Later on a petition was reseived for an asphalt block pavement, and when this petition came up a number of the residents on the street addressed the Council and asked that no pavement be put down this year. This was granted and a motion was passed laying the matter over until next year. This was thought to be satisfactory to the residents of the street and the matter was dropped.

Last evening, however, the matter was opened up again by Ald. Piggott, who presented a petition for an asphalt block pavement. What Britain Would Prefer.

London, Aug. 23.—Interest in official and diplomatic circles in London yesterday centred at Shanghai, where British interests are strongly appealing for protection. Great Britain, however, would prefer that the United States take the initiative in maintaining the neutrality of China, Great Pritain's position as the ally of Japan making her situation delicate unless her interests are directly menaced. It is true, the officials say, that Great Britain agreed in principle to the neutrality of China, but she did not undertake to enforce it. Throughout the discussion relative to the Askold and the Grozovoi she has held the view that it is none of her business, and the extent to which Great Britain has gone is to point out to China the importance of maintaining her neutrality, by which both belligerents are affected. #### THE COMMON MAN.

When Burns sang, "A Man's a Man for a' That," he caught the ear not only of his time and country but of all coming ages, and attained to a perennial citizenship that girdles to globe. He voiced a great universal conviction, which has continued to echo and re-echo from the world's heart ever since.

It was a word in season. The worth of man as man was not always a dictum of the current philosophy, nor can it be said to be entirely so even to-day. Plato thanked Heaven that he was born a Greek and not a Barbarian; and even the great-minded Socrates inclined to the belief that Barbarians had no souls. The tendency has ever been to estimate men in terms of adventitious circumstances, especially of wealth and rank. The aristocracy have seldom lacked for deferential consideration, and the worship of the almighty dollar has sometimes tended to just a little less than worship for the men who secured the greatest number of dollars. As for the rank and file of humanity the testimony of history is that they have had a hard row to hoe. Even as late as the early 19th century, when a noted French marshal urged as an objection to a certain military venture of Napoleon that its successful prosecution would involve the loss of 100,000 men, the Emperor replied with characteristic cynicism- Star, 'What is 100,000 men to me?' To him men were merely things wherewith to further the dreams of ambition, but to be little accounted of for their own sake. The fruit of bitterness has too often been the portion of the masses, and it has been only for slow and painful stages that they have come to their own. But the day of the common man has advanced well beyond the dawning. The poet's utterance that "Man is the nobler growth our realms supply," meets with an endorsation which is diffusing itself more and more widely in all lands; and the exponents of this doctrine are the men of real power in the world.

Men are loved as they are intensely human. He who combines genius with sympathy has mankind for his audience. When Tolstoi speaks the nations lend their ears. Literary art alone could not clothe him with this far-flung magnetism. It is the great mind in conjunction with the great heart that gives him such a widereaching voice. He is more than a patriot. The majestic touch of a warm universafity pulsates within patriot. him. The sacredness of humanity is his creed. He upholds with passionate earnestness and superb skill the right of all men to life and liberty, and he urges upon all the duty to fulfil themselves in unselfish devotion to others. One cannot imagine Tolstoi penning this sentence taken from a recent magazine article :-"London was empty save for a few millions of people who do not count." The modern view-point is just the op-

Consideration for the common man lies at the basis of national policies. Lord Curzon-newly appointed Viceroy of India-made this very clear in a recent address when presented with the freedom of the city of London. Said he: "Unless we can persuade the millions of India that we can give them absolute justice as between man and man, equality before the law, freedom from tyranny and injustice and oppression, then your Empire will not touch their hearts and will fade away." Manifestly, he regards the sentiment of the individual native as the ultimate thing to be studied, and as the final guarantee of stable authority. He further faid down the proposition that Britain could never rule the East except from the heart-a plan of government which implies as a central requisite the awakening of popular affection for the ruling power. India may not be ready for the full administration of her own affairs, but it is felt that the administration must be indubitably philanthropic, distinctly designed for the good of all the people, not for the aggrandizement of a bureaucracy, and that it is of the utmost importance for the people to know

The thing that counts in the formulation of any great policy is its probable effect on the ordinary citizen. This is why Mr. Chamberlain's Imperial propaganda, launched so spectacularly and conducted with such vigor, is getting, or seems to be getting, into deeper waters every day. The main and most telling point of attack is that it will increase the cost of living to the man on the street and in the factory. The bearing of the new Imperialism on the interests of the common man is the frontal argument in the scheme of resistance, and if made good promises choosing their angle of vision, this much is clear, that the opponents of Chamberlainism are abundantly acknowledging the dignity and commanding importance attaching to the Cornwall canal contract has left it common tasks day by day .- Toronto

SUPPLYING ITS NEED.

