An Officer Leaps From a Fast Moving Train on the Back of a Fugitive Prisoner.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 13.-Officer Philip Gorr of Port Jervis, started yesterday moraing for Albany Penitentiary with Joseph Flaherty, a prisoner. When near Navesink bridge Flaherty managed to release himself and fled to the door of the car, closely followed by the officer.

Although the train was running at the rate of twenty miles an hour, the prisoner climbed down the steps of the car and jumped while a train was passing on the west bound track. The officer jumped also and landed on Flaherty's back. Both escaped injury.

Meanwhile the passenger train had been stopped and Officer Gorr reboarded it with his prisoner and strapped him to a seat.

Watchman Gillett, at Talbot street, closed his gates and waved his lamp as a warning to some persons who were coming south on the west side of the street. Among the number was a woman who continued at an unbroken pace, with her head bent for-ward. A shout from the watchman failed to make her heed her danger, and two men who were awaiting the come into Winnipeg. Gladstone, Shoal passing of the train reached out in men succeeded in catching her by the shoulder, but with a sharp turn the woman broke the hold and walked on anything further could be done to save her. She was struck by the cylinder of the engine, and fell under the wheels. The body was dragged about 30 feet into the center of the crossing, and when the train passed over it a horrible spectacle presented itself to the little knot of people who were standing by. The face and head were terribly battered; the trunk of the body was mangled, while the legs were cut and bruised. Pieces of flesh were scattered along the track for a considerable distance. While some shrank at the sight, others volunteered any assistance they could possibly give. Watchman Gillett immediately notified the authorities at the depot, and the remains were gathered up and removed to the baggage-room. There they were identified as those of Mrs. Graves. Dr. Flock, coroner, was notified, and upon inquiry decided to hold an inquest. He learned that Mrs. Graves had left her home about 6 o'clock to go up town for some liquor. A broken bottle was found on track beside the remains. Mrs. Graves was about 45 years of age, and very hard of hearing. She had been a resident of the city for many years, and had made the acquaintance of the police, having been arrested about a month ago in a Horton street house in company with several other women. Her husband has been sick for some weeks, and is now being cared for in the City Hospital. She also leaves three children—two girls and a boy—the eldest a girl of 14 years, and the youngest a boy of about 7. The family are in destitute circumstances.

Threatening Weather Does Not Affect the Attendance.

Exhibits in Almost Every Department Up to the Mark-Officers, Directors

Notwithstanding the threatening weather the fair at Delaware yesterday was a great success. This fair is one of the oldest in Western Ontario, having been in existence for over 40 years. The country surround. ing Delaware village is picturesque and very fertile, and this fact has materially assisted in making this fair one of the best of the township shows. Yesterday's show was no exception, and, if anything, was better than heretofore. The only class below the standard was the fruit. The fine showing of sheep more than made up for the small exhibit in that line. In fact, Prof. Curtis, of the Ames (Ohio) Experimental Station, says that the sheep were the best he ever saw. The secretary and treasurer, Mr. Charles J. Fox (who has filled this office for the past eighteen or nineteen years), is an energetic and obliging gentleman, and it would be hard to find another to fill the office so admirably as he does. It has been suggested by some to charge an admission to the grounds, but this idea has been tabooed by the directora, who want to make fair day a public holiday for everyone in the township, and fear if an admission fee were charged that it might be the cause of keeping many away. The officers and directors to whom the success of the show is due are: President, S. Sutherland; first vice-president, W. S. Weld; second vice-president, Jas. Bradt; secretary and treasurer, Chas. A Live Western Ontario Municipality== Rise and Progress of An Enterprising Community.

The Product of a Boom, It Had a Mission, and Has Held Its Own-Some Odd Features in Its History-Live Men of Business, Splendid Educational Facilities, Unique Fire Protection and General Characteristics.

London, where but yesterday, as it were, there was nothing but swamp and the Longwoods, is a rapidly growing town which is steadily surging ahead, and which may confidently be expected before many years have lapsed to assume the dignity as well as the airs of a baby city. Glencoe, already the most important and busiest railroad point between London and Windsor on the G. T. R. main line west has never "boomed." But what is of more importance, it has never ceased to grow, and has yet to experience an exodus so peculiar to some Western Ontario towns. Instead of losing inhabitants to the enrichment of neighboring towns, Glencoe has at times gained greatly at the expense of its neighbors-notably Wardsville. The building of the Air Line connection, nearly a quarter of a century ago, was primarily the cause of the emigration, and shortly afterwards several disasterous fires spurred many of the reneighbors. Then Wardsville was well-

NO ANCIENT HISTORY.

Glencoe has very little ancient history to boast of, its incorporation only dating from the year 1873. Its comparatively recent birth and growth have, however, compensating advantages, and not the least of these is the fact that the prominent business men and leading citizens on whose shoulders devolve the making or breaking of a town are men of modern and up-to-date ideas and methods, and men whose brains are not beclouded with fogy traditions and idiosyncracies. They have been, as it were, a product of the times, and starting even they have easily managed to keep abreast of the times, and not fall behind as many older towns have done. Glencoe is a hustling, bustling town of about 1,200 inhabitants, and typical of Western Ontario in all respects. Its com-modious hotels, imposing churches and private residences, its flour, planing, saw and woollen mills, its iron foundry marble works, carriage factories, and upon the main street, were well and other smaller manufacturing concerns truly laid with much ceremony, speech Farlane, druggist. For years past the give it a prosperous appearance at making and feasting. It was a bright little band of enthusiasts have been this case do not prove desceptive. The brightness and prosperity still mark condition of the town proper verifies the progress of the church's history. the impression, and in fact augments tastily and the goods arranged as seductively as in the leading stores of any large city. And the appearance of the shops of a town carry great weight for good or bad effect on the minds of visitors! Again the residential portion of the town has a cozy, comfortable appearance which is taking in the extreme. There is an entire absence of the cramped condition of affairs peculiar to large places; almost every resident has a breathing space in front or in rear of his house, as well as a cozy garden, and in a surprisingly large number of cases, charming flower beds. While every man may not have the allegorical "three acres and a cow," it is an isolated case indeed when he cannot have a pretty lawn and quite often a tennis court.

IMPOSING BUILDINGS. The Grand Trunk Railway divides Glencoe into its main residential and chief business parts. On Main street, north of the track, are situated the hotels and the business community. Immediately south of the line the architecturally beautiful outlines of three large churches—the Presbyterian, the Methodist and the Episcopalian—rise heavenward. The Methodist and Anglican churches are situated side by side, while the somewhat larger house of worship used by the Presbyterians is just across the street, adjoining the public school. They are distant from one another only the width of the intervening thoroughfare, and on a summer's evening the worshippers in one church are perfectly cognizant of what progresses in the next. Like Glencoe itself the church buildings are The Presbyterian Church was built in 1889, the Methodist structure in 1892, and the Anglican edifice in 1893. The material used in each case was white brick, with limestone trimmings, and the effect is both harmonizing and The high school, situated in the southwesterly portion of the town, is also constructed with white brick and is a commanding-looking structure. Brick forms the material used throughout by the merchants, and the rickety wooden shop is the exception rather than the rule in Glencoe.

RAILWAY CONNECTIONS. In 1860 the present town site was a dismal swamp and a "howling wilderness," penetrated only by the slowwood-burning locomotives of the old Great Western system. About this year something induced A. P. Mc-Donald and the late A. M. Ross to make a plan of the town, and upon this plan Glencoe was reared. main street then divided the township of Mosa on one side and the township of Ekfrid on the other. The town was incorporated in 1874, and an election held, but a full year elapsed before councilors assumed office and settled down to the transaction of business. Although now a struggling village, Glencoe was yet pretty much of a swamp, and various citizens remember that about this time wagon wheels treed to sink to the hub on the main (treasurer), W. A. Currie (secretary). used to sink to the hub on the main street. Almost the first business trans-acted by the council was the ordering of the building of 50,000 feet of plank sidewalks and the spreading of several hundred loads of gravel. In 1870 the Air Line was built through to Glencoe, and people flocked to the town expecting new line to make business prosnects brighter, and in this they were not mistaken. A few years ago the air line was continued through to Kingscourt and connections established with the Sarnia branch. Thus was another feeder added to the prosperity of the town. Then the C. P. R. co-quetted somewhat with the place, and shyly settled down a couple of miles to the north, realizing no doubt that Hencoe was bound to expand, and building the road in the place it did as a hint to develop in that direction.

