Lord Cecil's Dilemma

—OR—
The Picnic

CHAPTER VIII.
It was noon on a blossoming day; the air was heavy and languorous with its fragrance, and yet, amid all the glory of its bloom, there was something weird about this lovely bower. "You are not superstitious, are you, Sir Charles?" Lady Gladys asked.

She was trembling at her own daring. She had seen the young baronet on the lawn from an upper window. She knew that he was waiting for her, and had gone to him without one word to any one. The earl was saying something to him when she came out; then he gave her into his charge and laughed. "My daughter will be your guide, Sir Charles. She knows these old gardens far better than I do. Lady Marcia commends her to your care." "We will go to the loveliest bower in the world, through the White Lady's Walk," said Gladys. "No one can intrude upon us there." And they strolled away, both feeling ridiculously happy, while Lord Cecil Stanhope watched them, a look of astonishment on his sullen face. It was when they were beyond earshot, and had entered the White Lady's Walk, that Gladys asked that question: "You are not superstitious, are you, Sir Charles?" And then she added, solemnly: "Do you know that the very ground we are now treading is supposed to be haunted?" "I must confess that I am not afraid," he laughed. "Papa and Aunt Marcia would be quite cross if they knew that I had brought you here. Aunt Marcia believes in all the old legends of our house."

Corns?

Blue-jay
to your druggist
Stops Pain Instantly
The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in two forms—a colorless, clear liquid (one drop does it) and in extra thin plasters. Use whichever form you prefer, plasters or the liquid—the action is the same. Safe, gentle. Made in a world-famed laboratory. Sold by all druggists. Price: Write Druggist or Blue-jay, Dept. 117. An excellent book, "Correct Care of the Feet."

mas story. I hope that we shall not see the White Lady." Then he added, as she clutched nervously at his arm: "What a bewildering maze! I do not believe that I could find my way out of it alone." Just then the narrow path widened and they were in a circle of trees and flowers. The branches above were closely interlaced, and in every direction creepers and plants and blossoms were wandering in wild profusion.

"This is the White Lady's Bower," said Gladys. "Won't you take a seat, Sir Charles? These rustic chairs have been here for twenty years. I am not a bit frightened, although Aunt Marcia says that it is frightfully unlucky for two—" she stammered, then added, "for two young people to come here to talk." "The baronet hardly heard what she said. His heart was in a whirl of joy. His happiness was intoxicating. He forgot that it would not last—that he must tear himself away—that he had no right to think of love; and yet, at that moment, his whole being was throbbing under the sweet influence of this peerless girl! "I should never forgive myself if I were the means of bringing ill-luck upon you, Lady Gladys," he said, at length. "But I am glad that you do not believe in such nonsense. What possible harm can come to us for talking here any more than though we were elsewhere?" "I have not told you," whispered the earl's daughter, "that a great many years since—a hundred I think—one of the ladies of our race was woefully deceived by some handsome lover. This was their trusting-place, and after he had won her heart, he left her to break her heart! She died for love of her faithless knight." "And now appears as the White Lady?" questioned Sir Charles, festively. "It is believed so!" Gladys gravely informed him. "Some of the old servants claim to have seen her. And," her voice sank to a whisper, "Aunt Marcia used to laugh at the legend, but now she will never speak of it. She saw her lover here for the last time on earth!" Sir Charles was startled, but he replied: "Merely a coincidence, Lady Gladys."

He half rose, but was arrested by the music of her voice. "Aunt Marcia has told me that her lover was your uncle, Sir Charles; and it is this that has made me feel, although I have not known you many hours, that we are quite old friends." He looked at her, as she sat in a flood of moonlight that filtered through the bower of trees, and their eyes met. A written volume could not have expressed so much as that brief glance. He knew that she was all that he could ever care for in this life, and she trembled, waiting for him to speak. "Our friends will miss us," he said, huskily. "Shall we return, Lady Gladys?" She at once arose, sahnamed of her weakness, but he continued: "A few minutes longer. I have been so happy—happier than I ever dreamed it possible for the most blessed to be! I ought never to have come here." He recollected himself suddenly, and begged of her to forget his wild words. "Was it for this that you asked to see me alone, Sir Charles?" she asked, bravely. There was a tremor in her voice. "You had some question to put to me." "It does not matter—it cannot matter to me." "But I wish to hear it! My heart tells me that it may affect my future happiness!" She broke down weakly, and he caressed her shining hair, as she bowed her head. "Forgive me, Sir Charles. I am only a foolish girl." She would have moved from him, but he held her hands, and she felt his hot lips on her brow; she heard his passionate whispers in her ear. "Oh, Gladys Howard—cannot you see that I love you—love you with a love that is hopeless! I must be mad! Heaven help me, but I have been powerless."

She nestled closer to him now, with a feeling of perfect content. All this was so delightfully new and strange. She forgot the legend of the White Lady. "It was not this, Gladys, that I wished to say to you—I never intended uttering such words; but how can I help loving you? At such times as these men are powerless." "And women, too," replied Gladys, softly. "I never woke to womanhood until I saw you, Sir Charles." "And is it possible—good Heaven—is it possible that you care for me?" he demanded. "It is possible, Sir Charles! I care for you as much as you care for me!" He stared at her like a man newly awakened from a trance. Then he took her in his arms and pressed fond kisses on her lips. He would scold at Fate itself. Without this woman life would be a horrible blank.

They forgot all but themselves—they did not know how time was flying. The moonlight on the floor had narrowed, and was now creeping up the side of the bower. They did not dream that Lord Cecil was in search of them—suspicion and fury in his heart. "You have not told me yet, Charley." She lingered blushing over his name. This was the first time that she had used it in this way. "You have not told me why you wished to see me alone." "And it is right that you should know," he replied, fondly, "though I do not believe one word of it now, Gladys. I don't know why I was anxious to hear the truth from your lips—unless it was that my love for you overmastered me in everything. I only desired to tell you something concerning Lord Stanhope. He asserted this morning to his mother that you were his promised wife. He does not know that I overheard him; but I could not help it. You know his noisy way." "And did this trouble you?" smiled Gladys, stroking his hand. "I confess that it did, my darling. And shall I tell you what troubled me more?" "But it was all untrue—there is no foundation for such a story," Gladys declared. "I despise Lord Cecil Stanhope. He is a soulless, insensible block!" "And I was troubled—I was jealous to see him wearing the heart's-ease that I had given to you, dear. It hurt me beyond expression—and yet, I had no intention of telling you of my love." (To be continued.)

Forty-Three Years in the Public Service--The Evening Telegram

M. P.'s Funny Mannerisms.

ODD DISPLAYS OF AWKWARDNESS.
There lingers in village debating societies a belief that orators at St. Stephen's always address the House with both hands holding on to the lapels of their coats. This is still one of the tricks to which members resort in order to solve the problem of what to do with their superfluous limbs. Mr. Bonar Law, for example, alternately clutches his lapels and clasps his hands behind him. Sir A. Balfour also holds his lapels. So do Mr. Asquith and Sir Henry Craig. These are men of the older generation. The younger generation mostly find other things to do with their hands, with the exception of Lord Winterton, who usually speaks with his left hand to his lapel. Lord Birkenhead's pose seldom varies, and is now well known; he clasps his left hand with his right low down in front of him, fixes his eyes on a spot above five yards off, and scarcely moves. Lord Hugh Cecil has the same position for his hands, but the long, nervous fingers constantly twitch in and out. "Business" With Cuffs. —One of the oddest displays of awkwardness with the hands whilst addressing the House comes from Mr. Raper. His right hand may hold an order paper, but his left hand is busy. He pats his waistcoat, beginning at the chest and working down; he passes his hand round his back under his coat and pulls his waistcoat down at the back. Sir Frederick Banbury holds his silk hat in one hand and an order paper in the other. Colonel John West—the only member who ever appears in the Chamber wearing a soft hat—speaks with one hand in his trousers pocket and the other holding a big soft hat. Mr. Austen Chamberlain, when speaking, goes in for "business" with his cuffs. He shoots his arm out to bring the cuff into place, and then drops his hand and apparently gets the cuff out of place, for the result is soon repeated. He also makes considerable hy-play with his monocle. Colonel Ashley marks his points with his pin-nee held in his right hand. Mr. Trevelyan Thomson stands like an ambitious soprano in a difficult song—he bends forward from the hips, both hands holding the order paper outstretched in front of him, and always looks as if he were about to sing his speech.

