GINZBERGS ARE CAUGHT

Father and Son in Jail at Eagle

Harry Hamburger Arrives in a Gasoline Launch Just in the Nick of Time.

Harry Hamburger is quite the most energetic young man in the city. When it comes to heading off an absconding debtor or chasing an erstwhile friend who has left for the lower country without the formality of saying goodbye, he is in the classic language of the day, Johnnie on the spot.

The gasoline launch of A. D. Williams was secured and after spending twenty-four hours on it making needed repairs the chase was begun late Saturday night. Hamburger took but one man with him and there was not a stop made between here and Eagle.

"Caught getting in boat, both in jail."

The message was signed by Hamburger. What steps will be taken to bring the Ginzbergs back to Dawson is not known, but the general belief is among those who know the pair that they will settle rather than come back and face the music.

JOHN IRVING MULTICED

The Wellknown Victoria Skipper Loses Money

Through Colonel G. H. Hayes Whom He Trusted to Buy Mines.

Victoria, June 28.—Col. G. H. Hayes, formerly Portland manager of the Nahmint mines at Alton, was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Capt. John Irving of Victoria, charging him with obtaining $11,000 under false pretenses. He was released on 1,500 bail. This afternoon a second warrant was issued by Irving charging Hayes with obtaining $24,000 by false pretenses. The allegation is that Hayes obtained money from Irving to purchase for him shares of the Nahmint mine held by Portland capitalists and that he, Hayes, converted the money to his own use.

Special to the Daily Nugget. Pendleton, Or., June 29.—Cattlemen and sheepmen of Canada Prairie in southern Umatilla, have established a deadline after an amicable meeting and on more incipient work with accompanying stock shootings which took place in previous years are anticipated.

Dominion Day

Special to the Daily Nugget. Vancouver, June 29.—In view of the improved condition of the King Canadians all over will probably celebrate Dominion day. A warship has arrived at Vancouver to help make the exercises notable.

Pattison to the Front

Special to the Daily Nugget. Harrisburg, June 29.—The nomination by the Democrats of Pennsylvania of Robert E. Pattison for governor brings that gentleman out once more as a possible Democratic nominee for the presidency two years hence.

Rather Warm

At half past three this afternoon the thermometer which hangs in the shade on the post office wall said it was as hot as 95 degrees. But there was a pleasant brisk breeze blowing.

Sealing Dispute

Special to the Daily Nugget. Washington, June 29.—Dr. Anson, arbitrator of the American-Russian sealing dispute, will commence hearing counsel and evidence of experts Monday.

For Big Celebration

It having been decided to properly celebrate the Fourth of July in Dawson, the various committees are hard at work preparing for the event and the indications are that the day will be a glorious one, all nationalities working as one to make it such. Up to noon today something over $2,000 in cash had been raised to be used in prizes for the sports department.

lawyer they would probably be able to successfully combat their return, as it is not believed they have committed an offense which is extraditable. But as they do not know that they will doubtless loosen up with some of that $20,000 secured by the sale of their claims on Bonanza.

Inquiry Will be Made

London, June 30.—The colonial conference opened in the secretary's room of the colonial office today. The premiers of self-governing colonies were present and Colonial Secretary Joseph Chamberlain presided at the sitting, which was of purely preliminary character. Adjournment took place to July 4.

SIBERIAN RAILWAY

Project Being Pushed by Engineer De Lobel

Who is in St. Petersburg to See Czar—Wants Immense Land Grant.

Special to the Daily Nugget. Seattle, June 29.—Negotiations for right of way through Siberia will reach completion shortly and the principal obstacle in the way of building the great Siberia-American railway will be removed. Louis de Lobel, an eminent French engineer who is at the head of the gigantic enterprise is now in St. Petersburg securing a right of way and land grant ten miles wide for 6,000 miles through northern Siberia. He brought influence to bear upon the czar and has no doubt of the success of his mission. De Lobel will arrive in Seattle in August and will proceed northward to look over the proposed route through American territory. His son Rene, now in Seattle, expects to sail for Skagway today.

Nothing to Shoot

That Dutton, colored, was in the dock at the police court this morning charged with selling a rifle, worth $15, to Stindler, the property of a Chinaman named Velmer A. Meade. The evidence was that he borrowed the rifle to go shooting with and that the prosecutor discovered that he had sold it. Prisoner declared that it had been given to him to pawn and he hadn't had time to take it out. "What for I want a gun for, there's nothing to shoot in Dawson," he said as a clinching argument. Inspector Starper said there was a doubt as to prisoner's intention to steal the rifle and he would give him the benefit of it. Case dismissed.

Discovery Staked

A new discovery was recorded this morning, by William Smith and Thomas Walker. The new strike is on Lepine creek, a tributary of Bradley. Bradley empties into Rock creek, and 12 miles up Bradley the latter is a long creek and the discovery claims are about sixteen miles up stream. The discoverers sunk two holes to bedrock, one 15 feet and the other 22 feet, and say they got an average of two cents per pan. Others who have heard of the strike, however, have a belief that the ground is much richer than stated by the discoverers.

One Happy Man

If there is anything that will cause the smile of contentment to wreath a man's physiognomy it is to have things come his way. Hence George Butler's broad-gauge smile.

DISCUSSION INVITED.

The matter of perfecting some practical plan for furnishing the miners of the district with a plentiful supply of water is the paramount question before the people of this territory. Claims by the score are lying idle today which would be working full blast if the creeks carried a sufficient volume of water to enable the mining operators to wash their dirt.

