"I Had Terrible Backache From Kidney Disease"

Mrs. M. A. McNeill, Cannon St., N.B., writes: "I was troubled for years with terrible backache, resulting from kidney disease. At times in each month I remained in bed, the pain was more than I could stand, and to walk was almost impossible. I used about $50.00 worth of other medicines, but with little result. Now I am completely better, after using only five boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

At the Mouth of the Treacherous Pit
STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE AND REVENGE

CHAPTER VII

"Now I see my rival, the white rose, married first, and I shall have to weep tears of envy myself."
"Do you know," cried Sir Karl, impetuously, "that I can never tell when you are jesting and when you are serious?"

"And do you know, Sir Karl, that I do not even know myself? The wise man says, 'Know thyself.' I should think there is no girl living who knows herself less than I do. I am never sure of myself. I am a mass of contradiction. I have good impulses—feel sure of that—but I do not carry them out. I have lofty aspirations too, and there are times when I long to do great deeds."

Sir Karl began to have an unpleasant kind of feeling that she cared for him more than he liked. He tried to put the idea from him at first, tried to laugh at it; but it was in vain—the uncomfortable conviction grew daily. She said so many things upon which he could put but one interpretation.

No woman, he argued with himself, however, would ever show any open preference for a man. He must surely be mistaken. He thought at times that the wisest precaution would be not to go to Beaulieu, and resolved to be on his guard against Lola de Ferras. But he had yet to learn how clever a woman can be when she has an object in view.

Notwithstanding his resolve not to go to Beaulieu without very urgent reasons, every day Lola found some excuse to request his presence. Madame de Ferras had had some slight difficulty with the local board, and at Lola's suggestion she had appealed to Sir Karl for his help, which he most cheerfully gave her; but he now found that it necessitated frequent interviews with madame.

So it happened that on the day when she received the invitation to Dolores' wedding he felt a strange, inexplicable aversion for her.

"You are in no hurry to go away," she said to him. "Sit down and let us discuss this affair. Shall I accept the invitation or not?"

"You must be the best judge of that," he replied.

"Some people say that it is unlucky to be a bridesmaid, she remarked. I have a great inclination to tempt fate. Will you be there, Sir Karl?"

"In what capacity?" he asked.

"The capacities in this case are very limited," she laughed. "There are but four, father, bridegroom, best man, and guest. The last character is the only one in which you could appear. Are you going in that?"

"No," he answered, gloomily; "not even if I should be invited—and that is not very likely."

"Then I shall lose all interest in the affair, and the wedding festi-ties will be dreary enough. Why will you not go, Sir Karl?"

"I am not invited; even if I were I should not go, as I have said."

"Not if I urged it?" she interrogated archly.

"No, not even then," he replied, hastily.

He did not want her to think he would do anything he disliked himself for the sake of pleasing her. There must never be any mistake about that footing he was on with her.

She was quick enough to see that she had startled him, and that he was not pleased with what she had said. She changed the subject adroitly, and went on chatting in her usual piquant style until he was quite in a good humor. Then she returned to the original subject.

"I should imagine," she said, "that all over the country we shall have rejoicings and festivities. Mamma proposes to have a grand ball in honor of the wedding. Lady Fielden has arranged to have a fancy ball, and I hear that the Duke of Raimford will provide a series of brilliant entertainments. He is Lord Rhyeworth's greatest friend. What will you do in celebration of the event, Sir Karl?"

"Nothing at all," he replied, abruptly. "The wedding does not concern me in the least. Why should I celebrate the event, as you call it?"

"It would look kind and neighborly," she answered. "If you do not, you will make people think that you have some reason for it."

"The real reason why I do not anticipate taking any part in the wedding festivities is that I am going to Paris, and I am not sure how long I shall remain there."

"Do you really mean that you are going to Paris, Sir Karl?" she said. "Why should you go there? How cruel of you! Do you not know how much we shall all miss you? Do not go."

He tried to laugh lightly, but in truth he was ashamed of being as it were, wooed.

"I shall miss you, Sir Karl!" she added coaxingly. "Do not go. It lightens the day for me when I see you. I do not know how I could bear the long weeks and months if you were not here."

He could hear the vibration of passion in her voice; he saw that in her eyes which he had never read in any woman's eyes before.

"You will not miss me so much," he replied. "You have so many friends."

"I grant it—many friends; but none like you, Sir Karl. All of them put together are not equal to you. I—I Oh, do not go to Paris! I do not know what to say to you; but do not go!"

The beautiful face was all shadowed with pain, the dark eyes filled with tears. Whatever were her faults, Lola had a deep and sincere affection for Sir Karl.

He tried to speak, carelessly, but he was touched by her emotion; yet the more sure he felt that she loved him, the more unconquerable was his feeling of distrust and vague dislike.

"You are very kind to think so much of me," he said, lightly. "I must go to Paris, however. But I shall not always remain there. I shall come back to Scarsdale some day, I suppose."

"I hope you will not be away long," she said, and he saw that her lips were colorless and quivered with pain.

His impulse as a man hating to see a woman suffer was to speak kind, consoling words, but he reflected that any show of sympathy to her might be dangerous; and so they remained in silence for some minutes, until Lola had regained her composure.

When she spoke to him next it was in a quiet, matter-of-fact; all emotion, all agitation had vanished. She perceived at once that if she was to win him it must not be in that fashion.

"You are not thinking of going yet, Sir Karl," she said—"not just yet I hope?"

"It will take me some little time to get my affairs in order," he replied; "but I shall go as soon as I can."

"We shall see you again, shall we not? I should like to give you one or two commissions in Paris, if you will accept them."

"I shall be well pleased to render you any service," he answered; and to himself he added, "except that of falling in love with you."

"Thank you. It is seldom that we have a chance of getting anything from there. The name of De Ferras is proscribed in France. I will write out the list for you."

"But suppose that I am absent for some years?" he said. "Are there things that you want at once?"

The same tempest of emotions swept over her face.

"I will wait," she answered in a strange voice, "until you bring them. You will come back some day—home must have some tie for you. You will come back, and it may please you to find me waiting for them—and for you."

Her voice was full of tenderness, full of passion, and love shone in her eyes. He was simple, frank, and honest. He said to himself that, if she really cared for him it was cruel to let her continue in the delusion. He had better say something that would open her eyes at once to the truth; but in trying to be diplomatic he made a terrible mistake.

"I hope to find you very happy when I come back," he said. "In all probability you will be the wife of some wealthy, kindly man, mistress of a fine establishment, and a queen of society."

He paused, startled and awed by her manner. She stood before him, and raised to his face white and full of pain, with eyes half blinded with indignant tears.

"You wish me that?" she said. "You hope that when you come home, I may be the wife of some other man—the mistress of some other home?"

"Certainly," he replied, deeply embarrassed. "What better fate could I desire for you?"

"You wish it. Remember this, and carry the memory of my words away with you. I would rather be dead than that such a thing should happen."

Without another word she went away, leaving him alone.

Lola was in a whirl of emotion. She had gone to a pretty, white summer-house in the grounds, where she spent many of her leisure hours. She could not have trusted herself any longer in his sight.

"Cold and cruel heart," she murmured. "He must know that I love him, that I care for him as no other woman will ever care, that I love him as no other woman ever will, that I would give my life for him! He must know it, although my lips have never uttered the words. And why can he not love me? I can amuse him, while I have seen him tired and bored with others; I understand him thoroughly; why can he not love me?"

"I shall be successful," she said to herself, as she went back to the house. "It may be long years, but I shall win in the end; and then—then I shall be happy!"

A Tribute to Canada

Chicago, Ill., June 14.—In the current issues of his weekly newspapers—Collier's Eye and The Referee—out to-day, Bert E. Collier, contrasting conditions in the United States with those in Canada, pays a glowing tribute to the Dominion.

