Run Down Nervous Mothers

Gain Strength Rapidly on Vinol

In their zeal to do all in their power for their loved ones, most mothers overwork and soon get in a nervous, run-down condition. Vinol, the non-secret cod liver and iron tonic, is exactly what they need to build them up, make them strong and quiet their nerves.

Please be Convinced by this Positive Proof
 "I was weak, run-down and nervous. I had many spells and no ambition to do anything. I saw Vinol advertised and tried it. In about one week I felt better and it built me up and restored my strength. I want to recommend Vinol to other women who are weak, nervous and run-down." — Mrs. E. Trotter, 2 Grant St., Toronto, Ontario.
 For all run-down, nervous, anaemic conditions, weak women, overworked men, feeble old people and delicate children, there is no remedy like Vinol. Your money will be returned if Vinol fails — Leading Druggists.

For Her Sake; The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER XLVII

There were times during that year when Diana would clasp her hands in wondering despair at what she had become. She dared not look back upon her past; she dared not think of Sir Lisle. She tried to fill her nights and her days with unceasing gaieties. Letters came from her father and from Richard; but they lay for days unopened—for she wished to forget Furness and her simple happy life there. The girl was dead and buried who had sung of sunshine and roses, and had wondered how any living creature could find life dull.

Then, when April came, with its budding primroses, and delicately-perfumed violets, Lord Clanronald and his wife arrived in London, where Clanronald soon became the leader in the most fashionable coteries, as she had been in the gay French capital. Her social success was all the greater because she cared so little for it. Her proud independence made as many conquests as her beauty; she was a queen who never stooped to win homage, yet to whom every one paid it. No ball, fete, or party was complete without her. To know her was an honor; not to know her argued one's self unknown. There was nothing in all London so eagerly coveted as the entrance to Rinehill House.

During that season husband and wife drifted even further apart. Lord Clanronald spent the greater part of his time at his club; he took to drinking more deeply and led a more openly depraved life; while his beautiful wife, hating her galling chains more and more every day, was engrossed in an unceasing round of gaieties.

In the month of May Mr. Cameron and Lady Cameron came up to the house in Carlton Gardens; and then indeed there was war to the knife between Diana and her step-mother. Lady Clanronald repaid in full every slight that Lady Cameron had ever inflicted on her.

Common courtesy made it impossible to avoid asking her step-mother to her balls and state dinners; but she was

Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy

Thousands of families swear by its prompt results. Inexpensive, and saves about 50¢.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pine and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for 2½ ounces of Pinex with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Finex Co., Toronto, Ont.

rigidly excluded from the charming and select gatherings that were the delight of those who were favored by being allowed to participate in them; she was kept outside the sacred circle—and no punishment could have been greater than that to the haughty Lady Cameron. Evadne had not returned to England; Thesa had declined to accompany her mother, having no great desire to leave the neighborhood where Richard Marche resided; so that the two ladies fought out the battle alone; and Lady Cameron, despite the vast wealth of the man she had married, found that her younger and more beautiful rival completely eclipsed her.

There was a painful moment when Peter Cameron and his daughter met. He looked at the imperially beautiful woman before him, hardly recognizing his daughter.

"Diana," he cried, "my dear, how changed you are! I hardly knew you."

She grew very pale as she approached him, and vivid vision of the happy past seemed to rise before her. Her lips quivered and her hands trembled; she looked at him with a smile that could not hide the desolation of her heart.

"I have forgotten Diana," she said. "It seems to me long years since I knew Diana Cameron. I am Lady Clanronald now."

And Peter Cameron knew then, when he looked into his daughter's face, despite her beauty, her wealth, her position, and what was thought to be her brilliant marriage, she was a miserable woman.

CHAPTER XLVIII

The season came to an end like a fevered dream. No one had been more surprised at his daughter's great social success than Peter Cameron; but as he said pathetically to his wife, there was nothing of the old Diana left. Diana at Furness had loved him, had talked to him for hours together, had told him every thought of her innocent heart, and put her arms lovingly round his neck, while she spoke to him of all that interested her. Lady Clanronald was quite a different person. She was reticent and reserved with him; she never spoke of herself or her affairs; she never told him whether she was happy or unhappy; she never alluded to her husband. There was a dismal gulf between father and child which nothing could bridge over.

Several times it happened that Peter Cameron had seen Lord Clanronald intoxicated, and he had spoken on the subject to his daughter, but she always evaded it.

"It must be very unpleasant for you, Diana," he said.

She laughed at the word "unpleasant"—it was so weak, so inappropriate.

"People marry for better or worse; and it seems to me that it is more frequently worse that better," she replied.

"You should speak to him, Diana. Drinking is a habit that grows on a man, sometimes almost insensibly. Talk to him, my dear," Mr. Cameron advised.

"I will do my best," she replied turning away.

She told him nothing of the loathing and hatred with which this vice filled her. She did not tell him that she would far rather face a wild beast than her husband when he had too much drunk. Of what use to speak or to complain? She had married for pride and for spite, instead of love; what could she expect?

Lady Cameron, although she tried hard, did not learn any of Diana's secrets. The world was shy of saying anything against Lord Clanronald, a man with such a house, such a fortune—above all such a wife. Lady Cameron had heard one or two whispers in society about him. She knew that he had been purposely omitted from a dinner-party where a royal prince was expected, lest he should forget himself and cause annoyance. She alluded once or twice to the matter; but Lady Clanronald would not even pretend to understand her.

Mr. Cameron, when the season was over, asked Diana—indeed, almost begged her—to visit Furness with her husband. He promised that there should be a large party to meet her, and that everything possible should be done to make her happy. She raised her face to his; but there was no trace of pleasure at the mention of the name that had once been so dear to her.

"I do not think I shall ever see Furness again," she said. "If I do, it will not be for many years."

"Why not, Diana?" he asked, dismayed and astonished. "Furness is your home; Furness will be yours some day. Why not?"

"Because," she answered, slowly, "every part of it would be haunted by the ghost of my dead self; and I am not strong enough to meet that dead self yet."

"Oh, Dian, what does that mean? Open your heart to me; tell me about yourself!"

She drew away from him proudly.

"I have nothing to tell, nothing to say, papa, except that I cannot go to Furness. You must excuse me; I have an engagement. Good-bye."

He sighed heavily when she had gone.

"I would give anything in the world," he said to himself, "for one glimpse of my daughter Dian, of her old self. This stately woman is a stranger to me."

But he did not see her alone again, and the secret of Diana's life remained with her.

Mr. Cameron was not very happy after that, and whenever he spoke of his daughter Lady Clanronald it was with a sigh and a shake of her head; her brilliant triumph and great social success would never more interest him.

There was no mention of going to Ronald's Court, although just then, the end of June, it was at its fairest. Cowes, Ryde, anywhere where the fashionable world congregated, where gaiety prevailed, anywhere away from solitude and thought, was to be infinitely preferred, so far as Diana was concerned. In those days she dreaded to be alone; all she studied was how best to banish her troubles; and she believed that her object would be achieved by surrounding herself by people who could amuse her. Alone she could not thrust back her thoughts, she could not keep them under control; they would always revert to Furness, to the dearly-loved rose-garden and conservatory, to Sir Lisle.

Ah, Heaven, if the time could but return—if she could but begin again from the hour when she had sung of sunshine and roses, if she could but begin again even from that evening when she had stood in the conservatory and overheard the conversation that had changed the whole current of her life! How mad she had been! Now that she had attained her vengeance, how small a thing it seemed! It was worthless.

So for many months after her luckless marriage Lady Clanronald plunged into the very vortex of fashionable gaiety.

"I thought I was a rich man," her husband said to her one day, "but you make an inroad into the Clanronald revenues, Diana."

"I am glad to hear it," she answered.

"I wonder," he said, looking at her thoughtfully, "when you will stop. When I knew you first I admired your freedom from all the follies of fashion. Now there is not a woman in England who goes ahead of you. When will you stop?"

"When I am tired," she replied, briefly.

"I believe you," said Lord Clanronald. "It will not be until then."

"Then," came sooner than either of them anticipated. It came, too, in the strangest place.

A gay party had gone down to Brighton for a few weeks, and were staying at the Norfolk Hotel, just for the sea breezes and for one or two gatherings that had been arranged in the neighborhood. One evening Lady Clanronald, feeling symptoms of a severe headache, avoided her companions and went on to the West Pier alone. The sea was as calm as a lake; the tide was in, and the water washed languidly against the iron pillars of the pier. Seeing one of the loneliest spots, she watched the brilliant colors of the evening sky reflected on the water; the white sails of the little boats, the gentle rise and fall of the water, the ripple that the wind let on the bosom of the sea. The peace, the beauty, the poetry and grandeur of the scene sunk into her heart. Her reckless gaiety fell from her like a worn-out garment. A sudden unutterable weariness of it all took possession of her. Parties, balls, fetes—all the frivolities she had so eagerly sought were now less than nothing in her eyes.

How could such trifles have interested her? How could she who had once thought to fill her life with lofty aims and noble deeds—how could she have been content to waste the hours that should have been treasured?