Busses from the hotels meet every train, and the service is thus made as perfect as if the line ran through the center of the town.

Situated about 30 miles southwest of easy to account for the appelation The massacre which oc-"Glencoe." curred at the original Glencoe did not have any deterring influence upon the christening, nor have any evil effects since ensued. Glencoe, as stated already, had no ancient history, and the inhabitants were too matter-of-fact and enterprising to borrow ancient feuds. In the latter part of 1860 the Presbytery of London sent a catechist to Ekfrid. His success was so marked that in 1862 a church was erected a quarter of a mile from Glencoe, on a lot presented by D. Graham. There came a time when residents of Glen-coe desired a Presbyterian Church of their own, and the Burns Church was built just south of the G. T. R. track. In 1879 Rev. Hugh Cameron occupied the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church and Rev. W. R. Sutherland occupied the pulpit of the church in town. The Presbytery desired to unite the congregations, and to this end both pastors resigned about the year 1884. For a while services were conducted in one church in the morning and in the other in the evening by Rev. John Robbins, now of Truro, N. S. Finally in July, 1886, the Burns Church burnt down, maining inhabitants to follow their and both congregations were obliged to worship in St. Andrew's. Rev. Dugald Currie was called shortly after nigh deserted and Glencoe became a magnificent church upon the site of the Burns Church, and there it stands today a monument to a united and prosperous congregation. A couple of years ago Mr. Currie received a call to Perth, near Ottawa, which he accepted. Rev. R. W. Ross succeeded him, and under his pastoral care the church's spiritual and financial condition continues steadily to improve.

METHODIST CHURCH. There was a Methodist Episcopal class at Glencoe in 1856. A church of the Methodist Church of Canada was built on the east side in 1879, but in 1884 both churches became united. In 1885, however, difficulties grew out of the union, and the church again became divided. Finally, in the latter part of the eighties, the congregations again came together. The congregation prospered until the frame church became much too small for comfort, and in 1892 the corner-stones of the splendid pile of masonry, which now upholds the honor of Methodism the progress of the church's history.
The store windows are dressed as the progress of the church's history.
For the last couple of years the church has been presided over by Rev. J. Brown, who came to Glencoe from West Lorne.

A curious incident in connection with Mr. Brown's life is worthy of mention. Mr. Brown came from Brownsville. He was married to a Miss Brown by a Rev. Mr. Brown, and of course it is unnecessary to add that the bride also wore brown.

THE ANGLICAN CHURCH. The English Church is older than the village of Glencoe itself. The date of Its inception was 1862, so that both the Presbyterian and Anglican churches were launched into existence during the same year. Mr. Wright, of Wardsville, presided. In May, 1888, Rev. W. J. Taylor, who for nine years was rector of St. James', preached his farewell sermon. Rev. Wm. Lowe succeeded him in charge of Glencoe, Newbury and Wardsville. Since assuming charge the church has prospered wonderfully, and in 1893 a compact and nicely proportioned brick church was erected. A CHARMING PLACE. Glencoe is a splendid place to live in. Genial hospitality is characteristic of the inhabitants, and while business is generally brisk a stranger would go a long way before he would find a merchant who would be unwilling to accord him courteous treatment. Every person in town is accessible and approachable—the bank manager as well hands in one week over the counters of Dobie & Co.'s bank, among cattle men. During the season regular shipments of cattle are made to England. Glencoe is also the center of a sportsman's paradise, and the season is just approaching when almost every train brings to town Nimrods and their dogs, Game is plentiful.

The town and its vicinity have produced such men as Robert Barr (Luke Sharp",) and Peter McArthur, editor of New York. One of Glencoe's sons only lately raised a furore among the professors of McGill College by stating that it was possible for in-telligent persons to doubt certain por-tions of the Scripture. Glencoites await the outcome with a great deal of curlo-

WATER SERVICE. Glencoe has no waterworks, but surprisingly good well water has, up to the present time, proved adequate to supply the wants of the inhabitants. Several citizens own artesian wells. One on Mr. George Dobie's property is probably the finest in town. By the aid of a windmill (which, by the way, are a common sight in Glencoe) the water is pumped into the elevated tank capable of holding 400 barrels. A hydrant has been put in by Mr.
Doble in front of his bank, and by attaching the fire hose sufficient pres-SCOTCH SETTLERS.

In 1888 a town well was bored to a depth of 1,500 feet. A flow of 300 gallons an hour was struck, but owing to a sulphurous deposit the water was of an inky-black color and unfit for use. A deposit of salt rock was bored through, indicating the presence of salt in paying quantities in the village.

The water for fire purposes is collected in large elevated tanks situated at convenient intervals. A system of pipes lead the surface water to these tanks into which it is forced by the law of

The system has a two-fold advantage -that of protection against fire, while at the same time it serves as a drainage system for the town. This latter is a very necessary consideration in a place built originally on a swamp.
FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Giant Company No. 1 dates from 1881. Some changes were made in the same year when the records of United Company No. 1 begin. The brigade was equipped with a first-class hand engine and sufficient hose to make it efficient. Spasmodic efforts have been made to keep up the standard of efficiency. The efforts were usually very successful immediately after a fire, but as the novelty and excitement wore off the brigade became tired of attending practice alarms to put out bonfires, and the discipline gradually relapsed. In 1885 the brigade was reorganized, and again placed in a state of effici-ency. There have been no serious fires lately, and the organization is consequently somewhat demoralized. In the words of a leading citizen: "Every-body runs when the bell rings". Mr. John Y. Foster is the chief at the pres-

A FIRE STRIKE. Every town the size of Glencoe has experienced critical situations at one period or another in its history. One very ludicrous incident is chronicled by the town historian under the title of "Glencoe's fire strike." Once upon a time, not so very many years ago, a cottage was burning. It was situated south of the track, and when the fire brigade arrived it was pretty nearly "all day" with the cottage. There was a house next door which stood in imminent risk of burning also. The chief of the brigade, who was also the leading branchman, thought it best this from Three Rivers, Quebec. He remained seven years, during which term the united congregation built a crowd remonstrated and so did the men who were working the hand engine. "Play on the other house," they shouted. "It's going to burn." Still the branchman played on the fire. "We won't pump if you don't play on the next house," shouted the leader of the engine gang. But the chief took no heed of the warning until the water ceased to flow. Then he adopted strategy. He pointed the nozzle towards the house adjoining the fire as if preparing to accede to the clamors of the crowd and, when the stream got nicely up again he calmly whisked it round and played on the house which was fast burning itself out. Several times he repeated the operation with success, but finally the men at the engine got "onto" his game and went on The fire burnt itself out, and strike. luckily did not communicate to the house next door.

SKATING RINK PROPOSED. Glencoe is the home of some very enthusiastic lovers of the besom and stane. One of the chief promoters of the roarin' game was Mr. G. C. Mccontent to curl on a pond in the open termined to build a rink which will serve the double purpose of a means of recreation for the young people and a sheltered place to curl in. sand dollars in stock has been subscribed and a building committee appointed to go ahead and make the necessary arrangements. The commit-tee consists of Mr. H. D. Mitchell, manager of the Traders' Bank (chairman), S. J. McCreery, R. Coad, James Rob-ertson, J. N. Tait, R. Clanahan and C. McFarlane (secretary). This committee also constitutes the board of management. The new rink will probably be ready by Christmas.

