Hints to Home Decorators.

The decorating of the home is a fine art, the best results can only be obtained by careful study of surroundings the following hints may be helpful:
If your room faces North use a Warm Coloured Paper such as Brown, Yellow, or Red.
For rooms which get a good deal of sunshine, paper of cooler shades such as Greys and Blues may be used.
Care should be taken to Harmonize Your Wall Papers with the Paints. Fawns and Tans usually blend nicely with natural wood finish or grained doors and wood-work.
Remember Green is Nature's Colour for a Decorative Background, and Green Papers of the softer shades usually contrast well with rugs, curtains, and pictures particularly if the latter have gilt frames.
Small Rooms may be made to look larger by the use of Striped Papers.
On low ceilings only use a narrow bordering, or perhaps better again a drop ceiling of white paper which joins up almost unnoticeably with the white ceiling, and so gives the room the appearance of more height than it really has.
It is important to buy your Papers at TEMPLETON'S who keep a Splendid Selection of the Newest Patterns at Prices which defy Competition.

STEWART'S Home Made Bread,

THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES.
Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home—and only there. His taste in a wife is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the poise or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he has managed to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.
The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

CHAPTER XXXIII.
 TRUE LOVE NEVER RUNS SMOOTH

"What can a fellow do?" Hal says, with an aggrieved air. "If, instead of flying into a passion, as you expect him, a man snivels and grins like a figure on a twist-b-cake, and is more polite than usual—I say, what can you do?"

And Hal stops short before Jeanne, and extends his strong arm in despair.

It is the morning after the count's discovery of the princess and Hal in the conservatory, and Hal has sought Jeanne in her own boudoir to tell her what happened, having had no opportunity of doing so the preceding evening.

To say that Jeanne is astounded at Hal's audacity, is to say, faintly describing her sensations during the recital of the interview.

"But how did you find courage to make love to her?" she says. "How could you say such things?—and wasn't she frightened? I never meant you to go so far."

"What did you mean by throwing us together, then?" says Hal, impatiently. "Did you think that it was going to talk about the weather, and such stupidity as that? Besides—well, I'll own I didn't mean to say all I did; but who could help it, loving her as I do, and seeing her so beautiful and helpless? And in the midst of it, while I had her in my arms, that old skin of parchment came in! I thought there would have been a fight. I was longing to chuck him through the conservatory windows if he said two words, but he didn't; and he simply snarled more vilely than ever, and carried her off."

"But," says Jeanne, "he must take some notice—he cannot let it pass like that. If the princess had treated you coldly, as you deserve—but in your arms! Oh, Hal!"

And Jeanne's face becomes a fiery red, then turns pale.

"Yes," he murmurs, half to himself, "I had her in my arms once, if for the first time. Let him say so, or do as he likes. Jeanne," he exclaims, as a sudden idea strikes him. "They fight duels here, and perhaps"—and an eager look comes into his eyes—"perhaps he will send me a challenge!"

"Hal!" cries Jeanne, springing to her feet. "don't be so absurd! Oh, Hal, promise me—promise me you low, whom Vane engaged at Newton Regis, has a, perhaps natural regard for Hal "my lady, the matchless brother," and is never tired of recounting Hal's feats of strength and deeds of daring. George will leave his work to follow Master Hal about from stall to stall, lingering in his footsteps, and listening with rapt attention to words that fall from his young master's lips. For Jeanne or Hal, George would willingly risk his life.

Now no one will be surprised to hear George had noticed the change which had come over his idol. There is not a more observant class than servants. There is not a thing, my dear sir and madam, that goes on in your house, not a tiff or a calamity of any kind, however secret you may think you keep it, but the servants know it. And sometimes little as you respect it, they sympathize with you. George has noticed the grave and disturbed look about Hal's usually careless and light-hearted face, has noticed that the fishing-rod, the gun, and even the horses are neglected, and Hal is moody and absorbed, and George at once jumps to the proper conclusion, that his young master is in love.

"And what on earth he's got to be down in the mouth about," says George to himself, "seeing that there ain't a young lady in the land as wouldn't be glad to jump into his arms the moment he asked her, I can't tell. Who is it, I wonder? Any of the ladies about the house? No, he'll walk a mile to get out of their way!"

George hadn't to puzzle long; he happened to see Hal walking with the princess in the shrubbery, and the problem was solved.

"Whew!" whistled George; "a princess? Well, and why not? There ain't a princess, going too good for him, and if she don't take to him she's an idiot!"

But George, being a quick fellow, soon saw that the princess was anything but an idiot; soon, also, saw that the count was the stumbling block in the way, and would at once, if Hal had given the slightest hint, have ducked the count in the most with the greatest pleasure.

"I wouldn't give much for that old man's chance, if there's fair play," he thought; "and if there ain't fair play, well, then Mr. Hal ought to take him at his own game."

As Hal comes into the yard with his hands in his pockets, and his old light gait displaced by a listless air, George looks up, and, touching his hat, gives him good-morning.

"Good-morning, George," says Hal, moodily.

"What is it this morning, sir? The pair o' bays or the chestnuts?"

Hal sinks down on an upturned barrow, and stares moodily about him.

"I don't know that I'm going out, George."

"Fine morning for a ride, sir, and the chestnut is eating his head off."

Hal shook his head.

"Don't care about it, George; take him yourself."

George sighs, and looks wistfully; then he says, carelessly:

"That's a fine animal of the Princess Verona's, sir—that Florida."

Hal starts.

"Yes," he says, staring at George, "and the young lady rides well, on as fine a seat as I've seen since I left England."

"Very fond o' horses is the princess, sir."

"How the—how do you know?" asks Hal.

George smiles and touches his cap.

MOTHER!

"California Syrup of Figs"
 Child's Best Laxative

Accept "California" Syrup of Figs only—look for the name California on the package, then you are sure your child is having the best, and most harmless physic for the little stomach, liver and bowels. Children love its fruity taste. Full directions on each bottle. You must say "California."

"Oh, I know her man, sir, and he speaks English a little, and we get into a confab. Lor' bless you, sir. I spends most of my leisure time up at the villa."

"You do?" says Hal, with interest. George nods slowly.

"Yes, sir, and sees a great deal of the princess. Often in the stable, and the garden alongside. A sweet young lady, sir, begging your pardon for being so free. There ain't one on 'em as don't give her a good name in the servant's hall, sir. But they ain't so fond of the count, Mr. Hal, for all his pleasing ways; seems that his smiles ain't more than skin deep. He's older than he looks, too, Mr. Hal—"

"What the dev—confound your impudence!" exclaims Hal. "What do you mean by talking about your betters?"

George touches his cap, knowing that his young master's anger is, like the count's smile, only skin deep.

"Beg your pardon, sir. Didn't mean to be disrespectful; but can't help having eyes, and ears, too. Beg pardon, sir—"

"Confound you," Hal says; "you want to say something else, and now you'll say it whether I let you or no, out with it!"

George smiles, edges a little nearer to Hal, and takes a side glance as he polishes the harness.

"It's only talk, sir, no doubt; but they say they don't hear the princess laugh so much since the count came, and that she's altogether changed and quiet like—"

Hal jumps up and paces to and fro.

"What do you mean by all this?" he says, at last, confronting George, and collaring him. "What do you mean, sir?" and he shakes him.

George smiles up at him with a grave look of affection and devotion on his face.

"Shake away, Master Hal," he says, "I'm a dog as you can't shake off. I can fetch and carry, too, Master Hal, and I don't care a d— for all the counts in Germany!"

Hal's hand drops from the man's collar.

"Who told you?" he begins; but George interrupts him with a gesture.

"Master Hal, weren't we brought up in the same village, ain't I been with you with rool and with gun, with boat and dog, year after year, and did I ever forget my place? I don't forget it now, Master Hal; but I don't want nobody to tell me when you're in trouble, and I won't hold my tongue when I think my legs, or my hands and eyes, or any part o' me can be of use to you. That's all, sir."

"George," says Hal, "you're—you're a good fellow. I am in trouble, but I don't see how you can help me," and he stares at him.

George comes closer.

"I can fetch and carry, sir," he says, "and the time will come when I can help you—and that'll be a happy time for me, Master Hal!" and he catches up the harness and walks off as Jeanne's voice is heard calling Hal.

Hal's face fades as he turns.

"I told you so!" he says; "they wouldn't let you in!"

"You are wrong," says Jeanne, but not very cheerfully; "they did let me in. The count was out, but I saw—"

"Not her—not Verona?"