"Canada is probably the best governed country in the world," says Mr. Collier, at the conclusion of a sizzling editorial on present domestic political condition. "As a sort of fiction they are governed by a king across seas, who never bothers to go to the provinces. That removes the seat of Government thousands of miles and lets the sane thinking Canadians go on doing whatever they want to do, as they have always done. Canada represents a unique case of the success of absent-treatment in rulership. Therefore her troubles are as nothing compared to this country, England, France and Germany where leaders lacking in statescraft are continually heaping confusion upon themselves by their futile attempts to perform constructive acts. Canada has no foolish laws and no multiplicity of statutes. The Canadians realize that foolish legislation will result in Canada—therefore they abstain from radicalism. After all there is nothing sounder in statesmanship than the century-old maxim—that government governs best which governs least."

Lady Diana Manners on New York

NEW YORK, June 15.—Lady Diana Manners, who has alternated in the roles of the Madonna and the Nun in the New York production of "The Miracle," sailed for England recently believing, she said, that New Yorkers were delightfully appreciative of stage art, although they drank far too much liquor and practiced too little democracy.

"They're really more democratic in London, don't you know," she confided to reporters. "And the drinking—I never saw so much of it in dear old England."

She said she was anxious to return to American footlights, and that she planned to come here again next Autumn.

Lady Diana was accompanied by her husband, Captain Alfred Duff Cooper, who is returning to resume duties with the British Foreign Office.

DOCTORS WANTED TO OPERATE

Mrs. Quillon Tells How Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her from an Operation

Muskegon, Michigan.—"After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians, without any relief at all, they said that medicine would not reach my case and I should have an operation. I had heard of Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound and often saw it advertised in different papers where some woman had suffered just as I did and got well and strong again by taking the Vegetable Compound. I decided to see what it would do for me, and before I had finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the severe pains in my sides left me. I am now much stronger and do my own work and work in the factory besides. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it all the praise."—Mrs. NELLIE QUILLON, 17 Morris St., Muskegon, Mich.

Women should heed such warning symptoms as bearing-down pains and weakness, for they indicate some female trouble, and a persistent and faithful use of Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound will seldom fail to help.

APPEALS FOR CO-OPERATION.

BLOEMFONTEIN, June 20.

J. M. B. Hertzog, the Nationalist leader, who is expected to form a ministry in succession to the Smuts Cabinet, as a result of the National-Labor victory in the recent elections, addressed an open air meeting here today, and in the course of his speech emphasized the necessity for co-operation between the two principal races which make up the population of the Union, something for which he had always worked, he declared. Although the pact between the Coalition parties had formally ended on Tuesday with the elections, he was convinced of their strong desire to continue co-operation. For one thing, General Hertzog added, he could assure the people of South Africa that they would no longer be governed by violence.

Mr. Cardin stated the course adopted had been requested by sardine fishermen and weir owners of the districts affected.

Obituary

On Saturday, June 14th, the Angel of Death descended and took from amongst us the person of Mrs. Annie Webber, daughter of the late George and Mrs. Balsom, and wife of Engineer Arnold Webber. The sudden passing of the deceased lady came as a shock to the people of Clarenville and nearby places. Apparently in good health, only a few hours previously she had visited relatives and had engaged in various duties. After returning to her home she was suddenly stricken down. Dr. Smith was called, but his services were of no avail. Complications must have set in and no hope of saving the life was entertained. Surrounded by loving relatives this good woman passed on to her reward. To those who knew her, the name Mrs. Webber was significant of all that was high and noble in character, a shining light that shed its bright beams for a short while and then was snuffed out by the hand of fate. Memories of her will not soon be forgotten, as evidenced by the beautiful wreaths that were placed upon the handsome casket. From the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen came a marvel of the florist art. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon, Rev. Isaac Davis conducted an impressive service at the Methodist Church, from whence the remains was taken to the cemetery, and all that was mortal of the once loving wife and mother was consigned to its last resting place and eternal peace. To the bereaved relatives the entire community here join hand and heart in sympathy.—COR.

MUTT

A Petty Fuss About the Normal School

After many years of desire on the part of our people for a Normal School for the training of our Teachers, such an institution—serving all denominations—has become a reality and for the past few years has been working amid many difficulties in a large room contained in the Grand Building and rented for the purpose.

Now that it has been born, the adulterated and malcontents—a coterie of persons whom none can please, and such as afflict most communities—are howling because the country has provided a decent home for the important work. They claim that the country could not afford to erect such a building. Whether the country could afford it or not, much larger sums of money have been spent on things of vastly less importance to the welfare of the country than an educational headquarters. Let me, for example, cite the branch railways, one of which has had to be gathered up since. Appropriate buildings must be erected for other public purposes; to wit, the Colonial Building, Court House, Post Office, Museum, etc., and decent furniture and carpeted floors provided for the occupants, but for that most important of public services—education—a shack must be built and bare floors, rough benches, and barren yards must suffice, while the administrators and teachers must be content with starvation salaries, lower in their average than the average earnings of any other class of workers. Why this alacrity and mean spirit towards education?

The country cannot afford to erect a decent building for a Normal School! How can intelligent people, be they editors, ex-teachers or what not, make such a claim and be sincere? A little thought upon the subject should lead them to the contrary judgment. The country cannot afford, as a matter of fact, to do without much better educational machinery than it has so far, in its ignorance and carelessness, provided. Had we erected our Normal School when Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and little Prince Edward Island built theirs; had we years ago made provision for some measure of higher learning and technical knowledge, we should be today in a much more prosperous position than we are in every sense of the word, our industries would have been further developed, our people would have been more enlightened, our forests would be receiving the attention that our care for the future demands. The value of our fisheries would be enhanced, and such concerns as the Humber operating company would not have been constrained to look outside of our borders for skilled engineers and captains of labour.

I agree with Mr. Jardine, who writes recently in the Daily News that our people are naturally of a most intelligent type, but succeeding governments have failed (and have sinned in the failing) to provide for them the opportunities that should be theirs. History is the story of the struggle of the people—the masses—towards freedom and right and, let me add, truth. Every step upward for them has been secured at great cost—freedom of blood. The upper, so-called upper and privileged classes (with conspicuous and noble exceptions) have always oppressed those below them and resisted their efforts towards the light. During the past one hundred years, the right of the masses to light, to education, has been won step by step, but at every step gained some blue blood has preceded blue ruin for the country as a result.

History often repeats itself. The Normal School is for the good, first of all, of the poor of this our country. The rich and the well-to-do can afford to send their children elsewhere for their education; the poor must be contented with that which their own country provides for them. The poor, call in their distress for the Normal School, and there are to be found among the privileged classes a coterie to say: "The country cannot afford a decent building for a Normal School." Just as in the minds of such people a slum and a den in a slum are good enough for the worker, so a shed would be good enough for a Normal School. Why provide for them a thing of beauty, why provide decent ventilation, why provide a comfortable chair, why provide sanitary offices, why plant a tree to decorate the barren yard—anything is good enough for the swine, anything suitable for those who are to be their teachers! We poor folk are heartily sick of this attitude on the part of some of those who consider themselves superior. By painful steps we are gradually coming to our own and are living in hopes that, if we of this generation are compelled to live amid scenes unlovely, our children may enjoy a habitation—however humble, yet beautiful, and in a street which the community helps to keep at least wholesome.

In England labour is winning its way into the light of the sun. The present Prime Minister of England, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, is representative of Labour and, if space can be spared, Mr. Editor, I beg you to find room for some thoughts that he expressed lately in addressing the Architecture Club. I commend the words of Mr. MacDonald to the coterie of soreheads that are at present fitting around the office of the Daily News, screeching: "Damn the Normal School." In part Mr. MacDonald spoke as follows: "A House is Clothing. In the choice of his house he had no free will. Every decent, respectable, God-fearing man declined to buy ready-made clothes. Was it not, therefore, a much greater sin to live in a ready-made house? For, after all, a house was clothing. Yet if he could not take advantage of free will in his pictures, rooms, door, or house, there was one thing he could do: he could enjoy the streets of the town in which he lived.

