REPAIRS ARE NOW FULLY COMPLETED

Later Advances from Valparaiso Say Earthquake was Most Disasterous One --- Shocks Continued All Day Friday---Property Damage Enormous and Many Lives Were Lost.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—What appears to be positive confirmation of the rumors of destruction of property and loss of life caused by the earthquake shock in the vicinity of Valparaiso is contained in an Associated Press despatch received today (Saturday) from Galveston, Tex. The cable office in that city, communicating direct with the cable operator at Valparaiso, learned that Valparaiso was in turmoil and buildings were wrecked, with the belief that a great loss of life had occurred.

Los Andes, also known as Andes and Santa Rosa de Los Andes, is a town of Chile, province of Aconcagua, 18 miles from San Felipe de Aconcagua, capital of the province of Aconcagua. San Felipe is forty miles north of Santiago, with which it is connected by rail.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The Herald today prints the following: Valparaiso, Chile, Friday. (via Galveston, Texas). Within the slightest tremor of warning an earthquake visited this city at 8 o'clock last night, bringing instant death to hundreds of persons and leaving many hundreds more imprisoned in the ruins, many of whom were burned to death.

HAMBURG, Aug. 18.—The North German bank today received from its correspondent at the Banco de Chile Alemania at Valparaiso the following despatch: "All well. Bank building only slightly damaged. Many houses destroyed by fire; we are unable to state extent of damage; banks closed."

BREMEN, Aug. 18.—A private despatch received here from Iquique, Chile, states that the city was unharmed by the earthquake. Iquique is the earthquake.

HONOLULU, Aug. 18.—Wireless reports from the islands of Hawaii and Johnston at a tidal wave, the general height of which was five feet. In the enclosed bay of Maalea, on the island of Maui, its height was estimated to be 12 feet, where it carried away a wharf and its superstructure. The phenomenon was manifested by an unprecedented heavy surf.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 18.—The newspapers last evening publish telegrams from Mendoza to the effect that many houses in the Los Andes district were destroyed by the earthquake and that there had been a large number of casualties. The town with Chile causes much anxiety. Many rumors of disaster are afloat.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 17-6 p. m.—In the absence of telegraphic communication beyond Puerto Del Inca, it has been impossible up to this hour to obtain accurate details of the destruction by the earthquake in Chile. The managers of the telegraph companies here state that nothing is coming through. Press reports pertaining to come from Chile are few, but according to London and New York are eagerly seeking for news from the affected district. Officials of the Pacific rail-he does not believe that she was the derelict with the charred stern, reported by the captain of the schooner Etha B. Aug. 14. He expects to hear later that his vessel has been picked up and towed into port for salvage as she was heavily laden with a cargo of lumber bound from Machias to Providence. The schooner Harvest Home, built from Ellsworth, and was built in Lamoine in 1870. She registered 78 tons.

"REID'S FOLLY" TO BE RAZED; PASSING OF A LANDMARK. With the removal of Reid's observatory a familiar structure passes from Mount Pleasant. The lofty octagon tower has been the subject of much comment, not only among St. John people, but with tourists from across the border and elsewhere. Only comparatively few, however, were privileged to mount the long passage-way to the top of the structure which afforded probably the finest view of the city and surrounding country that could be had in St. John.

INTERESTING LIST TO SOME BUSY FACTORIES SURROUNDING AMHERST

It was characteristic of Amherst that over the door of a shop or of its factories this week was the sign in large letters—"M. B. T. Welcome."

The Rhodes Curry Co., Ltd., is of course the leading Amherst industry. It takes time and a measure of endurance to go over the plant of this company, covering so large a space of ground and involving so many processes of manufacture in wood and iron. They build cars, and manufacture on the premises not only the wood-working factory in Sydney, and a branch in Halifax. They also have large yards of standing timber. They manufacture the material for houses, and also other work. They have at present contracts for cars from the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific, as well as other roads, including one for the Trans-Canada and Northern Ontario Railway. Their output is enormous. Their building contracts amount to some $300,000 to $400,000 per year. The total value of contracts now booked for all departments of their business is about $1,000,000 to $1,200,000.

The Robt. Engineering Co., Ltd., employ nearly 400 hands in the manufacture of iron and steel machinery. Their enormous plant is completely equipped, and everything kept in perfect order. Their buildings were so planned that extensions may be added year by year, extending present structures. They were among the first engine builders in the new world, and have a large business in Canada and far away as South Africa and India. They are also doing business in the United States—South Framingham, Mass. It is a separate company, but under the same management, and with some of the same shareholders. The industry at Amherst has been long established, and the company have more work than they can do. They have more work than they can do. They have more work than they can do.

FIFTY MEN BURIED ALIVE IN TUNNEL

BRISTOL, Va., Aug. 17.—Fifty men are entombed alive in the Clinch Mountain tunnel at Clinchport (Va.) as a result of a cave-in which occurred today. It is not known whether the men are dead or alive, but the work of rescue is being rushed as fast as possible. Air is being pumped into the tunnel and a large force of men is working in an effort toward rescue.