Says the Woodstock Express :-The Globe gives currency to a rumor that Mr. Aylesworth has accepted a seat in the Laurier Cabinet. Premier Laurier, when approached by a reporter in reference to the matter is reported to have said that it would JARS. Don't you want changes when the time came to make be time enough to discuss cabinet them; but The Globe is evidently not of the Premier's opinion, sor it discusses the rumored appointment of Mr. Aylesworth at some length. Who is to make room for the eminent lawyer is not definitely stated; but it is evident that there will be no difficulty in finding a place for him. Mr. Aylesworth would undoubtedly bring strength to the Government. As The Globe says, he holds an enviable position at the Bar of Onterio; but he is more than a mere successful lawyer; he is a man of parts. Ordinarily the training and experience of a lawyer are not the best qualifications for broad and enlightened statesmanship. The lawyer is accustomed in his professional work to presenting one side of the case only, and he is apt to advocate rather than deliberate; but as we have said, Mr. Aylesworth is something more than a lawyer. He is possessed of ability of a very high order, and he has character to correspond. It is to be hoped that the rumor that he has accepted a cahinet position is true. The Government is badly in need of such a man; the position is true. The Government is badly in need of such a man; the country is in need of such a man. For it is a structure that linked the present with the old days, those palmy times, when the makers of Canada trod our city streets. Looking at the old building one forgot for a moment the stir and bustle of the city around and saw in fancy spreading lawns, shaded with tress, stretched out on either side and extending down to the edge of the lake, and heard the laughter of the young and the graver tones of the old, who were wont to while

THIS LAND IS SACRED. Barn Built Over a Little Farm Buris. Plot Must Go.

Mr. Justice Teetzel, in the High Court at St. Catharines, recently decided a very interesting case. Andrew May, Eliza Julian, Anne M. Dwyer and Eliza Woodall, heirs of the late Peter and William May, brought suit against Berkley Belson, a farmer near Port Dalhousie. The farm now in the possession of Mr. Belson was originally owned by Peter May, a United Empire Loyalist. When he died he was buried in a little plot chosen by himself as the family burying ground on the farm. His son, William May, who inherited the farm, at death was buried beside his father. In 1890 a tomb-stone was erected over the graves and a hedge planted around the little plot sacred to the ashes of the departed Mays.

The farm subsequently came into the hands of the late James Clarke. His widow married a Mr. Kennedy and sold the land to Joseph F. White, who in turn disposed of it to Berkley Belson. There was a proviso in the deed that the little graveyard Mr. Justice Teetzel, in the High

WATER CLOCKS.

Curious Little Instruments That Ars Used In Sahara Desert.

A man's wealth in the Sahara is calculated almost entirely by the number of camels or palm trees which he owns and by the amount of water to which he is entitled. Water in the desert is so scarce that the ownership of it is most jealously guarded. In "A Search For the Masked Tawareks" the author says that in buying a palm grove it is always necessary to stipulate for so many sa'as per day or week. A sa'a, literally "an hour," is the amount of water which will flow in an hour through an opening the width of a man's fist in the side of a segia.

The main segias, or channels, as a rule follow the roads of the oasis, forming a sort of ditch at the side. A regular time table is kept, showing the ours at which the owners of the different plantations are entitled to draw water

The time is measured by a very curious little water clock, consisting of a metal cup, made usually of brass or copper, with a small hole pierced in the bottom. At the commencement of each hour this is placed in a basin of water. The water gradually runs through the hole until at the expiration of the hour the cup sinks to the bottom of the basin. It is then taken out, emptied and set again to measure off next sa'a, and so the process is continued throughout the twenty-four pronze erected to the memory of Major Alan Wilson and his band of heroes who perished on the banks of the Shangani River on Dec. 4, 1893, was unveiled in all its completenes on July 5. It is situated almost within hailing distance of the tomb wherein lies the body of the great Empire-builder and constructor of Rhodesia. The cut which accompanies this notice appeared in South Africa and is reproduced from a photograph by L. Pedrotti of Bulawayo.

The lower portion of the massive memorial is built of great granite blocks quarried from the foot of the Matopnos, and above the square

Matoppos, and above the square superstructure are placed the four bronze panels, which represent incidents of the march of Major Alan Wilson and his devoted followers. Each panel is 14 feet in width and 7 feet high, and the four show life-like and life-size figures of each of the 35 heroes who made up the expedition some on foot and some on horse-back. The monument bears the simple inscription:

"To Brave Men."