GLENCOE'S SCHOOLS. Glencoe's public school is situated just south of the Presbyterian Church. It is a large brick affair surrounded by ample playgrounds. The oldest school record is dated Jan. 12, 1876, when school sections No. 6, Mosa, and No. 9, Ekfrid, and the Glencoe village school were united. At present the staff consists of W. C. Allin (principal), Miss L. Miss Bessie Walker and Sutherland, Miss Myrtle Foster. Glencoe's public school has a record of which any similar institution might be proud. Three trains bring in their quota of high school pupils every morning and take them out again in the evening. They come from the main line, east and west, and a large number come down the Air Line. The establishment of a high school was first considered at a meeting of citizens in 1887, after it had been repeatedly advocated by the Transcript and a number of leadas the shoemaker. BANKING INSTITUTIONS. Traders' Bank has a firmly established branch office in Glencoe. Their handsome brick offices were built in 1885, when Mr. George Dobie was manager. Later when he went into business on his own account Mr. Homer D. Mitchell succeeded to the position. Mr. Mitchell has made himself popular, and by attention to business and a willingness to accommodate customers of the bank he has succeeded in building up a lucrative busi-

Mr. George Dobie, manager of Dobie & Co.'s bank, a neatly equipped brick institution opposite the McAlpine House, was a member of the original council of 1875. Mr. Dobie was born about four miles from Glencoe, and for the past 30 years has been largely identified with the affairs of the town. For years he was one of the prominent business men in the Glencoe mercantile world, and for four years he successfully managed the Glencoe branch of Traders' Bank. The same welldirected energies have been brought to bear in his own banking institution during the last four years, and today the bank, as well as its manager, has the confidence and esteem of all. Mr Dobie was this year elected chairman of the high school board. Harrison & Rathburn have been in the banking business since 1883. Mr. G. M. Harrison has been village clerk since 1875. Mr. Rathburn, who is a Presbyterian elder, and a Knight Templar, first suggested the establishment of a mechanics' institute. The suggestion was well taken and acted upon, and today Glencoe has an institute with a library containing 1,400 or more vol-umes. Until last year Mr. Rathburn remained in the presidential chair, when he retired. He was several times reeve and councilor, and was mainly instrumental in having a high school established at Glencoe.

Mr. Harrison is a member of the Anglican Church, a Mason, and secretary of the A. O. U. W. The life of Messrs. Harrison and Rathburn should be written under the caption of success of two Middlesex boys in Middlesex.'

GLENCOE'S FAIR.

Just twenty years ago the agricultural associations of Mosa and Ekfrid hrew in their lot together, and from that time on have held a united show that each year grows larger and be-comes more successful. The association now owns a beautiful site and large and commanding fair buildings situated just north of the town.

Following are the officers: President, A. P. McDonald, Mel-bourne; vice-president, Mark Walker, Glencoe; secretary-treasurer, J. S. Walker, Glencoe. Directors-John McCallum, J. W. Watterworth and A. J. Taylor, Glen-

HOTELS. Glencoe is well supplied as far as hotel accommodation is concerned. The three hotels are the McKellar House, McAlpine's Hotel, and American House. The McAlpine House is situated just north of the railway track, on the west side of Main street. Its commodious building and barns occipy a large tract of ground. The hotel itself is attractive, and its environs home-like and comfortable. P. J. McAlpine, who was born within six miles of Glencoe, and has managed the hotel successfully for the past fourteen years, is the most genial of hosts, and is well liked and popular in the town. He is ably seconded in his business by

The American House, a cosy and cheerful hostelry, is situated on the opposite corner to the McAlpine House, It is now conducted by Mr. Alex. Mc-Rae, who assumed control of the hotel on the sudden death of his father, about two years ago. The American House has been under one management longer than any other hotel in town. It was founded by Donald Mc-Rae, a native of Ross-shire, Scotland, 25 years ago. Mr. McRae (deceased) settled in Quebec, but 44 years ago he removed to Strathburn. He came to Glencoe when the G. W. R. was built through, and at the time of his death was one of the oldest and most respected inhabitants in the town.

The McKellar House, conducted by Randolph McKellar, is an imposing three-story brick. It has been under the present management for thirteen or more years. About three years ago the original McKellar House, ern block was built by Mr. Mc-Kellar upon the site of the old building shortly afterwards. The house enjoys a large patronage, and is well managed and efficiently conducted.

THE TRANSCRIPT. Some time ago the Transcript moved into a large brick building in the northern end of the town. The building comprises two stories, and, what is remarkable in a printing office, the windows are adorned and ornamented with a profusion of flowers and foliage. The Transcript is in its 24th year, and is now edited by Mr. A. Sutherland, who succeeded his father, Mr. W. Sutherland. Mr. W. Sutherland originally founded the London Free Press. He sold out to the Blackburns, and then attempted to start a rival daily. It lived only three weeks, and then Mr. Sutherland retired to the vicinity of Glencoe to enjoy the free and independent life of a farmer. The paper, which was at that time issued in Glencoe was in difficulties, and Mr. Sutherland, after some years of quiet upon the farm, assumed the management of it. This continued for a year, when he bought it out, ultimately turning it over to his boys. It is neutral in politics, and delights to give a sly thrust at either of the parties. It is a live local paper, and covers the ground so well that opposition has not yet made an appearance. GLENCOE'S LAWYERS. The firm of Stuarts, Moss & Ross is well known both in London and Glencoe. At the latter place they HEALING THE SICK. Glencoe has three resident doctors, and although the town is looked upon as more than ordinarily healthy, all three manage to thrive. Dr. Duncan MacIntyre's connection with Glencoe commenced in 1867. He is the oldest resident physician. He was followed three years later by Dr. W. G. Lumley. Dr. Lumley originally was post-master, and conducted a drug store and telegraph office. He has always been largely identified with the public affairs of the town, and has held almost every honor in the gift of the people. At present he is a high school trustee and medical health officer. He was the first president of the Mechanics' Institute, and has time and again been elected master of the local Masonic Lodge. The doctor is also an Independent Forester.

Dr. Walker came to Glencoe in 1884 from Shedden, Elgin county, where he had practiced after he graduated from Trinfty Medical College in 1881. J. A. Younge & Co. also conduct a general store of large dimensions, with drygoods the principal line. The firm also carries a complete line of groceries, boots and shoes, jewelry, and millinery, with a tailoring department upstairs. Mr. Younge is one of the most cordial of men. He was born in County Down, Ireland, and came to Canada in 1857. The next year, at the age of 19, he commenced business in Wardsville, where he remained until 1871. Then he went to Hamilton, where he remained for seven years, when his health gave out. MAKERS OF HARNESS. Mr. H. C. Mr. Dixon was born in Toronto.

Mr. R. Stevenson, a harness maker of twenty years' experience, came from Mount Brydges ten years ago, and has since done well. Mr. Stevenson (like his next door neighbor, Mr. Younge) is a native of County Down, Ireland. He is a Methodist and an Oddfellow.

TONSORIAL ARTISTS. Johnny Foster, at present chairman of the Board of Health and chief of the fire department, was born Herkimer county, New York. He went to Glencoe from Detroit twenty years ago, and has been twice elected to the Town Council. Mr. Foster is a Forester, an Oddfellow and a Mason.

About fifteen months ago the mill, which Mr. Vause had conducted for twelve or thirteen years, was burned, together with a splendid equipment of machinery. Too Much Medicine

The People Are Too Apt to Imagine Themselves Slaves to Disease.

It Is a Mistake to Pour Down Medicine for the Simple Ills of Life.

Common complaints are often the most dangerous. This is so because they are generally disregarded and ultimately become chronic, or lead to more serious complications. Take, for example, constipation of the bowels. There is no more general a complaint known to man, and yet it is lightly thought of, and passed over. The fact remains that thousands of our best men and women are slaves to supposed diseases, which baffie all skill, because the seat of the trouble is not reached. Nature needs nature's remedies, which is common sense, as all will recognize. Would our symptoms be out of order most of the time were it not for our stomachs and what we take into them? Ask your physician the most common of all foundation for the ravages of disease and from which grows languor, dizziness, nervousness, headaches, sallow and bad complexion, and in fact almost all the ills that afflict mankind, and he will tell you. 'CONSTIPATION." To cure it permanently it must be done carefully and without the use of violent drugs, and the only safe and best cure known at the present time is Karl's Clover Root Tea, which is composed entirely of herbs, nature's greatest remedies. As a spring medicine it cannot be equaled, and the words below from a well known Ohio man testify to the facts:

New Vienna, O., May 12, 1894. Messrs. S. C. Wells & Co., Le Roy, N. Y.—Gentlemen: For some years I have been troubled with a skin disease which was very annoying. I tried several so-called blood purifiers, but with-out avail. At last I was induced to try Karl's Clover Root Tea,, and am happy to say it was just the medicine I needed. My doctor was astonished at the cure, and says there must be great merit in such a medicine. Karl's Clover Root Tea is marvelous in its effect, and deserves all the praise given it. I cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers from aggravated or chronic cutaneous affections. Very respectfully yours,

A. H. HUDSON.

Formal Opening of the Western University Arts Department.