Jeanne shakes her head.

"No, the companion. She was very sorry, but the princess was confined to her room with a bad headache. I could see, by the way the woman eyed me, that she knew of your doings last night, and that she was playing a part. What could I do? I left a message for the princess, and came away."

Hal walked up and down, muttering and biting his lips.

"By Heaven!" he exclaimed, "I believe they'll make a prisoner of her!"

Jeanne started, but could not admit the possibility of the conjecture.

"That man and woman are capable of anything!" said poor Hal. "Now, you will see; we have seen the last of her, if they can manage it."

"What can we do?" mused Jeanne, anxiously. "She is under the protection of her father, and her future husband, and you, my poor boy, have no right or claim to interfere—"

(To be continued.)

LECTURES ON RELIGIOUS FOOL.

Last evening's meeting of the Llewellyn Club at the Canon Wood Hall, was very largely attended.

The subject of the reverend lecturer's address was "The Religious Fool" and it was one of the most brilliant addresses that Dr. Jones has ever delivered before the Club.

At the conclusion of his address Dr. Jones was accorded a very hearty vote of thanks.

At the next meeting Mr. Colley will give a lantern lecture on "The Pilgrim's Progress" and on March 21 a big concert will be held.

The Consequences of A Coaker Policy.

Serious as is the position created to-day in the marketing of our fish abroad, through the crazy policy pursued by Messrs. Coaker and Company in regard to the fish regulations, and disastrous as is the effect on the country generally, the direct consequences apply more at the moment to the fish exporters, and the commercial community generally, than to the great mass of the people, because most of these had sold their fish at good prices before the worst effects of Governmental blundering were realized, and the loss therefore has to fall upon the banks, the merchants, the planters and what might be called the business people. However that is only the immediate aspect and it overlooks the very serious consequences that will have to be faced by the fishermen all round the country within the next few months, when the question of obtaining supplies with which to prosecute the codfishery the coming summer will arise. Already this question is acute on the South West Coast, the seat of the winter codfishery, and the big spring industry on the banks. To-day the people of that section of the country are right up against a stone wall, which it is hopeless for them to attempt to surmount or get through. Several of the big supplying houses have already become insolvent, others are most seriously embarrassed, and the question of their surviving the crisis is still an open one. The smaller people are all involved in the meshes of this net of disaster, and their financial resources have been absorbed in meeting the losses sustained on the fish they shipped themselves, or had to pass over to bigger merchants, in part payment of their accounts, which merchants in turn meet heavy losses, and must meet still heavier losses in realizing on the fish in the foreign markets. Consequently the supplying merchants, planters, and others all along the South Coast, no matter how willing they might be to provide outfits for the fishermen to carry on the industry this year, are not in a position to do so,—firstly because they have not the money themselves; secondly, because the banks will not lend them money under existing conditions; and thirdly, because no sane man is going to go into fish trading this summer with the risk of the Squires-Coaker Party reviving the fish regulations policy in August or September, and subjecting all the business people to a repetition of the same sort of thing that occurred last fall and is occurring to-day, namely, impossible prices being asked of our customers in foreign countries, and a loss of our best markets, as a result of their refusal to pay the prices, and turning to other countries to get fish from them at lower rates, which is exactly what we would do under the same circumstances.

The condition therefore which is created in regard to the South Coast is that it is absolutely paralyzed, that few bankers are likely to go out, and that even the shore fishermen will be unable to get the wherewithal to prosecute their industry, which will mean the direct distress and destitution on that whole seaboard during the coming spring and summer, and will probably compel the people to emigrate from the country by wholesale. Many men from Harbor Main District have engaged in this South Coast fishery and know what such a collapse is going to mean. Capt. John Lewis, we believe, and other banking skipper have been working there, and a good many of the fishermen will clearly grasp where this is going to land that important section of the country. But what is true of the South Coast is going to be true of the rest of the country as well. The turn of the East and the North Coasts is now about to come. A large number of the people of Harbor Main District prosecute the Labrador fishery. For that fishery, we have reason for stating, there will be little supplies issued by Water Street this summer, because Water Street is hard hit by the Fish Regulations, and those firms which survive the present condition will have to observe the strictest economy, and will only be able to work on the most limited basis. Consequently the men of Harbor Main are going to find it well nigh impossible to get supplies to carry on the fishery. All the people of Conception Bay will have the same trouble. Most of the men who are talking loudest now in support of the Government candidates haven't a dollar to their names, or if they are any way well off, have nothing whatever invested in the fisheries, nor are they likely to invest any of their money in the fisheries as things are at present. At any rate, if the private views of these people, as expressed in St. John's, are to count for anything, that is the idea farthest from their minds. If, however, the people of Harbor Main have any idea that these people would be inclined to supply for the fishery, it would be a good scheme to ask men like Premier Squires, Dr. Campbell, and the rest of the spouters who are being brought into the district to persuade the people to support the Government candidates. If the Harbor Main people will ask these folks to put up money to help the men of Harbor Main to go to Labrador the coming summer, they will then see the real value of the interest which all these people profess to take in it and how, when it comes to the point, they have no intention of risking a dollar on the men they are asking to vote for them, although most of these dollars have been made out of the Government in the fifteen months that they have held office.

The "Star" Unmasked.

JONES AND LEWIS.

ITS POLITICAL Duplicity AND HYPOCRISY EXPOSED.

In its editorial columns on Feb. 24th, the modest editor of that equally modest paper, the Star, tried to make his readers believe that he had been living the life of a recluse, and had only just waked up to the fact that there was an election campaign on. Now, we wouldn't for a moment suggest that the editor of the Star should not lead the life of a hermit, for he certainly has enough sins to atone for, and by this latest bit of glaring hypocrisy on his part, and on the part of his political party, he has outdone all his previous efforts. He thought to make the people of St. John's believe the Star was not going to have anything to do with the H. Main election campaign, and hardly a line of city issue was devoted to it. Those who were acquainted with the Star of old, however, knew there was more in this than met the eye, and yesterday's Harbor Main Edition of the Daily Star showed them that they were right.

This special edition contained four pages of reading matter, a great deal more than half being given over to articles on the political situation in that gentlemanly and literary manner for which the Star has in the past been noted. Moreover, quite a number of the articles consisted merely of personal attacks on members of the Opposition Party. The Star has lately been preaching of the vileness of hypocrisy. Can we have a greater hypocrite than the Star itself? The Star preaches but it does not practice what it preaches.

It tries to hold itself up to the community as a model paper which does not dirty its fingers in the same of politics, but like the hyena or some equally obnoxious animal, it sneaks around with a smirk on its face waiting its chance to strike in the dark and in the back. Picture the Star which so often in the past has called for fair play, crawling on the ground, lurking in the dark like a viper, and shooting out its venomous fangs when it thinks there is no chance of the people of Newfoundland finding out its game. After this exposure the people of this Colony will know what value they can place on the Star's statements. We knew it was bad, but we never thought, not even for a moment, that it could be as black as it has now been discovered to be.

Supreme Court.

(By Mr. Justice Johnson.)
The King vs. Edward O'Neill, John Walsh, John McManus and Ann McManus.

The prisoners at the Bar were asked if they had anything to say before the sentence of the Court be passed upon them. The sentence of the Court is that Edward O'Neill and John Walsh be imprisoned in the Penitentiary for two years from the 6th day of January, 1921, with hard labor. The sentence of the Court is that John McManus and Ann McManus be imprisoned in the Penitentiary for eighteen months from the 6th day of January, 1921, with hard labor.

The Court adjourned until to-morrow.

Unpublished History.

To-morrow's installment of Unpublished History will deal with the complaints of one James Kelly, a private soldier in the Royal Newfoundland Regiment of Fusiliers Infantry. In all Kelly makes twenty-three complaints of various natures, involving officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of Regiments other than his own.

"Tipperary" Abandoned

Mr. H. A. Saunders, Superintendent Anglo-American Company, received the following message from operator Jackman, Trepasser, this morning:—

"Captain and crew left schooner Tipperary near the Drock, last evening, as vessel was in danger. This morning the schooner is off in the middle of the Bay in ice. She has a load of salt for Bonavista. The crew are still on shore and there is no chance of getting to the ship. Dense fog and low everywhere."

ers; the place of our fish is being taken by Norwegian, French and Iceland cod, and we run the risk of losing our markets in Europe entirely. The direct result of all this is that the merchant will be unable to issue supplies, nobody will go fishing who can get any employment otherwise, and the prices of codfish are likely to be lower this year than for any year in the memory of living men. This is what the Squires-Coaker Party has brought upon us, and this is one of the reasons why the people of Harbor Main should on Saturday week vote for the Opposition candidates.

