THE ADVERTISER, LONDON, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 16, 1907 - TEN PAGES

Inspector Galpin Would Post Pictures of Inebriates

Speaks of the New Law Passed in Wisconsin—Thinks It Will Work Well.

A measure has recently been introduced at Fond du Lac, Wis., whereby photographs of inebriates, to whom license-holders are forbidden to sell liquor, are posted in the different bars of that city.

The art gallery is not used in London, but a list of incorrigible inebriates, called in bar slang, the "Indian list," is posted in all places where liquor is licensed to be sold.

"How is a man's name first placed on this list?" Inspector Galpin was asked this morning.

Friends interfere.

"Well, it is often put up at the request of friends," he answered. "The magistrate, county judge or an employer can also have the name affixed to the list, and I personally can add such names as I think proper."

"When a man's name is added to this list a registered letter containing the man's name and description is sent to all the local bars, notifying them that they must not sell to this man. Another letter is sent to the drunkard himself, advising him that he has been put on the list, and warning him, however, he insists on making the attempt, he can be compelled to appear before the magistrate, who has the power either to impose a fine or to send him to jail."

A Stiff Law.

"What happens to the license-holder selling liquor to such a man?" was asked.

Bennett's Attractions for Season

Manager "has, of Bennett's Vaudeville Theatre, has practically completed his house staff for the season of 1907-08. The official list will be given out for some days, but it is understood that Mr. Elms will have as treasurer, Mr. Ed. Effner, the present manager of "The Unique," who was the very popular treasurer of last season. It is also understood that Mr. Victor Carty who was for a time assistant treasurer of the Grand, will be assistant treasurer of Bennett's. Mr. Thomas Logan will again be house superintendent.

Prof. W. O. Stevens, the popular and artistic conductor of the house orchestra since Mr. Bennett assumed charge of the theatre, will be back in his old position. He arrived in London this morning from New York.

where he has spent the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens will take up their residence in this city at once.

There is nothing certain as to the stage staff. Mr. Thos. Brierly, who was stage manager last year, is managing a Bennett theatre in Ottawa, and will likely return. Mr. Wilson who was also a member of the stage crew, has been transferred to Quebec, where Bennett's have assumed control of the auditorium.

Manager Elms has prepared a list of attractions which they are to be given vaudeville this year of a class equal to what is seen in the best houses across the line.

Fighting Colored Youth Routs Three Attackers

Sunday Evening Battle Royal Winds Up in Court.

As a result of the recent row which took place on Maitland street on Sunday night last, Wm. Berry, John Duncan and Bert Johnson, colored youths, were this morning assessed $5 apiece and bound over to keep the peace. Wm. Sloan, who was also implicated in the affair was dismissed.

The whole story of the battle royal, as told this morning by Joseph Seelye, was as follows. Seelye, who hails from Cleveland, and who is at present stopping with his grandfather, the Rev. Mr. Ball, in the grandstand of the city, on the night in question attended the B. M. E. Church on Grey street, accompanied by two young ladies and a gentleman. On the way home from church, the party was accosted by Berry, Duncan and Johnston, who accused Seelye of having insulted a lady friend of theirs in church that night. Before Seelye had a chance to reply the trio attacked him, and bore him to the ground, where they kicked and otherwise maltreated him. Then Seelye's friend got busy and took a hand in the fracas, only to get a terrific jolt which took all the fight out of him. He disappeared from view, being seen no more that evening.

Eventually Seelye succeeded in getting the better of his opponents, who took to their heels just before the patrol wagon arrived.

Later young Seelye, in company with his grandparent and a friend visited the scene of the scrimmage to search for his hat which had been lost in the heat of battle. Nearby, on a corner, stood the gang which had accosted him. One of the trio made some slighting remark about "relatives" or something to that effect, and in a moment Seelye had picked out the bigger of the crowd and was proceeding to administer a much-needed beating when Mr. Ball intervened, putting a stop to further hostilities. Summons were served on the three youths, and this morning's fines resulted.

Frank Martin was assessed $1 for immodeerate driving, and several cases were held over for one week. One case, involving two neighbors, was settled between the parties. One of the women had accused the other of being everything a lady should not be, and the other had not only denied the allegation but had returned the compliment.

Eight Days to Remove the Wreckage

Eight days in which to clear away the wreckage of the Crystal Hall disaster.

That is the proposition which Contractor Marcel Hoehn has tackled.

Mr. Hoehn took the contract on the straight price basis, and he will receive exactly $500 for the job.

It had been rumored about the city that all building material taken out of the wreckage, including the huge piles of brick in the Market Square, were to go to the contractor in addition to the amount mentioned in the contract.

"That is not so," he declared today. "All I get is such material as the architect deems unfit for future building purposes, such as broken scutings, damaged laths, etc. Every whole brick and piece of brick must be turned over to the care of the Reid people."

The contractor has from three to five teams and twelve men working on the job now, and anticipates but little trouble in finishing his work on or before they want.

the date set. Work is progressing in both front and back. According to Mr. Frank Reid it is impossible to estimate what amount of stuff will be saved. "Most of our valuable ware was disposed of by auction," said Mr. Reid. "Here is a vase valued at $15, and here is another worth $10, which we just pulled out from beneath a pile of bricks. Neither are damaged. I have just been thinking what a terrible affair this disaster would have been had it occurred when our auction sale was on. At times there were over 200 women in the place."

Souvenir fiends are still active according to the workmen employed on the debris, and it keeps them all busy watching to see that nothing of value is carted off by spectators. Chinaware seems to meet the fancy of the average souvenir seeker, and they are not satisfied with broken articles, at that. They want a cup and saucer or a vase of some kind as a rule, and on occasions they manage to get what

GREAT FIRE AT OLD ORCHARD BEACH; 17 HOTELS AND 60 COTTAGES DESTROYED

Half a Million Dollars Damage Done to Famous Maine Resort.

Two Lives Were Lost and Five Persons Were Seriously Injured.

Old Orchard Me., Aug. 15.—Two lives were lost and five persons were injured, three seriously, as a result of the fire which swept through this resort last night, causing a loss of from half a million to three quarters of a million dollars. The dead: Philip Partridge, of Kennebunk, killed by locomotive while crossing track on way to fire. Unidentified man.

Rev. Rufus Jones, pastor of Trinity Church, Saco, seriously hurt by explosion of soda tank.

Newton Morrill, Salem, Mass., Boston and Maine engineer, seriously hurt by same explosion.

Emerson, father of proprietor of Hotel Emerson hurt by same explosion, also an unidentified man, probably fatally injured. Miss Minnie, of Kennebunk, badly bruised by

CHICKENS TIED; CRUELTY CHARGED

Two of the Fowl Expire and Humane Society Officer Takes Action.

Henry Gooseberg, a South London Hebrew, appeared before Magistrate Love this morning on a charge of cruelty to chickens preferred by Inspector Sanders.

Gooseberg, it appears, went to the market recently and purchased several bags of potatoes and a dozen chickens. The farmer from whom he purchased the potatoes agreed to deliver the chickens to Gooseberg's house within a short time.

The defendant could not leave his work at the time, so he sent a younger brother out to receive the goods. The boy waited several hours, and when the farmer with the chickens and potatoes did not appear he left the place. Eventually the farmer arrived, and finding no one at home, dumped the potatoes and the chickens at the door, where they lay for five hours before they were discovered. In the meantime two of the fowls had expired.

"Have you got the farmer in court from whom the chickens were purchased?" asked his honor of Mr. Sanders. "I want to know who tied those fowls together."

The inspector admitted that he did not know who the man was, but stated that he could produce the farmer who delivered the goods within a few days.

A market employee testified that it was a common custom for the Jews and Chinese to tie half a dozen or so of chickens together, and then carry them about for several hours until they had completed their marketing.

The case was laid over for one week.

SMASH THE LIGHTS; COMPANY IS ANGRY

G. T. R. Says It Can Do Nothing With Hoodlums at Wortley Road.

Mr. F. J. Coleman, electrical superintendent of the Grand Trunk Railway, has not much respect for the youth of London, and he has written to City Engineer Graydon about the matter. For some time complaints have been made about the lighting of the Wortley road subway, and the company has been blamed considerably for it. Mr. Coleman, in his letter to Mr. Graydon, declares that it is an impossibility to keep the subway lighted. The city police were notified, but nothing was done. The trouble continued, and the company's detectives were unable to stop the depredations. Last Saturday new lights were put in all round, and on Monday morning they were all smashed and the wires cut. Therefore Mr. Coleman declares that it is an impossibility to keep the subway lighted.

Engineer Graydon will likely take the matter up with No. 3 committee.

"London has more hoodlums than any city I ever knew," Mr. Coleman declares.

THE C.P.R. OPERATORS REFUSE TO STRIKE

Toronto, Aug. 15.—The C. P. R. Telegraph Company's operators here tonight refused to strike at the request of the International Union.

The men decided that the conditions under which they are now working are satisfactory and it would be unfair to the company to go out at this time.

FOUR FREIGHT CARS DROP INTO WHIRLPOOL

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 16.—A Grand Trunk freight train was wrecked early today on the lower steel arch bridge over the Niagara gorge. The bridge was damaged, and four cars dropped into the Whirlpool Rapids. Traffic over the bridge is blocked.

London Irishmen Objected to "Wake" Picture Film Run at the "Unique"

And Manager Ed. Effner "Cut It Out" at Once—Alleged It Was Offensive.

A film showing a so-called "wake" at the popular theatorium of Bennett's on Dundas street caused local Irishmen to consider themselves aggrieved last night, and a complaint was promptly lodged with Manager Ed. Effner of The Unique. In less time than it takes to tell it, Mr. Effner whose aim it is to please everybody and offend no one, had the film replaced, and the Irishmen who objected went away warmer friends than ever of the manager and The Unique. The picture was termed "Pat's Wake," and, of course, it aimed to be humorous.

R. R. TELEGRAPHERS WILL NOT STRIKE

But Will Contribute $60,000 Towards the Campaign Fund.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—At the conference held here last night between President Small and Secretary Russell, of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, President Samuel Gomper, of the American Federation of Labor, and several other labor leaders, it was decided definitely that there should be no strike of the 47,000 railroad telegraphers of the United States. The operators will be called upon shortly to contribute a strike fund of $60,000. Two of their general officers attended the conference.

Cy Warman Trifles With a Moose: Has Narrow Escape From Death

Author Tries to Capture Deer in Lake—Not a Fake.

Temagami, Ont., Aug. 15.—Cy Warman, the well-known writer, had a narrow escape from drowning trying to capture a big bull moose in the lake at Temagami Inn. Warman came to Temagami early last week from his home in London, Ont., on a fishing trip, with two friends, Rudolph Kauffmann, managing editor of the Washington Evening Star, and United States Consul J. E. Jones, of Winnipeg. The party visited several of the smaller lakes and caught many black bass. Moose were seen everywhere, no less than twenty being counted among the lily pads, where they had come to escape the flies and feed on the tender roots.

Warman thought he would like to catch a moose, and add that adventure to his book of experiences. Notwithstanding the protests of his Indian guides that moose when aroused are very dangerous, Warman insisted he would take a chance.

A big bull moose was located in a small bay. Cautiously advancing when the animal's head was under water, and remaining absolutely still when it appeared, Warman's canoe was soon between the moose and the shore, cutting off his retreat in that direction. When finally the moose discovered Warman, he gave a snort and swam off in the direction of Camp Charlton.

Warman bade his Indian paddle alongside the frightened animal, and when he did so he reached over and patted the moose on his back; then he reached out and pulled the animal's ear, and pushed the ponderous head under water. This was too much even for a moose, and he stopped swimming. A moment later Jim Friday, an Indian guide, yelled:

"Look out, he is going to prong you!" The caution came too late, for the infuriated moose jammed his antlers into the frail canoe and attempted to strike it with his front feet. Realizing his perilous position, the guide paddled as fast as he could from the scene. The canoe, badly damaged, filled rapidly, and Warman was rescued by his friends. It was a close call, and the Indians had a pow-wow over the incident that night after the smudge had gone out.

Warman declares he will not write the story of the moose chase, as he has heretofore enjoyed a reputation for veracity, and does not care for the classification of nature fairy. His companions vouch for the incident, and have dubbed Warman "Cymoose Warman."

Local Telegraphers Still at Work; Striking Operators Make Statement

London Managers Claim Everything Is Going All Right—Business Fair.

The local telegraph situation shows no change. Both the G. N. W. and the C. P. R. men are working, and have received no orders to go out on strike.

"We have done about two-thirds of our usual business," said Mr. W. C. Furness, of the G. N. W. "We have connections with Buffalo and Detroit and can get New York and Chicago through them. We are doing considerable American business. I do not expect any more men to go on strike."

The C. P. R. have Associated Press

connection is all right, and they are but are not doing very much commercial work on the American side. Toronto operators will not handle American messages. Their Canadian connection is alright, and they are doing the usual business.

The strike in Toronto and Montreal shows no change. The officials claim that they are filling the strikers' places and that they are doing nearly the usual run of business. The men claim that this is a mistake, and last night they issued a statement.

Men's Side of It.

The telegraphers' statement to the Toronto press is as follows:

"An extraordinary feature of the trouble which has appeared rather strongly to the officials is the surprising conduct of the non-union operators."

Pitiable Case of English Girl Shows The Need of Tuberculosis Hospital

Mrs. Tilley Explains the Case of the Young Lady Who Is Being Sent Back to England.

In the following very interesting letter to The Advertiser, Mrs. E. N. Tilley, a lady who has always taken a deep interest in the welfare of her fellow-creatures, gives full particulars in regard to the fund raised for the purpose of sending a certain English girl, who is suffering from tuberculosis, back to her home in England.

After giving great praise to all who contributed to the fund, Mrs. Tilley draws a pointed lesson from the case, which emphasizes the need for a tuberculosis hospital in London.

