BOY OF 15 HANGS HIMSELF IN THE DOORWAY OF HOME

Pupil of Parochial School is Found Dead by Sister of 9—Used Stocking as Gag.

(New York Times.) Charles Kopp, fifteen years old, of 11 Audubon avenue, pupil of the St. Rose of Lima parochial school on 16th street, between Audubon and Amsterdam avenues, took his life yesterday by hanging himself from the door jam between the kitchen and dining room of his home.

The boy's nine-year-old sister, Marion, returning from school, found his body hanging and ran to the street screaming.

The girl's cries attracted Detectives Wesley Redding and Richard Birmingham and Magistrate Max S. Levine and Assistant District Attorney Henry M. R. Goodman. Goodman had just emerged from Washington Heights Court near by. They rushed into the Kopp home, and Magistrate Levine tried to revive the youth, pending the arrival of Dr. Cason from Columbus Hospital. The magistrate removed a stocking the boy had placed in his mouth. Dr. Cason pronounced the boy dead.

No note was left by the boy to indicate what caused him to end his life. According to his sister, he was a sensitive person, who read a good deal and seemed to be depressed.

The police notified the boy's mother, Mrs. Charles Kopp, who is employed as a saleswoman in Adams Senior Dry Goods store on West 129th street. On going to bed last night the boy left the following message for his mother: "Dear Ma, Please do not wake me at 9:30, as I have to go to confession at 9 and all this week."

Rheumatism Grows Worse if Neglected. It is a Uric Acid Trouble. It makes its presence known by local aches and pains, inflamed joints and stiff muscles, but cannot be permanently relieved by local applications. Its cause is constitutional and it must have constitutional treatment. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which corrects the acid condition of the blood on which the disease depends and makes you feel young again. Three doctors said I could not be cured of rheumatism but at sixty-four I am still alive, well and strong, thanks to the yearly use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am convinced there is nothing better for rheumatism." C. E. Goodrich, Bolivar, Mo.

The Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's church held their annual meeting on Wednesday afternoon, the president, Mrs. John H. Thompson, presiding. An excellent report of the Free-Will contribution for the year was given by Mrs. Thompson. The following officers were re-elected:—Mrs. John H. Thompson, president; Mrs. John B. Magee, secretary; Miss Alice N. Rainie, treasurer.

THE EVENING TIMES AND STAR, ST. JOHN, N. B., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1921

LOCAL NEWS

Song services were held in Carman street Methodist church last evening in connection with the anniversary services. There was a very good attendance and congregational singing was indulged in.

The fall course of lectures under the auspices of the Ladies' Association of the Natural History Society had a most auspicious opening yesterday afternoon when Miss Christine Matthews of New York gave an illuminating address on evolution, treating her subject in a delightfully bright and entertaining manner. The hall in Union street was filled to capacity and everyone greatly enjoyed the address.

The fair in aid of the orphanages in the Caledonia Curling Club rink enjoyed a good patronage last evening. It will be continued this evening with a band in attendance. The prize winners last night were: Door prize, $10, Fred Campbell; excelsior, Harry Duffy; bean toss, Miss Lewis; airgun, Harry Johnson.

A meeting of Simonds parish electors was held in Peck's Hall, East St. John, last evening and short addresses were given by Councillor J. C. Dalzell and Councillor J. P. Mosher and Mr. Wayland, the third man on the ticket, who is taking Councillor J. M. Donovon's place. There was a slim attendance, owing to the larger meeting in the city. Rupert Taylor acted as chairman.

The young people's society of St. Columba church, Fairville, held their opening last night for the season. Officers were elected and plans for the winter talked over. After the business had been concluded a social hour was spent very enjoyably in music and song. The officers elected for the year are: President, William Townsend, Hon. president, Harper Henderson, president; Marion Black, secretary; Frank Campbell, treasurer.

Under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the Queen square Methodist church an illustrated lecture on the Fiji Islands was delivered last evening by Rev. R. M. Legate of Knox church. The lecture was replete with information and was listened to with interest by a large audience. Prior to the lecture, Cecil Messerou gave a solo and Mrs. H. B. Peck gave two readings. A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Nell MacLaughlan and seconded by Mrs. C. W. Dickinson. Rev. Neil MacLaughlan occupied the chair.

J. Shreve Durham, organizer and director of the home visitation in St. John, left last night for his home in Chicago and will go on later to the Pacific coast where he will organize a home visitation campaign in one of the large cities there. Before he left he expressed his appreciation of the cooperation which he had received in St. John, mentioning particularly the Knights of Pythias and the board of trade, where the use of the buildings had been given, and the press. He felt the visitation in St. John had been one of the most successful he had organized. He thought there had been the smallest number of people expressing no church preference and a larger number of mixed marriages than usual, recorded in the cards.

LAW LECTURES

Lectures for the second and third year students at King's College Law School began yesterday afternoon when Judge J. R. Armstrong and J. F. H. Teed delivered lectures on Wills and Executors and Crown Practice respectively. Judge Armstrong, in welcoming the new members stressed the importance of the law students entering a law office in order that the theories obtained in the law school could be put to practical effect. The class numbered twenty-one, one of the largest in the history of the school. The students will meet on Monday evening to elect officers for the students' association and to appoint committees for the carrying on of the social side of the course for the coming winter months. Last year, this feature was allowed to languish, but an effort will be made this year to revive it.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE PARISH OF LANCASTER

Ladies and Gentlemen—At the election of Councillors for the Parish of Lancaster on Tuesday next, we beg to solicit your support and vote. We will be impossible for us personally to interview each voter; we would therefore request you to accept this card in place of a personal visit. Large problems must soon come up for decision in Lancaster and we believe it will be in the interests of the Parish to have experienced men at the County Council.

We beg to thank you for your past support and promise you that we will try to merit a continuation of the same. W. MURRAY CAMPBELL, 10-18.

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING.

Perhaps it was because Hon. Mr. Baxter will need some fresh campaign material a little later that only the most vague of promises were made at last night's meeting at the armory, in relation to maritime port development. If the people expected to hear from the premier a declaration of policy in regard to transportation and port development that would be fair to the maritime provinces they came away disappointed. The whole story was, by effect,—"Save the tariff and trust the government." Possibly more alluring promises are being withheld to do duty on the eve of the elections.

The very large audience which turned out last evening to hear Premier Meighen and his colleagues heard much that has nothing to do with the case. Interest in how it happens that we have 22,000 miles of railway and a great merchant marine is not nearly so great as is the solution of the financial problem these involve. What does Mr. Meighen propose to do about it? Did anybody hear him unfold his policy? With regard to the farmer movement, which he pictures as threatening ruin and destruction, the people look in vain for evidences of such a result in portions of the country where the farmers have been entrusted with power. It is true that some farmers would probably be willing to try free trade, but there are Conservatives who would make a tariff "as high as Haason's galloway." It is not fair to judge by extremes. The fiscal system of Canada is in no danger of destruction. It needs to be reformed, and that is what the Liberals propose to do, for the Liberals will comprise the larger party in the next house. The citizens of St. John have heard Mr. Meighen. He is a speaker of exceptional ability. He has made out the best possible case. What is there in all this to convince the people of the maritime provinces that he proposes to remove any of the disabilities under which they labor?

THE DESTITUTE!

The perennial question, how to administer relief to the destitute without overlapping and without being imposed upon by the undeserving, was discussed this week by the Associated Charities, an organization, which is non-sectarian, is better adapted than any other to deal with this problem. It has a secretary who is a trained social worker with years of experience. It is only necessary in many cases to consult her about a family to learn the history of that family and whether or not the case is a deserving one. Week after week, month after month and year after year she goes about investigating cases, making a record of them, and in the most urgent cases giving temporary relief, which is followed up by putting the individual or family in touch with the church or society which might be expected to deal more fully with the case. It is obvious that such a system widely extended would cover the whole city and ensure the laborers of more than one trained social worker. In the city of Winnipeg, where it is claimed relief was administered last winter much more successfully than in most other cities, there was a large corps of trained workers constantly busy. There are many social workers in St. John, but they are connected with this or that church or organization, and the work is not co-ordinated. This is a very valuable and necessary, and would no doubt still be carried on to some extent, but there would be less danger of overlapping or of being defrauded if the system for the whole city were headed up in such an organization as the Associated Charities.

Of course the distress among the needy is greatest and most widespread in such a time as the present when work is scarce, but there is never a time when urgent cases are not to be found in various parts of the city. It may be a woman with children who has been deserted by her husband. It may be a case where unavoidable misfortune has reduced a family to extreme destitution. Then there are always the nights and the shiftless, where the suffering falls upon little children. The coming winter will undoubtedly make exceptional demands upon the generosity of well-to-do people, and in order that their contributions may be used to the best advantage it is desirable that the work be co-ordinated to as full an extent as possible. The Associated Charities will make a discussion of this matter the feature of its annual meeting next month, and representatives of all churches and benevolent institutions should make an effort to attend and give the benefit of their views and their experience.

Mr. Meighen has not yet explained why he permitted the uncertainty regarding the tariff, which he intimates is the cause of much unemployment, to continue so long. He could have gone to the country and had the whole matter settled a long time ago. The truth is that Mr. Meighen knows very well the uncertainty about the tariff is a bogey with which he hopes to frighten the people into voting the Tory ticket.

CHOOSE THE BEST.

The Toronto Globe had as the heading of a recent editorial on the political situation these words: "Canada's Best Men Needed." That is a very good slogan for all political parties. The best men of every party are none too good for the task which confronts the next parliament. This thought should be in the minds of the electors and of the members of every nominating convention. When the war was on the cry was for the best young men, and those who could not pass the test were left at home. If the electors in every constituency will insist that the candidates of their party be men of outstanding ability, able to measure up with the best of the rest of the country, there need be no danger that any policy would be adopted which would be detrimental to the interests of the country as a whole.

There has been a good deal of talk of late about class domination. Oddly enough, it emanates from members of a government which is itself a class government. Mr. Crerar made this clear in a recent speech, when he pointed out that the present government consists of eleven corporation lawyers, some professional men, and several individuals at the head of big concerns which have profited enormously through the operation of a protective tariff, while the fifty per cent. of the people who are engaged in agriculture are not represented. It will not do any harm to bring about a change which will give the country a cabinet more representative of all the interests, and if that cabinet can be selected from among the ablest representatives of those interests so much the better. Canada's best men are needed at Ottawa and the call goes to every constituency from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The saying that it is useless to set a boy to do a man's job applies to this case. Men of broad vision, of recognized ability, and who may be depended on not to play the game of small politics, should be elected as the representatives of the people.

Of the railway problem in Canada the Toronto Globe says: "The National Railways present a problem that is serious, but not such as to warrant pessimism. All talk of shirking the problem by getting rid of the railways and handing them over to a private corporation should be abandoned. All talk of submitting to private railway monopoly should be abandoned. The task should be faced in a spirit of courage, and of confidence in the country. It should be regarded not merely as a burden, but as an opportunity for men of courage and vision. If railways have been built to some extent in advance of population and business that condition is only temporary. The early years of the history of the Canadian Pacific Railway were full of temptations to discouragement; but difficulties were overcome by the courage not only of the projectors of the enterprise, but of the people of Canada. We must have patience and courage and confidence in the continued growth of the country."

The women in Ontario are beginning to take a lively interest in politics. Caroline Brown, of Toronto, has announced that her name will go before a nominating convention, and Mrs. Frank Hopper of the same city has consented to do the same.

Last night's speakers had much to say about Hon. Mackenzie King. Fortunately Mr. King will be here tomorrow to speak for himself. The citizens will be there to hear him.

HON. ARTHUR HENDERSON

Noted British labor figure. In a letter to him, Lloyd George seriously criticized labor's attitude in the unemployment situation and charged that labor had repudiated any idea of co-operation.

NON OMNIS MORIAR.

Horace: Car. III. 30.
How shall I die while the winds are How shall I die while the cars of the Grow golden again, and the flowers are bright?
How shall I die while the sun gives light?
Just as all that I know or see
Somehow becomes a part of me,
Surely I in the self-same way.
Am part of the universe every day.
If I touch a flower and straight it is I
Surely if words by mouth or by pen
Render immortal so many men,
My love which is more than all words can be Shall live in the world when the rest of me
Is lying quietly under the earth.
The sea and the cliffs and the wide blue sky
Seagulls calling and wheeling high,
The salt sea smell and the stirring sound
Of ships and sailormen outward bound,
Wind and sunlight and open space
And steadfast men with kindly faces
So how can I more than seem to die
Who shall I die under the sunlit sky?
How can I die before the wind?
How can I cease while men are kind?
—D. Barrett, in "The Poetry Review."

IN LIGHTER VEIN.

Couldn't Hold It.
The station master, hearing a crash on the platform, ran out of his room just in time to see the express disappearing around the bend. He hurried to the engine house and found the young man sprawled amid several overturned milk cans and the contents of his traveling bag.
"Was he trying to catch the train?" asked the station master of a small boy who stood by admiring the scene.
"He did catch it," said the boy, happily, "but it got away again."—Chicago Herald and Examiner.

THE TELEPHONE IN CHINA.

Network of Toll Lines to Unify the Republic.
Business men of northern China, realizing that little progress will be made in the unification of their country until it adopts modern methods of internal communication, have started agitation to link up all of their principal cities by telephone toll lines, says Clark H. Minor, former manager of the China Electric Company of Peking in Western Electric News. Mr. Minor has just arrived here on his way to London, where he will become commercial manager of the Associated and Allied Companies of the International Western Electric Company of Europe, a subsidiary of the Bell system now in operation between the northern capital and Peking. This latter line, which has the distinction of being the only intercity cable now in operation in China, is only 100 miles long. The new system probably will be completed late this year. It will cost about $500,000 and will be constructed according to American standards.

"The Chinese are great admirers of the telephone, and have become users of the telephone which best their use of the telegraph, where many dispatches their alphabetic code force them to send all their messages in code, and want to enjoy the time-saving method of direct communication. They are ready in most of the larger cities to augment the existing system with the toll system now in operation between the northern capital and Peking. This latter line, which has the distinction of being the only intercity cable now in operation in China, is only 100 miles long. The new system probably will be completed late this year. It will cost about $500,000 and will be constructed according to American standards.