"That was where architecture came in as a great social art. He believed in some way or other that he was responsible for the National Gallery; and he was very proud of it; but a thing they were very apt to forget was that for every hundred people who took delight in that gallery, a million people saw the public buildings that were on our streets. On a pure mathematical basis, it was far more important that the Government should see that its public buildings were beautiful than that it should see that there was a choice collection of old and new masters properly housed.

"There were some places in London, he added, that he had passed for the last thirty years, and had never had a kind word for them or a decent thought. He did not like them, and he hoped architects would form an association that would adopt some revolutionary methods and give him the pleasure of getting up one morning and finding that they were not. Alluding to the Committee on Ancient Monuments and Buildings, which his predecessor had set up, the Prime Minister said that he thought he would be doing good service by supplementing that Committee with another.

"I am turning it over in my mind, he added, whether I should not appoint a committee of artists and architects, men, and perhaps women, of good chaste eye, who can appreciate a beautiful thing when they see it, and I should charge that committee, not with the power of creating something fresh, but from the annual estimates voted by Parliament I should give them a good store of dynamite, and allow them to use their discretion in employing it to clear a way for creations which would give people more pleasure, and which would benefit the community more than happens at the present time. The great question is, What can the Government do for architecture?"

"I am one of those people who hate bureaucracy. I am in favour of getting my letters opened, my pencils sharpened by bureaucracy. That is its job. That is its proper task. But when you come to matters of architecture and such things, bureaucracy is out of place. A young man who has become a bureaucrat has become prematurely aged. An artist who becomes a bureaucrat becomes a cog in the machine.

The Cup of Idea and the Lip of Accomplishment.

"How can the Government help art and architecture? Perhaps the only possible way just now is that it should be the patron, leaving the architect, free and spontaneous, to do his untrammelled best, and even then there are many slips between the cup of idea and the lip of accomplishment. Nevertheless, when we look on the old

Another View of The Normal School

We publish elsewhere in this issue a communication from a correspondent, dealing with the much discussed Normal School question from a point of view which has been somewhat overlooked by those who have freely expressed their opinions as to the cost of the Institution. He is moved to defend the project on the ground of the purpose which it will serve.

With regard to the question of cost, is it not something to be thankful for that at a time when public monies were being poured out like water without any commensurate return, a portion at least of the millions was expended upon a building which can and will become a public utility. Extravagance there has been, but in what direction was money spent during that period of squandering with an eye to prudence or economy?

A million and a half was expended on the cutting of pit props, and all that we have to show for it are the debt and the denuded areas. Elaborate schemes of relief were devised, and the scathing comments of Commissioner Walker sum up the result. We invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in alcohol, and netted a deficit, and in the end, when the whole story was told there were not a few who were ready to treat the matter lightly or to condone the offences. The money has been spent, but in the Normal School there is at least some value for a portion of the expenditure.

Again and again there is an outcry because a position which calls for special qualifications is filled by someone who is not a Newfoundlander. In most cases it is because there are no persons in the country who possess the knowledge essential to the post, for the simple reason that they have never been afforded the opportunity to acquire the educational status which the work demands.

Our students leave the Colleges in most cases at an early age to begin their life's work at a lower rung of the ladder than is in keeping with their natural ability. They have the desire to acquire more advanced knowledge, but their limited means will not permit them to proceed abroad to pursue their studies, and their own country does not provide the necessary educational facilities. Those who are more fortunately situated leave the country to graduate in the schools of learning elsewhere, and their homeland in most cases knows them no more.

The colleges in St. John's today are attempting at a great expense to meet the situation by providing advanced courses which are really beyond the standard of the ordinary secondary school. The Normal School properly staffed could centralize these classes and relieve the Colleges of this excessive strain and expense, and at the same time considerably broaden the course of studies.

The method of training teachers to-day is most unsatisfactory and unsystematic, but through no fault of those in charge of the institutions which they attend. They are compelled by circumstances to join the regular classes, and no opportunity can be given them to obtain a knowledge of the science of teaching which offers as many difficulties to the student as the professions of law or medicine.

The argument advanced that by educating the teachers to a higher status, we should simply be expending money on them to fit them for more lucrative positions in Canada or elsewhere is not only a slur on those who would undertake these courses, but is neither sound nor logical. By the same reasoning, we must not provide any of our students with improved educational facilities because a general exodus would result. In order to retain them, we must suppress their natural desires to advance with the times and compel them to remain hewers of wood and drawers of water! And yet we cry out because an outsider secures the plums in the employment market!

This country at last is advancing with the times industrially. Every day new avenues of employment are opening to the younger generation, and the temptation to go to foreign lands to find congenial work and to obtain adequate returns for their natural talents becomes less and less acute. Educationally too we must advance, and it is the first duty of the State to provide the necessary training institutions to equip our youths in order to enable them to qualify for the positions that are offering. These facilities must not be made exclusive to a certain class. The poor as well as the rich are equally entitled to share in the opportunities to acquire knowledge, and to reap the benefits of our industrial development, and it is by means of such an institution as the Normal School that this can be accomplished.

The criticism has been particularly caustic regarding the elaborate fittings of the building and the proposed beautifying of the surroundings, but does it not occur to those who have been so outspoken that one of the chief educational factors is environment? Where does child life thrive the better, in the slum, or in the fair country? Is the dinginess of the cellar more congenial to the flowering plant than the open air and the light of the sun? Are dark, damp, cold and cramped quarters conducive to mental activity, to enthusiasm or to inspiration?

Too long have we neglected to give consideration to such matters and deprived our children of these essentials in the different schools. We resented being told the truth about them a few years ago when several of the institutions were condemned by experts, but even if the truth is a bitter pill, we must swallow it in our own interest. We have to face our responsibilities; we must adopt the modern methods in vogue in Canadian and American schools if we are to give the young generation a chance, and it is certainly time that we rejected the old idea that what was good enough for their grandfathers should be good enough for them.

A Suggestion to Citizens

A few minutes spent by our citizens in removing the tufts of grass which appear here and there in front of their houses would not only convince visitors that the time has not yet arrived when the grass is to be allowed to grow on our streets, but would also add considerably to the appearance of the thoroughfares. By way of setting an example we would suggest to the Council that they should do the same on the frontages of the park and open spaces.

The Disappearance of the Historic Mail

Speculation gave place to astonishment and astonishment has been followed by outspoken disapproval as the public have watched during the past month or more the operations which have been going on on Military Road in the vicinity of Government House. At first it was thought that the intention of the Council was to improve the appearance of the old historic Mail by re-erecting the incinerator or erecting a retaining wall. Daily, however, its front receded, until to-day it has been practically entirely shifted away and brought down to a level with the street or possibly a little lower. What is the purpose of this huge expenditure, when many parts of the city are crying out for attention? The Mail was a place where many old people loved to sit in the sunshine, where children could play of summer when their little charges unmolested. It is to be hoped that whatever the purpose is it will speedily be effected, and that the space will be retained for the exclusive right of the children and the infirm by means of a railing.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

June 20th.—Up early, and after reading a little in my morning sheet, to my office. All the talk of the steamer "Montreal," which is going with the greatest possible dispatch and taken on board the passengers of the "Metagama." Of those, there are several hundred, and all bringing to the Montreal in tugs, the thing being well done, albeit, with the greatest difficulty. Come Hales, and, as usual, full of gossip, and indeed, has the longest tongue of any I know; longer even than that of any woman. His talk of the Mail, and says it will be all dug away, to the fence of Government House even, which is the silliest thing. Nor do I believe it possible the Council would ever think of such a thing. To the Board of Trade and those kind great expectation what the Parliament will do, when they come to sit two weeks hence. Much talk of sessional pay and departmental salaries to be cut in half, and drastic economies everywhere to be effected. Which, if true, is the best news possible, and do show the earnest endeavour of the Cabal to place the country on a sound financial basis. I do hear also that there is a deficit on last year's accounts. Comes a letter from Mr. St. John and complains of what Povey did say of him Thursday, which was "that Mr. St. John may go to Mr. Main as an Opposition man." But Lord, how any man can make this out to be a positive statement, I cannot see, nor can there be need for a denial, when no definite assertion exists.

