Rheumatism and Lumbago

Mr. Wm. Parker, 105 Cayuga street, Brantford, Ont., tells in the following letter of his remarkable experience with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills:—"My doctor treated me for some time for Sciatica, Rheumatism, Lumbago, but to no purpose, for I had to lay off work. The visiting officer of Sick Benefit called to see me and advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, stating that he had been cured of the same trouble by their use. I asked the druggist about them and he recommended them highly. Not being satisfied with this, I went back to my doctor, and when he said they were good I began their use. The promptness with which they enlivened the action of the kidneys and bowels was wonderful, and it was not long before I was rid of all my trouble. I had awful, sharp pains in the lower part of my back and left hip, and was so bad that I could only walk by hanging on to a chair or the wall. My wife had to lace my shoes. Only those who have had this ailment can realize the way I suffered. I am writing this letter to let people who have my trouble know of these pills. You are at liberty to use this letter, and if anyone interested will call or write to me I will give every detail."

When you have pains and aches put Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to the test. By enlivening the action of liver, kidneys and bowels they cleanse the system of all poisons, and thereby remove the cause of rheumatism, lumbago and other painful diseases.

One pill a dose. 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmansons, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"This is the Rajah's Ruby. The counterfeit is in my jewel-case. I had it made because I had a presentiment that the real ruby would be stolen. An exact description of the spot in which I have hidden the ruby. I have given in a paper which I have placed in my despatch-box; so that, if anything should happen to me, the ruby may be recovered and given to my beloved daughter.—MORTIMER DESBOROUGH."

There was an intense silence; then Sir Reginald said hoarsely:

"The despatch-box. I have it. I remember the paper. I admit, with shame, that I attached no importance to it; I took it for a rough plan of some improvement Sir Mortimer intended making in the tower."

"Ah!" remarked Vane, rather grimly; "if you had ever been engaged in hunting for a buried treasure, now—However, that's another matter. Be good enough to take up your ruby, Sir Reginald. There is a safe handy there, and it looks a good one." He

Torture Of Sciatica Cured Quick! "Nerviline" A Success Every Time.

Stops the Pain Quick—Acts Like Magic—Is Harmless and Pleasant.

Sciatica is the most severe pain man can suffer. The great sciatic nerve is deeply placed, and you can reach it only by a pain remedy, as penetrating and powerful as NERVILINE.

The glory of Nerviline is in its strength—in its marvellous power of penetrating deeply. In severe pains, such as sciatica and neuralgia, NERVILINE demonstrates its superiority over every other remedy.

Extraordinary pains, such as rheumatic or sciatic, can be overcome only by a remedy as extraordinary as Nerviline. In many lands it has shown itself to be the best for little pains, turned to Dexter Reece, "Are you satisfied, Mr. Reece? If not, I can give you the name of an expert on whom you can fully rely. By the way, if he pronounces that stone of yours a counterfeit, which he most assuredly will do, I should like to buy it of you, and add it to my little museum of curiosities—criminal and otherwise."

Dexter Reece rose, gripping the arm of his chair. He was too clever a man not to know that he was beaten.

"I am quite satisfied," he said, biting at his lip, and struggling for self-possession. "You will admit that I had cause for doubt; but the evidence is irrefragable. I am not only satisfied, but I rejoice at the fact that the real ruby has been discovered. It only remains for me to restore the counterfeit to the person from whom I obtained it. There is an early train, Sir Reginald; if you will be so good as to order a carriage—"

"Not so fast, Mr. Reece," said Mr. Lexham sternly. "Your part in this matter must be explained before a proper tribunal. We cannot permit you to go."

"I think I'd let him go, Mr. Lexham," said Vane, surveying Dexter Reece thoughtfully. "I don't think we shall want him; I've an idea that the mystery will solve itself without Mr. Reece's further assistance. And, best for big pains, and best for all pains. When one has acute rheumatic pains, stiff joints or a stiff neck, don't experiment—seek a remedy that cures. Like lightning in rapidity, as sure as fate in its certainty of relief, Nerviline can never be surpassed for the removal of pain, no matter what advance science may make. It is perfection in its line.

Do not trifle with ordinary or oily liniments, use Nerviline. Prove its efficacy—its the one liniment that rubs right into the core of the pain.

A large 50 cent bottle will cure the aches and pains of the whole family. Trial size, 25 cents. Sold by all dealers everywhere.

if we find that we do want him, I've no doubt Mr. Reece will accept our invitation to present himself."

Mr. Lexham still looked doubtful; but he shrugged his shoulders with a reluctant assent; and Sir Reginald said sternly:

"A carriage shall be ordered for you, sir."

Nothing less dramatic than Dexter Reece's departure can be imagined. He stood for a moment staring straight before him; then, with a nod, opened the door and went out. He uttered no oath, made no gesticulation, and even closed the door behind him quite carefully and noiselessly. But, though he made no sign, he knew that his career was finished, that he must at once find some remote spot in which he could hide himself, and drag out the remainder of his life.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Smithers did not recover sufficiently soon to permit of Ronald joining the yacht; so that the Princess and Cara were the only passengers. There was a singular situation; they both loved the same man; the one was succouring, protecting the other!