Under normal climatic conditions there are five months in the year during which the weather will admit of continuous sluicing. From the first of May and in some years beginning at an earlier date, until the first of October there would be no cessation of work on any of the creeks provided that a steady supply of water might be relied upon.

The question is one of vital importance, not only to the miner but to every other industry in the territory for all are dependent entirely upon the success of the former. In the opinion of this paper, therefore, the entire community should interest itself in the matter of obtaining and perfecting some tangible and practicable solution of this most important and admittedly difficult problem.

Discussion of the situation is invited through these columns to the end that all possible information may be gleaned. The first thing required is to secure all the facts and information available, that the matter may be placed upon as practical a basis as possible.

Mayor Macaulay has advanced some splendid ideas in connection with the discussion over the question of railroad terminals which indicates plainly that Dawson's executive is fully alive to the importance of the situation. The Nugget believes that the mayor has properly expressed the views of the public generally in saying that Dawson is prepared to offer reasonable inducements to the company to bring the railroad to this city. It may be accepted without argument that the city requires the railroad and the railroad stands in equal need of Dawson. Under such circumstances it should not be difficult to bring the interested parties together and effect an arrangement equitable and satisfactory to both.

The system of paying for street improvements from the city's general fund is not altogether satisfactory. Some proportion of such work should be paid by the abutting property. Just why the property owner who lives on the outskirts where there are neither sidewalks nor graded streets should contribute to the grading of Third avenue and other streets does not appear plain. Whenever a street is graded or paved the adjoining property enjoys an immediate increase in value and consequently should be made to bear a good portion of the expense involved.

By the way, is it warm enough for you?

Man Hunt Still on

Vancouver, Wash., June 18.—Morrill and Tracey have kept in hiding all this day, and the pursuers were baffled again. Yesterday afternoon about 6 o'clock they were seen by the militia boys in the vicinity of La Center, and about fifteen shots were fired at them, but the fugitives did not return the fire. The chase is now developing into a still hunt, with a score or more determined men in it. A number of the posse have come in and given it up, leaving such men only as will follow the convicts until all hope has been abandoned of getting them.

It is generally believed the convicts are in the timber on the south side of Lewis river, and are resting in hiding from the stern chase of the last four days. It is thought the men could have had but little sleep or rest during that time, as the posse has been camping close on their tracks. Since Monday morning the convicts have not stopped at any farmhouse for food, and it is probable they will show up at some place for food. The hounds are not able to take the trail to any great extent, and no further progress can be made until the convicts come from cover.

There are all kinds of rumors today, but none is credited. Sheriff Huntington, of Cowlitz county, has joined in the search and is prepared to take up the chase as soon as the convicts have crossed the Lewis river. The bloodhounds, in charge of Guard Carson, were taken to Woodland, in Cowlitz county, this morning.

Proof that the convicts are in the timber along the Lewis river came today in a report by a man named Lindsey, who runs a logging camp in that vicinity. He informed the officers that the convicts appeared at his place in the woods late last night and demanded supper, which was given them. After supper they went away, but in which direction the informant could not tell. This story was reported here by returning members of the posse tonight, and its truth is not vouchered for by any one in authority. It is also reported by Detective Kerrigan, of Portland, who returned here tonight, that Sheriff Huntington, of Cowlitz county, between which and Clarke county the upper fork of the Lewis river is the dividing line, has taken up the search on the north side of the river and has posted men to guard all crossings, while Sheriff Marsh still maintains armed watchers on the Clarke county side of the river.

ENJOYABLE EXCURSION MATTERS IN CHAMBERS

Was That of Steamer Casca Yesterday

One Hundred and Fifty Persons Escape the Heat of the City.

Fully 150 people availed themselves of the opportunity for taking a trip up the Yukon yesterday afternoon on the swift and powerful steamer Casca. Although a "scorcher" in town, the afternoon was an ideal one for a trip on the water and all who embraced the opportunity were thankful for doing so.

A run was made fifteen miles up the river and back on and down as far as Moosehide, the return having been made at 2:15 and the start to the wharf at 6:20.

An orchestra on board furnished excellent music and Teddy Cullum sang a number of solos. A landing for thirty minutes was made on a rose-grown island fifteen miles up the river after which bougainvilles were predominant decorations. Coffee and sandwiches were served free of charge, Acting-Chief Lund being kept busy much of the time.

The personal of the Casca's force is Managing Officer W. A. Rennie; Master Steve Martin; Pilot Jack Green, Chief Engineer A. D. McClellan, Second Arthur Lee, "Bar Pilot" J. O. Johnson, Agent Frank Mortimer.

Being the swiftest boat on the river and having unexcelled accommodations the Casca is very popular with the traveling public. She will sail for Whitehorse this evening at 8 o'clock.

The Skagway wholesale exporter who in former seasons was apt to be confounded with the common trader usually designated as scowmen, is becoming a thing of the past. A. C. Fasel, the large dealer in glass, paints, oil and wall paper, brought in ten tons of merchandise on Friday but he brought it on a steamer, and he is disposing of it through a commission house.

Mr. Fasel is carrying more avoirdupois than usual and when complimented on this he said: "Well, I have been suffering for two years from dyspepsia, caused by seeing only the same faces every day; two days in Dawson have cured me completely."

