CHAPTER XXIV.

She hid her face on his breast, trembling convulsively in every limb, while Guy bowed his head over her in an agony as great as her own, his strong frame trembling with the suppressed rage and fury which burnt in his heart when he thought of the misery before her.

"Guy"—lifting her head and meeting his sorrowful eyes—"forgive me! I forgot! I won't pain you, dear, any more. My head seems so strange and confused that I do not know what I am saying. Why did I come? I walked all the way, you know, Oswald helped me—he was very good; but he could not help its being so cold, you know. And when I fell he said, 'Come back—come home.' But I knew that I must come, that if I did not something dreadful—again the trembling seized her, and her voice died away on the parched lips, but her eyes still looked upward to his. "Ah, I remember! Guy, you will not—there is something I have to ask you—you will come away from here—you will not—oh, Guy"—she slid down from his arms and sank at his feet, holding out little eager supplicating hands—"oh, Guy, if you ever loved me—I can see the danger in

FARMER'S WIFE ALMOST A WRECK

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Own Story.

London, Ont.—"I am a farmer's wife and a very busy woman. Last summer I was taken with severe pains in my back so bad that I could not get up or scarcely move without pain, and my periods were painful. My husband called in a good doctor and I was under his care for some time, but he did me little or no good. One day a friend of mine told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had been greatly helped by it. I began taking it and soon got well, and my periods became natural again. Since then I have had perfect health. In fact I have never felt so well in my life. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine many women need. If you think this letter will help other women please publish it."—Mrs. K. C. Young, Tambling's Corner, London, Ontario, Canada.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

"He will not hear me—he never loved me! Oh, Guy—oh, Guy!" At the broken wailing words Guy turned to her, and as his eyes rested on her face, and—and—it terrifies me. Oh, Guy, come away—come away!" She was clinging to him as she knelt at his feet in a very delirium of error, her hands upraised, her hair sweeping the ground. Bending, Guy strove to raise her, but she resisted. "No, no, I will kneel here! Oswald help me to plead. Do you not see that you do not see—"

"Shirley, dear, Guy will come away. Be calm, child; you will make your self ill."

Captain Fairholme had come to his side, lifting her with gentle hands and speaking soothingly. He saw that the girl's mind was almost untinged with misery, that the fever lights in her eyes terrified him. "Do you not see?" she repeated. "He will kill him! Oswald make him go; he has suffered so much that his misery has—"

"This scene must end," said Sir Hugh advancing. "Major Stuart, you have any pity for this poor child who is evidently so terribly upset by all the excitement she has undergone that she is not conscious of what she is saying, you will leave us. I am at our service whenever you like it all upon me. You can leave my wife on my care now."

"Go, Guy, for Heaven's sake, and end this scene! It is killing Shirley," Oswald said, entreatingly, for his cousin's condition was alarming him. "The fever of her mind was struggling against her physical exhaustion, and she clung to him, panting and breathless, in her agony of error.

"To leave her thus!" cried Guy bitterly. "How can I? Fairholme put yourself in my place. To leave her to that dastard, who has so cruelly betrayed us both! Why did you let her come? I claim a man's right of vengeance. Even his life would not be sufficient—"

"You are talking madly," interrupted Oswald. "What vengeance can you take that will not fall most heavily upon her? Ah, surely, she has suffered enough! Will you add to her misery? It would be kinder to tear her limb from limb than let her suffer thus! And you say you love her!"

Guy Stuart stood silent, his hands clinched, his head bent, his breathing loud and fast. To let go his vengeance was harder than to part with his own life. To forgive the man who had so terribly wronged him was beyond his strength. The very sight of the livid, changed face lying prone against Oswald's shoulder goaded him to madness. While her life should last, she must suffer through that man! Could any vengeance be too great? Would any cost be counted if he could be made to suffer in his turn?

He lifted his eyes and turned them full upon his betrayer, and under the hate and bitterness of that look Sir Hugh, brave as he was, felt the color leave his face. A bitter cry of anguish and despair rang through the room.

"He will not hear me—he never loved me! Oh, Guy—oh, Guy!"

upon her, all the anger died out of them, and a yearning, heart-broken tenderness replaced it. He looked at her for a moment, the girl he loved so wildly, and who had been stolen from him by so base a theft, the girl who was another man's wife; then he turned away and covered his face with his hands, and there was breathless silence in the room, during which had its occupants been less absorbed, they might have heard the sound of rapidly approaching wheels.

For a minute no one moved or spoke; then Shirley crept feebly to Guy's side and raised her fingers to his hands as they were clasped before his face. At the touch, light as it was, a shiver ran through his frame, and he uncovered his face and stood erect.

"I will go," he said hoarsely. "It's better—I will go. No, my darling—how can I take you with me? You are his wife, remember."

She had clasped her hands round his arm; but at the words, so heart-rending in their bitter anguish, so hopeless in their misery, the little clinging fingers fell away, and she drew back with a puzzled bewildered look.

"Guy," she said faintly, "have you forgotten how to love me? Are you angry? Have I vexed you?"

"Dear, do you forget!" he asked pitifully, as he made his way toward the door, moving like a man suddenly stricken with blindness, Shirley following with the same wistful puzzle look, which made Oswald watch her with a nameless fear.

At the door Guy paused, fumbling with trembling hands for the handle of the door to look at Shirley, and seeing that he could have faced death so easily than those wondering blinding eyes.

"Guy, you will not go without me?" he said piteously. "You will not leave me here? Ah"—with a cry which rang through the room—"I forgot—I forgot!"

Not daring to hesitate, Guy opened the door, and went out into the hall where two ladies—Lady Capel and her daughter—came forward eagerly as he appeared, but whom he passed without recognition. They uttered a simultaneous exclamation of distress and hurried into the library, and while one ran to Shirley and caught her in her arms, the other turned to Oswald.

"For Heaven's sake follow him!" Lady Capel said hurriedly. "He needs you most."

Oswald obeyed without a word, and with a glance at her daughter, who was crying passionately, with her arms round Shirley, whose eyes were wild and vacant, and who would not heed to Ruby's tears and addresses, her ladyship addressed Sir Hugh—

"You must pardon this intrusion, Sir Hugh; but my daughter was in such distress about Shirley—she feared she was ill, and—"

"No apology is needed," Sir Hugh said, an expression of intense relief in his countenance as he went forward. "No words can express my attitude for your kindness, Lady Capel. I fear indeed that this has been too much for Shirley, and I will gladly leave her in your care. I will send my housekeeper to you."