Never again, she determined, should her time be thus spent. There was no peace to be found in such an empty, aimless existence. She could, in fact, never more seek forgetfulness in gaiety. There must be some other method of making life more bearable, some higher and nobler resource, surely, than this?

But little time elapsed before those who surrounded her observed that a marked change had come over her. Her face had lost its restless brilliancy, her eyes were calmer, and an air of peaceful resignation seemed to take possession of her.

She endeavored to persuade her husband to go to Ronald's Court. She had made a desperate resolve to repair her unhappy mistake. She would try to make the best of her ill-assorted union—and it was the first time in her unhappy married life that she had found courage to entertain such a resolve—she would try to interest herself in her tenants, in the duties connected with the estate, in doing good.

More Heat on Less Fuel.

Many thousands of users in City, Town and Country have learned from natural experience that the Caloric, the Original Patented Pipeless Furnace, heats the homes better than they were ever heated before, in all kinds of weather. Also that it save one-third to one-half the Coke, Coal and Wood. If you want real winter comfort, if you want to turn your houses into homes; and if at the same time you want to cut your heating expenses to practically one-half, install a Caloric. The cost of installation and maintenance, in money and labor, is much less than the number of stoves required to heat the same space. Thousands of Caloric users have paid the first cost of their furnace through the saving of fuel. It can be installed as quickly in the old houses as in the new, frequently in a day, because it has but one register, and requires no pipes in floors or walls.

More than fifty thousand Calorics are giving satisfactory and economical service in all types of homes, up to eighteen rooms in size, as well as in churches, stores, factories and other buildings.

Read the following testimonial from one of our customers:—

St. John's, Newfoundland, November 12, 1919.

Messrs. Bowring Brothers, Ltd., Hardware Department.

I have installed the Caloric Pipeless Furnace in my home (it is also the first Caloric in Newfoundland) and find it to give all the satisfaction claimed by its manufacturers. I would therefore recommend it to anyone that wants the most perfect system of heating by the circulation of warm, moist air through one register.

D'Annunzio Plans New York Giving an Ovation—Fighting Fresh Starvation in Vienna

ANNUNZIO'S FORCES NOW COME TO RIOME, Nov. 17. Gabriele D'Annunzio's recent stroke of genius, executed in his descent on Zara, augmented his land forces to such an extent that the Italian forces of occupation in Dalmatia comprise an army corps on one division at Zara and another at Sebenico. All of these troops are registered under D'Annunzio's name and said to have ample supplies and all sorts of equipment, including their substance for several months.

ANNUNZIO WINNING SUPPORTERS IN RIOME, Nov. 18. Desertions from the regular Italian troops to troops commanded by D'Annunzio, apparently cannot be counted by the Italian Government. Recent events appear to justify the belief that regular forces will be called to their post if occasion demands.

STARVATION IN VIENNA. LONDON, Nov. 18. Tragic descriptions of the starved conditions in Vienna were given by two Viennese doctors, Herr Schuster and Herr Hertaw, at a meeting held here under the auspices of "Fight the Famine" Council, last night.

HELFERICH IS PARTICULARLY BERTLIN, Nov. 18. In a statement to the press, published this afternoon, Dr. Helfferich, former Vice-Chancellor, upholds his right to a question submitted by Deputy Cohen on Saturday last that Herr Cohen accuse the Ambassador to Germany, Count von Helldorf, of having been in Vienna in December last, and had gladly accepted Russian money for bringing about a revolution.

HEITZBERG IS PARTICULAR.

BERLIN, Nov. 18. In a statement to the press, published this afternoon, Dr. Heitrich, former Vice-Chancellor, upholds his refusal to answer a question submitted to him by Deputy Cohen on Saturday, stating that Herr Cohen accepted money from M. Joffe, former Bolshevik Ambassador to Germany, and quotes the official Wolff Bureau as declaring that Cohen in December, 1918, stated he had gladly accepted Russian money for bringing about a revolution in Germany and had used it for that purpose.

NEW YORK ACCLAIMS PRINCE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18. The Prince of Wales arrived at Jersey City at 10.58 this morning on a five-day visit to New York. A cheering throng greeted the Prince of Wales as he stepped from the barge at Battery Park at 11.15. After a brief exchange of greetings with members of the Mayor's reception committee, he was driven in an automobile through the financial district to Broadway and to the City Hall, where the formal welcome of the city was extended by Mayor Hylan. Thousands of people were massed in the City Hall Park Plaza as the Prince's Party drove through. British and American flags shared equally in the decorations over the portals and in the Aldermanic Chamber where the official ceremonies took place. The police band played during the ceremony.

BOLSHEVİK PLOTTER TESTIFIED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18. Ludwig Rartens, Ambassador of the Russian Soviet Republic, plotted in Germany and Switzerland with Lenin and Trotsky for the overthrow of the Russian Imperial Government, he testified here to-day. He was deported from Russia after serving three years' imprisonment in Germany for his revolutionary activities. The tale of plot against the Romanoffs, which covered many years, was brought out by questions put to Rartens by Deputy Attorney General Berger.

WONT MEET HUNS AGAIN.

PARIS, Nov. 18. Regardless of the American Government's attitude, the Peace Treaty at Versailles will be put in force, according to prevalent view here today, following receipt of a report that President Wilson might withdraw the Treaty from the United States Senate. Whatever happens, the feeling in French circles is that France cannot meet the German plenipotentiaries again, and French opinion is that Italy and Great Britain have a like feeling.

BOLSHEVİKS MAKE IMPORTANT CAPTURES.

LONDON, Nov. 18. The Bolsheviks claim the capture of ten Generals and more than 1,000 other officers at Omsk, according to an official statement issued to-day by the Soviet Government at Moscow. Kolchak's army is being pursued in an easterly direction, the statement adds.

MILLS RUNNING AT FULL BLAST.

GARY, Ind., Nov. 18. The steel mills in Gary to-day were running at normal capacity for the first time since the strike of steel workers was called several weeks ago, mill officials announced. Seven hundred strikers returned yesterday, and the twelfth blast furnace was put into operation to-day with a full complement of men.

CURTAILING COAL SUPPLY.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 18. With the coal miners in the country still refusing to return to work, drastic orders for the curtailment of fuel have gone into effect throughout Indiana.

SEVEN KILLED IN COLLISION.

BUFFALO, Nov. 18. Seven persons were killed when the New York Central railroad passenger train struck an automobile at a grade crossing on the Eastern outskirts of the city early to-day.

WILSON EXERCISES VETO.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. President Wilson to-day vetoed the bill restoring to the Inter-state Committee Commission its pre-war rate-making power.

NEWSPAPERS CHANGE HANDS.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 18. Arthur Brisbane to-day announced the sale of the Washington Times and the Wisconsin News of Milwaukee, to William Randolph Hearst, the sale price not being made public.

COAL SHORTAGE AFFECTS INDUSTRIES.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 18. The closing down of numbers of cotton mills and other manufacturing plants in the South within a few days was foreseen to-day in an order of the Regional Coal Committee of railroad administration discontinuing their supplies of coal.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS ARE GONE.

LONDON, Nov. 18. The Duke of Portland has told a number of workmen on his estate, Welbeck Abbey, that there must be a reduction in their number owing to the increase in taxation and in the cost of all commodities. The Duke regretted "the good old days" had departed, forever, but said the workmen must cheerfully face the situation.

PARIS, Nov. 18. The Supreme Council to-day decided to inform Premier Venizelos of Greece that it could only confirm the view of the Peace Conference concerning the provisional character of the occupation of Smyrna by Greek troops.

The Englishman Won.

A good story concerning a conversation between an American and an Englishman, in which the latter scored, was told by General Pershing while he was in London recently.

My countryman (said Pershing) was telling one of yours a tall story about a wonderful sausage-making machine they had in Chicago.

"It's a big affair," he explained, "but quite simple. All you have to do is to drive a pig up a plank, through a hole in a machine, and five minutes later out come thousands of sausages."

"What becomes of the hide?" queried the Englishman.

"The hide," retorted the American. "Oh, that falls out of another slot in the machine, and out come portmanteaux, purses, or, if you like, shoes or saddles—merely a matter of turning a screw."

"Oh, is that all?" said the Englishman. "We've used that machine in England for the past thirty-five years. What's more, we've improved on it. Sometimes we found the sausages not up to the standard. Well, what happened? All we had to do was to put them back in the machine, reverse the engine—"

"Go on!" cried the American. What happens?"

"Out walks the pig as fit as a fiddle!"

The City of Tiberias and Its Pest.

Tiberias, which fell to the Allies during the recent fighting in the Holy Land, is on the Sea of Galilee, and has a bad reputation even in the East, for those pests which one feels, but doesn't often see, at some seaside places in summer time—namely, fleas! Apart from this scourge the ancient city has fallen on evil days and now numbers but 9,000 inhabitants. In Biblical times it was a rich and prosperous place, and the capital of the province of Galilee. It was built by Herod Antipas, the murderer of John the Baptist, as his capital, and to this day retains some traces of its ancient splendour. The Sea of Galilee is described as a "lake," although it is 13 miles long and 7 1/2 miles wide! Situated in graceful rather than imposing scenery, the water is deep blue and when the hills around it were crowned, as they once were, with palaces, summer houses and towers it must have been exceedingly picturesque. It teams with fish, among them the curious "talking fish," which has been famous since the days of Josephus—of Biblical fame—because it emits a sound. Its waters once were covered with fishing boats but now only a few miserable craft are to be seen. It will not be long before a change comes over the scene, and Tiberias rises once more to its old zenith.