"The Chinese are great admirers of the telephone, and have become users of the telephone which best their use of the telegraph, where many dispatches their alphabetic code force them to send all their messages in code, and want to enjoy the time-saving method of direct communication. They are ready in most of the larger cities to augment the existing system with the toll system now in operation between the northern capital and Peking. This latter line, which has the distinction of being the only intercity cable now in operation in China, is only 100 miles long. The new system probably will be completed late this year. It will cost about $500,000 and will be constructed according to American standards.

"Labor in China is just as plentiful as in the United States, and the demand for labor is increasing rapidly. The supply is unlimited. There has been a slight increase in wages, due to higher cost of living, a condition which hinges directly on the price of rice, but, on the whole, the workers do far more for their hire than their brethren in most other countries. When Mr. Minor left China the native carpenters were getting a daily wage equal to 25 cents in American money.
"Employees of the foreign-owned factories have a much easier time than their associates in the native concerns. They are free to deal with both sections of the republic. In the three years since its organization the China Electric Company, a joint undertaking of the International Western Electric Company and the Ministry of Communications at Peking, has raised its capitalization from $200,000 to $1,000,000, and has increased its production of telephones and other electrical material in the Republic."

INTERNATIONAL COURTS.

Professors of international law constitute a majority of the members of the new Court of International Justice, as just elected by the League of Nations, says the Associated Press. Its composition is as follows:
Two professors of law in universities. Two who are both professors of law and lawyers.
One jurist.
One statesman.
At least five are professors of international law; while one is a professor of the history of political and civil institutions.
The professors are Moore, of the United States; Altman, of Spain; Anzilotti, of Italy; Huber, of Switzerland; Oda, of Japan; Weiss, of France, and Bustaniet, of Cuba.
The lawyers include Finlay, of Great Britain and Loder of Holland. Altman and Anzilotti are both professors of law and lawyers.
Nyhofn of Denmark is called a jurist and Barboza of Brazil a statesman and constitution-maker.
Many of the 11 judges are or have been diplomats or members of commissions or international tribunals which entitle them to be classed as jurists and statesmen of international repute.

OUT OF THE PAST.

(Halifax Chronicle.)
Unfortunately the last European War has had a strong tendency to supercede and blot out many of the memories pertaining to the best days of long ago. Even the once feted deeds so nobly performed on the field of battle during the Boer War, seem, as the mist of time out of the park age so intensely and wholly have the minds of the populace been engrossed in the recent neck-to-neck play between the Allies and Germany. During the Great War, the Boer War, Boxer Rebellion, Fenian Raid and even the hideous Indian Mutiny with all of the horrors that attended it were jealously referred to as being "antiquarian" but only "antiquarian." Nevertheless, a strong man's life has a value not summed up in terms of gold, but in terms of service to his country, especially when that life has been willingly sacrificed on the field of battle, and the question of whether the action incident to the heroic deed performed was great or small matters not at all. True heroisms should never be allowed to be forgotten, not even by the generation to come, for whose freedom and peace of mind, those heroic deeds were performed in the long, long ago.
One of the forgotten parts, comes the story of an old Halifax boy, William Grant Stairs, who was born in Halifax on July 1st, 1863, and exhibited great courage and devotion to duty. Died of fever on the 9th June, 1892, at Chiboucheau in the Zambesi, June 9th, 1892, aged twenty-nine years.
A Haigson recently visiting England journeyed to Rochester, Kent, and there inspected Rochester Cathedral. On the south transept was seen a brass tablet, with inscription as follows:
"Sacred to the memory of the undistinguished Officers, Graduates of the Royal Military College of Canada,
William Grant Stairs,
Captain of the Welsh Regiment, Born at Halifax, Nova Scotia, 1 July, 1863. Lieut. Royal Engineers, 1885-91. Served on the Staff of the Egyptian Relief Expedition (1887-90) under the leadership of H. M. Stanley, and exhibited great courage and devotion to duty. Died of fever on the 9th June, 1892, at Chiboucheau in the Zambesi, June 9th, 1892, aged twenty-nine years.
This tablet is erected by their old comrades and friends of the Royal Military College of Canada, and by friends of the deceased Officers in the Corps of Engineers."
Two other names included on the tablet—Stanley Brock Mackay and William Henry Robinson.

Mr. Stairs was educated at Fort Massey Academy on Church street, under the tutelage of the late Mr. Waddell, and a member of Fort Massey, and then attended the Scotch school in Edinburgh, Scotland, under Dr. Ross. He then attended the Royal Military Academy at Kingston, after which he went to New Zealand as a civil engineer, and served the Zealand government, from which place he was recalled in 1885, at the time of the Russian War, and served in the above expedition briefly but adequately tells the story of a type of men of whom Canada is justly proud.

THE POLKA DOT.

Some interesting news of war history was brought to light during the recent visit of Lord Northcliffe to Canada. An enterprising reporter in Toronto undertook to describe his own and another other things mentioned that he wore a Polka Dot tie. On looking over the inventory his lordship exclaimed: "What a Polka Dot! What is a Polka Dot?" And then the enquiry started. It transpired that the visitors from old London had never before heard this pattern so described. One of the Northcliffe party when asked about it, said: "It would all be a sort of spotted thing, and if you ask me, doosid lood, too."
The day after Northcliffe's remarks appeared in the paper several correspondents wrote in giving versions of how the name originated. The most authentic, it seems that during the term of office of President Polk in the United States a new dance was introduced—the dance that is now known as the Polka, named after the president. At the time these dots and the pattern a dancer's toe inscribed on the floor during the progress of the Polka dance.

RECIPROcity AND PREFERENCE.

(Toronto Globe.)
The story that Sir John Macdonald had been offered reciprocity with the United States has been exploded by the best of witnesses, Sir John himself. He declared in a speech at the Albany Club in 1891, a few months before his death, that every measure of reciprocity with the United States had been obtained by his party, and by governments of which he was a member. He even claimed credit for the reciprocity treaty of 1884 on the ground that it was negotiated while he was in office. The fact is that the treaty was negotiated by the Liberal government of 1873, and when the agreement of 1891 was announced Conservatives were always opposed to giving a tariff preference to Great Britain. It is true that before 1897 they declared that such a preference should be granted if Great Britain would give an equivalent preference to Canada. But this would have been a mere concession, and the Laurier government acted instead of merely talking. It gave a voluntary and unconditional preference, which eventually became one-third of the regular duties. It was opposed by the Conservatives on two contradictory grounds: that it was of no use to Great Britain, and that it gave something for nothing. In 1900, when the preference was increased to one-third instead of one-quarter, the following resolution was moved by Dr. Russell, then a Liberal member of parliament, now a judge of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia:
"That this House regards the principle of British preference in the Canadian Customs Tariff as one which in its application has already proved, and will in an increasing measure, continue to result, in material benefit to the Mother Country and to Canada, and which has already aided welfare, and must still more firmly weld together the ties which now bind them, and desires to express its emphatic approval of such British preference having been granted by the parliament of Canada."
The motion was carried on a party vote, the Liberals speaking and voting in its favor, the Conservatives speaking and voting against it. Why was it opposed by men who made a boast of monopolizing British sentiment? Pretty because the British preference involved a

RECENT WEDDINGS

Jamieson-Keefe
A wedding of much interest to the people of St. John was solemnized in St. James' church, Johnson City (N. Y.) on Monday morning, September 19, when Rev. Ambrose Dwyer united in marriage Mary L. Keefe, of Johnson City, to Hugh T. Jamieson, formerly of St. John but now a resident of Binghamton (N. Y.). The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Francis, was attended by her sister, Katharine, and Joseph Armstrong, cousin of the groom was best man.

Wilson-Clark
On Wednesday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Donner, 21 Clifton street, west side, Miss Florence P. Clark, of West St. John, was united in marriage to Robert McAllister Wilson, of Lorneville. Mr. and Mrs. Donner, sister and brother-in-law of the bride, acted as attendants. The bride was becomingly gowned in Holland blue silk and carried a bouquet of gladioli. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Isaac Bradley in the presence of friends from Lorneville and the city. Following the ceremony a dainty supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson motored to Lorneville, and on their return will reside in West St. John. The presents were numerous and included cut glass, silver and checks.

RECENT DEATHS

Mrs. J. T. Brown
The death of Mrs. J. T. Brown occurred yesterday at the residence of her son, T. B. Brown, 185 Prince street, West End, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Brown was sixty-eight years of age and had been a resident of this city for many years. She was well known on the west side of the harbor and her loss will be keenly felt by a wide circle of friends there. She was an active member of the Jewel Rebecca Lodge of the I. O. O. F. She is survived by two sons, William H., of Boston, and Thomas B., of this city, also two daughters, Mrs. Morris Johnson, of 103 Winslow street, and Mrs. Walter MacLaughlin, of Keegan. They will have deep sympathy in their bereavement.

Miss Louisa Curry
Miss Louisa Curry died at St. John on Wednesday morning, death being due to the infirmities of old age. Miss Curry resided at Ormococt with her three sisters, Mrs. J. E. Hannin and Miss Eliza Curry, until they left their home in the Ormococt, two years ago, when they removed to this city.

SAYS ACCUSED WOMAN SLEW THREE HUSBANDS

Prosecutor Also Charges Mrs. Southard Poisoned Brother of One.

Twin Falls, Idaho, Oct. 7.—A poisonous substance, used as an insect exterminator, figured prominently in the trial of the first two witnesses to testify for the state in the trial of Lydia Meyer Southard, charged with the murder of Edward F. Meyer, her fourth husband. The state asserts it has evidence that poison obtained from the exterminator was put by Mrs. Southard into her husband's food.

The opening statement by Frank L. Stephen, prosecuting attorney, delivered immediately following the seating of the jury, did not go outside the case of the death of Meyer, although he has stated that he is prepared to submit evidence showing the woman to be responsible for the death of three husbands and a brother-in-law. The alleged crime in each instance, the state charges, involved the use of poison derived from the exterminator.

The first witness, Mrs. Carrie Howe of Muscatine, Iowa, boarding house keeper at the Blue Lakes ranch at the time of the death of Meyer, related how the defendant had brought packages of it about the house in saucers of water. She described in detail the illness of Meyer and of conversations in which the defendant said, "She would call a doctor and then no one would have anything to say." The witness testified that following the removal of Meyer from the ranch to a hospital, she found two packages of the poison in a drawer underneath some papers in the room occupied by the Meyers.

That the defendant also told the witness that she did not love her husband as a wife should was asserted by Mrs. Howe.

Granville Haight, manager of the ranch on which Meyer was employed as a foreman, told of being present when the poison was found and testified regarding his endorsement of a purchase note on an automobile previously acquired by Mrs. Meyer, which note was signed by her as Mrs. McHaffee.

The defendant sat between her husband, Paul Vincent Southard, and her father, W. U. Trueblood. An order was issued today by attorneys for the defense directing the sheriff to permit no further interviews between the defendant and local officers of the Salvation Army. A second order was served on the sheriff by the prosecution directing that in future interviews between Mrs. Southard and her husband be held in the jail corridor in the presence of the jailer.

OPENING OF ORPHANAGE FAIR

To the General Public:
The date of our opening, Monday 17th, is drawing very close. We are now in possession of the St. Andrews rink which is being rapidly transformed into a thing of beauty, and we can assure you will be a place of great activity and a joy to all from the 17th to 27th inclusive. Things are going to hum all over the place, present odds are in favor of the ladies, but the men are determined not to be outdone, from now on it is to be a fight to the finish. If there is anything you need, no matter in what line, wait until you have inspected our stock. If you have anything of any kind, that you can afford to give to help the orphans we will appreciate it. No matter how small the article we can find a place for it. Men at duty at risk to receive. Carpenters, painters, decorators or anyone willing to assist in a worthy cause invited to the rink this week.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES

The thirty-fifth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John McGinnis was celebrated at their home, 833 City Line, West St. John, last evening when about 150 friends gathered to honor the occasion. A feature of the celebration was the presence of both the bride and groom, Mrs. Daniel Murphy and John Ward, both of West St. John. On behalf of the gathering James Russell presented Mr. and Mrs. McGinnis a parlor lamp.

The twentieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nealy, of Glen Falls, was celebrated by about eighty of their friends at their home last evening. On behalf of the company George A. Simpson presented Mr. and Mrs. Nealy a set of dishes.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN CAPTURES LONDON

Newspapers Disguise Him as "Mr. Charles."

Labor and the Borough Elections—London Hit by a Storm—Sport and Other News of the Empire Metropolis.

(From Our Own Correspondent) London, Sept. 14.—For such a small man, Charlie Chaplin contrives to cast an amazingly long shadow. Even the most austere of the great London dailies are constrained to recognize his existence and his almost regal entry into the metropolis of the empire. They do it rather quaintly, referring to the little comedian as "Mr. Charles Chaplin," a form of camouflage which leaves the famous cinema star almost unrecognised. One is fain to admit that "Mr. Charles Chaplin" was welcomed at Waterloo Station by a crowd very much larger than is generally accorded to the arrival of one of the crowned heads of Europe. And why not? After all, Charlie is a king in his own way. It was essentially a cinema crowd that thronged the approaches to the railway station, with small children markedly predominant, and a very fair sprinkling of "Tomnies in khaki and nursemaids in macintoshes. All along the roadway there were motor cars and taxis converted into grandstands for the purposes of cinema operators and press photographers. And there was quite a big number of policemen, mounted and on foot, to keep the spectators in order. Somehow, Charlie's advent seems a little too dignified and not quite in keeping with the impression you gain of him at the flicker. If, when he stepped from the railway train he had suddenly disappeared down a trap-door, or, alternately, had proceeded to scale the railway station roof, it would have seemed much more appropriate to the occasion.

ing with the impression you gain of him at the flicker. If, when he stepped from the railway train he had suddenly disappeared down a trap-door, or, alternately, had proceeded to scale the railway station roof, it would have seemed much more appropriate to the occasion.

The Prime Minister's Dress.

