CO-PARTNERSHIP SCHEME AT PORT SUNLIGHT, ENGLAND

Lord Leverhulme Has Scheme for Distribution of Dividends by Additions to Wages.

Lord Leverhulme recently announced a co-partnership scheme which was to be put into effect at the works of Messrs. Lever Bros., Limited, at Port Sunlight, England. The scheme consists in the distribution of dividends in the shape of additions to weekly wages. It appears that this plan was acceptable to all the labor unions except the National Association of Carpenters and Joiners, which threatened to expel any of its members who participated in the Port Sunlight co-partnership scheme. This action was resented by a large number of carpenters at Port Sunlight and they held a meeting at which the following resolution was unanimously passed:

"That this meeting of co-partners employed by Messrs. Lever Brothers, Limited, emphatically protests against the action of the National Association of Carpenters and Joiners in threatening to expel from the above association members participating in the Port Sunlight co-partnership scheme. Our co-partnership recognizes the just right of labor to receive a share of the profits which they have helped to make, and any attempt to prevent co-partners participating in the benefits accruing from the co-partnership scheme is diametrically opposed to the true principles of trades unionism. We also pledge ourselves to resist by all means in our power any interference with our liberty as a free people."

In his recent visit to Canada Lord Leverhulme announced the intention of making every employee a shareholder on a greater scale than before. He also stated that the inauguration of the six-hour working day in subsidiary plants in Canada was under consideration.

WAR INSPIRED WORKERS TOWARD GREATER THINGS

Employers Must Realize That Workers Will Demand Greater Share of Production.

The war has inspired workers in England to greater things and employers must realize that wage-carriers will demand a greater share of production, and that they will not "settle down" and accept pre-war conditions, writes a correspondent in Reynolds' newspaper. "Periods of social upheavals always follow great wars," he says. "Take the Napoleonic war. People in England at that time were virtually slaves. They could not leave their own parish to work elsewhere. Trade unions were illegal. Men were imprisoned who conspired against their masters. Only the people in the large towns were anything like free. After a period of war waste and destruction labor is at a premium. "It was the same after Waterloo when this country had its purse drained by Pitt's loans to the continental allies. Labor was excited, restless, discontented—awakening to the knowledge of its strength. In the years of restlessness which followed, labor cast off the shackles of obvious slavery and commenced the long struggle which, after nearly a century of battling, ended in victory for labor, with the securing of the vote and with the legal right to strike. "The present day unrest is caused by two factors—first, by the knowledge gained by the workers, who have traveled and have seen themselves in a new light; and, secondly, by the natural reaction which has followed the strain of the war. "Workers have been amazed at the profits made by the capitalists. The scales have fallen from the workers' eyes. Never again will they be content with the old conditions under which they existed, fluctuating closely to the margin of starvation. "At the present moment America is being held up as the bogey. America will snatch our trade! America will seize the world markets! What is more likely to happen is that the American workers will copy the methods of the workers of this country and cease their feverish struggle for the maximum individual output—a state of slavery under which life becomes well nigh insupportable, and which at most, can only continue for a brief number of years. "The second reason why workers won't settle down is because they have been 'rubbed up the wrong way' by those in power. "During the war the stimulus to win was the great incentive to work. Now that stimulus is gone, what are we going to put into its place? "The capitalists can provide that incentive by giving a greater share of reward to labor. That is a tangible reward; but nagging is only irritating."

EMPLOYMENT MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION HAS BEEN FORMED AT TORONTO

An Employment Managers' Association has been formed at Toronto. Its objects are "To promote and foster interest in employment and industrial relations problems in Toronto and elsewhere; to discuss problems of employees, including selection, training, management and working conditions; to encourage closer co-operation between industrial relations executives, and to work with municipal and governmental bodies to bring about closer co-operation concerning employment problems."

The following officers were elected: President, C. H. Pringle; First Vice-President, H. D. Warren; Second Vice-President, W. L. Clark; Secretary, S. B. Heath, Hydro-Electric Power Commission; Treasurer, F. W. Allen.