At first the Princess winced inwardly, as one shrinks at the touch of an open wound, when ever she looked at Cara; but after a few days the elder and more experienced woman's feelings obtained the mastery over jealousy; she could not steel herself against the pathos of the girl's situation, could not resist that nameless charm which Cara always quite unconsciously exerted. The Princess went down before her as Evelyn had done, and presently she found herself able to sit and talk with Cara; and before they reached England she had grown attached to her.

The voyage, the rest, the security, worked their beneficent influences; and Cara, who had been carried aboard dead than alive, regained some of her strength; the brightness came back to her eyes, the serenity to her manner; and as she improved in health, and the Princess noted the revival of the girl's extraordinary beauty, the Princess, with a sigh, an emotion of resignation, felt that Ronald, or, for that matter, any other man, could not have resisted her.

Their first lengthy conversation landed the Princess in a difficulty, for it will be remembered that she knew nothing of the fact that Ronald had been living under an assumed name, knew nothing of the episode of the buried treasure; and, when she remarked one morning, as they sat on deck, "It is more than a pity that Mr. Desborough could not catch us at Marseilles," Cara looked up with a start of surprise, and said:

"Mr. Desborough? Who is that?"

The Princess stared at her, then coloured with embarrassment.

"Why, Ronald! You must not mind me calling him by his Christian name. I have known him for some years, and—and we have been great friends. He did me a great service once—" She saw Cara's amazement and bewilderment. "Surely you know of whom I am speaking, Miss Raven?"

Cara shook her head.

"No," she said simply; "you cannot mean Robert?"

"I can't mean any other!" said the Princess. "Is it possible that you know him by another name? I mean your—your future husband?"

Cara blushed, and she said gravely: "Is that his name—Desborough? No, I did not know it. He told me—"

"Whatever he told you, he had good reason for doing it," said the Princess loyally. "He is the soul of honour."

"I know that," said Cara, as if she were stating that the sun was shining.

"And he is Ronald Desborough?"

"Yes," said the Princess. "As I have told you so much, I may as well—it is only fair to you that I should—tell you more. If I am doing wrongly Ronald will forgive me. He is the son of a baronet, Sir Reginald Desborough, of Thorden Hall."

"I know," said Cara, quietly. "I know Miss Desborough. She was kind to me when I lived in a mill near the Hall. I did not know that Robert—Ronald—it is hard to change the name in one's mind so quickly—was her brother."

The Princess now was overwhelmed with surprise for a moment or two.

"I don't know what to say," she said at last. "Ronald may not have wanted you to know."

"You shall not tell me any more," said Cara in a low voice.

"Very well," assented the Princess; "but I must say this—for both our sakes. We have been old friends, he and I—no more than that. Oh, no more! I am married, Cara. I have been very unhappy—"

Not for a moment had Cara been suspicious, and she stretched out her hand, and laid it, with all the sympathy of her strong nature, on the elder woman's arm. It was at that instant, perhaps, that the Princess surrendered, gave up her love for Ronald, and took this beautiful, gentle girl to her heart.

They reached London, and the Princess took Cara to the house in Eaton Square which the Princess owned, and treated her as a sister.

"There is nothing to be done until Ronald comes, dear," she said. "We can only wait."

They had not long to wait, for in less than a week a telegram came from Ronald. He and Smithers had started and would reach them in a few hours.

SHATTERED NERVES

Too many people disregard the warning of jangled nerves. And slowly but surely—neglect lets this curse of modern life affect every organ and every function of the body and mind.

For the nervous system is not independent and separate—but is intimately connected with stomach, liver, heart and brain.

You should heed the very first warning that your nerves telegraph to your intelligence.

First, remove the cause of the trouble. If you don't know what the cause is, consult a capable physician at once.

Second, rebuild and tone up your nervous system with Zee-tic—the Greek Health Tonic.

It is a new and improved combination of glycer-phosphates, fine odorless-rendered Cod Liver Oil containing no greases and the best procurable tonic wine. Your own physician will tell you that glycer-phosphates contain the actual elements of the human body in the most assimilative form, and the value of Cod Liver Oil in rebuilding tissue, and tonic wine in rebuilding nerve force are too well known to need discussion. Zee-tic has a delightful taste.

Everywhere in Canada at the same price. One Dollar for a Generous Bottle. Compounded from food and tonic elements by The Zee-tic Company, Montreal.

They arrived in the evening, and the Princess met Ronald in the hall, with both hands outstretched and a brave look of friendliness in her eyes, which answered the question in his with a smile.

"Yes; she is all right. You will see. She is waiting for you upstairs. We are both glad you have come!"

He pressed her hands in wordless gratitude, and went up the stairs two steps at a time, and caught Cara to his arms.

"Let me look at you, dearest!" he said, after a moment or two. "Ah, it's the old Cara come back to me! How well you are looking! Tell me about the voyage. The Princess has been—?"

"More than good to me," Cara hastened to assure him. "No one could have been kinder. She is a true friend, Robert—Ronald—you see I know!"

He nodded.

"Yes, dearest? She has told you? There was no time at Monte Carlo to tell you, to explain. I was coming from the Hall, my father's place, that night I lost my way across the moor—and—found you! I had a quarrel with the Princess's husband and was afraid that I had hurt him seriously, perhaps killed him—no, no! he is all right!—so I took another name. I will tell you everything."