The cave-in occurred unexpectedly and it is not known who is responsible. The men entombed are chiefly natives of the mountainous section of southwest Virginia, and the excitement and anxiety is intense. Men, women and children tonight were at the mouth of the tunnel awaiting news. Many women were crying hysterically for fathers, brothers and loved ones. No bodies have been recovered.

The tunnel is being driven through Clinch Mountain and is to be one mile in length. It has already been extended about 70 feet and the men are a considerable distance in the hole. The contract for the tunnel was let some months ago by the South & Western R. R. at $2,000,000 and is to be one of the longest and most expensive tunnels in the south.

CAPTURED IN PORTLAND

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 18.—Inspector Boston of the local police department, who is wanted at Athol, Mass., for alleged murderous assault. Search has been made for Richardson since the first of July. He has been in a logging camp in the Maine woods, it is said. He will probably be turned over to Massachusetts officials tomorrow.

PLAGUE OF LOCUSTS

VIENNA, Aug. 17.—Myriads of locusts are devastating the country in the neighborhood of Debrecin, Hungary. They are sweeping through the land, eating every green thing in their path. The locusts are so numerous that they are being used as fuel for stoves. The locusts are also being used as fertilizer.

The locusts are also being used as fertilizer. They are also being used as fertilizer. They are also being used as fertilizer.

ANALYSING OUR MONEY

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 18 (Special).—The inland revenue department caused 54 samples of money to be analyzed for the purpose of determining the genuineness of the paper. The results were found to be satisfactory.

MADE A NEW RECORD

QUÉBEC, Aug. 18 (Special).—The steamship Empress of Britain, which arrived yesterday in charge of Captain Murray, made a new record from Monville to Rimouski, coming via the southern route in 15 days 18 hours and 40 minutes. The best previous run was held by the Empress-5 days 18 hours and 30 minutes. Among the passengers on the Britain was Wm. Hawker, of St. John.

COULD TELL IT OVER OTHERS

MONTREAL, Aug. 18 (Special).—A special London cable says:—A witness in the Guildhall police court, giving evidence against a prisoner charged with passing off counterfeit money, asserted that it was impossible to identify them, but when they left their coats in the lockers, he was able to identify them from the marks on the coats. He went by the smell and taste. It was a common practice for merchants to put inferior cheese into boxes of well known brands.

POLICE COURT

A solitary individual ornamented the bench at the police court this morning. He was a sailor, Frank Teros, by name, and charged with profanity for which he was fined $5 or 30 days at hard labor. Teros had some fifteen dollars in gold and bank notes and paid his fine. There was some difficulty in making him up, but it was finally arranged, but not before the offender who is a native of Sunny Italy, addressed his honor in a burst of fiery eloquence from which it was gathered that he felt his arrest was hardly justified.

FOREST FIRES RAGING

MELROSE, N. B., Aug. 17.—Tremendous forest fires are now raging near Midgic, Westmorland county, and unless rain comes in the very near future or some strong wind to turn the fires in their course, they will burn thousands of acres of valuable land. Friday last a spark, presumably from a passing engine, set fire to some timber land owned by E. Hickey and in a short time a great blaze resulted. The Pick and property was the next to suffer, and G. Mahoney's camp and mills are in danger, and nothing but rain and a change on wind can save them from destruction. Twenty-five men, employed by the land-owners above named, have been fighting the fire constantly.

SUGGESTS CHANGES IN BOARD OF HEALTH

Dr. Daniel Would Amend Act to Make Provincial and Local Boards of Health More Efficient --- What He Proposes as His Remedy --- Board Should Appoint Own Chief.

Dr. J. W. Daniel, M. P., who is a member of the local board of health, has always taken a deep interest in its affairs, and in talking with a Times man yesterday suggested a number of changes which might be made in the act to make the provincial and local boards more efficient for doing effective work. Dr. Daniel thinks, but improvements could be made.

I. C. R. PASS QUESTION

MONTON, Aug. 18.—Notwithstanding the statements published in some quarters to the effect that the I. C. R. employees are satisfied with the reply made by Mr. Emerson on the pass question, the agitation for further concessions is being continued. It may be said very emphatically that the employees are not satisfied with the reply made by Mr. Emerson on the pass question, the agitation for further concessions is being continued. FIRE APPARATUS FOR FREDERICTON

FREDERICTON, Aug. 18.—(Special).—The ratifiers of St. Marys held a meeting last evening, and after a spirited discussion authorized the commissioning to ascertain the cost of a fire engine, water tank, and line of hose for fire protection purposes. An amendment authorizing the commissioning to ascertain the cost of a fire engine, water tank, and line of hose for fire protection purposes. THE TIMES NEW REPORTER

HE'S GOT IT. The Times new reporter returned from Amherst this morning and at once invited the rest of the staff to join him in subscribing stock to start a new industry. As the cashier had not yet handed out the weekly stipend the general show-down revealed thirteen cents, four buttons and a corker.