"(To be Continued.)"

He left the room, and as he crossed the hall, Shirley's shrill laughter followed him, and he heard her voice asking Ruby, in a puzzled tone, why she was crying, what she was sorry about, and telling her to see how happy she was, and to listen—Then came that shrill, dreadful laughter again.

CHAPTER XXV.
"Is it not time that they were here, Dickson?"

"In about half an hour, sir," said the attendant's grave respectful voice; and Sir Jasper Stuart moved uneasily on his pillows. It was so hard to wait when time was so short with him now. It might be measured by hours, even by minutes.

In the great bed-chamber of the stately London house the fire glowed brightly, and the lamp burned with a soft subdued luster which did not distress the dim eyes of the invalid who lay there, half raised upon his pillows, with yearning impatience upon his face, a face over which the shadow of death was creeping slowly but surely.

But even that shadow and that yearning could not quite dim the light of expectation and hope which shone so brightly over the aged countenance, one which even now showed some of the great beauty which had been Sir Jasper's portion. The features sharpened though they were, were regular and shapely, the masses of white hair were thrown back from his forehead, and the gray eyes, dim and fast growing sightless now, had been the counterpart of Guy's. And the face, which in his youth had been so grand, was grand still with the endurance which was upon it, with its brow all patience and its lips all pain.

For nearly the whole of his long life Sir Jasper Stuart had been an invalid, paralyzed and crippled from his manhood, and nobly he had borne his suffering, nobly conquered the rebellious thoughts which were so apt to rise. Until the accident by which he had been laid low, his strength had been even greater than the average, and he had enjoyed life with all the zest given by his superb manhood and his cloudless fortune; but suddenly and swiftly the burden of pain and suffering and weary inaction had been laid upon him, and he had taken it up as gallantly, with as brave a smile and as dauntless a front as any knight of old. And now he was about to lay it down, and he was glad to be free of its pain and weariness at last.

Within all was bright and warm and noiseless, without in the London square the winter storm raged violently. The hail and sleet dashed against the windows, the wind roared ceaselessly, and ever and again a flash of lightning gleamed through the darkness; Sir Jasper, leaning back, listened to the swiftly falling hail and the moaning, howling wind.

"It is a bad night for them to come home," he said presently. "But they won't be thinking of the wind and hail. Has Owens gone yet, Dickson?"

"The carriage has just started, Sir Jasper."

"Has Mrs. James everything ready for them, Dickson?"

"Mrs. James has surpassed herself, Sir Jasper. There is not a servant in the house who would not do their best to welcome Major Stuart and his lady."

Why Do We Do It?

By RUTH CAMERON.

Of all the unreasonable things we unreasonable human beings do it seems to me that blaming people for actions which in themselves were perfectly guiltless, but which happen to cause us discomfort, is one of the worst.

The other day when I was trying to transact some important business over the telephone someone from above stairs, who did not know I was talking over the phone, began calling to me. Now anyone who has ever used a telephone, knows how annoying and confusing it is to have someone try to speak to you while you are listening to the party on the wire. The result of the interruption in my case was that the important business was very much muddled. Needless to say I left the telephone in a state of great annoyance and at once went upstairs to scold the interrupter.

And being a person with a very bad temper, it wasn't until after I had freed my mind and cooled down that I realized how unreasonable I had been. She didn't know that I was listening at the telephone and to call down to me when I was not at the phone was perfectly guiltless. I had suffered a good deal of inconvenience, but it was only through a mistake, not any deliberate offense. And so, after all, it was I who deserved the scolding instead of she.

Of course you do not fly off the handle as badly as that because you have a better disposition, but tell me, reader friend, don't you sometimes make the mistake of blaming people for actions which in themselves were perfectly guiltless but which happened to cause you discomfort or inconvenience?

Especially in dealing with children it seems to me, we make this mistake of letting the trouble an act of theirs causes us and not the culpability of the act itself, be the criterion of the blame they shall receive.

I have seen a child put to bed for tipping over a plant with one of those quick, impulsive motions, for which children are hardly to be blamed at all; and merely removed for a serious exhibition of selfishness.

In my own childhood nothing caused such a ferment of indignation in my heart as when I was punished for acts which I had committed with no intent of wrong. I shall never forget being sent to bed by an aunt whom I was visiting because I tore my dress in an attempt to do something which I really thought would please her. She lived in the country and kept hens. I had no previous experience with these creatures, and was deeply interested in them and especially in the urgent desire on the part of my aunt and uncle for more eggs. I realized that the hens laid when they sat on the nest, and so one day I took a hen which I thought had not been doing her duty, wriggled in behind the nest and firmly held her on for some moments.

The punishment I received for the torn dress which was the only result of my unselfish labor, still rankles. I knew that I had meant to help, and to be punished for my mistake was almost more than I could bear.

Of course it takes a great deal of patience to be just when you are annoyed or inconvenienced; and we human creatures cannot always accomplish the feat. But surely to be just under such circumstances is an ideal well worth striving for.

Ruth Cameron

Household Notes

A good scouring for boards and tables is this: Work into a paste half a pound of sand, half a pound of soft soap and a quarter of a pound of lime. Put it on the scrubbing brush instead of soap, then wash the wood with plenty of clean water.

If turpentine is put on a burn immediately, it will stop the burning and there will be no pain. Saturate a piece of bandage with turpentine, then wrap the burn carefully and saturate again and again, keeping the bandage wet for some time.

In every way possible beauty and utility should be combined in the home. Dispense with everything that does serve well for use or ornamentation. Gaudiness and congestion are not suggestive of prettiness, and things unnecessary only collect dust.

The work of polishing windows and mirrors can be made much lighter if instead of using wet cloths or whitenings you sprinkle a little liquid brass polish on a rag and then clean off with a soft dry duster. The result will be most satisfactory.

In cooking meat, the idea is to retain the nourishment and flavor. The flavor and juices depend as much on the method of cooking as upon the quality of the meat. Boiling water or strong, dry heat will retain flavor, in closing the meat in a crust which will not permit the juices to flow out.

The flesh of fish out of season is unwholesome. If necessary to keep fish overnight, place them where the moon will not shine on them; the effect is as bad as hot sunshine. Cod, haddock and halibut may be kept a day before using, but mackerel and white fish lose their life as soon as they leave the water.

A simple and easy way to iron sheets is to first fold the two hems together, right side out, then fold the sheet across the center forming a square.