When "Tay Pay" Speaks.
Mr. T. P. O'Connor makes much play with a coloured handkerchief, which, when he rises to speak, is protruding from his pocket breast. Almost at once he takes it out, and after a pause half-way, puts it to any part of his face that happens to be convenient. The other hand is occupied in holding his silk hat. Perhaps the oddest use to which the order paper is put is made by Mr. Winston Churchill. When the Secretary for the Colonies is sitting on the Treasury Board with nothing to do but listen, he takes a sheet of the order paper and, beginning at one corner, slowly and carefully rolls it up until he has a long, thin pipe. This he bends into the three equal sections, carefully fits in the two ends to form a complete equilateral triangle—and then sits back contented. Should the period of idleness be long, he may occupy his restless hands in making two of these works of art.—TIT-BITS.

Vessels in Thousands of Pieces.

A well-known shipbuilding firm in the north of England is at the present time building a vessel which will be carried to Africa in portions. It will be re-assembled at its ultimate destination. Every year ships are built in Great Britain for use on lakes and inland waters in all parts of the world. Usually these are built and bolted together in the shipyard before being taken to pieces and sent to the distant parts in separate packages. A large mission steamer built some years ago for use on Lake Nyassa, in Africa, was erected in England as if for launching. But no rivets were used; bolts and nuts held the steel framework together. The sides—port and starboard—were painted in different colors, and every bar, plate, and piece of steel work bore a different number and letter. Thus the builders in Africa could tell at a glance whether a plate belonged to one side or the other; the exact position it was intended to occupy was denoted by the reference number and letter. In order to facilitate transport, this steamer was divided into over three thousand packages, each of which weighed from half a hundredweight to five hundredweights. The greatest difficulty encountered in sending these ships abroad is with the boilers and masts. The boilers weigh many tons, and the masts are difficult to handle on account of their length.

Good!—Always

It's the ingredients you cannot see—the patient care in making that are the secrets of Moir's goodness. Nothing is left to chance, all the materials used are either made in our own plant or imported direct. Cocoa beans, selected, graded, blended, roasted and ground with infinite care in our own factory. Pineapples, apricots, raspberries, strawberries and other fruits for Moir's centres—always the finest obtainable. Brazil Nuts, Almonds, Walnuts, imported direct; Peanuts, the small delicately flavored kind; Cocoanuts shredded fresh for each day's needs. Every operation superintended, every chocolate examined by a keen-eyed overseer. All this care to assure you of the same high quality you have always found so delightful in Moir's Chocolates.

Churchill Reserves Statement.

Irish Discussion Inopportune at the Moment—Rio Grande-River Rises Forty-five Feet—Residence of Ulster Premier Attacked.

INOPPORTUNE.
LONDON, June 20. Winston Churchill told the House of Commons to-day that the present time was inopportune for a discussion on Ireland, and asked the House to allow him to reserve any statement he would have made on Thursday until a later date.

RIO GRANDE OVERFLOWS.
LAREDO, Texas, June 20. Hundreds of Mexicans were rendered destitute, scores of houses swept away, and much live stock lost when the Rio Grande reached the crest of forty-five feet here to-day, and spread over the low-lying country.

THE RESULTS SO FAR.
DUBLIN, June 20. Forty-four Coalition Pro-Treaty members and twenty-five Opposition Republicans have been elected in the Irish Parliament, according to latest returns.

REPUBLICANS DEFEATED IN DUBLIN.
DUBLIN, June 20. In the Irish elections in Dublin the creasing, prices stabilizing, and demand reviving. W. S. Fisher, of St. John, President of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, declared to-day, addressing the opening session of the Association's fifty-first annual convention, Mr. Fisher urged the need of an adequate customs tariff to protect home industry.

CRAIG'S RESIDENCE ATTACKED.
BELFAST, June 20. Shots were fired to-day near Stormont Castle, the official residence purchased for the Ulster Premier, in which Sir James Craig and wife took up their residence for the first time last evening. Officials are reticent, but it is believed an attack on the castle was frustrated by the guard.

PROGRESSIVE AMENDMENT DEFEATED.
OTTAWA, June 20. Conservatives united with Liberals to-day to defeat an amendment sponsored by Progressives to reduce the proposed British preference on blankets.

DOWN AND OUT.
A down and outer, sadly pleading for rags and victuals he was needing, came to my door to-day; I staked him with a new suspender, and fed him hen fruit fresh and tender, and sent him on his way. Before he started forth to wander I gave him seven cents to squander in any way he chose; I said I thought a storm was brewing, and he agreed with me, while chewing his eggs and goods like those. When I was younger I'd have jawed him, my virtue would have overawed him, and spelt his humble meal; but now I'm old I know that kindness is often ruined by the blindness of those who preach and spiel. I might have said, "Oh, Weary Willie, how idiotic, vain and silly the course you've followed long! You would not be in such a pickle if you had salted dime and nickel when you were young and strong!" But when a man is starved and broken, the moral lecture loudly spoken but turns his blood to bile; when he is amply fed and rested, his meal of hard boiled eggs digested, he'll hear you with a smile. And so I fed this Dusty Davie, and filled him up with eggs and gravy, and gave him seven cents; and when he left he burst out singing, where, on arriving, he was bringing the new curves in lament.

Dodging a Cyclone.
WIRELESS ENABLES LINERS TO GET OUT OF THE WAY.
The value of wireless was proved in a cyclone which lately swept through the Bay of Bengal. The approach of the storm was first recorded at the seismograph observatory in Calcutta, and the information was passed on to the wireless station at Fort William, which spread broadcast information concerning the cyclone. While the cyclone was rapidly travelling north messages were sent out every three hours warning shipping of its course, speed, and intensity. No fewer than 8 big ships were able to get out of its track, while the news was picked up by 450 wireless stations in Bengal. The storm was one of the worst known in the Bay of Bengal for many years. At Fort Blair there was eight inches of rain, and the average velocity of the wind was in the neighbourhood of 100 miles an hour.

Prophy-lactic Tooth Brush

LOOK at your tooth brush. If the bristles are even across the top, place them against your teeth and look in the mirror. See how they bridge over the spaces between the teeth and how they just clean the smooth outside surfaces. Now look at the Prophy-lactic Tooth Brush. The tufted bristles get between the teeth, and the curved handle makes it easy to reach every part of every tooth. Regular brushing with this brush and four visits a year to your dentist will insure good, sound, attractive teeth for a lifetime. Look for the name Prophy-lactic on the handle. Adult's, youth's, and child's sizes. Always sold in the yellow box. For sale by leading druggists. Distributed in Nfld. by GERALD S. DOYLE, St. John's.

Somebody Must Pay.
When one of Canada's leading daily newspapers is guilty of such an absurd blunder as to remark about a certain public improvement: "It will not cost the tax payers one cent because bonds will be issued to pay for it," there is no need to seek further for evidence that the whole system of public finance is very much of a mystery to the average man. It is this same unbounded faith in bonds as a magic wand to give us railways, roads, canals and power districts practically free that is responsible for so much bad government financing. What public officials, legislators and a large part of the general public fail to realize is that we cannot have anything without paying for it. Some day we must pay back every cent we have borrowed and in the meantime we will have to pay interest on the amount unpaid. All of which will show in the tax rates, as years go on. One reason that it has been so easy to get the "O.K." of legislatures and the voting public on schemes to spend money is that we have not felt the cost of many of our public works to any serious degree as yet. We have not felt the cost because we have not been paying back what we borrowed to build these works.—Financial Post.

A decaying tooth is simply a bone decaying in your mouth. It is present day and night passing out its poisons into your system. How can you expect that you may retain your health with these poisons constantly working into your tissues? Is it any wonder you have rheumatism, neuralgia, affected eyes, ears and heart? Does it seem strange that you should more readily contract contagious diseases than formerly? The teeth are a wonderful adjunct, but uncared for they become the seat of almost numberless human woes.

Plane Carries Plane.
Experiments with a remarkable type of battle plane which carries its own scout machine poised at the tip of one of its wings have been carried out at Farnborough, England. Two big bombing planes have been flying over Aldershot with a miniature airplane fixed to the upper wing. So far it is understood that the tests have been successful. The parent machines have travelled at their usual pace, although the engine of the scout machine was kept running so that it was ready to dive off at a minute's notice to protect the larger and heavier craft. An expert pilot is carried by the bombing plane and as soon as his services are required he climbs through the top wing and takes his seat in the scout plane. By pressing a trigger he frees the smaller machine, which at once glides smoothly along the battle plane wing and dives off.

Net frills trim the smart little cretonne dresses which have come into such favor. They appear around the neck, on vest and along the seam of the sleeves.

In the Realms of Sport.

Owing to the rain Referee Hunt was obliged to postpone the B.I.S.-Salts game last night. If this average of deferred games keeps up it is going to be exceedingly awkward as regards players' vacations. Most of the boys in the runner-up teams swung over their rests until September, but the series are now covering the first week of that month, and in addition there is always the contingency of extra games for a playoff.