The new reporter said he would try elsewhere. He believes St. John is just as good a location for factories as Amherst, and he is determined to establish a few in this town—over move up the line.

WESTMORLAND COUNTY

Mr. Mahoney logged carefully last year on the land that now is in danger and, if burned, lumbering on that property will not be in evidence for many years to come. A great effort is being made to keep the fire from crossing the track. If it succeeds in that course, communication would have to be shut off for some time. Miss Margaret McDonald, of Boston, who is visiting here, had a very narrow escape from being seriously burned this week. While driving, in company with Miss Nora Brown, past Norman's mill, a spark ignited Miss McDonald's sunshade and also some of her clothing. After some little difficulty the fire was extinguished, but not before Miss McDonald suffered a few burns.

A DAUGHTER OF JUDEA

Shalmal was just a Hebrew, beseigned to a life of Nazareth. She had been imported to this country by an enterprising manufacturer who gave the commercial value of a pair of luminous oriental eyes, of an olive skin, with lips and cheeks the red of the almond, and of a sage-green voice to vend his machine-embroidered fabrics as real Syrian hand-wrought stuffs.

Perhaps it was an excess of the Syrian she wore about her neck, or perhaps it was the novelty of having a daughter of Judea come in flesh and blood and gaily trappings to one's very door, that quickened the postula to the picturesque little pedler; but with glance more eloquent than a flood of words and a truly oriental wealth of expressive gestures to help out the gauperson of the English tongue, Shalmal displayed her merchandise in business-revered punctuated by a native house-to-house vendor—and she found abundant customers to pay importers' prices for her comely Syrian needlework.

Shalmal's success at evening shokels and spoiling the Egyptians ought to have excited any national man; but the money she took had dissolved the American's business sense, and either he had never heard of that an educated woman was a flight of steps leading to calamity, or, during the idle season with the idea of increasing her commercial value, he enrolled Shalmal in a mission school where matriculation fees are unchanged and both books and instruction come free.

Through a fateful coincidence, the ailments of a linguistic education—that is, a greater familiarity with the colloquial dialects of the Orient than is acquired in a college course, had influenced one Emory Kernish to become an instructor in this same consoling institution where no money was to be made. Shalmal was a vision of oriental loveliness, dusky and deep-tinted. The sandal-wood and spice mysteries of the incense bath were wafted in delicious zephyrs from her gay striped garments. She was an immaculate exception among that throng of "great unwashed"—and from his tired surprised glance she radiated a mystic and amber, this unadorned offspring of a desert race, with her dower of clinging curls wreathed through her midnight hair, and bangles jangling like castles with every move.

But Kernish was a politic young coxcomb, and in no haste to commit himself to words. In truth, when away from the vicinity of Shalmal's presence, he would wish himself the most unloving of men, and as a matter of fact, he was. He was a young man, and as a matter of fact, he was. He was a young man, and as a matter of fact, he was.

It was at this time that an unusual book, called "In His Steps," was circulating in a national interest, and the reading lessons at the mission were assigned from it. It was a story of how some people in a western town attempted to apply the principles of Christianity to their everyday lives and carry it into their business. The reader depicted were in a little town, somewhat the nature of a Gogol's; and, yet, securing eradication, an emulative enthusiasm swept the mission school, and, copying by their united example, were sent to the world to apply Christianity, a society was formed of those who would pledge themselves for a specific time to do just as Shalmal's holy countryman would if he were in their place.

With genuine amazement, Shalmal observed her Hebrew name to the role of Christians. She knew the people and she knew the kinds of trade, but her conversion was too sincere for pharisee use only. It was the month preceding the holidays when the momentous compact was entered into, and it was also the harvest season for one in Shalmal's line. So, with a tiny silver "In His Steps" cross hanging upon her breast and a tiny silver "In His Steps" cross hanging upon her breast and a tiny silver "In His Steps" cross hanging upon her breast.

Her employer's parting advice to make her conscience elastic wherever her pledge and business might clash had only made her the more determined to live up to it faithfully. He had warned her that she would find silence more golden than truth—but a frenzy for truth telling had seized upon Shalmal. She was proud with it and reckless as to results. "No, ladies," she would say at every house, with an accent that echoed of Edralson. "I am a Christian, but my brooders are from Chicago. They are not Christians, but my brooders are from Chicago. They are not Christians, but my brooders are from Chicago.

With the eagerness of a lover longing for a pretext to again look on his adored, Kernish volunteered to go out as a rescue expedition to the too thoroughly Christianized corner.

One of Three Things Always Cause RHEUMATISM

Do you know the system rid itself of waste matter through bowels and kidneys? Yes, but by the skin as well. As a matter of fact, the skin rids the system of more urea than the kidneys do. If the skin, or bowels, or kidneys are unhealthy—they won't throw off enough urea. This urea is changed into uric acid—carried by the blood to joints and nerves—causing Rheumatism.

One never inherits Rheumatism. One does inherit weak kidneys, irregular bowels and bad skin action. Fruit-A-Tives is a natural, safe, and effective remedy for Rheumatism. It is a natural, safe, and effective remedy for Rheumatism.