The "Star" Unmasked.

JONES AND LEWIS.

ITS POLITICAL Duplicity AND HYPOCRISY EXPOSED.

In its editorial columns on Feb. 24th, the modest editor of that equally modest paper, the Star, tried to make his readers believe that he had been living the life of a recluse, and had only just waked up to the fact that there was an election campaign on. Now, we wouldn't for a moment suggest that the editor of the Star should not lead the life of a hermit, for he certainly has enough sins to atone for, and by this latest bit of glaring hypocrisy on his part, and on the part of his political party, he has outdone all his previous efforts. He thought to make the people of St. John's believe the Star was not going to have anything to do with the H. Main election campaign, and hardly a line of city issue was devoted to it. Those who were acquainted with the Star of old, however, knew there was more in this than met the eye, and yesterday's Harbor Main Edition of the Daily Star showed them that they were right.

This special edition contained four pages of reading matter, a great deal more than half being given over to articles on the political situation in that gentlemanly and literary manner for which the Star has in the past been noted. Moreover, quite a number of the articles consisted merely of personal attacks on members of the Opposition Party. The Star has lately been preaching of the vileness of hypocrisy. Can we have a greater hypocrite than the Star itself? The Star preaches but it does not practice what it preaches.

It tries to hold itself up to the community as a model paper which does not dirty its fingers in the same of politics, but like the hyena or some equally obnoxious animal, it sneaks around with a smirk on its face waiting its chance to strike in the dark and in the back. Picture the Star which so often in the past has called for fair play, crawling on the ground, lurking in the dark like a viper, and shooting out its venomous fangs when it thinks there is no chance of the people of Newfoundland finding out its game. After this exposure the people of this Colony will know what value they can place on the Star's statements. We knew it was bad, but we never thought, not even for a moment, that it could be as black as it has now been discovered to be.

Airships to Guide Seal-Hunters.

G. D. (Bude) writes: "You recorded the other day that aeroplanes were to be used to locate shoals of fish, but I see that airships are to be employed in the same way to guide the seal-hunters to the spots where the young seals have drifted on their ice-floes." Quite true, and that will make the fur fly!—Answers.

Owned by Ryan Bros.

The schooner Tipperary mentioned in a message in another column is owned by Ryan & Co., Bonavista. The Drock is near Portuguese Cove in Trepasser Bay. Arrangements have been made for the S.S. Kyle now on her way from Lunenburg to look out for the vessel.

Credit Association

WILL BE ORGANIZED HERE.

At a meeting of wholesalers and dealers, held yesterday afternoon in the Board of Trade Rooms, it was moved by Mr. Eric Bowring and seconded by Mr. W. S. Monroe that, "in the opinion of this meeting a Credit Association should be formed and a sub-committee appointed to consider the matter and report at a future date."

This motion was carried unanimously. The meeting, which was under the chairmanship of Mr. H. E. Cowan, President of the Board of Trade, was called as a result of the numerous failures which are now being reported almost daily. The idea of the Credit Association is to give the hands of all wind-ups into the hands of a body of merchants, rather than that they should go to the court. Mr. Glass of A. E. Hickman & Co., gave an interesting account of the operation of similar Associations abroad, after which the previously mentioned motion was made. The appointing of a sub-committee was left in the hands of the Council of the Board of Trade.

Sagona Arrives.

S. S. Sagona, Capt. Cross, arrived at 11:30 a.m. to-day after a run of 49 hours from Lunenburg, having met with heavy ice during the run. She brought about 90 bags of mail matter, a small freight and four passengers. Preparations will be immediately commenced for getting the ship in readiness for the sealfishery. Capt. Kneel will take command while the Sagona is at the icefields and the ship will carry a crew of about 130 men.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, March 4.
We have had a number of enquiries of late for Vapor Cresoline Lamps—rather the complete outfit for vaporizing Vapor Cresoline—which is largely prescribed in cases of Whooping Cough, so prevalent among the children at the present day. It is, as is well known, during the night that the paroxysms of coughing in this distressing complaint are most frequent and severe, and the burning of this liquid lamp, which vaporizes slowly the liquid Cresoline, which vapor certainly gives relief to the little sufferer during the sleeping hours. Price (complete outfit) $2.50. Extra bottles of Liquid—40c., 80c. and $2.40 each.

Acme Camp and Hartshorn Lintment is a really good thing. Price 15c. a bottle.

Hockey Notes.

Last night's game between the Elks and the City had to be postponed on account of bad ice. It will be played at the earliest opportunity.

There are still some optimists who believe that another cold spurt is about to come and that hockey is by no means over yet. Some hope!

If, however, a cold spurt does come along, a game will be played between St. Bon's and the Felicians. As the St. Bon's was the only team to beat the champions this season, the game would undoubtedly prove an interesting one.

Stolen Goods Returned.

A couple of weeks ago a big robbery was reported from a Gower St. store in which a large number of watches, and jewelry was stolen. The matter was in the hands of the police, but this morning the owner found all his goods, excepting a small number of signet rings, tied in a bundle and placed on his doorstep. Evidently the thief became alarmed, and thus made restitution.

A Monster Schooner.

An auxiliary schooner, latest ever built, is being designed by W. Starling Burgess for a member of the New York Yacht Club, whose name for the vessel is withheld. This steel vessel is 210 feet over all and 160 feet water-line. The three poles masts will spread 16,000 square feet of sail and the lower masts and booms are of steel. A steam engine of 750 horsepower will furnish auxiliary power for this vessel which is intended primarily for ocean cruising, with fuel capacity sufficient to carry her across an ocean without replenishing.—G. S. Hudson, in Sunday Herald.

RECOMMENDED TO MERCY.—The lad Thomas McCormack, who was convicted in the McManus trial, did not come up for sentence to-day. In his case the jury recommended mercy, he being but 18 years old. The matter is under consideration by the trial judges.

It would be unenviable to be known as the last one in Newfoundland of English descent to have joined The St. George's Society. It would look as if you were ashamed of that country which has built up the greatest empire the world has ever known.—mar.11

The Fever Hospital.

March 4, 1921.

Dear Sir,—On seeing the statement in the "Daily News" of the 3rd inst., re-neglect of patients at the Fever Hospital, I wrote Dr. Brehm, the Superintendent of that Institution, herewith enclosed copy of my letter and his reply thereto, which I would thank you to publish in the interest of the general public.

Yours truly,
W. B. JENNINGS,
Minister Public Works,
The Editor, Evening Telegram.

March 3, 1921.

Dear Sir,—I beg to call your attention to a statement in the "Daily News" of the 3rd inst., to the effect that the patients of the Fever Hospital had been without medical attendance for several days, due to Dr. Campbell's absence at Harbor Main. As neglect of patients in any institution is a serious charge, I would like to be informed whether the above charge is correct or otherwise.

Yours truly,
W. B. JENNINGS,
Minister Public Works,
Dr. Brehm, Fever Hospital.

Fantastic Finance.

STATE OWNED ENTERPRISES.

The public, as a rule, has a short memory, but few will fail to recollect the proposal, first put forward in a letter to the Government press signed "Super Six," and eventually adopted and enlarged upon by Mr. Coaker, for the establishment of a State Bank in Newfoundland. Even the manner and method of its capitalization was described in detail, but the conduct of the institution was not so completely furnished. All monies on deposit in the Canadian and Government Savings Banks were to be used as original funds, and various other means were suggested whereby it would be possible to start this State owned financial institution, the benefits of which to the fishermen were to be incalculable—on paper.

The State of North Dakota in the American Union at one time possessed a similar frenzy—or at least the Non-Partisan League did, and State owned enterprises for the benefit of the farmers, who correspond to the fishermen of Newfoundland, were inaugurated. Their fate is described in the following graphic article copied from the New York Times, and a similar end would surely overtake an institution in Newfoundland financed and conducted in like manner. A strong resemblance between the heads of the Non-Partisan League of North Dakota, and those who advocated the establishment of a State Bank in this Colony will be noted, both in methods and ideas.

The North Dakota Bubble.