Help for Alaska

Seattle, June 19.—The chamber of commerce of Seattle went on record yesterday as favoring the enactment of liberal laws which shall open to the industry of the United States the vast wealth of Alaska, and that the government be asked to extend aid in the construction of roads and telegraph lines to bring the hardy people of that country in touch with the outside world, and that Alaska be given representation in congress.

During the discussion of the subject at the meeting yesterday it was shown that the government collected in licenses last year $600,000 more than had been appropriated for the improvement and needs of that country. It was shown that the system of taxation by license works a hardship on the people there, as it is often carried to foolish extremes. The following resolution by John S. Jurey was unanimously adopted:

To the Senate and House of Representatives, in Congress Assembled:

Whereas, The district of Alaska possesses many and varied resources of natural wealth; its valuable agricultural lands lie untitled because no laws exist by which title can be obtained; its food fishes have become a staple product; its vast mineral belts contain great deposits of gold, silver, copper and coal; and

Whereas, By reason of its climatic conditions, the season of labor is limited to scarcely more than three months; its isolated situation and undeveloped conditions demand the fostering legislation of the general government; therefore be it

Resolved, That Seattle chamber of commerce hereby memorialize the congress of the United States to speedily enact liberal laws which shall open to the industry of our country the vast wealth of that district; that a system of land laws attach; that such aid be extended as may be necessary to the construction of wagon roads, railroads and telegraph lines; that its numerous hardy, industrious and intelligent population may be represented in the halls of congress.

Many Cases Are Up for Argument

Novel and Equally Efficacious Manner of Collecting an Old Debt.

Today was a busy day in court, Mr. Justice Dugas hearing a number of matters in chambers. In Thompson vs. Henderson a motion was argued to have Mr. Fortin added as one of the defendants. The action was begun some time ago since which time the ownership of the property involved has changed hands as far as one of the three defendants is concerned, Mr. Fortin having become the purchaser of the one-third interest. Plaintiff asks that he be joined as one of the defendants. The dispute is between the owners of a creek and hillside claim, the holders of the latter alleging that the creek men have encroached upon their ground. An injunction was secured some time ago restraining the creek men from washing up their dumps and a receiver appointed by the court took charge and has filed the results of his work in court. The total cleanup out of 7,000 buckets amounted to but 21 ounces, scarcely enough to pay for shoveling the dirt in. Mr. Fortin appeared in his own behalf but upon his lordship deciding that he should properly be made one of the defendants he abandoned the interest, saying that it was not worth the costs that might be piled up against it.

Haddock vs. Napier stands for one week, the defendant undertaking to keep strict account of the gold taken out and make his report into court.

Ferguson vs. Kincaid is continued. Cribbs vs. Bowhay was up again upon the same old motion to set aside a lis pendens already of record in the gold commissioner's office. The whole question, which was exhaustively argued, is as to whether or not a lis pendens may be filed against a mineral or placer claim. Reserved.

In Thompson vs. Anderson, which came up on the question of salary to be allowed the receiver, the matter was enlarged another week.

Howe vs. Greenleaf was up on a motion for judgment. The case was heard some time ago when his lordship intimated that he would give judgment on the first count in the extent of $200 but would refer the second count to the clerk of the court for him to make his findings. The referee has filed his report upon which the plaintiff now asks judgment for the sum of $1030 and for $200 and for such additional sum that he has suffered in the way of damages. The defendant agreed as to the $200 judgment and also that the plaintiff be declared a party owner in the claims such as is prayed for in his complaint, but objected to any damages being awarded as there was no evidence shown that any had been sustained. Decision was reserved.

Berry vs. Lewis was continued one week.

The case of Ames vs. Holt came up on a motion to vary the report of the receiver and also to settle the question of interest which had been reserved. It was agreed by counsel in the case that plaintiff should file his brief within three days and the defendant to do likewise within three days following.

In Doheny vs. Delage a motion was argued for the redelivery of a horse which had been previously replevined. The facts in the case as set out by counsel for the defendant showed a very clever way of collecting a debt by a creditor of Delage. The latter had sold a horse to Doheny and together they had gone to the Melbourne hotel to complete the transaction. The horse was left outside in charge of a friend of the defendant while the parties to the action went inside to complete the deal and sign the bill of sale. The latter was drawn up and as a witness was necessary Mr. Thornburn volunteered to act as such. The bill of sale was transferred and just as the witness was about to be paid over the money served Doheny with papers as garnishee upon an account which he was collecting. Upon matters assuming that course Delage called the sale off, went outside and took his horse away. Later, suit was begun by Doheny and the horse was replevined. Now Delage is seeking to get it back again. His lordship took the matter under advisement.

Criminal matters will be taken up probably on Wednesday. There are some five or six cases ready for a Absconder Hunted Down.

The train was about to start and the young man who had just arisen from the seat beside a young woman from the day coach, was turning away when a tall young man came up the aisle.

"Why, it's Morgan!" cried the first young man with a quick hand clasp.

"How's Jim? Here," he quickly added, "take this seat you wanted my cousin the best you know how. Miss Ellington, Mr. Morgan. Goodby." And he hustled out just as the train began to move.

"Rather unceremonious," mused Morgan, as he paused beside the seat and looked inquiringly at the girl.

"It's Arthur's way," she smilingly said. "Won't you sit down?"

And Morgan, as he bowed and took the seat, noted that this was a remarkably attractive girl.

"I haven't seen Arthur before for a year or two," he said. "We were in college together and great chums, but as usual drifted apart. What is he doing now?"