"And my father?" she asked in a low voice, her face averted.

Ronald shook his head.

"I don't know what has become of him, dearest; he has disappeared and I could not trace him. You are not—grieving, Cara?"

"No," she said, looking at him with a troubled expression. "I can't. It is wrong, unnatural; but—but—ah! you don't know how unkind, how cruel he was to me at last!—I think that—that he was not sane, Ronald."

"I'm inclined to agree with you," he said gravely. "But we will not think of him."

"There is one thing I must speak of," she said. "The treasure; he—he stole that, Ronald?"

"I don't know. Not unlikely," he said reluctantly. "But that's past and done with. My partner, Mr. Vane, and I gave it up as a bad job long ago. And now about ourselves, darling. How soon can you marry me?"

She trembled; but she did not draw away from him, did not remind him of the difference in their social positions. She was too inexperienced, too ignorant of the world to think of the possible obstacles to their marriage. It was sufficient for her that he loved her; he was lord of her heart and soul; his wish was her desire.

"When you want me to," she said simply; and her prompt obedience found its reward instantly.

Light, Heat

The proprietor of one of the systems is credited with saying: "I live on an old street, and I'll guarantee the most widely known and used system. He was asked to explain the difference between the two systems, and he said: 'The difference is in the way the light is put into the room. In the first system, the light is put into the room through a hole in the wall, and the rest is lost. In the second system, the light is put into the room through a hole in the ceiling, and the rest is lost.'"

EVERYDAY ENQUETE

"Would it be proper for me to ask a gentleman who has never taken me out, to take me to an entertainment?" asked Mabel.

"Why not ask the woman who is giving the entertainment to send him an invitation? Then he would probably ask you to go with him, especially if he knew you arranged it," replied her mother.

HAMILTON'S REPORT.

LONDON, Jan. 7.

As the result of the publication of the authorities are especially bitter for their failure to meet General Hamilton's repeated demands for reinforcements, the lack of which caused the collapse of the military situation in the east.

In contrast to what is termed the efficiency of the higher command, the greatest admiration is accorded to the men under the terrible conditions. Daily Mail in an editorial says: "The men were glorious, though their leaders lacked the insight, energy and decision, which are the divine qualities of a commander in war."

COTTON-FREIGHT RATES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.

The British Government has fixed the ocean freight rate at two dollars a hundred pounds on cotton shipped from this country to England in British vessels, with confiscation of the offending ship as the penalty for overcharge, according to advices received by cotton traders here to-day.

The prevailing rates on cotton to Britain from American ports are now said to range from $2.60 to $3 a hundred pounds, the high rates being induced by the shortage in tonnage.

Light, Heat

The proprietor of one of the systems is credited with saying: "I live on an old street, and I'll guarantee the most widely known and used system. He was asked to explain the difference between the two systems, and he said: 'The difference is in the way the light is put into the room. In the first system, the light is put into the room through a hole in the wall, and the rest is lost. In the second system, the light is put into the room through a hole in the ceiling, and the rest is lost.'"

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but they imagine the kind of system that open for us pass it in all directions to the street. ### Protest Against Delay.

On Monday last the price of coal was advanced two dollars and eighty cents a ton. More than seven years ago, when the price was but two-thirds of what it is to-day, it was recognized publicly as a national grievance. To-day the grievance exists in a far more intensified form. But seven years ago it was bad enough to induce the present Premier to promise to find a remedy. The intensified form of the grievance calls much more loudly for redress and reform. On Monday last we suggested that the Government should commandeer the coal in port at present and take control of supplies in future. On Tuesday the Opposition in carrying out these suggestions or others calculated to remedy the grievance. On Wednesday the Government invited the coal dealers to a meeting, and also asked certain leading members of the Opposition to be present. After the situation had been discussed, the Government and Opposition members agreed that the Government should submit a proposal to the coal merchants under which the coal in stock should be offered for sale, under regulations as to quantity, at a slight advance on last week's prices, say $5.50 a ton, and the Government would undertake to replace the coal ton for ton without loss to the dealers, and would aid in obtaining low freight as possible for future shipments. The decision to make this offer was taken on Wednesday afternoon and left to the Government to arrange. About half past twelve to-day we received a telephone message stating that a report on the matter had been received and arrangements were made for considering it this afternoon. We hope that there will be no further delay and that the matter will be finalized this afternoon and relief afforded against the grievous burden of $15.00 for soft coal with the slack weighed in. We object to any more delay.

How He Won the D.S.M.

The story of the heroism of Reservist Leander Greene of St. John's, without T. B. winner of the Distinguished Service Medal has not yet been told, but enough facts are at hand to show that the action for which he was awarded the distinction was one of daring and that it involved great personal sacrifice. Our hero was an able seaman on board a British Destroyer, which was chasing a submarine that had launched a torpedo at another British steamer. To save the ship was impossible and those on board were helpless and in imminent danger. As the destroyer carried no boats, there was only one chance that presented itself, that of sending a strong swimmer with a line to the helpless ship. A volunteer was called and Leander Greene came forward, leaping over the side, and forcing his way through a heavy sea reached the doomed vessel with a line to which a harness was attached. With communication established a cradle was rigged and one by one the shipwrecked sailors were rescued. In all probability Leander Greene was the last to leave the doomed ship, but he was the one to bring home the honour of accomplishing a deed of heroism worthy of the best traditions of Newfoundland seamen. In his own letters very little is told, showing that he possesses the characteristic modesty of a true hero. Congratulations again to Reservist Leander Greene, D. S. M.