A Large Audience and Brilliant Addresses.

Masterly Speech by the Minister of Education.

Warm Greetings From Sister Colleges and Universities.

An Event of Great Importance-Hon. G. W. Ross on University Training -Noted Men on the Platform-Encouragement From the Old Country.

"By the authority vested in me by the Senate of this University, I now declare the arts department of the Western University opened for the reception of students who desire instruction in the several branches pertaining thereto-in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost."

With this brief deliverance the Bishop of Huron yesterday afternoon inaugurated a movement which marks an epoch in the history of the city. The large audience hall of the University building was crowded with representative citizens, many of them ladies, who were privileged to enjoy the masterly addresses by distinguished scholars, notably that of Hon. G. W. Ross, the Minister of Education, Ontario's peerless orator. For an extempore speech, it was a brilliant effort, full of wholesome truths, inspiring thoughts and vast information, delivered in choice and glowing language and in the honorable gentleman's vigorous and commanding style. He was enthusiastically applauded throughout. The speeches were all lively, and the presence of the medical students infused the audience with the same quality. The medicos marched from the college to the University and occupied seats in the rear. They led the applause, and at intervals vented their enthusiasm in vocal staccatos.

The Bishop of Huron occupied the chair. With him on the platform were: Hon. G. W. Ross, LL.D., Rev. B. Wat-kins, M.A., Provost of the Western University; A. Johnston, M.A., LL.D., D.C.L., F.R.S.C., vice-principal and dean of the faculty of arts, McGill University, Montreal; Rev. E. A. Welch, M.A., Provost of Trinity University, Toronto; Prof. Sykes, Ph.D., instructor of English literature and Western University; Rev. Prof. Burgess, Rev. Prof. Sherwood, Principal Merchant, the Dean of Huron, Rev. Archdeacon Davis, Rev. W. J. Clark, Mr. John Cameron, Mr. Duncan Ross, LL.B., Rev. Canon Smith, Rev. Canon Richardson, Rev. Robert Johnston, Rev. John Downey, B.D., Dr. Moorehouse, dean of the medical faculty of the Western University; Rev. H. Thomas, Warwick; Mr. I. F. Hellmuth, Mr. George F. Jewell, Rev. E. N. English, M.A., Rev. Prof. Guillemont, and Mr. T. H. Luscombe. THE BISHOP'S INTRODUCTION.

The Bishop of Huron, who was cordially received, was the first speaker. They were on the threshold, he said, of what they believed to be a great and good undertaking. (Applause.) The present step had been brought about by circumstances which had led them to it, rather than by their own concerted action. The great benefactor of this institution was the Rev. Alfred Peache-(applause)-and the establishment of the arts course was the wish of Dr. Peache himself. The bishop briefly sketched the career of the University, and aroused much enthusiasm by reading letters from Dr. Peache and Bishop Hellmuth, who warmly approved the step taken. Bishop Hell-muth declared that many friends might be found on both sides of the Atlantic who would contribute toward establishing one or more professorships, and this object the writer promised to promote so far as his health and strength would permit. This an-nouncement was received with loud Continuing, Bishop Baldwin said he, himself, found that there was a general impression in this fair city that though the present system of education was excellent so far as it went, there was a great deficiency whilst there was no university to crown and perfect its work. (Ap-He trusted that it would have the hearty and continuous support of the people throughout the west. In conclusion, the bishop remarked that while the young people should desire that the ample page of knowledge, "rich with the spoils of time," be opened to them, they should not forget to acquire the deeper knowledge which came from communion with the Lord Jesus Christ. THE NEW PROVOST. Principal Watkins, the new Provost, was warmly welcomed, and returned thanks on behalf of himself and colleagues for many kindnesses received. He read letters from the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Principal Grant, of Kingston; Principal Loudon, of Toronto University; Principal Sheridan, of Wyckliffe College, Toronto, and from Dr. Hobbs, principal of the Montreal Diocesan College, expressing regret at inability to be present, and conveying their warmest wishes for the success of the Western. Principal Watkins outlined the Western University arts course, which was modeled, he said, on that of Toronto University. Thirtytwo students had already entered the arts course, and including the divinity faculty there were over 50. (Loud applause.) The principal explained that the arts department was open to students of any denomination. number of non-residents had applied for admission, and others who could not attend, were taking the extramural course. The speaker humorously in formed the audience that after had taught a Greek class of four the other day he entered the English literature room and found it full of pupils hanging on the lips of Prof. Sykes, who was lecturing on Tennyson. (Laughter.) The principal goodnaturedly pleaded the cause of classics. It was a hard mountain to climb, but the very effort was bracing, and once at the top the atmosphere was purer and the view broader. (Applause.) The longer be necessary for graduates of these in London to go elsewhere for digher education. (Applause.) The tastes as we should be. Is it the digher education. (Applause.) The tastes as we should be. Is it the about 60. (Applause.) The careers of the department was entirely under works of Shakespeare, Milton, Tenny- the graduates had been very credinominational; there was no distinction in the republic of arts except excellence in learning.

HON. G. W. ROSS. The Minister of Education was introduced by the bishop as one "who had been for many years engaged in the development of our noble system

Mr. Ross was received with prolonged cheers, and the students sang, "For he's a jolly good fellow." Mr. Ross extended hearty congratulations to the University Senate, and characterized the reopening of the arts faculty as one of the pleasant features of the development to which the bishop referred. "Without good public schools and without a fair development of the secondary schools, it would be scarcely possible to admit to your halls so many as have already entered through your matriculation. (Applause.) I know something of your Provost and his work at Lenoxville. I know what has been done by one of your faculty, the principal of your Collegate Institute. Whatever he has done has been well (Applause.) I know well the talent of your professor in English literature, Mr. Sykes. (Applause.) His honor course in Toronto University was supplemented by what he could pick up at a small university called Johns Hopkins. (Laughter and applause.) He has served the Edu-Department in many cational great success and ways with ability. I observe that your standards are the same as those of Toronto University. Whether those standards are what they should be I do not pretend to say, but they are the accepted standards of a great university. have the greatest confidence in the future of this arts course by what has been done by the medical faculty. (Rousing cheers from the medicos.) Its students have to submit to the same tests as those of other great universities, and they have stood those tests well." (Cheers.)

The speaker said it was a great advantage in a country like Canada to have diversity in its educational system. In unifying a system of educa-tion, it might lose its individualizations. For instance, Oxford made a specialty of classics, and Cambridge of mathematics. Each of the great universities of Germany had its peculiarities. With such a faculty and such a magnificent field around them, he was sure the Western would hold up the standard of higher education. Where could you have a better field than in my native county of Middlesex? You have around you many of the best collegiate institutes in the Province - an excellent breeding ground for the material of which a good university is made. Your city is a beautiful one, and the country surrounding is rich and full of men of energy, and, I trust, wealth." Mr. Ross said the young people who attended a university sometimes imagined that they would be subjected to a new process of mental development, but they would find it no different from the processes through which they passed in the early stages of their education. There was only one process, and that was self-application. (Applause.) "You go to these universities," he said, "to distot your powers of observation, perhaps upon higher planes, but not upon a different plane. You may project them into greater mysteries by the ald of better trained men, but it is by the same power. That is part our educational system-its continuity. We begin in the universities where we leave off in the collegiate The speaker described institutes." three university methods. One was the fixed method by which a certain amount of Latin, science, mathematics and literature was prescribed. There was also another method, which, led very largely by Yale and Harvard, many universities of the world were adopting-the system of options. This, he thought, was overdone. There was another system, which he thought was better, and which was between the other two. Under this the first and second year courses were of a comprehensive, practical character, and the remaining years could be devoted to special optional subjects, according to the aptitude of the pupil. If he were fitting himself for a general education, the Minister thought he could derive more benefit from a general and comprehensive course, such as had Oxford and Cambridge 30 years ago, than could be taken from some of the specialty courses of modern times. But with the widening of the horizon specialization, he admitted, had become more necessary. The general education he approved was one which foundation of a broad, general, useful education, and then specialized according to the apti-tude of the pupil. "I am tude of the pupil. "I am bound," he continued, "to give the palm to a classical education as being indispensable to the highest culture, and I shall be sorry if the time ever comes when any university shall have so far forgotten the traditions of those old schools which have given the world such famous poets, scholars and writ-