It came rather as a surprise to most of Lloyd George's personal friends to hear him pronounced ex cathedra the other day by one of the recognised fashion authorities, as the best dressed prime minister of our times. Formerly, in the brave days when he was making his way along the parliamentary back benches Lloyd George was most emphatically not at all a dressy man. As M. P.'s and politicians go, he might even have been described as on the sloppy or dowdy side. Like Henry V., the little Welsh attorney of those days would probably have declared "Such things dwell not in my desires." Since he attained ministerial rank he has certainly paid more attention to dress, possibly under domestic compulsion, just as Mrs. Asquith used to make Mr. Asquith brush and smarten up, and put on his brawls and a nice new tie, whenever there was a really important occasion in the House of Commons. But since he became prime minister, and particularly since the peace conference took him abroad so much, Lloyd George really has developed into a bit of a dandy. And, meanwhile, he is, in the matter of his tailoring, getting quite conventional. But I should never dream myself of ranking him, as a premier who dresses before Lord Rosbery. Perhaps the eminent tailoring authority overlooked Lord Rosbery.

The Labor Extremists.

I am told, however, that some of the labor leaders are much disgruntled over

THE TORCH OF CARELESSNESS brings destruction to somebody's property in New Brunswick.

FIRE is a good servant but a bad master. It ruthlessly kills, maims and destroys thousands of lives and many millions of dollars worth of our substance annually. THIS DESTRUCTION can be largely prevented by correcting hazardous conditions such as disorder, accumulation of rubbish and litter, carelessness, defective equipment, faulty construction and insufficient protection.

Andrews before he took to the links. You might write quite an interesting article on how our leading golfers became converts to the royal and ancient game. The late Tom Ball once told his own story in this particular. He considered that he became a golfer when he became a caddie and he took up the business of carrying clubs in this wise. As a little boy he was engaged as a farm lad. One of the first jobs he was put to was the work of tarring a pigsty. He found it so tedious that he fell asleep, and the opera night. The flowers, the brilliant fashions, and the splendid flush of art Morpheus, gave him a good hiding, Tom stortied by shoving his tar-brush full in employer's face. Scared of the after consequences, he thereupon ran away and 'listed' as a golf caddie.

An Impressive Storm.

How many months it is now since London has been looking hopefully for some real rain? And after so many disappointments, the moisture arrived duty—in the guise of a violent thunder-storm. In nine hours London received the heaviest downfall for four years.

Windows were smashed by the thunder, trees shivered by the lightning, roofs damaged, cellars flooded, and many persons injured or almost scared out of their lives. It was a most impressive storm, and probably marked the official end of the summer, the famous drought summer of vivid memory.

A Football Slump.

The football season has been in progress only a very short time but already there are complaints of a slump in the crowds attending the London matches, and anyone that compared with last year the gate money in some instances has declined to the extent of £200 a match.

The explanation advanced is plausible enough. It is asserted that the slump is not due, in any sense, to a decline in the popularity of the game. It is solely ascribed to unemployment. An enormous number of the young lads who habitually patronize the football matches are at present out of work, and unless they have the good fortune to reside in one of the London boroughs where unemployment pay is being handed forth by the hands of a Croesus, their means do not permit of their witnessing their favorite sport.

The matter is a serious one for the clubs, which have committed themselves to very heavy expenses in anticipation of another record year like the one we witnessed twelve months ago.

C 3 Boxing.

Very mingled impressions were aroused by the contest for the British heavyweight boxing championship. What a very sharp contrast between the assembly within and without the famous Covent Garden Opera House of pugilistic enthusiasts and sporting fraternity and hangers-on with the ultra-fashionable crush of society folk, the musical enthu-lasts who assembled to hear Caruso Melba, Patti, and Tetrazzini on grand the opera night. The flowers, the brilliant fashions, and the splendid flush of art exaltation were replaced by blood and Morpheus, gave him a good hiding, Tom stortied by shoving his tar-brush full in employer's face. Scared of the after consequences, he thereupon ran away and 'listed' as a golf caddie.

Why No Charge Accounts

The patrons of a charge account store must pay the salaries of a credit man, his assistants, a small army of bookkeepers, and a corps of collectors; contribute to the support of a firm of lawyers, pay the losses on bad accounts and interest on money tied up.

But the WIEZEL STORES have none of these expenses. Our business is conducted on a cash basis, both in buying and in selling. We stand alone in this respect, and undersell the market because of it.

Our Cash Buying and Selling Policy makes it possible for us to offer:

Any pair of Men's "Hart" or "Regal" Boots in all the latest leathers, lasts and patterns, and in all widths. A wonderful opportunity for any man who wants the best that money can buy in footwear and at his own price. For Friday and Saturday only $9.75

For Women we have arranged a truly remarkable assortment of High Cuts and Oxfords, in blacks and browns and two-tone effects, on the very latest lasts and by the best makers. All Goodyear welts. $5.95

For Boys and Girls wearing sizes 8 to 10 1/2 we have some real values in box kip and kid leathers, at $1.98

For Girls who wear sizes 11 to 2's we have a Number One quality Black Kid high cut laced Boot—Very specially priced at $3.45

For the Wee Tots who wear sizes up to 7 1/2 we have a selection of Black Kid Patent with white tops and box kip, both button and laced at $1.48

Hon. Arthur Meighen and Ministers Speak in City

Prime Minister Mentions Port Development, Railroads, Tariff and Other Matters at Largely Attended Meeting in the Armory—Hon. Mr. McCurdy and Hon. Mr. Baxter Also Talk, Mayor Schofield Presiding.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, premier of Canada, addressed an audience of about 3,000 people in the armory last evening, at which His Worship Mayor Schofield presided.

that could be trusted to pilot the country. Transportation was all that St. John had. It had not progressed enough to dominate any wholesale line in Canada.

Hon. Dr. Baxter. Hon. J. R. M. Baxter was given an ovation when he arose. He said he had kept in close touch with the harbor problems of St. John and if he went back to Ottawa part of his work would be to make plain to those in authority the needs of the port.

The speaker made an attack on several of Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King's policies and said Mr. King had misquoted facts in regard to government expenditures. The speaker contended that if the people could afford to import luxuries they could afford to pay to make Canada an honest country and able to pay her bills.

rd from the record of the government. He would show his audience, the Premier said, whether he was afraid to stand by the record of his administration.

His government had been in office before, through and after the war when the great lines of reconstruction policy were laid down. The candidates and newspapers of the opposition which were now criticizing the government had spoken, voted and written in support of every issue of importance since 1917, including the railway and mercantile marine policies and in fact the whole course and direction of government throughout the war.

The Mercantile Marine. His government had been accused of defying the principle of representative government by starting the mercantile marine without the authority of parliament. Both Hon. Mr. McCurdy and Hon. Mr. Crerar were members of the government when the mercantile marine policy was presented, laid before parliament and ratified by that body.

The Liberal party had specific fixed tariff proposals which the premier had quoted in his manifesto. He could not therefore be accused of misrepresenting the Liberal tariff platform. He read in The Telegraph an article intimating that this platform had been repudiated by the Liberals. He invited the people of St. John and The Daily Telegraph to ask Mackenzie King when he came to this city whether he had repudiated this platform, which was contained in the tariff resolution adopted by the Liberal convention in Ottawa in 1919.

He had been accused of promising extravagant by those who were not directors of public works of every kind wherever they went. What were the articles in this indictment of extravagance, the premier asked. It was not pensions or civil re-establishment or public works. They had been charged with the railway deficit.

What was Mackenzie King's railway policy? The Liberal leader had hinted at placing the railways back under the management of the department of railways and canals. Such a policy would make of them a political football and the government that would do that would be leading this country straight for bankruptcy. It might be possible to operate 1,500 miles of railway on such a basis but not a mileage of 22,000. Regarding the criticism that members of the railway directorate were selling goods to the road, he said that it would be almost impossible to get big business men to manage the railways who were not directors of other companies. He believed that the railways were being well managed at present but if every section of the management in buying a ton of coal or hiring or firing a man was to be subjected to a debate in parliament then the system could not be operated and the sooner the C. P. R. swallowed it up and the better.

The Transcontinental. The G. T. P. and Transcontinental had been built at a capital cost of $800,000,000. Interest had been paid on this. The deficit was the result of the folly into which the country had been led by the construction of these railways in 1903, 1904 and 1911 before they were needed. Those who had laid that problem on the doormat of the present government were now standing off and mocking. The C. N. R. and G. T. P. had been built by government of which the present leader of the opposition was a member. Feathers had to be obtained for the system of the country would have been staggered. There was, however, a prospect that the railways would

The premier then launched out on the tariff issue, which he declared was the chief issue of the campaign. The tariff issue should be discussed and decided, he averred. He had not forced the issue but it had been forced upon him. He had not changed the tariff policy of the country. He had not even changed the tariff. The premier then outlined the growing political movement of the United Farmers of the West. To Fight Farmers. "This is a movement which must be fought and I have undertaken to fight it," declared Premier Meighen amid applause. If the government were to be defeated in the coming elections it would be at the hands of the agrarian party.

He was charged with being an autocrat, Premier Meighen said. He ridiculed the charge of seizing the reins of office. He had only done what Mr. Emmerson had done in succeeding Mr. Blair in New Brunswick and what Mr. Murray had done in taking over the leadership of the government from Mr. Fielding in Nova Scotia and carrying on the administration until the regular time for an appeal to the country had arrived. Others both in Canada and England had done the same thing. Such talk of usurpation was humbug. Leave trifles to triflers, the premier declared, and let us get down to real business.

The Highest Class Talking Machine in the World Sonora THE INSTRUMENT OF QUALITY CLEAR AS A BELL won highest score for tone at the Panama Pacific Exposition and plays ALL MAKES of disc records perfectly without extra attachments.

platform was a chart and that he would be guided by those around him when framing a tariff policy. Such talk was unadulterated humbug. Mackenzie King had never raised his voice against the farmer and it was to enable him to make allies of the farmers that this plank was inserted in the Liberal platform. A vote therefore for a Mackenzie King candidate was either a vote to reverse the tariff policy or a vote for political duplicity and dishonesty. Mackenzie King would say, the premier declared, that he was in favor of the Laurier tariff. The premier would say that Mr. King was not. Let Mr. King say that he repudiated that tariff platform. The Laurier tariff was in effect today the premier averred. The man who talked of tariff for revenue was talking nonsense. "The thing you have to decide," said the premier, "is whether you want the protective system continued or not." New Brunswick, the premier said, had grown more in the last ten years than it had in the previous decade. The agriculture of the country had increased in value six times since 1900. Manufacturers had increased eight times in the same period. All this, the premier de-

BENT-BUTTERFIELD.

A quiet wedding was solemnized on October 12, in the parsonage of St. Philip's church, when Henry Herbert Bent of Digby was united in marriage to Miss Dorothy Butterfield, formerly of Bermuda. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. A. Stewart, pastor of St. Philip's church. The bride was unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Bent enjoy the best wishes of the many friends who witnessed the ceremony. They will reside in St. John.

IS A NOTABLE PICTURE.

"The Old Nest," of which a private screening was given at the Imperial at the close of the regular picture on Wednesday evening, is a story that is different. It is the story of a family, introducing both the elements of romance and tragedy, and makes a powerful appeal to the emotions. The incidents are followed with breathless interest, and the impression left upon the mind is deep and abiding.

AT ST. PHILIP'S.

An appetizing supper was served in the parsonage of St. Philip's church last evening by the choral society of the church. A marked social atmosphere prevailed, and everyone present entered heartily into the spirit of the evening. While supper was being served, Professor MacMillan entered the gathering with musical selections. The choral society deserve credit for the well-conducted and successful effort. A good season was realized for the church fund.

NOT DUFFERIN ANNEX.

A wrong impression seems to have got about to the effect that the Dufferin Hotel was using as an annex, the portion of the Princess street building in which fire broke out on Wednesday night in which several automobiles were damaged. The Dufferin uses a building in the rear for sample rooms, but has no connection with the building in which the fire took place.

NOVELTY SHOWER.

The pupils of St. Mary's Sunday school met last evening at the home of Miss Marjory Lane, Broad street, to tender her a novelty shower, in honor of her approaching marriage. Many useful gifts were received. Mr. Rogers, on behalf of the teachers of the school, presented to Miss Lane a beautiful mahogany clock. Games and music were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

A MATTER OF COSTS.

Before Mr. Justice McKeown this morning application was made for security for costs in the matter of the Clarke heirs vs. McCaskill, an action arising out of property transactions in the city. G. H. V. Belyea, K. C., representing Rev. J. J. McCaskill, filed affidavits showing his client to be the owner of property at Duck Cove sufficient to cover costs in the suit, while contra affidavits as to value were presented by Dr. F. R. Taylor, K. C., representing Dr. W. B. Wallace, K. C., and H. Brown. The application was not granted.

L. O. B. A. SEWING CIRCLE.

The sewing circle of Dominion L. O. B. A. met last evening at the home of Mrs. Emery H. Stacey, 183 St. James' street. Mrs. Edwin Thomas, the president, was in the chair. The activities for the coming winter were outlined. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Stacey; secretary, Mrs. W. B. Abbel. The treasurer will be elected at the next meeting, which will be at the home of Mrs. Palmer, Adelaide road. After the meeting a social hour was spent and refreshments were served.

AWAY TO AMHERST.

The annual meeting of the maritime branch of the Amateur Athletic Association of Canada is being held this afternoon and evening in Amherst. Many questions bearing on sport are to be taken up and officers for the year elected. This morning delegates from clubs in this city left to attend the meeting. In addition to President A. W. Covey and Secretary Dow there were—Ernest Strirling and Thomas K. Sweeney, representing the Y. M. C. I.; John I. Hargerty and Harold Cleary, representing St. Peter's Y. M. A.; Frank White, representing the Commercial Club; Captain M. Howie and Roy Willet, representing the Y. M. C. A.

MAYOR WITNESS IN PARADE CASE

Matter of Labor Leaders in Police Court.

Hazen K. McLean and Young Lady Stenographer Also Give Evidence—Mr. Powell Told Information Laid by Robert Lindsay.

In the police court this morning the case of twelve officials of the Trades and Labor Council charged with being members of an unlawful assembly came up. This case arose out of the last labor parade. H. A. Powell, K. C. and J. A. Barry again appeared for them. Edward Tighe was not present and Mr. Powell said he did not appear for him. The magistrate expressed regret at Mr. Tighe's absence and deprecated it. H. H. McLean, Jr., appeared in the interests of the N. B. Tower Company.