BODIES OF TWO MURDERED JAPANESE FOUND.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 20. The bodies of two Japanese men murdered by police to have been buried and tossed from a passing car were found to-day opposite the Spring grounds of Fort MacArthur near the road leading to White Point in the Palisades Hills north of here. Found asleep in a spot about two miles from the scene were four persons who are being held for investigation. In the car was found a .38 calibre pistol which had not been fired recently according to the police.

DEFEATED ON THE EVE OF SUCCESS.

LONDON, June 21. Sir Francis Younghusband, President of the Royal Geographical Society, to-night informed the newspapers that a telegram had been received by the Everest expedition committee in London to the effect that the attempt to scale Mount Everest had ended in disaster involving the death of two members Geo. Leth Malloway and A. C. Irvine. Interviewed at Westminster Sir Francis said it was not known how the disaster occurred but that it probably happened a fortnight ago. The expedition according to Sir Francis was within a short distance of the summit at a greater height than ever had been reached before. It had experienced great difficulties in fighting its way through the tremendous blizzard which lasted for some weeks. The members of the expedition must have been greatly exhausted when Malloway and Irvine died. It was the final assault of the peak and the men had great hopes of reaching the top. Sir Francis said it was almost certain that the expedition would be abandoned for this year. News of the disaster reached Malloway's home in Bournemouth to-night. According to the Daily Express, the climbers were caught by a monsoon near the summit after a wonderful climb under the worst weather conditions they had experienced.

R. C. ELECTIONS.

VANCOUVER, June 21. Almost every poll in the interior of the province shows here to have a majority. In some cases the proportion being as high as three to one. At nine thirty to-night with the polls closed since 7 p.m. it was quite impossible on available returns to forecast the composition of the next Legislature of British Columbia. At that hour the Liberals had elected five candidates and had five others in the lead. In Vancouver City those concerned in the election including one Cabinet Minister, Hon. Dr. Sutherland, in Revelstoke, the Conservatives had elected six including a solid four in Victoria, the seat involving the personal defeat of Premier John Oliver.

PARIS, June 21. Premier Herriot's talk with Premier MacDonnell of Great Britain which is expected to take place some time between to-day and Monday when the French Premier visits Chateaux Court will be "personal and confidential" said Herriot to-day to newspaper correspondents. He said nothing would be given out regarding the conversations so far as he knew, but the British Official may issue a communique if he wishes.

LIBERALS LEAD IN B. C. ELECTIONS.

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 21. The Liberals of British Columbia in yesterday's General Election elected 19 members to the Legislature, the largest number of any of the parties; but whether the Government of Hon. John Oliver will have a clear working majority in the Assembly will depend on the final results, in side riding which this morning were in doubt. While Liberal Party triumphed, Premier Oliver its veteran leader, went down to defeat with his three party mates in Victoria, the Conservatives in the capital electing the full ticket of four members. In Vancouver the Conservatives failed to elect a single candidate of six seats. The standing from present returns include Liberals and Conservatives 15, Provincial Party 3, Labor 3, Independents 8, in doubt 45. All cabinet ministers except Premier Oliver have been returned, and no women have been elected. One hundred and sixty seven candidates offered themselves for election.

An Old Copy of the Thunderer

Recently, in renovating the Ansonia Church at Torral, the Rector came across a copy of the Times, dated Sept. 21, 1849. It is in an excellent state of preservation and contains an interesting account of a meeting of the Metropolitan Commissioners of sewers, which at that time were the subject of serious discussion in consequence of the cholera epidemic raging in London. Some idea of the seriousness of the situation is obtained from the Registrar General's Report which states that the number of deaths in London from cholera during the period June 17th, 1849 to Sept. 19th, 1849 was 12,231.

DEMPSEY WILL FIGHT WILLS AT ANY TIME, SAYS JACK KEARNE.

Jack Kearney, manager of Dempsey, at a dinner to newspaper men recently, said: "Dempsey will fight Wills within twelve months, twelve hours, one week, one month or a year, and that goes unconditionally, and we will fight not for a purse, but for charity, if necessary. We are not afraid of Wills, never have been and never will be. Jack Dempsey, who is now working for Universal, will meet any man in the world—white, black, red or green."

Tex Rickard, when asked for his views on the subject, said: "I am ready and willing to match Wills and Dempsey, and I hope no other promoters will interfere with the match, as they have done in the past." Kearney got up again and said: "The only reason Dempsey and Wills have not been matched is politics."

LAST NIGHT'S FOOTBALL.

C.L.B. 3 Goals; Star 1. Only a fair attendance of fans and spectators turned up at St. George's Field last night to witness the football match between the Star and C.L.B. teams. The game was fairly well contested and ended in a victory for the C.L.B. side by a score of 3 goals to 1. In the first half the C.L.B. had matters practically all their own way. Two goals were registered in quick succession by A. Honebery. The first found its way in the net off O'Neill's foot, and the second was a drive from the left wing. The Star had several good chances to score in this period, but they bunched too much and failed to keep their positions.

Upon crossing over the teams settled away in real earnest. The Star team, though lacking in experience, appeared to play better as the game progressed, and many spirited attacks were made on the C.L.B. goal, but without success. In this half, each team found the net once. Chafe got the goal for the C.L.B., while Finn was responsible for the Star. The Star team did very well last night. They have the material, and with lots of practice are bound to cause trouble before the season is over.

The Haig Tug of War Cup

B. A centre tape shall be affixed to the centre of the rope, and six feet on the side of the centre tape a side tape shall be affixed to the rope. A centre line shall be marked on the ground, and six feet on each side of the centre line a side line parallel thereto. At the start the rope shall be fast, and the centre tape shall be over the centre line, and the competitors shall be outside the side lines.
C. No knots or loops may be made in the rope. The crossing of the rope over itself constitutes a loop. The rope may be gripped by the end man of a team, under the arm and passed over one shoulder. It may be looked

D. No competitor may willfully touch the ground with any part of his body other than his feet. Touching the ground with the hand, wrist or persistent slipping down or sitting is not permitted.

POWERS OF THE JUDGE.
E. In all Tug of War Competitions, there shall be one judge, who shall have sole control with power to appoint assistants. It is within the discretion of the Judge to disqualify a team for any offence against these rules, even though only one member may be concerned, and to award the pull to the opposing side, or disqualify the offending team from the competition. He may also disqualify a team which after being cautioned persists in lying on the rope without pulling.

F. A "pull" shall be won when one team shall have pulled the side tape of the opposing side over their own side line, or any portion of the foot of any team leaving the rope before either side has pulled the side tape of the opposing side over their own side the "pull" shall be declared one pull and shall not constitute one of the requisite number of pulls. Turning on the rope is allowed. No competitor shall make any hole in the ground with his feet, or in any other way, before the start.

(G) All competitors shall wear boots or shoes, of which the sole, heel and sides of heel shall be perfectly flush and not faked in any way. (This is not to apply to competitors in any event confined to H.M. Services, in which service boots as actually issued may be worn).

(H) In competitions open to men no member of the team shall be under the age of 17 years.