Mr. Ross said he had been charged with neglecting the public for the high schools. This would be a serious thing if proven, and still more serious if true. (Laughter.) While his anxiety was great for the public schools, it was no less great for the secondary schools. With-out higher education there would be a dead mental level. There must be leaders of thought, men of character, men of force, to govern the country, and in order to produce these there must not only be proper facilities for primary education, but for education all the way up. He was always de-lighted when a collegiate institute was opened, and more when a university like this was opened. (Applause.) He did not care to open a university as a culated to have some influence upon the life of the nation. Its purpose thould be to have vital round in the latter movement had been modified by a system should be to have vital power in the development of men and women for future citizenship. If it failed in that was no better than any other fool—in fact, more tedious by reason of his more tedious by reason of his perfect inaneness. (Laughter.) In all sincerity he did not think her universities had done enough for Canada. He did not think they had the power they should have upon the public life of Canada. How many university men were in the legislative halls, the municipal councils, the public institutions of the country? In the last British House of Commons 371 of the 670 members were graduates of the great universities of England. No wonder that the British House of Commons was the grandest deliberative body in the world! (Applause. "I say our universities should so impress their individual life upon the nation that men will see that people trained in them have superior fitness for the positions in the gift of the people. A university should make us better men, more tolerant men. Don't we want to take a wider view of the possibilities of this country in our denominational relations, in our intercollegiate relations? Instead of endeavoring to discount each other, to University was the capstone to the discredit the work of another because education derived at the high schools it is not done our particular way, we and collegiate institutes. It would no should exalt and aid him in whatever

ers, as to give a secondary place in its curriculum to masters of Latin and is the great current of light fiction, so light that it is almost like the vapor of morning, passing away with the rise of the morning sun, and on this does our great Caesar feed and shrink every day. (Applause and laughter.) Can you make Caesars on such literary pabulum as that? Sixty per cent of the reading of our Canadian public libraries is fiction. This fiction may serve as dessert after a substantial meal, but it does not make men, no matter how it is fixed. Carlyle has said that a man after reading a French novel should wash in Jordan seven times-(Laughter)-and it was Goldwin Smith, I think, who said that this light fletion was the bad tobacco of the mind." In conclusion the honorable gentleman dilated eloquently on the necessity of building character as well as

The students did not merely send their brains to the university to be submitted to a cerebral massage— (laughter)-but they should go through it, body, souls and mind, and come out sublimated and refined by the process. (Applause.) Having been in the company of the great men of all times, having drunk of their inspiration, having sat at the same table, having had communion with them day and night-could this make a crawling, simpering, pusillantmous citizen? No, never! They looked to the young men of Canada to project national life upon higher lines, with consciences quickened to do the right under all circumstances.

The Minister was given a round of applause upon resuming his seat. The bishop then formally declared the arts course open. He called upon

MAYOR LITTLE. His Worship was enthusiastically cheered and spoke as follows: "In the presence of so many distinguished men, actively engaged in the work of education (whom I am sure you are all anxious to hear), I will not venture to detain you more than a minute or two. It gives me great pleasure to be with you and to have the opportunity of taking part in the inauguaration of the Arts Department of the Western University. The extension of the work of your university in this direction is, to my mind, of vast importance, not only to the city of London but also to Western Ontario as a whole, and no doubt the cause of higher education in this district will be greatly stimulated by the facilities you have provided. London is the natural capital of Western Ontario, and many students, the members of whose families are in the habit of coming to the city for other purposes, will prefer to attend this university, rather than go farther from home, and many residents of the city who might be deterred by the cost of living away from home, will be able to take advantage of your classes. "Of course it will be necessary for you to keep abreast with your competitors. I am glad to see you have adopted the curriculum of the Provincial University, and the able staff which has been selected leaves nothing to be desired. I am sure Provost Williams will not turn out 'educated fools,' and the facilities he is providfor extra-mural students may enable the mayor and aldermen to secure degrees and then overcome the drawback mentioned by the Minister of Education. (Laughter and applause.) In every respect your beginning has been most and if your progress in this department is anything approaching that which has attended your medical branch—(applause)—it will not be long before your influence will be felt most powerfully in the Province, Your siccess must be of great benefit to the city. I therefore, on behaif of my colleagues in the council, as well as the citizens generally, most heartly wish you 'God speed,'"

TRINITY'S PROVOST. Rev. E. A. Welch, M.A., the young ovost of Trinity University, spoke briefly and in good taste. He said he had only set foot on this continent six weeks ago, and came at the earnest wish of his colleagues to extend their warm congratulations. He had a link with the Western, and as its provost had received his education at the same institution as himself on the banks of the River Cam. Cambridge had begun the movement for woman's university education, and he hoped the same privileges at the Western University would be fully availed of by the sex. The provost advocated athletics as a part of the university course. He had heard no reference to this feature by other speakers. A purely physical training would make man a mag-nificent animal, and no better, and he urged higher spiritual culture as necessary to the development of man-

REV. DR. JOHNSTON. Rev. Dr. Johnston, vice-president of McGill, spoke fluently and instructiveadmitted he was opposed to the multiplication of universities in Canada, and illustrated his argument as follows: Some years ago a proposition was made in the United States Congress to appropriate a large sum for the purchase of a great telescope to be located in a certain place. Local jealousies arose, and one member, remarking that he did not see why that place had special claims to the tele-scope, moved that the money be divided and smaller telescopes pur-chased for each of the 44 States. (Laughter.) But this was rejected, the large telescope was purchased, and shortly afterwards a great astronomic discovery was made by its agency. But in the case of the Western University, where medical and divinity faculties were already established, the addition of an arts course was necessary, he thought. The movement in the United States, where there were too many universities, was towards concentration, and in Britain, where there were only ment had been modified by a system which enabled undergraduates of the term at Oxford or Cambridge, smaller universities to complete their department had had a desperate struggle. "For years," he said, "we struggle. had from six to eight students a year, so that the arts department nearly dropped out of sight. Then the charter was changed to make it undenominational, and from that time it prospered. (Applause.) I am surprised at your beginning, as I understand you have, 47 students. (Loud applause.) If yu are to succeed you must take a pride in your university, such as the people of Montreal did. Last year we had about 80 professors and lecturers, over 1,000 students from affiliated divinity colleges of different denominations, and three small col-leges in arts, whose students come to our colleges to get their degrees. (Applause.)

DR. MOOREHOUSE Dr. Moorehouse, dean of the faculty, was lustily cheered by the medicos. He spoke briefly, and warmly eulogized the speech of the Minister of Education, who, he said, brought out beautifully the benefits to be derived from a university training, which strengthened the intellectual and moral faculties and made better men and women. The medical department was now in its fourteenth year, and starting with eight students, had now now to be supplied. Subsequently visitors and friends were received by Mrs. Watkins in the provost's parlors, and light refreshments were served. Hon. G. W. Ross was escorted through the buildings and grounds by Rev. Canon Smith, and was loud in praise of their magnificent appearance.