The letter is as follows:

Editor of The Advertiser: Dear Sir: You will be gratified to know, that through your kindness in printing my appeal to the public, on behalf of the sick English girl, it has met with the most ready and generous response. The appeal appeared in your issue of the 7th and by the 10th the $50 I asked for was sent to me. I found after sending my letter to the press, that I should need more to meet all requirements, so I wrote a few personal notes, and obtained all I needed. The London papers must have a large circulation outside of London, for contributions came from Lucan, Lucknow, Lobo, Liskeard, Crumlin, Granton, Glendale, Wyoming, Wallaseburg, Cairo, Mount Brydges and Montreal.

The interest and sympathy expressed by contributors has been great. Fathers and mothers gave "because they had a daughter of their own." A hard-working market woman stopped her cart at my door, and brought me 50 cents from herself and 25 cents from her son. The child-

Teachers Are Scarce But Scarcity Is Not as Great as in Past Years

Facts Concerning the Attendance at Local Collegiate—Opening of Rural Schools.

The rural schools open on Monday next, Aug. 19, and already the teachers are making their way to their positions. The city schools will not open until the Tuesday after Labor Day, and the country boy is feeling that he has lost a few weeks that he could spend with much more pleasure. The mandate of the authorities must be obeyed, however.

Teachers are not so scarce this year as last, nor the year before. This is, although they are none too plentiful yet. A more optimistic opinion seems to be prevalent concerning the teaching profession, and improved conditions are reported by the educational department.

For the first half of last year, the department received 352 applications for temporary certificates, while for the same period this year only 227 have been received. During the vacation last year the department was deluged with applicants for temporary certificates, but this year only six were received.

A Considerable Shortage. Still, there is a considerable shortage of teachers. The situation is eased up some, but the problem is by no means solved. The department are hoping that the general raising of salaries, the greater confidence of teachers in the situation, and the better tone of public opinion will solve the problem in a very short time. However, the fact of the matter is that there is a shortage of teachers, both in Ontario and in the far west, and there are not enough teachers in sight to catch up with the scarcity for some years to come.

Collegiate Attendance. A comparatively large number of students passed the entrance this year, and the London Collegiate will have as many in attendance as last year, probably more. Not 50 per cent of those who pass the entrance go to the Collegiate, and after that the thinning-out process is rapid, and only a small percentage continue to the highest grades. The attendance last year in the lower school was 691, while the attendance for the upper school was only 105. This is the ruling ratio and shows little variation from year to year.

It is sometimes claimed that the Collegiate is for the sons and daughters of the richer classes, but this is not borne out by statistics. The occupation of the pupils' parents is given as follows: Commercial 311, agricultural 191, mechanical 229, professional 124, laborers 62, without occupation 43. The children of the working men are well represented, as they should be, and shows the democratic nature of Canadian educational institutions. They are divided in their religious beliefs as follows: Methodists 342, Presbyterians 285, Episcopalians 233, Congregationalists 15, Roman Catholics 92, Baptists 74, other denominations 113.

Merry War Is Going on for the Plum

The war in the Conservative camp for the appointment to succeed the late Col. John Macbeth goes on right merrily. The favorite for the position is Mr. Richard Bayly. It is said, although Mr. Home Elliott, Mr. P. H. Bartlett, Mr. A. G. Chisholm, and others, have hopes for the place. The Conservative Club at one time, it is said, decided to divide the plum into two parts, letting both Mr. Bayly and Mr. Elliott in. This decision caused considerable difficulty, all factions claiming that the office should go as it stood, and let every man-pull for the position. Then the fun started. All the candidates got their pulls working, and a pretty contest resulted. Lately Mr. Bayly has been making progress, and it is hinted by a man in close touch with affairs that Mr. Bayly will get the position, and all the others will get sympathy.

This morning a petition was being circulated among the legal fraternity on behalf of Mr. Bayly, and was being signed by quite a number of both Liberals and Conservatives, asking that he be given the appointment.

Will Be Settled Shortly.

"The appointment will be made in a few days," said a prominent Conservative, a member of the club, "and if the appointment goes to Mr. Bayly the office will not be divided. The others have not a ghost of a chance, and they will not get the appointment. They have some claim on the party, but they will not be recognized."

The friends of certain candidates have not given up hope yet, but are making a strong fight for their choices. Some of them have openly threatened to make trouble if their candidate is not recognized by the party in this appointment.

Some Conservatives hint that the appointment is liable to go to an outsider if there is any more trouble. They declare that this will restore some sort of harmony, whereas the appointment of any one of the candidates will certainly cause a split."

TO CARRY FREIGHT ON STREET CARS

Montreal Will Have It Taken Through Streets Day and Night.

COMMERCIAL BODIES WANT IT

Railway Pretends Not to be Anxious for It—City to Get a Revenue From It.

Montreal, Aug. 15.—There is every indication that the City of Montreal will grant the Montreal Street Railway a franchise to handle a freight service on its lines. The city has drafted a bylaw under which it will be willing to give the company such a franchise, and it is expected that after certain modifications they will be agreed to by the street railway company.

The proposal that the street railway company should handle freight, strange to say, did not come from the company itself, but from the leading local commercial bodies like the Board of Trade, the Manufacturers' Association, and the Chamber of Commerce, who petitioned the city council that such a franchise should be given the street railway, with a view of relieving the freight congestion that is so acute in the entire business section of the city throughout the shipping season.

Room for It

The main cause of this congestion is that the industrial development of Montreal has occurred mainly in the extreme west end and extreme east end of the city, meaning, as a rule, particularly long hauls for all kinds of cartage business. It is believed that by having this class of business handed over to the electrical lines a good deal of the congestion and delay would be relieved.

In the negotiations the street railway has not appeared over-anxious to establish a freight department, mainly because it was trying to get the franchise without paying much for it. They claim that for a long time it will be largely experimental, and maintain that a freight department has not paid in any of the American cities.

It is intended that the hours for hauling freight should be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and from 7 p.m. to 6 a.m. So far all large commercial bodies have been in favor of such a franchise being given the company, and the only opposition is from some of the unions, who are apprehensive that it will mean less work for regular carters. It is claimed that the city, with its steep hills and long hauls, would be particularly adapted for a good freight service. According to the bylaw prepared, it is intended that the company should pay the city 50 cents for every car handled and the charge for the hauling not to exceed 35 cents a ton.

ASKS RELIEF FOR THE PERSECUTED

Nordau Says Peace Not Possible Until Justice Is Done.

The Hague, Aug. 15.—The eighth international Zionist congress opened here today. Dr. David Wolffsohn, of Cologne, made the opening address. The attendance, which was large, included several delegates to the peace conference.

Dr. De Pinto, vice-president of the Dutch court of cassation, welcomed the Zionists on behalf of the Jewish community at The Hague. The congress has acquired special interest, owing to its being inaugurated while the peace conference is in session, and also because of significant passages in the speeches of the Zionist orators, especially the statements made by Dr. Max Nordau, the president of the congress, regarding the peace conference.

Dr. Nordau said it was impossible to reach real, lasting peace without first securing justice for the subject or persecuted races, among which the Jews occupied the first place.

One of the Zionist delegates called attention to the "flaming enthusiasm of the Zionists," compared with the "indifferent, icy atmosphere of the peace conference," claiming that it showed how strong the racial and national feelings still are, and how far the world is from universal peace.

A FIERY MARRIAGE

Curious Sikh Ceremony Described in the Divorce Court.

London, Aug. 15.—A Sikh native marriage was described in the Divorce Court on Wednesday.

Miss Maria Carolina Birch was granted a decree of nullity of her marriage on the ground that Khan Singh Grewal had already gone through a Sikh child marriage when he was fifteen years of age.

Grewal was a law student at Lincoln's Inn when he met Miss Birch, and they went through a ceremony of marriage at a registry office, he representing himself as a widower.

Investigation showed that seven years before his English marriage Mr. Grewal, after the tribal custom of the Sikhs, had walked with a native bride round a large fire while a Hindoo official "cited the members."

This, said an expert witness, constituted a legal marriage among the Sikhs, who were not polygamists. A Sikh, however, it was stated, could have as many concubines as he could keep.

ROCKEFELLER SEES FINANCIAL CHAOS

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—John D. Rockefeller's answer to President Roosevelt's anti-trust litigation campaign is a prophecy of financial disaster that will sweep the country from end to end.

"What, in your opinion, will be the effect on the country of the present policy of the President toward great business combinations?" Mr. Rockefeller was asked.

"The policy of the present administration," Mr. Rockefeller said earnestly and deliberately, "toward great business combinations of all kinds have only one result. It means disaster to the country, financial depression and financial chaos."

"I will go further and say today, that because of the administration with its reports every five minutes of new actions and of heavy fines, the country is already beginning to drift toward the rocks of financial depression."

"Confidence is gone, and confidence is the basis of all prosperity. With confidence established there can be no stopping of the wheels of progress. Without it all is at a standstill."

"The investor, great and small, locks up his money and refuses to venture forth."

"There was a time not long ago before the present runaway, hit or miss, impulsive agitation began, that I would be called up on the telephone, say by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., say by Mr. Morgan's office, and in terms asked if I wanted to come in a syndicate, and a certain allotment of shares would be given to me, but I was also told that I would have to make immediate answer. If my reply was that I needed several days for consideration, the telephone receiver would be hung up in all likelihood. When I called several days later, and said I would go in the syndicate I would be curtly informed that I had lost my opportunity; that the syndicate had been completed."

Is Offered 7 Per Cent for Loan.

"What is the situation now? I am called and asked to participate in many syndicates, but in none of them is the time for decision fixed on the instant. In former days the former attitude, I know they are content to await my decision, and I know there is no danger that I will be too late."

"I can judge in another way. Requests are coming to me today for money from quarters it was least expected would be asking for money some time ago. Today I was offered the unprecedented interest of 7 per cent for $1,000,000, or $2,000,000, or $3,000,000. The security was beyond all criticism. That would be impossible in this country if there was confidence enough to unlock the money vault of the country."

"It is really of no great moment to me. I am through with business. Loss or gain no longer affects me. I am content as I am today. I am in better health than I have been for many years. I am happier than I have been for twelve years or more."

"Why are men making these offers to me now? It is because of a lack of confidence. Not a lack of confidence in the resources of the country, not because there is any danger of foreign entanglements, nor because of crop failures, nor of the monetary policy, nor of any social condition, but a lack of confidence in this administration."

IMMUNITY FOR C. AND A. MEN

May Escape From Testifying Against the Standard Oil Company.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Announcement was made today by Attorney-General Bonaparte that an important conference will take place on Monday at the department of justice, in which the subject of the promise of immunity given to the Chicago and Alton Railroad officials given by District Attorney Morrison would be discussed. The Attorney-General said he understood that certain testimony and statements were to be presented to him, and would receive careful examination and consideration.

Attorney-General Bonaparte was asked if Judge Landis had replied to his letter informing him that Judge Morrison had made to the Chicago and Alton officials the promise of immunity in consideration of their furnishing evidence in the Standard Oil Company's case. He replied that he had not heard from Judge Landis.

"It may be noted, too," he added, "that Judge Landis did not publish my letter to him or the letters of District Attorney Morrison. Those letters state the attitude of the department of justice in the Chicago and Alton immunity matter, as we understand it now."

The Attorney-General declined to state what further action he intended to take against corporations which he believed to be violating the law.

COST OF AN ENGLISH GIRL

Mother of One Presented at Court Puts
It at $37,000 at the Age of 20.

London, Aug. 15.—The discussion of the cost of bringing up children, continues to go on in a lively manner. The most conspicuous contribution today is the experience of a woman, whose eldest daughter was presented at court this year. Her statement deals with a girl reared in such a home as that of the Eton and Oxford boy described previously, and represents that the daughter cost her parents in 20 years a grand total of £7,400, an average of £370 yearly.

The details show she cost £220 yearly for the first eight years, £280 for the next six years, while in her 16th, 17th and 18th years her annual cost was £470. The mother adds that her 19th and part of her 20th year were spent in Paris and Dresden at a cost of £750. The statement continues:

"I then took a house in London for the season in order that she might be brought out and presented at court, an essential part of her education. I paid a dressmaker and milliner on her season account £580, a jeweler £340, a dressmaker £75, a collector £46, and in entertaining on her account probably £500."

THE KIEL RACES.

Kiel, Germany, Aug. 15.—The German Sonder Klasse yacht Wanne won today's race for the Emperor William's cup, beating the Marblehead, which was second, by one minute, twenty seconds.

The Wittelsbach, Chewink VIII, Spokane, and Tilly finished in the order named.

CHOLERA MORBUS, cramps and kindred complaints annually make their appearance at the same time as the hot weather. green fruit, cucumbers, melons, etc., and many persons are debilitated from eating these tempting things, but they need not abstain if they have Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Bromelain Tablets and take a few doses in water. It cures the cramps and cholera in a remarkable manner, and is sure to check over disturbance of the bowels.

FINE FARM COUNTRY

So Says Surveyor of District North of Edmonton.

Edmonton, Alberta, Aug. 15.—Civil Engineer Ponton, who has been directed by the surveyor-general of Canada to run a line of the fifth meridian north some 200 miles from township 76, to which point Selly's survey carried the meridian in 1905, has returned here to meet his partner, Mr. Macbeth, of Macleod. Mr. Ponton treats the report that he was giving up the work of running the fifth meridian on account of difficulties encountered, notably black flies and mosquitoes, as a joke or canard, and says that his friends in the west who have known him 30 years will not believe such a story. On the other hand, Mr. Ponton says that the men are getting on well and that the horses are fat and sleek. He says he will have the line run the required distance by next March.

Mr. Ponton saw his provisions were not going to carry him through to Wabiscaw, and he had the alternative of going back to Athabasca Landing for his extra necessities.

Mr. Ponton says that the country through which he is running the line is fine farming country, where the soil is rich and deep, with sufficient grit in it to make it easy plough. From some points on the line he could see for 25 miles either way over a charming country covered with medium sized poplar.

LOBSTERS ON INCREASE

Work of Fish Commission Prevents Danger of Famine.

Washington, Aug. 15.—There is no danger of a lobster famine upon the Atlantic coast, according to views of United States Fish Commissioner George M. Bowers. Mr. Bowers expects through the work that has been done by the Government that this desirable shell fish will become more plentiful next year, and after that time the industry will be on a stable basis, which will enable the fishermen to supply the demands of the market without much difficulty.