"Just now he is threatening to settle down," said the girl. "An indulgent mother has made life very pleasant for him since he came out of college. He has been abroad you know, and out to California, and down to Florida, and he has his shooting in the Adirondacks, and his automobile trips, and—well, his time has been quite taken up."

James Morgan shook his head.

"I don't like that," he said. "Arthur has good stuff in him. At least I always thought so. Besides, I don't like the idea of his taking these trips from a woman."

"Not even from his mother?"

"No. The principle is the same. I understand that a rich father might want to broaden his son's views by travel and by association with widely differing classes of humanity, but with a rich mother it would simply be a desire to pamper and please. Besides, I don't believe that true men accept favors from women."

The girl beside him smilingly opened her eyes.

"That's rather old-fashioned, isn't it?" she asked. "This is the twentieth century, you know. The world, or at least our part of it, seems to think that woman is quite on an equality with man in most respects, and that in financial and business matters the question of sex does not enter at all."

"I know," he said. "And I admit that I am old-fashioned about it. It grates sadly on my ideas of duty to know that a man is under obligations to a woman for his salary, or even for his salary. The sounds a little preachy, doesn't it?"

And he laughed as he caught the girl's amused look.

"Do you think it would be quite humiliating for a man to accept employment from a woman?"

"That's the way I look at it," laughed Morgan.

"Perhaps you have had some unpleasant experience that has prejudiced you?" the girl suggested.

"No," said Morgan. "The fact is, I know very little about women—I mean the modern woman. I was a country boy and never saw a city until I went to college. Ours wasn't a co-educational university, and, anyway, I was quite too busy to think of the girls. Since I left college I've been knocking about in out-of-the-way places where women never go. Went to South America to help build a railroad, and a revolution drove us out. Was assistant superintendent of a Montana mine, and a consolidation froze us out. Was foreman of the Acme Stamping Co. when the treasurer wrecked it. You see, I'm quite a rolling stone, with the usual accumulation of moss. But I fancy my turn will come yet."

"And may I inquire what your next venture is to be?" said the girl.

"I'm asking merely to discover what the chances are for your meeting the woman of today." She laughed with quite a remarkable display of dimples. "I fancy you'll find her quite an interesting study when you can spare the time."

Morgan turned and looked at her.

"I begin to think so," he said. Then he hastily looked away. "Oh yes, my next venture? I'm going to Monticello."

"That's not very promising ground."

"It may be from my point of view," said Morgan.

"Then you think of going into business there?"

"It depends on a certain contingency. I am going to inspect a manufacturing property there at the request of several capitalists, who contemplate buying it. If my report is favorable they will take it. If the report isn't favorable I am out of a job again." He laughed. "You see that integrity in business is some-turn the Russell-Bemis Co. 7 per cent. on their investment the first year." He laughed a little as he said this. "I can afford to be egotistical," he added. "It takes a pull to get a place like that."

And there the subject dropped. There were other subjects, however, to take up, and both Miss Ellington and her aunt were delightful talkers, and Morgan told them some of his experiences in the wilds of two continents, and something about his college life, and the time passed very pleasantly. There was a charming dinner and a pleasant chat in the library, and when Morgan was coming home on the last trolley car he told himself that it had been the most delightful evening he had ever known.

Two days later he received a telegram. It was brief, but to the point:

"Deal off. Company will not consider proposition. Send in bill. Culver."

When Morgan went to pay his hotel bill he found a letter awaiting him. The envelope bore the imprint of the Russell-Bemis company. He hastily tore it open. It was an offer of the superintendency of the Monticello plant, salary and other details to be arranged later. If the place was accepted he was asked to wire the city office and take charge at once. The letter, couched in strictly business terms, was signed "Phineas Ranney, trustee."

Three days later Morgan was hard at work. The trustee, a shrewd old lawyer, had brought down the contract, the salary was arranged, and Morgan was devoting every energy to putting the plant on a paying basis. It was hard work, very hard work, but his toil was lightened by his visits to the home of Miss Ellington's aunt. They had become quite regular visits now, and the more he saw of Edith Ellington the more charming she appeared. She had such a sympathetic way with her, and seemed so interested in his work.

"But why should you exhaust all your energies for people whom you do not know, and who undoubtedly look upon you as a mere machine?" she asked him one day.

He laughed in his boyish way.

"I don't think of them at all," he said. "I am working on honor, you know. My professional reputation is at stake. I've made promises and I mean to carry them out. Besides, I love the work."

And at that the girl gave him such a delightful smile that he remembered it for many days.

He had been in charge of the Russell-Bemis plant for perhaps ten months, when on a certain Sunday afternoon he said, in response to Edith's usual inquiries about the factory, that it would be well for the management to send a good man abroad to enlarge the company's market.

"We can double our output," he said "and at a very little advance in expenses, and I know the European market is just hungry for our goods." He laughed, "I'd like to go myself for a three months' trip. I could get away as well as not. Everything is running smoothly, and your Fallon, is quite competent to carry out my orders."

"And the trip would give you a rest," said Edith Ellington.

"I hadn't thought of that," laughed Morgan. "But I'm quite willing to guarantee again that I will make

A sunny smile played across the upturned face.

"The Russell-Bemis company takes Superintendent Morgan's suggestions under advisement," she gravely said. "And—and I think I may go so far as to say that—that she—cordially accepts it!" And she put out both hands.