Mr. Powell said that so far as he could see there was no information before the court as yet. He asked the name of the man who laid the information and was told it was Robert Lindsay.

Mr. McLean called as a witness Miss Ethel McAfee, a stenographer and clerk with the N. B. Power Company. She identified a clipping pasted on a piece of cardboard as a clipping from the Standard newspaper of September 28 containing a letter written to the paper by Fred A. Campbell with reference to the labor parade held on September 26. Mr. Powell objected to this being introduced as evidence against the twelve men and the magistrate said he would allow it as evidence against Mr. Campbell only. Mr. Barry said the original should be produced and Mr. Powell added that it would have to be proved that Mr. Campbell signed the letter.

Haas K. McLean, superintendent of the street railway was questioned with reference to the trouble between the company and its employees. He said that on the day of the break he had ordered the cars stopped on instructions from P. W. Thomson. On the night of the parade he had not actually seen any glass broken. It was quite dark. He had seen Mr. Campbell in the parade that night. He had been sitting in an orderly manner and conducting himself as a respectable citizen.

Mayor Schmidt said he had appeared before the street railway men's association and had requested that under the circumstances no parades be held while there was trouble. Mr. Ferris had been in the chair and he had seen Mr. Stevens and Mr. Campbell there. He had told them that it was as much for their own good as that of anyone else. There had been mounted police at that time and he knew that if they were called out there would be trouble. If the parades were not held there would not be a demand for extra police and consequent expense.

To Mr. Barry said that so far as he knew there was no law now against parades. He did not know that there had been one last night. He had had absolutely no view of putting the jitneys out of business in the interests of the street car system and had had no by-laws passed to that effect. The by-laws were passed to get some control over the traffic, which was running wild.

The case was adjourned until Monday afternoon at two o'clock.

SIX GRADUATE AT INFIRMARY

Pleasant Exercises as Nurses Receive Their Diplomas and Pins.

The commencement exercises of the Saint John Infirmary Training School, Class '21 were held last evening in the infirmary in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the graduates.

Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament by Rev. Raymond McCarthy, opened the exercises, which were presided over by His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc. On returning from the chapel to the class room the under-graduates farewell address to the class was read by Miss Florence Leonard, Class '22. An amusing class prophecy was read by Miss Kathleen McFadden, Class '23.

His Lordship, addressed the school reminding them of the duties and responsibilities of the nursing profession and advising them to adhere firmly to the principles instilled during training. He then presented the diplomas and pins to the graduates.

Rev. Wm. Duke, who also addressed the class, spoke of the dignity and excellence of their work, dealing with the very essence of life, standing, as it were, by the very portals of eternity. The exercises were brought to a close by the singing of "Holy God we praise Thy Name."

Rev. Father McGill, who is under special treatment at the infirmary, was present during the evening. The training school then tendered the graduates and under-graduates, a supper. The dining room and class room were tastefully decorated with the colors—blue and white. The class motto is "Semper Fidelis."

The graduates are: Miss Rosetta Norden, St. John, Miss Laura Morrissey, St. John, Miss Ellen McCarthy, St. John, Miss Marion Rogers Milford, Miss Marie Layden, Goshen, Miss Corrine Gausman, Moncton.

NO MEETING.

The annual meeting of the local Red Cross Society, which was to have been held this morning, was postponed on account of the absence of R. T. Hayes, provincial president.

MILLION AND HALF BELIEVE STILL LOSS TODAY IN CHARLESTON FIRE

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 14.—Damage estimated at more than $1,500,000 was done to the Charleston street terminals of the Charleston Terminal Company. Fertilizer materials valued at approximately $1,300,000 were destroyed and a considerable stretch of warehouses and wharves were heavily damaged.

INSPECTORS SEIZE FIVE FULL BOTTLES AND EMPTY KEG IN NORTH END—ACTION LIKELY TO FOLLOW.

The prohibition inspectors in the city are confident that there is still in operation in the vicinity and that is the product of this apparatus which they seized in a North End house this morning. They brought five bottles of liquor, which were labeled whisky, and an empty keg which smelled strongly of strong drink, to their office in Prince William street about 10:30 o'clock. The contents of the bottle smelled very much like rum, while it was evident that the keg contained liquor not long before the arrival of the inspectors. It was their opinion that it had been quickly emptied when news of their approach was heralded. A court case is a likely consequence.

POLICE COURT

George V. Parker was before the police magistrate this morning charged with being the receiver of stolen goods. Knowing them to be stolen. The goods consisted of several pieces of cloth alleged to have been stolen from the tailor shop of E. R. SUGGESTS WORK BE RATIONED

Other Plans of Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

Demonstrations in Several Cities in England—Answer from Lloyd George—Post Office Scheme for Work.

London, Oct. 14.—(Canadian Press)—After a long discussion of the unemployment problems of England the Manchester chamber of commerce has suggested that the government enforce a system of rationing of work so as to spread it among the greatest number of workers. The chamber has also memorialized the premier on the distinct improvement noticeable in the textile trade and urging cancellation, entirely or partially, of the inter-allied war indebtedness, in order to maintain this.

It was further declared that while generally admitting the importance of a wise and reasonable policy being maintained by the banks it was felt that the caution was being carried in some directions to greater degree than was warranted. It was thought that nothing in the nature of further inflation should be permitted this.

A deputation was handed a letter from the prime minister stating that the government was well aware of the gravity of the situation and was exercising every possible endeavor to grapple with it.

London, Oct. 14.—Proposals for improving Great Britain's export trade by the credit system have been approved by the cabinet committee on unemployment, including the allocation of £12,000,000 to banks which will act as government agents, says the Evening Standard.

The government guarantees to traders exporting to certain countries, it is said, will be raised from 50 per cent of the value of the goods to be exported to seventy-five per cent.

The post office department is considering a plan for providing work for large numbers of unemployed by the laying of several hundred miles of underground cables.

LAURENTIC'S BULLION

(London Times.)
The divers on the Admiralty salvage steamer Racer have had a fairly good success in recovering gold from the Laurentic, which was sunk four miles off the mouth of Louisa Swilly in 1915. It is estimated that about half the bullion on board, or some two million pounds worth, has been recovered. Operations will continue until mid-September.

A diver likens the condition of the wreck to a long street of high houses which have collapsed in the centre. The action of the sea each winter makes the following year's work of the divers more difficult. The wreck, he states, lies at the extreme depth at which diving is possible.

FIVE CENT FARE IS HIGH ENOUGH

Detroit Street Railway Company Wants Franchise Renewed.

Dropped 6c. Fare - Present Rate Profitable, Despite the Business Depression and Prevalence of Automobiles, Which Have Cut Down Car Riding Considerably.

(By Mary Dawson Snider.) Detroit, Mich., Sept. 28.—(Staff special to Toronto Telegram)—Detroit's citizens ride on a five cent car fare. Whether they enjoy it or not depends largely upon the time of day they travel and the class of car they happen to catch.

In rush hours they think they are crowded but they are not so badly packed as in Toronto. Service is always as frequent as ours, and, during the day seats more easily obtained.

Cars are good, and indifferent, but not as indifferent nor as bad as trams and trailers we have known.

Transfers, except on about forty miles of modern electric railway, cost one cent extra.

Five cent fares on the municipally owned lines "pay," this better.

If the proof of the pudding is in the eating the privately owned street railway company in Detroit finds a five cent street car fare with an additional one cent for transfers profitable. With peak and talons and with wills and wealth they are fighting to renew their franchise.

The D. U. R. is assuredly not fighting to lose money. Even the fragments of a five cent franchise they retain, are regarded as a gold mine.

Let City Pay the Shot.

"Lines in the city give the Detroit United Railway a good profit at a five cent fare, though we are not a franchisee," explained an investigator, who had access to the records. "They've a lot of unprofitable lines out through the state of Michigan on which they are paying 8 per cent dividend. That's what they're worrying about. This handicaps them, so the company bulks the cost of maintenance on these with that of the city streets. They're making us pay their outside deficits and they don't want to lose the goods that lay the golden egg."

Starting with Safeties.

The city's long battle for public ownership of its street railway system is in the last stages. Already it has thirty-seven miles in operation with one-hundred cars. Ten more miles will be in operation within a fortnight and twenty-nine miles of track now in operation by the Detroit United Railway will be added to the municipal lines in a few weeks.

Seventy-six miles of electric railway within the first year of operation is a good beginning. A five cent fare, with free transfers, is charged for over 25,000 to 30,000 people a day and themselves. It receipts are increasing steadily.

A Golden Key.

Woodward avenue, Detroit, like Yonge street, Toronto, is the key of the street car system. The privately owned Detroit United Railway holds the key of double track there in the heart of the city. It is not only the best paying line

Sloan's Liniment (Pain's Enemy)

The Kidneys

The office man and the outdoor worker suffer alike from derangements of the kidneys.

Backaches and headaches are among the symptoms. In some cases Bright's disease soon develops, others suffer from high blood pressure until hardening of the arteries sets in.

In order to forestall painful and fatal diseases prompt action should be taken at the first sign of trouble.

Mr. A. D. MacKinnon, Kirkwood, Inverness county, N.S., writes:

"I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to all suffering from weak kidneys. I suffered from kidney disease for a long time. I also say that for three years I was nearly always troubled with headaches, and no treatment seemed to do more than afford temporary relief. I was finally told of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after taking a few boxes was completely relieved. I have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment with the best results, and never fail to recommend these wonderful remedies."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

It gives them absolute control of the downtown situation.

Realizing this the Detroit United Railway holds fast to the Woodward line through their franchise has expired and the supreme court says they have no rights on the street. The law rules they either must accept from the city a price fixed by arbitration or leave their tracks and repair the street, leaving it in first class condition.

They Hold What They Have.

The people refusing to grant the Detroit United Railway a street-car-out franchise, have voted money to take over all the lines where franchises have expired, including the Woodward avenue line, and also money to expropriate Detroit United Railway lines built on a day agreement with the city.

The latter will become the property of the public any day now, when the arbitrator's report on cost and depreciation is received.

The Detroit United Railway system received its franchise piecemeal. All will have expired by 1924, some long-sighted Michigan statesmen having put through franchise laws which would expire a period of thirty years.

But any franchise, either limited or extended, would be a golden key without the Woodward avenue key.

The D. U. R. are determined to keep their key if they can. The Woodward avenue line as long as the line. They somehow succeeded in inducing Woodward to agree to a franchise which has the ousting of the D. U. R. from that street put to a ballot November next.

This has made the outgoing Detroit City Council inoperative until the people vote upon it.

Five-Cent Fare Pays Them.

Possibly to regard the good will of the voting public the D. U. R. agreed to a "temporary" reduction of car fares to 5 cents with 1 cent for transfers after having boosted fares to 6 cents with free transfers in 1920.

The "temporary period" is in its last gasp and a persuasive whisper prevails that a flat of 5 cents will be forthcoming.

Even at a 5-cent fare Detroit financiers evidently think a street railway franchise worth fighting hard to keep. If it pays in Detroit why would a 5-cent fare not pay in Toronto?

Detroit's population of 700,000 plus 75,000 located in Highland Park and Hamtramck, separate municipalities within the confines of Detroit and served by both the city and the D. U. R. lines, is suffering from industrial depression even more acutely than Canadian cities.

Clustered With Autos.

Detroit is practically a one-industry place. The automobile business is its veritable, and its blood, veins. Its main arteries are cluttered with automobiles you could not fall off a curb if you tried. Standing motors line the streets two deep despite "no parking" signs.

Seeing so many cars already sold people outside the automobile business cease to wonder that factories are shut down or running only part of time. On the civic lines alone three big factories are practically closed. Unemployment has driven many families from Detroit. Thousands, out of work now spend no money getting to or from their daily task. But—even with depleted street car traffic and automobile and bus, and jitney competition of the service is profitable at a 5-cent fare.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE LIFE

A Dangerous Period Through Which Every Woman Must Pass

Practical Suggestions Given by the Women Whose Letters Follow

Afton, Tenn.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. During the Change of Life I was in bed for eight months and had two good doctors treating me but they did me no good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it always does me good. I wish all women would try it during the Change of Life for I know it will do them good. If you think it will increase your vitality to try the Vegetable Compound you may publish this letter as you choose."

Mrs. Mary Lister of Adrian, Mich., writes: "I had all kinds of bad spells, but they all left me better. I had all kinds of bad spells, but they all left me better. I had all kinds of bad spells, but they all left me better."

It is with pleasure that I write to you thanking you for what your wonderful medicine has done for me. I was passing through the Change of Life and I was in bed for eight months and had two good doctors treating me but they did me no good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it always does me good. I wish all women would try it during the Change of Life for I know it will do them good. Women everywhere should remember that most of the common ailments of women are not the serious ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it is a natural restorative and often prevents serious troubles.

they will pay and pay well at a flat 5-cent fare although, as in Toronto, you can travel a long way on a single fare. It is a 5-cent fare with a river frontage of 14 miles and a depth of about twelve."

Says People Would Build.

"There is a rate of fare," he added, "that the people will not pay. We are not looking for the reason. It's the effect that Mayor Cousins and the three railway commissioners are concerned with. The 'M. O.' lines, you know (that's the municipally-owned roads), are handled by a department of the municipal government like the parks or fire department, only with a little more independence. A clause in their charter allows them to operate in exactly the same manner as a private corporation."

"We have a ten-mile double track right through Detroit. It crosses Woodward avenue a mile and a half north of the City Hall. Our other new lines are feeders. You can see how essential it is that we get that Woodward avenue key."

"Our plan comprises the building of 100 miles of new tracks, the immediate taking over of 34 miles of the day-to-day agreement roads and also 23 miles of expired franchise lines.

Make It A City Service.

"We have built 60 miles of track since last October and started the civic service in February with 25 cars. We now run 70 to 80 on the peak load. There are 150 already here with three or four more arriving daily.

"Three hundred are ordered—250 soft-tires, or one-man cars, and 50 Peter Witt type. The latter are the big double track kind you will use in Toronto. We intend to put out all the cars required to carry the people without crowding and give them a frequent fast service."