DESTRUCTIVE Fire This A. M. AT CARBONEAR

Sir Edward Morris received the following message from Mr. J. R. Goodson, M.H.A.:

CARBONEAR, Jan. 8, 1916. To Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, Prime Minister, St. John's. Devastating fire swept part of Water Street this morning, starting in a fine house owned by Monsignor McCarthy, opposite Rorke's store, then crossing the street destroyed Hogan's dwelling and barn, Brocklehurst's dwelling and drug store, McCarthy's hotel and house next, also Soper's dwelling, next to Penny's store. Town was saved by splendid work of Carbonear volunteer fire brigade and citizens generally. J. R. GOODSON.

Fire starting in a store occupied by Charles Penny, of Carbonear, occurred at that place this morning and resulted in the total destruction of practically all the residential and business section on both sides of Water Street, within a space of a little over 100 yds. The property destroyed includes Penny's store where the fire originated, a house adjoining the same, Rorke's store and its contents, Brocklehurst's drug store and residence, Soper's residence, the McCarthy Hotel and a residence adjoining, Hogan the butcher's dwelling, and an adjacent barn, the whole representing a loss of about $150,000 very little of which is covered by insurance.

The fire was discovered by Thomas McCarthy, son of Mrs. McCarthy, the proprietress of the hotel. He woke about three o'clock this morning to find his bedroom illuminated by the flame from Penny's store which by this time was nearly demolished. He dressed hurriedly and routed the occupants of the hotel and sent in an alarm. The volunteer fire brigade and a large gathering of citizens were soon on the scene but they were unable to cope with the flames which were spreading fast in all directions. Having started at Penny's store the flames spread east to Soper's dwelling and west to Rorke's store, thence across the street to Hogan the butcher's, then to Brocklehurst's drug store where the drugs, of which a large quantity was stored, helped the conflagration. From Brocklehurst's the fire went to the McCarthy Hotel and to the house adjoining. By 7 o'clock, four hours after the fire began, all the property mentioned had been destroyed, and other buildings that were in danger had been torn down to help prevent the total destruction of the town. The fire brigade and citizens worked hard, and despite the excitement that reigned no person was seriously injured. A few persons however received some slight burns, one of whom, Mr. John Hamilton, who had his back charred while endeavouring to fight the flames.

From an eye-witness of the fire we learn that there was no wind at the time, which was a fortunate circumstance, as probably the whole town would have been destroyed. A large quantity of coal was stored at Penny's and also at Rorke's, all of which caught fire and was burning when the train left Carbonear this morning. Amongst the most valuable articles of furniture lost by Mr. Brocklehurst was a piano valued at $500.00. Thos. Moore, driver on the Carbonear train, who stays at the McCarthy Hotel, lost his boots and pants during the conflagration and had to borrow a pair of boots and some clothing before leaving with his train this morning.

Herring Fishery.

There has been a slackening off in the herring fishery all round during the festive season. At Bonne Bay the fish have been very scarce the past week or so. Some of the fishermen who went there from here, have returned to Bay of Islands and went to Bonne Bay some weeks ago, seeking herring cargoes are now awaiting favorable time to return here, owing to the slackening off of the herring in Bonne Bay, and the fear of being caught there by the ice floe later on.

At Bay of Islands there was very little doing in the fishery last week. Four or five tubs were taken per haul off the Flag Staff on the north side of North Arm the first of the week, but on Friday and Saturday the fish were very scarce.

In Middle Arm there was a scarcity of fish except at the outer part of the Arm, where some fishermen secured good catches when weather permitted them to attend to their nets. Gales of wind interfered considerably with the prosecution of the fishery, and many of the fishermen had their nets sunk or otherwise wrecked.

The first of this week herring struck in in abundance at North Arm and on Monday all the fishermen had good catches, many of them loaded their boats.

There were three vessels at Woods Island on Sunday, and one at Middle Arm, all caught fire and were burning when the salt bulk vessels have loaded and sailed.

The S.S. Wren came from Bonne Bay on Sunday and went into North Arm. On Monday, she took a load of herring from there, and finding the Humber Arm full of ice thus being unable to reach Curling she put into Bennett's Cove and landed her cargo.—Western Star.

'DESCARTES' NEW ORDERS.

WASHINGTON, To-day. CHURCHILL COMMANDS BATTALION.

LONDON, To-day. Major Winston Churchill, former First Lord of the Admiralty, who resigned subsequently the Cabinet post of Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and went to the front with his regiment, has been appointed to command the Battalion of Royal Scots Fusiliers at the front in France, according to Reuters correspondent at British Headquarters. This will prove the stepping stone to the command of the Brigade, which is said to be Major Churchill's ambition.

ARTILLERY EXCHANGES.

LONDON (Official), To-day. Yesterday morning a hostile bombing attack, supported by artillery about Armentieres and Lille railway, was driven off. Our artillery to-day bombarded the enemy's lines damaging trenches considerably.