Three years ago the commission began to supply young lobsters to the Atlantic coast fisheries in great quantities. The success of this propagation, it is stated, has been beyond the expectations of the commission. Young lobsters have enjoyed such a healthy growth on the Atlantic coast that this year the commission turned loose no less than 3,000,000 more in the waters of the Atlantic.

With the propagation of the last three years, Commissioner Bowers thinks that by next year the supply will fully satisfy all the demands of the shell fish trade. The commissioner says that when the figures of this year are ready for publication, it will be found that the work of the commission has been productive of surprising results.

STOLE AUTOS FOR GIRL

Des Moines Young Man Attempted to Play Millionaire Part.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 15.—Taking the chances of a long term in prison to discover by his sweetheart that he is not really a young millionaire, Robert Stevens, 19 years old, has been stealing automobiles nightly to take the young woman for fast drives into the country. Stevens was arrested last evening just as he was starting out with a machine owned by H. M. Trisler.

Stevens was in the habit of taking the first automobile he could find without an owner, then taking a forty or fifty mile ride, with the girl. After his evening drive, Stevens would abandon the machine.

The thefts continued with regularity, and apparently the police were helpless until they discovered a bunch of sweet peas in the empty machine. In the bunch was one of a peculiar shade, which, it was found, was grown only in one garden in the city. Stevens was shadowed for several days by detectives until last night, when he was arrested.

LONDON, FRIDAY, AUGUST 14

MR. JUDD AT FORT WILLIAM.

"Move To Curb Corporations; Mayor Judd in Opposition."

This headline in today's Free Press recalls some recent municipal history.
Mr. Judd's candidature for the mayoralty has been opposed on each occasion on the ground of his relations with public service corporations, particularly with the one which controls the light and power business of the city.
The Advertiser pointed out that Mr.
Judd, as mayor, would be placed in a position where his personal interests might conflict with his public duty, especially in view of the imminence of the Niagara power question. Our local contemporary accused us of making unfair and unwarranted attacks upon Mr. Judd, and applauded him as a civic patriot. The gush which it printed at that time would look amusing in print today, in the light of recent developments.

In the last mayoralty campaign the attempt to couple Mr. Judd's candidature with the public ownership movement was transparently insincere.
With one breath the people were urged to vote for "cheap power" and with the next to vote for a shareholder in a power corporation.

The convention of Canadian municipalities is meeting at Fort William, and yesterday a resolution was brought forward to ask the Federal Government to regulate the maximum rates charged by corporations supplying light, heat and power to municipalities.
The only delegates opposing the motion were Mayor Judd of London, and Mayor Cassineau of St. Laurent, Que.
Mayor Judd will find it difficult to convince citizens of London that his vote was not influenced by private considerations. At any rate, he was placed by his corporation affiliations in an equivocal position. The opposition to his mayoralty claims has been justified by events.

STANDARD OIL ABROAD.

A report just issued at Washington by the United States commissioner of corporations, deals particularly with the foreign relations of the Standard Oil Company, and with the discriminations between localities, or "local underselling," for the purpose of crushing competitors. It shows that in the long run American consumers finance the Standard campaigns abroad. The American margins, it says, are "from one and one-half to three times as high as the foreign margins." It is shown that during the last eight years prices of illuminating oil in the United States have been far in excess of the foreign prices, and it is demonstrated clearly that the United States price during specified periods was higher than that of Britain, Germany, the Netherlands, Denmark, Belgium, and the Orient. The report refutes the arguments that an over-supply of oil abroad at the time necessitated the difference in price, that competition of Russian and other foreign oils had to be met, and that to retain the American export trade there had to be reductions in export and foreign prices.

The facts show that instead of an over-supply in the foreign market during the period under consideration, there was an actual decline in importations, but at the same time there was a material decrease in prices. Indeed, the price movement, market conditions considered, was directly opposite to that which might have been expected.
Moreover, in one year the trust took large quantities of Russian oil for shipment to other European countries and the Orient, and has secured large crude productions in Roumania, establishing there and elsewhere refineries for the refining of foreign crude oil. The report admits that the trust in 1904 and 1905 met new competition in foreign markets, but shows that these new competitors were for the most part a group of concerns which procured much of their supply of oil from the United States. In short, there is ample evidence that while the people of America have been forced to pay monopoly prices for oil or gas without it, foreigners have been enjoying lower prices; that to maintain its dominance abroad the trust has used the enormous profits made in its own country by devious methods.

Why the Standard Oil Company should be singled out for attack by the Government and its officials for selling oil cheaper abroad than at home is a question which thinking people in the United States are asking the defenders of the Dingley tariff.
The steel trust, the meat trust, the sugar trust, and a score of other great

Industrial organizations, have been doing the same thing for years, and Republican politicians have argued that the practice is in the interest of American labor.

The Standard Oil Company is one of the few trusts built up without the aid of a tariff. It has nothing to fear in the American market from foreign competition. The American people have it in their power to curb other trusts by tariff regulations, but they have so far refrained from doing so.
The administration, in assailing the Standard Oil Company for charging monopoly prices at home and selling cheaply to foreigners, while protecting other trusts in the same methods, is clearly, stultifying itself, and its opponents are making the most of the argument.

INDIGNANT CONSERVATIVES.

In his statement in The Advertiser yesterday, Mr. A. E. Cooper declared that the Conservative party in London could not be held responsible for the action of the School Board, which he roundly denounced.

Mr. Cooper is quite right. There are many hundreds of Conservatives who share his indignation and feel that the party has been duped.

In the last municipal election Conservatives were told that the Liberals had tried to run school affairs on political lines, merely because a Liberal, for the first time in years, was elected to the chairmanship of the Board by the votes of Liberal trustees. Vehement appeals were made to members of the party to vote only for the Conservative ticket, and they took the bait. Few, if any, knew that they had promoted a conspiracy which was engineered in view of the prospective vacancy in the head-mastership of the Collegiate Institute. They now realize why party feeling was lashed so vigorously in the municipal election.

There is not an intelligent Conservative in London who would indorse the idea of partisanship in the appointment or promotion of teachers.
The morale of the teaching profession is of vital importance to good citizenship, and there is a general agreement that this is one sphere of patronage in which politics must not enter. The resentment of fair-minded Conservatives over the introduction of the spoils influence into this department is a hopeful sign. If all citizens would speak out as plainly as Dr. Wilson or Mr. Cooper when a wrong of this kind is committed, there would be a distinct improvement in the tone of the community.

The School Board will have to learn that nothing is settled until it is settled right.

Russia and Japan have buried the hatchet, and the former now wishes she had not waited to be scalped.

Georgia is the latest of the Southern States to disfranchise the negro in direct violation of the constitution. The colored problem was not settled by the civil war.

The quidnuncs announce that friendship has been restored between Great Britain and Germany, the King and Kaiser having refrained from biting each other when they kissed.

The western paper trust has sent agents to spy out Canada's pulpwood resources. The time is coming when Canadian pulpwood will remain in Canada until it is converted into pulp or paper.

There is some speculation as to whether
Mr. Foster will be one of Mr. Borden's traveling companions in his stumping tour. If Mr. Borden is to raise the anti-graft cry he must be consistent.

HIS ONLY CHANGE.

[Chicago Daily News.]

Jack-I'm afraid it will be hard work for you to induce Miss Roelke to marry you, old man.

Tom-Well, I know it will be hard work for me if I don't.

A REQUISITE.

[Washington Star.]

"Do you think your boy Josh will make a successful farmer?"

"No," answered Farmer Cornsloss. "He don't appear to know much more about keeping summer boarders than me and Mandy does."

DOMESTIC TYRANTS.

[Washington Star.]

"Some men," said Uncle Eben, "anda fault around home because it's de only place whah dey's important enough to git a chance to speak deir minds."

TRUE!

[Buffalo News.]

It takes all kinds of people to make up a world, including the cheerful, pie-faced mut who insists that "it isn't the heat so much as it is the humidity."

AS SHE RECALLED IT

[Chicago Tribune.]

"Yes," said Mrs. Lappling, "my husband enjoyed his trip ever so much. He says the train he traveled on had the finest buffoon car he ever saw in his life."

A CHANGE SUGGESTED.

[Manitoba Free Press.]

"I dislike the word 'colonies,'" writes Burdard Kipling in a letter to a gentleman in Winnipeg, recently published in the free press. "And if you look through my verses you will find I very seldom use it. It is out of date and misleading." Meaningless, more than misleading, and out of date ever since there has been a Dominion of Canada, is the name of the Intercolonial Canadian Railway. More than one writer in the Maritime press has advocated changing the name; and the announcement that the name is to be transposed, so as to be the "Canadian Intercolonial Railway," in order that the intercolonial railway, in the United States, as "I. C. R." are, has led to a renewal of the suggestion in the Montreal Herald.

The word "intercolonial" is a moss-backed antique, that should be discarded from the title of the Government railway.

DISAPPOINTED.

[Punch.]

Ardent Archaeologist (exploring ancient fortification)—My dear sir, we have just found a most wonderful find. This fragment of pottery, which we have here, anciently proves conclusively that these mounds must have been erected at least three thousand years before the Roman Empire.

Algy (with sister and expectant dog)—Er thanks. We—rather hoped you might be diggin' out a badger!

WENT AGAINST THE GRAIN.

[Chicago Tribune.]

The young woman in the grand stand demurred.

"A few moments ago," she said, "you reminded that these two clubs split even in their last two games. Just now you observed that it was an even break. If it is a split it cannot be a break."

"You've got the dead wood on me!" gasped the young man, mentally resolving to reconstruct his baseball vocabulary before springing it on a Boston girl again.

WHAT HE MEANT.

[Chicago News.]

"Excuse me, old man," said Ardupp, addressing an acquaintance who was talking with a friend, "but can I see you apart for a moment?"

"You mean alone, don't you?" rejoined the other, as he winked at his friend.

"That's it," answered Ardupp. "I want to see you about a loan of $5 for a few days."

A 1907 ELOPEMENT.

[Lippincott's Magazine.]

The coatless man put a careless arm round the waist of the hatless girl.
While over the dusky, mudless roads in a horseless wagon they whirled.
Like a headless bullet from a hammerless gun.

By smokeless powder driven,
They fly to taste the speechless joys
By endless union given.

The only luncheon on his coquise purse
Affords to them the means
Is a tasteless meal of boneless cod,
With a dish of stringless beans.

He smokes his old tobacco pipe,
And laughs a mirthless laugh.
When papa tries to coax her back
By wireless telegraph.

LONG-LIVED PRIME MINISTERS.

[The Bits.]

The fact that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, who will celebrate his 75th birthday in September, is not only Premier, but also Father of the House of Commons, invites comparison with the ages of other prime ministers of the past. Mr. Balfour will only be 59 on the 25th of the present month, at which age, curiously enough,
Mr. Gladstone first succeeded to the premiership. It was not until nearly thirty years later that the "G. O. M." passed away, and broke a record which had been held by Lord Sidmouth, who died at the age of more than 85.

Other octogenarian premiers were Earl Russell, who nearly completed his 86th year, and to the last strenuously advocated popular measures, in spite of the nickname of "Finality Jack" which was bestowed upon him, and his declaration in favor of "resting and be thankful"; the Iron Duke, who lived to celebrate his 82nd birthday, and Lord Palmerston and Earl Grey, who both died at 81.

Of the other Prime Ministers of the Queen who are dead, Disraeli's age was 77, the Earl of Aberdeen's 75, the Earl of Derby's 70, Viscount Melbourne's 69, and Sir Robert Peel's 62.

CORRECTED.

[Punch.]

Mary had a little man,
He took her out to dine,
But Mary had no little lamb,
Said she: "No lamb for mine!"
She ordered all from soup to nuts,
And finished up with wine.

IDEAL.

[Life.]

"She is a nice girl, isn't she?"
"Very. The kind of a girl you'd like to marry, after you've gotten through falling in love."

FINANCIAL ITEM.

[Chicago News.]

"My face is my fortune, sir," she said.
"How long have you been broke?"
queried the rude man.

THE USUAL THING.

[Milwaukee Sentinel.]

"How long do you intend to be gone on your vacation?"
"Two weeks' salary and a loan of $30."

A CASE OF BEDDING.

[Somerville Journal.]

She-I understand that you camped out in the rain one night without any bedding.

He-Oh, no. We had plenty of bedding.
The storm was a wet blanket on our pleasure, and the rain came down in sheets."

NOT TO BE DAUNTED.

[New York Sun.]

A young Briton named Felix Oswald became interested in a geology of Turkish Armenia. He made long journeys through that country, and finally came home with an important amount of valuable new material. It was not matter, however, that would find favor in the eyes of the general publisher, and Mr. Oswald had to undertake its publication himself.
He had the type set at the lowest rates in a small town. There were 536 pages of print, and the author undertook the large task of doing the printing himself. He hired a hand press, and after weeks of hard work he had produced 104 copies of the book. Feeling certain that this edition would fill the demand he went about the next large job, which was the hand coloring of all his maps and profiles. Then the copies were bound and the book sent out.
Leaving geology as that the work is one of the best of its kind. The small edition is exhausted, and the book will not be reprinted. The editor of Petermann's Mitteilungen, believing that a wide circle of geologists would be glad to have the important results of Oswald's investigations, has just printed in his periodical an extended resume of them, together with some of the maps. The University of London has crowned the work with the approval of conferring the degree of Doctor of Science upon the author. Oswald has certainly earned the congratulations of all who admire the qualities of courage, perseverance and intelligent devotion to a special task.

NOTHING DOING.

[Philadelphia Ledger.]

A sophisticated mother who felt responsible for the future of her daughters said to one of them:

"Anna, what did young Mr. Jones say to you last night when he was buttoning your blouse? I saw he was slightly excited."

"Why," answered Anna, "he said that the person who made a glove so hard to button as that deserved to be killed."

"My dear," retorted her mother, impres-sioned, "don't waste any more of your time on young Mr. Jones."

TOOK ANOTHER FROM SKEETERS

Maple Leafs Capture Exciting Final Game From New Jersey.