The removal of the remains of the Shangani heroes from their original resting place to their sepulchre on the Matoppos, gave rise to some bit-ter feelings among the people of Rhodesia, and especially among the volunteers. Those feelings, however, arose from a misconception of the circumstances, and have quickly and happily died away. Nothing could have exceeded the care that the Rhodes trustees took that every pos-

Their exploits and their death have found them a place in English history which is all their own, and there is not a man living who will be found to question their right to the magnificent monument eath which they now lie. Story of the Last Stand.

The story of the disaster which be companions is now part of that heritage of heroism which, while Britons hold their own, they will not willingly let die. It is a brief one, but contains the essence of volumes of romance. On Dec. 3, 1893, Major Forbes with a strong force was on the left bank of the Shangani River in Southern Zambesia in pursuit of the fleeing Lobengula. It was ascertained that Lobengula's wagons on which he was traveling had crossed the river on the preceding day. The chief was known to be ill and it was believed there were not many of the Matabele soldiers with him prepared to fight.

In these circumstances Major Forpose, with 20 officers and men, including the American scout, Burnham and Ingram, another scout, across the river to verify the report. A short time afterwards Captain Napier returned with two men and reported it had been ascertained that the enemy were present in force on the other side two miles off and asking for reinforcements. Twenty men were accordingly sent under Capt. Borrow. The night was dark and the river low and easily fordable. During the night there were no alarms, but Major Wilson posted able. During the night there were no alarms, but Major Wilson posted a double picket and the men stood to their arms early in the morning. At 6 o'clock further observations had aroused Major Wilson that there was no chance of his succeeding in his mission and a large body of the enemy were reported to be moving the trace, the small British force and between the small British force and between the small British force and the river, he despatched Burnham, Ingram and Gooding to run the gauntlet at all hazards and demand help at all costs and at once. With great difficulty and after being headed off on all sides the three scouts managed to reach the river bank. Instead of a small spruit 20 yards in width, it was a roaring torrent across which they had to swim hard against the current for 300 yards, stead of a small spruit 20 yards in width, it was a roaring torrent across which they had to swim hard against the current for 300 yards, reaching the main body just as it had successfully beaten off an attack. About half an hour previously two men, Nusbett and another trooper, had also reached the camp after having swam the river. They had got lost from Major Wilson's party during the night while charging successive scherms.

Meanwhile, during the lulls of the firing in their own engagement, Major Forbes' command distinctly heard firing on the south side of the river in the direction Wilson's force had taken. Volley after volley was heard, apparently about two miles distant, but gradually becoming fainter and infrequent, until at 9.15 a.m., single shots were heard one after another, sharply and then at an interval of some few seconds. This was followed by isolated shots. Then came a pause of a few seconds, broken by one shot, after which there was silence. Commandant Raaff of Forbes' staff turned and said simply to Captain Frances, "That's the last of them."

It was indeed the last of Major Wilson and his command. When has wilson and his command. When has worked by soloned the last of them."

and many of the men slain or wounded. Nevertheless, the bleeding remnant managed to drive the Matabele back twice, and would have succeeded in maintaining their position had they had more cartridges, and had no fresh natives replaced those who had fallen. After the revolvers were emptied, Wilson and his handful of heroes took their hats off and began to sing. This caused the supersti-tious natives to cease firing on them, thinking it was umtagati, or witch-craft. At the close of the song the Matabele rushed on with assegais, but were beaten back after a fierce hand-to-hand conflict. They then but were beaten back after a feeter hand-to-hand conflict. They then crept up on hands and knees, pour-ing in volley after volley. In the last desperate moments, some of the whites shot themselves with a cartridge reserved for the purpose, no doubt fearing a more terrible form of death had they been taken alive.

dead were shot or assegaied in the final rush.

A Matabele induna, who described the scene later, and from whom these details were obtained, said that not a man of them murmured or cried, but simply put their hands over their eyes as they were being killed. One man was specially noticeable— a fair, tall man, with long, fair moustaches and a red puggaree (this was Wilson)i and he stood up to the last, bleeding from many wounds, another wounded comrade loading for him to the end. Japanese Penetrate to Gen. Stoessel's Residence in Port Arthur.

