paste does not end it, so very few people have escaped its damage.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. So dental science has in late years sought ways to fight that film.

Scientific methods

Efficient methods have been found. Able authorities have proved them by many careful tests. The best dental opinion endorses them.

These methods are combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And to let all know its benefits a 10-Day Tube is being sent to everyone who asks.

A 10-day test is free

Pepsodent quickly proves itself. The results are unique and conspicuous. And a book we send tells what each one means.

One ingredient is peppin. Another multiplies the starch digester in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. The saliva's alkalinity is multiplied also. That to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Two factors directly attack the film. One of them keeps teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

Pepsodent, twice daily, attacks the teeth's chief enemies.

Send the coupon for this 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth written as the film-coats disappear.

The results in ten days will amaze and delight you. Make this test now. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

The Capture of Magdala.

On Easter Monday, April 13, 1868, Magdala, a very strong city of Abyssinia, was stormed with great force and captured by a British Army who lost only two killed and twenty wounded, while the defenders lost 500 killed and wounded out of about 5,000. On the 17th of that month Magdala was burned to the ground by the British. Abyssinia is a very remarkable African country south of Egypt, extending on the south-west coast of the Red Sea, covering 350,000 square miles, and with a total population of seven millions. It was anciently named Ethiopia, and it was thence that the Queen of Sheba travelled to visit a Solomon at Jerusalem, where she was Jewish Church of England clergyman, so astonished at his wisdom that she being thereupon invaded Abyssinia, and Theodore, while sending a letter of apology, and offering a present of cattle, refused to surrender. He died by his own hand, it was believed. The British army had been commanded by Field-Marshal Sir Robert Cornelius Napier, who was therefore created Baron Napier of Magdala, and lived till 1890, when he was succeeded by his son, the present peer. Abyssinia now has a British envoy and consuls.

thought his wives must be the happiest of women; she afterwards returned and became one of the thousand, and so that the Kings of Abyssinia claim descent from Menelek, his son by her. The Abyssinians have professed Christianity since the sixth century, through eastern monks of that time, but about 1633 they expelled the Jesuits, who were attempting to introduce the Papal power. In 1855 they received Protestant missionaries, and in 1863 their Negus or Sovereign Theodore, a Greek name meaning "God's gift," sent a letter to Queen Victoria desiring alliance against the Turks. No reply being returned, Charles Duncan Cameron, a British army officer and Consul there, and all British missionaries and subjects were therefore imprisoned and chained. The Home Maker.

There is an old adage which says "Woman's work is never done." Whose fault is it?

The woman in charge of the home knows there are duties which must be done day in and day out throughout the year, before her thoughts can be allowed to stray to pleasure and recreation. But even the multifarious duties connected with home life need not necessarily cause woman's work never to be done. Where the housewife has to undertake alone the entire management of the household, the question that arises is—Will it be a careless "anyhow" management, or a carefully thought-out "scheming" management—and, therefore, probably a successful one? The young wife is often very ignorant as to the management of a home, and thus finds the duties irksome and trying instead of being the pleasure anticipated prior to her marriage. The work seems to accumulate day by day, and the home loses its freshness, whilst the mistress of the home is making vain endeavours to keep pace with the ever-increasing tasks which must cross the path of the would-be successful house-maker.

The home-making woman, however, is born, not made. No amount of education can create the home-making instinct in a mind in which it is quite deficient. Fortunately for the good of humanity the home-making woman is in the majority.

Method is the great secret or success, and without it your work will drag on unnecessarily and tiringly from early morning until late at night, thus leaving no time for a change of any kind. This causes a feeling of resentment against other women whom you have seen going out in the early afternoon, whilst you are kept indoors for your numerous duties. And yet the women whom you are envying may have just as much work to do as you have, and sometimes more. But these are the women who have worked out a method of their own to lighten the daily tasks.

Whatever work you are engaged upon before marriage required method in order to get through the amount of work allotted to each day, therefore, the work in the house should be made your business! Just as much as was the office work, etc. If a reasonable amount of work is allotted for each day of the week, and done in a methodical manner, it will ensure the housewife almost as much leisure as she enjoyed before marriage. Why is it so many women will try to crowd two days' work into one, and upset several rooms at once, instead of finishing one room before another is started upon? This is a slipshod way of running a house and is also a useless expenditure of energy.

The Value of Rest.

If you feel overdone, take a short rest on the bed rather than finish everything to the uttermost. This rest works wonders and, thus recuperated, you will meet your husband happier, and avoid the resultant discord caused by tiredness and irritability.

Some women, however, seem to think there is something heroic in making themselves slaves to their husbands and children, and are inclined to regard as lazy and neglectful other women who appear to have their afternoons—or evenings—free. Though they complain of the amount of cooking, housework, sewing, and mending, all of which are part of the household management, they never seem to realize how they could ease these burdens which seem to fall so heavily upon their shoulders.