(I) It is allowable for the Captain of a team to accompany his team on the ground, and to act as their coach during the contest, providing the Captain himself be also an amateur.

Repairs to Metagama

An examination of the damages to the S.S. Metagama has not been completed as yet. The pumps are kept going constantly, and all the water was taken from No. 4 hold last night. An examination showed that the breaking of a suction pipe was responsible for the water getting in No. 4. The boiler room is still full of water, while tons of coal have been washed from its bunkers. Temporary repairs will be commenced as speedily as possible, but before doing so a conference will be held, besides there is much riveting and boring to be done from the inside. The ship's stern is now resting in the mud, and with the list to port the repairs can be carried on without very much difficulty.

THE SITUATION.

Investment Securities In The Center of the Stage.

The insistent demand for investment securities is the distinguishing feature of the situation at the moment, and is of course the natural result of accumulating funds in the face of the lowering interest rates. One cannot but be impressed with the sagacity of those financial interests charged with the responsibility of selecting the right time to finance the requirements of the American Telephone Co. The offering of $150,000,000 stock could not have been better timed.

Girl Bandit of Jugoslavia

Belgrade, May 28.—Not bobbed but carefully marcelled, Jugoslavia's girl bandit has been captured near Brbovo village together with a half dozen of her band of brigands. Young and prepossessing, she is known as the "silk woman" because of her extravagance in dress. When captured she was clothed completely in silk and wore neat little patent leather pumps. Soft spoken and of quiet demeanor, she is described as enterprising and reckless as any man in her exploits.

The police are trying to discover her real name. Her fellow prisoners absolutely decline to divulge it.

ARE THE SMITHS HAPPY?

There is a certain charming community that I pass when I go to the city from my summer home which I think is one of the most gracious spots on earth.

This settlement is built on a hill, high and slightly, as my New England mother used to say. The houses in this part of the town are all attractive and well kept. Some are old houses done over and some are built in the best manner of later days. Many of them are large and gracious and comfortable looking, and all of them have enough breathing space. The grounds are wonderfully groomed and beautifully shaded with fine old trees. There seems to be no plague spots at all. It is a place where every prospect pleases and even man has contributed only beauty to the landscape.

The Old, Old Mistake

The train I usually take does not stop at the station which serves this community, but I took a different train the other day and we stopped there. And I saw several men get out and climb into the smart or luxurious cars which were drawn up to meet them. In the cars were women as charming and finely groomed as the house and gardens, and in several of them were prettily dressed children.

As the train drew out and I saw the cars making for the beautiful hill, I found myself thinking: "How happy those people must be!"

The old, old mistake! To fancy that surroundings and circumstances, however propitious, are sure to make happiness.

But Not For Ever After

The point is that we see a thing or have (or think we would like to have) and we feel sure that we would be happy if we could grasp it for ourselves. Which we doubtless would be in the moment of grasping.

And then comes the weak point. We feel sure that we could also be happy ever after. Which we shouldn't be.

And neither are the people who have what we want.

I don't suppose there is anyone who doesn't make this mistake once in a while. A woman who has been very unhappy with her husband and who was suing for a divorce told me that just before her suit was filed, a neighbour said to her: "I was telling my husband the other day that the Smiths seemed to me to lead an absolutely ideal life. An apartment in winter and that darling little cottage in summer. And that wonderful maid that you've had in the family for years. And Mr. Smith's business is so interesting, and he's making such a success of it and you have your painting. And you're so devoted to each other. I don't see how anyone could be much happier."

And Just So-So Between

"And all the while," said my friend, "I was desperately unhappy because of Mr. Smith's affairs with other women and only took up my painting to try and distract my mind."

We always think the Smiths are happy. We know what they have to make them happy, because people as a rule parade these things.

Those particular Smiths happened to be very unhappy but probably most Smiths, whether they live on the beautiful hill or in the town below on the plain, are like you and me,—happy some of the time, and unhappy some of the time, and just so-so in between.

Japanese Discrimination Alleged in Philippines

MANILA, May 16. (A.P.)—Race prejudice arising from competition between Japanese and Filipino laborers, artisans and chauffeurs in the province of Davao may result in serious trouble, according to a report made by H. Cruz, director of the bureau of labor, to the secretary of commerce and communications.

The trait of "protectionism" practiced by Japanese nationals, Director Cruz declared, is largely responsible for the threatened trouble, as in virtually every industrial activity in Davao, of which a great portion is in the hands of the Japanese, the Japanese laborers are given preference over Filipinos. Nearly one-half of the Japanese in the Philippine Islands live in the province of Davao.

Among other complaints received was one from the chauffeurs' union of the city of Davao which alleged that Japanese residents refuse to use automobiles driven by Filipinos.

With the complaints of the chauffeurs came a recommendation that the law be changed limiting the issuance of licenses to Filipinos and Americans only.

Director Cruz has laid the complaints before Governor General Wood with his own comment regarding the racial feeling existing in Davao.

PHYSICAL CULTURE

WALT MASON

I took some lessons from a man who's fashioned on the Sanson plan. His arms and legs bulge out with brawn, to massive chest his breath is drawn, his thighs are all like leather bands, he twists up horse-shoes with his hands. He took me in, and old fat hard, and for six weeks he worked me hard; I walked some forty miles a day and lived on beans and toasted hay, and when I left the strong man's place I was a credit to the race. Ah, there was pep in every limb, I was a miracle of vim. I said, "I'll cut out writing verse; for active men no stunt is worse; I want a job that will employ the mighty strength I now enjoy. I want to exercise my thighs, and heave and strain and bust my shoes."

I went around from door to door, to factory and mill and store, and asked for work requiring brawn, and people told me to begone. And so I realized at length there was no market for my strength. They needed salesmen who could sell, and auctioneers equipped to yell, mechanics who could fix their boats, and young men trained in herding goats; they had good jobs for all the guys who in commercial tricks were-wise, but they had nothing they could hand to one whose shape was truly grand. "Go to," they said, an-tare and cool; "when needing strength we'll buy a mule."

This is the only chance to get snapshots of Earl Haig's visit to Newfoundland. Why not get your Camera now, and be a competitor for the prizes that are offering? — TOOTON'S, The Kodak Store.—June 20, 21

Our Dumb Animals

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT FOR WEEK ENDING JUNE 20th.

Attended to the landing of 3 carloads of cattle at the Railway Station. The importers of these cattle are complaining of the scarcity of hay put in the cars with these cattle. There was practically no hay in the cars when the cattle arrived. The fault is due to shippers as the railway have no hay at stations en route. Attended to the landing of 172 head cattle, 13 calves, 55 sheep, 246 pigs and 6 horses by the "Canadian Sapper." All the animals seemed to be in fairly good condition, and were watered and fed on the premises before being taken to pasture. Attended a sale of cattle, sheep and pigs at the Abattoir Co.'s premises. All animals were removed as quickly as possible after sale. Some delay was experienced in removing some sheep to the country on Monday owing to the motor truck which was to convey them breaking down. Humanely put to death 3 unlicensed dogs, one on Central Street, one on Cookstown Road, and one on Blackhead Road respectively. Sent 4 horses of the street for lameness. I would like to give warning to the teamsters with long carts that when hauling molasses they are not allowed to sit on the cart with the load because the weight is altogether too heavy on the horse's back. After 'his warning I will summon all drivers offending as animals must be given a square deal. I wish to express my appreciation and thanks to those kind patrons who attended the garden party and gave donations. I also place on record my thanks to the Lady Mayoress and his Worship the Mayor for placing their beautiful lawn and garden at the disposal of the Society. Arrangements are going ahead for the Work Horse parade on August 28th. The Horsemen's Association will be asked to provide the Judges. His Excellency the Governor has kindly consented to place his grounds at the disposal of the Society. Four dogs were killed during the week by motor car drivers. This does not speak well for careful driving, gentlemen. Phone all complaints to 688.