Japanese in Che-Foo Ready to Celebrate-Liao Youg Also Soon

Special to The Planet.) London, Aug. 23.-3.35 p. m.-The Evening News this afternoon pubishes a despatch from Che Foo announcing that the Japanese captured 'Chain Fort," of the Port Arthur defenses, yesterday, after a tremendous attack. Che Foo, Aug. 23 .- According to advices brought here from Port Arthur by a junk, the Japanese are hotly pressing the Russian center along the railway and the Russian right in the vicinity of Golden Hill. These advices are brought by Chinese who departed from Ta pangtse, which is one mile from the city near Golden Hill, between the city and the forts of the Russian right wing. The Chinese declare that the Japanese occupied Taipangtze and penetrated along the railway to Gen. Stossel's esidence on August 21.

As this report would indicate that Port Arthur had all but fallen, the Japanese expert attached to the local consulate received the information with great reserve. The infor-mation is accepted however, as a confirmation of previous reports that the Russians have been drawn from Itzshan and that the Japanese are very close to the southern forts and the eastern defenses.

The local Japanese, under the leadership of their consul are subscribing money and prepring to celebrate the expected fall of the fortress.

Tientsin, Aug. 23.—Lloyds agent at

New Chwang reports as follows:—
"The Russans are now detaining nroduce from the interior. Lian Yang is expected to fall shortly. New Chwang and the country under Japanese jurisdiction are progressing wonderfully. The consuls get every assistance from the adminstrator."

FINE ADDITION

The Chatham Mineral Water Comany are now making arrangements for the erection of a fine new addition to the Sanitarium.

This new building will be a fine, up-to-date structure, erected on the corner of the company's property, adjoining the present and conected with it. The addition will contain an enlarged dining room, 26 new bedrooms, sitting rooms, sun bath, etc., and will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000. The work will be completed before the winter sets in when ed before the winter sets in when the rooms will be available. The building will be equipped with all of the latest modern conveniences and improvements, with spacious halls and large, airy rooms. A wide verandah will be placed in the front end on the side facing Murray street, and the ceiling of the basement will be high enough to convert the basement into a fine, large ball room. A graded eciling of the basement will be high enough to convert the basement into a fine, large ball room. A graded floor will extend from the new part to the baths.

The general outside appearance of the building will be comparatively plain, as the directors intend to expend most of the money on the interior with a view to comfort and up-to-date inside decorations.

This is a most commendable enterprise and the company are to be congratulated in entering upon it. This new building will be a benefit both to the citizens and the stockholders of the directors to go more extensively into the advertising of their mineral baths, which are equal in point of world. They are wise in building at the present time as labor will be cheaper owing to the lateness of the season.

J. Wilson & Son are the archi-season.

J. L. Wilson & Son are the architects for the new addition, and the plans are now at their offices, King streef. Quebec, Aug. 23.—Notre Dame Du-Portage, a well known watering place, several miles west of River Du Loup, was the scene yesterday afternoon of an appalling boating calamity, resulting in the loss of four lives and the narrow escape of a fifth. The victims were Didater Dion, Willsrod Fraser, both of Ottowa fifth. The victims were Didater Dion, Willsrod Fraser, both of Ottawa, and Ovide Laforest of St. Andre, Kamouraska, and his son. Edward Cusson, also of Ottawa, was the fifth man of the party, and managed to escape, though not before having had a two hours' struggle in the water.

The party left early in the morning for the Pilgrims, a small island, about six miles distant, in a sailboat, to which was also attached a rowboat. On their way home Fraser boat, to which was also attached a rowboat. On their way home Fraser thought he noticed a seal in the wa-ter and fired at it with a revolver. Some of the other occupants turned sharply around and in some way upset the boat.

An effort was made by all to reach the small boat. It also capsized. The first to go down was the elder La-forest, and he was soon followed by Fraser, Dion and the younger Laforest. Cusson managed to reach an oar belonging to the small boat and with this managed to keep afloat till rescued by some people from the rescued by some people from the shore. Laforest was the father of seven children. Dion and Fraser were both married men, and with Cusson were employed at the Public Works Department in Ottawa

LETTER BOX

To the Editor of The Planet: Dear Sir,-In my last letter I en-leavored to bring before your readers the very special advantages which the Canada Business College offers to those who wish to thoroughly qualify for office work. The public by this time must be familiar with the fact that any bright student who has had the advantage of a good English training, can complete either course with us in five or seven course months. In support of this statement, I will In support of this statement, I will take the cases of the last five students placed, four of whom were with us only six months; the fifth had taken both courses, and had been with us about twelve months, but had assisted us in looking after our business offices and checking papers in the business department during the last four months of his term.