FRUIT-A-TIVES are fruit juices, which increase the eliminating action of skin, kidneys and bowels—and make these three organs so vigorous and healthy that there can be no urea or waste retained in the system to poison the blood and irritate the nerves.

COCOA AND CHOCOLATE Remarkable Growth of Demand in the United States in Recent Years. It is a fact to be gratified about that cocoa and chocolate are conducive to health, because they are so delicious that their lovers and users are growing in number so rapidly as to require almost a daily revision of statistics.

Not alone, however, is the attention called by the use of cocoa in one form or another has increased in the United States two thousand per cent., and the consumption of cocoa and chocolate by Americans has more than doubled in five years.

AUTHORITY OF THE PENTATEUCH

Pronouncement issued by the Pope Concedes Something to Higher Criticism. (Monfral Star.) In reply to numerous troubled inquiries received in Rome from bishops and priests in all parts of the Roman Catholic world, the correct attitude of Catholics towards the higher criticism relative to the Pentateuch, the Vatican Institute through the Biblical Commission has issued the following document, sealed with the Pope's approval.

1. Despite the arguments formulated by modern critics against the Mosaic authenticity of the Pentateuch, greater regard must be had for the witness of Old and New Testaments, the constant persuasion of the Jewish people, and the uninterrupted tradition of the church, equally with the internal proofs derivable from the sacred books themselves.

2. It does not, however, follow that Moses wrote the Pentateuch entirely with his own hand, or dictated it all to copyists. It may be admitted that when he had conceived his work under Divine inspiration, he considered its redaction into the form of a book, and that he had published his inspired author's approval of the work.

THE PLAYGROUNDS The supervised playground is, for this season, a thing of the past. It has been all more than its advocates predicted. The citizens who have visited the Centennial school grounds have been convinced of the great value of such places for the children. Necessarily this year's work was experimental here, and there were some lessons to be learned. They have been learned, and will be profited by next year; for it goes without saying that the supervised playground has come to stay.

It may also be noted that Australia is realizing more keenly the need of immigrants, and despite the restrictions imposed in the past in the interests of native labor, it is certain that a more vigorous effort will be made to secure more settlers.

New Glimpses of the West Through Eastern Eyes, by Frank Veigh, Toronto.

(THIRD LETTER—written specially for The Evening Times. Copyright. All rights Reserved.) The lake districts of Southern British Columbia are inaccessible in their scenic beauty. Kootenay, Arrow, Shuswap, Okanagan reveal in turn, as they are sailed over, entrancing glimpses of blue-green waters, hemmed in by billowy hills and loftier mountain peaks; of orchards and farms, ranches and mines; of lonely cabins and thriving towns. One is impressed anew with the colossal scale on which nature exhibits her wonders in this our West-land province.

Bright, budding Nelson, the water gateway of the Kootenay Lakes, boasts of daily papers, a street car line, and municipal lighting. And, in the foreground, while its citizens were eloquent over the mineral and timber wealth of the surrounding hills and the fruit growing possibilities of its adjacent bench lands, Nelson's fruit took first prize at the Royal Horticultural Exhibition in London last year. 20,000 crates of strawberries and apples were shipped to the Northwest in 1905. One fruit grower claims a net profit of $1,000 from five acres of strawberries. This is matched by a dweller in the Okanagan Valley who it is said made $100 from the product of a single cherry tree. Nelson has a building "20,000 Club" that never lets a traveler escape without hearing of the present big game and the prospective greatness of the "Capital of the Kootenays."

The steamer sail from Nelson to Kalo and Lardo constitutes a delightful day's travelling. The dramatic passage from the Narrows of the Kootenay River to the main lakes makes a striking scenic picture, with the overhanging Selkirk's narrowing in the northern distance and in a blue haze the boat calls at smelters and mines, at prospectors' shacks and embryo towns, at summer pleasure camps and houses of resort. There are always an essential in this deep water country, the craft noosing their bows on beach or rocks as necessity requires. In dear little Kalo I found up-to-date water works and electric lighting, and heavily laden fruit trees and riotous flower gardens.

Hills to the right, hills to the left, around one rise high above the lake—hills that are mineralized to a degree probably never dreamed of. Occident and nickel seem to be the only mineral products that are not found in this highly metalliferous region. The attractive ore exhibits, to the westward, that grow in the mountains. The best ores are iron, lead, and silver. The mineral riches of Canada's Kootenay country.

In a newspaper interview with British Columbia's Minister of Finance, Hon. R. G. Taitow, it was learned that the production of British Columbia last year totalled 20 millions—equal, as he put it, to $1,250 for every one of the 40,000 white men in the province. "I am anxious," he continued, "that the industry in British Columbia is only in its infancy. We have forests of immense extent; land in millions of acres for agriculture; and 7,000 miles of our shore line are washed by seas teeming with fish."