"Fallen into hopeless smash is the new heaven of North Dakota. How hopeless may be judged from the fact that the weary masters of the Non-Partisan League are forced to surrender to the bankers, that abhorrent class, inconceivable in the perfect Socialist State; and not a downtrodden farmer rises against these oppressors. The perfect Socialist State banked on its own hook and in its final bankers, reactionaries who follow accepted banking methods, have had to be called in to save the amateurs, and they have imposed their own terms. Only thirty-two banks have had to shut their doors. The great mother Bank of North Dakota is only not legally insolvent because there is no legal method of making it so.

OPPOSITION CAPTURES LONG FORD—DEATH KNELL OF COAKERISM SOUNDED.

Special to Evening Telegram.
KELLOGGERS, March 4.
Long Ford was taken by storm last night, in a meeting styled the best ever held in the Southern section of Harbor Main district. Some three hundred voters were present, the speakers being, in order, Messrs. J. C. Fuddister, J. R. Bennett, R. Matthews, and W. J. Higgins, whose addresses created a wonderful and encouraging impression. So enthusiastic were those present that they cheered repeatedly for everybody and everything connected with the Liberal-Labor Progressive Party. The death knell of Coakerism was sounded last night in the stronghold of Squires. Another big meeting will be held in Fox Trap to-night.

The Cost of Living Forced Still Lower at the Royal Stores

The Moral is Obvious—Do All Your Shopping Here

Uppermost in your mind to-day is the cost of living. You are quick to study figures appearing in the newspapers on the subject, and inevitable you compare them with your own experience when shopping. The cost of living has fallen definitely and sharply for those who are wise enough to do all their shopping at the Royal Stores. Hundreds of customers have expressed surprise at being asked to pay so little for goods of supreme quality. For many months now we have been asserting that prices were on the downward grade. In the face of much disagreement we insisted on this assertion and used every effort to keep on forcing prices down.

That, we felt, to be our duty and privilege as a progressive store. To-day, it remains our duty to hasten a return to normal, and we feel sure that our decision to let Annual Sale Prices rule during March month will achieve a healthy measure of success.

Advocatism.

United We Stand—The Government candidates "have the full support of an united stable Government," says the Advocate. We are so glad to hear that the Premier and Mr. Coaker have at last, kissed and made friends. But can we take the Advocate's word for it?

Are Things Different, Now?—Speaking of Harbor Main, the Advocate says that "the district affairs are in a fearfully dispirited state." He blames the past Government for this. We have not, however, heard of any great improvements since November, 1919. We are glad, too, that the Advocate has the decency to confess that things are still as bad as they were. It speaks well for the Squires-Coaker Party that this state of affairs should continue after a year and a half of their control.

Novi Allquid—Imagine anybody in the Advocate writing on a Biblical text. Judging by some of the articles which have appeared in that paper (sic) contributors should take their texts from anything but the Bible. In any case it is very unusual for a writer to take such a text and then in his sermon on it to descend to personal abuse. But, trust the Advocate.

He's Changed Since Then—According to a writer in Tuesday's Advocate "when Coaker came to the forefront in Newfoundland he rebuked the usurers, nobles and rulers." Now unlike the Coaker of to-day, now he is a merchant prince himself and equal to any of these he ever abused. O tempora, o mores!

How Innocent!—Imagine the Advocate saying that anybody was trying "to put the blanket over the eyes of the H. Main electors on the Sugar question." We wonder if the Advocate realizes how funny it is. It would take a good many blankets to blind the eyes of the Harbor Main voters to the fact that the Government is selling Sugar at 25c. per lb. when it should sell for 11 cents.

Do They Really Believe It Themselves?—If Coaker had not instituted the Fish Regulations, fishermen would be getting two or three dollars a quintal less for their fish," says the Advocate. Now we know why the fishermen are all pleased! Perhaps the Advocate will tell us just how much the fish which was sold did fetch.

And With Reason—Says the Advocate, "the people cry out 'We have been robbed and fleeced by extortion prices for what we have to buy.'" Is this a whack at the Post-Office Control Board? If so, it is very satisfactory to know that the Advocate realizes that the F.C.B. are extortioners.

Of Course It Wasn't—The Circular printed by the Telegram on Tuesday was not intended for publication, says the Advocate. Of course it wasn't. Whilst not giving the Coaker organ much credit for anything but foolishly fanatical articles, in which it excels, we are sure it has sense enough to know that the Circular in question wasn't going to do its cause any good, and it's no wonder it didn't want it published.

Unlucky, But for Whom!—The fact that after March 15th the Opposition Party will number 13 members in the House will be unlucky—but for the Government itself. Even now the Squires-Coaker Party are trembling in their shoes at the thought of it.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

AFTER ALL TIME IS LIFE.

How often one finds one's friends and oneself straining mentally towards some point of time in the future.

"Oh dear, I wish it would hurry up and be Christmas," says the child.

"It doesn't seem as if I could wait two weeks to that dance," says the young girl.

"Only two months more until spring," says my friend who hates winter.

"In one more year we'll have the co-operative all paid up," says the head of the household.

And so it goes.

Wishing Away Our Lives.

We are all reaching forward to some point in the future, wishing time away, and forgetting that these years we are so anxious to get rid of, are our lives.

We are all forgetting to savor the present because we are so intent on the happiness that is coming in the future.

Until some day when we are straining forward to the new season, wishing for spring or summer or winter, something gives us pause and we realize that after all we have only a limited number of the seasons at our command and that when this one is gone we can never get it back again.

Why the Young Aren't Afraid of Death.

Do not think this realization often comes when one is in one's earlier youth. Up to 30, at least, man is important in his own conception of himself.

The youth contemplates death with a magnificent indifference because he does not really expect it ever to come nigh him. He is not afraid to die because he doesn't really expect to. I have heard people comment with surprise on the fact that the old who have had so much of life and who have so much less to live for yet have a keener version to the thought of death than the young.

That is not because the young have any more desire to die. It is simply because they do not associate the thought of death with themselves the way the older people inevitably must.

It is after one is 30—say, perhaps, when one at 35 recognizes that one has had half the allotted three score years and ten—that one begins to feel that time passes all too quickly.

The Little Joys.

A letter-friend has recently sent me a beautiful poem called "A Song of Little Joys." "Much talk I hear of happiness," writes the author. "'Tis past, 'tis future, 'tis not now. A deep sea pearl mid ocean's stress, Hesperian fruit on topeast bough." And then she goes on to say in very beautiful words that I wish I had space to

The Justice of the Expediency of Woman Suffrage.

By MAUD NATHAN.

(This article won the $100 prize in the New York Herald Suffrage Contest.)

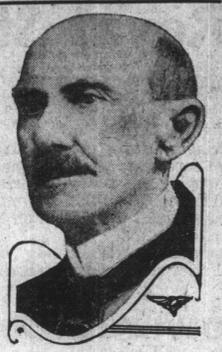

I believe in equal suffrage because it is just and because it is expedient. In a democracy, where the people are supposed to govern themselves, the ballot is the direct method of self-expression. A government that denies expression to one-half the people cannot justly be termed a democracy. How can the men represent the women? A man casts one vote, representing his own views; if there are three women in his household, each with dissenting views, how can his one vote represent theirs? It is not the men alone who have built up this great republic. All women pay taxes, either directly or indirectly. Six million women are engaged in the industry and commerce of our nation. Legislation is enacted, regulating and controlling their lives, and yet their votes defer to their constituents, who have the power to re-elect them to office or to defeat them.

The trend of modern activities makes it expedient to enfranchise women. One by one woman's duties have been taken away from her and placed in charge of City or State officials, appointed by the Mayor or Governor, who is elected by the votes of men. Every department of a woman's household is regulated or controlled by officials more or less involved in politics. To procure pure milk for the babies, pure drinking water, meat from non-tuberculous cattle, non-poisonous canned foods, the housekeeper must depend upon the efficiency and incorruptibility of the various commissions. She also depends upon the Fire, Police and Street Cleaning departments to protect her home.

Her home is no longer isolated; it is part of the community. Whereas formerly her interests centered in her home they must now embrace the public schools, the public hospitals, the public parks and playgrounds. The care of the young, the feeble, the delinquent, the sick and the aged has always been woman's function, but now that philanthropic activities have gradually changed from private to public auspices, women find themselves excluded from their management. Women formerly received little or no education; to-day girls as well as boys are graduated from colleges with trained minds and alert to the necessity of solving economic and civic problems.