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day. Some idea of the determined nature of the Russian blow on the Bessarabian front, is conveyed by Telegram despatches yesterday which state that the Russians for 50 hours concentrated four hundred guns on the Austrian positions at Czernowitz as preparation for an infantry attack. The Russian communications do not claim that Czernowitz has fallen, but despatches from German sources admit their position is critical. It is not clear whether the Russian operations in this theatre herald a big general offensive movement of all the Russian armies from the Baltic to the Rumanian border, or merely indicate a diversion of the unparalleled magnitude and ferocity designed to weaken the pressure of the Central Powers in the Balkans. The fighting has been of the most bitter character, according to both the Austrian and Russian reports. Few prisoners are being taken and the infantry engagements are largely in the nature of hand to hand encounters. All of the Russian operations thus far revealed are being pressed along the railway lines, which simplify the problem of the winter supply of food, ammunition and fuel. The situation along the other fronts is comparatively quiet. The loss of a British submarine by a mischance of navigation off the Dutch coast makes a total of eleven British submarines lost since the beginning of the war. A majority of these, however, have been of the smaller types.

RADICAL CHANGE IN GERMAN STRATEGY FORESHADOWED.

PARIS, To-day. (By Bertille).—A radical change in the German strategy, which has already begun to affect in the Balkans, and which involves the first official admission of a breakdown in the campaign against France and Russia, is foreshadowed by reports reaching Paris from Switzerland, which are credited in well informed quarters here. Prince Hohenzollern, disguising his identity with the title as Count Kat, is the Kaiser's Chief Commissioner, with Prince Buelow working in Switzerland for a separate peace with France and Russia, which would leave Germany's hands free to combat with Great Britain's steadily growing military strength. Prince Hohenzollern recently told a Swiss friend that his Emperor's plans were now bent in a direction totally different from that toward which he had looked in the beginning of the war. He believes that the deadlock on the western front is complete, and has finally acknowledged that what his army could not do in 1915 against France it is unlikely to do in 1916. The sporadic activity marking the turn of the year was merely the result of orders he had issued to his Generals to test the present strength of the Franco-British line. Wherever could a weak spot be found, a fact which caused the Kaiser no surprise. As regards the eastern front his plan for a renewed and Russian offensive early in the spring have been dropped because the dwindling of effective opposing the Russians swelling man power, Germany's chances of a decisive triumph are not great enough to justify the carnage of a new onslaught against the Muscovites would entail. Such an offensive was put beyond the range of possibility, when the Emperor's expeditionary forces get safely within the Salonika lines, and the French Premier M. Briand swung the British round to the policy of using that port as the starting point for an ultimate Balkan offensive. Premier Briand's policy commits Germany to the eastward drive more completely than the Kaiser had hoped. The best German opinion reaching Paris from Switzerland admits that Germany's Balkan programme was largely a bluff, which Briand called when he won through on his Salonika stand. Unable to rely solely on the Bulgarians and the Turks to defeat the Franco-British forces there even should Greece continue to look on while her hereditary enemies invaded her soil, the Kaiser was compelled to divert to the Vardar valley men who would otherwise be employed stemming the Russian tide, which is expected to rise to its height, flood stage early in the summer. A War Council, attended by the leading members of the Empire, is reported to have been held in Berlin during the turn of the year, and is said to have weighed all the possibilities of the situation and to have decided in favor of the Kaiser's newest plan which consists in a supreme attempt at hitting France and Russia into the belief that Germany is the possessor of tremendous latent strength, sufficient to intimidate them into acceptance of a peace which would leave the impress that both countries had emerged honorably from the trial of arms.

THE THOUGHT

COAL.

The burning question is still hanging over the atmosphere, and (not of coal) are smouldering breasts of the people. And not out a cause. Seldom has business opportunity taken such a chance as "rich quick" at the expense of the for at this time of the year but those who cannot afford to stock of coal in is without a doubt Messrs. Harvey, Stabb & Co. and Morey, for it practically has been down to these firms, waiting for the side their own stocks and without usual notification to the public. They sprang this New Year Gift on the poor. They knew that coal could be imported under the rate of ten or eleven dollars a ton and the Jolly Miller they made their money. They had never attempted any venture before and I don't know whether they dream that they will be called as they were to the meeting last Wednesday to answer searching questions.

The principal Coal Merchants quite outspoken in the matter. He says he is not in the business for philanthropic reasons and it is his duty to supply and demand. He says that he has the courage to state plain unvarnished truth. And he also says, it is business to take advantage in this way and he is only culprit on Water Street. He says that does make his action less morally wrong. Don't you see that such actions are absolutely opposed to the ideals and principles of Christianity? In one way a man who says that business has nothing to do with morals is to be pitied. Some cold-blooded heartless disregard of others' necessity must surely make a joyless life. But then what a lot of people suffer unnecessarily because of the actions of one or two individuals. It is proper and legitimate that the Government should step in and see that play. Shall a whole community suffer because a few merchants say "No" and you must pay for it? And what a waste of three and more precious dollars on Monday morning action shall have been taken in the coal should have been commandeered and the coal chanted forced, if moral suasion is not served, to sell it at the old price. Then let the Government make arrangements, if they can do better than the coal dealers, and distribute cargoes to them all. As it is, I think that those who have bought coal in the week should be refunded the amount which they paid over the old figure.