The young man with the uncut hair and hunky look had submitted a poem for editorial consideration. "Well," said the man behind the blue pencil, after a hurried glance at it, "how does thirty shillings strike you?"

"Why—er—really," stammered the rhymer, "that is more than I—"

"Well, that's the best I can do," interrupted the busy editor. "I couldn't think of printing a poem like that for less."

"It Is Not Done."

The Chinese are nothing if not polite. Not long ago a Chinese paper, which asked German residents in China not to speak in German, put it this way: "If for nothing else, as a matter of politeness and courtesy, a nice feeling of the fitness of things, those who use German should refrain from doing so in this country. It is not good manners to speak of ropes in a family that has had a hanging!"

JAEGER Pure-Wool is suitable to ALL climates, as is shown by the fact that every Expedition of importance for over a quarter of a century, Arctic, Tropical and Sub-Tropical, has carried "JAEGER", including

"Nothing Too Good For Our Men"

This cry of the leaders of great ventures into the frozen zones has sent our heroes into the white fastnesses with the confidence that wins, borne out of being well outfitted.

JAEGER wear has been chosen for over a quarter of a century as the only dependable protection for those exploiters of courage who race for honour to the Poles, when every life is valuable.

No time to risk experimenting with unknown brands. This is a TEST for the BEST.

It is certain that a great measure of the success of these expeditions must have been due to the reliability of the JAEGER products worn.

To-day the ordinary man may obtain in JAEGER everyday under and outer wear the same materials and scientific construction of garments that sustained the men in these historical expeditions.

Not Much of an Officer.

Rebecca, aged eight, was very proud of her father's rank as a first lieutenant, and grew quite indignant when a neighbour's boy called him captain. "I'll have you understand that my daddy is not a captain," "Oh, it doesn't matter." "Indeed, he is not an officer," she protested. "Yes, dear, a lieutenant is an officer," interrupted Rebecca's mother. "Well," persisted Rebecca, still determined to maintain her daddy's dignity at all cost, "he's not much of an officer."

A Puzzled Plaintiff.

A workman was hit on the head by a brick which fell from the building of the ice factory on Milford Haven Docks, while in process of construction. One of the first things he did (after being taken home and put to bed) was to send for a lawyer, in order to demand compensation for the accident.

A few days later he received word to call, as his lawyer had settled the case. He called and received two crisp Bank of England notes for £5 each. "How much did you get?" he asked. "Only £25," answered the lawyer. "£25! And you give me only £10! I say, who got hit by that brick—you or me?"

A Relic of the Past.

Orderly Officer: "Any complaints?" Newly-joined Conscript: "Yes, sir; I can't stand this 'ere Irish stew!" O.O.: "Not stand Irish stew? Ridiculous! Our generals made many a hearty meal of it in the Crimea!" N.J.C.: "I dessay, sir; but the meat would be fresh and good then. It's a long time since the Crimea job. You can't expect the meat to keep all them years, even if they do put it in tin cans!"

Turkish Tipplers.

Though the laws of Mahomet forbid their consumption, it seems that alcoholic drinks—especially rakı—are by no means unpopular among the Turkish working classes.

They have long been in favour with the upper classes, even in the days when prohibition laws were so strong in Turkey that the Grand Vizier tried to stop foreign diplomats from importing wine for their own consumption.

Augier de Busbecq, the French Ambassador, successfully resisted this infringement of their rights, but the authorities stipulated that the wine should be carried through the streets at dead of night, lest the sight of the casks should corrupt the faithful.

However, when the wine reached its destination the Turkish Ministers enjoyed it as much as anybody.

Busbecq relates that one of them, when tackling a bottle of champagne, gave a great shout before each drink. This warned his soul to hide itself in a remote part of his body, for fear it should be defiled by the wine and have to answer hereafter for the sin.

Why He Was Wet.

It was raining "cats and dogs," and Harold was bidding his lady-love good-night.

"Oh, Harold!" she cooed, "you can't go home in this; you'll catch a cold and die; you must stop here for to-night, and mamma and I will make a bed for you in the spare room. Now, go into the parlour, and stop there till we come down."

Half-an-hour later, on going into the parlour, she found Harold sitting on a chair, wet through, holding a rain-soaked parcel in his hands.

"Whatever is the matter, Harold?" she asked. "Where have you been?" "It's all right, my dear," he said; "I've only been home for my night attire!"

Second Day of Social Welfare Congress.

MANY LECTURES OF DEEP INTEREST.

The second day of the Social Welfare Congress was even more successful than that of the first. The afternoon session, held in Canon Wood Hall, was under the chairmanship of Rev. Canon Bolt, Miss Kendall, one of the Community Nurses, read a very interesting paper on "Conservation of Life." She told of the excellent work done during the time in which the Community Nurses have been working here. With facts and figures she proved the very beneficial results, showing that some twelve hundred babies under one year had been visited.

Dr. H. Rendell was the next speaker, his subject being "Tuberculosis." In Doctor Rendell's opinion it was not a disease that could be successfully treated by the general practitioner unless he had lots of time and money, and generally he had neither. Successful treatment could only be given by a specialist, and should be administered in buildings specially prepared for the purpose. The whole world was affected with tuberculosis germ, but it was no use to give up the fight. If one buys a good seed he cannot expect a good crop if the ground is not fertile. The tuberculosis germ is very harmless if it does not get assistance, and to prevent it from gaining a hold we should make our bodies sterile. The diseases which affect the respiratory organs, such as colds, pneumonia, whooping cough, etc., are what we must guard against. When the tissue of the lungs becomes affected, the otherwise comparatively harmless germ is given an opening. What we must do is to make the lungs sterile against these attacks. The doctor asked what we were going to do for our tubercular soldiers and sailors, who deserve the best. The Government have recognized its duty in the matter and are erecting a building that will be amply sufficient to accommodate these men who fell victims to the disease in defending the Empire. Something more should be done, there should be some provision for making a work test as they become convalescent, and those who were competent to perform a full day's work should be allowed to go back to the world of labor, those of the intermediate stage should be graded, and others who would drop out altogether should be provided for. A colony should be formed where these men could live surrounded by their friends and families, and if they could only perform a 25 per cent. day's work, the country should make provision for the remaining 75 per cent. No more worthy memorial could be raised to our boys than such a colony and an institution which would aid in bringing these men back to health and happiness.

Dr. Parsons, M.C., spoke on venereal disease, stating that there were a good many cases in the city. In his opinion the sufferers should be taken in hand and treated separately from other diseases. Action should be taken immediately. Mr. F. W. Bradshaw spoke on civil affairs and gave many facts of vital interest. Mr. Bradshaw thought the word 'civic' should be included in the C. H. E. syllabus, and teachers should be required to deliver a brief address daily to the children on civic matters, and the need of taking an interest in the city's affairs. We should all be proud of our city, and this should be impressed upon the young. Mr. H. Y. Mott occupied the chair at the night session in the College Hall. Mayor Gosling dealt with the housing problem. There were twenty-two hundred houses without water and sewerage in 1914, and by dint of constant financial assistance, etc., that number had been reduced to about seven or eight hundred. Rev. Canon Vernon spoke next, his subject being the Church and Social Service. Canon Vernon's address was of absorbing interest and his hearers regretted that it could not have been more extended.

Rev. J. G. Shearer delivered an address on Social Justice. Mr. Shearer gave many interesting facts concerning Canada and the progress being made there against vice and corruption. His remarks were listened to with interest. Industrial Problems will be dealt with at to-night's session.

"Apostle of the Coco-nut."

One of the strangest characters in the world is Auguste Englehardt, a young German who lives on the island of Kabakon in the German New Guinea territory. He exists entirely on the coco-nut, and sleeps on a bed of sand. Englehardt is a singularly handsome man of about thirty-five, possessing great wealth and a charming personality. He is known as the "Apostle of the Coco-nut" on account of the doctrine he teaches that the coco-nut is the original food of man, and should continue to be so, as all other foods are responsible for the bad passions in the heart and mind of man. The "Apostle" claims to have over 500 disciples in America, and now the war is over he intends to leave his island home and come back to the old world and proclaim his teachings. He is also a "sun worshipper," living entirely in the open air, and adopting the simple dress of the natives, consisting merely of a "lava-lava," or loin cloth, and when in full dress, that is, when he receives visitors, this attire is completed by the addition of a wristlet, watch and a walking-stick.

THE GIFT OF CH

Not long ago I heard two women talking over their childhood memories of Christmas.

"They talked about long-desired gifts that Santa Claus had brought them, about stockings and a Christmas tree and Christmas Eve, and then one of them said:

"But I don't think we got any more out of any thing than we did from the presents we bought for each other. You know we hadn't much money, and it did mean such a lot of contriving." (She comes from a family where there was just about enough money for the necessities of life—counting education as one of them.)