The cut lumber value for 1905 was $7,500,000—all manufactured in the province. The mineral output was $22,461,225 (making a grand total of 228 millions in the last thirty years), and yet only 25 per cent. of the mineral area has even been prospected. There are eleven smelters and one refinery in active operation, with a combined capacity of 720 tons a day. Agriculturally there is a gratifying decrease in imports as the local yield increases. The 1905 produce of wheat and cereals reached $6,500,000, while $2,000,000 worth of eggs, poultry and cheese were exported. Horticulture is also coming one of the important industries of the mountain province. In 1905, 22,000 acres were thus under cultivation, and 40,000 is estimated for 1906.

Mr. Taitow comments that "in ten years from now a million population will be no idle dream, but probably an accomplished fact. There is room enough for all to come. Fresh discoveries of minerals are being made every day, and there are counties of the world are looking to British Columbia for lumber, and there are counties millions of feet to meet this demand. Our fisheries are being developed more and more with the utmost success. We have the protection of the British flag, and an integral part of the empire. Such being the case, I venture to state that ten years from now British Columbia will have attained the prominent place in the world that it is here by right."

On the Arrow Lakes trip, a ten-hour panorama of the river is unfolded. The waters of the Columbia, in their basins, rushing to the sea, pour into the yellowish tint. On the benches of the lakes fertile areas are found where bachelor ranches live in lonely colonies. The term "ranch" is applied in British Columbia to farms and orchards, no matter how small in area. Of one such rancher I asked as to his stock. "One horse, one dog, one cat," was his reply. His holding is comprised of a meadow and a small and newly planted orchard, but the prairie idea of a ranch is vastly different. On the Arrow, as on the Kootenay Lakes, the scenery is of the finest, north to the lesser peaks of the south. At times, when the mists cling to the slopes and clouds form wreaths around the summits, the effect is most suggestive of Scottish Highland scenes. It only needs a little village of stone cottages nestling in a nook of rock, or the sight of a flock of sheep herded by a tartan shepherd to make the resemblance complete.

But this is a region of timber houses of some of them red-top ones made in Vancouver and shipped in sections. In the town of Arrowhead, frame hotels and stores are aloft on rafts, and the rest of the houses cling by their eyebrows to the mountain sides. Nearly are two of the many great sawmills of the country, from Vancouver Island and the mainland to the Crow's Nest Pass, cannot meet the ever increasing demands of British Columbia itself and the adjoining prairie provinces.

The Okanagan Lake District is yet another Arcadia in this Canadian Switzerland. The scenic surroundings are softer than among its eastern lake neighbors. On the way to Vernon from Sicamous, the valley looks like a bit of old Ontario lost in the far west, with the fields of ripening grain, the comfortable farmsteads and the general air of long cultivation and settled prosperity. The orchards, too, signify indeed this year, duplicate the Niagara peninsula; while the ranches in the connecting valleys are more on the prairie scale as to area and stock.

One of the old residents on board the Aberdeen. "We never have thunder storms here as you do in the east," he remarked. And so one thought as the eye rested on the sky and the resting lake and felt the caressing breeze. But in half an hour a storm of intense fury was born through the valley cleft to the lake, shaking the waters into angry waves and making the hills reverberate with the sound of thunder. When the passion of nature was over, the old resident had disappeared, though it was not quite on the part of the elements to play him such a trick. Along the beautiful sheet of water lie the new fruit growing centers of Kelowna, Pechanga, Sumas, and Penton—musical names all. To be privileged to eat red apples from a British Columbia orchard is to pick real red-checked peaches from a Pechanga tree; to see pear and plum trees laden to their limit and flourishing amid their irrigation channels, was to realize that in this great timber and mining province of Canada, fruit growing is already an established industry. It was only in 1893 that the first carload of British Columbia apples was shipped to Glasgow—3,000 apples by land; 3,000 miles by sea, remember—and they sold well. Another shipment carried safely to Australia, while the first carload of British Columbia apples was a gold medal at the Royal Horticultural Exhibition in London. British Columbia must not, however, be content with the plans stand open-mouthed and ready to devour all that is grown for many a day. Rarely have my eyes rested on a fairer scene than that viewed from one of the Pechanga benches by the North end. Composed for many a mile, lake and mountain comprised to make a nature picture of rarest beauty. Around one the rich eye rests on the green orchards, the valleys leading to other delectable regions. In fact, one of the many gardens of the Dominion is the Okanagan Valley.

GARDEN PARTY FROCKS

GAY ACCESSORIES

By Mary Dean. The gowns and odd bodices seen at roof gardens and dinners about town, are by all odds the prettiest things of the moment. The gala quality of these charming Summer styles is very pronounced. Out of materials and trimmings all combine to produce a garden party prettiness, which is more than enhanced by picturesque, airy hats.

at his best, for with all his easy get-up he presents the cool, fresh look which is the sign-manual of the smart summer man. Not infrequently an occasional roof garden get-up is elaborately picturesque, for bare heads, lace-draped and with high combs a l'Espagnol, have been seen, as well as French toilettes whose dragging skirts and fragile ball-like turbans seem more fitting for racetrack boxes and hotel corridor parades. But happily these dressers are in the minority, the popular prejudice being against the elaborate toilettes for these places.