From Styles to Tact.

By RUTH CAMERON.

There is a young girl who passes my window every morning on her way to work, who always has a delightfully chic appearance. She wears very simple clothes, but they have an air. She would walk down Fifth Avenue and not look dowdy, which to my mind is the supreme test.

"I do," said my companion rather snidely. "For the ability to do that presupposes a habit which most of us cultivate too little—the habit of observation. No girl who wasn't alert and observing with eyes that not only looked at but saw what was before them, would pick up the little tricks of style as this girl does. I don't know her personally, but I have heard that she is quick and alert in her office work and live and interesting in her social life, and I don't wonder. Observation stores the mind with interesting things and makes its possessor interesting and well knowing."

Tact Is An Outcome of Observation.

Furthermore, observation goes hand in hand with tact. Or perhaps I would better say, tact is a spiritual development of the habit of observation. It is the unobserving people who are always making breaks, saying and doing the little unkind things that they would know better than to say or do if they had their eyes and their minds open. It is the observing person who notices how it pleases Mrs. A. to be asked about her plants and how touched Mrs. B. is by any inquiry for her mother. I wish the habit of observation could be taught in our schools. If it could be introduced not only as a separate mind exercise but as a part of the work in every course, I think our children would be the gainers.

SELFISHNESS.

WALTY MASON

Jim Kicksaw has a touring car, in which he journeys near and far. There's room for seven in it, he says, and Jim might bring to many a dame who seldom has a chance to ride, pure happiness ten cubits wide. But Jim would rather ride alone, than take some poor old gent or crone. He'd take a bumper or some skates who's made a pile in real estate; he'd load his car with damselfair, and still insist there's room to spare. He'd gladly take a joyous crew, to whom such rides are nothing new. But there are men with spavined limbs, and poor old dames with worn-out gowns; and crippled kids who sit and sigh, and gorgous cars go whizzing by; and mothers, tired until their hearts jump in yearn for rides in choo-choo carts; and maiden aunts who trade their hair for three long braids of country air. But these will never ride with him; they're poor, and don't appeal to him; the men don't wear their whiskers straight, the women's hats are out of date, the kids have saddy pinafores, from rolling round on unwashed floors. There's nothing in it, any way; you haul the poor for half a day, and all you get for it is thanks; they have no assets in the banks.

Until the Thing is Ended.

Rev. Campbell Morgan thus states what he thinks should be the temper in which Peace is to be considered.

"The Christian temper is that of a fulness of love of God for humanity, involving hatred of all that insults God by injuring His humanity."

"The Christian temper must stand firm and true in national thinking and national life, insisting upon it that no terms can be made with any nation, or any system of government, that is guilty of any sin such as that of Armenia. I declare to you in the midst of this city that I cannot conceive that the Christian Church can ever give its consent to any Government to consider any terms of peace with the German Emperor."

"It seems to me that this nation at least will have to say we cannot discuss terms of peace with the present constitution of an empire that has violated every sanction of humanity and trodden under foot all things bright and beautiful. That to me is the Christian temper, born of a passionate love for humanity."

"It is the vision and power of God's love for humanity, for humanity is such that we must hate with His hatred, not the individuals, but the conceptions and philosophies, and if Governments abandon themselves to these conceptions and philosophies, and identify themselves with these things, then we must be in conflict with them also until the thing is ended in the name of Truth, Right and an Infinite Compassion."

The Call That Cannot be Answered.

"The statistics supplied recently by the German General Staff show that the German wastage has actually been maintained at a higher rate than the French anticipated when they published their first estimate of numbers in January, last," says Col. F. N. Maude, C.B., in the Star.

"Then they calculated that by the current month, unless the Germans modified their tactics, the whole 4,500,000 valid lighters available to reinforce the first line of about 4,000,000 men would be exhausted, and after that date the numbers at the front would begin to fall. Further useful reinforcements simply did not exist in the country."

"But the average rate on which the French had calculated was materially increased. The result is that the whole of the 4,500,000 is practically exhausted, and nothing remains in the country to make good the daily losses but the more or less 'medically unfit' and the classes of Landstrum over 45 years of age (which have been depleted by the volunteers they furnished at the outbreak of the war) and the contingents of 1917-18, which also have suffered from the same cause of depletion."

Amusements.

CHAPLIN COMEDY IS VERY FUNNY.

Excellent, was the general pronouncement of the large audiences at the Nickel Theatre yesterday afternoon and last evening. The pictures were all particularly good. "The Esterbrook Case," a Broadway all-star feature film is one of the best ever given. The story is an interesting one which calls for able acting. The Vitagraph artists gave an extremely good presentation. The Chaplin Comedy was a very funny one and kept the audiences in roars of laughter. This evening the whole programme will be repeated. Hundreds of citizens like to attend the Nickel on Saturday evenings as the theatre is a popular resort. Monday the serial beautiful: "The Goddess" will be continued. This is the most charming serial ever photographed.

GO TO THE CRESCENT PICTURE PALACE.