"Did you buy your presents for each other yourselves?" asked one. "Why mother used to buy ours for me. I don't believe we saw them, half the time, until they were on the tree." (She comes from a family where there was plenty of money for almost everything.)

"She thinks they missed half the fun of Christmas."

"Well, you missed half the fun of Christmas, then," said the first woman. "We children used to have the greatest times scraping together two or three dollars we spent on our mother and grandfather each other. I remember one year when I saved the dollar grandfather gave me for my birthday (it came in arch) for Christmas. And then I remember the year I earned some money in the summer looking after a neighbor's cat. That was a wonderful year. I can remember every present I gave that Christmas. Someone gave us a box of soap, and I found that there were premiums for my wrappers, and so I unwrapped every case and got father the subscription to a magazine. Then, they were doing some very simple embroidery of white cotton on checked muslin that was simple enough for me, so I made brother a

Not Keen on Buying.
With the new pack just in the office, and huge stocks of good, had and indigo goods on hand, Newfoundland Scotch cured herring dealers are said to be making frantic efforts to "get out from under." It is reported that one large New York factor in the herring trade is offering more than ten thousand packages at a price that ought to find plenty of buyers, but which, on the contrary, has failed to create even a flicker of interest. One reason for this, perhaps—a reason which we believe not altogether untenable—is that the goods are probably not of very choice quality. Complaints have been rife this season concerning Newfoundland herring, and prices have varied from the floor to the ceiling. For instance, 1919 large winters are quoted in some quarters as high as $22 per barrel, emphasis being placed upon the superior quality of these goods, while other dealers are offering—or claim they are offering—for as low as $10, with no attempt to capitalize the "Q" in quality. After sifting all available information, however, it is probable that a fair, all-round price for winters is $14@16 per barrel for fish "as they run". While it is said that very much better prices are obtainable for "fancy" stocks, we would like to

Not Keen on Buying.
With the new pack just in the office, and huge stocks of good, had and indigo goods on hand, Newfoundland Scotch cured herring dealers are said to be making frantic efforts to "get out from under." It is reported that one large New York factor in the herring trade is offering more than ten thousand packages at a price that ought to find plenty of buyers, but which, on the contrary, has failed to create even a flicker of interest. One reason for this, perhaps—a reason which we believe not altogether untenable—is that the goods are probably not of very choice quality. Complaints have been rife this season concerning Newfoundland herring, and prices have varied from the floor to the ceiling. For instance, 1919 large winters are quoted in some quarters as high as $22 per barrel, emphasis being placed upon the superior quality of these goods, while other dealers are offering—or claim they are offering—for as low as $10, with no attempt to capitalize the "Q" in quality. After sifting all available information, however, it is probable that a fair, all-round price for winters is $14@16 per barrel for fish "as they run". While it is said that very much better prices are obtainable for "fancy" stocks, we would like to

THE BEST LAND.
If I knew a better land on this glorious world of ours where a man gets bigger money and is working shorter hours; if the Briton or the Frenchman had an easier life than mine, I'd pack my goods this minute and I'd sail across the brine. But I notice when an alien wants a land of hope and cheer and a future for his children, he comes out and settles here.

Household Notes.
Grape-fruit pie is a novelty. Stale rusks are very good roasted. Measure flour after a single sifting. Use sandpaper on a rusty kitchen stove. Heat can be bought in compressed tablets. Soups may be thickened with tapioca. Pies should be baked in a moderate oven. A cupful of anything means a half pint. Chop suey may be garnished with fried noodles. A quart of soup will serve four or five people. A settee beside the fire may serve as a wood-box. Asbestos is the only proper lining for dummies. Mildew on leather can be rubbed off with vaseline. Thoroughly chilled bacon will slice very evenly.

A Make-Shift.

It is generally admitted on all sides that the new Executive of Hon. R. A. Squires, sworn in on Monday, is but a make-shift, and appointed merely to assume control of the Government. As a make-shift, it will, of course, suit the ideas of the party following, but that it meets with the full approval of the electorate supporting the Liberal Reform Party is debatable. Nor does it, so far as the North is concerned, receive the full approbation of the Fishermen's Protective Union, the organization under Mr. Coaker, which gave Mr. Squires the Government. In fact the F.P.U. have been treated very cavalierly, and the signs indicate a disturbance in that body which will not easily be quelled.

A solid North gave (with the inclusion of St. Barbe) eleven seats in the House of Assembly earmarked for the Fishermen's Protective Union. That number is all but one-third of the total Assembly membership, and to be proportionately represented in the Government, the North should have had one-half of the Administrative machinery. Yet when the division was made Mr. Squires appropriated eight seats and pawned Mr. Coaker off with three. And the joke of it all is that the redoubtable President stands for the shake-down. The F.P.U. gets two seats in the Executive and Mr. Jennings, member for Twillingate, is given the Public Works Department, as a sop. Mr. Squires corrals four departmental offices and seven seats in the Executive as his factions share of the spoils, and in addition gives W. H. Cave, member for Bay de Verde the portfolio of Shipping.

The Agriculture and Mines Department is going a-begging. No one cares to take it, the portfolio being looked upon as a political hoodoo. Mr. Squires, with that modesty which so becomes him, has grabbed the big plum and holds down two offices, those of Prime Minister and Colonial Secretary, thus drawing a dual salary. Mr. Warren gets the Justice Department, and Mr. Brownrigg falls into the chair of Finance and Customs. The F.P.U. members have to be satisfied with Mr. Coaker as Minister (Acting) of Marine and Fisheries, while Mr. Halfyard, who ably performed the duties of Colonial Secretary, during the eighteen months' existence of the National Government, has to be content with anything that may be offered him, and is only recognized as one of the rank and file, though the Advocate and Morning Post have marked him down as head of the new department of the Post Office, with Mr. Barnes, to become Minister of the-to-be, newly created department of Education.

Thus, taking it all in all the F.P.U. organization appears to have come out at the small end of the horn, and the people are astonished over the fact that Mr. Coaker has, so far, registered no protest, but is apparently satisfied with the whole arrangement. Usually a calm occurs before a storm, and there is no doubt that the present make-shift Executive will not long weather the political gale which the popular barometer indicates is at hand. The storm signals are up. Again, Mr. Squires, in the formation of his Government, has not given fair representation to the larger denominational bodies. Taking the eleven men who hold portfolios and seats in the Executive, it will be found that there are three Anglicans, three Roman Catholics, three Methodists and two Salvation Army. Adding the two new departments of the Post Office and Education, the former, according to the Advocate and Post, will have a Methodist, and the latter an Anglican head. In order to square matters denominationally, the Agriculture and Mines Department will have to go to a Catholic, and as Mr. Brownrigg is already Minister of Finance and Customs, and Mr. MacDonnell has refused the department, it is difficult to see where Mr. Squires is going to find an incumbent for that department. The perplexity of Mr. Squires' position will increase as time goes on. Meanwhile with all the departmental heads acting, there is not the least fear of any of them having the courage to face their districts for reelection.

Short of Coal.

The delay in the arrival of the St. Barbe ballast boxes at Bonne Bay is accounted for by recent advices received in the city, that the collecting steamer Strathcona has been held up at Port Saunders for want of coal. The F.P.U. could not transfer a sufficient quantity to the bunkers of the Strathcona, because Capt. English felt that to do so would shorten his own steaming supply for the Straits trip. Arrangements are now being made to have motor boats from Bonne Bay take along enough to bring the Strathcona to that port, the flotilla starting today. Should the small craft get through all right, it is possible that the count will begin to-morrow.

Installation of S. A. Chancellor.

To-night at the Adelaide Street Salvation Army Citadel, Lieut.-Col. Smeaton, who is on a visit from Toronto, will perform an interesting ceremony, when he will install Commandant Thompson as chancellor to assist Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Adhy in the good work of the army in Newfoundland.

St. Mary's Hall Concert.

To-night a concert, the proceeds of which will be devoted to Sunday School purposes, will be held at St. Mary's Hall, South Side. Teas will be served and refreshments will be on sale. The committee in charge have made every preparation for the entertainment of those attending.

Lady School Inspector.

Miss Eliza Collins of Placentia has been appointed R. C. School Inspector for the Diocese of St. George's. Miss Collins is the first lady to fill the position of school inspector in Newfoundland, and her work will be watched with interest by educationalists. Congratulations.

Thanksgiving Sermons.

Rev. Dr. Jones will preach the Thanksgiving sermon at St. Thomas's on Sunday morning. At the evening service His Lordship the Bishop will preach.

Proposed Fleet of Trawlers Cause Uneasiness.

It is said that a fleet of 300 or more French steam trawlers will operate next season on the Grand Banks. Whether so many trawlers operating will have an effect on the shore fishery of the south west coast, is giving some concern to those who are engaged in this latter industry.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I enclose you a copy of a letter of mine to Hon. R. A. Squires, and would be glad if you would publish same.

Yours truly,
JAMES R. MACDONNELL,
St. John's, Nfld. Nov. 18, 1919.