On the other hand, the gown which sports itself at the public dinner is often of a surpassing splendor. Chiffon is often in every color of the rainbow, painted and spangled net, whole gowns of priceless lace, and others of a tulle-like net so heaped with splendid embroidery that it is difficult to tell where the trimming begins and the ground principle ends. Toilettes in Empire styles are far less numerous than costumes which show the correct waist line, though occasionally one, in some diaphanous textile topped by a jacket effect of magnificent lace or embroidery, is encountered.

The conventional bodice dresses are very charming, those in the delicate white lingerie materials which are greatly used presenting the dainty charm of infant's christening robes. Ribbons in delicate colors or else in beautiful flowered patterns girdle these frocks in many high waists, and if the under slip is of color the hat, shoes and gloves may match. Large hats of crim, leghorn and drawn net, in pale colors, are the headpieces with these gowns, with which a collar, less bodice or one slightly décolleté goes charmingly. The muffling-for as yet summer evenings have been cool-are in the form of estich of marabout boas. Or the neck facing may be the shortest quill of tulle, which, with long slim ends of narrow ribbon or velvet, enclose the face becomingly or still again, one of the thin long scarfs which are now so much admired and which present such graceful possibilities of wearing may be the wrap.

Bodices indicative of future styles

Among the prettier bodices seen hand-drawn, some of heavy white tulle, some of more present very attractive features. Often with short white sleeves of various lengths, in gipsy or bishop form, the genre of these simple bodices is yet very smart. Enormously high turn-down collars are frequently worn with them, but the stiff linen look of these may be deceptive, for not uncommonly the collar is of the shirt material heavily embroidered. A delicate silk hand embroidery may also show on these waists, whose accompanying skirts, belts and hats all strive for the same dapper look.

In fact, take her all in all, the roof garden maiden presents a very groomed, sleek air, which is in no wise hurt by the light summer suits. Panama hats and colored linen of attendant squires. Perhaps upon the roof garden more than anywhere else, the masculine exquisite is seen of the most striking costume of the trio is by far the one which shows a decoration of bands and half moons. This is of stark blue mousseline, with velvet in a deeper shade for the bands-which on both skirt and jacket are oddly employed-and thin chiffon tulle in some tone for crescent applications. On the full skirt, these crescents are sparingly scattered through the band trimming, but the short jacket is completely covered with them. The velvet borders is effectively, and both velvet and silk shape the high belt, which fastenings with a high jet buckle, is worn over a white bodice of cream embroidery on muslin. The hat of black crim faced with blue and cream-embroidered with black tulle and faded pink roses.

Still another costume of simple girlish effect yet achieves this quality with infinite pains, for hand embroidery and lace touched up with other needlework are its devices. Pale blue silk muslin is the material of this, the colonial wreaths being of the embroidery in flower colors. Upon the skirt, with this beautiful ornamentation, the lace, which presents a silky blouse look, is put on to outline a wavy drapery line. The yoke of the bodice is embroidered and finished with a deep blue fall of the worked lace, all of which shows an edge of French knots in blue, pink and green. The hat is a simple crown shape of blue crim, with a crown tuft of blue tulle and side spray of pink-colored wild flowers.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES

Every bright-minded human being enjoys a pick-up lunch, and it is this love of informality, stronger than ever in the summer time, that makes the Sunday tea such a joyous meal. It is the smart thing nowadays to get your own Sunday night supper in your own apartments. No more going out to restaurants or keeping the cook to make an informal dinner—just a happy, informal gathering of family and friends, with everything prepared by amateur chefs.

The only thing necessary for the hostess to do is to see that the dining table contains a reasonable amount of seasonable fruit and vegetables, some eggs and some relishes. The menu will be made up after the party inspects the refrigerator and in about fifteen minutes from the time they start, a meal that would not only tempt the dying Anchoree but would bring him back to life again, may be spread on the table. No one is likely to want anything hot, but if there are any such, let them warm in the corners of the gas stove or in the chafing dish, a package of Sargents chips, which will give the required warmth without heaviness.

Corn Salad With Mayonnaise—Cut cold boiled corn from the cob, carefully removing any shreds of silk that have adhered between the kernels. Line a salad bowl with white lettuce from the heart of a lettuce head and then heap the corn in the center. Pour the mayonnaise over the whole, being sure to have plenty of it. The toothsome-ness of corn as a salad ingredient is just becoming known. It is much better eaten alone with a mayonnaise than mixed with other vegetables.

Recipe for Mayonnaise—Put a pinch of salt and a dash of pepper into a bowl after rubbing the bottom and sides of the bowl with a split clove of garlic; add the yolks of two eggs, half a pint of olive oil and a teaspoonful of vinegar. Take an egg beater and stir them all up together briskly for about ten minutes. Then pour the mixture over the salad. Lemon juice may be used instead of vinegar. If preferred, and half a cup of whipped cream may be added, but the combination of cream and vinegar is not always easily digested. Some persons like to make mayonnaise by adding the oil to the eggs drop by drop, but this is a tedious and laborious process, and the sauce is just as good when made in the speedy way described.