The old-fashioned housewifely tasks are no longer pursued in the home; even the clothing is purchased ready made. What, then, are the tasks which prevent a housekeeper and mother from taking an intelligent and active interest in civic and national questions, many of which touch her life very closely? Bestowing upon women the responsibility of citizenship broadens them, makes them more comparable as wives, enables them the better to teach their sons and daughters, by example as well as precept, the true meaning of patriotism and the duties incumbent upon citizens of a democracy.

A. C. BILLMAN, of Indiana, who says Tanlac is unquestionably the greatest medicine he ever heard of. "It put me back on my feet after I had, practically given up all hope of ever being well again," he states.

"Tanlac is unquestionably the greatest medicine I ever heard of. After I had practically given up all hope of ever being well again, it put me right back on my feet, and I am feeling one hundred per cent. better than I have for twenty years. I have gained ten pounds in weight, and every one says I don't look like the same person.

"For several months I suffered from a serious stomach disorder. I had no appetite and couldn't eat enough to keep up my strength. Very often when I sat down to a meal I would leave the table without touching anything scarcely, as I could not bear the sight of food, much less eat it.

"I was losing in weight and my friends would often ask me: 'What is wrong with you? Why are you looking so thin?'

"I also suffered terribly with pains across the small of my back and over my kidneys. It was almost impossible for me to get out of bed in the morning, as my back would pain me so I would almost fall over when I got up. At night my back pained me so it was almost impossible for me to sleep. I would lie flat on one side and then on the other, and would roll and toss all night long. I had almost given up and thought maybe my age was against me, as I had taken so many different kinds of medicine without results.

"The first bottle of Tanlac didn't help me much, but I made up my mind to give it a fair trial. After starting on the second bottle I began to feel better. My appetite returned, and it just looked like I could hardly wait for meal time to come. In fact, I was hungry all the time.

"My back and kidneys don't bother me any more and I can sleep like a log now. Tanlac has just simply made a new man of me, and any one living in this county can tell you the same thing, as everybody knows me and knows the shape I was in."

The above statement was made recently by A. C. Billman, of Indiana, who has lived in Noble County all his life and is a well-known and highly-respected citizen of that county.

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; in Paradise, by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne; in Upper Guilford, by Heber Andrews; in Portland, by H. C. Haines; in St. Joseph, Salmonier, by Mrs. J. Gushue; in Marystown, by Exploits Valley Royal Stores, Ltd.; in Flat Islands, by William Samson; in Jamestown, by Christopher Haines; and in Lewisporte by Uriah Freaque.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94 PER CENT. AIR. Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and its leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal-oil).

The inventor T. W. Johnson, 246 Craig St., West, Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

The First English Excursion Train.

March 4, 1844, is memorable in railway history as the day on which the London and Brighton Company ran the first excursion train. The double journey for a single fare was a great temptation to travellers, especially as they had the option of returning on the same or following day. Everything passed off successfully, and the result was a repetition at Whitstide, when between 5,000 and 6,000 persons were taken down to Brighton. The train, which generally left London Bridge at half-past eight o'clock, was delayed for nearly half-an-hour by the immense number of passengers. At last it started, with 45 carriages and four engines. At New Cross it was joined by six more carriages and another engine; and at Croydon by another six carriages and a sixth engine. The greatest apprehension of an accident prevailed at Brighton among the numerous persons who thronged the terminus as 11, 12, and 1 o'clock passed without bringing the expected train. A pilot engine with one of the directors, then started up the line to ascertain the cause of the delay, and in about half an hour returned, heralding in the monster train of 67 carriages and six engines. Close in the rear followed the mail train of

Fads and Fashions.

The long slim bodice line will have a strong influence on the spring models.

Spring promises a great vogue for such fabrics as organdie and dotted swiss.

Black taffeta, overcast with metal embroidery, has a part in evening gowns.

The afternoon dress frock is almost sure to be black or a dark shade of brown.

Tassels drip from the corners of cloaks and feathers drip from the brim of small hats.

Soft, apple silks, particularly crepes, will have a great place in all spring fashion affairs.

Brilliant, many-stranded neck chains lend to the increasing brightness of feminine apparel.

With the increasing talk of the Directoire influence, drapery effects are found nearly everywhere.

It actually looks as if toulards were to have another go. They appear in many spring costumes.

A pretty overblouse is made of plain black crepe de chine trimmed with black-and-white checked crepe de chine.

Fashions and Fads.

Coat-dresses, some of them with the coat caught with a belt at the back, are promised for street wear.

All rimming on spring hats is inclined to droop from the brim, positively refusing to stay on the crown. Vells are still in fashion and often they are the only ornamentation on a hat that is absolutely plain.

The "Directoire" of which there is so much talk (as opposed to the increasingly short-skirt fashion) style that originated in the 18th century, founded largely upon the Grecian Classic Model, but modified by the military spirit of the French Revolution.

The lace fan is fashionable in its kinds of lace. Sometimes it is rich lace woven with metal threads and matching the little evening dress worn at the same time.

POOR HUMANITY.

Sometimes I think the human race has very little fun; less pleasure than the brutes that chase and gambol in the sun. I'd like to be a bob-link and circle in the air; for little birds like this, I think, know aught of human care.

They bear no burden on their backs, no weary load that kills; they do not pay an income tax, or face big monthly bills. I'd like to be a kangaroo upon a desert plain, and I would hop a mile or two, and then hop back again. Sometimes sad thoughts like these I think, when life has made me hot; but some one shoots the bob-link, and I remain unshot. The lower animals I view, and think them satisfied; but some one slays the kangaroo that he may tan its hide. 'I'd like to be a crocodile,' in peevish mood I wall, "and I would swim the storied Nile and smash things with my tail." But crocodiles know little mirth, and much of woe they've known; for every critter on this earth has troubles of its own. But cats and wolves and grizzly bears and cows and birds and snakes don't publish forth their daily cares, their little pains and aches. They take existence as it comes, the bitter with the sweet, and being short of muffled drums, they look for things to eat.

WELL DRESSED AT SMALL COST.—If you do not intend to get a Suit or Overcoat for the holiday season, you can at least be well dressed by having your clothes Cleaned and Pressed at SPURRELL the Tailor's, 365 Water Street, and it will cost you about $1.50. Do you need a new Velvet Collar on your Overcoat?—m.w.f.t.f.

in Russia are conflicting. Although it was declared in several quarters to-day that subversive movements had been crushed, confirmation of this was lacking in authentic circles. It was generally accepted, however, that the extensive machinery of the Soviet Government for the crushing of uprisings, would enable the Reds to maintain their authority against great odds.

LABOR CANDIDATE WINS.

LONDON, March 3. Sir Arthur Griffiths Boscawen, the newly appointed Minister of Agriculture was defeated in the Dudley bye-election, the result of which is announced to-day, by J. Wilson, Labor candidate. The defeat of a Government minister is mainly attributed to the controversy over the question of embargo on Canadian cattle, used as an argument by the Opposition, who ascribed to this cause the high cost of meat in Great Britain.

U.S. SUBS IN DISTRESS.

NEW YORK, March 3. Two submarines the O-7 and O-8, reported by wireless to-night that they were in need of assistance. O-8 is ashore between Henker and Mull Islands, in Buzzard's Bay, Mass., and O-7 is in distress about three miles East of the Race Rock of Wilderness Point in Long Island Sound. Her trouble is not known.

FORDNEY BILL KILLED.

WASHINGTON, March 3. Efforts to override President Wilson's veto on the Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill failed in the House early this morning, and this measure, originally designed to aid farmers, thereby met its death. The vote on the motion to pass the measure over the President's veto was 201 132 against.

WILSON'S LAST DUTY.

WASHINGTON, March 3. The signature, by President Wilson, of the resolution to repeal virtually all of the war laws, was announced to-night at the White House. The law repeals resolutions, as approved by the President, repeals practically all the laws enacted during the war, as strictly emergency measures.

SOVIET HONOR.

RIGA, March 4. The Georgian Diplomatic Mission has been placed under arrest at Moscow, according to a report reaching here. Strikers in Moscow, satisfied with the distribution of some food-stuffs, have resumed work.

ANARCHIST PLOT DISCOVERED.

CLEVELAND, March 4. Plots which involved the planned assassination of Cleveland "Loyal Americans" destruction by dynamite, and an intensive campaign of anarchist propaganda are believed to have been nipped in the bud by the arrest here on Tuesday of eight alleged anarchists.

RUMOURS ONLY.

LONDON, March 4. Vague hints that discussions were going on between the Allies, regarding the possibilities of bridging the gulf between them and the Germans, were heard last night. Nothing tangible developed, however.

