Anything to Beat Tammany. With the Republican politicians however, the alliance is manifestly popular. The same is true of the candidates. "Well, Herbert Parsons is showing himself a real politician after all is a comment heard on all sides in political circles.

ST. JOHN, N. B., OCTOBER 9, 1907.

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH, THE SEMI-WEEKLY TELEGRAPH, THE EVENING TIMES

"The Thistle, Shamrock, Rose and Maple, The Maple Leaf forever."

NOT YET

Conference succeeds conference among the politicians, but the local government is seemingly still unprepared to announce the completion of the cabinet. A dozen men have been mentioned as having been offered the portfolio vacated by Dr. Pugsley.

In St. John city it is not improbable that the government ticket will consist of Messrs. Purdy, Robertson, Lantieri and Shimer. It has been said that Messrs. Purdy and Robertson were to retire, but no doubt they will be strongly pressed to contest the constituency again.

CZAR AND PEASANTS

Though the news contains comparatively little about Russia's national tragedy in these days, well informed observers are convinced that the revolution has not been checked by the reactionaries.

It is in spite of the words which Your Majesty has deigned to inscribe on the telegram of the Tchernigoff Zemstvo assembly, and deeming that the rights of Your Majesty, which, according to a dynastic tradition, you believe to be of divine origin, have in reality no other basis than your duties toward the people and the state; that these duties, neither you nor your ancestors have ever conscientiously accomplished, may, that in several cases you have betrayed them—which is proved to be incontrovertibly by the infinitely painful situation of the country and the sad events in the Far East—the Tchernigoff Zemstvo Assembly has conceived the firm conviction of the complete uselessness of the form of government which you have adopted during the ten years of your unfortunate reign, and declares for the necessity of a special National Assembly which shall proceed to an inquiry into and judgment upon your actions and those of your suite and your ministers, founded on the principles of justice and equity which are absolutely foreign to you.

Another peasant assembly sent a letter to the czar in which this passage occurred: "What a miserable sort of czar you are at present! You are weak-minded and your place is not on the throne, but in an asylum. We have no need of a useless czar; what we want is a strong and capable one. Go and quit your high place. We shall choose a popular czar and we will make him preside over our representatives at the Douma, so that they may deliberate and legislate in common session, or, better still, our representatives will govern the country by themselves, unanimously, without a czar."

Formerly Siberia and the executioners would have sufficed to stifle such thoughts as these even if they had been but whispered within the hearing of some secret agent. Today, while the executioners are busy, the people talk treason, and it spreads.

NEWS FROM TOKIO

A Tokio despatch to the New York Herald contains the interesting statement that the Japanese regard the questions growing out of the anti-Asiatic feeling in British Columbia as much more difficult than those due to the anti-Japanese sentiment in California.

Both the United States and Great Britain must seek a friendly arrangement with Japan about immigration, and neither will be able to put in force exclusion measures which will imply that the Japanese as a people are inferior to Europeans. California and British Columbia may believe the Japanese really are inferior in some ways, but Tokio will not listen to any such theory, and London and Washington will give ear to Tokio.

"CONSTRUCTIVE STATESMANSHIP"

Newspapers which support the local government through thick and thin make a point of asking what Mr. Hazen has done, will do, or will even promise to do, for New Brunswick. He promises to make an early attempt to find out, and tell the people, exactly what is the financial condition of the province.

PENSIONS OR INSURANCE?

Massachusetts, which leads the States in socialistic activity, has set a commission to work upon the question of old age pensions—the necessity for them, the form they should take, the wisdom of any such kind of state interference with the laws of life as we see them operating in the Anglo-Saxon world today. The commission's work will be done thoroughly, and Canada will learn much from it at a time when the whole question of providing for the aged is being discussed in the Dominion.

"It is a recognized fact that old age is among the two or three chief causes of pauperism. English investigations have shown that patients in the almshouses supported persons under sixty years of age from less than five per cent of the total population under that age."

"Nevertheless, it is a somewhat startling proposition for an American community that the state itself should take action in the way of compelling the individual to be forehanded—to do what any sane person knows he ought to do in provision for himself and family against the event which has no element of accident in it, but is as certain to come as the sun is to rise and set."

"But here these proposals are before us, forced upon attention by the fact of the factory and wage system of labor, and they will continue to compel our notice until we move or less radical modification of the present system is effected. The industrial society shall have been brought about. The great problem will be how to effect such a modification as to be completely satisfactory to the worker in the factory without destroying that degree of individual responsibility which is absolutely essential to the development of a citizen and a human being."