There is so much to say in favour of the woman who is a perfect housewife that it comes as a shock to find that mere housekeeping cannot create a true home. The real home-maker does not allow her house to take first place and her family second place. The family comes first and the house second, but because it shelters the family it must be just the most comfortable place on earth. How can it be if the housewife is always finding minor tasks to do in the evening? With well-thought-out management all the work of the day can be finished, and even the sewing might be put away; thus leaving the evening free for reading or for a discussion on a topical subject in which her husband is interested. A man does not like to think of his wife working all day and then bringing out a huge bundle of darning or mending to be sighted over whilst he is resting after a strenuous day's work. This naturally makes him wonder what his wife has been doing all day, and he concludes she must be a bad manager. How different is the woman who lays aside all her work in the evening, changes her dress, and prepares to enjoy a delightfully cosy evening by the fire, or a walk with her husband. Such a woman will keep her looks, and will also keep her husband's love.

The True Home-Maker.

This is the true home-maker, and her influence is felt the moment you enter the house. The very cushions in the chairs look as if they are meant to be used, and are of a good serviceable—able to spare unnecessary work. It is this art of furnishing with simplicity, avoiding everything which will involve unnecessary labour, that goes toward making a happy home. Spending the best part of the day cleaning brasses or dusting innumerable ornaments does not tend to improve anyone's temper, especially as such tasks must be done fairly frequently to keep a house neat and in order. The young newly-married girl will do well, when setting up housekeeping, to have a definite plan for the work of her house and stick to it, having a place for everything and everything in its place. One cannot say of her, "Poor woman, her work is never done." She reaps her reward in the pleasure of the family around her, who count her as one of the cleverest people they know, and who love to bring their friends home, knowing that they will be welcomed happily, instead of being looked upon as an added task to an already heavily burdened woman.—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

Whitbourne Notes.

The Anglican School was re-opened here on Monday 4th inst. by Miss J. Greenland, who was storm-bound at Coley's Point for a few days.

We understand the R. C. Catholic School, which has been closed during the last year or two, will be re-opened shortly. The building is now being got in readiness for that purpose.

It is rumoured that a resident Priest will be stationed here once again, some time in the near future.

Rev. C. Jeffrey, who took Sunday duty at Placentia, returned home on Monday last, 4th inst.

Mr. Gordon Sparkes, one of the Junior clerks of the railway telegraph office, went to town on Friday, returning on Sunday's express. Mr. Sparkes bids fair to "make good" in his chosen profession, and has lately been promoted with increase of salary. Congratulations.

Mr. Levi Chipman passed peacefully away, on Tuesday, 6th inst., leaving a widow and 6 young children. The deceased had been suffering with tuberculosis for some years. The funeral service was taken on Thursday, by Rev. C. Jeffrey, and was largely attended, when all that was mortal of Levi Chipman was laid to rest in the Anglican Cemetery "until the day dawn." Mrs. Chipman and family are leaving for Spaniard's Bay next week and will live with her brothers there in future.

Hard times seem to be causing some distress among some of the poorer residents here, certain of whom tramped to New Harbour on Thursday, where it was reported the Relieving Officer was dispensing aid to those in need, in the shape of flour, molasses, etc. After covering 24 miles there and back, the men came home empty-handed, but hope later on to be more successful, when the necessary enquiries are made in regard to genuine cases of poverty.

Rev. J. and Mrs. Reay, accompanied by their niece, Miss N. Colton, left for St. John's on Wednesday morning's train. Mrs. Reay's health has somewhat improved of late.

Miss M. Walsh left by the last Hospital, to resume her duties in a Hospital in New York City.

The ladies of the R. Catholic Communion, held an entertainment and dance, followed by a hot supper on the 4th inst. in aid of their school funds. The affair was largely patronized and a good sum netted for the above object.

Right Hon. Sir Robert Bond has his brother, Rev. Geo. Bond, visiting him at "The Grange" this week.

The Anglican school children are planning for a Sale of Work on St. George's Day, 23rd inst. Girls and boys are engaged in making some useful and ornamental articles to be sold for the benefit of their school. 'Tis said. We wish the kiddies a happy and successful affair and a ready sale of their wares.

Obituary.

MARY DINN.
We record, with regret, the demise of an old and respectable lady, in the person of Mrs. Mary Dinn, of St. Joseph's, who passed to her eternal reward, in the early hours of Sunday, April 8th. She had reached the ripe age of 88 years, and was hearty and active till about three years ago, when she suddenly became an invalid. She bore her weary illness with true fortitude and resignation, receiving constantly the solace and blessings of Holy Church. After Requiem Mass on Tuesday, she was laid to rest beside her departed loved ones. Mrs. Dinn was admired and respected for her generous and hospitable disposition, and she was one of the old type, who always looked on the bright side of life. She leaves to mourn her, one daughter at St. Joseph's, Mrs. John D. Daly, and a large circle of relatives, to whom we offer our deepest sympathy. May her soul rest in peace.—Com.