A Detroit expert who has been in street railway business for twenty-five years but whose name cannot be given on account of his active connection with the enterprise declares municipal ownership the solution of city transportation.

"THE SOLDIERS' PARLIAMENT"

Big Questions for Convention of the G. W. V. A.

Outline of Matters to Come Up for Decision at Port Arthur on Oct. 17 — Unemployment to Have Prominent Place.

Ottawa, Oct. 14.—(By Canadian Press.)—Matters of importance to every returned soldier and to the people at large will be dealt with at the fifth annual convention of the G. W. V. A. which opens its sessions in Port Arthur, Ontario, October 17 to 22. Resolutions will be brought forward dealing with unemployment, re-establishment, housing, pensions, immigration, returned soldiers' insurance, disarmament, British Empire Service League, adjustment of exchange on overseas pay, business credits for ex-service men, federation of veterans' organizations and the formation of an organization of veterans' sons and daughters.

Believing unemployment to be the most pressing national problem of the day, the G. W. V. A. convention will appoint a special committee of one member from each province, to prepare resolutions with regard to unemployment insurance, proper distribution of labor through the Employment Service Council of Canada; municipal, federal and provincial governments to require all employers to employ at least twenty-five per cent ex-service men; the immediate establishment of provincial and federal unemployment insurance; 'rent services, and cheaper railway rates for ex-service men traveling to a place of appointment.

The subject of re-establishment will bring forth resolutions looking toward the more complete establishment of returned soldiers. These resolutions will set forth that the G. W. V. A. will not regard re-establishment as being complete until such time as ex-service men have been placed, so far as possible, in the economic position which they would have obtained but for their military service. The discussion of re-establishment resolutions will include pensions, land settlements, and the returned soldier or political purposes alone, shall be instructed to press for a committee on re-establishment at the next session of parliament.

The discussion on the amalgamation of all soldiers' organizations will be fraught with importance to the returned soldier. The G. W. V. A. has issued invitations to all soldier organizations, whether fraternal delegates present at this convention, to send the blood rushing to the head until it seems as though it would burst, and the faint feeling that follows, as if the heart were going to stop, those sinking or dizzy spells are all symptoms of a nervous condition, and indicate the need for a special medicine.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a root and herb medicine especially adapted to act upon the feminine system. It acts in such a manner as to build up the weakened system and enables a woman to pass this trying period with the least possible annoying symptoms.

Rheumatism

A Remarkable Home Treatment Given by One Who Had It.

In the year of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular Rheumatism of the right arm. I suffered as only those who have it can tell. I tried every remedy I could get, but to no avail. I obtained was only temporary. Finally, I found a treatment that cured me completely and such a painful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

"I had sharp Pains Like Lightning Flashes Shooting Through My Joints."

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and sub-acute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent simply mail your name and address, and I will send it, and it has proven itself to be that long-sought-for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, One Dollar, but understand I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer, when relief is thus offered you free. Don't delay. Write today.

THIRTY CENTS AN HOUR Says Fair Wage for Labor on Rural Highways.

Toronto, Oct. 14.—Thirty cents an hour is regarded as a fair standard wage for workers on highways in the rural parts of the province, according to a statement made by Frank C. Biggs, minister of public works, in commenting upon the charge made by George G. Harkow, senior member for East Hamilton, who claimed that the rate was "a starvation wage."

Mr. Biggs was quite frank in stating that the rate had been set at this figure in order that the government would not enter into unfair competition with that paid by farmers to their help. He added, however, that thirty cents an hour was more than was being paid in many sections of the country.

We are not building streets in this city, but roads in the country," said Mr. Biggs, "and wherever we go we try to set a fair standard wage that will average up with the money being paid locally by private individuals. It does not seem to matter much what we do, however, for one set of people say we are paying starvation wages and the other that we are squandering money in extravagant wages."

POINTS IN THE ELECTION LAW

Provisions of Interest as Canadians are to Vote for Federal Representatives.

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—(By Canadian Press.)—There are many things in connection with the conduct of and procedure in elections which are changed considerably under the present Dominion Election Act from what they were formerly. One of the amendments is that referring to campaign fund contributions. Clause Ten has been made to read:

"No unincorporated company or association and no incorporated company or association other than one incorporated for political purposes or, to, or for, on in furtherance of any political purpose whatever, or for the indemnification or reimbursement of any person for money so used."

Another clause makes it an offence for any person, not being a candidate, and who resides outside of Canada, to canvass for votes or in any way endeavor to induce voters to vote for any of the candidates at an election.

The conveyance of electors to polls, etc., is also forbidden by the act. It is not a new amendment but it is one which was strengthened somewhat in the amending of the former act. It is not an offence under the act, however, for anyone being an elector, to pay his own fare to or from the polling station.

By another clause it is made an offence to pay or promise to pay the expenses, wages or other costs of an elector going to or from a polling station. Under the act provision is made that "Every employer shall, on polling day, allow to every elector in his employ at least two additional hours other than the noon hour, for voting, and no employer shall make any reduction from the pay of such elector nor impose upon or exact from him any penalty by reason of his absence during such hours."

For the protection of candidates in elections it is also made an indictable offence for any person to make or publish any false statement of fact in relation to the personal character or conduct of any candidate for the purpose of affecting the return of that candidate to office.

For the keeping of order in and about polling stations, election officers are given powers as peace officers to arrest or order the arrest of any person committing an offence under the act. The returning officer or his deputy may, during non-polling day and polling day, require any person within half a mile of the place of nomination or polling to deliver to him any firearm, sword, staff, bludgeon, or other offensive weapon in the hands or personal possession of such person, and the person so required shall forthwith so deliver."

Nor may a stranger come armed into a polling station nor a resident arm himself, and other prohibitions in the act are against the use of banners, ribbons, favors, badges or labels to distinguish the political leanings of the wearer on election day or within eight days of that date. There are also provisions against the selling or giving away of liquor on the day of voting, and also provisions against the treating of electors to meals, drink or amusements, and stringent provisions against bribery, giving or promising employment and the demanding or receiving of bribes in any form.

Persons guilty of indictable offences under the act are liable on indictment or summary conviction of fines not exceeding two thousand dollars or to imprisonment for a term to two years, with or without hard labor, or to both fine and imprisonment. Non-indictable offences under the act are punishable by a fine not exceeding $500 or one year in prison or both fine and imprisonment. Persons found guilty of illegal or corrupt practices are also disqualified from voting or candidature for a period of five years for an illegal practice and seven years for a corrupt practice.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your Back Hurts or Bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we eat too much and all our food is meat. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the climatic tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

FIND BOY BURGLARS AND $20,000 JEWELS

Loot from New York Home Recovered Under an East River Pier—Lad of 12 Tells of Robbery.

(N. Y. Times.)
Through the confessions of three boys, detectives under Captain Duane of the East Sixty-seventh street station, last night recovered under a pier at Sixtieth street and the East river, about $20,000 worth of jewelry which had been stolen last Sunday from a small safe in the home of Charles Dillingham, the theatrical producer, at 188 East Sixty-third street.
Joseph Huthoff, 12 years old, of 819 East Sixtieth street; Dominick Lopez, 14, of 1104 First avenue, and Joseph Genevieve, 17, of 1108 First avenue, were arrested after the first boy was found walking through First avenue last evening smoking a cigarette in a diamond studded cigarette holder. The holder was among the loot obtained from the safe on the second floor of Mr. Dillingham's home. The boy, when led to the East Sixty-seventh street station, readily told of his connection with the robbery, and the arrest of the other two boys and the recovery of almost all the stolen jewelry followed within an hour. The boys told Captain Duane that they were returning from Central Park Sunday when their attention was attracted to the one-story garage which Mr. Dil-

"It looked so easy," young Huthoff continued, "that Dominick and I decided to go through the window and rob the house, and we told Genevieve to go down to the sidewalk and watch out for a cop, because he was too big to go through the window."
"Then Dominick boosted me into the window, and I reached out and dragged

I threw it back Dominick and I gasped when we saw all the diamonds and gold things. We scooped them up and put the small things in our pockets, and I carried a small gold clock in my hand."
"Then we just dropped out of the window on to the roof of the garage and walked down the ladder to the street, where Genevieve met us. We walked over to the dock at the foot of Sixtieth street, where we began to worry about what we had done. Somebody said: 'Let's chuck it all overboard, and then we won't get into trouble,' but Genevieve said: 'Don't do that, we can sell it.'"

Hiding the Loot.
"Then we got a brown paper bag from a grocer and we put the stuff in the bag. I noticed the cigarette holder when we took the stuff out of the safe, and I sneaked that in my pocket so that the other two fellows didn't know I had it. We continued to worry about a place to put the jewelry until late at night and then Genevieve climbed under the pier and placed it in a beam there."
"We went over to the dock this afternoon and looked at the stuff, but we came away, saying we would go back for it tonight. I was walking up First avenue to meet the other two fellows with the cigarette holder in my mouth when the detectives grabbed me."

When the loot recovered by the detectives was spread out on a table in the station it was found to consist of a pair of diamond earrings, two diamond-studded bracelets, one onyx ring, a square-shaped dinner ring, studded with large diamonds; a diamond-studded bar pin, the gold clock and a beaded gold bag, besides the cigarette holder, which it was said was presented to Mr. Dillingham by associates in the theatrical business several years ago.
Genevieve was locked up on a charge of burglary, and the two younger boys were sent to the Children's Society on a charge of being juvenile delinquents.

Years Ago on Oct. 11

Association was Organized in

Buried in St. Paul's, Close to Little Room Where Institution Came Into Being.

On October 11, one hundred years ago,
the founder of the Young Men's Christian Association, Sir George Williams, was born. Both by this great organization and by the Christian church the centennial is being observed in these October days in formal services and in closer study of the processes and results of a life which has spread its influences over the whole world.

Within the span of his own life, George Williams saw the Young Men's Christian Association, both as an organization and as a spiritual force, encircle the earth.
When its founder died in 1905, sixtyone years after its beginning, the Y. M.
C. A. had 1773 associations, with 722, 000 members, totals which have since grown to more than 8,000 associations and more than 1,000,000 members.

George Williams was born near Dul-verton, in Somersetshire, England, the youngest of eight sons of Agnes and Elizabeth Williams. The family came of generations of yeoman farmers. During his boyhood days Williams lived the rather monotonous and unexciting life of the farm and school. Leaving school at thirteen and showing no aptitude thereafter for farm work, he was apprenticed two years later to a draper at Bridgewater. He was at that time, to use his own description, a "careless, thoughtless, Godless, swearing fellow."
But, coming under the influence of the Rev. Evan James, minister of the local Congregational Chapel, who had established a great hold on the young people of the town, he made a determined decision to alter his life, and make its note "to live not into himself but to the glory of God and in the service of men." He became a member of the church at Bridgewater in 1838.

At nineteen, his apprenticeship having been completed, Williams entered the employment of Hitchcock & Rogers, a drapery firm on Ludgate Hill, in St.
Paul's Churchyard, London, at a salary of £40 a year. Of this firm, under its later name of Hitchcock, William & Co.
he eventually became the chief partner.
Under him it expanded as both a wholesale and retail business into a foremost position in the trade, as well known throughout the British Isles as some of our great merchandising establishments are known throughout America.

When William went to London, his first concern was to single out one after another from among the young men in the drapery establishment and recruit win each to a life of Christian service.
He established regular prayer-meeting services in his small bedroom on the third floor of the building. His religious efforts followed several other well-defined lines, but these prayer meetings were at the very centre of his programme of service, and they were the foundations upon which the Young Men's Christian Association was built.

The story of the life of George Williams is the story of the Y. M. C. A. during its sixty years to his death in 1905; but for the sake of brevity any detailed record of the remarkable service and progress of the organization during that period must be omitted.
Despite the heavy demands of a large and expanding business, Williams worked incessantly for his beloved Association. In Helen Hitchcock, daughter of his employer, whom he married when he was thirty-two years of age, he found one who sympathized with and for more than fifty years did all in her power to help forward his Association work. He went to London without influence or capital, and amassed a fortune. But he was never so wealthy that his generosity cost him little or nothing.
His donations to all sorts and conditions of religious works were on a lavish scale. "He spared himself," writes J. E.
Hickley Williams in his biography of the Y. M. C. A.'s founder, "that he might depend on others, living always in the most quiet and simple fashion, utterly devoid of all ostentation or pride of success."

To Sir George and Lady Williams were born five sons and a daughter.
The Jubilee of the founding of the Y. M. C. A. held in London in 1894, was more than a striking public recognition of the position attained by that organization. The celebration assumed almost unconsciously the form of an overwhelming testimony to the place George Williams held in the esteem of the people and in the personal affection of every member of the Association of the world over. Queen Victoria selected that occasion to confer upon him the honor of knighthood, and he was given the freedom of the City of London. Thank-giving services were held in St. Paul's Cathedral. Deputations and messages from all parts of the world greeted him.
When the Y. M. C. A. in North America had completed in 1901 a half-century of service, Sir George came to this country. His journey through the states was in the nature of a triumphal progress.
When in 1895 he attended the jubilee of the World's Conference of the Y. M. C.

A. in Paris, he received an ovation of which an American who was then present as a delegate writes: "As a demonstration of personal feeling and affection John Wansamaker brought to the United States Sir George Williams' last message to the young men of America.
It was—
"Watch the adversary, love one another, keep true, fight on, win the battle."
Sir George was buried November 14, 1905, in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, among others of the great of England, and close by that little upper room where the Young Men's Christian Association came into being.

"Sociability of Today is More Hearty and Genuine," Says
Father Minehan.

(Toronto Globe.)
"Liquor has been glorified as a cultivator of sociability, but prohibition has done much to remove this false sentiment," said Rev. Father Minehan, in an address at an "At Home" held in the new offices of the Dominion Alliance, 64
Bloor street east, last evening.
"There was a time when you could not have a social gathering without liquor," continued Father Minehan. "As an illustration of the change that has taken place, I was present yesterday at St. Michael's College, when they hadn't even two and a half per cent, but merely chlorinated city water, tea and coffee and butter-milk, and all agreed that it was the best social time they had had in years."
Old Customs Gone.
"Some years ago there was always wine and beer at such gatherings. The sociability of days gone by might have been a little more boisterous, but I believe the sociability of today is more hearty and genuine. I do not know of any more hearty goodfellowship than I find among temperance people, and especially in these offices of the Dominion Alliance."