WARRING UP

Some of the news associated with the campaign in Massachusetts just now is interesting as showing what preparation is being made for the coming election. Here, for example, is a despatch from Springfield, the scene of the Democratic state convention:

"CONVENTION NEARLY OPEN"

"The convention, which was to nominate either Mr. Whitney or Gen. Bartlett, is in a conflict between partisans of these candidates, and after much bitterness and disorder two meetings were held in the same hall; one nominated the Whitney ticket, and the other the Bartlett ticket. Mr. Whitney might have had a fair chance of election if he had been the candidate of a united party from the first, but the fight over the nomination, which has been in progress for weeks, followed by the Springfield fiasco, rendered the re-election of Gov. Gould, the Republican candidate, certain. The State of Massachusetts probably contains quite as large a percentage of intelligent and reputable folk as any in the Union, but politics in its cities has fallen into a disreputable condition. At the moment there is talk of replacing the Boston city government by a commission such as Galveston has. This agitation is the result of Democratic misrule and corruption, and very general recognition of the fact that the Republican city organization is not much better than that controlled by Mayor Fitzgerald, or rather by the Democratic boss, Lomaxey, who made Fitzgerald mayor."

TWO SERIOUS ERRORS

If the Canadian Pacific Telegraph Company has decided that it can charge what it pleases for transmitting messages, and that it can compel newspapers to refrain from criticizing its doings, it has made two very serious errors; and the second is the more serious of the two. The Toronto Globe charges that the Nelson (B. C.) News has been deprived of the company's service because it attacked the company on account of recent heavy advances in western telegraph rates.

Railway Telegraph Company on pain of having his news service discontinued. Yesterday his newspaper had been without telegraph service for two days, and he was told that it would not be renewed unless he entered into a written agreement not to criticize publicly the course of the telegraph company.

The telegraph company was chartered to do a commercial business in Canada, not to do a public utility. It is the duty of the government to afford relief to the absolutely trustworthy source of the Globe's information. The situation revealed is intolerable, and it is the duty of the government to afford relief to the absolutely trustworthy source of the Globe's information.

The justice or injustice of the new western rates is a matter for determination by impartial investigation. Where there is monopoly of service the tendency is to oppress the consumer. In a case where a railroad company controls the telegraphic service in much of its own territory there is a tendency to consider the railroad company first and the public second. The result of such corporation tactics is clearly to increase the demand for government ownership of telegraph and telephone lines.

Rockefeller's physician says his patient will live to be a hundred. This assertion has led some to begin calculations tending to show that so great prolongation of the Rockefeller span would mean that the Oil King would possess all of the ready money in the world, and that he would be able to do as he pleased with it. Others are inquiring how the men of great age contrive to live so long, and there are many interesting statements about their food and drink. Among the centenarians who have been asked to explain their hold upon life was one whose answer was unusual. He said he attributed his long life mainly to the important fact that he had not died previously.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Political talk now tends to confirm the selection of Mr. McKewen as Attorney-General, with a by-election in St. John county and the postponement of the other by-elections until after the session. It is thought there will be an early session and a short one, at which the road law will be repealed, or so amended as to remove its most objectionable features. That would amount to repeal, and would be a confession that the measure had been rejected by the public as highly unsatisfactory. If this programme is followed there would probably be an election in the early spring. The government would scarcely risk the additional unpopularity which would be encountered by an appeal to the people in the winter season.

The Harpist Man.

A true story is told of a southerner who went into the store of one of his neighbors and asked him if he didn't want to trade. "What for?" asked the storekeeper. "The man ran his hand down into his coat pocket and pulled out an egg. 'This,' said he, 'is a hen's egg. I want to trade it for a couple of chickens.'"

The Pedlar People

Rev. P. J. Stackhouse, formerly of St. John, and gone of Campbellton, is Campbellton rooms for the Union Brotherhood, an organization somewhat similar to the Every Day Club here.

supporter regards the World's opinion in this matter as final, though one ventures to think that on most other matters the World's authority would not be accepted with the same readiness. It must be quite obvious that the World in this case occupies a somewhat peculiar position. It is not very friendly to Mr. Borden, to whom the vague Fairville challenge was addressed. Again, the World, having been sued for libel by Dr. Pugsley, is for the moment at least disposed to regard that gentleman as in all things serious minded.

But how can the World by taking thought of the morrow increase the stature of Dr. Pugsley? The World may say what it likes—having always due regard for the libel law—but it says so does not alter the important fact with relation to Dr. Pugsley's challenge. And the important facts are those; that Dr. Pugsley made no statements of a specific character in the sense that individuals referred to would have reasonable ground for action in the courts; that Dr. Pugsley confined himself to references to what he said he could prove if he were taken into court and compelled to furnish the evidence; and that though Dr. Pugsley subsequently handed over the responsibility to the Sun newspaper, that journal has modestly refrained from claiming the ghostly details with which Dr. Pugsley, according to his own statement, should be able to fortify it.