JOSEPH JOY.
A very sudden death occurred at Argentea yesterday afternoon, April 8th, in the person of Mr. Joseph Joy. Deceased leaves to mourn him a wife, two sons and two daughters, for whom much sympathy is felt.

Paltry Omissions.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Can you inform me if the Hon. Dr. Campbell and his office hands have yet been paid their salaries for the year ended 1920?

I can tell you for a fact, that some, if not all the Secretaries of the outport Agricultural Societies, under his Department are still without their stipends for 1920. Incredibly you say, but nevertheless true. This is the Reform Government—reform with a vengeance. These salaries are overdue nearly four months, and Secretaries are anxious to know what has become of the money voted last year for Agricultural purposes.

Mr. Moore, M.H.A. for Ferryland, said in the Assembly the other day, "Dr. Campbell, Minister of Agriculture, went to Canada with $50,000 of the people's money and brought down some scrub cattle, etc." This explains very lucidly where the grant has gone and why the obedient and humble servants of the Minister are still looking out for their small cheques.

Now that questions are being tabled by the Opposition, may I respectfully suggest that along with the many and interesting queries being put, that the Hon. Dr. Campbell be questioned (a) If the Secretaries of the outport Agricultural Societies have yet been paid their salaries for the year 1920? (b) If not, why not?

Did not some of us at least, learn in our catechism that one of the four sins that cry to Heaven for vengeance is to defraud labourers of their wages. Who was guilty of this? Those who withhold too long the payment of the wages of their employees, etc. Surely every workman is worthy of his hire.

Hoping, Mr. Editor, that our economical government will economize in some one of the many and useless departments of expenditure other than depriving the outport Agricultural Secretaries of their just and petty cheques.

Yours faithfully,
ONE INTERESTED.

A Nameless Irish Hero.

A British regiment had been ordered to advance and capture a little town on the Flanders front. With magnificent zest the Tommies advanced along the main road leading into the town. A few scattered groups of Germans opposed them, but the steadily gave way before the British and led them on to the immediate vicinity of the town. The British commander was at the point of ordering his men to make a final charge that would carry them into the main street of the village when they heard someone shouting, "Back, back, sir! There's a trap set for you!"

Looking at the direction of the officer saw a man standing on a window sill of a house on the edge of the town. Then as the man shouted he leaped down from the window and started running toward the British troops.

Spl! Spl! went the hidden machine guns, and the poor fellow pitched forward headlong, riddled with bullets. By a flank movement the British troops skirted the ambush and took the town from another point. When the fighting was over, the officer and his men looked for the man who had so pluckily saved them.

Lying in the middle of the road was his body; he was a young, handsome Irishman. His identification disk was missing, however, and his papers had been taken from him. Plainly he had recently been a prisoner and confined in the room from which he had seen the preparations for ambushing the British troops. Reverently they buried the young hero, feeling that but for him scarcely a man of them would have survived. Though his name is not known, his deed will never be forgotten by those whom he saved.

Brick's Tasteless is the best preparation known for children who are delicate. Taken in half to one teaspoonful doses it works marvellous results. Try a bottle and convince yourself.—jan27.1t

JOB'S STORES, Ltd.

Fashions and Fads.

Plaiting is yet in vogue. Suit coats have narrow belts. The side train is again in favor. Smocks have come back into vogue. Paris favors a dash of red in the costume. Velvet ribbons are in vogue as more this season. Polka-dotted stockings are the latest fad.

Very new and youthful is the puffed sleeve. A great deal of lace is used on the new hats. Taffeta and peach skin hats are very popular. White and gray are fashionable in neckwear. All-black footwear is being worn more this season. Novelty gantlet gloves are the most fashionable. Skirts are decidedly wide, and sleeves are longer. Coats of black satin have quilted or blistered collars. A dress of crepe satin has puffed sleeves of organdie. Front and back panels are used even on bathing suits. Crepe fabrics are extremely fashionable this season. Side tunics are trimmed with bands of solid stitching. The homespun bag embroidered in wool is a smart accessory.

MUTT AND JEFF

I'VE ALMOST LANDED A JOB WITH A MEXICAN OIL COMPANY! THEY WANT MEN WHO HAVE LIVED IN MEXICO, AND AS I SERVED SIX MONTHS IN THE MEXICAN ARMY THAT LETS ME IN ON THE GROUND FLOOR!

WHY, THIS IS AN APPLICATION BLANK FOR A POSITION WITH A MEXICAN OIL COMPANY! ARE YOU GONNA APPLY FOR A JOB, JEFF?

SURE, AND I WANT YOU TO ASSIST ME IN FILLING IT OUT!

NAME—JEFF. HABITS—REGULAR! NOW, THE NEXT QUESTION ASKS IF YOU HAVE EVER BEEN IN MEXICO!

YES, I WAS AN OFFICER IN THE MEXICAN ARMY!

YOUR RANK?

I KNOW I AM!

SAR!

THE LITTLE FELLOW WILL PLEAD GUILTY TO MOST ANYTHING.