Mixed Vegetable Salad With French Dressing—First rub the salad bowl with a split clove of garlic; then pour in four tablespoonfuls of olive oil to one of Tarragon vinegar and stir thoroughly with a silver fork. Next put in any vegetables you have in the house; you cannot have too many, but two will do. Sliced cucumbers, tomatoes, onions, asparagus tips, parsley, pepper-corns—all these are good and will blend harmoniously with the dressing. When you mix the vegetables, sprinkle with pepper and salt, and celery salt. Edge the dish with lettuce leaves.

Cream Cheese and Nuts.—Take a package of cream cheese and put in a bowl with several spoonfuls of prepared salad dressing and mix thoroughly with a silver or wooden spoon. TO MOLD HOUSES IS LATEST IDEA Whole Concrete Houses Molded in One Cast is Mr. Edison's Latest Plan.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Whole houses molded in a single casting of solid concrete, which will provide cozy homes for workmen at a cost of from $500 to $600—much less than the average mechanic pays today—is the goal which Thomas A. Edison is striving to reach. He is confident of success.

Mr. Edison intends to make his first practical experiments next year in his new village in Warren county, N. Y. One of the big Edison industrial establishments is situated there, and he purposes to erect the homes by the new process for the families of the hundreds of employees of the plant. If he succeeds in demonstrating the practicability of the scheme he will introduce it generally.

He already has conceived every detail of the project. Four days at the outside is the period Edison estimates will be necessary to cast and turn out of the houses with from eight to ten rooms in each, complete in almost every detail and ready to be furnished and carpeted. The actual time for pumping the concrete into the metallic molds will be only a few hours, and the rest of the time will be consumed in drying out and hardening. Whole cities of concrete may be reared in the brief period of four days if only enough molds and men are provided.

Mr. Edison thinks that the time is near when the world must find some substitute for brick and lumber. The yellow pine forests of the United States will be almost entirely destroyed within fifty years if the present drain upon them is maintained. Describing the plan in detail Edison said:

"The first step will be to employ an architect to design, say a dozen dwelling houses of different patterns. I propose to have metallic molds made for each of the mold for each house will be made in detachable parts. There will be separate plates and small molds that can be set together easily to form one mold for an entire house. That a fine finish may be obtained, the inside surfaces of the parts will be nickel plated.

"After the mold for the whole house is set up it will be a simple matter to pump the concrete into every nook and cranny. After four hours the parts of the mold will be unsecured and taken off and the solid concrete house will remain."

Edison says the plan will be carried out in such detail that dormer windows, chimneys, spouts and ornamental designs will be modeled with the whole and that the inside cupboards, fireplaces, stairways and ornamental banisters, metal pieces and even bathtubs will be formed in the cast in which the house proper will be made.

The house will be so complete that when the mold is removed the installation of electric wires, window shades, etc. will be all that will be necessary before the furnishing and carpet layers go to work. Even the plumbing and gaspiping will be of concrete and molded in the original cast.

IF YOU READ

the series of advertisements which will appear in this paper every other week, pointing out the many points in which our brands, "FIVE ROSES" and "HARVEST QUEEN," are superior to any ordinary bakers' flour, you will see that it will pay you to use these brands.

All we ask you to do is to read the series carefully from first to last—weigh the statements made—compare the advantages you can obtain by using our brands with the worry and anxiety you must have with ordinary flour—consider the reputation we have already established for uniformity and purity in flour, and then send us a trial order—and you will be pleased, and will realize that the time spent in considering the matter has been by no means wasted.

We want your trade. You want our brands—though you may not know it. Can't we get together through the medium of these advertisements and do business to our mutual benefit?

Cures Rheumatism

"I had an attack of Rheumatism—pains near my heart—which increased to such a degree that I became very anxious. I lost my appetite, and an intense itching or heating of the head made life miserable. I asked a druggist, was there nothing he could suggest that would help me, and he replied 'Why not ABBEY'S SALT?'

I did so, and can now state positively, and without solicitation that the Rheumatism has disappeared—my appetite is grand—and the itching of my scalp has ceased.

I suggested to my aged Father and Mother that they should try ABBEY'S SALT for their Rheumatism—and they tell me they have received immense benefit."

SLEEP

Up spoke a lullaby extante Who had all things to please, And told of slumbers he enjoyed On flowery beds of ease.

A troller raised his honest voice To tell of sleep serene, Enslaving him when work was done, Upon his pallet mean.

And then in praise of outdoor couch Spoke one of gray hair, And said the sweetest rest was found Upon the breast of earth.

At this the summer guest arose, And boasted that his resort "Neath blankets he had slept"—New York Sun.

A lady carrying a little dog in a London omnibus wanted to know at every turning whether this was Park Lane.

"She began asking the question soon after the bus started and repeated it at intervals all along the route until at last she was told, to the intense relief of everybody in the omnibus, that Park Lane was really before her eyes.