Cured Eczema Like Magic

Suffered for Years—Tried All Kinds of Treatment—Surprised at Results From Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can soon tell when people are enthusiastic about medical treatment by the language they use. After experimenting with all sorts of ointments in a vain effort to obtain relief and cure, the writer of this letter was astonished at the quick and satisfactory results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"It worked like magic," she writes. Indeed, it is surprising the healing that is often effected in a single night by this great ointment. The itching and cure is only a matter of time and patient treatment.

with the broad hem on top of the sheet outside. Then simply iron the square on both sides and the sheet will have a well-ironed appearance when on the bed.

A quick and easy way to dry the hair is as follows: Remove the crown from an old straw hat. After the shampoo, remove the greater part of the water from the hair by rubbing with a towel, then list the hair through the crown of the hat, rest the hat on the head and spread the hair out around the brim to dry.

If convenient, the waffle batter may be made the evening before it is used. The cakes will be lighter and any batter which is cooked fast, such as griddle cake or fritter batter, is more easily digested if made long enough ahead to allow the starch grains in the flour to swell so that they will burst when heat is applied.

The richer the cake the more easily it is spoiled if the oven is too hot. As soon as the cake has risen and taken a rich brown color, the heat should be lessened to what cooks know as a "soaking heat" and the cake should be kept in this moderate heat until a pointed knife or a skewer stuck in the middle of the cake can be drawn out without uncooked paste sticking to it.

Gentlemen, — I have used MINARD'S LINIMENT from time to time for the past twenty years. It was recommended to me by a prominent physician of Montreal, who called it the "great Nova Scotia Liniment." It does the doctor's work; it is particularly good in cases of Rheumatism and Sprains.

The Great Salt Lake.

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Swash"

The Great Salt Lake is the American edition of the Dead Sea. Like everything American, it is an enlargement and improvement upon the original, having several times its area and being far better equipped for the tourist trade.

The Great Salt Lake is 80 miles long and 20 to 30 miles wide. It is also deep enough to drown the tallest man. However, the only way in which even a short man could drown in this lake, would be to tie a rope to the bottom and climb down. This is because of specific gravity which the lake contains to excess. So strongly is the water impregnated with specific gravity, in fact, that human beings float in it without effort, their heads and toes above the surface. Floating in the Great Salt Lake is as easy as floating in New York Society with only a title for support. However, the floater must be careful not to swallow any of the water in an unguarded moment. It is seven times more dis-

MOTHERS! DO YOU KNOW

That when you put a salve onto your child's skin, it passes through the pores and enters the blood, just as surely as if you put it into the child's stomach?

You would not put a coarse mass of animal fat, colored by various mineral poisons (such as many crude salves are) into your child's blood by way of the stomach? Then why do so by way of the pores?

Take no risk. Use always the pure herbal essences provided in Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal oil or fat, and no poisonous mineral coloring matter. From start to finish it is purely herbal.

It will heal sores, ulcers, abscesses, eruptions, varicose ulcers, cuts, burns and bruises more quickly than any other known preparation. It is astringent, quickly stops the oozing of a sore or cut, cures piles, inflamed sores and blood-poisoning. It is a combination of healing power and scientific purity. Ask those who have proved it.

agreeable than the most popular and beneficial mineral water, and even if it were to be distributed free, on election day in a Bowery precinct, no one would willingly drink it.

This is because of its salt. We now approach the secret of this lake's name. It is from five to seven times as salt as the ocean, depending upon the industry of the sun in evaporating it from year to year. Fish cannot live in it—not even codfish—and vegetation for miles about it is extremely sparse and dejected. Very little use has been found for the lake thus far, though thousands of gallons of it are sold in small bottles to tourists during the season. Even a bath in it is a delusion and a snare, as the bathers have to wash off with a hose afterward. However, the lake does stand between Utah and the salt trust in a noble and efficient manner, and it furnishes Salt Lake City with one of the most novel summer resorts in captivity.

The Great Salt Lake is remarkable for its fluctuations in size, surpassing in this respect the republican vote. For many years it gained steadily in area until Salt Lake City became nervous during every rainstorm. Then it shrank until the bathing pavilion was far out in the desert. Now it is growing again. It is better equipped with railroad facilities than any other body of water, the Southern Pacific railroad having built a bridge and causeway straight across it. After having viewed the marvellous energy of man at Niagara Falls and elsewhere we can only feel thankful that the Southern Pacific did not move the lake away entirely instead of bridging it, thus wiping out a great national wonder.

Irritable, Hysterical, Sleepless, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Restores Health.

There is a message in this letter for thousands of women who are suffering from broken-down nervous systems. Sleepless nights, much irritability over little things, spells of dizziness and nervous sick headaches are among the symptoms.

You may not realize the nature of your ailment until nervous prostration comes upon you. But in whatever stage you find yourself, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is ready to help you. Mrs. W. J. May, 88 Annetts street, Toronto, writes: "Some years ago I suffered from nervous trouble, and took Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which completely cured me. About six months ago I received a shock which again shattered my nervous system to such an extent that I was irritable and hysterical, and could not sleep nights. I began to use the Nerve Food again and was not disappointed. Improvement was apparent from the first box, and now I am entirely well." ### The Resignation of Sir R. Bond.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found a copy of a letter from Sir Robert Bond to Stephen Loveridge, Esq., Secretary of the Northern Liberal Association, Twillingate, in which Sir Robert directs the attention of his constituents to the fact that he has written a letter to his colleague, J. A. Clift, Esq., M.H.A., announcing his resignation of the leadership of the Liberal Party, and of his seat in the House of Assembly, and setting forth the reasons which have induced him to take these steps. In his letter to Mr. Loveridge, Sir Robert gives reasons why he has resigned his seat in the House of Assembly, additional to those given in his letter to Mr. Clift. He does not favour the formation of a third party in the House of Assembly, as it would emphasize differences in a country already distracted enough. This is a position which his late colleagues in the Liberal Party have under consideration and is being weighed carefully by each one before arriving at a decision as to his own course of action. Sir Robert states further that as he has resigned the leadership on a matter of principle, he could not sit under another leader of a united Opposition Party. Under such conditions his connection could be no more than nominal and he could not render that real service the country needs. That reason appears to us sound. If Sir Robert cannot accept a principle as leader, and the difference is sufficient to impose upon him resignation of leadership, he could not accept the principle as a subordinate member of the party.
Now, what is that principle? Outside the charges of disloyalty, which have been made and denied, there is a clear and distinct issue, on which there is an unmistakable difference of attitude between Sir Robert Bond and Mr. Coaker.