"The Valley of Silent Men" at the Majestic

ONE OF THE GREATEST STORIES EVER WRITTEN IS THE FEATURE NEXT WEEK.

The story of a man's regeneration. A virile pulsing drama. "The Valley of Silent Men." The millions of copies of this celebrated book sold created such an interest in the production that the picture rights were in great demand. "The Valley of Silent Men" designated the greatest production of the age was shown only in the one dollar picture houses in New York, Chicago, Boston and other big centres in Canada and United States.

Away up in the Canadian Rockies, amid the mighty forces of Nature, a man must be a man even to survive. "Kent, the Tracker," a corporal of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, was trailing a fur thief, when he was shot from ambush. After "getting his man" he had just strength to ride to the nearest cabin, where he finds his friend, Jacques Radison, standing over the body of John Barkley, an outlaw fur trader, who had been strangled with a strand of woman's hair. Radison is accused of the crime, which Kent, who believes he has only a few days to live takes upon himself. Quite unexpectedly Kent recovers, when his enemy, Inspector Kedsty, arrests him for the crime he acknowledged.

Up from the Valley of Silent Men, so called because of the three white mountain peaks which guard the valley below, comes Marete, quaint French Canadian girl. She learns of Kent's confession and sacrifice for her brother Jacques. At the point of a gun, Marete delivers Kent from jail, secretes him in the home of the same night that Kedsty is shot by an unknown murderer.

Marete and her sweetheart elude the police who are in hot pursuit, by means of a short cut through the mountains. Their safety lies in getting to Harette's Valley. The mountains prove dangerous. Marete falls from a peak and is injured. The journey is continued after a short delay and they reach Marete's cabin in time to hear the confession of the two murderers from the lips of old Pierre, Marete's father, who dies in his daughter's arms. Pierre's confession exonerates Kent. The three "Silent Men" radiate a blessing on Marete, who is in Kent's arms.

Amateur Contest Attracts Large House

A PROGRAM OF VARIETY AT CRESCENT LAST NIGHT.

Last night's Amateur Contest at the Crescent Theatre attracted the usual large house. The affair was conducted in perfect order under the direction of Dan Delmar, and some good exhibitions of amateur talent were displayed.

To-day and to-night mark the closing performances at this theatre of Ethel Clayton in "Can a Woman Love Twice", the remarkable Film Booking Offices photodrama which has been thrilling and entertaining big crowds at every performance during its run. The local success of the picture is but a duplicate of the hit made wherever it is shown, for its dramatic qualities are such as to elevate it far above the ordinary run of "movies."

Stirring battle scenes and a mighty dynamic explosion furnish spectacular thrills, but even these are overshadowed by the emotional magnitude of the sheer drama that the film contains.

TRINITY

GEORGE WELSHMAN AND HIS SON WILLIAM 1764-1908.

To-day, every man of whom I have written has been either an Englishman, an Irishman, a Scotchman, or a Welshman. A most remarkable thing, however, about the man whose outline history I am now about to give is, his father was an Englishman and a Welshman at the same time.

George Welshman first saw the light in a country town of Dorset, England, in the year 1764. He came to Trinity about the year 1788, and was married to Elizabeth Keats in the year 1789. Several children were born to them; but it is to their second child William that I wish to refer particularly just now.

William Welshman was born in Trinity in 1803. There was nothing romantic about either his boyhood or early manhood life.

There was no public school in Trinity in those days. Old Captain Ash taught him how to box the compass, and he learnt to read from his father and mother, and from the only two books in the old home library, viz: the Bible and the Book of Common Prayer. As soon as he was big enough, and strong enough he went out fishing every summer, but, probably he would date the beginning of his conscientious manhood from the year that he first went to the seal fishery in the spring.

Then after a few years of practical experience, he went to the seal fishery as second-hand with Capt. George S. Field, and remained with him as such for twenty years.

During the summers of those years he was the official pilot in the employ of Slade & Co., Trinity, to take their vessels from Trinity to Hant's Harbor, and other places on the Southside of Trinity Bay, where Slade had a branch business.

After twenty springs with Captain Field at the seal fishery, Mr. Slade asked William Welshman to take charge of a vessel to the ice: to take his crew from among Slade's dealers in Hant's Harbor; and to sail from there at the proper time.

His vessel was the "Thomas and Sarah." William Welshman was married to Catherine Smith, of New Harbor in 1837; and when his two children (a boy and a girl) were born, he called the boy Thomas and the girl Sarah; evidently as reminders of his first and only vessel, of which he had been so proud.

He left Trinity for Hant's Harbor in February to get ready for the ice. Whilst he was there he was invited to spend his spare evenings at the home of the Magistrate, Mr. Mews. They were all very kind to him, and Miss Mews made such a wonderful cake for him to take with him to the ice, that he hesitated to cut it up for use. There was an Irishman named Redmond Grace living in Hant's Harbor at the time; and one of his many accomplishments was, being able to see away into the future, and he was known as a "fortune teller." (Some of the old people in Trinity to-day remember him being referred to by the sealing captains, as "old Redmond, the fortune teller.")

Captain Welshman's friends advised him to consult him re the location of the seals.

He did so, and Redmond Grace told him that if he would follow his instructions, and the course he would give him, without any deviation from it, he would secure a load of seals.

Captain Welshman said he would gladly do so, and then Mr. Grace told him that after he had been out for several days, he would strike the ice off Cape John, and the first seal he would see, would be a white-coat that had lost its head. Then he was to shape his course N.E. and by E. half E., from that part of the seal's body where the head had been.

Captain Welshman left Hant's Hr. in the "Thomas and Sarah" and a crew of fifty men on the first of March, and in due time struck the ice. With thoughts of what the "fortune teller" had told him, he went up in the rigging to look over the ice, and there on the weather-bow, sure enough, was a solitary white coat, or rather what was left of him—for upon examination he was found to have no head.

Captain Welshman had not told anyone what Mr. Grace had told him, so he went himself on the ice, and examined the seal, and then he got his vessel in time with a N.E. by E. half E. course from where the head of the seal had been.

The crew looked on and wondered of the captain had gone a "little off." When he came on board, he gave the man at the helm the course to steer; and as all was going well, he went below for a few hours sleep, whilst the mate's watch went on duty.

In the early morning the captain came on deck, and as he looked at theinnacle compass, he was surprised to find the vessel going due North. He demanded of the helmsman why he was steering that course. The helmsman replied that though the man he had relieved had given him the course N.E. by E. half E., and that he had kept on that course for some time, yet

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR ACRES

See this Wonderful Soul-Stirring Astounding Photoplay — at the — MAJESTIC Monday

the mate had ordered him to change it to North.

The captain called the mate and asked him why he had changed the course, and he said: "the ice became closely packed, and I changed the course to get around it; as I didn't think it mattered very much."

The captain then realized that he had made a mistake in not having taken the mate into his confidence, re the instructions he had received from Mr. Grace. It was too late then, however; and the vessel went about all the spring like the wandering Jew, and came in when the voyage was over, without a seal—and all of course, because they had not kept to the N.E. by E. half E. course from the headless whitecoat. At least, that was what Captain Welshman gave as the reason, when he came in, and when in after years he told the story. After that, William Welshman went with Captain George S. Field again for another twenty years.

George Welshman died in 1840, aged 76 years.

Elizabeth Welshman died in 1841, aged 70 years.

William Welshman died in 1861, aged 69 years.

Catherine Welshman died in 1887, aged 70 years.

The name Welshman died out in Trinity, with the death of Thomas, son of William and Catherine in the year 1921.

LOCAL ITEMS.