Catarrh in the Head

Is a dangerous disease because it is liable to result in loss of hearing or smell, or develop into consumption. Read the following:

"My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and the disease had gone so far that her eyesight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it." W. H. Endowment Policies for Women. Many women who are earning money have selected endowment policies as the best means to systematic saving, to yielding a fair investment return, and at the same time to protect the financial value of the life. The Ontario Mutual Life Assurance Company encourages them in this by granting women these policies on the same conditions and at the same premium rates as to men. Their endowment policies are free from restrictions on residence, travel or occupation, they contain cash values and paidup values guaranteed, they specify the payment of dividends, and after five years have a loanable value. The full amount of the policy is payable at death. Premiums may be made payable to suit the convenience of those insuring, and for these a month's grace is always given. gress-A Satisfactory Record. TUESDAY AFTERNOON. At the session of the King's Daughters and Sons this afternoon, Prof. Franklin T. Harrison, of this city, presented his annual report as provincial treasurer. The income of the union was derived from many sources. The sale of crosses netted $470 40; pins, $80 15. Provincial fees amounted to $664 55; literature, $28 69; magazines, $49; provincial reports, $66 45; Dominion reports, $10 80; surplus from convention fund of 1893, $25 17; surplus from provincial convention fund, $25. Other minor items amounted to $21 81, making the total revenue of the order $1,-442 02. Of this $1,327 52 was expended the heaviest items being $599 78 to the Dominion secretary; $196 30 to the Dominion treasurer, $293 95 to New York.

minion treasurer, $293 % to New 10rk.

The proposed constitution was presented and with a few amendments was adopted.

Mrs. Ami, of Ottawa, presented a paper on "Our Girls." Several reports from circles were presented and after a grist of questions had been answered the convention adjourned.

TUESDAY EVENING. The evening session of the King's Daughters and Sons, which was held in the First Presbyterian Church, was largely attended. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. Robt.

Johnston. Rev. W. J. Clark, who was in the chair, gave a short and interesting sketch of the work of the society. He said that the Daughters were in the majority in the order. He was glad to hear that all the meetings thus far had been successful. Although the society did not hold as many meetings as some other societies, as the bulk of the work was done through the individual members, they found it necessary to have general gatherings like the present for mutual beneboast that he was the second oldest clergyman in active work in the city. He had therefore some knowledge of the Christian work which is being done. It was a privilege to speak of the great work this order had accomplished. He congratulated the members on the success of the annual meetings which had been held from time to time in this city. He thought that the members of the order followed the footsteps of the Master in that they go about doing good, as we are told Jesus Christ did. Of all the organizations he had in his parish he would wish this one to be the last to go. If called upon to leave home he was always sure that the sick and afflicted would be well cared for. Mrs. Gibbs, of Port Arthur, was then called upon, and gave an interesting sketch of the origin of the society as given in a previous issue of the "Ad-She said she was proud that the origin was in motherly love. The pledge of the loyalty and love for Christ is "In His Holy Name." first circle formed in Canada was in Cobourg. There is now in Canada & membership of about 6,000, 4,000 of whom belonged to Ontario. The opportunity for women to serve Christ is greater now than ever before. Are women ready to serve the Lord? The increase of scepticism among the young is appalling. Something must be done to stop its onward course. This order does not wish to usurp the work of any other society, but rather to make use of the unused opportunities in the church. What is needed is a practical religion. women of Canada do not realize what they have to do. In some of the older countries women are almost discouraged battling with sin. The work of women of Canada was not this, but rather to forestall evil. The one year's service as Provincial secretary had done the speaker a great deal of good. She had resigned only because home duties claimed her services first. She said that she felt sorry for a woman who could attend such meetings as had been held and not be animated with a desire to do better. Rev. E. B. Lanceley said that this work was indeed inspiring. It seemed remarkable that there should have been such an advancement in Christian organizations in the last 25 years. The benevolent work of Christianity was what will unite the churches. He had not the hope of some that eventually all denominations will be united. He did not think it was ever intended that all denominations should be united. Christ is the theme of all pulpits today instead of denominationalism, as it was a few years ago. He did not think the interest or zeal for any denomination militated against the interest or zeal for Christ. The small band of the order in Dundas Center had collected nearly $700 toward the new church since March 1, besides some $600 spent on the poor.

Mrs. Tilley, Canadian secretary of the order, was the last, but not by any means the least, speaker. She said that few, if any, had had a better chance to see the work than she, as she had had the honor of being placed at the head of the work in Canada. The St. James Circle was first formed outside of the church, but afterwards taken in and found very useful. Several Methodist ladies joined, and from this sprung the Dundas Center Methodist Circle. She agreed with the former speaker that we may never hope for uniformity of worship. In these conventions members come together irrespective of creed. The speaker gave many illustrations of the practical work of the order, which is a means of drawing near to Christ. During the evening the choir gave several well rendered selections. WEDNESDAY MORNING. Wednesday morning's session of the King's Daughters and Sons convention was opened with an interesting Bible reading by Mrs. Gibbs, Port Arthur. Miss Ida Hambly, Lynnville, presented the report of the Norfolk county circles, which are three in number with 156 names on the roll. Seventy-four new members have been received since October, 1893. The annual fees amounted to $33 20.

The united circles of the city of London have a membership of 446. During the last year they purchased an invalid's rolling chair, and have placed it at the disposal of invalids who are unable to afford one. The directors of Mount Pleasant Cemetery have placed 1.900 superficial feet of ground at the disposal of the circles.

St. James, the pioneer circle of London, was organized in 1887. The membership now numbers 99, and the amount raised last year was $185 62. Endless Chain Circle, organized in 1889, has a membership of 26. The receipts last year were $41 65. Whatsoever Circle, also organized in 1889, has 80 members, and expended $90 for charitable purposes during the past twelve months. Seeking Circle has 70 members, and raised $126 33 last year. It was organnection with Hellmuth College, was organized in June, 1888. Whatsoever Circle, London West, comprises 14 members.

Willing Circle, in connection with Christ Church, was organized in 1891 and has a membership of 19. The receipts last year amounted to $42.73. Lift-Up Circle, at the Dundas Center Methodist Church, expended $330 73 for charitable purposes during the year. The amount was raised by fees, contributions and donations. Since the church fire monthly offerings have been giver towards the church fund and $669 15 raised in this way.

Willing Circle of St, George's Church, has a membership of 13. The receipts last year were $75 05. Earnest Workers, King's Daughters and Sons, in connection with the Kensington Methodist Mission, have a membership of 12.
Follow Me Circle, in connection with the Hill Street Mission, has a membership of 33. The $80 96 raised by them went materially to defray mission ex-The King's Messengers of the Ade-

A Sickening Sight.

Jurymen View the Mangled Remains of Mary Graves

And Adjourn-Evidence to Show That Deceased Had Been Drinking.

At 11 o'clock this morning Coroner Dr. Flock began an inquest on the remains of Mrs. Mary Graves, the Bathurst street woman who met such a horrible death at the Talbot street Rev. Archdeacon Davis, the next crossing of the Grand Trunk last speaker, said he had the privilege to night. The jurymen assembled at night. The jurymen assembled at Hinton's warerooms, Richmond street, and answered to the roll call as follows: James Dunn, Henry Keene, James Pickett, George Calcott, Thos. Brenton, Bartholomew Clampitt, Fred Turville, Henry Wallace, John Mc-Connell, Charles Davis, Wm. Caldwell,

Wm. Spence, Hastings Porter, Stuart Harris and Jacob Smith. Coroner Flock outlined the details of the accident to the jurors and took them into the morgue to review the remains. On such occasions a jury generally occupies five minutes or more, but the jurors in this case didn't. When the covering was removed from the horribly mangled remains some of the jurymen withdrew from the room as soon as possible. One man turned deathly pale; another trembled from head to foot, while all were of the opinion that it was the most sickening sight they ever witnessed. "In many years' experience as a coroner," said Dr. Flock, "I never saw a person cut and mangled to such an extent." "In my long experience in railroading," said Station Master Mc-Harg, of the Grand Trunk, "I can say that I never saw a person so literally torn to pieces under the wheels of a

The only witnesses examined were Sarah Halliday, Mrs. Mary Barton and Mr. McHarg, and from the evidence of the latter there is no doubt whatever but that the unfortunate woman was on her way home with a supply of liquor, of which she had for years been very fond. Mrs. Barton lived next door to the deceased. Yesterday afternoon about 6 o'clock Mrs. Graves went into her place, borrowed a hat and jacket, and with 10 cents went up town to get some liquor. She had been drinking before that, but was not intoxicated. Mrs. Graves was so dull of hearing that it was necessary to yell in her ear to make understand. Mr. McHarg, who assisted in gathering up the remains, testified as to finding a broken botwhich smelt very strongly of

The inquest was then adjourned until tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock, at the police station. The driver and fireman of the train which struck Mrs. Graves; Crossing Watchman Gillett and the two men who tried to prevent deceased from walking in front of the engine will be summoned. The remains will probably be buried at the city's expense.