Mr. James Simpson, speaking of the results of prohibition, said he was in a position to judge as to whether it had been an advantage to the workingman.
He said he had no patience with people who say it had failed. He knew men who had been victims of liquor before prohibition, and who had now straight-

HALF a century has passed since Charles Dickens forever laid aside his

M. F. FARLEY KILLED BY ANTHRAX GERM

Tammany Man and Former Representative Died in Six Hours After Reaching Hospital.

(New York Times.) Michael F. Farley, former member of the House of Representatives from the Fourteenth Congressional District, died in Bellevue Hospital yesterday afternoon of anthrax. Mr. Farley died exactly six hours and thirty-five minutes after he had walked into the hospital to find out what was the matter with him. Physicians said that he had the malady in a singularly malignant form.

Mr. Farley was well known to Tammany Hall men and considered a power on the lower east side. After making a fortune in the saloon business, he went into politics in 1914, succeeding Jefferson M. Levy in Washington; but was defeated in the following Congressional election by F. H. La Guardia, now president of the Board of Aldermen. According to physicians who attended Mr. Farley in the last two days, he must have contracted the disease from an infected brush when shaving himself. He had been living for several weeks in a bachelor hotel at 302 West Twenty-second street, corner of Eighth avenue, while his wife was in Atlantic City. A Loman, a hatter of 235 Eighth avenue, told last night how Mr. Farley first noticed the signs of the disease. "I took Mr. Farley and some other friends to the Danbury Fair in my car Thursday morning," said Mr. Loman. "I didn't notice anything wrong with him at first, but after we had been driving about two hours I saw a small pimple on the left side of his neck. I asked him what was the matter and he said that he had cut himself shaving the day before. He said it didn't bother him.

"Painful the Next Morning. "When we returned from the fair that night it was just the same, but the next morning it had begun to get bigger, and his neck was swollen. He also said that he was suffering some pain. I begged him to go to the hospital, but he refused. On Friday night he finally consented to go to Dr. Bert Munday at 322 West Twenty-second street. Dr. Munday bandaged his neck. "This morning (Saturday) he could hardly walk from the pain and his face was badly swollen. I tried again to make him go to the hospital, but he went to see Dr. Munday first, and Dr. Munday put him into a taxi and took him to Bellevue."

At Bellevue Hospital Dr. Munday's diagnosis of anthrax was verified by Drs. Peers and Russell, who attended the patient. When Mr. Farley arrived he walked from his taxi to the contagious ward after undergoing diagnosis and was able to talk about his case for a while. So malignant was the disease, however, that he soon lost consciousness and was too weak to respond to the usual anti-anthrax treatment. This consisted of injections of a serum discovered by Dr. Douglas Symers, chief of the Bellevue pathological service and an expert on anthrax.

Mr. Farley's wife was notified at the Hotel Stanton, Atlantic City, where it was said last night that she was hastening to New York. Mr. and Mrs. Farley had spent the summer together at their country home in Hamanoneck and planned to rejoin each other shortly to spend the winter, according to their custom, in the Hotel Holley, 36 Washington Square.

Wrong Address on Records. For some unexplained reason the record of the case at Bellevue Hospital gives Mr. Farley's address as 23 East Seventy-third street. When reporters went to that address they found it closed, and no one answered the bell. It also was incorrectly listed at Bellevue as Mr. Farley was the owner of the Hotel Holley. The manager of that hotel said last night that Mr. and Mrs. Farley made it their winter home, but that Mr. Farley did not own it. He was a close friend, however, of Sheriff David Knott, under whose management the Holley and several other hotels are conducted.

Mr. Holley was fifty-six years old. After receiving a common school education, he went into the liquor business and had a saloon at West 22nd street and Eleventh avenue. He was at one time president of the Wine and Liquor Dealers' Association of New York county and at another time head of the Central Association of Manhattan. In his term as a congressman from 1914 to 1916 he opposed the Ship Purchase bill and prepared legislation warning Americans off belligerent merchant ships. In other respects he supported the administration. After his defeat for re-election by La Guardia he was mentioned for Collector of Inland Revenue for the Third District, but was not appointed.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a brother, John Farley, of 73 Eighth avenue, and a sister, Mrs. Raby of Mamaronock.

THE BIG PLUG 20 CENTS

THE INCREASING PLAGUE.

(New York Evening Post.) In the week ending Sept. 17, 1921, fifty-eight residents of Chicago died of cancer. The previous week saw fifty-seven deaths in this city from the same cause. The same week last year saw fifty-three. So it goes. While infectious diseases are being pushed back, or at most make temporary gains under conditions like those prevailing when the epidemic of flu visited the land, degenerative diseases, of which the foremost is cancer, show a steady though small increase year by year. The death rate in untreated cases of cancer is exactly 100 per cent. No case recovers without help. With help, a great many recover; and if scientific aid is given early, probably more than three-quarters of the persons afflicted with cancer can be saved. Radium is a valuable agency in treating some cases of cancer, and some day may take the place of the surgeon's knife. But as medical knowledge and equipment stand at present, surgery is the only hope in nine cases but of ten.

NOTICE OF SALE

To John T. Meredith, formerly of the City of Saint John, in County of the City and County of Saint John and Province of New Brunswick, Clerk of the Peace, D. Stanley, but now of the City of London, in that part of Great Britain and Ireland called England, and all other whom it may in any wise concern:-

Notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain Indenture of Mortgage bearing date the 27th day of March, A. D. 1912, and made between the said John T. Meredith and wife, of the first part, and Cyrus F. Inches, Trustee of the said City of Saint John, barrister-at-law, of the second part, and registered in the office of the Registrar of Deeds in and for the County of the City and County of Saint John aforesaid, in Book 118 of the said Register, and in Book 204 and 206 of the 29th day of March, A. D. 1912, by the official number 86072, there will, for the purpose of satisfying the moneys secured by the said Indenture of Mortgage, default having been made in the payment thereof, be sold at public auction, in and at Chubb's Corner (so called), at the corner of Prince William and Princess streets, in the said City of Saint John, on Saturday, the 29th day of October, A. D. 1921, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon, all the lands and premises in the said Indenture of Mortgage described as follows:-

"All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being in the said City of Saint John, described as follows: Beginning on the eastern side 'line of Dorchester Street at a point 'eighty (80) feet from the intersection 'of the north line of Sewell street, thence 'northerly along Dorchester Street thirty 'feet, thence easterly at right angles one 'hundred and ten (110) feet or to the 'dividing line between the land hereby 'conveyed and land formerly conveyed 'by the said Margaret S. Johnston and 'the late Charles H. S. Johnston, her 'husband, to George S. Fairweather by 'deed, dated the seventeenth day of 'June, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in 'the office of the Registrar of Deeds in 'and for the City and County of Saint 'John in Libro 32, page 150, thence 'southerly along the said dividing line 'thirty (30) feet or to the rear of lot 'fronting on Sewell Street, and thence 'westerly along said rear line of Sewell 'Street lots to Dorchester Street or place 'of beginning, being the same lot of land 'conveyed to the said John T. Meredith 'by Margaret Johnston by deed bearing 'even date herewith."

Together with all the buildings and improvements thereon, and the rights and members, privileges and appurtenances to the said lands and premises belonging or in any manner appertaining.

Dated this fourth day of October, A. D. 1921.

CYRUS F. INCHES, Trustee, 10-20 Mortgage.

THE BUSINESS COLUMN

Wright Averages About $400 a Year in Prices.

"Display windows can be used for other purposes than increasing sales," commented Herbert G. Wright, proprietor of a drug store in Syracuse, N. Y., as he recently finished adding up a long column of figures showing he had won $1164.32 in prizes from manufacturing firms for window displays during the last three years.

Wright has converted into a valuable asset what many retailers of all kinds neglect entirely, or to which they give only slight attention. But this Syracuse druggist entertains different ideas. He has not a large window in only two and a half feet wide and seven feet long—but he makes that window work twenty-four hours a day for him. It never stops. It sells merchandise every day, and when the opportunity comes, it sells store fixtures, to which it probably gives attention.

Through the medium of his windows Wright has kept in close touch with manufacturers, of lines of merchandise, from whom he would scarcely ever hear if he regarded his window as a mere adjunct of his store. In fact, his entry into window display contests, launched either in connection with a national or state advertising campaign, has stamped him as a "live one," and when the makers of drug and toilet preparations have anything new to be tried out "Herb" Wright is among the first to be notified and among the first to fall in line.

"To display your window to its fullest effect," declares Wright, "you must sell through your mail. There does not seem to be any connection between these two things at all, but many retail merchants when opening their letters in the morning sort out the first-class and second-class letters, pamphlets and papers. Generally they carefully peruse the letters with the two-concussion but do not look at—just let them slide into the waste basket. That is not my way. I go through everything with a fine-tooth comb, particularly the advertisements. If there is a picture of a window display I clip it out and stick it in my book. If I see a picture of a window display I clip it out and stick it in my book. If I see a picture of a window display I clip it out and stick it in my book."

"Going through all my mail carefully in this manner puts me in touch with the manufacturers and dealers. I discover many window display contests, which I announce to my members, and that particular piece of mail into the folder of my store."

"I lay it to one side for future consideration, at the same time keeping in mind the product. Then, some night before the contest closes, after I have up my store ready for the contest, I go through reading the details I get an idea for a display in ten minutes I can work it out. Sometimes I start the thing that night. Some of the contests are so simple that they can be worked out in ten minutes. I know what I want and what I need."

City of Saint John

FALL FOOTWEAR NEEDS

Fall demands BETTER Footwear. This season we give you greater footwear values than ever before. It pays you to come here. All we save in rent and overhead we add to the values we give.

An inspection will convince. Parents if you are worried about your daughter's school boots, get a pair of these $2.95 boots, recede or full toe, high cut lace, double-thick sole, sizes 11, 12, 13, 1 and 2. These solve your footwear trials.

Boys' school boots, the kind that wear. Sizes 11, 12, 13, for $2.85. Sizes 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, only $2.95. Iron heel and toe plates.

Ladies' Gaiters, all shades, low and high, beautifully tailored, $2.50 and $2.85 a pair. Boot top gaiters, $3.25 a pair.

Ladies' mahogany boots, fall pattern, $5.85 a pair. 23 pairs only $10 mahogany boots, white neolin sole, $4.85 a pair. This clears this line.

Open tomorrow evening till 11.

experiment of offering them to the consumer at a price which we thought might interest him to overlook the fact that these balls were officially barred from match games.

"In spite of the fact that we emphasized in our advertising the point that the article was an outlawed ball, golfers fairly jumped at the chance to buy them at $6.85 per dozen. Evidently there are a large number of golfers who are not particularly interested in championship matches, but who get a lot of fun out of the game nevertheless. We sold 3,000 of these golf balls in a single day. We made an effective price appeal, and it struck home."

Folded Bills Showed How Prices Have Dropped.

The Hardwick & Magee Company, retailers of carpets and rugs in Philadelphia, recently installed an exhibit which it calls an "Extended Dollar Demonstration."

It's not a so-called bargain sale, featuring the relative worth of the dollar bill in purchasing stunts designed to educate prospective customers to compare the relative worth of the dollar bill as it now stands—and now—so far as rug and carpet-buying is concerned.

True, there have been exhibits featuring different parts of the country showing how much of this and how much of that can be had for $1.00, and how little that same $1.65 bought last year at the same time.

But the Hardwick & Magee exhibit is entirely different from anything of the sort ever worked out anywhere. It is designed with the idea of giving the public, in plain, concise statements about twenty, forty or fifty per cent. price drops, but in a way that is entirely plain and intelligible.

To visualize the proposition clearly in the consumer's mind, the company has taken dollar bills to illustrate the theme. Some are folded thirty-five per cent., while others are actually folded in half, while others are folded in three-quarters of a dollar last year on the rug to which they are appended. The full value of a dollar bill represents the value today, try the bypaths.

Although this was ordinarily an "off peak" period for rug and carpet buying, the exhibit, because of its frank, when he sent in his order he included the number of mail-boxes sold, but only as many as were sold up to that time. When that arrived he printed the names, numbers, etc., on the boxes and the farmers came in and took their mail-boxes and Kommers only had two in stock to start with, which is a concrete example of his plan of operation. The investment in boxes was $410.

Kommers carried out the rug stock in the store, and recently sold forty-eight of these on an investment of $27.10. The gross business on that item alone was $672.

How Prices Have Dropped.

Some of the things that have been said in the past few days about the value of the dollar bill, and the fact that it is worth less than it was a year ago, is a common-sense statement. It is a fact that the value of the dollar bill has dropped, and the reason for this is the increase in the amount of paper money in circulation.

The fact is, however, that the value of the dollar bill has not dropped so far as rug and carpet-buying is concerned. The value of the dollar bill has dropped, but the value of rug and carpet has not. This is because the price of rug and carpet has not increased as much as the price of the dollar bill.

For example, if a rug cost $1.00 last year and now costs $1.65, that is a 65 per cent. increase. If a dollar bill was worth $1.00 last year and now is worth only 60 cents, that is a 40 per cent. decrease. The net result is that the rug is worth 25 per cent. more than it was last year, relative to the value of the dollar bill.

Side Lines Keep This Florist Always Busy.

It's easy enough to keep the wheels moving when trade is brisk, as every retailer knows, but in a business with its periodic seasons of dullness, like the florist's, it takes real management and skill to tide over the times when "nothing's doing." The George Witbold Company, one of Chicago's largest florists, whose offices and greenhouses occupy half a city block, makes a special success that its motto might well be "When the going ain't good on the main road, try the bypaths."

This enterprising florist's firm reasons that when the public crowds to buy flowers for Christmas, Easter and Mothers' Day, it thereby acknowledges that it needs the flowers then. Very well, then, let the retailer make himself needed in the off season also.