The new schedule of passenger rates on the Prospero from St. John's at 4 cents a mile, though based on those who are going to the farthest North, is decidedly in favour of Trinity, and should result in an increased number of visitors to us during the summer. The old rate from St. John's to Trinity was $5.25; to-day it is (63 miles at 4c.) $2.52. This, of course, does not include meals; but the prospect of getting to Trinity, should be sufficiently pleasant to do away with the necessity for food en route.

Mr. Chafe of Brigus registered at the Garland Hotel last week, on his way to Bonavista. It was his first visit to Trinity. He spent Sunday with us; was pleased with us and our town, and will come again at the earliest opportunity. A mutual pleasure.

Mr. J. H. Sywens, Ph. D., of Wilmington, Delaware, U.S.A., registered at the Garland, and spent the week-end in Trinity. He has gone to Labrador, as a paying guest with Captain Stanley Barbour, in order to get a practical knowledge of the methods of catching and curing codfish.

Dr. Sywens has visited nearly every part of the world; and as a scientist, and a historian he entertained and instructed those of us who were privileged to meet him. We wish him a pleasant summer, and a return to Trinity some day.

Rev. George Maidment, and Rev. T. Greavett of Bonne Bay registered at the Garland last week, and spent several days with us.

Trinity is Mr. Maidment's native place, and we are proud of him. Mr. Greavett was a stranger to us when he came, but not when he went away; and we were right glad to have them with us.

They assisted at the services at Trinity, and Trinity East on Sunday; and after visiting Bonavista, Brooklyn, etc., they will go on to St. John's to attend the biennial meeting of the Synod. Will you see me back again?

Mr. Eric Rankin, the respected manager of the Royal Bank of Canada in Trinity, is now at St. John's. He will be married to Miss Lella Taylor, daughter of Mr. John and Mrs. Taylor of the city, on June 26th; and after spending a few weeks at Grand Falls, he and his bride will return to Trinity.

Miss Taylor is well and pleasingly known to us as one of our summer visitors of the recent past, and we shall be glad to welcome her to Trinity, and to the Garland Hotel, not only for her own sake, but also as the wife of one who has endeared himself to us during the four and a half years he has been with us. In the words of the Psalmist, (Vide Chap. 73 and Verse 7) we wish them "abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth." And may the ocean of their life be the Pacific.

Mr. Balfour of the city staff, has come to look after the interests of the Bank and its customers during Mr. Rankin's absence, and we are glad to have him with us.

Mr. Gilmors, who represents Butler Bros., of New York, paid his annual visit to Trinity last week, and registered at the Garland. As a Southerner, from South Carolina, Mr. Gilmors is one of our delightful visitors; and as a business man, we don't wonder that for many years he has had the confidence and the respect of his employers.

Last Sunday (Trinity Sunday), was the fortieth anniversary of Canon Lockyer's ordination to the Priesthood, in St. George's Church, Halifax, N.S.

The Hon. D. A. Ryan spent the week at Trinity, Bonavista, and King's Cove, and then returned to St. John's.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jenkins were passengers by the Prospero to St. John's on Monday last.

Mr. James Lavender, aged 65 years, and Mr. James Dewling, aged 64 years, died in Trouty last week. Mr. Lavender died of tuberculosis, and Mr. Dewling died of cancer.

They were life long friends and neighbours. They were buried at the same time in the picturesque, hillside cemetery of the Church of England in Trouty, R.I.P. They were members of the S.U.P. and the brethren from Trinity and Trouty attended the funeral in regalia.

Miss Phyllis Erikson, and Master Willie Gent, of the Church School for Girls, and the Collegiate School for Boys, respectively, of Windsor, N.S. came by the Digby on Friday, and are now in St. John's.

Little Eric Morris, child of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morris, died suddenly and was buried yesterday, June 21st, 1921. —W.J.L.

FISH ARE BITING

Fish are biting down below. How, you ask me, do I know? Since I've kept within the gloom of this busy working room? Fish are biting in the stream. Fish with silver scales agleam— Past my window went a lad, Holding high the sting he had.

Fish are biting fast to-day Where the willows bend and sway. Fleecy clouds are drifting by— Painting pictures in the sky; There is many a golden dream Dancing up and down the stream For a youngster passed my gate, With his pole and can of bait.

Glancing through my window pane, Head high, trudging down the lane, Came a small boy, good to see. Just like one who used to be. But a glimpse was all I had. Of that proud and happy lad. Still it was enough to know. Fish are biting down below.

Fish are biting down below. How, you ask me, do I know? I can tell you what you'll see; Name you every bird and tree, Tell you where the big ones lie. Waiting for the worm or fly— Past my window went a lad, Rich with joy which once I had.

HOW TO DEVELOP OUR RESOURCES.

Newfoundland, like most other dominions of the Empire, needs capital
to develop her immense resources,
and to-day, more than ever before,
all her leading men recognize this need. They also recognize that capital can only come from outside the colony, and that capital will not come from outside the colony unless it is assured of settled and reasonable conditions. This assurance, I feel confident, the Monroe Government will, ere long, be in a position to furnish. Let me say here that public opinion will certainly resist the utmost any political combination in the next session of the Legislature to increase the taxes, when all of the graduated taxes should be reduced as uniformly as possible.

IRONY OF THE STATESMAN'S POSITION.

In one of his newly-published essays, Sir Walter Raleigh says:—"It is the irony of the statesman's position that while his work is very like the work of a good housekeeper, the literary deceptions and fictions incident to the process of persuasion invite us to regard him as a hero of romance, a love figure on a mountain peak, silhouetted against the moon."

WHEN PARTY NAMES STAND FOR SOMETHING.

Once upon a time party names stood for something real; they marked fundamental and irreconcilable differences of opinion on essential questions. But in recent years they have become empty of meaning, the pre-texts of competition for power and reward. Such an account of the party system is not good history. Swift, who lived when the succession to the Crown was a party question, made light of Whigs and Tories.

LIKE A SELF-MADE BUSINESS MAN.

It has been said that Newfoundland is like a great, big-hearted, good-natured, self-made business man who has never stopped long enough in his self-making process very seriously to be influenced and influencing him, or to weigh his own motives, and see where any conflicts with another. Now, with the Legislature convening at a time when Newfoundland must make some of the most important decisions of its life, this exuberant energy needs more than ever to collect its thoughts and use them in straight lines of reasoning to logical effective conclusions. It must understand clearly the elements of which its collective opinion must consist at present, and act itself, with a good deal of humility, and sincere courage, how it can replace petty crossness within its own thinking with a rationality of action that will be as definite in the new crusade for progress and prosperity as its efficiency was under the patriotic Liberal Party from 1889 to 1908.

THE MULTITUDE OF JANGLING DETAILS.

To come to a true decision a man or a country needs real spiritual vigour. A spiritual regeneration is as necessary for Newfoundland, as for any other part of the Empire, but of what does it consist, and how does it work? Of course, any man can take the essentially spiritual point of view for himself, and thus exemplify what it may mean for the Empire. If he will be sure for himself that the full variety of life is all there can be to the true Newfoundlander, in place of the multitude of jangling details that seem to be facts, and set about to prove this in his entire experience, including his attitude towards public affairs, without admitting as he proceeds that vigor of action must involve and element of conflict, he is well on the way to a progressive spiritual regeneration for himself.
What is true for a man is true for a country. The country as a whole needs to study its motives, and the influences under which it has advanced, in order to make its decisions as simply and as energetically as possible in the light of the whole background of history, which is merely a term for the stream of life with its boundless variety, exemplified now in this way and now in that attitude of mind, they would not make of the coming session only a time in which to jockey for offices and emoluments.

THE FORMATION OF A MINISTRY.