These five young men were almost immediately placed in excellent positions, one at $600, one at $700, and tions, one at $600, one at $700, and the other three at $720 each. Did it pay them to come? We think you you will agree with us that it did. Give us the right kind of material and we will turn out the right kind of product every time, no failures and what is of the utmost importance to the student at this stage, is the fact that we can place him in a good position when he is qualified; 375 of our students were placed during the past year. What do you think of it?

Thanking you for your valuable Thank ng space, I am, Yours sincerely, D. McLACHLAN.

WILLIAMS-JONES

A pretty home wedding was solem-nized Wednesday evening at 8.30 'clock, at the residence of Mrs. Emma Jones, 360 Fort street east, when her daughter, Miss Grace Louise Jones, became the wife of Mr. How-ard Warren Williams, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Williams. Durard Warren Williams, only, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Williams. During the ceremony the bridal couple stood beneath a cluster of green any white wedding bells. The rooms were decrated with asters. The bride wore a becoming gown of white Siellan trimmed with lace and ribbon, and she carried a boquet of white roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss May Peate, of Chatham, Ont., who was gowned in cream white challie and carried pink carnations. Marjerie Mecker, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Mr. Burton Jones, brother of the bride, was the best man and the Rev. Mr. Baldwin, pastor of the Palmer church, officiated. Miss Joy Jones presided at the piano. At the conclusion of the ceremony congratulations were offered and light refreshments were served. There were many beautiful gifts. One hundred guests attended and among those from out of town were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Peate, uncle and aunt of the bride, and her cousins, Miss May Peate and Mr. Bruce Peate, all of Chatham: Mrs. George Peate, grandmother of the bride, of Dresden, Ont., and the Misses Lela and Nellie Hicks, also of Dresden. Four generations of the bride's family attended the wedding. Misses Lela and Nellie Hicks, also of Dresden. Four generations of the bride's family attended the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Williams will reside at 365 Fort street east, where they will receive their friends after Sept. I.—Detroit Tribune.

Miss Jones is well known in the Maple City, having visited here several times.

CHICAGO WINS

Chicago, August 22.—The Calumet lacrosse team, of Chicago, yesterday defeated the St. Paul team at the south side ball park by a score of 9 goals to 5. It was the first victory the local men have been able to claim in their four matches this year with the Minnesota players, one having been drawn and the other two lost. Much of the scoring success of the Calumets was due to the work of Mulligan, who kept his play and inaugurated several of the attacks which resulted in goals through the combined efforts of Rubridge, Sewell, Culberton and Barrett. These men did some great team work. Sewell was especially good, getting four of the six goals that he made from passes by Rubridge. Chicago, August 22.-The Calumet

"Yes, Mrs. Siefke. Come in." Mrs. Siefke did not come in, though. She crashed open the door, wounding its varnish on Lois' trunk.

"Packed?" she inquired. "No, no, I haven't packed," the girl replied nervously, while the fox terrier grumbled. "I can make it all right by this evening. I'm sure I can, Mrs.

"You've thought that for a lot o' evenin's. What you lookin' for now?" Lois pointed proudly to the array on the cot.

"These are the best I've done," she said. "I'm going downtown with them

Lois choked a little. But when she "Aren't they beautiful, Holy Terror?" she said. "Mrs. Siefke doesn't know anything about art."

The terrier jumped upon the cot and burst into a spasm of glowing barks over them. His ears were up and his stub of a tail quivered.

They were all the work of her hands, and Terror sniffed them lovingly, tracing her in every one. They were the high water mark of her artistic ambltion-couch cushions and opera bags and book covers and photograph frames, all of leather, wrought in elaborate designs by burning. On the book covers were outlined willowy ladies, who appeared to be absorbed in their reading. The photograph frames and the opera bags were etched in wreaths

SHE SANK IN A HEAP OUTSIDE THE DOOR and scrolls. One of the cushions was of brilliant green leather, and in its center, in deep black burning and vivid water color, was a life sized portrain of Holy Terror. This was her master

"We can't fail to make money from these, can we, Terror?" she said.
"We've worked so hard over them."

It was true that they had worked together. Ever since she had set out to make pyrography her life work Ter-roz had helped her. All the preparations were watched critically by him, and as soon as the hot point began to move over the stamped design his labor commenced. Every line and curve and dot of the etching he followed with his busy strawberry nose, the sam nose that had frightened away the

"I like strawberry noses much better than black, Terror," Lois told him when she took him home dejected. It was the only time in his life that he had ever placed his stub of a tail at half mast; he knew bitterly well that

When the portrait, the masterniece, was being etched, he had spent days of exultation. 'Do you think it's like you, Terror?" At moments she feared it was only the green leather that pleased him so mightily, for green was his favorite olor. But it must be that he knew, she reassured herself. At any rate ais nose followed the hot point like a sleuth's and whenever the point stop-ped he would raise his head and bark

'Hurrah!" in two sharp yaps.