RURAL MAIL CARRIERS QUITTING AT RATE OF FIFTY A DAY

At a wage hearing before the United States senate postal committee President Brown of the National Rural Mail Carriers' Association said these carriers are resigning from the government service at the rate of 50 a day.

The rural carriers recently affiliated with the A.F. of L., much to the surprise of some senators, who seemed to think that the recent anti-trade union hysteria in the senate has affected government employees.

WORKERS WANT EDUCATION NEXT TO LIFE AND LIBERTY

No System of Education Which Free Man Can Accept Has Yet Been Established for Poor.

In a press bulletin issued by the federal board for vocational education attention is called to this declaration at a meeting of mechanics and working men in Philadelphia, in 1829:

"Next to life and liberty we consider education the greatest blessing bestowed upon mankind." The meeting then adopted this resolution:

"That the public funds should be appropriated (to a reasonable extent) to the purpose of education upon a regular system that shall insure the opportunity to every individual of obtaining a competent education before he shall arrive at the age of maturity."

At that time, says the federal board for vocational education, the only free schools were pauper schools. "No system of education which a free man can accept has yet been established for the poor," declared a meeting of Philadelphia working men in the same year 1829.

In tracing labor's fight for educational opportunities it is stated that in 1850 almost all northern states had established tax-supported, publicly controlled and directed, non-sectarian schools. The south, with its widely scattered agricultural population, had a different educational problem.

"And labor is not through," continues the board. "It is now eagerly awaiting the passage of the bill providing for the rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry. Both branches of congress have passed this legislation, but there are minor differences between the two bills which are awaiting adjustment in conference."

DECEMBER STRIKES AND LOCKOUTS SHOW DECREASE

Seven strikes, involving about 502 employees, were reported as having commenced during December. There were in existence at some time or other during the month 22 strikes, involving about 2,828 workpeople. The total time lost on account of industrial disputes was estimated at 48,960 working days, as compared with 84,073 in the previous month and 64,079 in December, 1918. The time loss occasioned by the seven strikes which began in December was 9,246 working days, while a loss of 41,314 is charged to the 15 strikes that commenced prior to December. Termination was reported in the case of four disputes which commenced prior to December. Five of the disputes commencing during December terminated during the month, leaving the following 13 strikes, affecting approximately 1,695 workpeople, on record December 31: lumber workers at Hyle, Alta.; miners at Kimberley and South Mint; pottery workers, St. Johns; moulders, Brantford; moulders and coremakers, Sherbrooke; moulders and patternmakers, Toronto; shipbuilders, Sorel; garment workers and military workers at Montreal; millinery workers, Marieville; glass workers, Thorold; and musicians at St. John.

DECISION OF INTEREST TO LABOR RENDERED

Right of Workman To Sue For Injuries Sustained While Employed on Navigable Waters.

A decision of much interest to Labor was that rendered by Judge Wolverton of the United States court for the district of Oregon, last week, when the right of a workman to sue in the United States court for injuries sustained while employed on navigable waters was upheld in the case of H. F. Rohde against the Grant Smith-Porter Co.

Rohde, a member of Carpenters Union No. 236, was injured last April when he fell on a hull which had been launched by the defendant. Rohde suffered a broken back and since that time has been helpless. He elected to take his case to the federal courts to collect from his employers rather than to accept the settlement of the state industrial accident commission. The employers contested the claim on the ground that they were under the state compensation law and were not otherwise liable. The court decision was made on the right of one injured on navigable waters to refuse to accept the state aid and to force collection through the federal courts. The decision holds that the claimant may accept the state compensation, but is not compelled to do so.

The decision is said to set a precedent as state compensation is of comparatively recent origin. It is understood that the attorneys for the ship building company will appeal to higher courts. If the case is taken to the United States supreme court it will probably be several years before the matter is finally decided.

LAW FOR INCREASE IN ACCIDENT BENEFITS IS MADE RETROACTIVE

The Oregon industrial accident commission has put into operation the new law which provides for an increase of 30 per cent in payments to injured workers entitled to benefits under the workmen's compensation law. The new act will cover all cases of disability coming under the jurisdiction of the accident commission after December 1 of last year.