St. John's, N.F.,
18 November, 1919.
Hon. R. A. Squires,
Prime Minister,
City.

Dear Sir,—As a consequence of our interview yesterday, I write you that my position with you may be perfectly clear. Throughout my campaign in the District of St. George's, I told the electors on every possible occasion that I trusted no Party; that to me every Political Party was guilty until it was proved innocent.

I also told them that I had a belief in you, a belief that you would give the District of St. George's through me that consideration which is its due; and also if at any time I considered that anything was being done by you and your party which did not, in my opinion, seem square to the District of St. George's, that I would leave your party.

The first test has come. The Cabinet in this country is constituted on denominational lines. There was but one Catholic District in this country that returned a supporter of your party, that District was St. George's.

In forming your Executive you took a defeated candidate from St. John's West, and man from St. John's East who did not even go into the fight, and you leave out the District that stood by you.

You were kind enough to offer me the Department of Agriculture and Mines without a seat in the Executive. As far as I am personally concerned that was a good offer. It is good enough for me personally, but it is not good enough for the District of St. George's. As I see it, and as the people of St. George's will see it, it is a continuation of the old story of domination by St. John's.

The future of this country lies in the West, and the people of the West know it. It is going to be a hard fight to secure recognition of this fact, and I am prepared to make that fight and I believe that the people of the District of St. George's will support me in doing so.

It is too big a question to be decided or influenced by personal likes or dislikes. As I see it there is a principle involved, and by that principle I am prepared to stand or fall. If I am to be logical, if I am to be consistent in this line of action which I have adopted, there is but one thing to do and this is, here and now, to sever my connection with your Party. This I do.

In justice to you, to myself, and to my District, I am sending copies of this letter to the daily press.

Yours sincerely,
JAMES R. MACDONNELL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. The Government stepped to the front to-day to force miners and operators to negotiate a new wage agreement and resume work in the numerous fields before the country in the grip of a coal famine. Cloth with all of his war time powers as Fuel Administrator, and acting by special authority of the President and cabinet, Dr. Harry A. Garfield called joint meeting of scale committees, which he was expected to give formal notice that the time had come to resume mining operations on a normal scale. There was no evidence as presented to the Cabinet that the scale committees called here last week to negotiate a new wage agreement had made the least headway. Reports from the central committee fields, embracing the States of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, the strongholds of the United Mine Workers of America, showed all lines shut down, and not enough coal coming from non-union plants in their States to meet the normal demand by several million tons. Other reports from widely separated sections brought the same story of a rapidly vanishing coal supply, with indications that hundreds of industrial plants would be forced to close short, unless coal production was put back at normal. In the view of many officials the situation was critical enough to demand drastic action.

THE FOLLOWING LETTER EX-PAINS ITSELF:

Management Majestic Theatre
Synod Building,
Nov. 19, 1919.
Gentlemen,—I wish to congratulate you on last night's performance and you on your selection of the picture show.
I think I voice the opinion of everyone who was present at last night's performance when I say this picture has never been surpassed, not even by "Joan the Woman," which was a really excellent picture, but which in my opinion must take second place to "The Cavell Case." It is not necessary for me to detail the sacrifice of the heroic British Red Cross nurse who laid down her life in Humanity's cause, as the details are already known to every man, woman and child of every nationality. This picture is the most interesting and most pathetic that has ever been shown here, and everyone, both young and old, should make an endeavour to see it. Besides enjoying a good picture a most profitable lesson in duty and sacrifice may be learned.
Congratulations you again,
A PUPIL.

The Biggest Animals.

So far the biggest animals, says Sir Ray Lankester, of which we have any knowledge are the various kinds of whales still flourishing in the sea. A mechanical limit is set to the size of land-walking animals and that limit has been reached by the elephants. "Flesh and blood," and we may add "bone," cannot carry on dry land a greater bulk than his. He is always in danger of sinking by his own weight into soft marsh land. His feet have to be much thicker in proportion than those of smaller animals—made of the same material—or they would bend and snap. His feet have to be padded with huge discs of fat and fibre to ease the local pressure, and his legs are kept straight, not bent at the joints, when he stands (a fact to which Shakespeare makes Ulysses refer), so that the vast weight of his body shall be supported by the stiff column formed by the upper and lower half of the limb-bones kept upright in one straight line. A well-grown elephant weighs five tons. Compare his weight and shape with that of a big whalebone-whale—no extinct animal approaches the existing big whale in bulk and weight. He is eighty to ninety feet long, and has no neck nor any length of tail. His outline is egg-like, narrower at the hinder end. He weighs 200 tons—forty times as much as a big elephant—and is perfectly supported without any strain on his structure by the water in which he floats. There is no such limit to his possible size, as there is in the case of land-walking animals. But it seems probable that he, too, is limited in size by mechanical conditions of another kind. Probably he cannot exceed some ninety feet in length, and 200 tons of bulk on account of the relatively great increase of proportionate size and power in the heart required in order to propel the blood through such a vast mass of living tissue and keep him "going" as a warm-blooded mammal. The original pattern—the small dog-like ancestor of the whale—cannot be indefinitely expanded as an efficient working machine, though its limits is not determined by the same mechanical causes as those which limit the bulk of the terrestrial quadruped.

An Apple a Day.

Probably not one person in a hundred fully realises the great health value of fresh fruit. Among those who eat apples and pears, cherries and plums, the majority, and those, too, who most need them, refuse to swallow the skins.
Yet the consumption of raw fresh fruits with their skins assists in maintaining a high condition of the blood, and simultaneously of keeping the digestive organs of the body clean, in part because of the nature of the food, and in part because it acts as a natural laxative.
The seeds of fruits, like the pits of the apple and the pear, the kernel of the plum and cherry-stone, and all nuts, are among the richest of all food materials, while the skins supply the mineral substances, which are necessary to the nourishment of the blood, without which nobody could live.
Where the blood is examined before one commences to eat fruit with its skins, and again at the end of three months, the improvement is marked by the increase in the red cells and the red colouring matter, which are of such vital importance to health and to life.
There are numerous foods which we ought not to eat in excess, but which we do eat too much, that leave something behind them in the organs of digestion and elsewhere. Fruit is the natural remedy to employ and not medicine. Its systematic employment at all meals is quickly followed by a healthy change.
The skins with the acid which all fruits contain are perfect cleansers, the former acting almost like a broom in sweeping all before it, as it passes through the digestive organs.
The apple is the best of all fruits, and for the purpose indicated should be grated finely, and eaten with coarse oatmeal as porridge, being sweetened with condensed milk. Apples should be bought now, and suitable varieties will keep through the winter if placed in a cold, dry, dark store, where frost cannot harm them.

Horse Shoes of Straw.

In Japan, most of the horses are shod with straw. Even the clumsiest of cart-horses wear straw shoes. In their case the shoes are tied round the ankles with straw rope, and are made of the ordinary rice straw, braided so that they form a sole for the foot, about half an inch thick. These shoes cost about a half-penny per pair, and when they are worn out they are thrown away. Every cart has a stock of fresh new shoes tied to the horse or to the front of the cart, and in Japan it was formerly the custom to measure distance largely by the number of horse-shoes made a day's journey, and the average shoe lasted for about eight miles of travel.

Shipping Notes.

The schooner Vogue cleared yesterday for Seville with a cargo of fish shipped by Francisco Dominiques.
The schooner Over The Top has sailed for Pernambuco with a cargo of fish from Bishop Sons & Co., Ltd.
The schooner Stella is at Baldris Wharf where she will land a cargo of fish brought along from GroaIs Islands.

Poultry Exhibition.

Quite a number of entries for the poultry exhibition have been made to date and indications are that the exhibition will eclipse former efforts. A beautiful silver cup has been donated for competition in the Banded Rock Class. Judge Jackson will leave Sydney on Saturday and will be here for the opening.

When you want Sausages, why get ELLIS'; they're the best.

ISLAND BUILDERS.
The Wonderful Story of the Coral.
In common with the sponge the coral has long enjoyed a reputation as something rather mysterious; built up in some inexplicable manner in the depths of the seas, born wonderfully of the "great grey level plains of ooze, where the shell-buried cables creep." Many who deny its right to the title of mineral, yet dubious of its real nature, give the credit of its being usually to "a sort of insect"; a guess wide of the mark.
The builder of coral-masses is a close relative of the tiny fresh-water hydra of our ponds and streams on the one hand and of the flower-like soft-bodied sea-anemone on the other; and, vastly different as at first sight it appears, its method of life and living is not far removed from either of these.
The "Polyp" at Home.
The coral-animal or "polyp" is very simply constructed. A month surrounded by a fleshy body and fringed with tentacles armed with stinging-threads for securing food, and an unenviably simple stomach, complete its make-up. The majority of living corals vary in size from about a quarter to one inch in diameter; small in comparison with the earlier fossil forms as found in the limestone of Wenlock, Malvern, etc., which sometimes measure a foot or more across with thick dividing walls; though others, of another type, were very tiny, the individual polyps being no larger than a pin's head. Reproduction takes place by automatic division of individuals, or by "budding," the buds remaining attached to the parent whence they sprang and adding to the mass, or by eggs. The soft-bodied larvae resulting from the eggs move actively about by means of rowing-threads for some time before settling down for good. When the day arrives on which it feels a roving existence no longer appeals, the youngster chooses an anchorage and lays the foundation-stone of its chosen home; a basal plate by which it voluntarily anchors itself for life. Its next procedure is to build an external skeleton. An outer wall is built up, thin partitions are made, and usually a pillar from the centre of the foundation-stone grows up to the central food-cavity as an internal support; its material for this somewhat extensive job being carbonate of lime taken from the sea-water!