To-night's game is between the Felidians and the Stars and promises to be a rattling exhibition. The Felidians will present the same line-up as in their last appearance, but the Stars are bringing on a flock of new and gamey youngsters, who are reputed to be the real-I-ams.

The tall cost of living is far from a joke. The outlook in Europe is awful. The railway debacle doth worry a bloke. And the tariff on sugar's unlawful. You're nicked 20c for a nickel cigar. And more for an opt-a-show vagabond. They've jacked up the ante to ride in a car. And the journey to ruin is rapid. But spite of the troubles that everywhere fit. As dense as the growth of a thicket, Oh Boy! I should worry and throw a wild fit. Bert has sent me a Season Ticket!

If you are staying in town to-morrow it is really incumbent upon you to be present at St. George's Field in the morning at 10.30 to witness the two preliminary 5-inning games between the Wanderers and Cubs, and the Red Lions and B.I.S. The gross proceeds will be devoted to the Garden Party funds in aid of the Church of England Orphanage, and it's up to everyone who possibly can to be present.

What should be one of the fastest and classiest games of ball ever witnessed will be staged to-morrow afternoon when the B.I.S. and Wanderers will clash in the second game of the league fixtures. Dined on ironed yeast, and entirely rejuvenated, is the Wanderers team under the care and guidance of that eminent specialist Dr. Andrew Clouston. The Irishmen have not been doing much shouting but under the magic wand of Bert Channing have been getting in very consistent practices and are as full of pep as year-old colts. The game starts at 2.30 with Mr. Chessman in control.

ADVICE TO BALL PLAYERS.

Pay close attention to everything your manager says, and then use your own judgment. As to blocking a sliding runner: The game will last forever, but your shins won't. Think twice before guying the opposing pitcher. You may have reprieve but he has the bean ball.

This early-to-bed stuff sounds all right, but the nightly argument at Harry's sounds better. The best way to avoid a fight with an umpire is not to let him overtake you.

After the game to-morrow afternoon the crowd are going to the St. Mary's Garden Party at Lester's Field, where an attractive sports programme will be in evidence. If any of the sprinters have not yet entered for the 100 yds., ¼, ½ and 1 mile, they should do so at once to Gordon Pike, Phone 108. Gus Lester is the steward of the course in the pony race, and Fred Brien will control the football fives. The C.L.B. and Guards Bands will furnish the music.

The Football Fives which will take place on to-morrow afternoon at St. Mary's Garden Party, will be played in the following order:

- (a) B.I.S. vs. C.C.C.
 - (b) C.E.I. vs. Highlanders.
 - (c) Star vs. C.L.B.
 - (d) Guards vs. Saints.
 - (e) Felidians (bye).
 - (1) Winners of (a) v. Winners of (b)
 - (2) Winners of (c) v. Winners of (d)
 - (3) Winners of (a) v. Winners of (1)
 - (4) Winners of (2) v. Winners of (3)
- The winners of the Football Fives will be the recipients of a set of Gold Medals, which will be presented at the conclusion of the Sports.

Battle Between Battalions of Big Fish.

Passengers on the Scandinavian liner Frederick VIII, which arrived at New York a few days ago, told a remarkable tale of a grim battle between occupants of the deep, white off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland. The ship was proceeding swiftly in good weather about dawn when the lookout sighted a large school of porpoises ahead. Instead of proceeding as usual in one direction in orderly fashion, describing an occasional graceful arc in the air, the fish plunged madly in all directions, leaping straight in the air and lashing the water to foam. As they became aware of the presence of the ship they quickly gathered closely about it, as though for protection, swimming rapidly alongside to keep pace with it.

Their number was estimated at 200, the largest school any of the crew had ever seen. Suddenly a number of huge black shadows were noted stealing up on the school from behind. The sinister dorsal fin occasionally appearing above the water proclaimed them to be sharks. They gained steadily and finally plunged among the porpoises. Instantly the terror of the latter again became apparent as they strove madly to escape in all directions.

In their confusion they dived wildly against the side of the ship. Some were struck by the on-rushing bow. Others were drawn into propellers.

Meanwhile the sharks continued a methodical campaign of extermination. One after another of the frantic porpoises was ripped by the teeth of the pursuing monsters, and left to be consumed later at leisure.

The fight continued until half the school had been killed when the sharks abandoned the chase.

For an hour after, the porpoises clung to the ship. At last, deciding the danger had passed, they swung off on a course at right angles and disappeared.

Jacoby Hanged.

LADY WHITE AVENGED—LAST MINUTE PETITION.

Henry Jacoby, the murderer of Lady White, was executed at Pentonville Prison on Wednesday morning at nine o'clock. Calm while Mr. Justice McCardie passed sentence of death, calm before the Court of Criminal Appeal, Jacoby remained to the end. At the appointed hour of nine o'clock he walked unaided to the scaffold, and met his death unflinchingly. Ellis was the executioner and the sentence was carried out in the presence of the Governor of the prison, Major Blake, the prison doctor, the chaplain, and the Under-Sheriff, Sir R. Kynaston Metcalfe. Jacoby is understood to have made no statement before the execution.

A crowd of 300 or 400 people gathered outside the prison, and when the clock struck nine a number of them removed their hats. No bell was tolled in accordance with the usual custom, as another prisoner lies in the prison under sentence of death. Jacoby was condemned to death at the Old Bailey on April 28 for the murder of Lady White in a London hotel. He was recommended to mercy by the jury.

Mr. Simon Burns, Jacoby's solicitor, presented a monster petition at the Home Office on Tuesday praying for his reprieve.

After leaving the Home Office the party presenting the petition visited Buckingham Palace, where they saw one of the secretaries. They pleaded before him the grounds of appeal on behalf of Jacoby, and requested the reply that the matter would be given consideration.

Later in the evening the deputation was informed that Mr. Shortt could see no reason to alter his decision. Jacoby was confirmed by the Bishop of Stepney on Tuesday morning in Pentonville Prison chapel.

Messrs. Butcher and Burns on Tuesday received a note from Jacoby thanking them for all they had done for him. The letter concluded: "H.J. 332." Please excuse this curious signature, as it is what I shall be buried under.—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

LEAGUE GAME POSTPONED.—Owing to the inclement weather the League football game Saints vs B.I.S. scheduled for last evening was postponed by referee Hunt, to be played at the end of the season. The contesting teams to-night will be Stars and Felidians. A good game is anticipated.

anywhere that was handy. The starfish has an eye on the tip of each of its five rays or arms, so that it is able to look in all directions at one time. The scallop has numerous eyes placed casually on the edge of its mantle, extending from one end of the animal to the other and forming a semi-circle. Some marine worms have eyes in clusters, not only on the head, but extending along each side of the body, even to the tip of the tail, and they are connected individually and directly with the median nervous cord.

In spiders and scorpions there are usually eight or ten eyes in one or more clusters on the dorsal aspect of that part of the body which is formed by the union of the head and thorax. The dragon fly possesses eyes composed of an aggregate of 50,000 smaller eyes, an arrangement similar to that of the common house fly, which, however, has to get along with a mere 10,000.

In the lower forms there are found many infusoria which have neither eyes nor nerves, but which are, nevertheless, sensitive to light, either seeking or avoiding it.—Kansas City Star.

Why They Changed Stores. Home Buckley, speaking in Chicago recently reported the analysis of the reasons influencing an average hundred persons to change store patronage: Sixty-eight changed because of store indifference. Nine because of better service elsewhere. Three because other stores are more convenient. Fourteen because of unadjusted prices. Five were influenced by friends to go elsewhere; and one died.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

CANADA'S RAILWAY EARNINGS.

TORONTO, Ont., June 20. The annual report of the Canadian National Railways, issued to-day, shows that gross earnings increased by one million last year, with passenger receipts down ten and one-half per cent, and freight revenue up 12 per cent. The net deficit on operations was sixteen millions, reduced by half from the previous year. The President's report says the system is in better condition than ever before.

MAJORITY FOR TREATY.

DUBLIN, June 20. Results of the elections are still incomplete, and final figures in some important constituencies will not be announced until Wednesday afternoon. Including all uncontested seats the results are known in the case of one hundred members. Of these the pro-Treaty panel won 30, which, with uncontested seats, gives them a total of forty-seven. The anti-Treaty panel survived in thirteen seats, which, with uncontested seats, gives them thirty. Successes of Independents have thus far been generally far more severely than the others. All told, of the first hundred elected, seventy support the Treaty and thirty oppose it. No member of the Provisional Government so far, has gone down to defeat.

WHERE IS THE LEAGUE?

LONDON, June 21. War has broken out between Russia and Afghanistan, as a result of an anti-Bolshevik movement in Turkestan, according to a Telegraph dispatch.

MORE DISORDERS.

BELFAST, June 21. More cases of shooting and incendiarism occurred last night, the casualties being two killed and four wounded. A bomb thrown into a room, where five women were sitting, wrecked the furniture but did not injure the women.