The President of the F. P. U. lays down unequivocally that the future aim of himself as President of the F. P. U. is that the F. P. U. members of the House, while not aspiring to

A Letter From Sir Robert Bond to His Constituents.

THE GRANGE,
Whitbourne,
January 3, 1913.
To Stephen Loveridge, Esq.,
Secretary,
Northern Liberal Association,
Twillingate.

Dear Sir,—I beg to acquaint you of the fact that on the 2nd instant, after much serious thought, and influenced only by a desire to serve the public interest, I layed down the proud position of Leader of the Liberal Party, and resigned my seat in the House of Assembly. Recognizing that a public statement of the reasons that dictated this course of action would be expected from me by my supporters throughout the country, I have sanctioned the publication of the letter I addressed to my colleague, Mr. Clift, for presentation to the Opposition party in the House of Assembly. That letter will be found in The Evening Telegram newspaper, and will convey to you and others what those reasons are. I hope the Liberal party throughout the country will be satisfied with the same. You may justly ask, why did I resign my seat in the House of Assembly? Would it not have been sufficient to resign the Leadership of the party? I will anticipate and answer these questions. In the first place, the country is in a state of wretched distraction, and the establishment of a third political party in the House of Assembly could have served no purpose other than to intensify its unhappy divisions.

In the next place, having resigned the Leadership of the party on a question of principle, I could not retain my seat as a member of that party under another leader. The position would have been absurd, and my attachment to the party only nominal. The time calls for service that is not nominal, but real, and there was no honourable course for me but to resign both the Leadership and my seat in the House of Assembly.

I have served the public continuously for more than thirty years. I have served the district of Twillingate, in particular, for more than half that period, and, for the privilege and honour I have only sentiments of gratitude.

For all the kindness and sympathy and devotion extended to me—for all my constituents have done for and been to me in my political career I beg to offer them my heartfelt thanks.
Kindly bring this letter before the Northern Liberal Association and oblige

R. BOND.

Some One,

We don't know the name—anyway it makes no difference—reported a year or two ago, that we were going out of business. Now, believe us, there is no truth in that report. We are not allowed to go out of business, the people have made up their minds to keep us in. We could not get out if we tried. Why? Because they know it pays them to keep us in, and because they daily keep coming in their hundreds for the bargains that are always in waiting. Come this time to our great Mid-Winter Sale, and be a participator in our profit-sharing plan. Savory Roaster given

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, December 31st, 1913.
ROYALTIES ABOARD.

As compared with recent years a much smaller number of members of the Royal Family will be abroad at the New Year. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia are in Canada on Imperial duty, the Duchess not having found it necessary to avoid the rigours of a northern climate in mid-winter; while Prince Albert has been on naval duty in the Mediterranean for some time. The Princess Royal and her unmarried daughter, Princess Maud, may not go south this season, and the Princess Henry of Battenburg will not be visiting Spain for some weeks. In the early spring Princess Marie Louise of Schleswig-Holstein will travel to the West Indies, thus continuing her preference for tropical temperatures at that season. Queen Alexandra may be among the earliest to go abroad in the New Year, but her plans are not yet settled.

ANGLO-GERMAN UNDERSTANDING.

One hears more and more about the preliminaries for the long-looked-for Anglo-German agreement. Sir Edward Goschen, our Ambassador to Berlin, was able, when in London a few months ago, to lay before Sir Edward Grey a record of considerable progress in the discussion of various questions existing between Great Britain and Germany. This discussion had been delayed by the crisis in South Eastern Europe, but the spirit in which it was conducted became more cordial as it advanced—a fact recognized and welcomed on both sides. The atmosphere of the relationships between Great Britain and Germany, indeed, has improved substantially during 1913 and the diplomatic energies of both countries secured the preservation of such relations between the Triple Entente and the Triple Alliance as to prevent the peace of Europe being broken in the course of a most trying period. "We are on the eve of a new epoch in Anglo-German relations," said to me a little while since one of the highest authorities in Berlin, who could be regarded as speaking with knowledge of what was in the mind of both the German Emperor and the Imperial Government; and the dawn may soon be observable now.

NEW NEAR EASTERN CRISIS.

There will be difficulties in the way of an easy solution of the new and dangerous crisis which has arisen in the Near East. Much more than the control of the Straits and the approaches thereto is in issue in the latest Russian demand relating to the Armenian gendarmery. The whole question of Turkey in Asia arises. For generations the possession of Constantinople and the Straits has been a Russian dream. For German officers now to obtain command of the Constantinople Army Corps means in Russian eyes the shattering of that dream for ever. In desperation diplomacy is trying two expedients. She has called upon France in the name of the Alliance to boycott Turkey financially, and to make it the condition of any loan that the German military mission shall be deprived of its powers. If that expedient fails—as it is not unlikely to fail—and Turkey manages to raise enough money through other channels, then Russia will play her second card. She will annex the Armenian Provinces, either outright, or more probably after the indirect fashion in which Northern Persia has been made Russian. Now the one thing above all others that Western diplomacy desires to avert is this, for it will inevitably precipitate the scramble for Asia Minor.

THE "GREATEST EVER" MAP.

The Paris International Conference on the Map of the World, has decided to make the permanent office of the International Map at Southampton, England, is the great surveying and map-making nation. She has chartered all the seas and oceans, and on our Admiralty charts all navigators of every nationality depend. In Asia we share the task of map-making with Russia. Only a few months ago the English surveyors, working up from the south, and the Russian surveyors, moving down from the north met, and combined their triangulation at a point some where on the Turkestan-Tibet border. The mapping out of the African Continent is mainly the work of ourselves and the French. The International World Map will be on the scale of a millionth or sixteen miles to the inch. It will take many years to complete. At present large stretches of the earth's surface which are depicted in our atlases, even the best of them in elaborate detail, are mere guess-work. Mountain ranges are shown which do not exist and vice-versa. The existing maps, for example, of Mongolia, and Tibet and Western China, bear no relation whatever to reality. A curious fact is that the area of the South African war—particularly Natal and the Free State—have never been surveyed. Everyone will remember how during the war it was said that the Boers had excellent maps to go on, whereas we had none, and our officers had to work as it were in the dark. In fact the Boers had only the same maps that we had, and they were of little use to either side. But though it will take years to complete the international world map, it is only fair to ask of our cartographical firms to indicate in their atlases what is guess-work and what is not.

A NOVEL ANECDOTE.