There are about 2,000 back claims to be adjusted as a result of the enactment of the new law.

REEVES-GIBBONS BOXING BOUT AT EMPIRE THEATRE

Bout on February 19 Promises To Be Big Affair; Seats Selling Rapidly.

The Reeves-Gibbons boxing bout to be held at the Empire theatre, Thursday, February 19th, promises to be as big an affair of its kind as has yet taken place in the city. Tuesday evening the plan of the theatre was opened to the public at six o'clock and in five hours there was only one section of ringside seats left. By the end of the week it is doubtful if there will be a seat left in the house.

Gibbons is an aspirant for the world's championship and is on the lookout for a bout with Georges Carpentier, the European heavyweight champion, who is Dempsey's next antagonist, hoping by defeating him that he will get first chance at Dempsey. Reeves is working hard and while probably not so popular as Gibbons, is a hard scrapper, and is noted for taking on men far over him in weight and experience and defeating them one after another. He may have a surprise for his opponent in this bout.

BIG FOUR TEAMS TIED FOR FIRST PLACE IN LEAGUE

Eskimos and Wanderers Will Decide Championship In Two Game Series.

The Eskimos and the Wanderers are now tied for first place in the Big Four Hockey League, with seven wins and four losses, and one more game to play. The last game of the series will be played on Friday evening with all teams at home.

The Hustlers have not given up the deal yet and will endeavor to get a win out of the Eskimos in the last game. Should they succeed it will not affect the playoff as the rules state that the first and second shall play off for the championship. This would still mean that the Eskimos and Wanderers will have to play two games to decide the championship, one at Edmonton and one at Calgary, goals to count.

The game Monday night between the Eskimos and Wanderers at Edmonton resulted in a win for the Eskimos to the tune of 7 to 2, while the Calgary game resulted in a 3 to 1 victory for the C.C.'s.

Vic Ockenden took three firsts and one second and lost the Hudsons Bay challenge by the length of his opponents nose.

NATIONAL LEAGUE SCHEDULE FOR 1920 ADOPTED

Schedule for 168 Games Opens April 14 and Closes October 3; New Rules Adopted.

The National League Baseball schedule has been adopted and the season will open April 14 and close October 3. The schedule calls for 168 games for the 1920 season, and the waiver price was raised from $1,500 to $2,500. The president of the league was given the power to name the waiver price on a free agent, but the price will not be over $1,500.

The new rules agreed upon at a meeting of joint rules committees of the American and National leagues were adopted. The club owners decided to limit the number of players on each team to 25 men between May 15 and August 31, but after that date and until the end of the season, each club will be allowed to carry 35 men on the roll.

The opening games will be played as follows: Boston at New York; Philadelphia at Brooklyn; Pittsburg at St. Louis and Chicago at Cincinnati.

MANAGER GRIFFITH TO FIGHT FOR OUTFIELDER SEE

Wants Slugger That Champion Reds Paid $10,000 For; Is Natural Hitter

When Garry Herrmann, boss of the Cincinnati Reds, recently asked for waivers on five of his athletes and named Charley See as one of them, he got a quick response from Manager Clark Griffith of the Washington American league club, who refused to waive on the former star slugger of the International league, although he was passed by all the other clubs. This ordinarily would have assured See becoming the property of the Washington club, but Herrmann decided he had acted rashly in agreeing to let go a player who had cost him $10,000 for one-quarter of that sum. He now wants to retain him and has notified Griffith to this effect. Under the rules waivers cannot be withdrawn, once they are asked, so Herrmann is going to have a battle on his hands to keep title to the youngster.

See created a sensation in the International league last season. Being picked up by the Rochester club from the sandlots in Brooklyn after the season was well under way, the Flatbush phenom rapidly forged to the front by reason of his ability to slug and attracted the attention of Pat Moran, who needed a gardener to replace the aged and ailing Sherry Magee, and paid a record price for a practically untried juvenile. Moran corralled Pat Duncan about the same time as a precautionary measure to bolster up his club for its drive pennantward and, finding the latter the better fielder of the two, kept him in the lineup and assigned See to a bench-warming role.