Toronto, Aug. 14.—Good-bye Skeeters. Yes, Joe Bean's artists are gone for this season, but their closing exhibition with the Leafs will go down as a game long to be remembered by those present. It was a pitchers' duel between a youngster and a veteran—Wormwood and Mitchell, with honors even.

As a parting salute, the Pets were compelled to come to bat in the ninth for the first time in the series, as the score stood 2-2, but a base on balls, a sacrifice, along with a wild pitch and Widensaul's single, brought in the necessary to win the exhibition and the five-game series.

Let it be remembered in passing that the visitors had two chances; a fielder's choice, a stolen base and a three-bagger, while one fanned and another foiled out, yet not a man tallied. It was worked like this: Wormwood fanned, while Clement smashed a liner over first for three sacks, but was nipped at the plate on Bean's fielder's choice to Frick. Bean purloined the middle sack, while Curtis and Handford were passed up. Then Vandergrift fouled to Carrigan.

The visitors had everybody in hot water in the ninth. Handford was safe on his infield hit, while Vandergrift popped on over the initial sack, Hand-ford going to third. Keister grounded to Flynn, who held Handford at third.
Woods was issued free transportation, and, with every peg occupied, Butler smashed a liner at Phyle, who allowed it to get away from him. Handford crossed in the ninth, Wormwood fouled to Phyle, while Mitchell made a flying stab of Clement's hit, nailing him at the first turn, retiring the side.

Wotell, the first man up for the Leafs, was given a base on balls, and hit two of the same kind on the second and third. Bean replaced Wormwood with Lake, and was silently thanked by the fans, as the youngster had been an enigma for the Kellyites. Mitchell sacrificed Wotell a peg, the runner going to a nook from home on Lake's wild pitch. Wit two and one on the second, Wotell, who was unable to reach the ball, and the game was over, as Wotell tallied.

Toronto's initial score was made in the first, when Wotell was passed up, going to third on Schaffly's liner over second, scoring on Kelly's fly to center. Their second was made in the fourth, when Wotell, who was unable to reach the ball, and the game was over, as Wotell tallied.

With one down, Phyle singled, purloined a sack, stretching it into two,
when Butler threw wild to second.
Carrigan proved a good walter, and then tried to piff a nook, but was unsuccessful. However, he got back to first safely, thanks to Bean's error, and with the visitors asleep, he made a dash for second, Vandergrift throwing wild to Curtis, who was on the bag, Phyle scoring. Flynn and Frick were retired as they batted. There was some great baseball played, Frick, Schaffly and Flynn pulling off a fast double in the fourth, while the work of Flynn and Vandergrift, the two first basemen, was excellent. Carrigan, as usual, played a heady game behind the bat, while on the bases he had the visitors going all the time, no less than two being purloined by Bill, and these were the only times he managed to reach first.

Mitchell pitched a great game throughout and from this on will be able to take his turn at the twirling, which will be good news to the fans.
Dr. Goldwin Smith was the guest of the first he had witnessed, and with that enthusiastic fan, James L. Hughes, beside him, he must have passed an interesting afternoon. Score:

WON'T CHALLENGE JEFF.

Burns Will Not Force Fight on Big Fellow.

Los Angeles, Cal. Aug. 15.—Tommy Burns has amended the statement credited to him in his recent conference with Billy Delaney, and says that his statement that he intended to challenge Jeffries applied only in case the pudencious Jeff came out of retirement. He said he had no desire to force a fight with him.

Burns got back today from a flying trip to Reno, whither he went to make a booking for his show. The venture was not a financial success in San Francisco, but has drawn fairly well.

Jeffries called on both Burns and Memo today, and told them he would be present when they weighed in. He notified each that, to prevent any public comment, he would insist that each weigh 135 pounds stripped. Any overweight would not be allowed, he said.

DOMINION BOWLING LIST

Outside Entries Will Be Strong This Year.

Toronto, Aug. 15.—The entries for the Dominion bowling tournament, which opens at the Woodbine on Monday next give promise of a long list.
The outside list ought to be quite up to the usual mark or better even than last year. Entries are in from Berlin, London, Stratford, Elora, Waterloo, Paris and Unionville, and doubtless several other centers will be heard from.

NEW RIFLE RANGES.

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—A number of new rifle ranges are being established throughout Canada for the purpose of carrying out the militia policy of developing rifle shooting. Sites for ranges have been bought in Fort William and Edmonton, and arrangements are being made for ranges in

My Lady Cinderella

By Mrs. G. N. Williamson

Author of "My Friend the Chauffeur," "Lady Betty Across the Water," Etc., Etc.

Perhaps it was as well that the story had been told me in brief, without waiting, or, as things were to fall out, I might never have heard it at all.

I knew that the men would be at least twenty minutes at the table before coming in, as in the drawing-room, and I determined to utilize the interval ere I should be called upon to redeem my promise to Sir George in ransacking the escritoire for that suggested secret drawer.

As the ladies trooped out of the dining-room, I—the least, the youngest, the last, and only untitled one of the party—flew across the hall to the wide oak staircase that wound above. There were numerous turns and passages, with steps up and down, to be traversed on the way to my octagon room with the bow windows; but I met no one. As I paused before my own door I thought that I heard a slight sound inside. "Adele," I observed to myself as I turned the handle. The door stuck a little, but I gave a resolute push and it flew open.

Someone was kneeling at the desk, and, surprised by my sudden entrance, was in the act of rising from her knees. But it was not Adele. It was Diana Dunbar, and round her, on the floor, were scattered in confusion every drawer, every movable stick of wood from the escritoire.

She sprang up, her eyes dilated, her bosom under a dark evening cloak, rising and falling. For a moment we stared at each other without speaking; but it was I who first found breath. "Good evening, Miss Dunbar," I said. "You didn't expect me quite so soon, perhaps?"

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN.

A CHARMING OVER-BLOSS DRESS—6932.

The fashion for over-bloss dresses which are completed by guimpes is a most youthful and becoming one, and the woman who values a pleasing appearance makes use of the mode. Here is shown a gown of this style quite simple in making and exceedingly smart. The over-bloss is joined to the skirt by a belt of the material, the center front of the waist extending over the belt in a tab effect, which is most becoming. Tucks over the shoulder and in back provide a fullness for the front and good lines in the back. The skirt is in the gores, with tucks at each seam, and in back. Linen, pongee, taffetas and voile are the most popular materials for these costumes, 6 yards, 44 inches wide, being needed for this in the medium size.

6932—Five sizes, 32 to 40 inches bust measure. The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

Dunbar answered, defiant, but panting. "There it is—one the desk—half done." She pointed to a sheet of paper and an envelope with a pen lying beside them. The whole room was perfumed with the sweet, subtle scent that always hung about her person and her clothing. I felt that I should have known she had been there even if she had gone before I came.

"I drove over from Mrs. Marlowe's, where we are staying," she desperately went on. "I wanted very much to see you. Dinner here was later than with us, and you had not yet finished. I could not wait, so I asked for Lady Sophie's maid, and bade her show me into your room, where I might sit down quietly and write."

"Is it your custom to write on your knees, and do you always take out the drawers of the desk at which you sit before beginning?" I demanded severely.

"I found the drawers exactly as they are now, and left them so. I don't know who has disturbed your desk, certainly not I. I had dropped something of my own, and stopped to look for it just before you came."

"I don't doubt that you had stooped to look for something," I said with emphasis, "but I venture to think that the something was mine, not yours."

"Of what do you accuse me?" she fiercely broke in.

"You have been sent here by the man who calls himself Wynnstay. But for him you would have heard nothing of this escritoire. What he and Lady Dunbar know about me you know now also, though you may not have known it long. You perhaps have a separate purpose of your own in coming, but you are killing two birds with one stone. Still, I think that I was in time; I think that you have not yet done what you tried to do."

"You are mad!" she ejaculated. "I don't know what you are talking about. I don't believe you know yourself."

"You were looking for the secret drawer with the papers," I said, as decidedly as if I were not speaking at a venture, merely making use of Sir George's presumption to startle her if she were guilty.

As I uttered the words I kept my eyes upon her face, and in the clear electric light with which she had flooded the room I saw her color come and go. She drew in her breath sharply, but before she could speak I had begun again, moved by some influence which I did not understand—an influence that did not whisper of the dark horror that can come of a few impulsive words.

"I might have saved you the trouble," I went on, almost calmly, "if you had chosen to ask me instead of trying to help yourself. I have already opened the drawer and removed the papers, which shall never leave me after this until I choose to make use of them."

"You little fiend! you little tiger-cat!" she hissed.

"All you don't pretend to misunderstand me any longer."

"It's your turn now, Conquero Brand; you have the advantage of me in this one move; I admit it. No, I won't pretend to misunderstand you. I did know about the escritoire; I did look for the drawer. Those papers you have are of no importance to you. They are useless; you can do nothing with them. But my poor mother, whose life has been tragedy, cannot bear that they should exist. Haven't you seen how she has changed in as many days. My heart has been breaking for her. At last I persuaded her to tell me all the truth. You don't think I can help you," I said. But the mouse gnawed the net that held the lion prisoner, and you must not despise what I can do. If I could have got into this room (which was mine last year when we stayed here) and discovered the drawer and the papers, by the instructions which I had brought with me, before you came, I would have done it, and gone away. Yet I had provided for this thing that has happened."

"You had provided for it by telling me falsehoods, which I did not believe, but found you out instead," I interpolated.

"Yes, I did tell you falsehoods. I am working for another, not myself, and I am not too scrupulous in a good cause. If you had believed my story about the letter (which I really did begin as a blind), I would have given you certain information which it is in my power to give, and left you with my better luck next time. But you did not believe; you thought yourself supernaturally clever in reading my real motive and flinging it at my head. Well, I am no coward; I admit the truth, as I was ready from the first to do if the necessity arose. You cannot harm me, hand, like a white mouse whose bones I can crunch—crunch! I will offer you just one chance, white mouse. Show yourself merciful to a poor woman who is growing old, who has done you no evil, and I'll leave you the piece of luck that by a fluke has come in your way. Give me those papers, valueless to you, because they can prove nothing, but precious to my mother, and I stand aside. You may marry Sir George Seaforth in peace—if you can get him."

"I cannot see why you should be the arbiter of my fate, Miss Dunbar," I answered quietly, though my voice trembled. "It seems to me the worst of taste that you and I should discuss such a subject; while as for the papers, they are mine, and I shall certainly not give them up."

My words surprised myself. Until she had confirmed my vague suspicions I had been in the dark regarding the existence of a secret drawer and its supposititious contents. But now the papers that were hidden alike from me and those who had risked so much to obtain them were the immediate jewels of my soul. If possession be nine points of the law, they were hardly yet my property. But I felt them so much mine that I would have cut off my right hand sooner than yield them to Diana Dunbar as any of her faction.

"Have you no heart?" she retorted; "no pity for my mother?"

"Has she any pity for me?" I echoed. Somehow the words came before me, and Diana winced; why, I did not know. "You are mistaken in thinking that I cannot be the arbiter of your fate," she quoted. "At this moment your future rests with me. To be sure, after what I could tell you, a thoroughly mercenary girl, eaten up with ambition, utterly devoid of self-respect, might marry a man and be happy in getting what she had bargained to get. But though I hate you as I never hated any other human being, I do you the justice to believe you are not such a girl as that. Ignorance is bliss; ignorance is often honorable. If you would keep it, give up the papers."

"I shall not give up the papers," I repeated, and moved to the bell, which by raising my hand I could touch. There had been that in Diana's eyes for the fraction of a second which had warned me that prudence might be valor. She had been led to believe that I had the papers (whatever they were) on my person; and she was a bigger, stronger woman than I. I had spoken that which was not true in saying that I had found the secret drawer and removed its contents; but the words had moved its contents; but the words had moved its contents. I was to be punished for them later; but now I did not wish Diana to learn by force the deception I had practiced.

"Very well, then, keep the papers, and repent at leisure. There are many ways of making you regret your obstinacy, and I assure you they won't be lacking. But you have chosen knowledge instead of ignorance, and now you shall hear why you can never be George Seaforth's wife, if you would retain your self-respect."

"What if I refuse to hear you?" I said, my voice sounding strangely faint and far away in my own ears. "What if I touch the bell, and bid Adele show you downstairs?"

"Do so, and the story shall come to you from other lips than mine. I promised you a fortnight ago that I would find out the secret of your coming to Lady Sophie de Gretton. I have found it out. And if you will not hear it from me, I shall do as I once threatened, and tell the truth to the whole world. I do not believe George Seaforth has ever asked you to marry him, or ever will. But if he should do so, it will only be through a mistaken sense of honor, because he feels that his folly has irretrievably injured you, spoiled your future. Shall all your so-called friends whisper about this thing that I know until the story comes to you, or will you hear it now from me?"

"I will hear it now from you," I echoed mechanically.

"Very well," said Diana. She paused a moment, and then went on: "One night, a few months ago, three young men were dining together at their club. Somehow the subject of women who were famous as beauties came up. One of the three said that to become a social celebrity a girl must, in the first place, have a good social position, and her people must be well and favorably known. Or else she must be a great heiress, with money enough to force herself down the throat of society."

"The second man thought rather differently. He argued that a woman's fame as a beauty depended upon some lucky chance. Nobody could ever tell why one girl or woman, perhaps not as handsome as her neighbors, should suddenly be lauded above them as the most exquisite being on earth. (Of course, actresses and other professionals who live by making themselves conspicuous did not come into the category at all; these men were talking mainly of women in society.)"

"And the third man's opinion differed from his friends'. He said that it would be the easiest thing in the world to make the reputation of a beauty. A few newspapers might do it, if they went to work in the right way; but still better would it be for a popular young man to undertake the task. He then went on to bet that he himself could 'work' such an scheme. Given a young woman pretty, well educated, with decent manners, no matter how poor, how insignificant, how entirely unknown at the beginning of a season, by the end he could render her the most admired, most sought-after girl in town."

"His friends wanted to know how he would accomplish this. It would be very simple, he returned. He would show the girl great attention, send her flowers, be apparently her devoted slave. He would rave over her perfections at every opportunity, and by force of example induce others to think it was 'the thing' to admire her inordinately."