When the etching of Holy Terror's outline was done, Lois painted in his spots of black and white, and with a anal tender and brilliant carmine touch she colored the strawberry nose

"Take a last look at your portrait," she said to him now.
She laid the articles in a neat box and wrapped and tied it. Then she iressed for the street. It was close quarters for dressing in the hall bed-coom with the cot, the chair, the washstand, the trunk and the chiffonier, hat skyscraper of dressing tables that serves in the lack of ground space.

Holy Terror had his customary bark winters now had clasped her fur col-

"If I bring back a great deal of money, Terror, perhaps we can throw this away and have a new stole that won't get on your nerves."

With the box under her arm she told him goodby. She hated to leave him. As a rule, they were inseparable, but she had met with those who did not understand him in some of the shops, and she explained to him that t was best he should wait at home for

The walk downtown was miserable without him. She longed to feel the tug of his buoyant strength as he dragged her at the end of his chain. She longed to watch his pointed muzzle prying out the way ahead of her and returning with noisy reports. She longed for his infectious cheer that had tided over many a dark hour in the hall bedroom.

On the avenue she came to the shops where pictures are sold. These she canvassed, as she often had done before, feeling that pyrography had its place among works of art. Then there were shops that had departments of fancy goods. She made the rounds,

It was dark when she turned the latchkey. She knew that the dinner would be cold and that the waiter would frown, and she did not care for dinner anyway. She started upstairs.

Mrs. Siefke met her at the first land-

"Well, got it?" she asked. Although Lois could not see on the dark stairway, she knew the landlady's hard hands clamped her hips.
"I can't not tonight"— The girl's voice broke wretchedly.

"Humph!" said Mrs. Siefke. "I knew you wouldn't. There's no use goin' up. Your room's locked and your goods are attached.' Lois turned white and silent, taking it in. From above came a furious barking.

"Oh! Holy Terror!" the girl cried, and ran up the stairs. She seized the knob and shook the door. The barking came from within. "Terror! Let him out, Mrs. Siefke," she called. Below, the landlady chuckled with irony. "He's attached all right," she said comfortably. "No! Not Terror! Mrs. Siefke, you can't-oh, take everything else"-She heard the landlady walking off heavily. "Terror!" she cried passion ately, and sank in a little heap outside the door, while he leaped madly against the inside, scratching and yelping and rattling the latch in vain.

When Burr met her at the door he wondered at her being alone. "It's disobliging of you to be going out just as I'm coming to see you," he said blithely. "And where's Holy Terror? Has he thrown you over?"

"No. He's upstairs," she stammered 'I've got to go-I'm so sorry, but it's urgent business.

He looked at her keenly, then he turned and walked beside her, with his great, sure strides. "My aunt is ill. Can you manage to stay with her at her home tonight?

She'll consider it a great favor." "It was a somewhat random shot, but I think it has hit the mark," he said to himself later, after he had delivered her at his aunt's house. Then he set out to call on Mrs. Siefke. They returned together, Burr and Holy Terror. Lois was down in the kitchen. Terror rushed into her arms like a miniature hurricane, and their emotions merged in a hysteria of sobs

Burr stood above them and watch-"It's odd," he remarked, "how a life of art bars out a husband, but es not in the least interfere with a fox terrier

At what followed Holy Terror burst into a fury of jealous barking.

Shellfish as Traps.

The familiar story of a mouse being trapped by a live oyster, though curious, is not the only instance of the kind. The great naturalist Frank kind. Buckland records the story of a rat which was caught by the same apparently harmless shellfish. Some years ago a common rail was found dead on the shores near Penzance. Its beak was tightly caught in the clutches of an oyster, which was still alive. The bird and oyster were removed and mounted. An even more queer case was that of a small salt water fish which was found in a pool in the rocks caught firmly by an immense mussel One would think that the mussel must have been pretty sharp in closing his shell. A story is told of a colored man who was caught in a similar fashion. He put his tongue into a half opened oyster to get the juice, and the oyster caught him tight by the tongue. piter when released was chaffed by his friends. "Why, the oyster couldn't have hurt you," said one, "for he hasn't any teeth." "No," replied Jupiter; "mebbe not, but de Lawd knows dat

These Japanese go 200 and 300 miles at sea to catch fish. Each year the shores of the is-lands are strewn with wreckage from the boats, while the sea gives up the bodies of the brave men who were bodies of the brave men who were caught in the fearful typhoons which aweep around this corner of the earth. An Effective Trick That Has a Very Simple Solution.