The reception accorded the Fairville speech even by the newspapers of his present political persuasion must have shown Dr. Pugsley how signal was his failure to place upon the public records any statement which cried for action, or which would make a serious impression upon a people too familiar with such tactics. There is but one way in which the Fairville speech can be raised to the dignity which the Toronto World and a few other interested journals would give it, and that is by supplementing its generalities by statements specific in character and so damaging to individuals that they would be compelled to protect their reputations. From the first there has been no thought that Dr. Pugsley would proceed along any such drastic line. The public will judge for itself why he does not.

Dr. Pugsley's physician says his patient will live to be a hundred. This assertion has led some to begin calculations tending to show that so great prolongation of the Rockefeller span would mean that the Oil King would possess all of the ready money in the world, and that he would be able to do as he pleased with it. The Stricken Mountaineer.

Once he was king of forest men. To him a snow-capped mountain range was but a line, a place of mark. A view-point on the crest of the range. He had no fear of dark, nor of wind's whirr. Now an up-crooked leg above the floor. Appals his feet. His withered arm. Shakes at the noise of a door. And every wind-wait does him harm. God, it is a pitious sight to see. This ranger of the hills confined. To the poor compass of his room. Like a chained eagle on a tree. Leaf-wind and gray and red deer. Only in dream he sees the bloom. Curd hills where the red deer roam. Only in dreams he guides the swift canoe. Or stalks the creamy cat with dog and polyp. And ed gun.

CAME TO DEATH BY MARITIME PRESBYTERY CAUSES UNKNOWN FINISHES BUSINESS

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 4.—The Presbyterian synod closed at noon today. A committee was named to act in connection with the committee of the Methodist church with regard to the matter of consolidation of funds. A communication from the diocesan synod was read requesting the appointment of a committee to act in connection with the diocesan committee with regard to religious instruction in the public schools. This was referred to the committee on public education. Dr. Jack then read the obituary notice, referring in feeling and appreciative terms to the late Dr. Isaac Murray, Rev. William Grant, Rev. John Cameron and Rev. William Maxwell. The report of centenary church and manse building fund was presented by Mr. Ross. Rev. Dr. Pollok, who was present, being first made acquainted with the synod's resolution following the action of the board of the Presbyterian College with regard to the chair of practical theology and church history. Dr. Pollok stated that he had great difficulty in answering the question as to his acceptance of the chair temporarily, the condition of his health and the varied subjects in connection with the chair, made it difficult to give a definite answer in the affirmative. There was another difficulty in the fact that this winter he could not have the effective co-operation of Mr. Carruthers, "Now lying in his own hospital," which without his effort would never have been established. He had never known so helpful a man as Mr. Carruthers, whether by day or night he was ever ready with his valuable aid. For these reasons he must come back to jurisdiction of the little word "if." However he was not going to step out of harness while he had any use of any use to the church or college. In consulting his medical adviser at the hospital, Dr. Pollok stated that he would accept the invitation.

Then bury him not here in city soil. Where the cars grind and factories spill. Their acid smoke on those who toll. Bear him away to some high hill. That overlooks the mighty stream. Where thousands miles of pathway 'mid the corn. Blazes his prowess. There let him dream. And wait God's resurrection morn. —Hannah Garrison, in the Century.

THE POWERS AND MAXINE

myself. Promise you won't bring this trouble upon me. "I promise," he answered. "Oh, my darling, what would I promise you, to atone for my brutal injustice to an angel like you? I would give you anything you want to-night! I mean to come. I was afraid of myself, and what I might do. But at last I realize that I am not in spite of all resistance. Do you forgive me?"

seem to think I am the only young woman in this house. Marianne, poor dear, is old enough, it's true. But I have a femme chambre and a maid, and both engaged to be married." (This was true. Ah, what a comfort to speak the truth to him!) "Does it occur to you that, at this very moment, a couple of lovers may be sitting hand in hand on the seat under the old yellow arbour? Can't you imagine that? I would like to see you and your breath lest you should hear, as you opened the gate and came up the path?"

if there had been ears to hear. But all was still in the drawing-room adjoining, and I dropped down to a flower bed some few feet below. Then I skirted round to the front of the house, walking stealthily on the soft grass, and would have made a noiseless dash for the gate had I not seen a stream of light flow out through the open front door across the lawn. I checked myself just in time to draw back without being seen by a woman and a tall man moving slowly down the path. They were Maxine and, no doubt, du Laurier. They spoke not a word, but walked with their heads bent, as if deeply absorbed in searching for something on the ground.