Coral "Flowers."
Though certain species cling to a solitary mode of life, others are out-and-out communalists, combining to form more or less extensive colonies. These communities take well-ordered forms. The well-known "brain coral," so-called from the resemblance of its ridged surface to the convolutions of the brain, forms large areas of skeletons massed and welded together, the shape of the mass and even the details of the skeletons varying considerably in different situations and under different conditions of growth, many influences dictating the exact shape it shall take. The branched "stag's horn" and flattened "mushroom" corals adopt the shapes indicated by their titles, though neither rival in beauty or form or colouring the purple-rose "organ-pipe" of the Indian Ocean; a striking object when seen with its bright green living polyps with tentacles expanded flower-like in readiness to convert into a meal any tiny organism venturing within reach. This deceptive appearance, as of elegant petalled flowers blossoming on the soft "bark" of the coral stems, led eighteenth century observers to declare the "flowers," that Pliny and Dioscorides were undoubtedly correct in proclaiming the coral to be a subterranean shrub which, when dragged from its sea-bed and exposed to the air, suddenly became petrified!

Unstable Foundations.
The greatest depth at which the reef-building corals can work is between twenty and thirty fathoms. Confined to water, the temperature of which in the coldest weather does not fall below 68 degrees F., coral-reefs are abundant in the Pacific and Indian Oceans and near the West Indies, and are most plentiful where volcanic upheavals are not looked upon as extraordinary. The foundation of the living coral, which extends in many reefs far below the above-mentioned depth, is no longer living, the once elevated portion of the seabed, the peaks upon which the now dead foundations rest, having subsided, the upper surface of the water is almost reached, the coral polyps build outwards, thus increasing the breadth of the reef.
Enduring Monuments.
The Great Barrier Reef of Australia varies in width from ten to ninety miles, and is 1,250 miles long—a monumental result of the labours of myriads of tiny animals. Atolls, or coral-rings enclosing a lagoon (with no central island), have been responsible for a deal of animated discussion; the generally accepted theory now being that the existing ring began usual ground and near to an island which has subsequently sunk and passed from knowledge, the coral keeping pace in upward growth—varying with circumstances from roughly one to three inches per year—with the sinking foundation. Barbados is built up almost entirely of coral, lumps of it taking the place of stones in the naturally shallow soil of the island, and the now high and dry Dolomites of Austria are largely old coral reefs.

A Lucrative Business.
In consideration of its slow growth the coral reefs are "fished" once only in ten years, the fishing boats engaged in this extremely lucrative-business varying in size from three to fourteen tons. The most valuable fisheries are among the coral reefs of Tunisia, Algeria, and Morocco, the raw material going chiefly to Italy. The red coral of the Mediterranean and the Red Sea is exported in large quantities to India for the manufacture of ornaments and articles of personal adornment. The black coral of the Persian Gulf and Great Barrier Reef is still more highly prized, but the most valuable of all is the rose-pink coral, which even in pre-war days fetched anything from £30 to £120 per ounce!—John of London's Weekly.

Armenia's Agony.
Lord Bryce and the Atrocities of the Young Turks.
Lurid revelations of the massacre of Armenians in 1915 were made by Lord Bryce at a luncheon given at Pagan's restaurant by Lord Gladstone and the Armenian bureau. The massacre, said Lord Bryce, formed an unsurpassed chapter of horror in the blood-stained annals of the East. The statements made in the Blue Book had been confirmed by German missionaries, and it was to be hoped that the Germans would now know the atrocious conduct of their Government, which had allowed a Christian people to be almost exterminated. The Armenians had hoped that the people of the United States would receive a mandate for the country, but a decision had been postponed. "I cannot conceive," added Lord Bryce, "that the rule of the Turks will be restored. That would be an atrocious crime. The Young Turks, who rose in the name of liberty, have surpassed the crimes of Abdul Hamid in Armenia. I plead that the Turks shall not be allowed to rule over Christian populations." The film called "Auction of Souls," founded on the book "Ravished Armenia," and on Lord Bryce's official report on the Turkish atrocities, was afterwards shown at the Queen's Hall, and will shortly be presented to the general public. The chief part is played by a young Armenian girl, Aurora Mardiagian, who managed to escape from the Turks, and the drama presented is at once entralling and terrible.—Ex.

War Words We've Won.
The word "dragon" in French was not taken from the fact that soldiers bearing a dragon on their shields took their name from it. As a matter of fact the French dragons never wore a shield. The word came from dragonne, an ornament ending in a tassel or knot worn on the sword-hilt in full dress.
The first soldiers to wear this ornament were called "dragons"; they appear in history for the first time under Francois I., of France as Dragons du Roi. This ornament dragonne is still worn in France in the army and navy in full dress.
With reference to the word "cuirassier," it has no reference whatever to the word cuir (copper), but to cuir (leather) and cuir (armour). In French "cuirasse" literally means any kind of metal armour. We read of "cuirassiers" of Henry IV. of Navarre wearing steel breast and back plates—cuirasses de cuir (leathern armour) of the ancients. During the eighteenth century "cuirasse" meant breast and back plates which, under Louis XIII., XIV., and XV., were of steel, and worn by Gendarmes du Roi.
Even now we have in the French Navy garde-cotes cuirasses (armoured coast-guard ships) and Croiseurs Cuirasses (armoured cruisers).

Alcohol as a By-Product of Bread.

Through the seizure of a still in a bakery in Mexico, where a quantity of alcohol was discovered that had been distilled from bake-oven fumes, considerable discussion has taken place concerning the feasibility of manufacturing alcohol as a by-product of bread.

This "still" was a crudely constructed affair the vapour from the bread being conducted from the oven into a "worm," which was cooled by passing through a barrel of water, condensing the vapour. The baker was not arrested, as it was clearly shown that no evasion of the law was intended. However, possession of a "still" is in violation of the law, and this one was seized by the United States Internal Revenue Service.

The baker stated that quantities of alcohol could be manufactured for war use at a very small cost by army bakeshops and bakers in large cities. The practicability of the plan remains to be worked out.

A Novel Transcription.

Jones was a commercial traveller, and he had been after a large order from an important firm in the North. Great, therefore, was his exaltation when, one morning, he beheld a letter from the firm in question lying on his desk. And better still, it was written in the hand of the senior partner! Unfortunately the partner was notorious for the illegibility of his handwriting, and the wretched Jones discovered that he was unable to make anything out of the letter at all.

He was getting desperate, when he remembered that chemists are usually able to read even the worst writing. Without loss of time he repaired to the nearest, and entered.

"I should be very grateful if you would read this for me," he said to the chemist, handing him the letter.

"With pleasure!" said the man of the quills, and retired to the back of the shop with the letter. He returned in a short time carrying a very small parcel wrapped in white paper.

"Here's your medicine, sir!" he said. "That will be one and sixpence. Take it just before going to bed!"

How Did Cookie Know?

Lord Boots, who was famous for his long and flowing beard, was disturbed one evening, when he thought all the servants were in bed, by shouts of laughter and much cheering. Summoning his valet, he demanded angrily what all the noise was about.

"We were only having a little game among ourselves, my lord," the man answered, looking rather worried. "What was the game?" demanded the noble gentleman.

"I should prefer not to say, my lord!"

"Kindly answer my question, Wilson! I desire to know what could have caused so much coarse laughter."

"Well, my lord, if you insist, I have no choice. We had blindfolded the cook, and were taking it in turns to kiss her, and she had to guess who it was each time. The under-housemaid held up the mop to her face and—this is what we were laughing at, my lord—cook called out, 'Oh, your lordship, how dare you?'"

M. P. Prison-Breakers.

GAG AND ESCAPE BY LADDERS.

Six Sinn Fein prisoners, two of them members of Parliament, made a daring escape from Strangeways Prison, Manchester, at 5.30 p.m. on Saturday. By means of a rope ladder weighted with a stone and thrown over the prison walls they scaled a 35ft. wall and descended on the other side down a telescopic wooden ladder. Accomplished were waiting outside and assisted them to get away.

The prisoners had previously bound, gagged and handcuffed a warden named Lilley in charge of them and thrown him into a cell. The warden is not, however, injured. The fugitives are:

Pierce Beasley, age 36, M.P. for East Kerry and Sinn Fein Journalist; was sentenced to penal servitude for his part in the Easter rebellion of 1916 but released; rearrested on May 21 last for seditious speech; was returned unopposed for East Kerry in December 1918.

Austin Stace, 38, M.P. for West Kerry, being returned unopposed last year; was imprisoned in Belfast Gaol last year for his Sinn Fein activities.