AGAINST HIS WILL.

CINCINNATI, June 21. A movement has been launched here to run President Lewis of the American Federation of Labor, though Lewis has declared he is not a candidate.

CHILDERS DEFEATED.

DUBLIN, June 21. Eirike Childers, a strong opponent of the Treaty, was defeated in Kiltara, Wicklow Division, where Colman and Everett, both Labor, and Byrne, Panel Treatite, was elected. Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister of Propaganda and supporter of the Treaty, was elected in Dublin County.

ONE RESULT.

TORONTO, June 21. The net deficit carried on the balance sheet of Canadian National Railways at the end of 1921, was $15,157,760.

In constituencies where there were contests on Friday, fifteen have already been decided. Results announced to-day show the removal of the best known personalities in Dall Eireann, and the possible effects of their defeats are being widely discussed. Of six women members, all Anti-Treaty, only Mary MacSwiney survived in the contests, and Mrs. Kate O'Callaghan, who was returned unopposed. Mrs. Peavey, whose two sons were executed for their part in Easter week rebellion 1916, was defeated in County Dublin.

Ill-Treated Child.

SCENE ON BANNERMAN STREET. A scene was created on Bannerman Street about 1 p.m. to-day and rumours of a murder were flying everywhere. The cause was found to be the ill-treatment of her step-daughter by a Mrs. Harry Gardiner, a resident of the street. The woman beat her ten year old step-child with a strap to which a buckle was attached, splitting the youngster's head open. With blood streaming down her face the child rushed out, screaming into the street. Within a few minutes hundreds of people had gathered round the neighbourhood and the police had to be called to regulate traffic.

A Fair Exchange.

TOOK FUR FOR WAGES.

A young girl was charged before Judge Morris this morning with the larceny of jewellery and clothing from a house in which she was a domestic servant. Accused pleaded guilty only to the larceny of a fur. She took this, she said, because there were wages due her. The mistress told accused that she would not pay her full wages because she was not worth it. Mr. McGrath for the plaintiff said his client did not wish to press for punishment. A statement made by the accused was put in. She claimed plaintiff owed her $23. The Judge said that if the plaintiff owed accused any wages she had her civil remedies. She had no right to take the fur. The case was dismissed.

Japanese Metals.

The Japanese are famed not only for their skill in making decorative articles, but also for the beauty of the materials used. It is said that the secret of the composition of some of their alloys of brass and copper has only lately been revealed. The finest Japanese brass, called "shinchi," consists of 10 parts of copper and five of zinc. Another very beautiful alloy, named "shadiko," to which splendid hues are imparted by treatment with acids, is formed by mixing gold and copper, the proportion of gold varying from 1 to 10 per cent. of the entire mass.—Washington Star.

The Burnstein Case.

The hearing in the Burnstein case arising out of an injunction order occupied the attention of Mr. Justice Kent, in Supreme Court Chambers this forenoon. Burnstein was ejected by the Supreme Court Bailiffs from a premises on Water Street some time ago. After the Bailiffs had removed the goods from the premises in question Burnstein again took possession and has since held it. An injunction pending further action was issued by the Court on the application of Mr. L. E. Emerson, who represents Alleen Twyden and James Anthony Proude agents of the property. The case to-day was an application that the injunction granted by the Court June 16th, 1922, be continued until after the trial of an action, or until a further order, and that the costs of this application and of the application made by the plaintiffs on the 16th day of June be costs in the cause.

Mr. L. E. Emerson for the plaintiffs stated that during the interim all the revenue from the property which was a valuable one had ceased. Mr. Burnstein who appeared on his own behalf made a plea that no writ had been served on him, and went on with a statement that the Bailiffs had broken into his place at 6 o'clock in the morning. The trial judge stopped the witness telling him that the incident he was speaking about had nothing to do with the present action, which was for an injunction of restraint.

Mr. Justice Kent—"Did Bailiff Roll serve you with a writ on the 19th June?" Burnstein—"No." Bailiff Roll called, sworn and examined. He deposed to serving a writ on the defendant on Monday, June 19th, at 4.30 p.m. Mr. Burnstein replied that this was but a day or two ago and that he was referring to the time that the bailiffs came and dispossessed him. Their action was illegal, said Mr. Burnstein.

Mr. Justice Kent—"That has nothing to do with the present action. Did you break into the place since it was taken possession of by order of the Court?"

Mr. Burnstein did not reply and was called to the witness stand. After being sworn he reiterated his statement adding that his means of livelihood had been left in the building. Mr. Justice Kent again had to stop the recital, and asked, "Did you or did you not break in and take possession of the premises after receiving the order of the Court?"

Mr. Burnstein—"I went in after my goods."

Mr. Justice Kent—"When an order of this Court is made it has to be obeyed."

The continuation of the injunction was granted. Up to this afternoon Mr. Burnstein had possession of the place.

Mrs. Cleary's Fancy Dress Ball has been postponed until further notice.—June 21st

A packed house greeted the Manhattan Musical Comedy Company at the Casino Theatre last evening at the second performance of their very entertaining Vaudeville Revue. The entertainment was varied enough to please the most fastidious and rounds of applause greeted each number. The programme opened with a chorus, followed by a duet in which Miss Charles La Rose and Miss Daisy Ford appeared to great advantage. "The Little Red School House," one of their hits, received great applause. Mr. Henry White rendered several solos which proved a treat. He was in splendid form and held his audience enraptured during the renditions. The sketch "Christy's Cure" in which Miss Marguerite Torry and Henry White acted, was exceptionally clever. Miss Clara Thropp as the wife finding the empty note in hubby's pants pocket was room for a display of her versatility as a character actress. Her twenty minutes of splendid entertainment was given by Teddy Wilde, conjuring tricks and witticisms being rounds of applause. Miss O'Connell in the voice sang "The Land of Blue Water," and "I Love You Baby." The applause was so prolonged that she had to give two encores "Butterfly" and "Moments." Mr. James LaRose was given a wonderful reception, and had to respond to several requests. His contributions were "The La Gubba," "The Sing Three Girls of Araby," "The Rosary," and "The Old Pal of Mine." The Incense was by Miss Marguerite Torry, performed amidst a stage setting to which its effect, was perhaps given the greatest applause of any item on the programme. Miss Geraldine Edgar attracted the audience by her remarkable skill with the violin. She had responded many times. The vaudeville act "Shipwrecked" brought rounds of laughter and applause. The item, a travesty entitled "The Rehearsal" rounded out a well planned programme. Teddy Wilde scored in this turn as he directed from a podium a dress rehearsal of a musical. Rounds of applause greeted her taking part. The Revue is being presented to-night and no doubt another full house will greet this talented company.

Obituary.

The grim reaper death has at last visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Halleran of this city and almost unaware snatched from them in the prime of youth their darling and only son, Alexander Lenos, aged 10 years. He was a pupil of St. Bon's College and was noted for being very bright and active. Only one short week previous to his death he engaged in a drive around the city and wind-up by visiting the Campus grounds. He bid his last farewell where he loved so often with gladness and he fought hard to live until his moments. But he was not destined to the strife, his feet were not to tread for long the hard path of this world of tears. By his sad and beautiful death he leaves to mourn their father, mother and two little boys and many friends. Funeral services will be held on Friday from his late residence, 37 Gower Street. Friends and acquaintances please attend with further notice.

The June-July WHITE SALES

Bottomley.
HIS LIFE IN PRISON—AN APPEAL LODGED.

Mr. Horatio Bottomley has lodged an appeal in the office of the Court of Criminal Appeal against his conviction and sentence. In consequence of the vacation of 10 days, it is scarcely possible that the appeal can be heard before the third week of June. Meanwhile the prisoner is being held in custody in hospital (the usual course with an appellant against conviction) at Wormwood Scrubs Prison.

Mr. Bottomley, who invariably attended Epsom in style, spent his Derby Day in the solitude of a prison infirmary cubicle. He was awake early, having passed a restless night, and when his frugal breakfast was served he remarked to the warder what a heavenly afternoon the crowds would enjoy at Epsom.

The meal consisted of two slices of bread and butter and a mug of tea. There was a trace of emotion in his voice as he mentioned the Derby, says the Evening Standard, for in his time he has had his financial stake in the event on many occasions, added to which his own colours—vermillion and black—had scored minor successes in the Epsom meetings.

Mr. Bottomley's first visitors on Derby Day were the governor of the prison, accompanied by the doctor.

The medical examination showed that he is still suffering from the effects of nervous exhaustion. He complained of the great heat and said how much he would like to be in the open air.

After the governor's visit he put on his prison jacket and trousers and the disc bearing his identity number.

He delved into his appeal papers and made copious notes, which he talked over later in the day with Mr. J. A. Richardson, his solicitor.