This very effective trick may be ac complished by means of a round or square pasteboard box, preferably a hatbox. Shape the box into the form shown in the drawing, turning up the overlapping half of the top cover and atting a large round hole in the other half which fits over the half box.

Now set a candle in the half box d rectly under the hole, light it and le it burn until it has a long snuff. Blow out the light and you are ready to per proves beyond question that Is the Ostrich Stupid?

It has been stated that the ostrich is so silly that it hides its head in the sand, thinking that, because it cannot see, no one will see it. One who has studied ostriches for several years says that, though this statement is not true, they are just as stupid as if it were true. Their tiny heads are so flat as to leave scarcely any om for brain, and they have therefore less intelligence than even a barnyard fowl has. Let the man who has fed an ostrich daily for years come to in a strange dress and it will not he able to recognize him. A farmer was once assaulted and nocked down by an old bird which he and constantly fed. simply because on ing a tall hat.

It had never seen him in such head-gear before, took him for a stranger and was proceeding to maul him to death but for timely rescue.

A Bird's Wire Mattress.
A gentleman in England had a pet magpie which, although very tame, would still leave the house every spring and go to the woods to build and raise a family, returning home again afterward. Wanting a young magpie for a friend, the bird's owner followed his pet and found its nest in a lofty gum tree. A boy was sent up the tree. He came down with a bird and reported hat the nest was all made of wire. His assertion being laughed at, he wen up again, cut the branch off and brought the nest down to prove his words. What he had said was perfect ly true. The nest was almost entirely onstructed of fine wire ingeniously twisted together. A small piece of fine wire netting served for a mattress at the bottom of the nest, and over this was laid straw.

The Advice She Wanted. My little sister Myrtle called our papa work in Nebraska and as pastor of two to her bedside the other evening and said, "Papa, I want to ask your adparty and was office manager of that party in Michigan for bout four years,

"Well, my dear, what is it about?" "What do you think it would be best to give me on my birthday?"

A train comes nightly from the east Across the curving sky; Its headlight is the big round moon, Its smoke the clouds close by.

Those clouds of smoke conceal the train I long to have appear;
I watch the brilliant, brilliant light
That makes the path so clear. The little sparks of stars fly out Along the moon train's way; I'd like to hear the engine puff, And some bright night I may.

I'I like to see the passengers, Perhaps a boy like me Rides on the train to China now; But, oh, I cannot see!

The splendid headlight blinds my eyes.
The train seems but to creep,
And long before it reaches here
In bed I'm fast asleep.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deaf-ness is the result, and unless the in-flammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condi-tion, hearing will be destroyed for-ever; nine cases out of ten are caus-ed by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous

The Difference. At one time there were two members of the house of commons named Mon tagu Matthew and Matthew Montagu— the former a tall, handsome man and the latter a little man. During a session of parliament, the speaker having addressed the latter as the former, Montagu Matthew observed that it was strange he should make such a mis take, as there was as great a difference between them as between a horse chestnut and a chestnut horse.

A WELL KNOWN ALBANY MAN

Recommends Chamberlain's Colic Cnotera and Diarrnoea Remedy. About eighteen months ago Mr. W. S. Menning, of Albany, N. Y., widely known in trade circles as the representative of the Albany Chemical Co sentative of the Albany Chemical Co., was suffering from a protracted attack of diarrhoea. "I tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," he says, "and obtained immediate relief. I cheerfully recommend this medicine to those similarly afflicted." Sold by All Druggists.

A Queer Remedy.

THE CORSET.

How It Should Be Adjusted For Comfort and Health. This article of dress has been the subject of much discussion. It has the most direct bearing on the general health.

sets properly they would prove a bless-ing instead of the curse they have Use two strings (not three, as many do in order to be able to "pull in" the waist). Lace the first from the bottom up to the waist line, the second from the waist line to the top. Let the strings hang loosely until the garment is on and hooked. Then the abdomen should be pressed up into place by the hands, 'not pushed down, as usual, and the lower string drawn up and fastened. The shape of the corset holds the abdomen in place. The upper string is left very loose and fastened. This permits the lungs to be filled with air.

This is the only healthful way to wear a corset, and if so worn it acts as a support to the organs and also to the clothing.

By first adjusting and fastening the lower part, then by drawing a very deep breath while the upper string is entirely loose, one can tell how much "slack" should be left in order to have unrestricted breathing.