"And now," she said a moment later, "will the superintendent kindly take the company out to luncheon?"—W. R. Rose in Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

Jas. Morgan's Good Luck

I was putting in a month in a Swiss town, and as I was strolling along the highway in the suburbs one day a vehicle containing a single traveler appeared. The driver pulled up that the traveler might ask if he could find accommodations at some chalet instead of at the hotel, as he was not in good health and wanted quietness. I was lodging at a private house, and there was room for another guest. The stranger was driven on, and I sat down on a rock to sun him up. Having come from the west in a country vehicle, he must have come from beyond the railway station. The horse looked weary, the hour was 4 in the afternoon, and I settled it that he must have come from Thalla, 15 miles away. The man wore a hat which did not fit him and had the collar of his coat turned up. He had on goggles, though it was a dark day. A person who wears goggles for weak eyes will carry a finger to one of the glasses every two or three minutes, even if he does not remove them occasionally. On this man's face was a newly grown beard about an inch long. Every 30 seconds up went his hand to scratch. He was not used to a beard, but had grown one for an object. He thickened his voice when he spoke to me, and it was easy to detect the unnatural intonation. Why did he do it? Travelers searching for health are seldom to be met with in the mountains except in early summer, and this was late in the season. He might explain, however. Mr. Bracey, as he had given his name, probably had more reasons for suspicion than he had stated, and I had a curiosity to observe him further.

He was taken in at the chalet, and that night we ate supper together. I saw from his table manners that he had been used to the quick lunches of a restaurant. He claimed to be an Englishman, but his American idioms would have given him away to a child. The heels of his boots, as I observed, were very true. He was therefore a man who did little walking. He had the curve of shoulders and neck which come to one who sits a great deal. Now and then he leaned back and locked his fingers, as most public officials do when a caller enters. He claimed to have nervous trouble. That was or was not a good excuse for his presence. A door slammed, and he jumped. That showed nerves. The diligence rattled past on its way from the railroad station to the big hotel, and Mr. Bracey sily and furtively peered out of the window. That was the action of a fugitive from justice.

In the course of four or five days I had the stranger sized up to a dot and would have bet five to one that my diagnosis was positively correct. He was a straight haired American. He was a public official. It was his first time abroad. He was in disguise and a fugitive. Whatever boodie he had with him was in his undershirt pocket. I knew this because he was constantly raising his hand to the spot. That boodie was probably in drafts, as he made cautious inquiries about bankers. Mr. Bracey removed his goggles and turned down his coat collar and talked in natural tones after he got installed, but he did not wander far from the house and sought no other company. He asked for no papers, but when I bought copies of a New York daily at the hotel and took them home to read he could scarcely control his impatience until he had his hands on them.

I am no man hunter. I did not go to the police or drop a hint to any one. Of whatever crime he was guilty, he was safe from me. I knew it wasn't murder unless done in the heat of passion, for he was sentimental and tender hearted. I think it was on the fifth day of his stay that he became feverish and called in a doctor and went to bed - mental worry, you see. I had finished my supper and was smoking my pipe on the little veranda when I saw a stranger coming up the path from the hotel. From his gait I judged him to be an American. From the way he furtively eyed the chalet and its surroundings I reasoned that he had other business than seeking for lodgings. As he came to a halt and looked me over he gave himself away as a detective. He had taken me for the man he wanted, and chagrin showed clearly on his face. He was from a western state and on the trail of a defaulting city treasurer. It was queer enough that he didn't ask if there was another traveler in the house. He took it for granted that I was the only one, and he told me the whole story of Bracey's theft and flight. My diagnosis had been positively correct. There was the man under his thumb. He had followed him for three months and had only to climb a flight of 11 steps to lay hands on him, but it never happened. I was num. I was not interested in the case beyond proving my observations. He talked for two hours and then went away, saying that he should hang about for a few days. Half an hour after his going it was discovered that Bracey was missing. His bedroom window was over the veranda, and he had heard an

When three days had passed and no trace of the missing man had been had, he was given away to the detective by one of the town officials. He had left the chalet lightly clad, without food or baggage and in a fever, and the idea was that he had lost himself on the mountains and would perish if not found. Parties were sent out in search, and it was not long before evidences were found. When the fugitive discovered that he had been hunted down and was about to be arrested for his crime, there was nothing left for him but to take to the mountains and find a temporary covert until he could plan a little. Being ill, without food and thinly clad, he could not keep his life over two or three days. In the gloom of that first night he had traveled nearly two miles, making up the mountains by a path. Then he had wandered from the path and fallen over a bank 30 feet high into a stream. The rushing waters had carried him down a mile or more, and they found his dead body wedged between two great rocks.

When the coroner overhauled the effects found on the body, there came to light $5,000 in English money and drafts for nearly $200,000 more. His name was not Bracey, of course, but as the city treasurer of a town in the west he had gobbled its last dollar and fled to enjoy his ill gotten gains on the other side of the ocean. He had not spent a thousand dollars as yet or taken a moment's comfort. He had too much conscience and not enough nerve. If he had got safely away, he would never have enjoyed himself. As I looked down on his dead body and thought of his shattered and disgraced life I felt something more than a passing sorrow. As I helped carry the bruised and battered corpse down to the townhouse for inquest and burial I found tears in my eyes and pity in my heart. - M. Quad.