Mr. Bottomley seems confident about his ultimate success of his appeal. If it falls it will be followed by a great petition to the Home Secretary praying for a remission of the sentence on account of his health and age.

In his pocket when he was convicted recently were six grand stand tickets for the racing at Epsom.

Mr. Horatio Bottomley on Friday applied through counsel to the Judge in Chambers, at the High Court for bail in order that he might the better prepare his case for appeal. The application was refused.

Mr. Lloyd Richardson, Mr. Bottomley's solicitor, has described to the Sunday Pictorial an interview which took place at Wormwood Scrubs between Mr. Bottomley and his wife and daughter, the latter being the wife of Mr. Jeff Cohn, a well-known racing man. "Mr. Bottomley's wife," said Mr. Richardson, "was overcome with grief and Mr. Bottomley was much affected."—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

A Friend of the Birds.

On the Shetland Islands, there are vast numbers of birds which, if they were not protected, would be killed off by those who are greedy for their eggs and their skins. Whole species might become extinct.

On one island the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds keeps a watcher for half the year during the period of danger. He lives in a little hut, facing the Atlantic gales, and here he has spent his summers for 33 years.

It is his love for the birds which has helped Mr. Edvardson through these long seasons of exile. The birds crowd round the door of his hut to be fed.

He has the companionship of his friends, and he has the satisfaction of knowing that, by reason of his watching, they are increasing in number.

Cut Your Fuel Bills 1/3

You should know how important it is to weather strip your house and buildings. Weatherstrips keep out cold and actually save one third of your fuel expense. Fuel is as high as ever and there is very little chance that its cost will come down soon. It is too expensive to waste.

Not only can you keep out cold by installing Ceco Metal Weatherstrips, but your house is kept free from dust, dirt and soot, and the disturbance of street noises.

Ceco Metal Weatherstrips are economically installed, they last as long as the building. They are cheaper than storm and door seals and are far more effective.

No matter whether your house is in the process of construction or old as the hills, let us show you without obligation the convenience and effectiveness of this most practical weather strip on the market.

WHAT SEALS OUR LIPS.

To whom do you find it easier to say gracious things, words of praise and admiration to those of your household or to friends and acquaintances?

Couldn't Believe It. You can imagine how that astonished me. I could hardly believe she meant it at first. Fanny Mrs. Damon, who sometimes bored us by the monotony of her praises, having nothing but fault-finding and criticisms to say to the object of those praises!

But Rachel stuck to it. And when I told her how very differently her mother spoke of her to others it was equally hard for her to believe my story. It was simply a case of one of those strange inhibitions which keep us from saying the gracious things we think to those whom we love. Another time I heard a woman complain that her sister was always praising other people's children but never had a good word to say to her about her own nephews and nieces.

Yet She Adores. Yet I happen to know that that woman adores her nephews and nieces, thinks there are no children equal to them, is constantly telling other people how bright and cunning they are. And yet she finds it hard to say those things to the one who would like most to hear them.

These are exaggerated cases but I think many of us suffer from these inhibitions to some extent. Why is it, I wonder?

Breaking Burglars' Hearts. Have you ever been inside the strong room of a bank? Those of the newest type are both fireproof and burglar-proof. The walls, floor, and ceiling consist of great masses of concrete in which are embedded steel rods. Should a burglar undertake the task of boring through one of these walls, the hard steel breaks his heart by breaking his drills one after another.

Not a scrap of wood is used, every fitting—even the door and window frames—being of thin steel. There is nothing in the room that can catch fire.

Besides the huge locks that open with a key, the doors of the safes have an automatic fastening regulator. When he closes the door the manager shoots a second set of bolts. Then he sets the controlling clock to open them at a certain hour the next day. Once the door has been unlocked its great mass, weighing four or five tons, can be pushed open with a finger, so delicately is it balanced upon its hinges.

Magna Charta.

Editor Evening Telegram.

"Dear Sir,—With 'Citizen's' prodigality of historical knowledge, he surely admits his ignorance as to the manner in which King John was forced to sign the Great Charter of English Liberties. Does he not know that the barons assembled at Runnymede 'under arms,' and by their formidable appearance forced King John to give reluctant assent to their demands. Arms do not always suggest bloodshed excepting to sanguinary minds, and 'Citizen' must be the unenviable possessor of one of these. The magnanimity of his forgiveness is overpowering.

Yours truly,
SCHOOLBOY.

June 20, 1922.

Quite Right.

The prizes had been given out, and the children stood in bored silence as the headmistress introduced a famous speaker who was noted for his patriotic fervour.

Towards the end of his discourse he waxed eloquent. "And now, children," he cried, "if you saw your glorious flag waving triumphantly over the battlefield, what would you think?"

There was a prolonged pause, and the speaker smiled genially. "Come," he said, encouragingly, "won't someone answer?"

A voice from the back broke the silence. "Please, gov-nor, I'd think the wind was blowin'."

An Aid to Pathos. The manager of a certain travelling company played the leading part in the majority of the plays he put on.

In one town it happened that the company met with very little success, the theatre being almost empty every night. In consequence the box-office returns were practically nil.

On Thursday night the takings were the worst of all, the audience comprising only about forty or fifty people, most of whom were in the cheapest seats.

When the performance was half over, the man who looked after the tickets approached the manager as the latter was about to go on the stage.

"What time shall I bring you the box-office receipts, sir?" he asked. The manager stared at him blankly for a moment.

"Oh," he retorted, "just before I go on in my pathetic scene."

Kings Who Were Cruel
Secret Misery of Royal Mothers.

(From THE BITES.)
"He loved to persecute the poor girl who had fallen into his clutches. It delighted him to see the tears tickling down her cheeks, and it caused him to shout with glee when his unfortunate wife, with her children, shrank from his evil glances."
This is not a description of a villain in modern fiction. It is a picture of the savage ways of Ferdinand of Bulgaria, an unmitigated scoundrel, a treacherous companion, a coward and a bully, to continue the biographer's description. When, in 1892, he set out on a tour to find a wife, he found most of the royal houses closed against him. His unsavory reputation made his fellow-rulers shrink from the idea of a closer alliance.
His hypocrisy, however, deceived Princess Marie Louise of Parma, a gentle, timid, and very religious girl, who was connected with most of the reigning families of Europe. Posing as a religious patriot, he persuaded her to accept him. Disillusionment soon came. Shortly after her marriage she learned of her horror that he was trying to make love to her chief lady-in-waiting. She remonstrated and was met with curses and blows. Ferdinand struck her across the mouth. It was the first blow she had received from him, but it was by no means the last.
Worse followed. Not content with striking her, Ferdinand told his wife something of the truth. He boasted of the women who had fallen under his sway and told her anecdotes of his early life in Vienna which filled her with horror. That night she realized to the full the hideous mistake she had made in marrying him.

KICKED HIS OWN CHILD.
Ferdinand threw off all disguise. He insisted that she should be pleasant to his intimate friend, an ex-officer who had been convicted of murder of the foulest and most treacherous kind. Apparently she did not hide her hostility sufficiently, "because in the early hours of the morning her shrieks were heard throughout the palace. The terrified servants were on the point of bursting into the royal bedroom to rescue her when Ferdinand himself appeared in the corridor and the cries ceased. But Marie did not appear outside her room for over a week." Children were born, but they made no difference to his brutality. On one occasion, little Prince Boris, his eldest son, thinking his father was going to strike her, tried to interpose his frail body between his father and mother. Ferdinand kicked the child across the room. With a shriek, Marie stooped to pick up the half-conscious boy, but Ferdinand struck her in the face, and she measured her length on the floor.
So the misery of poor Marie continued. She got so accustomed to Ferdinand's blows and kicks that she ceased to complain. She only prayed silently for death. On Jan. 20, 1899, she gave birth to her fourth child. 24 hours later Ferdinand was a widower. He had to all intents and purposes, murdered his wife.
Sad and sorrowful, too, is the story of the marriage of Emma, queen regent of Holland, until her daughter, Wilhelmina, became of age.

WIDOWER'S GIRL BRIDE.
In order to spite his brother, Prince Henry, William III. of Holland, a jealous, crabby old widower, decided to marry again. His choice fell upon Emma, the twenty-year-old daughter of the reigning Prince of Waldeck and Pyrmont.
"Carried away by the enthusiasm of her parents," says Mr. Charles Kingston in "Royal Romances and Tragedies" (Stanley Paul), "Princess Emma agreed to obey them and marry the old king. Of course, she was not told how he had behaved to his first wife. She was unaware that on several occasions the king's ministers had had to intervene to prevent him from assaulting his consort. A girl of twenty was not expected to hear the gossip of the Hague, and so she went to her doom in ignorance."
The real character of William was revealed when he stole his brother's wife because (although he was a millionaire six times over) he had learned that Prince Henry's widow, a bride of four months, was to have everything. With his grasping, miserly spirit, he determined to have the wealth himself.
Emma tried to persuade him to renounce his widow an allowance. Then he became so threatening that she fled from him shrieking. Emma returned to send her 2500. Hearing of this, William threatened to take away her child and send her back to her parents if she did not get the money back again. It was an effective threat.