How can a woman who has a few thousand dollars place it where it will draw a little better interest than it would if left with a savings bank responsible trust company and still be

There can be, of course, no certain and general answer to this question, since what is sought for is the mysterious balance between safety and profit in business affairs which must always be a matter of delicate, individual adjustment and involves the use of poised judy ment and the possession of large experience. One certain general principle nevertheless does govern the matter. It is this: The amount of money seeking desirable investment is always so great that the competition of investment for the ownership of securi-ties of high class is very acute and tends, save under exceptional circumstances, to bring down the interest rate on these securities to a low level. A high interest rate is therefore almost invariably and in the very nature of things a warning of insecurity. If the large dividends paid by this or that enterprise whose advertisements wer', in fact well assured, the great, shrewd capitalists of the country would be the first to know the truth and to seize possession of such treasures.-Exchange.

In ironing handkerchiefs it is useful to remember that the middle should be ironed first. To iron the edges first causes the middle to swell out like a balloon and makes it difficult to iron satisfactorily.

The most satisfactory method of fastening a valance to a brass or iron bed is by means of a piece of heavy muslin laid over the springs. Cut a piece of cotton cloth that has been shrunk—preferably unbleached-that will come just to the edge of the frame. To this fasten the goods for the valance either laid in plaits or shirred, having the flounce hemmed at the ends where it touches the bedposts. After basting securely place on the bed and put the mattress in place to be sure the valance hangs evenly. After stitching on the machine, with a long stitch, fasten to the springs in several places, head, foot and sides, with cord to prevent slip-

Linen scrim makes handsome and in expensive table and bureau covers if worked in a cross stitch nattern with double filoselle or san silk. The pattern chosen may be as elaborate or as simple as one prefers. The spread is first hemstitched, a three inch hem being liked for a small spread. Within the hem the border is worked. Pillow and pincushion tops are also worked on the same material. A pillow top seen recently was worked in yellow silk, a number of stitches and patterns being combined so that it was almost solidly worked. It was very handsome and represented a good deal of patience and eyesight.

NORTH PERTH PROTEST. Filed Against Mr. Brown.

Toronto, Aug. 23 .- The particulars of charges against the election of John Brown in North Perth will be filed this morning at Osgoode Hall. There are 125 counts, involving the payment of money for votes, the intimidation of voters, the opening of timidation of voters, the opening of hotels on election day, the distribution of liquor by the agents of a respondent, and many other charges of a corrupt nature. With John Brown are coupled the names of the Hon. J. R. Stratton and James Vance, Liberal organizer in Ontario. An attempt will be made to prove that Brown, Stratton, Vance and others received a large sum of money at their headquarters at the Grand Central Hotel, Listowel, and that the workers were called in, being told that the money had arrived for the election. The respondent in his experiments for a discovery admits election. The respondent in his ex-amination for a discovery admits the payment for livery rig to take voters to the polls. This act is enough to disqualify the respondent unless he is given the benefit of the saving clause of the act, which de-clares that the candidate may be re-lieved from the penalty of disqualifi-cation if no corrupt act was intend-

The particulars in the Muskoka election appeal will also be filed to-day. There is a long list of charges of corrupt practices. The particulars the other election cases will in the other election cases will not be filed till next week. In North Norfolk there are 500 charges, in North York 300, in North Gray 300, in Sault Ste, Marie 400 or 500, and also several hundred in North Ren-frew.

Ald. McCoig said that the engineer had investigated the Harry Gonne accident and he thought that Gonne had little cause for action. The matter was referred to the Finance committee.

A communication was received from the engineer in reference to the Ursu-line avenue sewer. He thought the tenders of Mitton and Stevens for 83,475 and Blight and Fielder 83,212 were too high, according to his esti-mates. Flook and Findlay's tender mates. Flook and Findiay's tender of $950 was certainly too low, and thus he recommended that the tender of Thomas Martin for $2,239 be acepted, as it is the nearest the engineer's estimates.

Ald. McCoig moved that Martin's tender be accepted, providing he puts on a gang of twenty men after the first week.

A letter was read from Mr. Chrysler, of the Chatham Paving Company. He said that in putting down walks for 10 1-2 cents a foot he had walks for 10 1-2 cents a foot he had lost a great deal of money, and now he asked 11 cents a foot on all of the work he has put down. He claimed that he had used gravel for filling instead of sand and the cost had been much greater.

Ald. Martin arose and suggested the matter be left to the Board of Works to investigate and made a