Go to the Crescent Picture Palace to-day and have a good laugh. Lloyd V. Hamilton, the funniest man in the movies and Bud Duncan appear in "Lotta Coins Ghost," the funniest play you've seen in a long while. Tom Mix, the favorite cowboy actor, features in "The Conversion of Smiling Tom," a fine western drama. A fine detective drama is "The Tattooed Hand," an episode of the girl detective series the Crescent has been running for some time. "The Face at the Curtain" is a society drama presenting G. M. Anderson.

On Monday Mr. Dan Parks, haritone soloist, will appear at the Crescent singing classy and popular ballads.

BRITISH THEATRE.

The programme presented at the British last night was full of interest and drew very fair audiences. "Consistently good" is the aim of this house, and they are succeeding in attracting a clientele who appreciate their work. All pictures are chosen with an eye to the uplifting and amusement of patrons. The singing and playing of Madame Timmons and Prof. P. J. McCarthy are easily the outstanding feature of any entertainment of the kind, and to music lovers must prove a very strong attraction. At the matinees to-day there will be shown The Black Box for the benefit of the children. There will be a continuous show to-day for their benefit. Quite a few reels in addition to the above will be put on, something that will give them lots of fun. Send the children and make a big bumper matinee this afternoon.

NEW PANTOMIME—JACK AND JILL—ON MONDAY.

Those patrons who delighted in Beauty and The Beast will be more than pleased with the great new pantomime on Monday, "Jack and Jill" for its most sparkling and original. Miss Madge Locke has drilled the girls in several new dances that are real eye openers. Miss Locke is a most expert lady dancer besides being a high class vocalist. Mr. Ballard Brown in several very fine songs. The whole show right through is full of dances, a regular dancing revue. The Terra Nova Girl, The Sunshine Girls and the Baby Pink and Blue Girls all in sparkling new costumes, songs and dances. The Roseleys, our old favorites, are still on deck.

Bonds Expire.

The bonds for the five men who are charged with conspiracy and attempted to defraud respecting the loss of the schooner Henry M. Stanley, on the Labrador coast in September, will expire on Monday next, January 10th when the final preliminary hearing of the case will take place.

The regular meeting of the St. John's Mechanics' Society will be held on Monday evening next at 8 o'clock. By order JAS. A. LEAHEY, Sec.—jan8.11

ESSENCE OF GINGER WINE.

Having had considerable correspondence with parties in the Old Country, I have at last succeeded in obtaining the genuine and original recipe for the "Essence" of Ginger Wine, which I now offer at cents per bottle. This recipe has been safely guarded for a great many years. It was originally prepared by an old Squire in Lancashire, A.D. 1776.

It is made from the purest ingredients, and is strictly non-alcoholic. It makes an ideal Christmas drink for the young and the old. The contents of one fifteen-cent bottle, mixed with three quarts of hot water, in which there has been previously dissolved one and a quarter pounds of sugar, makes the Ginger Wine ready for use. I have much pleasure in introducing this old (but still new) preparation.

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

COAL.
The burning question is still—coal. And the smoke of the battle still hangs over the atmosphere, and fires (not of coal) are smouldering in the breasts of the people. And not without a cause. Scarcity has business opportunity taken such a chance to "get rich quick" at the expense of the poor, for at this time of the year no one but those who cannot afford to put a stock of coal in is without a supply. Messrs. Harvey, Stabb & Co., Crosbie and Morey, for it practically comes down to these firms, waited until there was little coal held in town outside their own stocks and without the usual notification to the smaller firms they sprang this New Year's Gift on the poor. They knew that no coal could be imported under a cost of ten or eleven dollars a ton and like the Jolly Miller they made their grab. They had never attempted anything so venturesome before and I question whether they dream that they would cause such a public denunciation, or be called as they were in the meeting last Wednesday to answer pretty searching questions.

The principal Coal Merchant is quite outspoken in the matter. He says he is not in the business for philanthropic reasons and it is business to take every cent he can get. "Supply and demand" offers. At any rate he has the courage to state the unvarnished truth, and as he also says, it is business to take advantage in this way and he is not the only culprit on Water Street. Just so—but does that make his action any less morally wrong? Don't you think that such actions are absolutely opposed to the ideals and principles of Christianity? In one way a man who says that business has nothing to do with morals is to be pitied. Such a cold-blooded heartless disregard for others' necessity must surely mean a joyless life. But then when a whole lot of people suffer unnecessarily from the actions of one or two individuals it is proper and legitimate that the Government should step in and see fair play. Shall a whole community suffer because a few merchants say "We want to make ten thousand dollars and you must pay it?" And we have wasted three and more precious days. On Monday morning action should have been taken, the coal should have been commandeered and the merchants forced, if moral suasion did not serve, to sell it at the old figure. Then let the Government make freight arrangements, if they can do better than the coal dealers, and distribute cargoes to them all. As it is, I think that those who have bought coal early in the week should be refunded the amount which they paid over the old figure.

The following is an extract from a letter just received: I know for a fact that this business man never takes ad-this city to be independent. They can only do this by minding their own business more than they have been doing. You see we are all one big family, and yet how little we work together. We need water in our houses, but we don't pay any one person for our use of it; we need streets to walk or drive on but we don't have to pay for the privilege of doing so, except in taxes from all for the upkeep of them. Now is it not reasonable that we—citizens—as one big family—should own and control an Electric Light Plant and a Gas Plant, and mind our own business? Lower rates for Gas and Electricity under such a company would be absolutely certain, and in another coal crisis we should be independent of coal—having Gas and Electricity to cook by and supply heat. It is not an impossibility. I just leave the suggestion with you for the present. Will you think it over?