REFINED CRUELTY.
The brutalities of her husband aged Emma before her time. She knew only curses and ill-treatment. Wilhelmina at ten years of age learnt to keep out of her father's way. She was terrified, at the sight of his blood-red face, and cruel menacing expression. To the end William ill-treated his wife, and when on Nov. 23, 1890, his death was announced, every decent person's thought was one of congratulation to the widow. Emma was queen-regent until 1898, and since the child's accession to full powers she has naturally led a more retired life. But she still retains the affections of the Dutch, who have not forgotten how much she suffered during her eleven years of matrimony.
The marital suffering of the Empress Elizabeth of Austria, consort of the late Francis Joseph, were prolonged and poignant. Joseph hated his wife from the moment, five weeks after their marriage, when she discovered his infidelities. Elizabeth said to a friend thirty years later, "Some thing snapped within me when I knew that my husband was not all that I thought he was, and I have never been the same since."
Francis Joseph did not adopt the brutal methods of the Bulgarian bully when he wished to display his displeasure towards his wife. He was more refined, but none the less cruel. He insisted that she should observe the iron etiquette of the Court, which decreed that she must give twenty-four hours' notice if she wanted to see her babies.

SEPARATED FROM HER BABIES.
Ultimately, on the advice of the court physician, he gave way a little. But even when the visit took place "It was not the case of happy little children welcoming their mother with cries of delight. What actually happened was quite different. First the royal governess had the children dressed in stiff, ceremonial clothing, and then drilled in the way they were to receive their mother. On the appearance of the Empress the tiny tots, who, under the Austrian system of education, had no chance to be human, simply bowed as though they were elderly courtiers.
"No wonder Elizabeth refused to take part in the absurd ceremony no more often than it was absolutely necessary. It sickened her to think she could not fondle her own babies, and that almost from the day of their birth they were strangers to her.
Gradually Elizabeth avoided her husband, particularly after he tried to get her shut up in lunatic asylums. Now and then she would stand by his side at a reception; but finally she left him to find consolation in travel. The curtain to this miserable royal domestic drama came down at Geneva on September 10th, 1898. Elizabeth was walking along the quay leading to the landing stage at Geneva, where the steamer was awaiting her, when an anarchist named Luocheni sprang at her and drove a shoemaker's awl into her heart. The poor woman staggered, but managed to keep her feet, and only when she reached the steamer did she sit down. Then she asked: "What is it?"—the next moment she was dead.

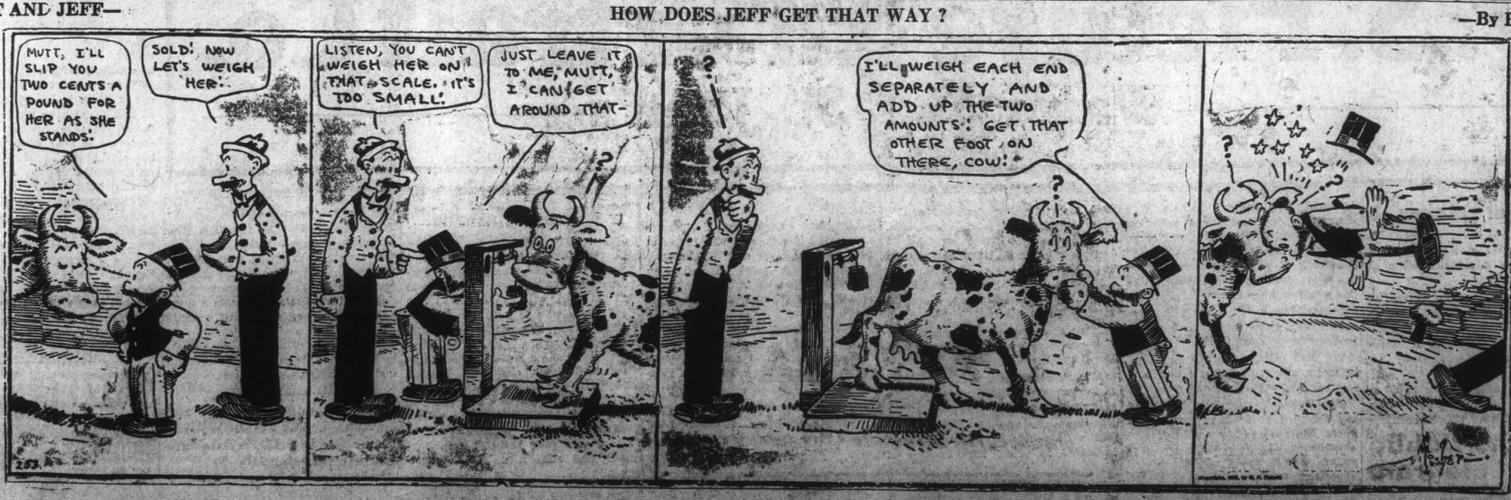

Heiress and Pedlar.
Should an heiress marry a pedlar to whom she was betrothed at the age of two? This is the question now before the courts at Pekin in a breach of promise case which has been brought by a man who peddles wares in the streets of the city. At the time of the betrothal (an age-old Chinese custom) the families of both the man and the girl were equally well off. Later, the man's family lost its fortune and he became a street pedlar, while the girl's father became a high and wealthy official in one of the Government Ministries. Not long ago the heiress passed the pedlar's pitch while driving in her rickshaw, and he recognized her as his betrothed. Hastening to her home to claim his promised bride, he found that her father had advanced her to a rich man, and preparations for the wedding were in progress. He has now sued the Government official for breach of promise, and it remains for the court to decide whether poverty constitutes sufficient cause for the annulment of engagements.

Windmill Stores
"Juice" for 11 Days.
Although there have been many attempts made to harness the wind to generate electric power, yet work along this line is still in the experimental stage as far as actual farm installations are concerned. Thus considerable interest is attached to the announcement made by a windmill manufacturer that he has at last succeeded in constructing a model that, he believes, will meet all the requirements in this special line. The combined windmill, generator and storage battery outfit is described and illustrated in Popular Mechanics Magazine. On the main casting at the top of the tower is mounted a 1-kw. generator. It is geared directly to the shaft of a 14-foot steel windmill. The spur gears are carried on roller bearings, the entire reduction gearing running in an oil bath. The generator gives a constant voltage over a speed variation ranging from 750 to 2800 r.p.m. The storage battery has a capacity of 280 ampere-hours and will store enough electricity to operate the lights on an average farm for 11 successive days without wind. This is a condition of weather seldom, if ever, encountered.

Increases the action of the intestines
Hundreds of men and women have already found freedom from laxatives by eating Fleischmann's fresh yeast.
Doctors are now agreed that proper elimination of waste matter should be brought about by food. One doctor comes right out and states plainly that the indiscriminate use of cathartics is one of the causes of constipation.
Physicians all over the country are recommending Fleischmann's fresh yeast because it is a fresh food, rich in those elements which keep the intestines healthy. In one series of tested cases, normal functions were restored in from 3 days to 5 weeks.
"Try it out for yourself. Begin today by adding 2 or 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast to your everyday diet. Keep it up and see how normal and regular your intestines act. Be sure it's Fleischmann's Yeast—the familiar tin-foil package with the yellow label. Place a standing order with your grocer."

First Nurse in History
The word "nurse" is derived from the Latin, and means "to nourish." There is no reference to a nurse in the Bible, although numerous children's nurses are mentioned.
Fabiola, the first nurse recorded in history, was a Roman woman who established a hospital and convalescent home for the poor after her conversion to Christianity, about A.D. 380. She inaugurated a society of sick women, and had them trained as nurses.
Nurses, who are addressed as "sisters" on account of the old religious traditions associated with their work, lost their professional dignity in 1544, when twelve women were engaged at St. Bartholomew's Hospital to nurse the sick and perform menial work.
From that time nurses were trained until the doctors at the New York Hospital began to lecture them on "scientific cleanliness" in 1790.
Florence, at Kaiserswerth, Germany, opened the first scientific training school for nurses in 1836. Florence Nightingale was trained at his establishment, and introduced his methods into this country.

MIDDLE AGE CUSTOMS REVIVED.

BELGRADE. (Associated Press.)