A little story of a publisher is now going the rounds of literary London. A publisher's reader was asked some months ago to judge a novel that had been submitted by a lady. When he pronounced doom he declared that the hero of the book was a more impossible man than most of the ideal men imagined by lady novelists in their books, but he told the publisher in question—who after reading the manuscript fully agreed with his reader—to let some lady friend read it and give her opinion. This was done, and after a week or so the lady begged the publisher to publish the book, saying that never in all her life, had she read so moving a work, and that the sweet perfection of the hero, so different from the coarse realism of the man in the average novel, would remain a living mystery with her until she died. Whereupon the publisher and his reader pondered deeply. The publisher was still firm for rejection, but his reader over-persuaded him, admitting that it was a bad book, but protesting that it would be a popular success. The publisher surrendered, and the book was produced. It was condemned by every critic from Aberdeen to Plymouth. And the book has now sold nearly 50,000 copies and is doing well in a Colonial edition.

THE KIKUYU CONTROVERSY.

People who are interested in questions of Church government are likely to find themselves involved before many weeks are over in a serious matter. What is already known to the few as the Kikuyu controversy is no ordinary business, and it is now overflowing into a matter of daily information and correspondence in the newspapers here. Kikuyu is a small place in East Africa, where some time ago the various missionary agencies agreed to a sort of concordat which implied a common communion table, and in fact, a common communion was celebrated in the local Scottish Presbyterian Church. Now we have the Bishop of Oxford denouncing this common communion as recognizing principles so "totally subversive of Catholic order and doctrine as to be strictly intolerable" to the great mass of High Churchmen. But the mass of the laity, in so far as its views have become articulate regard the action of the two Anglican Bishops who were mainly responsible for the drawing together of all the local Christians in Kikuyu "as a specially Christian act." The obscure district of Kikuyu, which now assumes such prominence as a centre of theological strife, became part of the British Empire on account of individual enterprise. There is a tribe of Wa Kikuyu to the north of Uganda and thither came one John Boyes some years back. He was a merchant adventurer of the old stamp. He dealt with and in time ruled over the people, and ultimately handed over the country to a British official who was rude enough to doubt both his service and his disinterestedness. The aggrieved Boyes thereupon wrote his autobiography and the official administered the country, where Christianity, apart from its inter-ethnic feuds, is at war with Islam. In Uganda itself some years ago there was a triangular duel between Roman Catholics, Church of England missionaries and Mohammedans, which is understood to have puzzled the natives not a little. But a theological controversy such as the present will certainly interest the native mind, and the experienced in these matters hint that their sympathies like those of children, will be on the side of the most definite dogma. The neophyte wants things in black and white.

Letter From Dr. Fraser.

Dear Mr. Parsons, Jan. 6th, 1914.

In answer to your enquiries regarding the Ford Car which I purchased from you last season—1913, I may say it has given entire satisfaction. It has been in good running order during the whole year, and required no replacements, except to one back brake.

In addition to the ordinary town work I used the car touring. I took it around Conception Bay as far as Harbor Grace, then across to Trinity Bay, from Heart's Content up the South Shore by Trinity Bay through Heart's Desire, Heart's Delight, Island Cove, Cavendish, Witless Bay, Green's Harbor, New Harbor and then up to Whitbourne, from Whitbourne to Colinet, then back over the same road, and down to Brigus. Returning to New Harbor we went over the Barrens to Spaniard's Bay. On the Brigus Road we followed a car track three miles taking the car up to the side of the pond where we fished.

Some of these roads, like the Spaniard's Bay Road, were all rocks, and some such as the road near Heart's Desire, soft marsh, but the car is light, has good clearance underneath, and is a splendid hill-climber, so that nothing stopped it. It is also light on tires which is a great thing when touring. I had no spare tires on my tour and beyond two small punctures, no trouble.

Yours truly,
 (Signed) N. S. FRASER.

Lecture at Presbyterian Hall

The lecture by Captain Saunders, in the Presbyterian Hall, last night, for the benefit of the Alexandra Workers funds was well attended. The lecturer took for his subject "A Trip to Hudson Bay," and was introduced by the Rev. W. H. Thomas, who acted as chairman. The Captain dealt with the building of the railway to Hudson Bay, and the great benefits Canada must acquire therefrom. He showed that its construction would increase the influx of Europeans to the Northwest. An interesting feature of the address was the lecturer's graphic description of the towing of the dredge Port Nelson to a place of the same name, and situated about 640 miles from Winnipeg, with which it is connected by a chain of lakes and rivers. Navigation is open for nine months of the year, and as the Bay is filled with different kinds of fish, it is only a matter of time when steamers will be engaged taking fish to market. The railway will be completed in two years time and then steamship communication will be opened with all parts of the world. Some interesting pictures of the dredge were shown, and the apparatus was explained in detail. The dredge was towed from North Sydney to her destination by the s.s. Bellefleur, commanded by Capt. Randall, to whom the lecturer paid an excellent tribute for the loyalty displayed by himself and his crew to the interests of their employers. He explained the difficulties that beset them in the Straits of Belle Isle, and how skillfully Capt. Randall coped with them. During the intervals solos were acceptably rendered by Miss J. Trapnell and Rev. W. H. Thomas, the accompanists being Miss Story and Mrs. Thomas. Mr. Watson recited, and was loudly applauded. At the close, the Rev. J. S. Sutherland, in proposing a vote of thanks to Capt. Saunders, complimented him on his ability as a lecturer, and expressed his appreciation of the Captain's generosity in rendering his services for charitable purposes since coming to the city. The vote of thanks was seconded by Mr. C. Tessier and carried by acclamation. Capt. Saunders then thanked those present for their appreciation, and expressed his pleasure at being able to assist in such a commendable work.

Safe Opening Episode at the Office of the Horwood Lumber Company—Mysterious Disappearance of Monies—Mystery Solved—Marked Notes Found on Mr. Best, a Clerk—Accused Arrested and Remanded.

One of the gravest offences in the annals of crime, and one of the most serious that has yet come under the notice of our authorities was brought to light last evening when the police arrested a young man who is charged with safe opening. When the startling facts of the case were made known matters were astir in police circles for little was it thought that a local "Jimmy Valentine" was at large in our midst.