At the City Hall.

The Chairman, Messrs. Ayre, McNamara, Bradshaw, Mullaly, McGrath, Morris, Anderson and Withers were present at last night's meeting of the Civic Commission.

After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read, the Chairman referred to the death of the Hon. John Harris, in whom the Board had lost one of its valued members. He spoke of the deep interest taken by the deceased in all Municipal matters, and of the many benefits which the Board received from his past experience in these matters, and from his sound judgment. "To him," said the Chairman, "the present improvement in the water system is largely due." But this is only one of the many matters in which his assistance was of such value to the Board. The Chairman continuing said that in business life he had known him intimately for nearly 35 years and he had found him thoroughly upright and honourable. In closing his remarks Mr. Gosling said that in the passing of the Hon. John Harris the Board had lost one of its most trusted Councillors and the city one of its most useful and respected citizens. He then submitted the following resolutions:—

WHEREAS It has pleased Divine Providence to remove from the earth the late esteemed and beloved brother member, Hon. John Harris;

AND WHEREAS Mr. Harris was actively and prominently identified with the Municipal life of the city, both as a nominee of the Government and a representative of the citizens of St. John's;

BE IT RESOLVED, That the members of this Board place on record their high appreciation of the conscientious, faithful and efficient services of their late colleague, and the energetic and assiduous manner in which he discharged the duties of his office as a member of the City Council, with which he has been connected at intervals during the past twenty-five years;

AND AS one of our leading merchants and public men he was a broad-minded gentleman, and in all his activities he displayed a keen intelligence and level-headed judgment.

BE IT ALSO RESOLVED, That the members express their deep sense of sorrow in the loss the community has sustained in the early demise of one who reflected so much credit on his native city, and tender to the relatives of the deceased their deep sympathy in their sad bereavement.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That a copy of these Resolutions be sent to the family of the late Mr. Harris, and also that publication be made of the same.

Mr. J. W. Withers, in moving the adoption of the resolutions submitted, paid a touching tribute to the memory of the deceased councillor. He felt that mere words were inadequate to express the loss of his friend and colleague. He referred to the character of the deceased, his deep interest in the welfare of the city, and the enthusiasm with which the deceased entered upon the duties of his office, for which he was in every respect eminently qualified. His deep interest in every phase of Municipal work made him a colleague of whom those associated with him may feel proud. "To-night," said Mr. Withers, "the Board mourns a great loss, and in the death of the Hon. John Harris the community mourns the loss of one who in every sense of the word was respected and beloved." He then went on to refer to the character of the deceased. Honourable and kindly, charitable to a degree the extent of which very few know, was the late Hon. John Harris. "In these times," said Mr. Withers, "death assumes a peculiar aspect. From day to day we hear of the thousands shot down in the mad vortex of war, and consequently life does not seem of the same importance as when it comes home to us in the intimate associations of every day life. It is only then we realize the significance of life, and our views of life and death become vastly different." In conclusion he said that in moving the adoption of the resolutions he wished to place on record his deep sympathy for the deceased's family, and hoped that time would soften the sorrow that the relatives of Hon. John Harris must feel at his passing.

Mr. P. McNamara in a speech of deep feeling seconded the adoption of the resolutions. He had been associated with the deceased in business for twenty years and felt that he had ample time to judge his character. The best assurance of his business ability was the prosperous state of his business at his death, a condition of which he as a former employee of the firm felt proud. Continuing, Mr. McNamara said that the deceased, while strong in the essential characteristics of a business man, was weak in some respects. To his kindness of heart was due this weakness, and Mr. McNamara felt that he could safely say that the Hon. John Harris could not say "no" to any reasonable appeal or request for help. He then told a story to illustrate this particular trait of character for which the deceased was notable, and the recital of it appealed to the Board. In conclusion, Mr. McNamara said that in the death of Mr. Harris the community had lost a valuable citizen, and that he mourned the loss of a great personal friend.

Mr. Mullaly speaking as a schoolmate paid a splendid tribute to the memory of the deceased. He had known him intimately in private and public life, and had noticed that there

Typists and Stenographers,
Have You Seen the LINE-A-TIME ?

The little device which when attached to your Typewriter makes typewriting a pleasure.
It serves the triple purpose of increasing the typist's capacity from 30 to 50 per cent daily, improving the quality of her work and saving her health.
The LINE-A-TIME practically eliminates the making of errors in transcribing.
It increases the output of the typewriter, because it enables the operator to utilize for transcribing the time she would otherwise spend bending over notebook or record sheet.
The LINE-A-TIME is a simple device that may be quickly adapted for use with any typewriter or billing machine, and may be placed on any desk. It stands behind and close to the machine, and supports the "copy".
Typists who have seen it are enthusiastic over it.
Employers and office managers who are on the alert for devices that will enable their present office force and equipment to increase their daily output, with a decrease in the effort required of each person affected, will be equally enthusiastic over the LINE-A-TIME.
Let us send you one on trial, no obligation to buy. We will take it away when you are tired of it.
The cost is not a consideration.