"His two companions were ready to bet him almost anything that with all his popularity he would not make a celebrity of an unknown girl without money or position, try as he would. What had begun in idle fun ended in earnest. There was a wager between the three of a thousand pounds, the man who had made the bet to divide the sum between the other two, if by the end of the season he had failed in bringing off his coup."

"He was to ask a certain lady, well known in the set to which they all belonged, to find a suitable young woman. She was to have so much for her trouble in chaperoning and launching the girl in society, and George—the man was to pay the Experiment's board, pay for her smart clothing, and see that she had plenty of pocket money."

"Be silent!" I cried out in ungenerous anguish, writhing under the lash of the awful words. "Do not believe it. You are lying to me."

"So you guess the man's name? You see now why Lady Sophie de Gretton took you up; why, though she is poor and stingy and selfish, you have had every luxury. You understand why George Seaforth has been at your feet, has let himself be gossiped about as your admirer. Think of it! Everything you have on at this moment, from your shoes to your pretty pink frock, has been paid for out of his pocket."

I shuddered, and a low moan of misery came shivering from my lips. "It isn't true! You want to kill me!" I stammered, with a tearing sob.

CRANKY TEMPER OF THE GREAT

CARLYLE UNSYMPATHETIC IN INTERCOURSE WITH FRIENDS.

A Story of the Great Dean Swift—Insisted on Host Eating Asparagus Stalks.

Carlyle, in addition to his other troubles, was a great sufferer from dyspepsia. He was, therefore, anything but sympathetic in intercourse with his friends, anything but fair in his estimates of other writers.

Though Carlyle personally liked Tennyson, he spoke with impatience of his "cobbling his soles"; dismissed Jane Austen's novels as "dish washing"; Hallam, the historian, as "dry as dust"; and Goldsmith as an "Irish blackguard." Even the writers of editorials in the press were scored by the irritable Sage of Chelsea. "What are these fellows doing?" he asked. "They only serve to cancel one other."

A characteristic incident illustrates Carlyle's disposition to inflict pain even on a friend. An artist, who frequented the house of Carlyle, painted a picture of him in his dressing gown smoking a pipe by the fireside. Mrs. Carlyle in an arm chair sitting opposite him. The portrait was hung at one of the Royal Academy's exhibitions, and, though not a striking work of art, was purchased by Lord Ashburton, Carlyle's friend, for five hundred pounds.

The delighted artist hurried off to the Carlyles, expecting congratulations on the sale, and some manifestation of pleasure on their part at having such a value priced on a picture of themselves and their domestic interior. He delivered his glad tidings; but the only response he got from Carlyle was: "Well, mon, five hundred pounds was just four hundred and ninety-five pounds too much."

Browning one day left a copy of his new poems at Carlyle's house, in speaking of this action to Tennyson the next day, Carlyle broke out with a savage snarl: "What did that fellow mean by leaving that cartload of stones at my door?"

Tennyson himself, though not nearly so grouchy as the Chelsea Sage, was yet considerable of a growler on occasion. Especially did this tendency on his part become manifest when he suspected a disposition on any side to lionize him.

It is related that, at a dinner in London, to which he had gone much against his will at the solicitation of a relative, the poet laureate soon discovered that the company were expecting some pearls of thought from him. He glowered at the gathering in such a way as visibly to disconcert some of them. Then, as if purposely to utter the most unpoetical remark he could devise, with a grim smile he turned to his hostess—all the guests in silence, waiting the slightest word of genius—and growled out: "Madam, I like my mutton cut in chunks—in chunks, madam, in chunks!"

Perhaps the greatest grudge of literature was Dean Swift, that whimsical misanthrope, who evinced a morbid delight in humiliating his enemies through various keys, and continued the improvisation until the uneasy Handel began to wonder when he would really come to the "shake" that was to terminate the part, and bring in the other instruments. Eventually Durbourg finished the cadenza with a grand flourish, whereupon Handel, to the great distress of the leader, put his hands to his mouth and shouted across the hall: "Welcome home, welcome home, Mr. Durbourg!"

On one occasion a peturbed singer had some warm words with Handel, who had been making some sarcastic references to his ability, and wound up by threatening to jump on the harpsichord that Handel played.

"Let me know when you will do dat," retorted Handel, "and I will advertise it, for I am sure more people will come to see you jump than to hear you sing!"

It has been said that the frankness of another noted musician, Hans von Bulow, almost equaled that of Handel. Bulow was accustomed at one time to meet a large class twice a year in Germany, at which many members were listeners, while those who wished to play might send in their names to him. Sometimes Bulow chose those whom he preferred, and sent out for them, while the rest waited in terror for their turn to come. This nervousness of anticipation was not without cause.

An awkward English girl one day went to the piano, and, frightened almost out of her wits, managed to play her selection after a fashion.

"Ach!" roared Bulow. "You play the easy passages with a difficulty that is simply enormous!"

Once in playing at a concert Bulow stopped abruptly, and ordered the ushers to turn the piano around. His reason was asked; whereupon he replied that a woman in the audience annoyed him unpeppably by fanning herself out of time.

"I knew nothing of the purpose to hold such a kick-up. I should have been informed of it beforehand; but as I am now returned home to study,

That is what the baker is doing who buys "FIVE ROSES" or "HARVEST QUEEN" FLOUR, even if he has to pay a little more for it than for an ordinary flour. The extra price paid is one of the best investments he can make.

"FIVE ROSES" and "HARVEST QUEEN" are milled from selected Manitoba Hard Wheat, by the best processes known, and therefore excel in uniformity, strength and nutritive value.

By reason of their uniformity, baking with them is quick and easy, and the results are uniformly the best. Working expenses are cut down, and there is no spoiled bread.

On account of their strength, they will absorb more water, and therefore will make more bread per barrel than any ordinary brands.

Bread made from them, besides being sweeter and tastier, is richer and more nutritious than that made from cheaper flours. The public is quick to appreciate these qualities in bread, and the use of "Five Roses" and "Harvest Queen" will bring to any good baker a steady and permanent increase in trade. He will reap a rich harvest from the dollars he has sown when he bought these brands.

Handel, the musician, possessed a great natural wit, which was frequently spiced by his caustic references to the merits of his fellow-musicians.

When "The Messiah" was being performed in Dublin, Durbourg led the band, and one evening had a finale to make, ad libitum. Following the fashion, the violinist took his cadenza through various keys, and continued the improvisation until the uneasy Handel began to wonder when he would really come to the "shake" that was to terminate the part, and bring in the other instruments. Eventually Durbourg finished the cadenza with a grand flourish, whereupon Handel, to the great distress of the leader, put his hands to his mouth and shouted across the hall: "Welcome home, welcome home, Mr. Durbourg!"

As far as the audience was concerned, Bulow always made a point of doing exactly as he pleased. On one occasion the orchestra he was conducting had just given a very long Brahms symphony, quite beyond the comprehension of any but the musicians among the listeners. When the audience failed to give Bulow the applause he expected, he turned upon them furiously.

"What! You do not like it? It will teach you to like it!" he had the entire composition played through again from beginning to end. Brahms was always applauded after that, if only in self-defense.

But when a Leipzig audience insisted on recalling Bulow, despite his repeated refusals to play again, he came forward and said, "If you do not stop this applause, I will play all each's forty-eight preludes and fugues from beginning to end!"

STOLEN AUTO IN WILD RACE

Car Sold for Worthless Check Caught by Detectives in Mad Ride.

Detroit, Aug. 15.—Fifty miles an hour, in a cloud of whirling dust, a 1934 Thomas flyer shot like a streak of lightning from Grosse Pointe to Belle Isle bridge shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The man at the wheel was reckless, a dare-devil driver. He had given a worthless check for the machine, and escaped with the chug-chug from Buffalo, and was just winding up a dream of speed and frivolity in the whirl from Mt. Clemens to Detroit.

As the big auto sped past a little Buick car, which was cruising about over the suburban roads, a shout went up from one of the four men in the latter car: "There he comes now!" Instantly the Buick, driven by Charles Harris, of Harris' automobile garage, tacked on the trail of the flyer, and the race was on. Detective Judd Lombard and two Buffalo agents of the Thomas Company, searching for the dare-devil and his stolen car, clung to their own machine as they flew westward along Jefferson avenue, passing telegraph poles and crossings at almost a mile-a-minute gait. The car ahead picked up speed as they fell on the trail. Sixty miles an hour now, and the two cars were speeding toward the center of the city, past street cars crowded with people; past other cars that were left behind as though they were anchored, while everyone who saw the race gazed in wonder at the sight. Sgt. William Routledge was on a Jefferson avenue car, which the racers passed, and not knowing that the Buick contained a fellow officer in pursuit of an offender, Routledge prepared to search the town for those racers when he got back. "They looked like two streaks," he declared. "Whizz, and it was all over."

Crowded on Speed.

The pursuers were sure that the driver ahead knew that they were after him. They crowded on all the speed that they could get out of the machine, but they were being distanced when the car ahead approached the Belle Isle bridge crossing, where there was a swarm of people and several conveyances in the road. He slowed down, and almost instantly the pursuing Buick was thrown obliquely across the path, and Lombard leaped from his machine, boarded the Thomas, and snapped a pair of handcuffs on the driver, a tall, good-looking fellow of 22 years.

"UNDER A SPELL"

London, Aug. 15.—"I have been under a spell, and have been like it all my life," sobbed Emma Southam, the wife of a Warwick tailor, when she was remanded on Tuesday on the charge of murdering her baby.

It was on Monday evening that a Mr. Fretwell, who lives in Friar street, heard a little girl screaming in a neighbor's back yard, and was told by her that her mother had cut her with a knife. He rushed into the house, and in a passage upstairs found two other children, a baby girl two months old, and a child of three and a half years old covered with blood. The infant was dead. The other child, aged about five, was badly cut about the head.

Fretwell encountered Mrs. Southam with the knife in her hand. She was raving like a lunatic, and greeted him with the cry, "Kill me, Mr. Fretwell!" She was at once taken into custody. The two injured little girls were taken to the Warneford Hospital, at Leamington, and are doing well.

The mother, who is about thirty years of age, is said to have behaved in a very curious way since the birth of her last child; and in August, 1904, when living at Wellerbourne, near Warwick, she attempted to drown one of her children in the water-butt, but was acquitted at the ensuing assizes on entering into recognizances for her good behavior. Southam and his wife have been on perfectly good terms, and there is no indication that drink had anything to do with the tragedy.

SORE, ACHING BLISTERED FEET

Farmers, farmers' wives, store girls, clerks, bricklayers, policemen and postmen—all who have to be on their feet all day, and suffer from sore feet, chafing or blistering, will find relief in ZAM-BUK.

Mr. Wm. Ashley, 527 Seignour St., Montreal, says: "I suffered cruelly from sore feet, which became raw and blistered. Some days I was hardly able to walk home from work, and others I had to leave off about 3 o'clock. Powders, salves and ointments of all kinds I tried in vain, sometimes actually working with them in my boots. I was advised to try Zam-Buk, and in a few hours it reduced the smarting and soreness. I kept on with it, putting a little on each night. In a few days the soreness was all gone."

Of all stores and medicine vendors get a box of Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Cures eczema, pruritis, itch, salt rheum, insect bites, corns, cuts, burns and all skin injuries and diseases.

Miss Mitchell, of Brantford, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. George Gordon.

Rev. Mr. McGowan, of Glencoe, formerly assistant to Rev. Mowat, of Erskine Church, Montreal, is visiting her brother, Mr. Malcolm McGowan, and wife.

Mr. Louis Mitchellson, formerly of Embro, was seriously injured in Toronto, on Thursday morning in a collision between a delivery wagon, which he was driving, and a street car. He suffered from concussion of the brain, which resulted in his death on Saturday morning. Deceased was about forty years of age, and leaves a young wife and two little sons, his aged mother, Mrs. Mitchellson, of Brookdale, and four brothers, Messrs. Thos. Mitchellson, Wm. Vannatter, and Simon, of Embro; George, of Applegate, Mich., and a sister, Mrs. Youngs, all of whom have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.

The remains were brought to the home of Mr. Wm. Vannatter, from where the funeral took place on Sunday afternoon, to North Embro Cemetery, the service being conducted by Rev. Jas. Barber, of Knox Church, who formerly was a teacher of deceased in the Youngsville school. The pallbearers were six of his former schoolmates—Messrs. Alex. McKenzie, E. Symons, Wm. Youngs, Alonzo Youngs, A. McBurney, and Wm. McKenzie.

Mr. George Vannatter, of Applegate, Mich., is visiting at Mr. Wm. Vannatter's.

Mrs. Jas. Brand is visiting her sister, Mrs. Saunders, in Galt.

Mr. Wm. Beaver spent a few days with Preston and Galt friends.

Messrs. Wm. J. Geddes, Ross Campbell, Annie McDonald, Tim Hamilton, and Ervell McNeil attended the Galt celebration on Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. Stewart Laurie has returned to his home in Hamilton after an extended visit at Mr. Alex Campbell's.

Mr. Charles McKay, of Woodstock, was in the village Sunday attending the funeral of his friend, Mr. Mitchellson.

Capt. John M. Ross, of Woodstock, spent over Sunday with his wife and little daughter, who are visiting at Mr. John Douglas'.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ross, of Woodstock, were visiting at Mr. David Ross, Kinross street.

Mrs. David McCordale, of London, spent last week at Mr. Wm. Dawes'.

Miss Annie J. Rutherford, of London, is holidaying at her home here.

Mr. Emerson Abernethy is spending a few days in London.

Miss Ray Ross, of London, is visiting at her home.

Messrs. W. J. Simster and Aberdeen, of Traders' Bank staff, Stratford, spent Sunday at Mr. D. J. McMurphy's.

Miss Mary Jane Gunn, of Detroit, and Mr. Chas. D. Gunn, of Woodstock, are visiting at the parental home.

Mr. D. M. Sutherland is visiting in Orillia, and Mrs. Sutherland and children in Toronto.

Dr. and Mrs. Creighton, of Red Cloud, Neb., spent a few days with his brother, Mr. G. M. Creighton, and family.