Senator Tillman Reuked

The extravagant and scandalous representations of Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, regarding the state of society in the south are making reasonable Southern men tired and angry. He is reported to have said in a recent speech that "throughout the south every white family is living in a state of horror of negro rapine." Ex-Gov. Fishback, of Arkansas, writes to the Springfield Republican to say that this is not so. He does not profess to know how it may be in South Carolina, but he says he is well acquainted with conditions in Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Arkansas and Texas, and asserts that such a statement applied to these states is as unfounded as if applied to Massachusetts or New York. He has lived in Arkansas forty-four years, and is prepared to say that he doesn't believe there is one white family in the state who live in a state of horror of negro rapine. "The very best feeling exists between the two races." In proof of this, he instances what it is doing for the education of the colored population, quoting from his own last message a passage founded on the United States census reports that while the white race is paying 98 per cent. of the taxes for the education of the colored people, they are educating a larger proportion of all colored children in the public schools than most of the New England states and Middle states are educating of their own children. He attributes Tillman's utterances to a disordered mind.

Died of Rare Disease

Chicago, June 17.-Practically dead for eight and one-half hours, the heart of Bridget Dempsey, a patient in the county hospital, had finally ceased beating. All action of the respiratory organs of the woman had ceased and the physicians in attendance pronounced her dead. The heart action, which apparently had died away, grew stronger a few moments afterward, and injections of nitroglycerine and other stimulants and artificial respiration were used, but ineffectually. Still the pulsations of the heart continued with regularity, while the woman remained to all other indications lifeless.

Dr. J. H. Mustard, of the hospital staff, pronounced the case one of Landry's paralysis, one of the rarest diseases known to medical science. The disease is, primarily, paralysis of the respiratory organs, which does not act immediately on the heart.

Manila in 1888.

Manila is well planted and inhabited with Spaniards to the number of 600 or 700 persons, which dwell in a town unwall, which hath three or four small blockhouses, part made of wood and part of stone, being indeed of no great strength. They have one or two small galleys belonging to the town. It is a very rich place, of gold and other commodities, and they have yearly traffic from Acapulco in Nueva Espana and also 20 or 30 ships from China and from the Sanguelos (people from Sanga, in Japan), which bring them many sorts of merchandise. The merchants of China and the Sanguelos are part Moors and part heathen people. They bring great store of gold with them, which they traffic and exchange for silver and give weight for weight.

These Sanguelos are men of marvelous capacity in devising and making all manner of things, especially in all handicrafts and sciences, and every one is so expert, perfect and skillful in his faculty, as few or no Christians are able to go beyond them in that which they take in hand. For drawing and embroidering upon satin, silk or lawn, either beast, fowl, fish or worm, for liveliness and perfectness both in silk, silver and pearl, they excel. - "Cavendish, First Voyage."

Hunger and Ideas.

If you wish to increase your imaginative powers, says a scientist, go without food. Abstinence from food till the pangs of hunger make themselves distinctly felt will quicken your mental powers and stimulate the flow of ideas, such ideas being of a kind that agree with the regular bent of your mind.

This seems to offer good prospects not only to literary men, but also to machine makers and all those who are on the watch for some improvement or invention that will revolutionize some industry. But you must be careful or you will overdo it. Prolonged fasting, according to the same authority, creates a desire to commit some horrible crime, makes you wild and cruel. The prolonged faster becomes a prey to hallucinations, is unable to sleep and likely to go mad. In short, abstinence from food for long periods - and "long periods" is a term that varies with the individual - induces the same effects as drunkenness.

To Aid His Brother

Tacoma, June 18.-Benjamin Merrill, a brother of the escaped Oregon convict, who has been working in a logging camp on Anderson island, for George Bloom, took a steamer for Olympia this morning, with the avowed intention of going to the assistance of his brother. He did not get off the boat at Olympia, and it is supposed he came on to Tacoma. Bloom came to Tacoma and advised Sheriff Hartman. Unsuccessful attempts were made to locate Merrill, and southbound trains are being watched, but if he left the city he boarded a train at some suburban station.

Friends of Merrill at the logging camp tried to dissuade him from the reckless enterprise, but he declared to Bloom that he would help his brother to escape or else die with him. He told another man that he would see his brother before tomorrow night, and intimated that he had received a message from him.

Apaches Are Restless

Washington, June 18.-The war department has transmitted to the interior department information that trouble is threatened among the Apache Indians on the San Carlos reservation in Arizona, on account of the proposed shutting off of beef and other rations after July 1 next. The action of the war department is based on reports received from Gen. Funston, commanding the department of the Colorado, who predicts that in case the rations are discontinued the Indians will take beef and other supplies wherever they can get them in that section regardless of consequences. Gov. Murphy of Arizona has received information along the same line. As a result of these reports the interior department will suspend the order for the discontinuance of the issuing of rations.

The secretary of the interior today telegraphed Agent Carson, of the San Carlos agency, to make a full report on the matter and directed that the issue of rations to the Indians be not stopped on the 30th instant, as planned, but be continued until further directions are given by the interior department. Secretary Hitchcock said today that it was not proposed to discontinue rations to all the Indians, but that those capable of working should be given work as far as possible and issues to them be discontinued. It was estimated that employment could be given to between 300 and 350 of the Indians. The remainder would continue to draw rations.

Gen. Funston's report is based on a report from Col. Lebo, of the Fourteenth cavalry, commanding at Fort Grant, Ariz. Gen. Funston says the Apaches are not self supporting and will not be for many years, if ever, and that the discontinuance of rations to them will be followed by serious trouble.

The Indians on the San Carlos reservation, which is in eastern Arizona, are the Potos, San Carlos and Coyotero Apaches, about 2,300 in all.