The accused is Mr. Best, aged 25 years, who was employed in the office of the Horwood Lumber Co., as clerk for many years. For some time past, in fact for months, the Company had been missing money from their combination safe in their office. This same safe had been there for years, the owners never altering the combination lock, as most firms do. However, none of the employees were suspected of having tampered with it. Best, as stated, was a long while working in the place and knew how to operate the combination perfectly. Periodically last year Best entered the office, it is alleged, in the absence of the other employees, opened the safe and took certain amounts. He carried on the robberies with tact as he never took beyond twenty odd dollars at a time and always managed to close the safe as if nothing had happened. After each visit that Best made the shortage would be discovered by the cash keeper, the employer would be acquainted but none of the employees would be acquainted about the matter. So far as could be ascertained in November last the sum of $24.31 was taken and on the 15th of December $28.00 was missing. Mr. Horwood was at a loss to know how the monies were so mysteriously disappearing. At last his suspicions became aroused and he was led to the belief that one of his office hands was operating. Mr. Horwood marked some of the notes that he put in the safe and took the numbers of them also. On Saturday night last Best again entered the building, paid his final visit to the safe and, as usual, got loot. Yesterday morning on opening the safe some of the marked notes were found missing. Mr. Horwood notified the police and told of the recent startling developments. Inspector General Sullivan despatched Constables Tobin and O'Neill on the case. The officers dressed in plain clothes and located Best, who was arrested on suspicion. In his possession were found the marked notes with the description of those given by Mr. Horwood and forthwith the police came to the conclusion that the mystery had been solved and the crime brought home to the right person. The prisoner was brought before Judge Knight this afternoon. He was not asked to plead and was remanded.

Capt. White addressed a meeting in the street here to protest against the appointment by the Viceroy of a commission to enquire into the rioting which accompanied the transport workers' strike. He denounced the police and accused them of shameless brutality, strongly condemning what he called the abominable system of castle government. Jim Larkin, leader of the strikers, made a speech also. Referring to Captain White, he said he was the son of the defender of Ladysmith; and that the British flag was a dirty flag, covered with more disease and degradation than any he knew. Capt. White, angered by the insult, left the platform in high dudgeon, and disappeared in the crowd.

Many plunged into the icy waters of the river and struggled across to surrender to American soldiers across the border. The retreat became a rout and many were drowned.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Mr. H. H. Archibald and Mr. Thos. Hanrahan, arrived from St. John's by Saturday night's train.

Mr. George Parsons, of Grand Bank, also arrived, and will spend a couple of weeks here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Selby Parsons, before returning to his business at Grand Bank.

Mr. David Keefe, of Carbonear, and Miss Sarah Hare, of this town, were united in matrimony at the Cathedral last evening. We wish the young couple much happiness.

The following rhyming particulars of a trip to St. John's on Saturday, may prove amusing, and if not it will give food to critics, so the time spent in penning the lines won't be lost:

We left the town of Harbor Grace With Lee, on the early train; 'Twas there we met and chatted near A man from Southside, Carbonear.

Time passed away quite pleasantly. Of news we both had little lack. Till the brakeman broke in suddenly With "The St. John's train is off the track!"

And here we are just as we write. Perhaps to be stilled right here all night; But what's the use of pine and fret They'll put her on, we'll get there yet.

We took a stroll along the trail To see the crew at work; They're rushing all, no drones about Not one his duty shirk.

The welcome news, "she's on again." Soon spread from car to car, And then we left old Holyrood Naught else our trip to mar.

The train hands all are courteous. Attentive, kind to all. No trouble to answer questions, They're at your beck and call.

We wish them all a Happy Year. May every train be in on time, And above all let us hope and pray There'll not be one accident on the line.

Big Blaze On Water Street

DRY GOODS STORE GUTTED—DENTAL PARLORS DAMAGED.

At 7.15 last night fire broke out on the north side of Water Street in the dry goods store of Mr. John Harris, about 300 yards distant from this office, and did considerable damage.

Mr. P. J. Grace, who was passing along Water Street, was the first to discover the fire it appears. He saw smoke issuing from the place and immediately sent in an alarm from box 25, bringing the Central and East End Companies to the scene. When they arrived there was quite a blaze in progress and the fire was well under way in the building. The flames were very threatening and to all appearances matters looked at the outset as if there was going to be a repetition of the conflagration that destroyed the block of buildings on the opposite side of the street six years ago. Scores of citizens gathered round eager to give their services if needed.

The fire started at the rear of Harris's shop and worked its way to the front. When the ceiling caught an outbreak occurred in the dental parlors of Dr. Silliker. The firemen quickly applied a stream of water on the burning building but this could not cope with the flames, which were reaching serious proportions, as the office adjoining to the west of Mr. F. Chesman had caught and was only extinguished by a special effort of the fire brigade. Two more noses were put out and these after operating for 15 minutes succeeded in subduing the flames. An extra stream of water played on the dental parlors and extinguished the fire there.

Mr. Harris's shop was completely gutted, while Dr. Silliker's parlors were badly wrecked. The former had $2,000 worth of insurance on his stock. The office of Mr. F. Chesman was damaged by smoke and water but not to very great extent. The building is said to be covered by insurance.

The origin of the fire is unknown so far as the Fire Brigade people could ascertain.

Healthy and Unhealthy Lighting.

Gas, it may be said, vitiate the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vitiate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:—

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this, amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Hurry.

He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Duffield, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment a hall which, in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which when the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter been employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Vivian B. Lewes, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—nov8,tf

The Pantomime. Daughters of Empire Meet

Last night, Rossleys was packed to the doors to see the famous Blue Beard. It's a great show without a doubt, one of the best yet. The costumes were lovely; Jack Rossley's great song about losing his memory, is the very funniest thing ever done here by that real comedian; as Sister Annie, he was too funny for words; his song, Has Anybody here Seen Me, was a great hit. Joe Burkhardt sang I Will Wear a Red Waist Coat, was also the best thing this rising young star has ever done at Rossley's. Percy Orth, as Blue Beard, made a splendid Blue Beard. His song, How is your little maitresse cat, made a big hit. Miss Lena Ryall, the dainty St. John's Girl, with Bonnie Rossley, sang "Oh what lovely weather." Miss Arkandy sang in splendid style The Valley of Laughter. But the Statue Dance brought down the house. The chamber of horrors was marvelous. To see all the Heads of Blue Beards wives hanging up. It is the greatest of all the shows. Congratulations!

Presentation.

Mr. Reg. Dowden, who has accepted a position as reporter on the "Daily Mail," severed his connection yesterday with the reportorial staff of the "Evening Herald." Before his departure he was presented by his co-workers with a handsome gold mounted fountain pen as a testimony of the esteem in which the recipient was held by them. Mr. Dowden thanked the donors for their surprising yet thoughtful gift.

Another Presentation.