All the customs of the romantic days of the Middle Ages were revived for the wedding here June 8 of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Princess Marie of Rumania. The Rumanian Princess, the most comely and talented of Queen Marie's large family and the third of her children to be married within a year, sailed up the Danube on a gorgeous float to Belgrade, accompanied by the entire Rumanian Family. In the medieval citadel overlooking the river at Belgrade, King Alexander who sought the hand of more than one other Princess before becoming affianced to Princess Marie, met her on horseback. Together they went to the Palace where he presented her to his court. Then the couple drove to the cathedral for the solemn Orthodox Greek religious service. After the ceremony in the cathedral, which was performed by the Serbian Patriarch, a procession of deputations from the various Serbian provinces, dressed in national costumes, passed before the King and Queen. There were floats and pageants—symbolic of Serbia's greatest historic events, going back to the Czar Douchan's time when the Slavs held dominion over a great part of Europe. Young girls from Bosnia-Herzegovina, Slovenia, Croatia, Dalmatia, Montenegro and Macedonia passed in procession and presented the bride with sprays of rosemary, the traditional harbinger of good luck.

ROYAL RECEPTION.

After these ceremonies the King and Queen held a reception for the Diplomatic and Consular Corps and the representatives of foreign courts and governments, and in the evening there was a formal dinner at the palace, followed by a gala ball. The royal couple then went to a castle at Beed, Slovenia, for their honeymoon. Nearly all the sovereigns of Europe were represented at the wedding. Besides King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Rumania, King Constantine and Queen Sophia of Greece were present. King George of England was represented by the Duke of York, who acted as best man to King Alexander. The Kings of Italy, Spain, Belgium, Norway, the Shah of Persia, the Emperor of Japan, and the heads of state of other countries were represented by titled personages or special ambassadors. Marshal Franchet d'Esperey represented France.

THE BRIDEGROOM.

King Alexander is 34 years old and his bride 22. Next to King Boris of Bulgaria, Alexander, who is the son of Peter Karageorgievitch, the late Serbian ruler. He is Europe's youngest reigning sovereign. The young King's mother died when he was four years old and he has never known family life. For 12 years before he ascended the throne, he served as a soldier and therefore never had a chance to make himself a home. His brother George, who is living in Paris, and who renounced his rights to the throne 12 years ago, did not attend the wedding. Reared in a democratic and catholic atmosphere, the young ruler is essentially one of his people. He is affable and approachable. Although he has no artistic tastes, he is fond of literature, and is an enthusiast on the subject of numismatics. He is of small physical proportions and in complexion is extremely dark. While he cannot be said to be handsome, he has a pleasing face and an engaging manner.

THE BRIDE.

Princess Marie is a charming, vivacious girl, with blonde hair and blue eyes. Like her mother, she is an accomplished linguist, painter and musician. She is fond of outdoor sports, especially tennis, football, horseback

Why He Disliked It.

The building was one of singular magnificence—large, handsome, and well-proportioned. The architect had evidently lavished all his skill and art upon the exterior. "Ah," said a man to his friend, as they walked by, "what a superb structure!" "Yes, it is indeed," returned the other; "but I cannot bear to look at it." "Why not?" asked his friend. "Because," replied the other, with warmth, "it reminds me that the owner built it out of the ashes, the groans of his fellow-men, the grief of crying children, the walls and moans of poor, defenceless women, the howls and lamentations—" "Gracious!" exclaimed his friend. "What is the owner? A money-lender—an oppressor of the poor?" "No, no," burst out his friend; "worse—worse than that! He—he is a dentist!"

"Madonnas and Men"; A Massive Production.

WILL BE SHOWN AT THE NICKEL NEXT MONDAY.

"Madonnas and Men," an unusually massive and elaborate motion picture production that caused enthusiastic comment from press and public at its premier presentation recently in New York, has been specially booked for the Nickel Theatre and is to be shown beginning Monday next.

"Madonnas and Men" boasts of one of the most impressive casts ever assembled for a feature production. Ervan Borrows Fontaine, who won great favor as the world-famous "Ziegfeld Follies" appears as a dancing girl. Edmond Lowe, one of Belasco's leading men, has a strong role in this production. Fatre Binney appears in a captivating role. Beautiful Raye Dean is presented in a wonderfully effective part. Anders Randolph has the finest role of his successful career and Gustav Von Seyffritz appears in the most remarkable piece of character acting ever witnessed. In addition there are large numbers of minor players with thousands appearing in many of the big scenes.

Sirs,—I feel that I should be doing a wrong if I neglected to write you. I have had four tumors growing on my head for years. I had them cut off by a surgeon about fifteen years ago but they grew again till about three months ago I had one as large and shaped like a lady's thimble, on the very place where my hair should be parted, and it was getting so embarrassing in public that it was a constant worry to me. About three months ago I got a bottle of your liniment for another purpose and saw on the label good for tumors. Well I tried it and kept at it for exactly two months, with the result that it has entirely removed all trace of the tumor, and were it not that they had been cut fifteen years ago, no mark would be seen. I have not been asked for this testimonial and you can use it as you see fit.

Fire and Thief Gun.

Poison gas in some form or other is apparently being applied in Germany for domestic uses, judging from an advertisement in a Berlin paper, says an illustrated article in the Popular Mechanics Magazine. A picture of a pistol, that looks very much like an automatic with an enlarged barrel is described as being for protection against fire and burglars. The means of protection is not mentioned, but presumably it is something on the order of the ordinary chemical extinguisher and is operated by pulling a trigger instead of turning it upside down.

Friends Tell

Her How Well She Now Looks

"What Tanlac Did For My Wife Is Nothing Less Than Astonishing," Declares Halifax Citizen.

"My wife suffered for ten years from stomach trouble but Tanlac has completely restored her health," said John Bonzang, 33 John St., Halifax, N.S. Mr. and Mrs. Bonzang have lived in Halifax thirty-five years, and are widely known and highly respected. "Mrs. Bonzang's main trouble was indigestion," he continued. "Her appetite was very poor and she could retain but very little she ate. What she did retain caused gas on her stomach so bad she could hardly breathe. Nearly every day she had dull headaches, was very nervous and would roll and toss for hours at night, getting hardly any sleep. In spite of constantly taking medicine she lost weight and kept getting worse."

"What Tanlac has done for her is astonishing. Her appetite is splendid; she has gained in weight and does her household easily. Her friends are always speaking of how well she looks. We are both deeply grateful to Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

When Birds Make Love.

What we call the "song" of the bird—the melodious sounds which it makes with its throat—is really the courtship or love-making of the male bird, which seeks in this manner to attract his mate and to make himself more pleasing in her eyes.

This love-making goes on from early in the spring until after the eggs of the mother-bird have been hatched, but in the great majority of cases, it ceases as soon as the young birds have pecked their way out of the shell.

In the case of the nightingale—renowned as the greatest of singers—the male charms his mate with the sound of his voice during the period when he is courting her, during the time the nest is being built, and even after the eggs have been laid.

A Hoarse Croak.

As soon as the little nightingales emerge from their shells, the song of the father changes to a hoarse guttural croak, as if he were anxious and alarmed over the safety of his offspring. But if the nest and the little nightingales are destroyed, the father once more commences to sing, as gloriously as before, and continues this until a new family is born.

The process of singing is, of course, the same as with a human being. The vocal muscles are expanded and contracted, and the waves of air passing over the delicate membranes produce the harmony. But, unlike human beings, the great majority of birds do not have to be taught to sing.

All who love beauty of movement, exquisite grace and the poetry of motion should see Miss Torrey's wonderful Incense Dance. It is a masterpiece.

What She Meant.

The class was asked by the teacher to give the first letter of the name of a flower, and she would complete it.

One pupil said "R."

The teacher guessed "Rose" correctly.

Several others followed, with the same result, until one little girl said "O."

The teacher guessed, but all in vain. After trying several names, she gave it up, and asked the author of the poser what flower she had in mind.

Very proudly the ingenious scholar rose to her feet and glanced scathingly at the ignorant teacher.

"I means 'Oilly'ock'!" she cried.

Thought the show would be an all-night one last night. The audience demanded repeated encores. Miss Oswald sang four times and Mr. Liddy four times. Billy Clifton had to warn the crowd about the anti-noise law in order to get off the stage.

If custard sauce is served with gelatine, the dessert seems to have more body.

For lady fingers and other fine cakes use a fine granulated sugar.

News Every Day Now.

Ever since it was taken possession of by Britain in 1817 the tiny island of Tristan da Cunha, in the South Atlantic Ocean, has been dependent on passing ships for the news of the world.

It is about 1,600 miles from the Cape of Good Hope and a good deal farther than that from Cape Horn.

Now the population of about a hundred will get news every day, and will know as quickly about important events in all quarters of the globe as if they lived in one of the great capitals. They have been presented by the people of Cape Town, with a wireless set to keep them in touch with ships crossing to the South Atlantic and also with the mainland of South Africa.