John Dolan, 30; Cornelius Connolly, 33; Daniel P. Walsh, 37; Patrick McCarthy, 22.

The men were all dressed in civilian clothes. Shortly after five o'clock on Saturday they were being taken for exercise in the prison yard in charge of a warden. Suddenly one of them sprang upon him and knocked him down. The other five helped to bind, gag, and handcuff him with handcuffs, not of police pattern, and place him in a cell. The six men then hurried across the exercise yard to the wall abutting on Sherbourne-street, over which a rope ladder with a stone attached had been flung. Up this ladder they hurriedly clambered.

Meanwhile an Irishman prevented people from passing up Sherbourne-street. Other men placed a wooden telescope ladder against the wall where it's 35ft. high. Others patrolled a brickwork opposite. The prisoners clambered down the ladder and ran off in various directions, several of them across the cricketfield. No arrests had been made up to late last night.

Major FitzClarence, governor of the prison, told a representative of The Daily Mail recently that the warden Lilley was shaken but not hurt. "I cannot tell you if the escaped men had any visitors yesterday afternoon. We have the ladder. I cannot say anything as to the measure of liberty the men were allowed. They had previously been well behaved and had been in the prison some time."

Woman Gives Alarm.
A woman who lives in Sherbourne-street and who saw the men escape said that on Saturday the street was almost deserted. "When I walked up the street a man insisted on my return. I told him I was a warden's wife, but he replied very quietly and firmly, 'You cannot go along here.' All this happened within two or three minutes. Many wardens live in the street, but most of them were at tea. My little girl and I ran from house to house and gave the alarm. The wardens were in the street in a few seconds, but the prison-breakers had disappeared."

The warden, John Henry Lilley, has been in the prison service for 20 years.—Daily Mail, Oct. 27.

In a Nutshell.

Like the sun, the modern gas fire warms solid objects—such as the furniture of a room or its occupants—without appreciably raising the temperature of the intervening air. At the same time the products of combustion in their passage up the chimney flue keep the atmosphere in healthy motion.

That is gas fire science and gas fire hygiene in a nutshell.

When We Were Black.

Were we all black once? According to scientists, there is no doubt about it.

All white men, they declare, are descended from black ancestors, the skin of mankind being originally black.

The explanation is to be found in the fact that there are certain glands in our bodies which have regulated our growth and shape. According to Professor Keith, the great authority on the history of man, all men are descended from a common stock. White men, black men, red men, brown men, and yellow men arise from the one tree of life, and we have divided into three groups, white, Negro, and Mongolian.

Ages ago the glands began slowly to change their method of working, and so gradually to evolve three distinct races of mankind. Each type became slowly fixed, and there came into existence the three types, white, Negro, and Mongolian. Injury to a gland brings about in man effects which we find in other races.

For instance, gland failure may make us as dark as a Negro or as tall as a Chinaman. It may make us a dwarf or a giant. In a word, these glands, of which there are enough in the human system to fill a watch-pocket, regulate our growth and shape, and, if they become diseased, may cause a reversion to the primitive type.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, Nov. 1.
HOTELS FULL.

London is suffering from another spell of war crowding. It is almost impossible to find hotel accommodation in any of the big West End hotels. On October 21st twelve hotels refused accommodation until the middle of November, and one said that the bureau had been forced to "turn down" over 1,000 applications during the past week. The hotel proprietors say that it is the Motor Show. This is hard to believe. More likely it is the moving population that the war has produced and the anxiety of all who can afford to evade the difficulties of modern housekeeping.

LONDON'S NEW RESTAURANTS.

At the same time the difficulties of home catering, and the elusiveness of the efficient servant, are being reflected in London's tea shops. The habit of dining out has been nourished on domestic adversity, and to the same exigencies is traceable a heroic and cheerful endurance of the discomforts of the practice. Popular habit has outstripped catering enterprise, with the result that there are not enough establishments to accommodate the tea seekers. Apart from restricted space, organisation is not all it might be, London being in this respect far behind some provincial cities. Overcrowding and frenzied scrambles result, and it is therefore with relief that Londoners hear of some dozen schemes for super-restaurants which will open a house in the Strand to seat 3,000, and another in Leicester Square. Lyons and Company are, however, more ambitious, and are negotiating for the linking up the Corner House in Coventry Street with the Trocadero, and forming one great restaurant which will cater for 7,000 at a sitting.

WOMEN POLICE.

Women police have hitherto constituted one of our silent moral and physical forces, and what little was known of their activities was wrongly interpreted by reason of the ridicule of the scoffers. It is now being recognised, however, that their duties are multifarious, important, and well performed, and encouraged by the favor with which the women in blue are now being rewarded their officials are desiring their inclusion in the jurisdiction of the constituted police authority. During the war there were two or three voluntary organisations which did excellent service, but now that more or less normal conditions prevail a system of co-

...firing a projectile of 250 pounds. She was not a success at first, but I should not wonder if, as a result of her trials at Malta, most, if not all, of the obstacles to her effective use have been overcome.

THE INDIAN COMMAND.

General Birdwood appears likely to be given the appointment of Commander-in-Chief in India. It has been the tradition to give the post alternately to an officer of the Indian Army and an officer from one of the British commands. As the last two Commanders-in-Chief in India have belonged to the home establishment it now becomes the turn of the Indian Army. General Birdwood, is, of course, an old Indian Army officer. He held a commission in the native cavalry for some years. General Monash, who is General Birdwood's second in command, may succeed his chief in command of the Australian forces. General Monash has always been a great master of detail, and it is seldom that a paper is laid before him containing points with which he is not conversant. When such a thing does happen General Monash goes into the new question very thoroughly before he signs the document.

EMBARGO ON THE FLAPPER.

Many of the women and girls whose services in the Government offices in Whitehall have been dispensed with are finding great difficulty in securing employment in private offices. It appears a period of service in a Government department is proving to be a serious handicap in the competition for clerical posts in the City and elsewhere. However ill founded, the popular idea that the so-called Government flappers spent most of their day brewing and drinking tea dies hard; and there is a deep seated reluctance on the part of employers to recruit them to their staffs. An official at an important Labor Exchange tells me that there was a large number of firms who absolutely refuse to consider women who have been trained or have served in a Government department for any vacancies they may have, and notwithstanding whatever recommendations or qualifications the applicant may possess. The business man's hostile attitude is likewise manifesting itself in advertisements for women employees, and in not a few cases Government servants have been warned that they "need not apply." The embargo is one which is naturally resented by the women, many of whom claim to have performed valuable service in the national emergency.

A FAIR FOOTBALLER FROM FRANCE.

I met at tea recently a very dainty Parisienne, probably not yet out of her teens. She told me she had come here primarily to study our language, but also to follow our women's sports. I also elicited that she was an ardent practitioner of "Soccer," even violent, according to her own account. She is a member of the first and largest of French women's sports clubs, "Femina-Sport," where, in addition to gymnastics proper and classical dancing, not to mention all athletic sports, Association Football had been in vogue since the winter of 1917-18, and was now "the thing" in over some half-dozen younger French girls' clubs. The constitution of these clubs, however, would appear to be very much more democratic than that of our own. The entrance fee was only two francs and the subscription one franc per annum. The coaches and other "pros," were unpaid, and the patrons few but generous. In consequence the football team to which she belonged included two girls of means side by side with school teachers, typists, shop girls, factory girls, and one actress.

BIG DEMAND FOR JEWELS.

Some of the Russian Crown Jewels, worth, it is said about £200,000, are to be auctioned in London. They have been sent from Paris chiefly because the demand for costly jewels here is stronger than ever before. Very large sums of money are being invested in jewellery as a precaution against any predatory raid upon capital. Diamonds are the most popular of the precious stones but the supply available is very far below the demand.

No Pacifism for Him.

"Fellow citizens," thundered the impassioned pacifist, bringing his fist down hard on the table, "why, I ask again, should we reject the Germans' kindly offer of peace? And the echo answers, 'Why?'" "Pardon me, sir," interposed a mild-looking man in the audience, rising to his feet; "did I understand your question correctly?" "Yes, sir." "And you say the echo answers 'Why?'" "That is what I said, sir." "Then there's something wrong with the acoustics of this building," said the mild man, shaking his head in a perplexed way, and sitting down again; "for I didn't hear any echo."

"It was the Best Investment I Ever Made," Gilbert Says

Tanlac Restored Dartmouth Man to Health Two Years Ago—Still Feels Fine.