The beautiful home of Mr. Jas. Smith, St. Andrew's street, was the scene of an interesting gathering on Tuesday, when the relatives and friends to the number of about seventy assembled to spend the day together, in honor of Mr. McIntyre, of Banffshire, Scotland, who is a nephew of Mr. Smith, and spending the summer here. Dinner was served at twelve o'clock, and the afternoon pleasantly spent in games, races, etc. Mr. John Armstrong, of Woodstock, photographed the party. An enjoyable time was spent by all present.

Mr. and Mrs. Marr, of London, are visiting at Miss Kate Hamilton's, also Miss Mamie Hamilton, of Shelbourne.

Miss Alice Munro is spending her holidays in Southampton.

While framing in Ingersoll, Mr. Alex. D. Ross had the misfortune to fall from a barn, and received serious injury to his foot.

A RECORD FINE

Venezuela Mulcts the Asphalt Company Five Million Dollars.

Caracas, Venezuela, Aug. 12.—(Monday, via Port of Spain, Trinidad, August 14.)—Another chapter in the long standing and bitter controversy between the New York and Bermuda Asphalt Company and the Venezuelan Government came to an end today when the civil court of first instance of Caracas found the company guilty of having extended assistance to the Matos revolution, which was directed against President Castro, and condemned it to pay a fine of $5,000,000 to the Venezuelan Government. This sum is the estimated cost of putting down the revolution. Further more, a large additional sum for moral and material damages is to be assessed later. It is expected that the company will appeal to the superior court of Venezuela.

THE SULTAN FOR PEACE

Moroccan Monarch Issues Proclamation Counseling Calmness.

Tangier, Aug. 15.—Advices received here from Fez say that the grand council, called by the Sultan to consider the situation at Casablanca, has agreed that he shall use all his influence in the direction of peace.

The Sultan's proclamation, counseling universal calm in the country's great crisis, is earnestly supported, so far as his public affirmations are concerned, by Sheriff El Guisan, who is a notorious fanatic and hater of Europeans.

The Sultan has begged the Europeans not to leave Fez, as he would not be responsible for their safety if they depart from the capital.

SUFFER NO MORE.—There are thousands who live miserable lives because of the rheumatism and shadows existence with the cloud of depression. One way to dispel the vapors that beset the victims of this disorder is to order them a course of FARMER'S VEGETABLE PILLS, which are the best vegetable pills known, being easy to take and are most efficacious in their action. A trial of them will prove this.

FOOTBALLER POE STIRS UP WAR

Will Recruit Foreign Legion to Fight Battles for Honduras.

Mexico City, Aug. 15.—A cablegram received here from San Salvador says that Captain John H. Poe, who was at one time well known as a Princeton football player and Annapolis coach, and who recently has been fighting in the Honduran army, has left Salvador on the steamer San Juan for San Francisco, where he purposes to recruit a foreign legion to take part in the expected war between the Central American States. Poe held the rank of captain with the Hondurans. He was in the artillery branch.

He was arrested at Managua by President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, on the charge of being a spy. The best source of information in Mexico City unite in declaring that trouble in Central America is certain.

Guatemala and Salvador will be arrayed against Honduras and Nicaragua. President Figueroa, of Salvador, and President Ceballos, of Guatemala, have agreed that peace is impossible so long as Zelaya remains president of Nicaragua.

They will attack him as soon as the rainy season comes to an end.

President Figueroa has canceled an order sent to England for three gunboats, because they cannot reach him in time to be of service in the war.

He is sending an agent to San Francisco to purchase steamers and mount guns on them.

Captain Eysler, who was at one time an ensign in the American navy, and who is now first officer of the steamer Para, trading on the Pacific Coast, is to be offered the command of the Salvadoran navy. General Lee Christmas, formerly of Memphis, Tenn., who is now in command of the Salvadoran army, accompanied Captain Poe as far as Guatemala. There he will attend to the reorganization of the foreign legion, which is to be composed of Boers, Englishmen and Americans, and deserters from the army and navy.

It is declared here that foreign intervention is the only thing that can prevent the threatened conflict. Agents of each of the four countries concerned are now in Costa Rica endeavoring each one to influence that country in his favor. It is reported, however, that the Costa Rican Government is maintaining its neutrality with firmness.

SUCCESSION TAX ROBS CHARITIES

Wealthy Hamilton Merchant Makes Strange Explanation in Will.

Hamilton, Aug. 15.—The will of the late Abraham Levy, of the firm of Levy Bros., wholesale jewelers, who died a few months ago, has been filed for probate by M. J. O'Reilly, for the executors. Mr. Levy left an estate valued at $290,205 16, all of which was personalty, and it is divided among his nephews and nieces in Hamilton, Toronto, Cleveland and Germany. There are no bequests to charity, but a clause in the will explains why this is. The clause reads as follows: "Having, in former wills, given and bequeathed 10 per cent of my estate for charitable purposes, but now understanding that a certain percentage of my estate will be payable under the succession duties act for the maintenance of public charities, I leave nothing in this, my will, for charitable purposes."

It has been understood ever since the succession duties act has been in force that wealthy men have been opposed to making bequests to charity, but this is the first time that such a declaration has been made in a will executed in this city.

The executors of the estate are Gabriel H. and Adolphus Levy, and James Rubin, nephews of the deceased. The estate is made up as follows: Book debts and notes, $18,589; stocks, $140,120; cash in bank, $131,499 16, and it is left in trust with the trustees to give to the nephews and nieces of the deceased.

The stock is principally shares in Levy Bros., Limited, wholesale jewelers, this city. There are 1,249 shares of this stock, with a par value of $100 per share.

PEERAGE ROMANCE

Winnipeg Debt Collector Claims Old Scottish Baron.

London, Aug. 15.—The Lovat peerage will probably be the subject of a long law case soon, Mr. John Fraser, a Winnipeg debt collector, having established a claim to his own satisfaction. The claimant asserted that Alexander had married in Wales in 1730, and died there in 1776.

On the other hand, evidence was given showing that these two Alexander Frasers were different persons, and that the real Alexander had died in Scotland in 1689. If the claimant's case was correct, then at the age of 73 it would appear that Alexander induced a young Welsh lady to elope with him; which, said Lord Blackburn, in giving judgment, was "highly improbable." Lord Bramwell, in his judgment, pointed out another improbability—namely, that the fugitive was working in the mines for 18. 4d. a day till he was 112.

It should be added that when the fugitive died, in 1796, he was succeeded, as tenth Lord Lovat, by his great-uncle. The son of the tenth peer joined the Young Pretender, and thus forfeited his estates. In the end a descendant of the fourth earl obtained a reversal of the attainder, and succeeded to the title.

Try one of these 5c. Dinners of Clark's Pork and Beans. Because there is more strength and energy in the grade of Beans that Clark uses than prime Canadian Beef even. And that is why is the most economical as well as the best food for the worker and for growing children.

Clark's Pork and Beans

But to make that energy and strength your own the beans must be properly cooked, and here is just where Clark's Pork and Beans excel, "just done to a turn" with a piece of fine farmed pork—ready to eat.

And into every 5ct. tin is put ample of this strength giving appetizing combination for a good dinner for one grown man.

Now, Clark's Pork and Beans are the best of their kind, therefore insist on getting them. Refuse all substitutes. Substitutes pay a larger profit to the dealer, cost less to make and therefore cannot be so good.

Make your dealer supply you with Clark's Pork and Beans every time.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Ahoy! Launch Lobsters! Gird thee thyself for mortal combat one week from Tuesday next. We cheerfully agree to—

While the train bearing the Sox and Pilgrims paused at St. Thomas, Ont., on Sunday, some one remarked that Bob Emslie lived there. "In that event," Jesse Tannehill said, "we are traveling on the Empire State Express." Loud and prolonged cheers.—Chicago Record Herald.

It is reported that Miss K. L. Wilks, of Galt, Ont., owner of Cruickston Farm, is negotiating for the purchase of the sensational trotting mare Sonoma Girl, 2:06 1/4. The report said further that Miss Wilks had offered $25,000 for the mare. When questioned regarding the matter, J. D. Springer, part owner of the great mare, said that she was for sale if anyone wanted to pay his price. Rumor has it that the price which the owners of the mare have placed on her is $35,000.

Jim Corbett's first easy money was made in a rather peculiar manner. The great pugilist, then at the beginning of his career, was sitting in the veranda of his hotel, when a young fellow, rather inebriated, strolled up and noticing a shiny high hat on a peg above Jim's head said, "Say, young fellow, I'll give you $5 for the privilege of kicking that hat. Have you any objection?" "Not at all," politely replied the future pugilist, and the fellow kicked the hat until it was a shapeless mass. A friend remonstrated with him, saying that the hat must have been worth more than $5. "Undoubtedly it was," responded Jim, coolly. "But, you see, I really have no idea who owns it."

Mr. J. D. Springer, the Western man who drives the famous trotting mare Sonoma Girl, 2:06 1/4, revealed the secret of his success with that high-strung mare when he recently said that during the first two years he handled her that she frequently exasperated him beyond description. "But," said he, "she never knew it." The man who can take a suspicious, high-strung horse and never allow him to know how annoying his actions are is the one who can, eventually, make a trustworthy horse out of any that is not naturally vicious. Many men have this peculiar gift which permits them to gain the confidence of horses. Those who do not have it never become noted among the men who educate horses for the various positions in life in which they become trusted companions of men and women.

Referee H. Ingram reported to the N. L. U. Intermediate series as follows: "In the game which I was appointed by you to referee on August 8, at the National grounds, Montreal, between the Nationals of Montreal and the Nationals of Ottawa, I was assaulted by one of the Nationals of Montreal with a lacrosse stick, breaking my nose and rendering me unconscious. The players of the National Club of Montreal used threatening language to me during the entire game, finally winding up by committing the above assault. I wish also to report the action of some of the members of the National Club of Montreal, throwing chairs from the directors' gallery down on some of the visiting players as they entered the dressing-room; also a mix-up at that end of the field between the players, in which the spectators took part."

The race for pennant honors in the Eastern League appears to have settled down to a contest between the Toronto and Buffalo teams. With seven weeks more to play, Toronto holds the vantage position by 31 points over Buffalo. Newark's slump has brought the Sailors down to a poor third, 113 points now separating the Sailors and the leaders.

A few weeks ago Newark appeared to have a chance for fighting it out for the pennant, but the recent slump has lessened the Sailors' chances considerably. In addition to losing ground to Toronto and Buffalo, the Sailors have a fight on their hands to hold third place, being closely followed by Jersey City, Baltimore, and Providence.

Toronto has split even so far with Buffalo, and has won the series from all clubs but Newark. The Bisons have beaten all other clubs but Toronto and Montreal, the tall-enders, having tied the champions so far in the series.

Alfred Shrubbs, the famous English champion at long distance running, is the despair of those who are working to have him in condition when he starts in what will undoubtedly be a spectacular three-mile contest.

Shrubbs resents what we call "form." He says he made all his records and won all his laurels by doing exactly opposite what the trainers say is necessary. He holds both the amateur and professional records for from one mile to twelve miles. He has been at the game eight years, and sees no reason now to change his style.

"America does a great many things better than we poor bloomin' Brit-fishers," said Shrubbs, "but tell ye wot—ye don't hit it right in distance-running. That's why you've got no A number ones better than the mile, while we've got lots of good 'uns at any distance from the mile to ten. You blokes keep the body too long off the ground when you stride—you take too long a stride. That brings the body down each time with such force that it weakens the ankles, knees and hips more than would be the case with a short, snappy stride that wouldn't carry the body too far from the earth."

What is known as "Shrubbs's style" has become recognized by all long-distance runners. It is somewhat freaky to the amateur observer, but to students of distance work it is plain that Shrubbs's idea is correct.

"I cover distance with my short, quick strides, while you American runners are up in the air—that's a bloomin' American joke, ain't it, I say? But it is just what I mean," said Shrubbs. It sounds good, but, of course, Shrubbs doesn't know where the laugh is.

"Fact is," Shrubbs continued, "form is all tommy-rot. Form takes the strength out of a bloke. It lasts while your full powers are left, then stroke it, it's all in my bloomin' hey. Your pace slackens and it's: Wot to, Bill, or all of a sleep."

Lacrosse has not yet reached the stage where it can be classed with tennis for gentleness.

Alex. Duncan, the champion four-mile runner of England, has decided to move across the Atlantic, and will take up his residence in Montreal. Duncan is one of the best four-mile men the sport has ever known, being capable of covering the distance in 19 minutes 51 2/5 seconds. He won the championship of England in this time, and will be a very valuable addition to athletics in Canada, making our list of middle and long distance men easily the best in the world.

Laporte, the third sacker of the New York team, and one of the most natural batsmen in the league today, was recently complaining of the sickness of the fans. It was brought about by the fact that a large number of the Gotham rooters got after the big fellow because he had taken a temporary slump in his batting, and they thought he ought to have got a couple of hot liners that were sent down to him as if they had been shot from a thirteen-inch gun.

All at once some fellows in the left field seats began to yell for Griffith to put Conroy back at third. When Laporte came in to the bench at the end of the inning he was remarking to Willie Keeler about how a ball player was a prince in the estimation of the crowd one day, while the next he was liable to be the most reviled among human beings.

"Well," replied the philosophic and rather taciturn Keeler, who has developed certain views on life, "it's the same all over the world; it's easy to make friends, but it's hard to keep them."

"It's not so in my case," chimed in that noted satirist, Pitcher Doyle, as he gave his belt a hitch; "I have several friends who appear to be perfectly willing to let me keep them."

"DOC." NEWTON FOOLS TIGERS

Detroit Players Unable to Solve Yankee's Left-Hand Delivery.

Detroit, Aug. 15.—Just when all the fans thought they were through with the southpaws, Clark Griffith and his wily band stole into Detroit and shoved "Doc" Newton against the Tigers, now suffering the slump that all teams seemingly undergo before the season closes.

A little while ago the southpaw pest seemed to have passed. Yesterday Newton held them to four scattered hits and only his wildness prevented him from getting a shut-out victory. Eddie Slevier was in for Detroit and pitched a good game. They beat him 2 to 1. One run was made on hits. The other came as a result of errors on close plays.