One of these advertising "stunts" John G. Witbold, the company's manager, particularly recommends to small-town florists. A printed postcard bearing the picture of a potted fern was prepared to advertise Boston ferns at a very attractive price, considerably below their usual price, and the patron was urged to order one of these ferns over the telephone. For this purpose a nickel was placed in one corner of the card, while some excellent directions for the care of a Boston fern. The cards were sent out in envelopes to a selected list of 1,000 florists, with return envelopes inclosed in which the customer was urged to send in his personal card. This "stunt" was so successful that...

yielded an excellent return, to say nothing of being splendid advertising from which the Witbolds heard later.

One of the "bypath" activities which the Witbolds have developed to a high degree, is their all-the-year-round service of furnishing plants, ferns and potted evergreens to a dozen of the best and several department stores for purposes of decoration. This rental collection is large enough to occupy two entire greenhouses of the Witboldville city plant. The greenhouse forces taken to grow new and old, this service for which the hotels and stores are charged by the month, brings in highly profitable returns and goes far to lighten the overhead of the dull season.

JAMES MURDOCK
Former member of the Board of Commerce and international vice-president of the Federated Railway Trainmen, has been granted two months leave of absence by his organization and will probably run for the Liberal in South Toronto.

That was the beginning of one of the most peculiar stories in the United States, a store with no display windows, in which a prospective customer that he exists, a store that the customer would hardly notice if he were not apprised of the fact beforehand.

A stranger entering the house, for the store is Mrs. Wheeler's residence at 1215 Jefferson avenue, would gather from the profusion of children and infants' goods hanging from the rack in the hall, and thrown over chairs, and from the number of toys scattered about, that this place was a toy store.

But he'd be wrong. This is simply the stock of merchandise that Mrs. Wheeler sells.

"There is no car line within several blocks of my house," she says, "and if the husband comes in the car, I always try to get the wife to get in, for fear that she will sit outside and 'squawk' the electric horn. If I get him inside he is invited to be seated in the front seat."

"Stress the price appeal and take your profit out of big volume, not big margins. If you do, you won't have to 'wait for business to resume.' You'll find it already resumed."

This is the way Richard G. Roth, general manager of the S. B. DAVEGA Company's five sporting goods stores in New York, advises retail merchants to start the ball rolling again.

"There is no class of consumer today, he argues, who is too wealthy to be hit by the price appeal. Recently Roth's stores sold 3,000 golf balls in one day, even though the balls were 'out-of-favor' by emphasizing their low price.

"So far as we are concerned, there is no problem to be solved in the way of getting the public to buy," says Roth. "Business at all of our five stores this year has been better than at any time in the history of our organization. This is true both of sporting goods and apparel, but in order to get these results we have had to stress the price appeal and rely on volume of sales for our prosperity."

SIR HARRY LAUDER AGAIN IN STATES

Discussed Short Skirts, Bobbed Hair, Prohibition and Disarmament—The British Navy Necessary.

Sir Harry Lauder, feeling "fufften," but admitting fifty-one, talked with newspapermen in the Hotel Biltmore, New York, the other afternoon on prohibition, bobbed hair, short skirts, jazz and disarmament.

Sir Harry, who last appeared in New York in 1917 as a speaker for the Allied cause, wore the familiar tartan of the McLeods with a cut bear's head sporan hanging from his waist. During his interview he pulled continually on a briar pipe, which appeared to have had long service.

"I'm mighty glad to return to the United States," he said. "I've spent ten years of my life in America and made here some of my best friends in the world. I once told to a London audience, adding, 'but they paid me well for it.' The folks in the theatre laughed immoderately, as the English say.

"In this your farewell visit?" he was asked. "No, it is only one of my first. I think I shall have ten or twenty farewells visits."

"Now that we have prohibition, have you noticed any differences?" was another question. "Have you?" Sir Harry countered. "Will Scotland go dry?"

"I don't know," he replied. "I'm willing to believe that most anything can happen these days. In cases of intemperance in Scotland it has been found that it isn't the city youth who over-indulge. It is the country youth who comes to the city on market day, for example. If he has time on his hands he will join with his fellows in having 'wee half,' or, as some might say, a nip.

"Personally, I am not a prohibitionist. I am a temperate man. I haven't been looking for liquor since I've been here and no one has offered me any."

Short Skirts Discussed. "Since you wear short skirts, perhaps you would tell us what you think of women wearing them," a reported venturer. "It suits the lassies, let them go ahead and wear them," Sir Harry answered. Four years ago I prophesied I would return to the United States and find the lassies wearing kilts. I saw a bonny girl who wore hose the same as me and her legs were bare at the knees. I think another two trips will prove my prophecy.

He was opposed to women bobbing their hair, explaining he believed one of the glories of women should be her delight in her hair. Then rubbing the top of his head he quickly added that he couldn't dwell on the subject since he hadn't much hair himself.

"How did you come to lose your hair?" he was asked. "Sleeping in a sheet bed."

When disarmament was mentioned Sir Harry became serious. "It is a big and colossal subject," he said. "Foreigners who have not traveled have no idea of the size of Great Britain and the British Empire," he added. "The waters of the British Empire are many and they have to be guarded because they are a very great distance from one another. I think the British navy has been a help to the fellow in between. There is no use for Great Britain to talk of disarmament unless America and the other nations go in. We have nothing to fear from the United States, for we feel that your country will always be with Great Britain. But at the same time it would be for the security of the whole world for the other nations to realize that the English-speaking nations stood for one thing—and we can only have that by solidarity."

"How about the Irish question?" "I'll leave that for the Irish to settle. Ireland is a bonny country, its people simple and kind-hearted. I think the channel of peace is well opened and that before many days go by we shall be reading that Great Britain and Ireland have made a pact of peace never to be broken."

Sir Harry said he would give a concert for the inmates of Sing Sing. Before beginning his American season of twenty-two weeks he will stop at the summer home of William Morris at Saranac Lake, N. Y. The Amalgamated Scottish Societies of America will give a dinner in honor of Sir Harry at the Waldorf on October 14.

Cricket Club Has Meeting

The St. John Cricket Club held a large and enthusiastic meeting last evening at 118 Broad street. Owing to the illness of the president of the club, W. E. Richards, L. Young was appointed president pro-tem. The local cricketers attended to arrange plans for raising funds during the coming winter. It was also decided to hold a banquet in the near future to round out the close of the summer's play. The cups won by W. E. Richards and C. F. Mofford will be presented to them at this celebration. The prizes were given for the best batting and best bowling shown on the local team. The local cricketers expect to be able to organize a league next season.

ST. JOHN HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNAE

The annual meeting of the St. John High School Alumnae was held last night at the Natural History Society's rooms in Union street, when the announcement was made that the High School Alumnae memorial scholarship had now been subscribed up to the $300 which was the original objective. Miss Grace Campbell was re-elected president and was in the chair last night. Some suggestions for the programme for the winter were discussed but no definite plans were made. The year's work was reviewed with much satisfaction. The treasurer, Miss Laura Myles, in her financial statement, showed that the society was free from debt and entered the new season with a balance on hand.

Miss Grace Estey, reporting on the memorial scholarship fund, said that the objective of $3,000 had at last been reached and the High School War Memorial, established in 1919 in memory of the boys and girls who fell in the great European war, was now made possible. The scholarship had already been awarded three times. The winners were Kenneth Sullivan, Edith McCrae and John Bond. The amount of the scholarship was $150 and it was decided that the fund should be held open with a view to increasing the amount of the scholarship. The report showed that the largest individual subscribers were Miss Agnes Warner, $125.00; Y. W. C. A., $100; Frank Miller, $100. The largest class subscriptions were as follows: The class of 1920, $184.20; class of 1925, $149.15. The greatest number of subscriptions in any class were given by the class of 1915 which had forty-seven subscribers. The total class subscriptions amounted to $1,200. In memorial subscriptions amounted to $284 and non-graduates subscribed $134. The balance was raised by the alumnae.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Miss Grace Campbell; first vice-president, Miss Florence Estabrook; second vice-president, Miss Alice Walker; third vice-president, Miss Agnes Warner; secretary, Miss Mabel Rodgers; treasurer, Miss Greta Trentowski and Miss Marlon Thompson; additional members of the executive, Miss Jessie Lawson, Miss Grace Estey, Miss Jean Smith, Miss May Ward, Miss Barbara Dolson, Mrs. Bertram Smith, Mrs. Frank Miller and Dr. D. C. Malcolm.

ST. JOHN CRICKET MEN ARE VICTORS

The last cricket game of the season was played yesterday afternoon on the Allison playgrounds between the St. John Cricket Club and a team from the R. M. S. P. Chaudiere. The locals closed a successful summer campaign by defeating the sailors by the score of 68 runs to 39. Moore was high man for the locals with a record of 18 runs scored, while Clarke led for the visitors with a single score of 15.

SCHOONER ELSIE, U. S. CONTENDER

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 13.—The Elsie, a saucy little schooner out of Gloucester, today won the title as the fastest in the fisheries of New England and selection as the racing representative of the United States in the international match to be sailed with a Canadian champion off Halifax, nine days hence.

In a race of forty miles off Cape Ann, with winds and a course that provided a lively test of sailing qualities, she out-footed four other speedy vessels of the Gloucester and Provincetown fleets. The time of the winner was five hours, fourteen minutes, thirty-two seconds. She slipped along at twelve to fifteen knots speed at times in reaches and runs with a twenty-four knot breeze.

Except for the reach of five miles to the first mark, in which the Arthur James led, Elsie was in front of the fleet all the way. The Ralph Brown, well handled, but not so well trimmed, unexpectedly outstepped all the other vessels, and gained second place at the finish, eleven minutes astern. The Arthur James, which sailed a duel with the Brown off second honors over most of the course, was third, the Elsie G. Silva was fourth and the little Phillip P. Manta, fifth. The official times were: Elsie, 5 hours, 14 minutes, 32 seconds; Ralph Brown, 5:25:54; Arthur James, 5:29:36; the Elsie G. Silva, 6:36:17; Phillip P. Manta, 6:04:38.

GIANTS TAKE THE WORLD'S SERIES

Lone Tally in First Wins the Final Game for McGraw's Men—Record in Receipts for Series.

By defeating the Yankees yesterday by a score of 1 to 0 the Giants captured the baseball championship of the world after one of the greatest series since the establishment of this feature fall classic. Neff held the Yankee slugs to four scattered hits and was strong with men on. Hoyt pitched shutout ball for his team mates, but an error by Captain Peckinpaugh allowed Bancroft to score in the first inning and incidentally was responsible for the loss of the championship. It was a great day for the Giants' supporters, as their favorites were always pulling off something sensational, while on the other hand the Yankees' friends had little opportunity to release their pent up enthusiasm until "Babe" Ruth was sent in as a pinch hitter in the last of the ninth. He received a tremendous ovation as he stepped up to the plate, but handspelled as he was with his bandaged arm, the best he could do was to hit one at Kelly.

A total of 209,876 fans attended the series and paid out a total of $900,238. This is the largest sum ever taken in at a series, the previous record falling shy by $177,819. The Giants will get approximately $5,296 each and the Yankees about $3,800. The Cleveland Americans and Pittsburgh Nationals will divide $43,478.34 and the two St. Louis clubs "third place" will divide $28,292.22.

Thousands Greet Hon. Mr. King In Moncton

Moncton, Oct. 13—Moncton tonight gave Hon. Mackenzie King a great reception, turning out in large numbers to hear the leader of the Liberal party and several other prominent Liberals. Four large auditoriums were needed for the remarkable demonstration in support of Liberalism. Long before 8 o'clock, the hour at which the meetings opened, large groups of people were assembled outside of the entrances seeking admission. When the doors were opened the seating accommodations were taxed to the utmost, the large audiences, deeply interested in the issues under discussion, following closely the various speakers and manifesting their appreciation of the eloquent, forceful addresses by frequent and hearty applause.

Not only did Monctonians rally strongly at tonight's meetings, but hundreds of people came to the city from outside points; people were seen from Amherst, Dorchester, Shediac, Salisbury and many other places in the outlying districts, all eager to greet the Liberal leader and hear the speeches. It was a rousing and successful evening. Meetings were held in the Grand Opera House, the Imperial Theatre, the Colonial Theatre and the City Hall.

Accorded Great Reception.

Hon. Mr. King was greeted with cheers when he was introduced at the main meeting in the Grand theatre by Hon. C. W. Robinson, the chairman. The Liberal leader thanked his hearers for the splendid reception both in Moncton and in the province generally. Public interest in these meetings, Mr. King declared, was an evidence of the people's feeling against the denial since the war of a general election. The history of politics in Canada had never known such usurpation of power.

"There are friends of Mr. Meighen in this audience," said Mr. King. "Did any of you give Mr. Meighen the right to carry on the government of Canada? The only difference between Mr. Meighen and Laurier and myself is that the latter used physical violence to maintain power while Mr. Meighen used legislative violence."

The Laurier Policy.

"The policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier was one of conservatism," Mr. King asserted, "while the one which succeeded it was largely one of destruction."

The Laurier government had built roads to assist the development of vast prairie lands in the west and to break a great monopoly. From this had grown the western provinces. Another aim of Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been to build a united Canada. He had sought a national railway policy to build up both east and west and bring western freight through Canadian ports.

The Laurier-Meighen governments had done their best to tear down what Sir Wilfrid Laurier had built. Today the West in Canada were dejected and discouraged because of the diversion of traffic and commerce to other sources by the government. The ports of the east had also suffered because freight was diverted to Portland and other United States ports.

Mr. King asked if anyone in Canada had ever heard of the government taking over 20,000 miles of railways. "The people had no chance to discuss the policy," he declared, "we were drawn up and launched in secret council behind closed doors." The attitude of present day Tories was that the people did not know and did not matter. The people's representatives in parliament had been refused a voice in taking over the railways, the Liberal leader declared, adding that he challenged Mr. Meighen to deny this statement.

Macdonald and Laurier had consulted parliament on their railway policies but the Laurier-Meighen governments took over the roads, partly under duress, Mr. Meighen had refused to allow parliament to see the Grand Trunk agreement, while this was placed before the English bondholders for their approval.