"Yes, sir, I can recommend Tanlac for it set me right two years ago, while I was living in Hamilton, Ontario, and I have been in good shape ever since," said Jeffrey Gilbert while an King's drug store in Halifax, recently. Mr. Gilbert resides at 25 Ochterloney Street, Dartmouth, and is employed as boiler maker at the Halifax shipyard. "Never in all my life," he continued, "have I had a medicine to do me so much good as Tanlac. My stomach had been giving me trouble for some time. It just seemed like I could not eat anything but what would give me indigestion of the worst kind. I would bloat all up with sour gas and feel miserable for hours after every meal. There was a feeling like a lump of lead in the pit of my stomach. I would almost double up with cramping pains and could hardly draw a deep breath. My appetite was so poor that I never relished anything to eat and I just suffered constantly with that indigestion. I was continually losing weight, felt weak and sluggish all the time and had no energy. "I had tried all kinds of medicines, but kept getting worse, and after Tanlac came to Hamilton and so many people there got to praising it, I bought a bottle and I declare that was the best investment I ever made in my life. Before I had finished the first bottle I felt a considerable improvement. Then I bought another, and another, and when I had finished my fourth bottle my stomach was in fine condition and I have not been troubled with indigestion since that time. The gas and pain all disappeared and I am still eating just anything I want without the least trouble from it. It was not only my own experience with Tanlac that convinced me it is wonderful medicine, but I personally know many others who took it with just as fine results as I did. It was going like wildfire in Hamilton while I was there, and from what I hear it is selling just as well here in Halifax. You can't beat it and if I should get to where I need medicine again I wouldn't think of taking anything else."

Norwegian Shipping.

The activity of Norwegian shipping firms in replacing losses sustained during the war is causing widespread interest on both sides of the Atlantic. A broad scheme of construction is being carried out, but as it is realized that this will not make up for the tonnage destroyed 'up to the end of 1918, high prices are being paid for bottoms owned in Great Britain, Germany and America. And most of the craft acquired are steamers.

During the war Norway lost 629 steamships aggregating 1,031,360 gross registered tons; 178 sailing vessels aggregating 194,777 gross tons; seventeen motor boats aggregating 10,591 gross registered tons, and several barges. Nearly 1,200 lives were lost, and, calculated on a percentage basis, twenty-four per cent. of the vessels and forty-eight per cent. of the tonnage owned by Norway at the outbreak of the war were destroyed. There has been a substantial upward swing in the amount of tonnage owned in Norway since the beginning of 1919 but, even so, the number of ships is only 75.1 per cent. of the number under the Norwegian flag on August 1, 1914, while the tonnage still lacks almost twenty-seven per cent. of being up to the pre-war figure. It has been estimated by men prominent in shipping circles that contracts for approximately 600,000 tons of new vessels have been placed; but even with the addition of this new tonnage the pre-war figures will not be reached without the purchase of a large number of ships in other countries.

Norwegians are keen shipping men, and early in the war they made huge fortunes as a result of the high freight rates. They repaired and placed in commission for ocean service old vessels which had long before been converted into coal barges, sent them to all parts of the globe and reaped a rich harvest. This prosperity has led to the great activity now displayed in Norway's shipping circles—St. John (N.B.) Telegraph.

Jimmy Wilde to Fight Lynch.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN BOXERS WILL CLASH AT OPENING SHOW OF INTERNATIONAL CLUB.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Jimmy Wilde, heralded as the greatest human fighting machine developed in England since the days of Jim Briscoe, arrived in this country today for a tour which he hopes will end with him in possession of the world's bantamweight championship. The sensational "little British flyweight, looking and acting in perfect harmony with all the laudable criticism heaped upon him through his wonderful boxing ability, has come to America for the purpose of demonstrating his ability before American followers of the ring sport against American boxers in American rings. While here Wilde will include pleasure with business, for he plans a tour of the country, particularly the western section which will begin in about a week and continue until January. His American representative, George Dwyer, related to-day, however that Wilde will arrange for matches under reasonable conditions as frequently as the promoters here submit attractive inducements.

The little Briton is already matched for one of his most important American bouts which will be held at the opening show of the proposed International Sporting Club, Feb. 3, according to present plans. The selection of an opponent has not yet been definitely decided, but it is understood Joe Lynch, the West Side bantamweight, who gave Wilde a stiff argument in England, is the most likely choice for the assignments. Under the terms for this match Wilde has agreed not to appear in a boxing match conducted east of Chicago prior to February 3.

Negotiations are already well advanced, it was announced by Dwyer for a series of three matches which will be concluded in the west. The first bout is scheduled for Milwaukee, where Wilde will box ten rounds without a decision either on Thanksgiving Day or December 1. His opponent will be either Benny Vogel, or Young Marino, both of Milwaukee.

The other two bouts will be held in St. Paul and California, the tentative dates being December 15 and New Year's Day. Wilde was accompanied on the trip from England by his wife, also by David D. Hughes, who will act in the capacity of manager in the absence of Ted Lewis, Wilde's real manager, and Benny Williams, trainer and rubber, who has been part of the Wilde camp since the little fellow attained pugilistic heights. The party is stopping at the Hotel Imperial, where they were guests at a luncheon given to-day by Dwyer. Wilde, as enthusiastic as a schoolboy, plans a sight-seeing tour of this city, which while of necessity will be hurried, will nevertheless take him to the various places of interest in the metropolis.

Small in Stature.
Wilde is 5 feet 2 inches in height and can make 100 pounds for his boxing matches. Just now he weighs between 102 and 103 pounds. He is 27 years old, and has been fighting since he was 18. He followed the occupation of pit boy in the English coal mines near Wales, from the time he was 12 years old until he had passed his twenty-second birthday. He was married before he entered the ring, and is now the father of two bouncing boys, one, David James, eight and a half years old, and the other, Verdun, born at the time of the third battle of Verdun, three and a half years old. Both were left in England. Wilde was born in Pontypridd, Wales, about five miles from the place where Freddie Welsh, former lightweight champion, first saw the light of day.

"Zulu Kid," my first American opponent, was easy for me," said Wilde, "I outclassed him. I guess that's all. I weighed 97 1/2 pounds for that bout, while Zulu Kid weighed well over 110. In my match with Pal Moore I weighed 102 1/2 pounds, while Moore weighed 116. I was never in doubt of the result except for a short time after the sixteenth round. In this round Moore accidentally bumped me with his head on the nose, and I bled continually until the nineteenth round, when I managed to stop the flow.

"Lynch," continued the little Briton, "gave me my toughest bout. I was confident I could beat him early in the bout, but along about the eleventh round I felt myself growing tired, and I became apprehensive. Fortunately for me, Lynch's style was not effective. He had a peculiar way of extending his left arm out straight, invariably catching me under the armpits. Most of his work he did at close range, and I received the decision. You must remember though that Lynch weighed 128 1/2 pounds at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. We did not enter the ring until 9.45 at night, so you can appreciate his weight advantage over me."

Flower pot stains may be removed from the window sill with wood ashes.

THE WORLD MOVES.

Nowadays we see the tractor doing duty, like a charm; it's the most important factor in the business of the farm. Oh, we see the farmer sitting on a spring seat painted green, and a wondrous gait he's hitting, as he toots his weird machine. Horses look to him like fakers, and for miles he'd give no man; for he plows a dozen acres where a team would fall at one. As I view the mighty tractor olden times return to me, when I was a tragic actor in the scenes of husbandry. One old mule was my allotment, one old mule of brindled gray, and she knew just what a swat meant, for I larrupped her all day. All the weary day I whacked her, soaked her ribs, and then again, and I longed to have a tractor, which was not invented then. With a club her ribs I polished, hoping thus some speed to gain; but all schedules were abolished by that mule, and clouds were vain. All my better years were squandered in this slow and futile way; up and down the field I wandered, slow as goose grease, through the day. And the mule—at last I sacked her, and took up a fountain pen, sore because the useful tractor had not been invented then.

Terrible Weeping Eczema

For the year 1909, I suffered with weeping eczema on my hands which caused me very much pain and worry for I could not use my hands for but very few things. I tried many remedies but they all failed to give me any relief and I was obliged to give up my work and came south at the same time continuing to use any preparation recommended to me, but my hands continued to get worse until I was told to try D.D.D. Prescription, also soap, which I at once did and the first two or three applications gave me the greatest relief and when I had used but half a dollar bottle my hands were healed. I am indeed very thankful for your splendid prescription and may its fame spread world wide, is the wish of, MRS. E. HAYES, 22 Sunset St., Hamilton, Ont.

Ask your druggist and he will tell you what D.D.D. Prescription has accomplished in your own neighborhood. You may buy unless the first bottle relieves you.

The chief native industry of Jerusalem is the manufacture of soap and what is called "Jerusalem ware," consisting of chaplets, crucifixes, beads, crosses, and the like, made principally of mother-of-pearl and olive-wood.

Many church steeples in this country are covered with copper, one being that of St. Sidwell, in Exeter. The spire, which is covered with sheet copper, was added eighty years ago, the metal being taken from an old man-of-war broken up at Devonport.

In the neighbourhood of the Bermudas the sea is extremely transparent, so that fishermen can readily see horns of lobsters protruding from their hiding places in the rocks at considerable depths. Picking up a jar of chemicals of hideous odour, he stuck one finger into it, and then into his mouth.

"Taste it, gentlemen!" he commended, as he passed the vessel from student to student.

After each one had licked his finger, and had felt rebellion through his whole soul, the old professor replaced the jar, rubbed his hands gleeftly together, and:

"I told you so," he exclaimed, triumphantly. "Ye dinna use your faculties. If ye had observed, ye would ha' seen that the finger I stuck into the jar," he chuckled, "wasna the finger I stuck into my mouth!"