Last night, Mr. Burnstein, the Ladies' Tailor, of Water Street, showed his appreciation of Rossley's pantomime children in a very practicable manner, for during the pantomime he presented the children on the stage with a huge bucket of the very finest candy. It was a kind and generous action, and many of those poor little ones know very little pleasure outside the theatre. How delighted the children were, and the Rossleys wish to thank Mr. Burnstein for his extreme kindness.

Many New Recruits.

Not less than twenty-three recruits have joined the police force since October last, filling the places of the regulars who have left, being unable to exist on the small wages paid them (in addition to the sympathy of the Premier) and went elsewhere to seek employment. Of course, in view of the paltry wages, the constabulary is only a convenience and has been made such for some time past.

The Daughters of Empire held their monthly meeting in the Girls' Department of the Institute yesterday afternoon. Mrs. E. R. Bowring presided, and a large number attended.

The reports submitted by the Treasurer were very satisfactory, showing the society to be in good financial standing, as several liberal donations to the funds have been recently received.

Mrs. (Dr.) Rendell and Mrs. Lewis Miller, who were recently appointed to collect funds and purchase Christmas presents for the patients at the Tuberculosis Camp, reported that they collected about $100. Besides holding the Christmas Tree at the camp, clothing and food were supplied to deserving families in the city. The Camp nurses and employees were given presents, as well as the patients, and in families where there were children of the patients, these were supplied with fruit and candies.

After the Tree a concert was held at the Camp, under the direction of Mesdames Rendell and Miller and to them and their assistants the Daughters extend their heartiest thanks.

A letter was read from the Victoria League inviting delegates from the local body to a conference to be held at London next May, by the Imperial Institute, when questions concerning the housing of the poor, and the proper care of children will be discussed.

It is hoped that two representatives will be able to attend, but arrangements are not fully completed.

An entertainment in aid of the funds of the Samaritan Committee will be held on Feb. 14th.

At the close of the meeting, teas were served by Mesdames Bowring, Rendell, Ryan and Cliff and quite a large sum was realized.

At the Casino.

The production of "The Chorus Lady" by the Harkins Company, at the Casino last night was greeted by a large and distinguished audience including His Excellency the Governor and Mrs. Davidson and quite.

The Chorus Lady is a departure from the plays heretofore presented by the company, and is brimful of comedy. The comedy is, on the whole light, but gives ample scope for Miss Van Duzer to show her versatility. The play deals with the life of a chorus girl, and the many difficulties and temptations with which she is surrounded. All the characters were faithfully portrayed. The play will be repeated to-night.

The True Story of the Great Sea Mystery of the Marie Celeste.

The Manifest Absurdity of the Recent Pretended Explanation Pointed Out by Captain Roden. How the Brig Celeste Rolled in the Sea & Tore Open the Casks of Alcohol in Her Cargo.

(By Capt. E. K. Roden, Nautical Expert of the I.C.S.)

...story published in the Strand... pretending to explain the... abandonment of the brig... Celeste near the Azores in 1872... ridiculous and preposterous... has ever come to my notice... to the solution given, out... survivors' of the crew of the... Celeste, in notes found after his... and just now come to light... the enterprise of an Oxford... Captain Briggs, of the Marie... became "daff" as a result of... weather encountered after leav... York.

...particular reason the shipper... "turn queer" because of bad... is not stated. Bad weather... condition generally met with at... is always dealt with as a ma... course, and no seaman, least of... commander, ever pays but pass... to it. With a staunch... strong rig, and plenty of sea... such as that occupied by Marie... one week out from New York,

...it is not clear why bad weather should... affect the captain in such a way as it... did.

...However, the captain went quee... and persisted in remaining queer for... the rest of the trip. His idea to build... in the forward part of the brig just aft... of the catheads, a bridge or gangway... running athwartship for his five-year... old daughter, must be attributed to his... mental condition. No sane man would... ever put a bridge in such an exposed... position where jibsheets with heavy... blocks are flapping back and forth on... the slightest luffing to the wind of the... brig. Whatever the degree of stiffness... such a bridge to be built, or, if he did... his two mates would surely have pre... vented the crew from carrying out the... order as being a hindrance to the ma... noeuvring of the brig.

...The skipper's subsequent suggestion... to his mate to swim alongside the brig... with their clothes on, and the follow... ing out of this scheme by a number of... the men, plainly indicates, if the story... is to be believed, that the entire ship's... company was daff, or in a state bor... dering on madness. The upsetting of... the bridge and the dumping into the... sea afterward of the remaining crew... and the captain's wife and child while... they were watching the swimming... rice of the skipper and his crazy com... panions is a piece of imagination evi... dently too bulky to be swallowed even... by a most phlegmatic Kansas farm... hand who never saw a vessel in his... life.

To complete appropriately the stage... setting, sharks had to be introduced... and the author of the story has seen... to it that there were plenty of these... man-eating monsters to devour ten... times the crew carried by the Marie... Celeste. Of course, the sharks did... their work well and had the victim... of the brig cleared up within a short... time, except for the survivor, Abel... Fosdyk. This worthy individual, un... affected by the daffness of Captain... Briggs and the rest of the crew, smartly dodged the sharks and seated... himself comfortably in the upset... bridge, calmly awaiting developments... Here the story suddenly ends, with the... cheerful information that Fosdyk was... picked up by a "boat," and later on... safely landed, but no details are given.

Of all fanciful accounts written to... explain the abandonment of the Marie... Celeste, this story is by far the most... clumsy and ridiculous ever penned... How this man Fosdyk could be picked... up by a passing vessel without the... captain of this ship reporting the fact... is beyond the comprehension of the... average man. Even if Fosdyk him... self had reason to hide his identity... the crew and officers of the rescuing... vessel certainly were not bound to... keep secret the story that a man and... raft had been picked up in the vicinity... where Marie Celeste was discovered... crewless.

The true account of the Marie Celeste's... abandonment is clear and simple... and requires no imagination to... explain. I have gone to some little... trouble in ascertaining the records in... the case, and here is the whole story... told in a few lines:

It will be recalled that Marie Celeste... was bound for Genoa from New York... with a cargo of alcohol in casks. According to the principal owner... the brig, Captain J. H. Winchester, who... recently died in Rahway, N.J., she... was chartered to Meisner, Ackerman... & Co., of New York, to carry alcohol... to Italy. Captain B. S. Briggs, of... Marion, Mass., was her master, and... he took along his wife and young... baby, Albert G. Richardson, of... Stockton, Me., was her mate, and... Albert Gilling, of New York, her... second mate, while her crew were... composed of Edward William Head... of New York; Volkert Lorenger, Arlon... Harbens, B. Lorenzer and Gottlieb... Goodshood, all of Germany. No such... name as Abel Fosdyk appeared on her... shipping articles.