Mr. Meighen had charged the Laurier government with going too far in railway building, said Mr. King. But four or five thousand miles of the Canadian Northern system had been built with money loaned by the government, after Sir Robert Borden took office in 1911. The Liberal leader dealt with the reopening of the Grand Trunk legislation in parliament through an error in the bill. He said he had then demanded that the Grand Trunk employees be reinstated in the act. "And then Mr. Meighen talks about protecting labor," Mr. King asserted. "Labor does not ask the government to give justice is more vital.

Railway Into Politics.

Dealing with the tariff, Mr. King said a protective tariff was apt to serve the interests of the few rather than of the many. The Liberal policy demanded that all classes have fair treatment in tariff matters. Mr. King said that the ministers of labor he had introduced the combines act which gave half down people the right to demand an investigation of any company suspected of profiting by virtue of the tariff it received.

CHARTERS REPORTED.
The States Marine and Commercial Company's weekly bulletin says that steamer market conditions were without improvement during the week and the probable business done is characteristically confined almost exclusively to the grain trade. Grain freights continue to offer in limited numbers with rates slightly below the quotations of last week, but in all other trades the requirements of charterers are unusually light.

A limited amount of tonnage offers for early and forward delivery, many vessels having been diverted to other trades or laid up temporarily. No material improvement is anticipated in the near future. The sailing vessel market was exceptionally dull, especially in all off-shore trades. A limited amount of coasting business was reported, and a few additional freights of the kind offered, but the rates bid are far from attractive, and many owners prefer to lay their vessels up rather than to operate them at present prices. Freights of all kinds in all of the off shore trades are decidedly scarce.

MARINE NOTES.
The Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd. have announced that, in addition to their regular liners, one of their new vessels will run to this port this winter. The liner Montclair will leave Liverpool on February 15 on her maiden voyage to this port. She will return to March 2, and then, after one more round trip, she will go on the Montreal-Liverpool route. The Montclair is of the type made popular by the Melita, Minnedosa and Metagona. She is 16,000 tons, and 566 feet long. She has accommodations for 820 cabin passengers and 1,350 third class.

M'GILL DEGREES ON CENTENARY

Honors Conferred Yesterday on Fifty-five.

Speeches by Baron Byng, Sir Auckland Geddes, Premier Taschereau and Mr. E. W. Beatty — The University and the People.

Montréal, Oct. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—The completion of its first hundred years as an educational institution was fittingly celebrated yesterday by McGill University, the conferring of fifty-five honorary degrees and addresses by four distinguished recipients, speaking for the whole, at a convocation in St. James' Methodist church.

Baron Byng of Vinny, governor-general of Canada, was the first speaker. He urged the imperative necessity for young Canadians to learn British history—especially of the 150 years from 1600 to 1900—if they would adequately equip themselves to tackle the problems of the future.

Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador to Washington, reminded his hearers that the tasks of the last hundred years had been to lay the foundations upon which that were now laid.

Premier Taschereau of Quebec uttered a warning note against the crowding of the liberal professions. Too many lawyers, doctors and notaries were being turned out yearly, and urged the need for development of agriculture and the industries by training of young men for this work.

Chancellor E. W. Beatty warned his audience that there was one special danger that every university should fight, namely, the losing of touch with the life and intellectual needs of the people. If the people would not come to the university, the university must go to the people.

Dr. A. C. McKeen, president of the McGill University, said that the university must be prepared to meet new conditions and to open up new avenues for all those anxious to obtain higher education.

Convocations were received and read from many universities in the U. S., England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland, Belgium and France.

The recipients of degrees included Bliss Carman, Canadian poet; Sir Louis David, chief justice of the province of Quebec; Dr. A. Stanley MacKenna, Dalhousie University; Sir Andrew Macdonald, H. L. A. Taschereau, premier of Quebec.

HONORABLE W. L. Mackenzie King, LIBERAL LEADER

With a message of vital importance to the people of Saint John

CHAIRMAN OF MEETING
HIS WORSHIP MAYOR SCHOFIELD

WATCH PAPERS FOR FULL DETAILS OF THE PROGRAMME FOR THE VISIT OF THE LIBERAL CHIEF TO SAINT JOHN.

"Therefore, I cannot but believe that you will have from France and from Italy as well as from Great Britain an expression of the strongest desire in reducing these armaments," he said.

Viscount Bryce was of the opinion that the policy of his country, of Canada and Australia, all interested in the Pacific, coincided with the policy of the United States. But he had noticed a certain amount of uneasiness regarding possible attacks on America, an uneasiness which he did not quite understand, and which in England generally was not understood. "I cannot here enter into the reasons which make me disbelieve in the cause of that uneasiness," he said, significantly. "You may say there are possibilities; that there are some possibilities that may approach probability. There are others that are almost too remote to be worth considering. Anybody can frighten themselves with a possibility, but the course of prudence is to watch and to estimate the likelihood that it will never enter into the sphere of probability."

No Danger Threatening.
"I can sense at this moment no danger threatening the United States that has come within the range of probability. There is only one question affecting the Pacific countries which is really a question fit to cause anxiety, and that is the question of China. You have in China a vast people, an industrious people, whose government is, at present, unstable, whose provinces are divided, which is, in fact, in a state of weakness that exposes it to danger, and that makes its neighbors look with anxiety upon the future."

In touching upon the Irish question, Viscount Bryce said that the sympathy given by Great Britain to this country since the Spanish War had been "too some extent marred by one difficulty, one source of trouble, which has taken form that is hard for any country outside of Great Britain to understand; it means the relations of Britain and Ireland."

Recalling that thirty-five years ago he was a member of the ministry when Gladstone brought his first Home Rule bill, and that he had been an advocate of Home Rule ever since, the speaker said that now an offer had been made that went further than any other offer. "There is hardly a man in England who does not desire, with all his heart, good feeling and friendship and peace between Great Britain and Ireland," he added. "That would be the greatest boon that could come to the two countries. Perhaps I may add that I think there are some of you who believe it would be a boon to America also, and I cannot but trust that wisdom and good temper on both sides will bring such a settlement, a permanent settlement, to put an end to all of these hatreds and dissensions; a settlement which, without impairing the strength and safety of Great Britain, will enable the energies and the patriotic spirit of the Irish people to find the fullest expression in working for the good of their country for which they have cherished for so many centuries a patriotic fervor. That is our hope and it is a confident hope."

IMPORTANT SYNOD COMMITTEE NAMED

Very Rev. Dean Neales and Chancellor Teed Members.

Arrange Conferences With Other Churches on Union—Definite Action Towards Pension Scheme for Clergy.

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 14—The lower house of the Anglican General Synod last night followed up its acceptance of the Lambeth appeal by appointing its section of the joint union committee, which is to arrange for conferences with other communions in Canada on church union. The committee is composed of fifty-four members and is regarded as being fully representative of the various shades of opinion. With an equal representation of clergy and laity it is made up of two representatives from each of nineteen dioceses, and four from each of the ecclesiastical provinces.

Selected by a special nominating committee of five clergymen and five laymen appointed early in the day, the lower house representatives on the union committee include:

Nova Scotia—Very Rev. J. L. D. Lloyd, A. B. Wiswell.

Fredericton—Very Rev. Dean Neales, Chancellor M. G. Teed.

The following representing the four ecclesiastical provinces:

Canada—Ven. Archbishop Armistead, Rev. W. H. Davidson, Hon. Chief Justice Harris, John Hamilton, Rupert's Land—Ven. Archbishop McElheran, Ven. Archbishop Thomas, C. P. Coleman, J. B. Leadley Brown; Ontario—Rev. Provost Seager, Rev. Dyson Hague, Mr. Justice Hodgins, P. J. Bell; British Columbia—Rev. C. H. Shortt, for Principal Vance, Chancellor Hamilton, John Harvey.

Pension Plan.

Definite action towards inauguration of a dominion wide pension scheme for the clergy of the Church of England in Canada was taken when the lower house approved a temporary scheme which will provide for annuities to supernumerary ministers and their widows and children in those dioceses where no adequate pensioning system is now in force. Payments are to be made out of the income from $750,000 raised for a pension system by the Anglican Forward Movement.

The synod will meet in Montréal next year.

BRITISHER TAKEN FOR AN EGYPTIAN

Aviator and Wife Held Up at Ellis Island.

New York, Oct. 14—For the last 10 days Lieut. Walter Davis, formerly of the British Royal Air Corps, has been held in the detention quarters of the Ellis Island immigration station. With him are his wife, Sarah, 21, and their son, Walter, Jr., 2 years. They have all been excluded from the United States and ordered deported due to a technicality of a few restrictive immigration laws.

Although Lieut. Davis comes of British lineage for generations back, he was born in Egypt at a time when his father was a British soldier, garrisoned there. That was 24 years ago, and the parents of Lieut. Davis left Egypt five months after the latter's birth, taking him to England. But the new immigration laws specifically stipulate that "for the purpose of this act, nationality shall be determined by birth."

So, when Davis came to the United States 10 days ago, at a time when the Egyptian quota had been exhausted, there was nothing on the boards of Ellis Island to do but to classify him technically as an Egyptian, inasmuch as he was admittedly born in Egypt. He was therefore, excluded and ordered deported.

"I haven't a drop of Egyptian blood in my veins," he protested. "If I had been born in a stable would that make me a horse?"

The British officer lost little time in filing a protest with the British consulate. The case was likewise taken on appeal to the Secretary of Labor at Washington by the representative of the National Catholic Council on Ellis Island.

LOST TRUCK FOUND HUNG TO SIDE OF BRICK BARGE

Two-Ton Vehicle Reported Stolen Almost Submerged in Wallabout Creek.

(New York Post).

A two-ton commercial automobile truck, reported to the police as having been stolen in Manhattan about midnight last night, was found early this morning almost completely submerged in Wallabout Creek at the foot of Hughes street, Brooklyn, wedged between the retaining wall and a brick barge, and partially suspended from a heavy spike which projected from the side of the barge.

Capt. Michael Brophy of the barge Hyland Rose and John Mitchell, cook on the barge, found the machine while investigating a crash which Mitchell heard during the night. Mitchell's recollection was that he heard the crash about 10:30 o'clock. Isadore Levine, owner of the truck and who lives at 20 McKibbin street, Brooklyn, reported to the police that the truck had been stolen from Harrison and West streets, Manhattan.

SEES GERMAN MAKING HER WAY

Bank Has Been on Tour of European Countries.

London, Oct. 14.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Sir John Aird, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, returned to London after an extensive journey through France, Belgium and Germany. He was accompanied by Charles Cambie, manager of the bank's London branch. Interviewed by the press, Sir John Aird stated that he said the outstanding fact was that everybody on the continent was working hard and that there was no unemployment at present. In Germany the hard work was, outwardly at any rate, being well repaid, and it was impossible to think of the life there as being anything other than a highly efficient manner.

Germany, in fact, was living within her means, and it was impossible to think that she would become bankrupt even if the mark might sink to a figure meaning its practical utterance. More over, the Germans were producing a class of goods better than the same class can be produced in Great Britain. Germany was selling these goods to European countries and quite extensively to Russia, Mexico and South American states. From Russia Germany had obtained gold for foreign exchange in payment for these goods.

MORNING NEWS OVER THE WIRES

Roscoe Arbuckle arrived in San Francisco early yesterday and entered a plea of "not guilty" to the charge of manslaughter. His trial will commence on November 7.

It is expected that at least a month will elapse before the return of the recent referendum in this province are completed at Ottawa and published in the Canada Gazette. When this is done the order-in-council will be passed and will go into effect thirty days from the date on which it is passed, thus making the importation legal until early in December.

HEAR CLAIM FOR MILLIONS AGAINST U. S. GOVERNMENT

Washington, Oct. 14.—An action by the Electric Boat Company of New York against the government involving a claim amounting to several billion dollars for the use during the World War of automobile torpedoes is heard by the Federal Court of Claims.

The claim is based on a contract whereby the company declares it was to the government. The company asserts that its invention resulted in increasing the range of automobile torpedoes to 10,000 yards, for the first time making torpedoes available for use against long range naval guns. A vast number of torpedoes were used in this way, both abroad and for home coast defenses and it was said that if the claim is allowed the judgment would run into the billions.

VISCONT BRYCE ON ARMAMENTS

Says Existence Creates Desire to Use Them.

Britain Hated Nobody — Cooperation of Anglo-Celtic Nations Can Save Mankind if Human Means Can.

(Special to The Montreal Gazette).

New York, Oct. 14.—In his farewell public address in this country on the eve of sailing for England tomorrow, Viscount Bryce, former ambassador of Great Britain to the United States, speaking today as guest of honor at a luncheon of the Montreal Association in the Hotel Astor, said that Great Britain, France and Italy would come to the forthcoming Washington Conference with the "strongest desire to join in reducing armaments."

He regretted that in Europe and the Near East the war had not brought a desire for peace. He said that there was still danger among the minor powers which had formed alliances, "and no one can say how soon some spark in the quarrel of Europe may light the flame." He added that there was no danger threatening the United States so far as Pacific problems were concerned.

Anglo-American relations have been marred, he admitted, by the Irish question and he said that its settlement, of which he was confident would be a boon to America as well as those directly involved.

Viscount Bryce was introduced by John W. Davis, former ambassador of the United States to Great Britain, who acclaimed President Harding for calling the Washington Conference.

Great Britain and the United States, said Viscount Bryce, were especially fitted to exercise a moral influence on the world. Neither has any revenge to satisfy upon anyone. Neither hates the way the nations of continental Europe hate.

"And neither of us, fortunately, has anything to take from our neighbors, practically, you might say, because we have all we need already," he continued.

"If there be any human means by which the world can be made good, I am sure there never was a moment in history when so much turned upon bringing the nations into accord and cooperation. If mankind can ever be saved by human means, it is in the co-operation of America and Great Britain."

After saying that the reduction of armaments was of the greatest consequence at this moment, Viscount Bryce went on:

"It has been sometimes supposed that armaments make for peace. They do not. They make for war. The existence of great armaments in a country fosters a large class who know how to make armaments, and how to work them. It creates the desire to use the armaments which exist; it keeps the idea of war constantly before the mind of the people; it makes it seem a natural and probable thing and diminishes the horror with which the advent of war ought to be regarded."

He pointed out that even before the war it was all the nations of Europe could do to bear the crushing load of taxation which the maintenance of great armaments involved.