Thus the little speck in the vast expanse of sea which served as a watching station upon St. Helena when Napoleon was a captive there, and where half a dozen British soldiers and whalers started a colony after the garrison had been withdrawn in 1821, will no longer be cut off as it has been. Wireless has abolished its isolation.

The Terrible Truth.

He looked weary and haggard, and when his wife met him in the hall her heart was full of fear.

"Tell me the worst," she implored.

"Oh, Edwina, I'm ready to hear anything! What has happened? Have you fallen in business?"

"No, my dear—not that."

He buried his head in his hands and looked the picture of despair.

"Then you are ill! You have got another attack of that dreadful indigestion?"

"I'm not ill," he answered, stonily.

GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

"No; it is not that."

"This suspense is terrible!" she said. "It is killing me, Edwina. Tell me all—everything! I am ready to know the worst! Has your mother died?"

He looked at her sadly.

"Oh, my darling," he cried, taking her hand, "that—that button I told you about has got tired of hanging on one thread. Here it is!"

morrow (Thursday) will be observed throughout the world as the Day of Intercession for the G.F.S. There will be a celebration of Holy Communion in the Cathedral at 7 a.m. with an address by Canon Bayly.

"The Dress Rehearsal" is a screen from start to finish. Watch Teddie Wilde direct it from the audience. Miss Oswald rimes, Miss Thropp threatens Mr. White "Curses" and Mr. Liddy drags his shovel around like a ghost on a chain. The climax is a corker.

Receivers Appointed

GORTON-FEW FISHERIES.

J. Guild, of Cambridge, and J. Santry, of Boston, were appointed receivers for the Gorton-Few Fisheries Co., of Gloucester, by Anderson of the Federal Bank Court, Boston, on May 22nd. Guild is the treasurer and Santry is the general manager. Both were qualified in $25,000 and gave their assurance to the stockholders and creditors that they would co-operate in the concern on a profit-paying basis.

This arrangement of the receivers and preferred stockholders to participate in the management of the company which they claim not to have during the past two years, when the company has been in control of banks, to about 100,000 of which the company is indebted on notes which aggregate $2,000,000. These banks have control of the common stock of the company.

Under the general industrial plan, the falling off in demands for the practical elimination of foreign demand, and lack of capital, the company had been unable to meet its obligations and further continuation being secured by the banks interested in the majority of the common stock and their own executive staff in conducting the business. Losses during the year were $2,000,000, and last year were $2,000,000, although the budget for the year had forecast a profit of $350,000 or so. Judge Anderson in granting the receivership that he would call the company solvent, "although the evidence could be taken to mean insolvent just about as well, depending on the viewpoint of value."

Some of the named assets are easily identifiable. The company has the running of this company continued, "there is going to be a very radical cut down on the cost. There must be the most economical kind of management cost cut. This is by way of a warning." Mr. Cunningham, representing the stockholders, declared to the court the appointment of receivers as a continuation of the present management and not a foreclosure in a short time. The receivership, by M. McMullin, a New Jersey lawyer, was a friendly one, and so was sought in the equity court by the company and not for its bankruptcy. Some of the stockholders dissented.—N. Y. Fishing News.

Belgrade Was En Fete.

THE FEATURES AT ROYAL WEDDING.

BELGRADE (Associated Press)—The wedding features were introduced at the wedding, on June 8, of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Princess Marie of Rumania. The marriage ceremony was preceded and followed by festivities covering five days in which the people of both cities participated. The Rumanian Royal family left Bucharest by train for Orsova, on the Danube, where they embarked on the Royal yacht for Belgrade. The party was met at the Danube by monitors from the Yugoslav and Rumanian navies, arriving at Belgrade there was an official and national reception, followed by a procession of delegates from the Yugoslav colonies through the streets and decorated with flowers. The king and his future bride then proceeded to St. Mark's cathedral, where a solemn Te Deum was sung. Next day a reception of all the nations from the various provinces, dressed in national costume, bearing gifts for the bride and groom, was held. In the evening there was a gala dinner at the palace, attended by all the visiting dignitaries and foreign envoys. This was followed by a concert at the palace by the Royal Court Orchestra.

THE DAY BEFORE.

The events on the day before the wedding included a reception to the guests; an official luncheon at the palace, national rejoicing and military reviews. In the evening King of Yugoslavia gave a banquet for his royal guests. This was followed by a serenade in which more than 2,000 singers from the Serbian provinces took part. The wedding place in the Serbian Cathedral at 11 a.m. June 8. The Patriarch of the Serbian Orthodox Church officiated in accordance with Serbian custom and a civil ceremony was held. The bride and groom and the royal family returned to the palace in the evening where they received the congratulations of relatives, friends and others. This was followed by a reception of foreign royal family, cabinet ministers and government officials, as guests. In the afternoon there was a military review. A formal dinner was given in the evening by the King and Queen Rumania in honor of the bride and groom. The Royal couple departed for the castle at Beed, Slovenia, six miles from Belgrade, where the honeymoon is being spent.

Is the "Mayflower" Eligible?

We have been asked to express our opinion as to the eligibility of the Boston fishing schooner Mayflower as a challenger for the International Fishermen's Cup won by the Canadians last fall.

Having followed these races since their inception and being fully acquainted with the conditions under which they are run, we can see no valid reason why the Mayflower should be debarred from entering the races as a contestant this fall.

When the Mayflower was launched, she was such a radical departure from the orthodox design of fishing schooner that one might be forgiven for expressing doubts as to whether she could be classed as a bona fide fisherman. Only one test could be applied, however, and that was for her to put in a year's fishing on the banks. If she proved too fine-lined for the work, then as a fishing schooner she would be a failure and would eliminate herself.

But the Mayflower has fished steady for a year now. She has taken all the dirty weather knocking about the Western Ocean this past winter and proved herself to be staunch, weatherly and able. As a fisherman, she is an able seaworthy vessel. As a sailor, we believe she will prove the clipper of the fleet unless some of the 1922 models show unusually speedy qualities.

If the Mayflower complies with the measurements required of contestants then she is eligible to race for the Cup as a bona fide fishing schooner.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

ONE-SIDED. Cash he made. The reason or his daily trade. He worked for money, spent his time Seeking the dollar and the dime. And raked them in—but found at last, Although he owned a fortune vast, His days were far from being glad, For gold was everything he had.

He wanted fame. Both day and night His was a self-advancing fight. He would be great by right of skill, His feet would climb the topmost hill. What though another's joy must fail, He would be master of them all. He rose to fame, but in the end He found he hadn't made a friend.

Not by a single plan we live. Who takes must also learn to give. Who would be glad must now and then Make glad the lives of other men; Who would have friends when old and gray Must play the friend with all to-day. The selfish goal were better lost Than purchased at too great a cost.

Worth Noting.

If tiny corks are tacked on the back of the lower corners of picture frames they will prevent the line of black dust forming on the wallpaper, which leaves an ugly mark.

When baking cakes, particularly when the gas stove is used, the tin which contains the cake should be put inside another tin which has a layer of sand. This will keep the cake from burning.

To make icing white, strained lemon juice should be added. To tint it a pretty cream, strained orange juice may be used. For a delicate pink, pour a little boiling water over some strawberry or raspberry jam, strain, then mix with sugar. These colorings have the advantage over ordinary ones, as they impart a nice flavor to the icings.

Moths can be kept away from furs or clothes by putting a piece of linen damped in turpentine in drawers or wardrobes. This should be renewed once or twice during the year. Moths will never attack carpets or curtains which have been well sprinkled with salt.

Before arranging maidenhair fern in vases, soak it for two hours in cold water, then singe the ends of the stems with a match. Ferns thus treated will last three times longer, and keep fresh and green for several days.

St. John, N.B.,

FOR CHEAP ELECTRIC POWER.

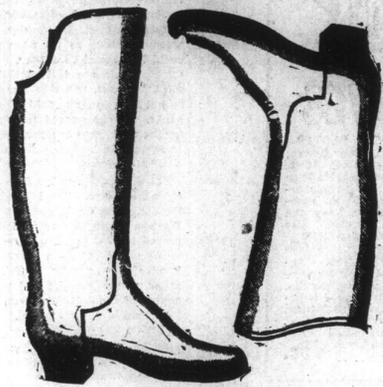

The city of St. John, New Brunswick, will shortly borrow $900,000 to establish an electrical power distributing system in that city.

From 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 of hydro electric power will be purchased from the New Brunswick Power Commission at a cost of about 1.2 cents per k.w.h. The power distribution will be in charge of a civic commission which has been appointed by the city and will have entire charge of the construction and financing of the system as well as its operation after completion.

It is estimated that the cost of the system will be $900,000 and approval has been given by the city council of St. John to a proposal to spend this sum of money for the construction of the system.