One of the stevedores who loaded... the Marie Celeste in Brooklyn was a... Swede by the name of Lindberg, who... at the present time resides in Gothen... burg, Sweden. A few years ago this... man, in speaking to me about the brig... said that for want of ample time the... casks were not properly stowed, and... that in case of heavy rolling they... might work loose. This fact was... known to Captain Briggs, but he did... not attach much importance to it... being anxious to get started on the... voyage, and depended on the usual...

By the records of other vessels... traversing the North Atlantic at the... same time as the Marie Celeste, she... ran into heavy weather, and her cargo... being poorly stowed, began to shift... and, naturally some of the casks were... smashed. Coming into fine weather... with high temperature, the fumes... from the spilled alcohol naturally began... to expand in the hold. As the pressure... increased with the expanding... vapor, it blew off the fore hatch... sending up from below gases resembling... smoky, that naturally led the crew... to believe the brig was on fire.

Captain Briggs, realizing the... explosive nature of the brig's cargo... took no chance of being blown up... with the crew, and no doubt at once... ordered all hands to take to the... boats, carrying only the chronometer... ship's papers and such other necessities... as could be reached in the short... time available. His intention was... evidently to stand at a safe distance... from the brig waiting for a chance... to be picked up by a passing vessel... or to return to the brig after a... reasonable time had elapsed and the... danger to explosion was over. As there... was no time to belay the sails before... leaving, a breeze most likely sprung... up and made the brig drift, or run... before the wind, faster than the men... in the boat could row to follow her... and, consequently, the boat and brig... were separated.

This, in all probability, happened... during the night following the aban... donment of the brig. The rest of the... story is brief. The Marie Celeste was... overhauled nine days later by the... British barque Dei Gratia, but the... boat with Captain Briggs, his wife... child and crew, did not come within... sight of any passing vessel. They...

like many others, who by stress of... circumstances, are forced to take an... open boat in less frequented regions... of the sea, perished, let us hope, by... the swamping of the boat.

The fact that the Marie Celeste had... been abandoned for fear of being... blown up is shown by all circum... stances surrounding the case. When... boarded by Captain Boyce, of the... Dei Gratia, the fore hatch was found... open, and one boat gone, but the... cargo was undisturbed and in good... condition. The spilled alcohol by that... time had had a chance to evaporate... and escape through the hatch open... ing and everything looked normal... The evidence elsewhere about the... deck and cabin showing the great... haste in which the crew had left is... but a confirmation of the fear enter... tained by Captain Briggs that his... ship was in immediate danger of being... blown up, and on this account was... abandoning his ship.

No amount of imagination or specu... lative writing can upset the sound... ness of this reasoning. The writer is... perfectly willing to state his reputa... tion as a seaman and navigator as to... its correctness. No professional sea... man will contradict this explanation... after having looked into all circum... stances surrounding the case, and... there should be no mysterious or... supernatural element at all about... finding the brig without a crew, but... otherwise in good condition.

Every available evidence points to... the fact that the Marie Celeste was... abandoned for fear of an explosion... of her cargo of alcohol, which did not... take place, and her crew, drifting... about, failed to get within sight of a... succoring ship.

The Old Man

Be kind to your daddy, O gambling youth; his feet are now sluggish and cold; intent on your pleasures, you don't see the truth, which is that your dad's growing old. Ah, once he could whip forty bushels of snakes, but now he is spavined and lame; his joints are all rusty and tortured with aches, and weary and worn is his frame. He toiled and he slaved like a government mule to see that his kids had a chance; he fed them and clothed them and sent them to school, rejoiced when he marked their advance. The landscape 's moist with the billows of sweat he cheerfully shed as he toiled, to bring up his children and keep out of debt, and see that the home kettle boiled. He dressed in old duds that his Mary and Jake might bloom like the roses in June, and oft when you swallowed your porterhouse steak, your daddy was chewing a prune. And now that he's worn by his burden of care, just show you are worth all he did; look out for his comfort, and hand him his chair, and hang up his slicker and lid.

A Fish Story.

"That was the ugliest tear I saw for a long time. Bill Jenks was fishing out at the River and got his hand tangled up in the hook somehow, and before he got it out it had worked a pretty good hole in the palm."
"He had a very sore hand then?"
"No; that's the funniest part of it. He used an ointment called Zylex, which relieved the inflammation at once, and healed up the cut in a few days."
"Must be good stuff, that Zylex!"
Zylex is sold by all Druggists. Price 50c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake. Jan7,1914.t

The Store that Saves You Money!

WE POINT WITH PRIDE.

TO THE STORE THAT SAVES YOU MONEY.

Ten Strong Reasons why you should Buy Your Furniture FROM THE C. L. MARCH CO., LIMITED, Corner of Water and Springdale Streets.

- 1st—We produce our own lumber which goes into the Furniture and saves considerable cost.
- 2nd—We have the Surface Oak finish for our Furniture, which is the only thing of its kind in the country.
- 3rd—We import our own Coverings for our Parlour Suites, thus saving two duties, as most all the imported Suites come from Canada and the United States, and they have to import their coverings from France or some of the European countries, and pay duty into Canada or the States. We avoid the second duty by getting the Covering ourselves and having the frames made here.
- 4th—We have our Springs made from the wire by the only Weaver in the country; also the Oxford or Copper Wire Spring by machines too.
- 5th—We have our Mattresses made by machinery in our own building, the only machine of its kind in the country. It can produce 50 against 10 by hand, thus saving considerable in cost.
- 6th—We are producing the Excelsior or Wood Fibre and cutting the cost in two, which will mean considerable saving in the making of Mattresses.
- 7th—We are also Selling Agents for the celebrated Ideal Beds and Springs, and sell at factory price.
- 8th—We also have the COMBINATION LATH and SPRING BED, the only thing of its kind in the country.
- 9th—Having the factory in the same building, we can handle all sizes all repairing; in fact you can choose your own Coverings for Parlour Suites, Mattresses, etc., and have it made to order.
- 10th—Our motto (last but not least) is to sell at the lowest possible prices, and despite the serious advance in prices all round, we are, where possible, reducing the prices, WHICH SHOULD APPEAL TO EVERY HOUSEKEEPER when in need of Furniture and Furnishings, as we now by arrangement work from the "Tree to the Home," thus cutting out all middlemen's profits.