See's feat of pounding out 114 hits in 78 games with Rochester, to lead the league with an average of .385, indicates he is possessed of natural hitting ability and that is what Griff is looking for. The Brooklyn boy is said to possess many rough edges as a fly-chaser but he is only about twenty-four years old and if he can maintain a high hitting pace his shortcomings as a fielder can be ironed out with practice.

CAPITALISM CAUSE OF UNIONISM.

Trade Unionism is an inevitable product of the system of capitalism. Prior to the industrial revolution the distinction between the employer and workman in industry was very slight. The employer worked, usually in his own home, with his journeymen and apprentices and the latter could look forward to the day when they could themselves be master workmen and employ other journeymen and apprentices who would work with them in their homes. So that there was very little distinction between employer and employed under the hand or domestic system of manufacture. The inventions of the eighteenth century however, changed industry to such an extent that the term "Industrial Revolution," as applied to the period between 1760 and 1800, is by no means an exaggeration. It was obvious that workmen could not acquire the mammoth new machines that were brought into being, and so was ushered in the capitalistic system as we have it today.

The same conditions that created capitalism prepared the way for trade unionism. The introduction of the factory system of manufacture threw large bodies of workmen together in one establishment. They had common interests as to wages, hours and working conditions and the distinction between them and their employers was intensified to the greatest possible degree. The workpeople's common interests being in many ways opposed to those of their masters, the advantages of combination could hardly escape their recognition. While the trade union movement has to a great extent ameliorated the conditions under which organized Labor was born yet the general condition of industry is identical with that which existed in the introduction of the factory system. The distinction between employer and employed is substantially the same in large industries as it was a century ago. Only by organization have the workers been able to ameliorate the disgraceful living and working conditions that then existed, and only by organization will they retain what has been gained, or succeed further in increasing their freedom and happiness. Organization of workpeople was made necessary by the introduction of capitalism, and while the system of capitalism continues to exist the necessity for trade unions is equally apparent.

ABOUT INDIVIDUALISM.

"The old frugal virtue of individualism is what the world needs today; the individualism that won the war." So Dr. Michael Clarke is reported to have stated in the course of his address on Monday night. But did individualism win the war? Individualism as the Free Press understands it means that every man should remain and be permitted to remain free unrestricted, undirected, unassisted, so that he may be in a position at any time to direct his labor, ability, capital, enterprise, in any direction that may seem to him most desirable. Surely no such idea was permitted to govern the actions of the soldier, or a great many of those who were not soldiers, especially in the countries close to the war zone. They were not allowed to make use of their labor, ability and enterprise in an undirected, unrestricted manner, but each individual was directed to govern his or her activities in accordance with the common well-being of the allied cause. Collectivism was undoubtedly the policy that won the war. The doctrines of Laissez-Faire and individualism have been tried and have miserably failed. True, while complete individualism the universal freedom of competition, was the dominant idea in Britain around the beginning of the nineteenth century, there was no doubt of England's wealth and progress. She stood before the world as the most successful and prominent nation of her time in all material respects. But an examination of her internal condition at that time reveals a grossly unsatisfactory condition. One has only to read the social and industrial history of England covering that period to realize what was the effect of the application of the Laissez-Faire and individualism theories. The employment of women and tiny children in twelve and fourteen hour shifts, the disgraceful social conditions, the filth and sordidness of the dirty factory towns, comprise the most revolting picture possible to conceive from England's history. Many of the horrible conditions that existed in 1800 have been ameliorated by legislation. Such legislation, or other similar laws, are in some quarters called paternalistic and are referred to as repulsive to "free and independent" peoples. As we pointed out before, the Laissez-Faire or let-alone theory increased the material wealth of the rich and powerful by blasting the moral, spiritual and physical natures of the poor and weak. Individualism if given the same chance again would very likely bring about a similar condition.

MUST BE ORGANIZATION.