TROPHIES OF A ROMAN DEFEAT.

There was recently offered for sale at Sotheby's in London, and withdrawn, a case containing military trophies with a strange history—a Roman standard of the Ninth Legion, called Hispania probably because recruited from Romanized Spaniards, and a Roman general's folding camp-chair. They were dug up in Essex in 1827, and there is every reason to believe that they were captured in the disaster that overtook the Ninth Legion in the year 61, during the reign of Nero.

BUT BELIEVES IN PREPAREDNESS.

PANAMA, March 4. Military preparations for war against Panama are being rushed by the Government of Costa Rica, it is said in newspapers reaching here from San Jose.

HARDING'S PLEDGE.

WASHINGTON, March 4. President Harding in his inaugural address to-day declared "United States seeks no part in directing the destinies of the old world," and is unwilling to become "entangled in European politics." Nevertheless, speaking in behalf of the people of the United States, he expressed willingness to associate with other nations of the world in seeking an agreement for the reduction of armaments in suggesting plans for mediation, conciliation and arbitration, in clarifying the laws of international relationship, and in establishing a world court for the disposition of justiciable questions.

Saved Daylight in 1643.

Hartford Records Show Bell Bangers Awakened Citizens Before Dawn. Hartford, Conn.—Daylight saving was in operation in Hartford in 1643, seven years after its settlement, according to an old record uncovered to-day by Corporation Counsel Walter S. Schut, who was looking up data for a map of the official boundary line of a certain section of this city.

F. Perry Close, of the City Engineering Department, who is an advocate of daylight saving, and who is doing the map for Mr. Schut, points out that Page 35 of copy No. 1 of the Hartford Town records, reveals that a general town meeting in Hartford Oct. 24, 1643, voted that there should be a bell rung by the watch every morning an hour before daybreak, and that they are appointed by the constable for that purpose shall begin at the bridge and so ring the bell all the way forth and back: Master Moody's (Wyllyshill) to John Pretts, and that there shall be in every house one, up and some lights within one quarter of an hour after the end of the bell ringing, if they can, or else then to be up with lights before mentioned half an hour before daylight, and for default herein to forfeit one shilling and sixpence to be to him that finds him faulty and sixpence to the town.

REPAIRING THE HOME.

A number of men were at work to-day repairing the damage done to the engineers' quarters of the s.s. Home by the recent fire.

THREE DOGS AND A CATAMARAN.

A fairly large catamaran drawn by three big dogs, attracted a lot of attention on Water Street West to-day. The team work of the animals was perfect, and they evidently make very good substitutes for ponies.

WILL HOLD CARD PARTY.

A card party will be held by St. Andrew's Society in their rooms on Wednesday night next. The Society intend holding several of these card parties during the spring, and occasionally to follow them up with a dance.

BARBARA BARR REPORTED.

A radiogram from the s.s. Rosalind, received via Cape Race, states: "Ship alongside of the s.s. Barbara Barr, Capt. Snelgrove, in Lat. 46.08 N, Long. 54.44 W." The Barbara Barr is 32 days out from Macleod, bound to St. John's, and wished to be reported. All well on board.

PING PONG TOURNAMENT.

An interesting ping pong tournament was held after parade last night in the officers' mess of the C.L.B.C. Armoury between teams representing the West and East Ends. The latter won by 37 points. The players were West End: Lt.-Col. Goodridge, Capt. Henry, Lieut. F. Reid, W. Spilly, G. Hunt, East End: Major Riley, Lieut. H. Hayward, L. Hayward, P. B. Randall, A. B. Ferlie.

Did She Believe Him?

Once again the husband came staggering home late. "Oh, John, have you been drinking again?" sobbed the wife as she caught a whiff of beer. "No, dearie, you wrong me. I've been eatin' froggs' legs, and you smell the hops."

G. W. V. A. Meeting.

Pensilvnia and Memorials Discussed. A very enthusiastic meeting of the Great War Veterans' Association was held in their Club Rooms last night. The President's gavel making sharp contact with the table called the meeting to order at 8:45 p.m. sharp with about 180 members present. After the reading of the minutes and discussion of several motions arising out of same their adoption was moved and carried. The President in his opening remarks exhorted all members to carry on an intensive campaign for new members and that the objective should be the 3000 mark. It was evident from the enthusiasm displayed that great efforts will be forthcoming so as to achieve this large membership. Quite a number of new members were then enrolled and the object of the meeting elucidated.

INCREASE IN PENSIONS.

The following increase has been approved by the Newfoundland Government, and will be put into effect immediately. A 10% bonus to: (a) All disability pensioners, who, between Jan. 1st, 1920, and December 31st, 1920, were on the pensions for ranks up to and including that of Sergeant. (b) Dependent parents who were in receipt of part pensions between Jan. 1st, 1920, and December 31st, 1920. (c) All cases where allowances were being paid between Jan. 1st, 1920 and December 31st, 1920, to the wives and children of disability pensioners. The 10% bonus is not applicable to (d) Those pensioners who were granted the 20% increase last year. (e) Pensioners undergoing treatment in hospital last year.

The Sealing Fleet at the Zenith of Its Glory.

1st of March--The Old Sealers' Day.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

My object in relating this incident is to show the selfishness in our hardy fishermen and how free they are from taking any credit to themselves for any act of bravery on their part. All through this episode there was only one idea uppermost in poor Lacey's mind, and that was the unfortunate freedom he allowed his tongue in addressing the Governor. It never entered his mind that he had done anything worthy of praise or thankfulness. Our fishermen perform such acts as these instinctively, and look upon them as the ordinary routine of duty. It is characteristic of our people that they never see a fellow-creature in danger without immediately rushing to his assistance, without stopping for a moment to look to the consequences. In this manner many a promising fisherman has met a watery grave. Poor old Lacey died about thirty-five years ago, having attained the patriarchal age of 90 years, and maintained his spirit and characteristics to the last.

"FOLLOW ON" BARTLETT.

In narrating the stories of the seal-fishery we can never omit Brigus, which held the leaders in the search of the "golden fleece." Some of you may have heard this story before, but it has never appeared in print; in any case it never grows old. Knowing as I do so well what a disappointment it must have been to Capt. Bob Bartlett to turn back when he was 120 miles from the Pole, I just want to relate this story of his ancestor, skipper Billy Bartlett, who flourished in Brigus over one hundred years ago. At that time the seal-fishery was prosecuted in open boats or shallops with a cuddy at each end.

Judge Prowse tells us that these boats never went past the headlands, and waited there till the seals came to them, but I beg to differ, as this story will amply prove.

Capt. Billy Bartlett left Brigus with his crew of ten or twelve men, and when they reached Baccalait there was no sign of any ice. The skipper then said, "Boys, we must follow on--so on they went till they reached Cape Bonavista, and still there was no ice in sight. The crew came to skipper Billy, and asked him, 'what are we to do now?' and the reply was 'follow on.' So on they went till they came to the Punk Island, and that is about as far as any sailing vessel ever went to look for seals; and here were they in an open boat of 12 to 18 tons in the middle of winter, liable to storms of every kind that our ocean leviathans dread today. There was still no ice in sight, and here were they in mid-ocean. Skipper Billy never faltered, he was as Peary said "just Bartlett," and his instructions to his men were, "Follow on," and on they went to the coast of Labrador, and it was off Hiscock Island, one of the Spotted Islands, that they struck the heavy jam of ice, and there they found the seals and loaded their little boat without difficulty. The ice was drifting South, so they took their time and drifted with it, and when they sighted Baccalait they ran into Conception Bay, and were soon home safe and sound in Brigus.

There is no fake about this story; it is as true and was as great an exploit in its day as was Peary's discovery of the North Pole a few years ago.

The story is worth repeating, if only to show that "follow on" is in the Bartlett blood to-day, and what a terrible disappointment it must have been to Capt. Bob to turn back when the North Pole had almost been reached. But he obeyed orders.

"BRITAINER" WILCOX.

Here is another story that will show the sort of stuff that was in those Brigus men. Nicknames have always been a favorite with our seal-fishers, and this is how skipper Jim Wilcox got the name of "Britainer." That name followed him through life, and his son after him was called the "Young Britainer."