Norman Elberfeld returned to the Yankees fold yesterday, when they reached town. The suspension against him was lifted and he was taken back.

He played a star game, opening the way with a triple to right that clinched the run necessary to win. Willie Keeler got a scratch hit to Downs and Elberfeld bagged one to right. The ball was a rather high drive that hit just back of first and bounded down the base line into the right field corner for three bases, Keeler walking home.

Yanks Score in Fifth.

They landed another in the fifth. Hoffman hit to Downs, who had to make a hurried play to first to get him. Rossman dropped the ball. Newton hit to O'Leary and Charley made his first error in many days, a bad finger getting in the way of the ball.

Coughlin forced Hoffman. Slevier to Coughlin. Keeler was hit by a pitched ball and the bases were full. Elberfeld was thrown out by Downs, but Newton scored.

The Tigers' lone tally came in the last round. It looked as though they were to pull off another of their closing-inning finishes, but it was not to be. Newton furnished plenty of excitement, when he walked Coughlin and Crawford, but he forced Cobb to pop to Thomas, Coughlin and Crawford worked a double steal. A good single would have tied the score. Rossman flied to Hoffman and Coughlin scored. There was still a chance. Downs was an easy out, however, Williams to first and the game was over.

FAILS TO BETTER TRACK RECORD

Major Delmar Does Mile a Second Slower Than Sweet Marie's Mark.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 15.—At the Grand Circuit races at the Hudson River Driving Park today, Major Delmar went an exhibition mile in 2:05 1/4, in an effort to lower the track trotting record of 2:04 1/4, made by Sweet Marie last year. Ardelle, driven by Geers, in the 2:05 pace, was the only favorite of the day that justified the selection. The mare won easily.

Leland, an even money favorite for the 2:12 pace, was distanced in the second heat through a bad break. Tommy H., the winner, sold for $9 in pools of $55.

Five heats were required to decide the 2:15 trot. MacDougal sold favorite, $25 to $80 for the field, but was never a factor. Summaries:

2:12 pacing, purse $1,000—Tommy H. (Nuckolls), won first, second and fourth heats and race; John McEwen took third heat and second money; Coast Mare was third. Best time, 2:08 1/4, made in third heat.

2:05 pacing, purse $1,000—Ardelle (Geers), won in two straight heats; Nervolo was second and Princess Helen third. Best time, 2:04 1/4.

Fall Bowling Tourney
Fifty or Sixty Players Are Expected To Complete.

The draw for the annual fall tournament of the London Bowling and Rowing Club will be made Saturday night.

The tourney will include only Scotch doubles and handicap singles. Bowling will begin Monday at any hour convenient to the players, and one week will be allowed to finish each round.

It is expected that some 50 or 60 knights of the green will compete.

A Brief Sketch of London's Premier Twirler

Undoubtedly one of the fastest pitchers, if not the very best that ever broke into City League company, Walter Gibson also has the happy faculty of being able to drive out a hit when most needed, besides fielding his position in major league fashion.

This sterling twirler has pitched eleven of the fourteen games the champions have played this year, and he has taken eight of that number. Two of the losing contests were dropped by a single run.

Gibson first broke into local baseball last year, when he signed up with McClarys. His work at that time, while not sensational, showed that he had the making of a successful twirler. Hard luck previous to this year played a prominent part in his work in the box, but he has come into his own.

In the first season of the present series he officiated on the slab eight times, lost but three of his battles. Two of these were against the Stars and the other against the Rockets.

In the second season he has won every game. Gibson has, in all, pitched five games against the Tierneyites, and has won three out of the bunch.

His batting average for the first part of the present series was .275, while in fielding he stood close to the top with .917. Recently, at Port Stanley, he dashed out batters for the Champs against the Ingersoll team, and in the seven innings played the opposition never got a semblance of a hit, and would not have reached first base at all had not a batter deliberately placed himself in the way of a slow ball. Of course, Gibson has had the advantage of excellent support all the way, but good support alone won't pull a pitcher through unless he has the goods. Besides being a most excellent twirler, Gibson plays a nice game in the infield, especially at second base.

Ever a gentlemanly player, a hardy worker, and an all-round ballplayer, the big fellow from McClary's is one of the most popular of the local diamond contingent, and he looks good for many a long day, and in faster company than he is at present traveling in.

TWO FAVORITES WIN

Bay City Horseman Treated to Some Fine Racing.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 15.—Two favorites took first money in today's races. In the third race the first choice failed to show at first and darkness caused the free-for-all pace to be postponed until Friday afternoon.

Racing today was all that could be desired. Only one race was won in straight heats. The attendance was larger than on the preceding day and the spectators were thoroughly satisfied with the result.

Bourbon J. made his supporters look sad when he did nothing better than take third and second in the first two heats. Betting turned a little in favor of Jimmie Burns' Abdell, who captured the first two heats. But the favorite came back and won three straight. The Liar had an easy time of the 2:20 pace, winning in straight heats. Billy Brino ran second to him in all three.

William C. sold as first choice in the free-for-all pace. Missouri Chief won the first two heats and the favorite succeeded in taking numbers three and four. Darkness put an end to this race, which will be finished the first thing tomorrow. Summaries:

Greatest Ball Game of Century Played By O'Neil's and Brenner's Big Teams

Earth Trembled at Springfield Yesterday -- Well-Known Players on Job.

The greatest game of ball ever pulled off within the precincts of Springfield Park was played yesterday afternoon, when two teams of demon athletes captained by Artie Brenner, of the City Hotel, and George O'Neil, of the Tecumseh House, battled for twelve long (?) innings, the approaching shades of night putting an end to the magnificent contest. The score was 14 to 14, with all hands on the run. The battered remains of the umpire were carried carefully to his bungalow, and it is rumored if he ever gets over it the bunch will once more assault him, and finish the job. That shows what sort of umpire he was.

Started in a Joke.
The game started in a joke, and bade fair to wind up in a tragedy. Howard Beidler, alias Snowball, of Cleveland, was beguiled into a game of bowls the other day and after destroying much property more or less valuable, he declared that if he would bring on a ball game he would show that he was the real thing. The teams were composed of the fastest sprinters and fearful sluggers Uncle Sam's pastime has ever seen. It will not do to praise the captain of the umpire, the demon backstops, and captured everything that was not moving. Bill Fulton made the star spangled catch of the day. He was promptly fined for such a thing. Snowball made a stop or two, but invariably forgot to touch the runner. This, in the mind of the umpire, was a grievous fault. Jimmy Herlick was a swift shortstop, and Harry B. Carter, of Louisville, Ky., a Southerner, was a daisy, "fore off" some beautiful plays at the table. The real work of the day was done in right field, where Jim Duffield and George Merritt spent a very pleasant afternoon. Billy Ward was there, and acted a retriever on several occasions, having to go to the river—not to drink, but to get the ball.

A Warm Game.
Now to the game. As the curfew was tolling the hour of 5, the teams, with their intangible leaders made their appearance on the field, all having duly registered. A silence prevailed the whole place, a dim, insubstantial light, as if something was about to happen. Slowly, but surely, the team of athletes captained by Artie Brenner assumed their places in the field and the great show was on.

Ald. Tom Gilleen was the spitball server for the team, and he was a "heat." George O'Neil was the first hitter. He strode to the plate, struck where it should be struck at the pitcher with a "now, bring on your rays," expression, and the game of centuries was on tap.

COURT SEEKS OWNER OF BADLY USED HORSE
Animal With Very Sore Shoulders Driven for Months.

"I don't feel like punishing this man for an offense which is not wholly his fault," said Magistrate Love this morning when William Riddler, a driver in the employ of C. Boss, a contractor, faced him on a charge of cruelty to horses.

The horse, which Riddler admitted driving off and on for over a month, is afflicted with very sore shoulders, and the rubbing of the harness against the open sores has greatly aggravated the ailment.

"The animal was entirely unfit for work of any kind," said Chief Williams, "and somebody should be punished for the cruelty inflicted."

"I quite agree with you," replied the magistrate; "but I want to get Mr. Boss into court before I move in the matter. If this man had refused to drive the injured beast he would probably have been told to go and hunt himself another job. The chief responsibility, to my mind, in these cases should rest upon the owner of the horses."

The case will be heard next Tuesday.

THE LAST DAYS OF OUR Moving Sale

We must sell the balance of our stock. Our lower-priced goods are all sold—nothing but the best remains. THESE MUST GO. Now, we make the prices so low on good goods that it's a shame to sell 'em. "But they must go." TOO BAD to see high-class imported goods selling at these prices in face of the fact that they will be very much higher next year, but we don't want to move 'em—we want to sell 'em.

Come early tomorrow and all next week for the biggest bargains ever offered in the city in our class goods.

BARBERS' STRIKE IS LIKELY ENDED

Employers and Men Brought Together by a Prominent Citizen.

It is understood that negotiations are proceeding for the settlement of the barbers' strike. The bosses and the men have been brought together, and will likely reach terms tonight. The new agreement will be in the nature of a compromise by both parties.

CONDENSED LOCAL NEWS

—The Methodist Church at Thamesville increased the salary of its pastor, Rev. R. Fulton Irwin, by $75.

—The funeral of the late John Plaxton took place this afternoon from his late residence, 345 Globe street, to Webster's Cemetery. The Rev. Mr. Kennedy conducted the services.

—A benefit band concert was given in Victoria Park last night by the Twenty-sixth Regiment Band for the striking barbers. A fair crowd was present, and the strikers realized a nice sum. The music was much enjoyed by the crowd.

—Mrs. Jane Legg, died yesterday at the Home of Incurables. She was in the 69th year of her age. The remains were sent to St. Thomas on the 3:40 Pere Marquette train yesterday afternoon, where interment takes place there.

—Monday evening next the boys of Empress Avenue Methodist Church will give the league programme. A very interesting hour is assured, as the boys will debate on whether the inventions of the nineteenth century tend to increase or decrease the happiness of everyday life.

—Mr. Dan Batzner, formerly chief clerk of the Grand Trunk in this city, but for the past fourteen years a businessman in Cincinnati, is at present in the city on his way home from Europe, where he has spent the past three months. He had a pleasant visit.

Car Damaged.
While switching on Lyle street, in front of the car barns, yesterday, car No. 120 collided with another trolley and was slightly damaged. Nobody was hurt.

Paul Latell's Condition.
The condition of Paul Latell, the Italian who was so badly scalded at McCleary's yesterday—continues about the same. It will not be known for some days whether he will recover or not.

The Painters' Strike.
In a letter to The Advertiser, the secretary of the local Painters' Union declares that the strike is still on, and that all the men who want out on strike are now working for union employers.

Late Mrs. Archer.
The funeral of the late Mrs. Wm. Archer took place at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the residence of her father, Mr. Thos. Pearson, Pipe Line road. Rev. Dean Davis conducted the services. Interment took place to Woodland Cemetery.

St. Thomas Man in Trouble.
The Detroit News says: Harry McCuig, aged 29, 188 Fifth street, and John McKay, aged 21, of St. Thomas, while negotiating the sale of a worthless horse, are alleged to have snatched $105 from the hand of Frank Dalecki and to have run away. They were arrested by Detectives Allen and Dowd and Patrolman Patterson charged with embezzlement.

LOST IN MAGELLANE; NINETEEN PERISH

Details of the Foundering of the American Bark Prussia.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 16. — Details received here of the wreck in Filadelfo Bay, of the American bark Prussia, from Norfolk, March 20, for Port Townsend, announced from Punta Arenas, Strait of Magellan, yesterday, that the captain committed suicide when the vessel ran ashore, and that fourteen passengers, in addition to four sailors, lost their lives.

HE WOULD POST THEIR PICTURES

"Well, he is liable to a $50 fine plus costs, and is also liable to the inebriate's family, to the extent of $500 damages, should the man sustain injuries while under the influence of the drink. If the bartender sells to the men, he, too, is liable to a fine."

There are 32 people on this list 'n London, including men from all walks of life. Women's names, out of decency, are not appended, but the inspector interviews all the license-holders personally, notifying them in this way that they must not sell to these individuals. So far there are only three women to whom the hotelmen are forbidden to sell.

"Do the license-holders break this law?" was asked.
"No, but the inebriates get the drink somehow or other. I think they get some friend to buy them a bottle. The man who does this renders himself open to a fine, and if he has money, also liable to any damages that the court may impose, should the man receive injuries while in a drunken condition."

A Good Idea.
Mr. Galpin thinks the hanging of the inebriates' photographs in the different bars would be a good scheme, but he cannot get permission to introduce the scheme.

"No, I don't think it would be too hard on the men who drink to excess," he answered to the reporter's question. "It would serve them right. A man who allows himself to get in such a condition doesn't deserve any consideration. He should have his picture pasted up life-size in every drinking resort in the country."

Should a license-holder be convicted of breaking this law three times in succession, he loses his license. No hotelkeepers in this district have, however, as yet suffered this penalty.

"All the city hotels are in good condition with the exception of one," said Mr. Galpin, "and this is being repaired. Between $3,000 and $4,000 are being expended upon the building, and we believe in two months it will be in excellent shape."

COMPLAINTS OF ROWDYISM

"Some strenuous method should be found of doing away with the rowdyism so common at our hotel concerts," said Mr. Israel Weissman, of 233 Welington street, this morning to The Advertiser. "It is outrageous the way some London boys and even young men conduct themselves at these popular affairs. I am not prepared to say just where the responsibility lies, but I am positive that something could be done to do away with the nuisance. Last evening, in company with several young lady friends from Pittsburgh and Detroit, I visited the concert at Victoria Park, and some of the language made use of by gangs of young men and boys throughout the park was scandalous. Several times the young ladies in my company were grossly insulted."

"The young ladies, who have traveled extensively and were former Londoners, stated that never had they witnessed such actions or heard such vile language anywhere. Why in the great American cities such actions would be tolerated for a moment, and yet in London they have been taking place all this year. It is time the police take some notice of the rowdies who make it actually unsafe for a respectable woman to appear at a local band concert."

London, Aug. 16.—According to the Daily Mail, George Bernard Shaw has had a narrow escape from drowning. He was swimming off Llanberis, Merionethshire, with a friend, when the current carried them away, and prevented them from returning to the shore. After a long time they were landed on a distant sandbank, whence they were rescued.