AMERICA'S GREATEST HAMLET

Is Walker Whiteside's - The Tragedian Coming-The Chicago Marine Band.

The appearance of Mr. Walker Whiteside and his splendid company at the Opera House Thursday, Oct. '7, in "Hamlet" will without doubt be the dramatic event of the season. The excellence of Mr. Whiteside's imperscnation of the character has been commended by the leading critics of all the principal cities of the east and in the west. That this young actor is original in his conception of the will be a few years of profit-making part is conceded by all, and many on the basis we now mark our Mil. have expressed the opinion that no actor on the American stage save Edwin Booth has more carefully or more faithfully presented the character according to the ideas of the great dramatist. It has been said by one of the ablest dramatic reviewers of New York that, in the light of latter day ideas, his portrayal is well nigh perfect. The company in support of Mr. Whiteside this season is the best he has ever had, numbering on its roster several distinguished actors who have been prominent in the support of Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barrett, Keene and McCullough,
THE CHICAGO MARINE BAND.

Everybody says that Chicago has a great novelty in the Chicago Marine Band, which will soon be here for concert. It is not an imitation of any other band, but a really new and wonderful organization for the production of popular music with more effect than has yet been heard. The conductor, Mr. T. P. Brooke, is a great master in the line of startling and thrilling effects, and during his last season's series of concerts in Chicago he created more musical excitement and drew more people than any series of concerts ever given there. We have had bands and bands—many very excellent ones, but if all accounts are true, nothing like this has been heard. Scarcely a concert is given without getting the audience up on its feet with cheers for the great leader and his band. All the music seems to have ginger in it, and the dramatic effects seem to reach the emotions of all who listen. It is said that Mr. Brooke's own compositions have more thrilling power than any others written for military bands, and these will receive due representation on all programmes.

Chicago, Oct. 16 .- Wheat started off firmer on steady foreign advices, and lighter northwestern receipts. There was fair demand, but later in the day light clearances and a big increase in Bradstreet's brought out some long stuff, causing an easy feeling. With the bear news we have had for the past week the market holds well, and goes to show that it is concentrated. This year there has been very little hedging against cash stuff for Northwest account. This puts the market in better shape for the bulls. Corn was strong early; lighter receipts the past few days have caused a nervous feeling among the shorts, and towards the close it broke with Provisions dull and inclined to heavi-

BRITISH CATTLE MARKETS.

John Swan & Sons (Ltd.), Edinburgh, in their weekly report of Oot. 10, say: Supplies of fat cattle have been moderate all over. Owing to the excessively hot weather in the early part of the week, and the bad state of the meat markets, buyers operated with caution, and trade was slow except for the very best class of home cattle, which made about last week's prices. Fat sheep and lambs have been shown in much smaller numbers, and they have made rather more money. Fat calves met a good trade at fully more money, but owing to the warm weather pigs made decidedly less money. Fat calves met a good trade at owing to the warm weather pigs made decidedly less money. Fat calves met a good trade at fully more money, but ewing to to the warm weather pigs made decidedly less money. At the various store cattle markets this week there has been a fair demand, and an entire clearance made. The store sheep markets have been very brisk, and for wethers and ewes an average rise of about 4s a head has been obtained. The number of States and Canadian cattle generally being lighter, these have made more money. Milk cows were shown in about the same numbers as last shown in about the same numbers as last week, and met a decidedly better trade. Best beef, 8s to 8s 6 per stone; best mutton, 7id to 8id

One carload export cattle was held for 35c per 1b, but remained unsold. In butchers' cattle the trade was fair for good cattle but these were hard to get. The railway had interfered on three occasions when the buyers were not offering fair prices, and sent up its own buyers with bags, and promptly raised the market. This they would do again if occasion called for it. Upon a suggestion as to a special rate on oats, in order to dispose of this year's large surplus, Sir William was unable to see how at present prices there can be any profit in ex-port either to the farmer or the railway.

Northwest Cattle.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—The shipping of young cattle, yearlings and two_year-olds, to the Northwest is being engaged in by cattle shippers, and the venture promises to be a profitable one. Last week Thomas Crawford, M.P.P., Toronto, shipped 2,000 head of stockers to the Waldon ranch in the Northwest. Mr. Stewart, a rancher, also bought 500 head in the neighborhood of Berkeley, Ont., and took them up with him. These cattle can be reared, it is said, and sold at a profit of $25 and over in two or three years, for shipment to England.

Hides, Leather and Wool.

Mr. John Hallam, of Toronto: says in his report on leather, etc.: The hide market is quiet, little or nothing doing, and prices weak. Tarners say that bides must go down, as they are much too high for the prospective and present prices of leather. The current prices for butchers' stock in this market are: No. 1 hides, 7½; No. 2 hides, 6½; No. 1 carlfshirs, 7¢; No. 2 calfskins, 5¢; No. 1 cured hides, 8cto 8½c; cured calfskins, 5¢; No. 1 cured hides, 8cto 8½c; cured calfskins, 5¢; No. 1 cured hides, 8cto 8½c; cured calfskins, 5¢; No. 1 cured hides, 8cto 8½c; cured calfskins, 5¢; No. 1 cured hides, 8cto 8½c; cured calfskins, 5¢; No. 1 cured hides, 8cto 8½c; cured calfskins, 5¢; No. 1 cured hides, 8cto 8½c; cured calfskins, 5¢; No. 2 Hides, Leather and Wool.

Constantinople, Oct. 16.-Said Pasha has accepted the scheme for reform in Armenia drawn up by Great Britain, France and Russia, and it now awaits the signature of the Sultan.

The ambassadors of the powers expect that the whole question will be finally settled in the course of the week by the promulgation of an imperial decree. Contrary to general expectations, the high commissioner, who will be charged with the execution with this scheme of reform will be a Christian. This was the hardest pill for the Porte to swallow.

BY FREDERICK R. BURTON, Author of "Her Wedding Interlude," "Josef Helmuth's Goetz," "A Pot of Gold," "The Strange Object of Thornton Wetmore," etc.

CHAPTER IX .- A BUNCH OF KEYS. Nicholas Warren had but an imperfect understanding of his own action. His simple, uneventful life since war times had not stimulated self analyis, for his emotions and impulses ran in even, familiar channels. Love for his wife and daughter had ruled his life, and almost his only contention had been with the soil from which he was content to extort such return as assured him and his plenty to eat and enough to wear. Shelter never entered sensibly into his calculation of needs, for to live in Granite as a married man was to own a house.

There had been times when too much or too little rain had depleted the crop, and he had uttered the common cry of discontent and wished that he were rich, but his wish had taken the vague form of a longing for money in the bank, in railroad or Government bonds, in factories, and it had speedily vanished as an unattainable dream, and he had returned to his hard labor with philosophical determination to make the best of it.

Now there had been unexpectedly thrust upon him what seemed like an opportunity to acquire more wealth than had figured in his dreams-it seemed to be all but under his hand, and avariciousness, that is latent more or less in every human being, was gradually and surely growing within him, suppressing all other impulses, and mastering his being. He had not yet admitted to himself that he wanted to find Dutton's diamonds, or the "President," for his desire was now centered on that single stone for his own use. He wilfully evaded the analysis of his motives when it came to that, or stubbornly told himelf hat if Dutton should recover he would restore the valuable jewel to him. It mattered not how he might act should he find the "President" in his posses-The great point was that he wanted to find it, to see it, to hold it to the light and observe its sparkle, and as he pawed over the grass his eyes ached with the momentary hope and expectation of seeing the diamond flash upon him. He was working systematically, trying to leave no inch of ground unfelt, feeling with the finger tips back and forth in lines parallel to the window frame, just as he had plowed many furrow after furrow.