Skipper Jim was out in a fishing "jack" with two men and a boy, as is often seen to-day, but at that time there was trouble with France. Skipper Jim and his man had done pretty well with the fish, and were nearly ready for home when along came a big French banker, with a crew of over 20 men. They clewed up alongside of the "jack," and as "might was right" at that time, they told him to come aboard and hand over his fish to them or else something very much worse would happen him. You can imagine their surprise to find that a little man of 5 feet 6 inches in height was preparing to resist them. They launched their big boat, and with ten men or more, started for the fishing jack. Skipper Jim knew what they were after, and after searching for a weapon found that his only means of defence was a hatchet.

But he stood to the rail of his boat, and swore to his crew that "not a Frenchman would ever come aboard of her while there was a Britainer aboard." The French crew did all they could, but they were all afraid to face this little man with his hatchet, and they were forced to beat a retreat. When our hero got home to Brigus that story was related to their friends, and for ever afterwards he was called the "Britainer."

"ADMIRAL" PEARCY.

There was another celebrated old seal-killer that lived about the same time--"Admiral" Pearcy he was always called. He was well known in his famous old ship, the "Black Moll," but I don't think a few of us know how he got that title of the "Admiral," although it suited him exactly and he was well worthy of it.

Some people have a special fondness for certain articles--Chamberlain was never seen without an orchid in his button-hole, and old William Pearcy, S.S., as he always signed his name, was never seen without a beaver hat. He even wore it to the sea, but how he kept a shine on it, unless he used some of the seal oil that was always near by, I do not know. Well one winter he rescued the crew of a British man-of-war with an admiral on board, that had foundered in the ice-floes. He brought them all safely to St. John's in his old ship, the "Black Moll." As all know there is an unwritten law amongst the men-of-war that they must touch their caps whenever they pass the admiral.

Old William Pearcy always looked so important with that top-hat of his that they never failed to salute him as well. This tickled the crew of Brigus men so much that they always styled their captain, "the Admiral" after that, and the name stuck to him as it was so appropriate. KNEW WHERE TO FIND THE FAT.

To give a more extended description of the seal-fishery in the old days is impossible in this issue of the Telegram; but I shall conclude this article with a list of the vessels that sailed from St. John's in the year 1843, and which I am sure will be read with interest. These great pioneer vikings are connected with the glories of the past. They built up St. John's, and many of their descendants are here to-day, whilst many more of them are scattered over the various countries of the globe where those sons and grandsons of the great Vikings loved to roam in search of adventure to which their avocation spurred them on, alas, very often never to return to the land of their birth. Such was their knowledge of the seal-fishery, that those great masters, such as recorded in our next instalment, would seldom miss the whitecoats provided they could get to the locality that they wished to arrive at. I have been told, and I know it to be a fact, that many of the old "jowlers" would say to their crew, "go out boys, and bring me one of those whitecoats," and when one of the stragglers, as our next instalment will show, brought one aboard they would view it with a remark--"that's all right, I know where the main patch is now." I was almost induced to write that the old skippers were guided by instinct, as well as their thorough knowledge of their business. There was nothing escaped their notice, and they conquered all difficulties without the aid of modern science such as wireless, aeroplanes, telegraph offices, etc., that we have at the present day.

The Yorkist Triumph.

On March 4, 1461, Edward IV. was proclaimed King of England. Margaret of Anjou, wife of Henry VI, indignant that her son should be excluded from the throne, called her supporters to her side, and routed the Yorkists at Wakefield Creek, in Yorkshire, where for the first time, if we except Ludlow, the Red Rose triumphed. Here the Duke of York was slain; and according to the barbarous fashion of the time, his head, adorned with a paper crown, was fixed on the walls of York. This loss, instead of dispiriting them, roused the Yorkists to fiercer efforts. Edward, Earl of March, the son of the fallen Duke, succeeded to the title and the claims of his father. He was a brave and handsome youth of nineteen, and the hearts of the people leaped to him. At Montmercy's Cross, in Herefordshire, he swept the Royalist troops before him, and a few days later Margaret, defeating Warwick in the second battle of St. Albans, released the King from confinement. When Edward marched to London he was received by the citizens with shouts of joy, and Parliament, having declared that Henry had forfeited the throne, when he joined the army of the Queen, the young Duke was at once proclaimed King, with the title of Edward IV. Three years later he avowed his marriage with Elizabeth, widow of Sir John Grey, and daughter of Sir Richard Woodville, afterwards Earl Rivers. When she became Queen, her relatives, who were all Lancastrians, were married to the richest heirs and heiresses. This incensed the nobles, especially the haughty Nevilles, of which family the Earl of Warwick was head. Thus arose further trouble, and later Edward fled to Flushing, while Henry was brought from his cell to wear the crown once more.

Labor and Wages.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir--In Monday's issue of the Telegram I noticed an article written by somebody who seems to be apparently interested and not a little irritated with the present rates that is being paid for labor. The heading of that article was "Who will make the first move," and it struck me as very nonsensical, as one or two moves have been made already with a view to reducing the wage scale of the producers of this community; but the wrong methods have been applied in doing so, and a few of those moves have met with general disapproval, and therefore the attempts of those responsible for them have failed. It is interesting to know that we have an Employers' Association, and that they have the "Labor Question" really at heart. But it appears to me from what I gather from the article I refer to, that this Association is inclined to follow along the same automatic routine as their grandfathers did, and content themselves with the knowledge that their decisions must be taken by the employer, whether they are just or not. Is this not the time, right now, when that dread of the employer by the employee, and which is generally followed by suspicion, should be wiped away, and a better spirit of general co-operation and good-will prevail between all who help to produce in whatever form it may be? Developments must be taken by the employer, whether they are just or not. Is this not the time, right now, when that dread of the employer by the employee, and which is generally followed by suspicion, should be wiped away, and a better spirit of general co-operation and good-will prevail between all who help to produce in whatever form it may be? Developments must be taken by the employer, whether they are just or not. Is this not the time, right now, when that dread of the employer by the employee, and which is generally followed by suspicion, should be wiped away, and a better spirit of general co-operation and good-will prevail between all who help to produce in whatever form it may be? Developments must be taken by the employer, whether they are just or not.

If we adopt new methods, with a view to the construction of our material interests, that must also adopt the new spirit of co-operation for a common purpose, which will be essential to the carrying out of those reconstructive ideas. When that time arrives, Labor will not be considered from the viewpoint that it is at present, but will be recognized as the most important cog in the wheel of all industrial life, and will be allowed to develop naturally and socially, which it cannot do now, owing to the manner by which it has been generally exploited for purposes other than those which were good.

All this talk about the prosperity of the Laborer has been nothing more or less than a Social Lie, as there has been no prosperity, for the simple reason that the man with the average family, who has not lost a day's work in the last ten years, still got the same strain financially that he had before and during the war. That is a fact, and I'll defy any member of the Employers' Association or any one else who appear to be interested in this matter to contradict it. I notice that the Employers' Association had carefully prepared figures demonstrating that prices at present ruling for certain necessities of life showed a 15 per cent. decrease as compared with May, 1920, but do they remember what a huge farce that bill of fare was, is not my intention to be antagonistic to the Employers' Association, as I dare say they mean good, but they see their side only of the question, and when they venture to outline a scale which they think the mechanic and laborer ought to live by, they are assuming too much, as they only make provision for the bare necessities, which are always apparent, and forget numerous other demands that are made on the wage-earner with the average family.

If we take the man with the average family, and who is always steadily employed, and find that he has nothing to spare, what condition prevails in the home of the man who is not regularly employed, and also of the man who has more than the average family to provide for. The answer to that is the pinched faces and poorly clad forms of the whole community suffers. I would like to draw the attention of the Employers' Association to a statement made by Mayor Gooling to some Labor representatives in the City Hall about two weeks ago, when he said that the prices in living commodities had not decreased enough yet to warrant any reduction in wages, and it looks to me that the line of business that he is engaged in justifies us in accepting his pronouncement.

Before closing this letter I would like to ask the Employers' Association if any of their members are wage earners in this community of the average class to whom I have made reference, who is receiving more than he needs to supply him and those dependent on him, with other than the bare necessities of life, and before they definitely decide to trim the wages of their brothers, let them begin now and get some wage standard as their friends in the neighboring Dominion are doing; yet they are not attempting to do their part without the co-operation of representatives of the body that that standard affects. Their standard is a sufficient wage for a decent maintenance of life, and their minimum wage principle includes enough pay to provide for food, shelter, clothing, and those dependent on him; also provision for periods of unemployment, which may arise through accident, sickness, industrial prostration, etc. Those folk who are making a study of the industrial problem claim that it is the cost of living which fixes the base line of wages; then is it not possible for us to fix our base line and work from that, and I am sure if that base line was fixed, that the Employers' Association would have nothing yet, to justify them in reducing the present wage rates of their employees.