Fourteen in a Boat

Montreal, June 17.-A letter received here from Stillwell Parker, of Headship Harbor, N.S., states that on June 2 a bottle was picked up forty-five miles east of Halifax containing the following note, written on a scrap of paper:

"Steamer Huronian turned over Sunday night in Atlantic. In small boat, 14 of us."

The Allan liner Huronian, bound from Glasgow for St. John, N.B., sailed from the former port on February 7 and nothing up to this time has been heard of her.

Caused Great Terror

Mexico City, June 17.-An earthquake shock lasting 20 seconds was felt yesterday at Chilpancingo about noon. No damage was done, but great terror prevailed.

HIS YACHT A FAILURE

Emperor's New Boat a Bum One

Was Two Hours Behind Winner in the Race This Morning

Special to the Daily Nugget. Berlin, June 30.—Emperor William's new yacht Meteor has proved such a failure that Skipper Ben Williams says he ought to pull the mast out and put in a motor. The Emperor steered his American built schooner yacht across the finish line at Kiel this morning two hours behind Indiana. The Empress's yacht, Isaca, was second.

Skagway Man Drowned

Nicholas Farrell, well-known to all Skagwayans where he resided since '97, was drowned in Porcupine creek on the 24th. He was crossing on an oil dam and, falling in, was carried away in the rushing water. In '98 Farrell married a daughter of J. T. Broemser, another pioneer resident, and his wife and three little children, the youngest only two weeks old, survive him. "Nick" Farrell was but 25 years of age.

Inquiry to be Made

Denver, Colo., June 18.—A telegram was received here from the fourth assistant postmaster general at Washington, indicating that a rigid investigation of the robbery of the postoffice last Monday night would be instituted unless the local authorities could by mail throw some light upon it.

It appears that the clerks, instead of placing the registered letters and packages in the vault, left them on a table, and there were no bars to the window through which the burglars entered. A conservative estimate of the loss is $2,000.

Big Rewards Offered

Raleigh, N. C., June 18.—Gov. Aycock today offered rewards aggregating $30,000 for the arrest and conviction of unknown persons who, on the night of June 14 took the negro Gillespie from the jail at Salisbury and lynched him. There were about seventy-five men in the party and the governor offers a reward of $400 for each of them. It is understood that evidence has been found tending to show that the negro was innocent.

W. T. McMichael Dead

Oklahoma City, O. T., June 18.—W. T. McMichael, who yesterday shot and killed E. W. Johnson, a real estate dealer and a former Rough Rider, and who was himself shot, died today of his wounds. E. E. Brown, who took part in the shooting and who was released yesterday evening, was rearrested today upon the oath of Michael, and was held without bail. McMichael, before he died, asserted that Brown had shot him, while a bystander declares that McMichael was hit by a bullet fired by Johnson.

Wireless Telegraphy

Washington, June 21.—Gen. Greely today entered into a contract with the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company for the erection of two wireless telegraph stations connecting Fort Gibbon, Alaska, with Bates Rapids, on the Tanana, a distance of 165 miles in an air line. The company undertakes to have the stations in working order by October 1 next. Gen. Greely already has an overland wire from Nome City to Fort Gibbon, and with other existing lines this wireless system will complete a circuit from Bering sea down to the south coast.

The company's undertaking is to supply a system that shall work every day without interruption, else the government will not be kinder any expense.

Fighting Grasshoppers

Sacramento, Cal., June 17.—The grasshopper plague is a great menace in Sacramento, Eldorado and Placer counties, and is growing more threatening every hour. The supervisors of Sacramento county have ordered the pasture land, on which the insects are nesting, to be burned, and have sent out deputy sheriffs to see that the orders are obeyed.

Dishwashing, $3 per

The adjourned case of George L. Bellows and Robert A. Lawrence, a suit for wages brought against V. Jurez, of the English Grill restaurant, was heard this morning, Mr. J. Langlois Bell appearing for the defendant and Mr. Hagel for the plaintiff Bellows only. The other plaintiff did not appear and his case was dismissed. Bellows put in a bill for 108 hours labor at 80c per hour, and four days at $3 per day as dishwasher. He admitted receiving $5 and $4.25 in meals. There was no agreement as to the labor but he had done the work and expected to be paid. Defendant said the plaintiff had applied to him for work and he had promised to employ him as dishwasher. Meantime the man made himself useful and got his board for it. He had worked four days as dishwasher and defendant was willing to pay for this. Magistrate Starnes, in the absence of any agreement, except for the dishwashing, gave judgment for the balance, $7.

New Fishin' Hole

The dirty slough back of the Episcopal church has developed into the size of some of the rivers of the old country, and yesterday there were several boat and canoe parties evidently enjoying themselves on its not too pellucid surface. The rise of the Yukon has backed up the water and filled the stream up to its banks. This morning the loungers on the bridge were treated to an exhibition of seining. Two fishermen in a boat had a seine across the stream near to the bridge and one higher up, and made several large hauls.