Touching the existing political situation, it must be borne in mind that the formation of a Ministry is not everything; the circumstances preceding its constitution are factors which have also to be taken into account. The new Government which at the bottom forms a representative and fairly democratic body seems capable of inspiring much confidence.
The members of the new Government,
who have rallied round Mr. Monroe, are in the main, neither utopians nor political adventurers. Any way, this cabinet came into being when it was never more urgently needed. As a matter of fact, its formation was imperative or else a dangerous situation would have ensued.

THE OVERTHROW OF THE LATE CABINET.

The parties responsible for the overthrow of the late Cabinet were not ready to assume the responsibility for building a new one, nor were they favorably situated to make an attempt thereat, for the simple reason that they would never have been able to secure a working majority.
On the other hand, on the resignation of a Premier occasioned by a like ministerial crisis, the public, as a rule, expects to see a vacancy filled immediately, in the belief that cabinets and cabinet ministers are to be had for the asking. On being disappointed, the people are apt to rail
at the existing form of constitution,
and declare that it has become obsolete. Indeed, such complaints are being made throughout the land, and,
as already stated, voices may be heard maintaining Newfoundland is no longer fitted for a parliamentary regime.

OBSTACLES IN THE IMPROVEMENT OF GOVERNMENT.

The obstacles we encounter in the improvement of Government are easily recognized. Of course, the greatest is the lack of knowledge on the part of the people or rather lack of appreciation of what will really serve the interests of the community,
a condition which furnishes abundant opportunity for misleading appeals.

G. Knowling, Ltd.

Thus every one should know that the only hope of a reasonable share of prosperity for our people, the only prospect of bettering living conditions is through the investment in productive enterprises of the surplus gains of production over consumption.
We must have a surplus and it must be used to develop enterprises. How famous to dry up this essential source of prosperity by plans of taxation which discourage enterprise and yet are stridently proclaimed as being in the interest of the people! How melancholy the spectacle of an insistence by a community in self-impovertyment!

IN THE CASE OF PUBLIC ROBBERY

Apropos of the Hollis Walker Enquiry, it occurs to me that when enquiries have succeeded, as they must ultimately succeed, in imposing upon themselves the same ethical standard as is imposed among individuals, the power of public opinion will be all-prevailing. If the head of a family commits a crime or a gross act of dishonesty, all the family comes under the shadow. The time must come when, if the Government of a country commits a crime or acts dishonestly, all the people of that country will feel themselves to be under a shadow,

and determined to make reparation.
In the case of public robbery no particular sufferer is able to say what precise sum he has been robbed of by any particular robber in cases where there, unhappily, be many robbers;
but does this wipe away the sin? Are the robbers less robbers for this? The man whose house has been robbed seldom knows precisely what he has lost, and in many cases never knows who the robbers are; yet the sin of robbery remains the same, and it remains the same, too, though the robbed person remains forever unconscious of the robbery.

NO DIFFERENCE IN THE NATURE OF THE OFFENCE.

The public robber, or robber of the people of a country, feathers himself with the excuse that he knows not whom the money comes from; but does that make any difference in the nature of the offence? Nine times out of ten the highway robber knows not the persons that he robs, and so it frequently is with the official thief and burglar. But those all know well that they rob somebody, and so does the political robber who robs the people. He knows that somebody must be the loser; he knows that he robs

his neighbours, the people of the whole country being in a moral and religious sense his neighbours, and he knows that God has said (Lev.
XIX, 33), "Thou shalt not rob thy neighbour."

A BRILLIANT BUT ERRATIC GENIUS.

"The other day, while 'going thru'
an old volume of one of our local newspapers of the 'early eighties,' I read with peculiar interest a stirring speech delivered in the House of Assembly by that brilliant but erratic genius, the late Mr. John Boone. In reprover to the late Captain (Charles Dawe) he said:—"It is not by a few vain boasts, or valiant self-complacency, or rash daring, that we, as a people, are to win our way to prosperity and distinction. We must do as others have done before us. We must serve in the hard school of discipline; we must invigorate our powers by studies of other people and other times. We must guide our footsteps by those stars which have shone and still continue to shine with in-extinguishable light in the firmament of experience—call it learning if you will. Nor have we any reason for despondency. There is that in Newfoundland character which has never yet been found unequal to its purpose. There is that in Newfoundland enterprise which shrinks not, and faints not, and falls not in its labours.
We may say with honest pride:
"Man is the nobler growth our realm supply."

And souls are ripened in our northern sky."

"We may not, then, shrink from a rigorous examination of our deficiencies. If we have but a just sense of our wants we have gained half the victory. If we but face our difficulties they will fly before us. Let us not discredit our just honors by exaggerating little attainments. There are those in other countries who can keenly search out and boldly expose every false pretension. There are those in our own country—even in Bay Roberts—who would scorn a reputation ill-founded in fact and ill-sustained by examples. We have solid claims upon the affection and respect of our fellow-colonists. Let us not jeopardize them by a false claim or an ostentatious pride."

CURIOUS FELICITY AND FACILITY OF SPEECH.

And who that recalls Boone's remarkable career can fail to remember how singularly applicable to him
are the words in which the immortal dramatist has described the curious felicity and facility of speech, and the extraordinary versatility of powers of one of the great writers and rulers
of England:—"Turn him to cause of politics. The Gordian knot of it he will un-toss. Familiar as his garter, that when he speaks. The air, a chartered libertine, is still,
And the mute wonder lurketh in man's ears. To steal his sweet, and honeyed sentences."

Five things you should know about your tooth brush

- 1 Is it made of the best bristles the world produces?
- 2 Are the bristles serrated (saw-toothed), and set in a curve to fit against all your teeth, and to reach the crevices between?
- 3 Does it have a large end tuft, and a properly curved handle so that the end tuft can reach and clean back teeth?
- 4 Will it keep germs, tartar, food debris, and other unclean substances off your teeth?
- 5 Is it fully guaranteed?

When your tooth brush is a Prophy-lactic, you can answer all of those five questions correctly. The Prophy-lactic Tooth Brush has for more than forty years been the standard, correctly designed tooth brush
for keeping teeth clean, white and beautiful.

News was received from England yesterday that the Rev. J. A. Meaden, B.A., L.Th., Rector of Burin who took the examination for the M.A. of Durham University at Queen's College early in June has satisfied the examiners and had been granted this degree.

Mr. Meaden is a graduate of Queen's College where he qualified for the L.Th. passing on from there to Durham for one year to take the B.A. degree. The subject he took for the M.A. examination was the whole of the New Testament in Greek with a study of the main question of criticism and the examination was a real test of scholarship.

Harbor Grace Notes.

Saturday last, June 14th, was "Tag Day" with the Boy Scouts here, and for tagging everybody. The boys went with scarcely any refusals, and the day advanced, a badge of the Harbor Grace Troop Boy Scouts is worn by practically everyone in town. The sum realized was a pretty good one, and will help along the fund.

A meeting of the business people on Monday night, it was decided the following days would be observed as holidays throughout the season: June 25, July 1, 9, 16, 23, 30; August 6, 13, 20, 27; September 3, 10, 17, 24.

The death of Mrs. George F. Parsons, formerly of this town, occurred at Toronto, Ont., Canada, last week. Mrs. Parsons had been residing with her children in that city since the death of her husband some years ago. She had reached the good old age of 84 years, and will be remembered by the older folk of the town. The body was brought here by to-night's train, and was taken to Parsons' Undertaking rooms to await burial. The funeral will be held to-morrow, Friday, when she will be laid to rest in the family plot in the Methodist Cemetery. Two daughters, Annie and Nellie, accompanied the remains from Toronto, and her son, Mr. W. H. Parsons, from St. John's. She is also survived by two sons, who reside in Toronto, Messrs. Eugene and Duvald, and a daughter, Mrs. Willis Davis, of St. John's as well as a large circle of friends, to all of whom we offer condolences.