Mr. Shaw was utterly exhausted, and had given up hope of returning to the mainland alive. He says he only kept swimming to postpone the unpleasantness of drowning as long as he could.

WITHIN A FEW WEEKS OF 100TH BIRTHDAY

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Woodstock, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Mary Robinson died at the county house of refuge last night. In two or three weeks she would have reached her 100th birthday. She was born in Ireland, and at an early age came with her parents to East Nissouri Township, where she spent the greater part of her long life. She entered the refuge four years ago, and has been in a feeble condition since. Her burial will be conducted by relatives.

Mr. Acland will endeavor to arrange a basis of agreement in the disputed question of wage schedules between the company and the employees.

REMEMBERS BUT LITTLE OF ACCIDENT

Mr. John Loney, Injured in the Reid Wreck, Still Far from Well.

Mr. John Loney, of 75 Cartwright street, like others rescued from the wreckage of the Reid disaster, is far from well as yet.

Mr. Loney returned from Victoria Hospital on Civic Holiday, and has since been remaining very quiet at his home. He suffers much from the shock yet, and will be unable to work for some months.

Dr. Niven, who has been attending the patient, does not anticipate any lasting evil effects, but thinks Mr. Loney's recovery will be very slow.

"Do you intend suing for damages?" was asked.
"I haven't given it a thought yet. I want to get well before I think of anything like that."

"I'm thankful it isn't any worse," continued Mr. Loney, "but I don't think anyone who went through the disaster will ever be quite the same again." A peculiar feature of the case is that Mr. Loney appears to know very little of the accident. Ever since first taken to Victoria Hospital he has been kept very quiet, and until lately has heard almost nothing of the affair. "I really know very little about it," he says.

HOME-MADE MEDICINE.

Said to Relieve Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism.

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;
 One ounce Compound Salutarina;
 Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;
 Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime, is stated by a prominent physician to give most excellent results in kidney or urinary affections, and also in rheumatism and sciatica. The mixture opens the clogged pores of the kidneys, thus assisting them in their work of filtering all waste and poisonous matter from the blood, and expels these in the urine. To allow this poisonous matter to remain means that it will settle in the muscular tissues or joints, and cause the untold misery known as rheumatism.

The mixture is composed of harmless vegetable ingredients, which can be purchased at any good drug store, and mixed at home.

Anyone suffering from any of these afflictions will no doubt be pleased to learn of so simple and highly recommended remedy.

—The calendar of the arts department of the Western University for 1907-08 is now ready for distribution. Students desiring a copy can obtain the same by sending their address by postcard to Dr. W. H. Alexander.

—On Wednesday night the members of the Talbot Street Baptist Church unanimously decided to extend an invitation to Rev. A. J. Vining, B. A., to become their minister upon the departure of Rev. J. J. Ross. Mr. Vining has done excellent work in the past, and the congregation will be fortunate indeed to secure so worthy a successor to the departing minister.

A Disclaimers.
 A subscriber writes to say that it was not the boys in the vicinity of Sydenham street who have been acting disorderly of late in the north end. Smithers—Askey.

A quiet wedding took place at Askin Street Methodist parsonage on Wednesday afternoon, when Mr. Frederick Smithers was united in marriage to Miss Annie Louise Askey. Rev. A. K. Birks conducted the service. Mr. and Mrs. Smithers will take up their residence on the Pipe Line road.

A happy event occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Waugh, 417 Ridout street, on Wednesday, Aug. 14, when Miss Isabella Taylor, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Taylor, was joined in wedlock to Mr. John Pearson, of Wingham, by Rev. J. Livingstone. The bride wore a traveling suit of blue ladycloth and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

K. of C. at Dinner.
 The Knights of Columbus of this city spent a pleasant time Wednesday evening at dinner in a local cafe. The repast served left nothing to be desired. Many reminiscences were related during the evening, the affair being thoroughly enjoyed by those present, who decided that there must be many more such gatherings in the future. The party broke up at an early hour. The knights expect to secure rooms in the city shortly, where they will meet and transact business.

Mr. Wickett, of Centennial Methodist Church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. Miss Jennie McIntyre acted as bridesmaid, while Mr. Alfred Christie assisted the groom. After a dainty wedding breakfast served in the dining-room, the young couple took the G. T. R. train for a trip to points west. They will be away about two weeks, and on returning will reside at 897 Dufferin avenue.

PORT STANLEY NOTES

Doings of the Campers—Experience of a Girls' Fishing Party.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
 Port Stanley, Aug. 15.—Miss Libbie Hiscox, of Queen's avenue, London, is visiting her friend, Miss Beatrice Rowe, at Beverley Cottage, Erie Rest. The Misses Ross McNeil and Craig, of London, are summering in the village.

Miss Lizzie Copner and her little niece Ione, of London, are spending a few days with their friend, Miss Beatrice Rowe, at Beverley Cottage, Erie Rest. Dell and West Wood and Fred and Becher Ward, of London, are camping on the beach at Erie Rest.

Mr. Frank Holden, of Buffalo, is a guest at Victoria Cottage, Erie Rest. Miss Jean Scott, of Clinton, is visiting her friend, Miss Gladys Manning, at Columbia Cottage, Erie Rest. Mrs. Dove and her daughter Ethel, of 220 Hyman street, London, are sojourning at The Fraser.

Mr. Charles Hardie, of Chattanooga, Tenn., is visiting his sister, Mrs. Charles Keane, at Shady View Cottage, Erie Rest.

The funeral of Stephen Stanley, the infant son of Mr. Herbert Dunn, took place this afternoon to Union Cemetery.

Yesterday a fishing party was formed comprising the following popular young ladies of Erie Rest: Misses Annie and Bella Ross, Isabella Craig, Libbie Hiscox, Beatrice and Beatrice Rowe, Jean Scott, Gladys Manning, and Ethel McNeil. The young ladies cast their bait from the east pier, and fished with great success. A good luck, and by common consent, Miss Beatrice Rowe was appointed fisher-in-chief. Her duty was to collect the fish caught, and keep them all on the string. Alas! The string broke and all the precious little finny creatures returned to their watery home. Needless to say, the young misses went back to Erie Rest somewhat disheartened at their misfortune. But doubtless they will profit by their experience and will exercise a little more tact the next time. Cheer up, girls. There are just as good fish in the sea as those that have been caught.

AT GRAND BEND

Fine Entertainments—Exhibition of Views—Masquerade Ball, Etc.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Grand Bend, Aug. 15.—Mr. Jack Ross has returned to his home in Stratford after a pleasant outing with the boys at Anchor Villa.

Mrs. D. O'Brien of Crediton is in camp at Swastika Cottage.

Mrs. McDougall and family, of Stratford, have returned home after a summer at Restholm.

Mr. Ready and family of St. Marys, are encamped in Pincroft.

Mr. H. J. Jones is putting an addition to his summer home, Oakliffe, on the London side.

Messrs. Tom Marks, Herb Simmonds and Harry Coghill, who have been tenting here, left on Wednesday for their home in Stratford.

A gorgeous serenade was held by the boys who are tenting, at which vocal music entertained the campers at an early hour. "Commence" carried a lantern, whether it was to show who and where they were, or whether they were searching for daylight we are not at liberty to say.

Mrs. Proudlove and little daughter Lorraine have returned home after a week at O-so-o-o-o, where they were the guests of Mrs. Wilson.

Mr. Levett has turned his bowling green into a tennis court. This is a boon which will be welcomed by the campers.

Messrs. Jack Page, Harry Craig and Bob Craigie of Goderich left for their home on Thursday after a pleasant holiday on the cut.

Miss Jennie Watcher of Thedford, has returned home after a week at Dew Drop Inn.

A grand masquerade ball was held at Maple Grove on Tuesday night.

Mr. Howard Houston, who has completely recovered from the recent upset from a canoe, has returned to London in his usual good health.

Miss Regan of London is holidaying here.

Mr. Jas. Costello of London has returned home after a three weeks' rest here.

Mr. Fred Taylor of Watford fell off the pier on Wednesday into the lake head first. Fred said he didn't mind only it was the first day he had put on a starched collar.

The Wednesday evening session of the summer school took entirely the form of an entertainment of views Rev. Mr. Copeland, of Watford, showed still pictures for an hour, and moving pictures for three-quarters of an hour, with the Holy Bible as the subject of the majority of the views.

A small admission fee was charged, but a good-sized crowd turned out. The views were not only interesting but instructive and Mr. Copeland very nicely interspersed them with explanatory remarks.

ANNUAL PICNIC OF BAKER FAMILY

Two Hundred of Them Hold a Reunion at St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, Aug. 15.—The annual reunion of the Baker family took place at Pinford Park on Tuesday, when they besieged the park about 200 strong, coming from Chatham, London and St. Thomas and surrounding country.

A lengthy programme of sports added greatly to the enjoyable nature of the outing, the most interesting feature of the programme being a tug-of-war between the married and single men, the latter proving to have the stronger pull, being captained by Heber Baker, George Baker being captain of the losing end of the rope.

After lunch, speeches were made by Rev. G. J. Howard, Heber Baker, Webb and Vanderlinde, which brought a most successful gathering to a close. The following are the results of the sports:

Boys' race, under 5 years—1 Richard Baker, 2 Arthur Blewett.

Boys' race, under 8 years—1 Paul Baldwin, 2 Clarence Taylor.

Boys' race, under 12 years—1 Leo Baker, 2 Willie Blewett, 3 Gilbert Hall.

Boys' race, under 15 years—1 Arthur Webb, 2 Ainley Baker, 3 Edward Kelly.

100 yard dash—1 Fred Baker, 2 Arthur Webb, 3 Arthur Pierce.

200 yard dash—1 Heber Baker, 2 Harold Baker, 3 Fred Baker.

Married men's race—1 George Baker, 2 George Bogue, 3 Bassett Blewett.

Fat men's race—1 A. E. Tippet, 2 A. Moore, 3 P. Tracey.

Girls, under 5—1 Irene Love, 2 Myrtle Rogers, 3 Emma Black.

Girls, under 8—1 Edna Sanderson, 2 Mabel Jones, 3 Alma Blewett.

Girls, under 12—1 Mabel Blewett, 2 Hazel Taylor, 3 Ethel Lynch.

Young ladies' race—1 Annie Blewett, 2 Blanche Baker, 3 Minnie Baker.

Married ladies' race—1 Mrs. George Baker, 2 Mrs. F. Hamblin, 3 Mrs. M. Kilpatrick.

Throwing baseball—1 Blanche Baker, 2 Mrs. George Baker, 3 Ethel Lynch.

The tug-of-war between the young ladies and gentlemen, won by ladies, Myrtle Baker captain.

T. A. ROWAT & CO.NOTABLE REUNION HELD AT EMBRO

At the Residence of Mr. James Smith—A Very Pleasant Time.

A notable re-union was held Tuesday at the residence of Mr. James Smith, Embro when a very large number of the descendants and relatives of the five couples who immigrated to Canada together in 1846 met to celebrate the event. The occasion was a most pleasant one, and all from the youngest to the oldest enjoyed themselves exceedingly.

The five couples in whose honor the reunion was held were Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. David Innes, Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McWilliam and Mr. and Mrs. John McWilliam. Of this party only four individuals survive—Jas. Smith, Embro; James McWilliam, London; Mrs. John McWilliam, Thamesford, and Mrs. John Hamilton, Embro. They were present at the reunion, and had a splendid time.

Mr. John McIntyre, of Portsoy, Scotland, was the guest of honor. Mr. David McIntyre, Chicago, was unavoidably detained.

Dr. J. McWilliam, 402 Dundas street, this city, was master of ceremonies, and the arrangements under his hand were carried out perfectly. At noon the tables were spread, and the whole party sat down to a splendid repast. The afternoon was spent in speeches, songs, and games.

Those present by generations were: First generation—James Smith, Embro; James McWilliam, London; Mrs. J. McWilliam, Thamesford; Mrs. John Hamilton, Embro.

Second generation—Dr. and Mrs. McWilliam, London; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McDonald Holiday; James and Jessie McWilliam, Kintore; Nellie McWilliam, Thamesford; Mr. and Mrs. George McWilliam, Thamesford; Mrs. A. Rose, Embro; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith, London; Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, Bennington; Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Smith, Embro; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McCorquodale, Bennington; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith, Embro; Dr. D. Smith, Stratford; Misses Jean, Nellie, Anne, Margaret Smith, Embro; Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton, Shelburne; Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton, Woodstock; Mr. and Mrs. George Hart, Woodstock; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marr, London; Mr. and Mrs. A. Hamilton, Embro; Miss Kate Hamilton, Embro; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hamilton, Agricola, Alberta.

Third generation—Mr. and Mrs. David Rose, Embro; Mr. and Mrs. G. Glendinning, Bennington; Mr. and Mrs. Colin Glendinning, James, John, George, and Bert McDonald; Jessie, George and Jack, McWilliam; Douglas, Jean, Grace and George Hart; John and Andrew Hamilton; Edwin and Walter Hamilton, Manie Hamilton, Shelburne; Ella, Smith, Will, Don, Jesse and Sarah McCorquodale; Wilbert, Elsie, Alice, James, Roy, May and Maggie Smith; Burns, Gordon, James and Frank Smith; McWilliam Smith.

Fourth generation—Burns Sutherland Helen and Innes Rose.

LEGISLATION COMMITTEE

Appointed to Act in Conjunction With Master Bakers' Executive

Guelph, Aug. 15.—The master bakers today visited the Ontario Agricultural College, where, after several papers were read, the following legislative committee was appointed to act in conjunction with the executive: H. Neat, Windsor; D. J. Gibson, Orillia; A. A. Lees, Hamilton; Wm. Pratt, Cobourg; C. Danneker, Stratford; D. W. H. Lucas, Sarnia; Wm. Melnards, Gravenhurst.

Mr. Parnell, London, brought in a recommendation that at the next convention an exhibit be made of machinery, bakers' supplies and products.

We meet all competition. Do not be misled by also carrying F. E. Smythe, grocer, corner Richmond and Hyman streets. Phone 121.