Murder of Howard

Tacoma, June 21.—Kate Arquette, an aged Indian woman belonging to the Puyallup tribe, was assaulted and murdered in cold blood last night by Tommy Santiago Howard, another Puyallup Indian, on the place of Squally Charlie, four miles east of Tacoma. Mrs. Arquette for some time past has been living with Gen. Spot, a noted Puyallup Indian, who has figured prominently in bygone days on the Sound. Howard came to their shanty last night and called the general out, asking for Mrs. Arquette. Gen. Spot told him that she was sick, and ordered him to leave. Instead Howard drew a knife and a fierce fight began. Gen. Spot using an ax handle, and finally driving the young man through the doorway. He then made a pretense of drawing a revolver, and Spot ran into the forest and hid. The young man turned his attention to the old woman, who screamed and pleaded to be left alone. Presently the outcries ceased. When Spot finally ventured out of hiding Howard leaped upon him from ambush and another fight began, Howard doing his best to stab the general with a knife. The old man finally beat the desperate Indian off and he fled. Going into the shanty Spot found the old woman dead, terrible bruises covering her body and marks on her neck indicating that she had been strangled. Superintendent Frank Terry, of the reservation, this morning apprehended Howard and turned him over to Sheriff Hartman, and he is now in the county jail. Gen. Spot was taken to the jail this evening, and identified Howard as the one who had committed the crime. Coroner Brown impaneled a jury this afternoon which will sit on the case Monday.

Will Let it Stand

Washington, June 18.—The text of the proceedings before the Chicago court of inquiry, with Admiral Crowninshield's strong indorsement thereon, contained in the Associated Press dispatches from London, has not yet reached the navy department, which thus far has had nothing but a telegraphic synopsis of the findings. Secretary Moody, however, in the absence of reports, has made up his mind that Admiral Crowninshield acted correctly in not ordering a court-martial, so unless there is something in the body of the testimony taken by the court of inquiry which is not known here to exist, it is improbable that he will abandon that conviction. As to the status of Capt. Dayton, the indorsement of Admiral Crowninshield, so far as it may reflect on him, will go upon the official records, and unless the officer should meanwhile clear himself by asking for a court of inquiry or a court-martial and securing judgment in his favor, it might affect him when the board on promotions next examines him for promotion. So far as the department is concerned, however, there is the best reason to believe that it wishes to regard the matter as a closed incident, influenced thereto to some extent by the state department, which earnestly desires to avoid the prosecution of a subject that might embitter the existing pleasant relations with Italy.

Cold in South Africa

Cape Town, June 24.—Unprecedented snow storms have swept over the midlands. Trains are blocked by a six-foot deep snowdrift at Naauport. The telegraph wires are down. Intense cold, accompanied by heavy snows, prevails at Pretoria. The Cape mail was blocked in the snow at Springfield for 24 hours. It was necessary to employ three engines to extricate the train from the drift.

SERIOUSLY CHARGED

W. W. Scott and J. L. White in Court

Alleged to Have Obtained Money Falsely From Laboring Men.

The names of W. W. Scott and J. L. White were called at the police court this morning, and Mr. Crisp appeared for the accused, who are charged with pretending to peddle governmental influence. There have been for some time a number of laborers on the look out for work on the government roads, particularly the one that is to run to Whitehorse. Taking advantage of this it is alleged that the accused pretended they had "influence" through other parties to obtain jobs on the road, and that upon payment of a fee of $5 they would secure such jobs. The two men were arrested on Saturday night and brought before Inspector Rutledge, who released them, on personal bonds of $250 each, and two other bondsmen each in the same amount.

Sergeant Smith said this morning that there had not been time to summons the witnesses, of which he seemed to think there might be quite a number, and the hearing was thereupon adjourned to Wednesday morning.

The name of the informer in the case, from which the accused are charged with having obtained $5 on a guarantee they would find government employment for him, is W. W. Nelson. The penalty in case of conviction is a fine of $100 and not to exceed $1000, or imprisonment of from one month to one year.

Dell Baker Arrested.

Eldorado, Kan., June 18.—Dell Baker, one of the Morrison case juries, was arrested today, charged with robbing Walter Warner, another jurymen, of $65. The two men slept together last night and this morning Warner missed the money. He jerked Baker's hat off and one of the coins dropped out.

The selection of the jury has not been finished. There remain three challenges yet.

Lived a Tragic Life

Durango, Col., June 18.—Mrs. Margaret Feeny, wife of a horse jockey, has committed suicide by taking morphine. She was separated from her husband, who was the widow of Bob Ford, the slayer of Jesse James, and lived with him at Creede during the wild days of that camp. She bore the scars of a bullet wound on her body, given by Ford in one of his outbursts. Her second husband was killed in a mine accident.

Work Fattens

It is accepted ought to be dogmas; the president ought to be growing daily leaner. Each succeeding month ought to find him more cadaverous and skinnier than the one before. What are the facts? The president is acquiring flesh like a pickaninny in sweet potato time. The more work he turns off the more fat he takes on.

In addition to fighting place-hunters and administration enemies, he is engaged in a fierce struggle with avoirdupois. When he lays down his pen he puts on the gloves and takes a three-round go with a professional pugilist, and the pugilist emerges from the premises with every indication that he has had enough.—Kansas City Journal.

The Casca leaves for Whitehorse this evening at 8 o'clock. The Tyrrell is billed for an expedition to Eagle, leaving here on the night of July 3. Execution Withheld. Judgment was to have been issued this morning in the case of F. McIntosh against Louis Pond, a claim of $245.60 for wages. Mr. McKay, for the defendant, said his client had no objection to the execution being issued if the plaintiff could find anything to place it upon, but the fact was that his client was in no better position to meet the claim now than when the suit was heard. If a little time was given, however, something might possibly be done. Inspector Starnes decided to withhold execution for ten days. In the case against the same defendant.