Respectfully yours,

Just Folks

"WHERE'S MAMMA?"
Comes in flying from the street.
"Where's mamma?"
Friend or stranger? thus he'll greet:
"Where's mamma?"
Doesn't want to say hello,
Home from school or play he'll go
Straight to what he wants to know:
"Where's mamma?"
Many times a day he'll shout,
"Where's mamma?"
Seems afraid that she's gone out,
"Where's mamma?"
Is his first thought at the door--
She's the one he's looking for,
And he questions o'er and o'er,
"Where's mamma?"
Can't be happy till he knows
"Where's mamma?"
So he begs us to disclose
"Where's mamma?"
And it often seems to me
As I hear his anxious plea,
That no sweeter phrase can be:
"Where's mamma?"
Like to hear it day by day,
"Where's mamma?"
Loveliest thought that lips can say:
"Where's mamma?"
And I pray as time shall flow,
And the long years come and go,
That he'll always want to know:
"Where's mamma?"

Civic Commission Weekly Meeting

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon, Mayor Gosling and Councilors Morris, Jackson, Mullaly, Peet and Vinicombe were present.

After the minutes of the previous meeting were confirmed, the following matters received consideration:

Regarding the application of Council for loan of $50,000 for extension of water and sewerage system, the Manager of the Royal Bank of Canada informed the Board the Directors of the Bank could not see their way clear to grant request.

The Government will be requested to give assurance that loan will be raised during the next 12 months to liquidate floating loans due the Bank.

Government Coastal Mail Service forwarded communication regarding watering of steamers Fortia and Prospero. Regulations must be complied with.

E. Collinswood protested against dump Allandale Road. This dump was but temporary during the snow blockade, and has been discontinued.

A letter was read from The Collection and Adjustment Association, asking the collecting of out-standing amounts due the Council. The Solicitor has already been instructed to take legal proceedings to recover amounts due for city taxes.

Shaw & Mason, M.E. were awarded contract to supply tobies, stoves, etc.

F. J. Butler, Duckworth St. and Nath. Pond, New Gower St., will be given permission subject to the Engineer's approval to make alterations requested.

W. G. Morris, Long's Hill, must see City Engineer regarding proposed extension to building.

W. Davis, Casey St. must submit plans of proposed building; when this is done consideration will be given the matter.

Regarding reported leak of water pressure at the R. C. Palace fire, the City Engineer reported as follows:

"About 4:15 a.m. Feb. 19, I received a telephone call from Mr. Chief Dunn, who told me of the Palace fire and the need of more pressure to reach the fire high up on the Palace roof. When I arrived at the scene, the Fire Hall gauge registered 40 lbs. per square inch. The morning was bright and calm with the thermometer below zero. From the different hydrants 4 lines of hose were run out to the Palace. The first and longest line from Port Townshend hydrant should not have been run out at all, and it subsequently spoiled the No. 2 line laid out from the Garrison Hill hydrant, as both were working on the same line. Either of the two nearest hydrants, namely, the Gamewell hydrant or the Palace yard working in conjunction would have reached the fire if the necessary length of hose had been attached. But here I must disclaim any intention of attempting to criticize professional firemen in the performance of their duties; my chief object is to furnish the Board with the information they desire.

The 6 inch main and all the hydrants used are all new work and are in perfect condition. The North end of the main is connected to the 16 inch main at Howley Avenue, and the South end is connected to the 12 inch main on Harvey Road. The pressure at the hydrants during the fire registered around 50 lbs. per square inch. The Venturi Meter registered 8 and 1/4 million gallons rate per day coming to the city; an excess of 2 and 1/4 million gallons over the Summer supply. All hydrants used were tested for pressure and flow immediately after use. The flow ranged from 590 to 800 gallons per minute from the open nozzles, and the pressure from 50 to 55 lbs. nozzles closed.

Friction of flow in ordinary fire hose consumes pressure rapidly, the reduction being in proportion to the length and also the square of the volume or velocity of the water flowing. The pressure lost by friction on 2 and 1/4 inch hose with hydrant pressure of 50 lbs. per square inch would be roughly 8 lbs. on the end of the first hundred feet, 14 lbs. on the end of the second (200) hundred feet, 19 lbs. on the end of the third (300) hundred feet, 22 lbs. on the end of the fourth (400) hundred feet, and 25 lbs. per square inch on 500 feet of 2 and 1/4 inch hose with one inch nozzle. If 1 and 1/4 inch nozzle were used the loss would be felt more, say, about 15 lbs. at the end of the first hundred feet. If 1 and 1/4 inch nozzle were used, 22 lbs. would be lost on the end of the first hundred feet, and so on. Thus we may sum up the pressure loss along every length of hose, deducting the sum from the hydrant pressure, and finding if required effective head remaining at the hose nozzle. In case of a high fire such as the Palace, when the hydrant is some distance away, and we wish to eliminate loss by friction, two lines of hose attached to the hydrant run out side by side, and joined near the fire by a siamese connection to a single hose line will give the available hydrant pressure and volume close up to the fire.

I am of the opinion that the 1 and 1/4 inch hose nozzles and the 1 and 1/4 inch should not be used in areas covered by ordinary pressures and small mains. They cause enormous

Wesley W. M. S. Anniversary.

The Women's Missionary Society have been celebrating the fortieth anniversary of the inauguration of their Society this week, and the respective auxiliaries have had large gatherings. On Wednesday evening at Wesley Church a most pleasant time was enjoyed by all who attended. Mrs. Robert Joyce, with much grace, presided, reviewing the forty years through which the Lord God had led them, not through a wilderness but through abounding success, so that the receipts of the parent Society were last year over $510,000; and through its effort many a wilderness of ignorance and the solitary places of idolatry had been made glad through the flooding light of the glorious gospel and its saving power. Looking back at the prosperity of Wesley Auxiliary, grown from a few charter members, Messdames A. W. Martin, H. C. Burchell, W. Horwood, W. Carlson, A. Goble and Alfred Martin, to be now sixty, and to have raised $260,000, with a Young Women's Circle raising $408.00 and the Panny Mission Box $70.00 additional—$682.00 a year, means effort and success. A choice programme followed: Spots by Mrs. Sansom, Mrs. D. Johnson, Misses Barbour, Oakley, Vincent and Young, Mrs. McKie and Mrs. Hilliard gave readings, and Messdames Lindsey, Parkins, Johnson and Barnes excellent addresses. A beautiful tea was then served, after which a large four-decker cake, the gift of Mrs. Ellis, had been decorated with forty lit coloured wax candles, realizing nearly twenty dollars, which with the birthday money, over seventy dollars included, will be nearly one hundred dollars more for Missions. It is probable that the other city Methodist Churches may exceed the offerings of its youngest sister in the city.

Men of Harbor Main!

Don't allow yourselves to be misled by the "jaw" exercises of Doctor Campbell, Richard Hibbs and the Govt. candidates Messrs. Hawco and Furey.

There are too many Fish Merchants, (Exporters) already muzzled, it might be said, nearly all put out of business by the Iniquitous Fish Regulations of Coaker and Squires. And then, what about the Sugar Regulations. The Government will not permit dealers to import sugar which could be sold at 11 or 12 cents per pound—if not less—but are importing it through the Food Control Board, and making you pay 25 and 26 cents per pound, thus taking twice as much money out of your pockets as you should pay. This is outright robbery.

Don't forget that there are approximately 300,000 quintals of fish in Newfoundland yet unsold, and the owners are refused permits to export this huge quantity to European markets, where they would realize something on it, and thus clear the way for the new fish of 1921 catch and cure. Should this lot of old fish remain unsold, what price do you think will be paid for new fish?

Don't let the Harbor Main Editions of the Squires-Coaker Daily Star (duplicate of the Advocate) influence you in your decision on Polling Day. The Star is pretending here in the City to be taking no part in the Harbor Main elections, but daily is flooding your district with special editions, filled with the most silly political rot and twaddle, this being part of the designs of Squires, Coaker, Campbell and Hibbs to delude you into voting for Hawco and Furey.

Do not be influenced by the hypocrisy and duplicity of the Government campaign managers. Vote the straight ticket for JONES and LEWIS, and thereby show that you will not tolerate the domination of Coaker or the rule of graft—Com.