But they were not to see the last of her even then. "Look!" she said in ecstatic tones, holding the dog up to the window, "that's where your mother was born."—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Frenchman who was staying at an hotel in England asked for his bill, and, on its being presented, was astonished to find it so large. He felt that he had been duped, but he paid the bill and asked to see the proprietor. The landlord came down, and the Frenchman rushed up to him.

"Ah, let me embrace you!" he exclaimed. "Let me kiss you!"

"But why do you want to embrace me, sir? I don't understand."

"Ah, sir, but look at this bill!"

"Your bill? Yes, but what of it?"

"Vot of it? Why, it means zat I eall nevaire, nevaire see you again, sire!"

At a cookery exhibit lately held in Paris an interesting feature was the reproduction of a dinner given by Napoleon I. to 100 of his foreign ministers. It was an elaborate repast for 20 persons, and the original menu of 1806, prepared by Talleyrand's famous cook, Carême, was scrupulously followed. The pots and pans used, and the table upon which the dishes were prepared, were actually the same as used at Talleyrand's house a century ago.

The Honor of a Soldier.

By WEX JONES.

There were soldiers—red and soldierly blue. Horse and foot, and artillery, too. And they all stood up in rigid rows. As stiff as ramrods from heads to toes. For see the general—General Dick— Comes prancing up on a fiery stick, Which sidles and rears—and cavorts and fumes In a manner unknown to common troops. General Dick wears a sword that clanks As he passes along the stone-wall ranks, And the martial pride his spirit feels As that tried tin weapon smites his heels!

FACTS.

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

UP beyond the strait of Bering whizzing blizzards are careering. Peevish polar bears are prancing through the sifting, shifting snow; By the frozen Colville River frapped arctic foxes shiver. And the seals are swarming icebergs to escape the Eskimo— Which don't make us any cooler, but we're glad to know it's so.

WHERE the pole looms dark and dreary, which the enterprising Peary Yearly has discovered—nearly—biting, bitter breezes blow; The thermometers endeavor to remain affixed forever Immovably and solid, at ninety-eight below— Which don't glad our hearts to speak of, but it's int'resting to know.

Frapped Arctic Foxes Shiver.

UP on Greenland's glacial ranges, where the weather never changes, Before you breathe you have to use a stove to melt the air; There is little perspiration up that way, and heat prostration Is so strikingly infrequent it's considered rather rare— All of which is very pleasant, though, somehow, we do not care.

Now, What Do Ye Think of That?

A Hot Weather Ballad.

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

WITHIN a humid four-room flat a loving couple strolled, At times descending to their knees and praying for the cold. The husband was a heavy cuss who never had been slim— Four pounds of talcum powder was a stinky dose for him. He wore some thin pajamas, fastened with the thinnest hooks, Because they kept no boarders and they didn't care for looks. The wife was in a wrapper more or less décolleté, And while they marched around the flat these words she heard him say:

CHORUS:

"This prickly heat is killing me, my precious angel-face It seems so hard that I should die—the last of all my race. Take all my life insurance when my form is 'neath the ground, And build yourself a Summer home 'way up at Puget Sound."

II.

HIS breath grew faint and fainter; he wobbled 'round the place; He drank a "cooling highball," then he fell upon his face. The coroner blew in next day, according to the law, And said: "This is the warmest flat which I have ever saw, Excepting one apartment—for the truth I'm bound to tell— The dainty little dwelling that I have in New Rochelle." Now in the wilds of Puget Sound the wife's growing gray And thinking of the sentence which her husband once did say:

CHORUS:

"This prickly heat is killing me, my precious angel-face! It seems so hard that I should die—the last of all my race. Take all my life insurance when my form is 'neath the ground, And build yourself a Summer home 'way up at Puget Sound."

He hopes, however, to visit St. John in the near future, probably during the latter part of September or early in October, when he can give this district more attention than a flying visit at the present time would allow. Mr. Venning is a former St. John man and has been in the fisheries department since 1873.

MANUAL TRAINING EXHIBIT AT ST. JOHN EXHIBITION

One of the most interesting features in connection with the great St. John Exhibition, Sept. 1st, to 8th, next, will be the manual training exhibit. The association has been fortunate in securing this educational attraction as it has a direct personal interest for at least every head of a family who attends the great fair. The work will be actually demonstrated by pupils from the Kingston Consolidated Schools under the supervision of Mr. C. C. Kitcher, who is in charge of this branch of development and study in New Brunswick. There will be five or six benches in operation. The work of these pupils will be supplemented with specimens or exhibits of work in manual training from many of the schools in the provinces where the system is in force.

A huge fish stuffed and mounted, which is on exhibition in the window of the McCormick Bros. Co. on Duck street, is attracting considerable attention. It is a tampus, and was caught off the coast of Florida by a young man who had it stuffed and mounted, and sent it to a St. John young lady. The fish is about five feet in length and weighed about 60 lbs. when caught. It will probably be shown at the exhibition this fall.