"Dr. Nason must have seen it," was his silent moan. "Golding is probably right in saying that no man could resist the temptation it would offer. What if Nason should now have the stone, and realizing that it belongs to Dutton, so administer medicines that Dutton should never awake! Well, if Dutton should never wake-

Warren turned with a great start of fear, and half lay upon the grass, supporting himself with one arm and raising the other as if to ward off impending evil. He saw Dr. Nason standing near the door with his hands in his coat pockets, looking grave and disturbed. Warren returned his gaze with gaping mouth. am greatly troubled, Nick," said the doctor. what's the matter?" returned Warren, slowly rising and wondering whether the doctor suspected what he was down on his knees in the The patient has been muttering in ing apparently about proceeding fur-What does he say " search. They went down the path to the gate, and, placing his hand on Warren's shoulder, Dr. Nason said:

"I am a physician, Nick, and my first thought and care must be for my patient. I am also a citizen, and as such I am liable to be called as a witness. It would be nothing short of agony for me to go on the stand and say anything that should be to your injury. If I were to tell the whole truth as the oath prescribes-"

He paused and kept his eyes searchingly upon Warren. "What could you say that should hurt me, doctor?" asked Warren, with as good an assumption of confidence as he could command. "This man," responded the doctor, "s suffering not only from shock brought about by the assault to which he was subjected, but from what appears to be a fever of long standing. If he suffered from shock alone, he would by this time have recovered consciousness to a degree. Now, you remember that the stranger, Golding, was anxious to be present and listen to the patient should he begin to talk in his delirium. Why? Because at the gate until the doctor galloped he believes that Dutton would speak away. Then he stepped to the window of whatever was uppermost on his mind at the time he was struck down. I don't pretend to know what Golding hoped to deduce from such remarks as the patient might make, but it is a fair inference that he would look for something suggestive of the assault, and of the person who committed it.

"Is that what Dutton has been maundering about?" asked Warren, calmly. "How can I tell? He mentions your name, Nick, and while a sick man's tones may not indicate anything, it is pretty certain that you were in his thoughts, you and your wife."

"He mentions Martha, too?" "But what does he say?"

"Nothing coherent. There is nothing as yet that I can so piece together as to get an understanding of what was is in the man's mind. But what if presently there should be, Nick? I don't think I should like to hear it." "I shouldn't like to have you."

Dr. Nason was startled. "Nick," he began, but Warren interrupted him with the question:
"Did Martha hear these words that troubled you?" "Certainly; she bent over the bed and listened very closely. I do not think she understood their purport, Ndck.

Warren gave the doctor a glance that seemed to say, "You don't know what you're talking about." "What do you understand their purport to be, doctor?"

"Why, if Golding is correct, it would imply that he was thinking of the person who assaulted him." Warren smiled. The doctor could see that the assault did not trouble him in the least. "I believe you said he mentioned Martha's name, too?" remarked Warren; "now, if Golding is correct, and I should think a doctor ought to know, that would mean-" "See here, my friend," interposed Dr. Nason earnestly, "it won't do to split hairs with me. I'm not asking you to tell me a secret; I don't seek your confidence. Of course, your wife had nothing to do with the assault, and I have no suspicion that you had; but other people might suspect that, and I think that Golding does. The circumstances are unfortunately damaging. I won't say they justify sus-picion, but they can readily be twisted and interpreted to support it. In the hands of an unprincipled man, such as I fear Golding is, they may be so interpreted as to cause you a great deal of trouble. Don't you understand that I am anxious not to know anything that could be perverted into testimony against you?"

"Yes, I see, and I appreciate your kindness. It is better than you think, for you don't know all the circumstances, and if you did, you'd see that a case against me would appear to be

"Then let me caution you to be very cautious. These rambling words of Dutton's may have no connection with the assault. In his fever he may be reverting to something in the distant If there ever was anything, Nick, between you and Dutton to cause an enmity, don't for heaven's sake let a hint of it escape you. Given a motive for you to commit violence upon him, and Golding might make out a powerful case against you." Dr. Nason paused, hoping, perhaps, dentially, but Warren was silent. His eyes were downcast, and when he raised them it was not to the doctor's face, but to the grass plot in front of the chamber window.

"I'm going home now," continued the doctor. "The patient will not need me again for some hours, and as Mrs. Varren insists on remaining with him there is no reason why I should "Won't you wait for breakfast, doctor? "Thank you, no. I shall get home in time for breakfast." He started toward the stable, but turned back when Warren called to

"Doctor," he asked, hesitatingly, "weren't there any other words in Dutton's talk besides our names?" "Yes, but none to which I could attach any meaning."

"I might, if I knew them, doctor." Warren longed to ask whether Dut ton had mentioned diamonds, but he dared not.

said the doctor, with a smile, "I don't myself take much account of a delirious man's raving for whatever he says in such a condition is likely to mean no more than the nonsense we think of so seriously in dreams. Still, if you can make anything out of the fact that Dutton made frequent allusions to the president, you're welcome to your deductions.

"The 'President'!" exclaimed Warren, trying in vain to conceal the indelirium," replied the doctor, hesitat- terest he had in this information. "What did he say about it-him, I mean? "He didn't mention the president by name, so whether he referred to Mr. Cleveland or one of his predecessors in the office, I don't know. He might have had some claim in which he tried to interest the president, and perhaps it became a mania with him. One speculation, however, is as good as another. Have you any suggestion

"No," answered Warren, glad that the inquiry was so put that he could answer truthfully, "I have none. You will be up again during the day?"

The doctor nodded and went on to the barn, while Warren remained at the gate feeling a maze of doubts and anxieties. There had been evidently no fiction in Golding's statements about the diamond called the "President." It seemed certain enough that Dr. Nason had not found it, if, indeed, it was in the catch-all. And yet, the doctor was going away. He had not asked why Warren was on his knees before the chamber window. He was a cool, collected man, who could easily mask his emotions. The diamond must be sought for-but not until the doctor had gone. Then there were those other terrible thoughts—when might not Dutton in his delirium expose those secrets which even the dector in his ignorance of the facts judged to be of such importance that he advised Warren to conceal them? What would be Dutton's course if he should recover? Why had he gone to

Sam Springer's cabin on the mountain? Worrying thus, Mr. Warren stood

THE RESULTS ARE REAL. Even at this late day, when there are so few to be found who doubt the efficacy of the Lakehurst treatment for alcoholism, we occasionally hear the opinion expressed that the "cure" is simply an exemplification of the influence of "mind over matter." In other words, that you simply believe that and among those who took part in the you are cured, and you will thenceforth exprogramme were Misses Goldsmith, perience no difficulty in abstaining from the Pickard, McLean, Hazlewood and use of strong liquor. Absurd as this view may be to the reasoning mind, it matters little whether the ability of Lakehurst Institute graduates to abstain from liquor without effort, where previously it was impossible to abstain at all, is due to the fact that a radical cure has been accomplished by rational medical treatment, or to a delusion, the result of suggestions. The delusion, if such a few choose to designate it, is well worth having, even at an infiniteit, is well worth having, even at an infinitely greater price than is charged at Oakville. But so many have tried to delude themselves at home, and have sadly failed, that the only conclusion remaining is that the Lakehurst cure is a blessed, happy, glorious reality, not a mind cure nor a faith cure. Do not try and delude yourself longerthe reality is within your reach. Toronto office, 28 Bank of Commerce Building.

The Age of Niagara Falls. The savants are having a very interesting time in determining the age of Niagara Falls, and from the most recent papers on the subject it is quite evident that great diversity of opinion exists among those who have made it a matter of investigation. Life is full of problems. The diversity of our common nature suggests equally interesting questions. Why are thing so? Why not otherwise? Now for instance the minor ailments that afflict us. Why should toe ache not be agreeable instead of painful? Why should so many fraudulent and flesheating substitutes for Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor be imposed upon the people? Putnam's is sure.