A large employer writing in one of the leading magazines, makes the statement that he does not believe in Trade Unions or organizations of employees. He claims that the separate organization of Capital and Labor is just as unreasonable as would be the organization of all the wives of the country in opposition to a rival organization of husbands. We cannot, however, see the analogy. In the first place, Capital is already organized without more organization through employers' associations. A single corporation such as that represented by the employer mentioned, is an organization of Capital. And organized Capital creates the necessity for organized Labor under prevailing conditions. In the second place the analogy referred to falls down for the reason that husband and wife are partners. Each have a voice in the control of their joint affairs. Capital and Labor are not similarly situated in the true sense of the word, as only in very isolated cases has Labor in the least degree any control or voice in the management of industry.

When Labor is permitted to assume its proper position in the industrial world, when the same equality exists between Capital and Labor as exists between husband and wife then, and then only, may their relative positions be quoted as analogous. Even then, however we cannot see any other method whereby Labor will be in a position to assume its responsibilities, except through independent organization. Capital has been, is, and will continue to be organized in companies and corporations. By concentration Capital will express its desires and carry out its program. Only by organization will Labor be enabled to do likewise.

LIFE AND LABOR THE GREATER INVESTMENT

Progressive Labor is pushing on toward the participation of the workers in the control of industry. It is a most reasonable demand the justice of which cannot be effectively questioned. The investment of Labor in industry is an investment of skill and life; the investment of capital is an investment of substance and dollars. The one is a material the other a human investment. The right of Labor to a voice in the conduct of industry is well put by W. L. MacKenzie King in his book, "Industry and Humanity." The quotation, which follows, is one of the bright spots in a work that contains far too many meaningless and uninteresting platitudes.

"The capital investor, the individual who in industry loans and risks his capital, or a part of it, receives for the use of his capital a return in the form of interest. But he receives something more: he becomes, as an investor, entitled to a voice in the control of the industry in which his investment is made. The life or labor investor, the worker who in industry loans and risks his life, or gives that part of it described as "labor," receives for his labor, which is the use of his life and skill for the time in which labor is given, a return in the form of wages. He lacks, however, the additional right, which Capital receives, of a share in the government of industry. If Capital obtains this right in addition to the financial reward for the use of Capital for the time for which it is invested, is Labor not in justice equally entitled, in addition to its monetary reward, to a voice in the control of industry, in which for the time being its life and skill are "invested"? As a life or labor investor, is the worker's interest in industry not akin to the investor of capital? If investment in industry has any meaning at all, it is surely one equally shared by the man who gives his labor and the man who gives his capital. For the preferential treatment capital has thus far received there is no defense possible on grounds of democratic theory or fundamental justice."

THIS IS LABOR'S
CRUCIAL YEAR, SAYS
CHAIRMAN POWERS

Co-operation - Membership of Labor Party Throughout Year Asked For.

"This is Labor's crucial year" said Chairman Daniel Powers in opening the Dominion Labor Party meeting on Tuesday evening. Mr. Powers stated that in accepting the position of chairman he did so with the intention of putting his best into the work. "We are passing through serious times," said the speaker, "times that should stir men's very souls." Mr. Powers asked for the co-operation of the membership throughout the year and pointed out that the Labor Party was an organization in which all sections of organized Labor could work together for a common purpose.

It was decided to confer with the Farmers' organizations in the three Edmonton constituencies with regard to the allocation of seats to be contested by the two parties. This action was taken in reply to a request from the Farmers for co-operation. The executive was instructed to get in touch with the Farmer's executives. The meeting accepted a recommendation of the executive providing for the election of two members on the executive from the South Edmonton constituency as soon as a sufficient number of members were secured from that section of the city.

A communication from Prof. Osborne of the National Conference on Education, acknowledged receipt of the resolutions drawn up by the Party, and commented favorably on them.

Messrs. Chase, Treble, Coulson, Barber, Shaw and Williams were accepted as members of the Party.

Typographical Union No. 101, at Washington, D.C. has secured those wage increases for its newspaper members: Night work advanced from $42 a week to $47.88; day work from $39 to $43.68. The seven hour day prevails on both shifts.
